County to Fund Flood Wall Study

By CHUCK HAGEE
GAZETTE

Fairfax County Board of Supervisors recently voted to fund the next, more in-depth, study phase of the Belle View Area Flood Control Project as part of the County's FY09 budget. It will be paid for from the County's Stormwater "Penny Fund," which sets aside one cent of every tax dollar collected annually.

The estimated County

Engineer, will focus on the feasibility of creating a combination flood wall/levee along the western side of the George Washington Memorial Parkway from the area of Belle Haven Road to where the Parkway crosses Dyke Marsh. The proposal grew out of the storm surge flood devastation in Belle Haven and New Alexandria during Hurricane Isabel.

"This is a very encouraging development. We owe a great deal of gratitude to Supervisor Hyland, Congressman Moran, the staff of the County Stormwater Management Office, and many others who have been working tirelessly for several years now to keep this effort moving forward," said John Giglio, Belle View Area Coalition.

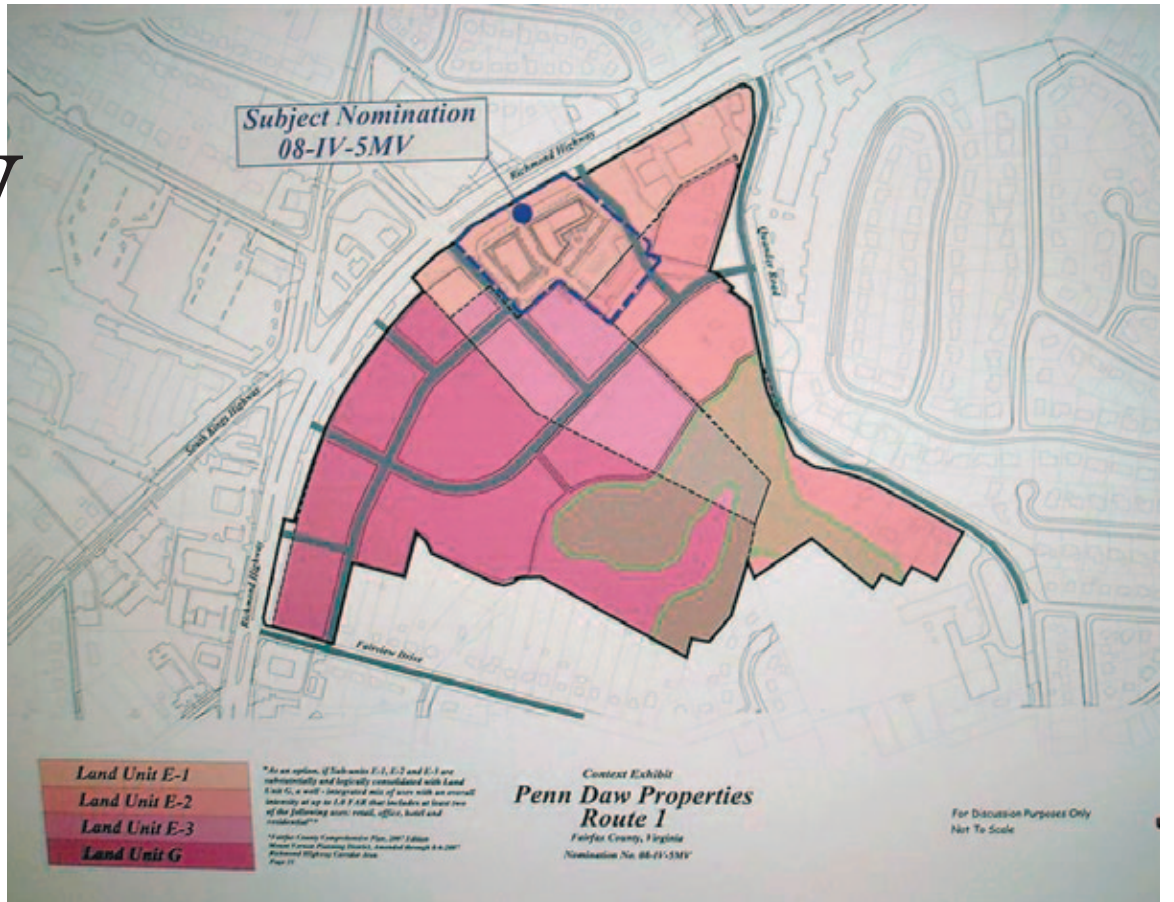

Mount Vernon District Supervisor Gerald Hyland urged the County Board of Supervisors to support a request for Federal funds "to help finance a civil works project in the Belle Haven watershed" to prevent a recurrence of the 2003 disaster. The in-depth study is the next step in the process.

During a meeting at the Belle View Elementary School earlier this Spring the Corps of Engineers presented a plan that calls for a flood wall/levee with a pumping station for interior drainage. Their funding for the study ranges from $1 million to $1.1 million. The actual amount will not be established until the work plan for the Stormwater Penny Fund, which now contains a total of $22 million, is presented to the Board of Supervisors in June.

The study, to be undertaken by the Army Corps of

These Are Not Your Father's Barracks

"Wounded Warrior" housing provides living independence.

Who says one person can't make a difference? In fact, that one person in this technological/electronic age can get the attention of the powers that be a lot faster than they can react. That is exactly what happened when the father of an 82nd Airborne U.S. Army soldier pointed out the deplorable conditions of barracks at Fort Bragg, NC, in which his son was quartered upon return from combat duty in Afghanistan. He photographed the conditions and posted those images on YouTube.

In his video that father also asked viewers to contact their congressional representatives to demand that the barracks' conditions be rectified. That sent out not a ripple but a tidal wave through the military establishment to make sure the Fort Bragg example was not the normal single-soldier living conditions nationwide.

Last Wednesday afternoon Fort Belvoir conducted a media tour of its single-soldier barracks and the upgrades underway to further improve those living conditions. This $21 million project also includes a 276 "Wounded Warrior" room complex that is scheduled for completion by 2011.

These American Disabilities Act (ADA) compliant rooms are specifically designed to aid severely wounded soldiers in being able to enjoy independent living in well designed and equipped accommodations while they are in transition to either continue their military service or reenter civilian life.

CRIME BRIEFS

Penn Daw Homicide Eighth For Year

Michael Anthony Ross, 49, of Suitland, Md., was found shot to death Saturday, May 10, in an apartment in the 2900 block of Furman Lane in the Penn Daw area of Mount Vernon District, according to Fairfax County Police. It was Fairfax County's eighth homicide for 2008.

Police Officers found Ross after responding to a call shortly after 11 p.m. Detectives from the Criminal Investigation Bureau, crime scene technicians, a police helicopter and police K9 unit responded following the discover. However, no suspects have been apprehended as of this writing.

Anyone with information is asked to contact Crime Solvers by phone at 1-866-411-TIPS/8477, e-mail at www.fairfaxcrimesolvers.org or text "TIP187" plus message to CRIMES/274637 or call Fairfax County Police at 703-691-2131.

One Arrest Made At DWI Checkpoint

Approximately 233 motorists were stopped on Lockheed Boulevard near the intersection with Fairchild Drive Saturday, May 10, between 11 p.m. and 11:45 p.m. during a sobriety checkpoint that netted one DWI arrest. Another person was charged with possession of a false identification card and two others were given summons for not having an operator's license.

Eight Fairfax County Police Officers and four auxiliary police officers participated in the checkpoint designed to make sure drivers were not operating vehicles while impaired by alcohol or drugs.

Buckle Up Or Pay Up

Beginning this week Fairfax County Police will increase enforcement and education on the use of seat belts. During "Click It or Ticket" week motorists can expect to see officers conducting seat belt surveys at intersections throughout Fairfax County, according to police.

According to statistics there were 52 people killed in 47 vehicle crashes in 2007 on County roads, 16 of those were either pedestrians or bicyclists. Of the remaining victims, only 48 percent were wearing restraints, according to police. During 2007, Fairfax County Police issued 6,196 seat belt violations.

Lane Closed Temporarily

A small embankment failure Tuesday, May 13, has caused debris to migrate into the outside lane of the Telegraph Road ramp after the entrance from the westbound lanes of Duke Street. Because of safety concerns, the outside lane of the Telegraph Road ramp will be temporarily closed to traffic while the debris is removed and repairs are made. Lane closure warnings are posted on variable message boards near the ramp entrance. The lane closure is anticipated to last one to three days, depending on weather, and is likely to cause some traffic delays during the rush hour.

From either side of the Engineer Proving Ground, little evidence exists of the 8,500 employees who will call the property home in 2011.

But, according to representatives from the Army Corps of Engineers and the National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency, construction is well underway for a new $1.7 billion, 2.4 million-square-foot office building.

Shortly after the groundbreaking ceremony in September, hundreds of workers began construction on the new East Coast home of the National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency, consolidating three branches of the governmental agency on the EPG as part of the Base Realignment and Closure (BRAC) mandates passed by Congress a few years ago.

"Currently, there are about 600 people working at the construction site," said Susan H. Meisner, a representative from the NGA. "This population will grow to over 2,400 workers during peak construction, in 2009-2010."

Work is expected to be completed by August 2011, with some NGA employees moving into the building as early as January 2011, Meisner said.

With the exception of recent rainstorms, she said construction has been going "very smoothly," without any major delays.

around at the EPG, and that is the dominating sight to see there these days, said Chris Augsburger, public information officer for the Army Corps of Engineers.

"We're starting to see lots of concrete being poured, things are slowly starting to move upwards," he said.

Thanks to a little cooperating weather, Augsburger said he is confident the construction will be completed on time.

"It's a very ambitious schedule, but you do what you have to do to get things done," he said.

OTHER INTERNAL needs, like roads and parking lots to crisscross the 800-acre property, are in the early design phases, and Augsburger said he believes installation of water service will begin in April 2009.

These soldiers are part of Fort Belvoir's Wounded Warrior Unit. Presently there are 50 such personnel on base. Twelve reside in the newly designed quarters. Each of those quarters is wheelchair accessible not only as to access but also as to mobility within the housing unit — cabinetry and sinks are lower in both kitchen and baths, bathrooms are larger, light switches and doorways are wheelchair friendly, etc.

"All soldiers deserve living conditions commensurate with their service to the nation, and in accordance with standards afforded those they defend. We are making great strides because the leadership is involved," said Fort Belvoir Installation Commander Col. Brian Lauritzen.

"The installation's entire chain of command and control is responsible for identifying deficiencies and taking corrective action. When resources permit, we submit appropriate work orders to get the work done. If resources are insufficient, then we identify the requirements up the chain to acquire resources," Lauritzen said.

PRESENTLY FORT BELVOIR has six, three story barracks building originally constructed in 1975. They were last renovated in 1999/2000. The present renovation began in November 2007 due to changes in the Army's single-soldier quarters regulations.

"Right now the rooms in the unrenovated buildings, are a little less than 90 square feet each. They are designed for two soldiers to a room. They share the kitchen and bath areas," said Patricia A. Seaman, manager, Barracks Housing, Ft. Belvoir.

"When this renovation is complete we will be housing 398 soldiers in individual living quarters. We hope to have all six buildings completely renovated by early 2010," she said.

In addition to redoing all rooms throughout the complex, the project also encompasses renovations to the each building's common areas such as hallways, stairwell, and day rooms. Utility superstructure, such as water and sewage line, are also being upgraded throughout the barracks area, according to Seaman.

"The standards have changed. That is why we initiated this renovation project. Plus we added the Wounded Warrior project," said Donald Dees, public information officer, Ft. Belvoir.

When the present barracks were first constructed in 1975 the standard configuration was a three-person room with a shared bath. During the 1999/2000 renovation that configuration was changed to 808 spaces in 404 rooms.

In the past two years projects have been executed for mold abatement, replacement of floor covering, repair of safety deficiencies, HVAC systems, and common areas as well as overall painting. The exterior of the buildings were power washed and courtyard covers installed.

Following the Fort Bragg incident, Army senior leadership "order all installations to conduct inspections to determine if conditions like those at Bragg exist elsewhere" housing single active duty personnel. "We looked at living conditions for our service members here and have found they meet Army standards," Lauritzen said. However, during a weekend walk-through by Belvoir command staff, one occupied room was discovered with "mold or mildew, peeling paint, and some fixture rust posing a potential health hazard. The occupant of that room was immediately moved," according to barracks management.

"It is my job to keep our soldiers in the best living environment. And, that's what I will do. We have a zero mold tolerance. But, I also need to hear from the soldiers if there is something wrong with their quarters," Seaman said.

A typical two person room in one of the present Ft. Belvoir barracks buildings prior to renovation that will convert such quarters to single person rooms with increased living area and added amenities.

estimated cost for the project was $12.5 million.

At that meeting Hyland told the assembled residents of the flooded area, "Getting to this point has, at times, been excruciating. But, after we get this report and hear your views I will go to the Board of Supervisors with a recommendation." He did this during County budget deliberations.

It is anticipated that the study will be completed by the fall of 2009 thanks to funding from the County, according U.S. Rep. James P. Moran (D-8) speaking the at school meeting. "Once we have the study complete that's when I go to work to get the federal funds (for the overall project)," Moran said.

THE COUNTY LINE Busing Changes?

Some suggest reducing gifted and talented bus service.

BY JULIA O'DONOGHUE
THE CONNECTION

Should Fairfax County Public Schools keep paying to bus tens of thousands of students around the county for special programs? The Fairfax County School Board engaged in heated discussions about transportation service involved the busing of gifted and talented students. About 61,000 of the school system's 164,843 students are enrolled in the school system's gifted and talented program in 2008.

The school board split almost evenly when deciding whether to look at reducing transportation services to elementary school gifted and talented centers. The transportation task force had recommended that the school board eliminate gifted-and-talented bus services for elementary school students who have the same "level four" services at their base schools. Cutting the program would save the school system a little over $325,000.

Several board members rejected this recommendation. Some schools do not have the number of gifted-and-talented students required to offer a program on the scale that of a gifted-and-talented center, said school board member Kathy Smith (Sully.)

School board member Janie Strauss (Dranesville) added that eliminating transportation to gifted-and-talented centers would result in a drop in lower-income and minority student enrollment.

"I am 100 percent certain that I am not going to vote to deny transportation to gift-and-talented centers," said school board member Ilryong Moon (At-large).

Other school board members were more supportive of giving staff the flexibility to look at reducing gifted-and-talented student transportation.

"If we are already offering a set of services in schools, I can't imagine why we would pay to send students somewhere else," said school board president Dan Storck (Mount Vernon.)

"If we are going to put money into level four funding, then why do we have GT centers?" asked school board member Liz Brasher (Springfield.)

EARLIER IN THE DAY, other questions were raised about transportation of gifted and talented students at the middle and high school level.

School staff said there wasn't a significant distinction between middle school gifted-and-talented centers and the honors program offered through the standard curriculum.

"I think it is a duplicative effort. ... We do offer a full gifted-and-talented center at every middle school but some are called gifted-and-talented centers and some are called honors programs," said Peter Noonan, assistant superintendent for instructional services.

The largest difference was the honors program offered more "flexibility," allowing students to one or two advanced classes instead of an entire curriculum. Those enrolled in the gifted-and-talented program had also typically been taking classes together since elementary school, said Noonan.

"Most of the GT referrals are made in second grade," he said.

Noonan's statement prompted questions from board members about why the school system was paying for gifted-and-talented transportation at this level.

"If the offerings are at every middle school, why are we busing kids all over the county?" said school board member Tessie Wilson.

Some school board members said they should also take a closer look at transportation to Thomas Jefferson School for Science and Technology. The school system's chief operating officer Dean Tistadt said the cost of the special high school's transportation was "not inconsequential. There is no way to deal with TJ that doesn't have a resource implication."

At-large school board member Tina Hone said she thought the school board should consider reducing transportation to Jefferson given the tough budget situation.

"Maybe TJ parents are going to have to figure out how to get to TJ," she said.

THE TRANSPORTATION TASK force has also recommended busing Jefferson students to the local elementary school with younger children but both staff and the school board were not supportive of the idea.

Tistadt said it would increase the number of Jefferson "depots" from 25 to approximately 80 sites, thereby costing more money. Several school board members said they also had reservations about middle and high school students sharing a bus together.

"I don't support any high school kids on an elementary school bus, even if they are TJ kids," said Smith.

Changes in Start Times?

Students at some schools around the county could end up starting school later and some could end up starting earlier as Fairfax County school officials consider some dramatic changes to its busing system.

Staff is looking to develop a three-bell schedule in which some elementary schools could start earlier in the morning and some middle and high school students could begin school later.

The Fairfax County advocacy group, Start Later for Excellence in Education Proposal (SLEEP), has been campaigning for middle and high school students to start school later for the last 10 years. The organization cites research that show teenagers are biologically inclined to stay up late and sleep more in the mornings.

Currently, older students start class earlier in the morning than their elementary school counterparts.

The school system is also looking to increase the cost savings and efficiencies in its bus system. The Fairfax County Public Schools' transportation task force has made many of the recommendations being considered, including the change to start times.

The school board set some parameters for the schools' transportation redesign at its work session May 12. Staff is expected to return with a draft proposal later this year and the school board is gathering input through "study groups" this summer.

Residents will only be able to join the "study groups" if invited by the school board but staff intends to hold wider public meetings on the transportation plan next fall.

Schools Propose $2.2 Billion Budget

With more than 3,500 unexpected students, schools will need to make some cuts.

BY JULIA O'DONOGHUE
THE CONNECTION

Increases in class size, decreases in staff pay raises and freezing expansion of full-day kindergarten: these are a few of the reductions that Fairfax County Public Schools will consider for the 2008-2009 school year.

School officials had requested a $63.7 million increase to the $2.26 billion budget but Fairfax County Board of Supervisors only provided an extra $40 million, leaving the schools $23.7 million short of what it requested. According to school officials, the 2.5 percent in additional funding is the smallest percentage increase in the county transfer to the system since 1995.

Supervisors gave the schools a larger budget increase than any other agency. Fairfax County Public Schools was one of the only local government branches to receive an increase in funding at all, they said.

AN ENROLLMENT increase and rising fuel prices mean that additional funds provided by the county will mostly be used to cover existing costs and not to fund improvements or new programming, according to a statement released by schools superintendent Jack Dale.

Fairfax County Public Schools saw an additional 3,541 students in 2008, which will cost the system approximately $22.5 million in additional funding. Transportation costs related to enrollment increase and rising fuel prices will eat up an additional $7 million.

Dale has proposed to reduce the employee salary raise from three percent to two percent and halting the expansion of full-day kindergarten and the elementary school foreign language program. He would increase class size by one half of student, likely to affect general education classes more than specialty classes.

The school system has also reduced spending by "streamlining" several programs aimed at at-risk or low-income students, including summer school, Project Excel, QUEST, the Student Accountability program, the Summit program, and Young Scholars program.

WITH UNPOPULAR CUTS proposed, the School Board is looking at other options. Several board members said they would like to find a way to continue with expansion of the full-day kindergarten and foreign language in elementary schools.

School board members Brad Center (Lee), Jim Raney (At-large) and Liz Bradsher (Springfield) asked the staff to take another look at implementing an "activity fee" for athletic participation. In earlier budget discussions, the superintendent had said such a fee could produce at least $2.5 million but the school system's chief financial officer Deirdre McLaughlin said the revenue to be generated was most likely overstated.

Raney proposed some more dramatic cuts. He said the school system should look at closing Gifted-and-Talented education centers and moving those services into every student's base elementary school.

He also asked board members to consider capping enrollment at Thomas Jefferson School for Science and Technology to 1,600 students, the number of pupils the state government has agreed to subsidize. In the 2006-2007 school year, the high school enrolled 1,769 students.

Raney was also in favor of charging students to take Advanced Placement or International Baccalaureate classes.

"We are obligated to provide a free elementary and secondary education. We are currently providing a free post-secondary education in the form of AP and IB courses. We could generate $2.5 million by charging for AP and IB courses," said Raney.

"I don't support any of those initiatives," said school board member Janie Strauss (Dranesville), who added that the school system would have to retract some students acceptance to Thomas Jefferson if it implemented Raney's proposal.

During the discussion, school board members Stu Gibson (Hunter Mill) and Kaye Kory (Mason) also expressed concern about budget cuts to schools that serve a lot of poor and at-risk students.

Staff said about half of the approximately 35 schools that qualify for extra money to help at-risk students, called Title I funding, would see a reduction in this assistance from the federal government this year. Gibson said he did not want the school system to "pile on" by also cutting money for other programs found in these schools. "Obviously we have some schools in that category and we don't want to rub salt in the wound. What are we doing so that we are not adding insult to injury?" said Gibson.

"We could generate $2.5 million by charging for AP and IB courses."

SCHOOL SNAPSHOT 2008 Special School Program Enrollment

Fairfax County Public Schools provided a breakdown of specialty program enrollment based on race, ethnicity, socioeconomic factors and special education needs in January 2008. When compared with overall enrollment figures, students who are poor, black, Hispanic, English-language learners or who qualify for special education services are underrepresented in gifted and talented and accelerated academic programs. The same groups of students appear in higher numbers in the U.S. military's JROTC programs.

Program	Overall Enrollment	Economically Disadvantaged	Limited English	Special Education	black	Hispanic	white

COUNTY NOTEBOOK

More Algebra for Eighth Graders

Fairfax County Public Schools will start offering a standard Algebra I class in addition to its honors Algebra I class to eighth graders in two middle schools next year.

The school system wants to increase middle school enrollment in Algebra I so that more students will have the opportunity to complete calculus by the end of high school.

It is difficult for students to fit in all the prerequisites for calculus if they wait until ninth grade to take Algebra I, said staff.

Currently, about 47 percent of students complete Algebra I by the end of eighth grade, according to Peter Noonan, assistant superintendent for instructional services.

Like honors Algebra I, standard Algebra I will be an "open enrollment" class, meaning that it will be available to anyone who wants to take it. The class will resemble the standard Algebra I currently offered to ninth graders.

Hughes and Thoreau middle school will be the first to offer standard Algebra I through a pilot program next year. Noonan said the school system wants to expand the offering to other middle school programs in following years.

Fairfax County middle schools typically offer standard grade six, seven and eight math as well as Algebra I, Geometry and sometimes Algebra II, according to Noonan.

New Plans For Kings Crossing

pact on Fort Belvoir. "This development can serve as the stimulus to entice other development along the corridor," Hampshire told the SBCA members assembled at Groveton Baptist Church.

The 4.39 acre site owned by the Fenton family is composed of 11 parcels with the potential of a twelfth parcel in the works. That final parcel is presenting in foreclosure, according to Hampshire.

The area, situated just north of Shields Avenue, presently contains the St. Claire appliance store and several residences. It is bounded by Route 1 on the west, Shields Avenue on the south, a limited wooded area on the north, and a portion of the Penn Daw Mobile Home Park and additional woods on the east.

Monday night's presentation to the association was a preliminary step in Penn Daw Properties' BRAC Nomination under the Fairfax County Area Plan Review process. It also falls in line with one of the primary goals of Southeast Fairfax Development Corporation to stimulate additional office development along Richmond Highway from the Capital Beltway to Fort Belvoir.

Prior to the collapse of JPI's plans to develop the Kings Crossing site, Penn Daw Properties was "being courted by JPI" to be part of that large mixed use vision, according to Hampshire. Now, due to the BRAC nomination process, Penn Daw Properties has decided they prefer to be "uncoupled" from JBG Rosenfeld, new owners of the Kings Crossing site, Hampshire explained.

TWO POSSIBLE DEVELOPMENT scenarios were presented to SBCA members:

An office/retail alternative calls for an eight story 176,000 square feet office building that would have 22,600 square feet of retail space on the ground floor with 154,000 square feet of office space on levels two through eight. In addition there would be a separate, single story, 14,200 square feet retail structure.

A hotel/retail alternative calls for a 10-story, 164,800 square feet, high-end hotel with approximately 10,800 square feet of retail space on the ground level. The second structure in this alternative would be a two story, 26,000 square feet retail/office structure.

Both alternatives call for a separate parking garage structure. Alternative one has a four and a half level garage with 555 plus spaces internally and another 45 plus on the surface for a total of 600 plus spaces. Alternative two's parking garage is three and a half levels with 450 plus spaces internally and 50 plus externally for a total of 500 plus spaces.

According to the Area Plan Review application, the anticipated time for development of the project is "between three and five years, consistent with the anticipated time frame for the relocation of DOD jobs to Fort Belvoir."

However, the application cited the total anticipated incoming BRAC personnel at the 19,000 level. It did not seem to take into account that only approximately 4,000 will be coming to Fort Belvoir proper.

The vast majority of the 19,000 are not anticipated to be relocated to the primary base. The Geospatial Intelligence Agency of 8,500 personnel will be relocated to Fort Belvoir's Engineering Proving Grounds in the Springfield area. Construction is presently underway for their new campus complex.

The Washington Headquarters Service contingent of approximately 6,300 will probably be relocated to either the General Service Administration Warehouse site in Springfield, a potential Mark Center site adjacent to I-395 in Alexandria, or the Victory Center Building on Eisenhower Avenue in Alexandria. The final decision on WHS's relocation is due in June, according to BRAC planners.

Of the two scenarios presented by Hampshire to SBCA members the majority of those present favored the office/retail alternative to the hotel/retail/office alternative. However, they were not opposed to either.

As Dale told the membership, "This could be the seed for more retail development." The entire presentation was reminiscent of the early days of the Kings Crossing discussions. And, it concluded in much the same manner as most of those presentations — a plan on the table and details in limbo.

OPINION

Taking down acres of trees with no warning and no good reason.

It's possible that it happened on Earth Day, but it was definitely sometime within a week of that day. The Virginia Department of Transportation, without notice, bulldozed more than five acres of trees in at least three locations as part of preliminary work on widening the beltway for HOT lanes.

These trees were cleared in McLean, Tysons Corner and Springfield.

Apparently these trees were clear cut in order to make way for "staging areas," that is to say a place to park their equipment.

It's an example of the kind of reasoning that takes place at VDOT, and apparently there is more of it to come.

"The construction is going to start by us tearing down trees," said Nick Nicholson of VDOT at a public meeting about the HOT Lanes on April 30.

There is no shortage of parking lots anywhere around the Beltway. With a little creativity, and a little notice, VDOT could probably have leased an already-paved "staging area." The loss of the trees is no small thing, especially in consideration of widening a road like the Beltway.

A single tree with a 26-foot canopy can absorb the emissions of a vehicle driven 11,500 miles every year. Or so said Fairfax County officials in October 2007 when they launched the laudable goal of blanketing 45 percent of the county with tree cover by 2037. The county will plant 400 trees a year on county property to reduce pollution and energy costs.

Too bad the county apparently has no say on what VDOT does with property it "owns." VDOT officials should realize that property "owned by VDOT" actually belongs to the residents of Virginia. The tree cutting last month for "staging areas" probably set Fairfax County's efforts back by more than a year. And we'll note again that VDOT says there's more to come.

"We have held meetings five times in McLean and each time we mentioned the staging area. Did we say we would be clearing trees to construct that staging area? No," Nicholson admitted.

Those trees would also have had the effect of buffering residential and business areas from the noise and view of the Beltway traffic and construction. Three acres alone were across from a middle school, where the trees could have helped clean the air from hundreds of thousands of vehicles a day passing by on the Beltway.

The additional tree canopy envisioned in Fairfax would have the capacity to absorb more than 10 million pounds of carbon dioxide annually, which could eliminate the need for $1 million in greenhouse gas reduction services each year.

VDOT officials should undertake an immediate analysis of the way it operates. It must communicate better with local officials and residents. And it must realize that trees have value and take steps to preserve them whenever possible. Even if these sites were the only possible "staging areas," which we do not believe, at least a ring of trees should have been left around the perimeter to act as a buffer.

Construction for the "high occupancy toll lanes" is under way. We can only imagine what surprises lay ahead.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Privatizing Schools

BY NATALIE MALONEY

The class begins with the ring of a bell, students sluggishly walk to their appointed seats, and Sarah, an AP student at West Potomac High School, explains "that the desire to learn is not present when you are forced to go to a school you do not like." Now if school was not mandatory, students would not attend. However, rather than mandate that students attend the school regulated to their household, allow them to choose their school. This option would eliminate many problems with the educational system, and is known today as "privatization."

Some may argue that this is unfair to the poor; however, according to the District of Columbia Public Schools website the cost for each student at a high school level is about $9,500. Sadly, these schools receive some of the lowest test scores in the US. In contrast, the cost for a student at Bishop Ireton High School, a private Catholic school, which receives much higher test scores, is $10,400 a year. The difference in cost is less than a thousand dollars, and the difference in test scores is worth every penny. The question is how would this work? The tax money that is received for education would be given to the family based on the number of children, meaning that if a family had one child they would receive $9,500. The money given to them could only be used for the education of the child, and could always be supplemented by the household based on the school the child decides to attend. The cost for attending the school that was once public would be the exact amount of money given to the family.

This different approach to education could potentially separate the eager to learn versus the uneager. Families who could not afford private schools earlier because of financial difficulties would now receive a boost in financial help. Children would gain a better education because they would have the option to choose a school where they could receive more one on one attention resulting in an increase of good test scores.

A question that bothers many is what if too many children move to other schools, and the public schools end up not receiving enough money to be maintained. Many universities and colleges rely mostly on the donations received from alumni and surrounding citizens. Fundraisers put on by the school, and donations received from fellow citizens could help improve both the maintenance and education of the school. Hopefully these donations will result in more students attending the public schools rather than private; therefore enhancing the schools reputation.

A perfect example of this society ("privatization") is college, a world surrounded with choices galore of both public and private schools. If high schools and elementary schools were also based on this premise then maybe the eagerness of students to learn would increase, and the need for constant testing would decrease. Tests would still be instated but because of the enhanced results the state would not have to test as often, and teachers could focus more on individual needs to improvement rather than state's necessities.

Students need a more interactive one and one environment to learn and better themselves, and "privatization" can provide this. Testing of this theory has already begun, however the transition will be dreadfully slow based on the pace citizens are taking now. People need to step up and inform others of the goodness this can bring. The students of today are the leaders of tomorrow and without excellence in education now, what will become of our society's future?

Felicitations

Survive If You Can

BY GRACE POWELL

"Education!" Students are told this is the only key to a successful life. Without education, we will ultimately be left working the 9 to 5 at McDonalds. With only few more school days to go however, anything sounds better than another day in a disintegrating system that has made me more its' prisoner than pupil.

Not to say that the system is bad per se, it just needs some revamping. A lot of revamping. One problem lies in the dissemination of the information itself. For example, my AP history class spent no more than two hours covering World War Two, and then we simply moved on. The graves of the Holocaust remained unearthed, the heroes, villains and victims of the war became mere facts and statistics. My heart sank in the knowledge that the "never forgets," were simply not as important as the AP test.

Students are left with three options: fail, get by or succeed. To do the latter, a student must work virtually day and night. Just ask my friend Amazing Grace Danso. She earns straight A's, and by earn I mean she works for it. She works so much, in fact, that she often sleeps for only a couple of hours before starting the next school day. I however, slide into the system the best way I can.

Let me describe it for you: At seven o'clock in the morning I wearily drag myself into the school library. Head throbbing, I drop my brick of a backpack to the floor and reach into it for the homework that was not completed in the wee hours of the morning. I will pass only because I turn in the homework and know just enough information to get by. It's not that I don't stay up late and work hard also; however; I'm too tired to put forth any more effort. I wasn't always like this, but then again this is what the system can do.

Yellow tape strangles the educational system. While students are encouraged to "think outside the box," we have very little room to do so. Creative thinking is thrown out the window when there is a test to take each week and five hours of homework to complete each night. Teachers are confined by regulations and testing curriculums. Students are left trying to learn for themselves the information a teacher hastily goes over. As a result, students learn to grovel and beg for their grades; worn out teachers may give in, others will not.

If only school could be more like the Magic School Bus. The educational cartoon airing in the late 90's, taught students science in a fascinating way. I remember Mrs. Frizzle the teacher in the Magic School Bus; her very name sparked a contagious curiosity. She'd come into the classroom with majesty, the first thing you'd hear was her bubbly, "Helloooo Children!" Her flaming red hair bounced with a body that seemed to never stop moving. She wore brilliant dresses and earrings that sparkled before she took her students on a field trip. Mrs. Frizzle not only taught her students about science, she took them there.

Likewise, the key to getting students enthusiastic about education is to take us to the core of the information itself. Instead of having us memorize a litany of mathematical formulas, let us see how those formulas are used practically in every day life (and not to simply calculate ones grocery bill). Instead of defining communism and mentioning some of its most momentous events, take us to the more obscure chapters of history such as the Argentinean Desaparecidos where a communistic regime terrorized thousands of lives. We do not want to be mere students of history, we want to learn how to make history, how to connect history to our lives, how to make sure that the same mistakes aren't repeated over and over again.

Sometimes I feel as though I am only a number in a system too eager to push me through and move on to somebody else. A few months ago our school published t-shirts with the phrase "survive if you can" etched on the back. It's unfortunate that education has become a matter of survival, yet the days of care-free education are over. The system is weakening. The administrators in charge of the education system can either enact change, or continue to stare at us poor students looking casually out the windows, waiting for some magical school bus to whisk us away.

Teaching to the Test

BY MARBURY JACOBS

"Go to bed early, eat a healthy breakfast, and just remember what we've practiced in class. You'll do great on the test."

How often have I heard that from my teachers? More than twenty times since 3rd grade. As an 11th grader at West Potomac High School in Fairfax County, I have become perhaps a little too familiar with the state's standardized tests like the Standards of Learning (SOL). The problem with these tests isn't actually taking them, but rather how our teachers prepare us for them.

As a result of the No Child Left Behind act, each year public schools are required to administer standardized tests to all their students in an attempt to measure the schools', teachers', and students' achievement. Bruce Myint, author of the article Testing the Limits of No Child Left Behind for Education Update Online, interpreted President Bush's NCLB as a new reform "intended to revamp the distribution of federal funds and improve education for traditionally underserved populations." Basically, how well we do on these tests determines the school's funding from the government. Teachers and administration are constantly under a great deal of pressure to ensure that all of their students do well on the standardized tests. If the school's test results are not favorable, it is almost guaranteed there will be negative consequences - unwanted publicity, school officials sitting in during classes, and the dreaded cut in the school's funding.

So if the teachers know what these state tests will be like, why don't they just create a curriculum around them? Well, they do. And this is the problem. Tests like the SOLs are intended to assess the most basic concepts and materials each student should have mastered in a subject - not to be the basis of instruction. Yet teachers are so focused on the state test that they just gloss over topics because they don't have enough time or need to go in-depth. My U.S./Virginia History teacher recently told my class that we weren't going to study Francisco Franco because we weren't going to be tested on it. However, at the time we were studying the World Wars and leaders such as Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini.

Mount Vernon Community Children’s Theatre Performs

Some 49 fifth-graders from Hybla Valley, Mount Vernon Woods, Woodlawn and Woodley Hills Elementary Schools have been creating original plays on themes of importance to them and rehearsing them once a week since February. The Mount Vernon Community Children’s Theatre received a $11,920 grant from the Arts Council of Fairfax County to conduct a 10-week after-school theatre program. Students were selected who could benefit from the life-long skills that theatre imparts and who might not otherwise have access to such activities. The four participating Fairfax County Elementary Schools are located in the West Potomac and Mount Vernon High School pyramids and have significant populations of students on free or reduced lunch.

The program’s instructors and directors include Chris McGriff, Della Nikol Sandor, and Melanie McCleerey who also serves as coordinator for the overall program.

PUPPY DOG TALES

Good Education Matters

BY DAISY MAE DEL RAY

As a seizure alert dog, I am able to go anywhere my person does. Federal and state laws give me permission to do that. My person and I must follow all the rules of good behavior when I go into someone's place of business and so I have been taught how to sit quietly, not to make any noise and to be as unobtrusive as possible when I am around people, especially inside. My education in good citizenship helps me do my job better. For you non-working pets, a good education still does matter. It can lead to an opportunity. My new pal Maggie Mae found that out last month. I met Maggie Mae and her person, Sharon Edwards, as I was leaving work to go home. Maggie is a Yorkshire Terrier, about six months of age and about knee high to me. Sharon and Maggie Mae were walking in search of dogs to meet and they stopped to talk to me and my person. Maggie Mae had just been accepted by the Animal Planet Television Channel to participate in Puppy Games 2008. (This is like the Puppy Bowl program that I've seen at football game half-times). One of the requirements for being a participant was to be comfortable around other dogs and so Maggie Mae was meeting other dogs. I wished her luck and Sharon promised to let me know how the taping went.

While waiting to hear from Maggie and Sharon we did a little research on the original show, Puppy Bowl, which first aired in 2005, is one of Animal Planet's most popular shows and that doesn't surprise me. I could spend hours watching puppies just be puppies. There is a youth requirement, which makes sense because the program is called "puppy:" Olympics and a size limitation for the smaller participants. There is also a height and weight requirement so a photo is requested with the applicant standing or seated next to a soda can. That is why the accompanying photo of Maggie Mae shows her sitting beside a soda can.

Finally I got the call. Maggie Mae and Sharon went to the taping and were ready to sit down and talk about their brush with show business. "What a long, exciting day", Sharon told us. "We humans were not allowed in the studio for most of the shoot, but we were able to come in a couple of times. Maggie was very good and we had fun. The other pet owners were so nice and we humans were fed very well so it was a long day but fun for all."

All the participants were told in advance that they needed to be on their best behavior. Sharon told Maggie Mae that she was going to be on TV. "We practiced fetch and dancing and her sit and ringing the bell to go outside. When we got there her Positive Training helped her interact with the set and the other pups" she told me. Maggie Mae would not have even heard about the program if her trainer Sandy Modell had not seen something very special in her apt pupil and recommended that she try out for the role.

We talked to Sandy Modell who is the owner of Wholistic Hound and Maggie and Sharon's trainer. Sandy recommended that Maggie Mae try out for this part. "She is an adorable and very smart little girl. She is a quick learner and I just knew that she would do great if she was selected to participate in this event. And, she was!" Sandy teaches owners and pets to be better companions through a joint education process that uses reward based training and positive reinforcement. "It teaches you and your dog how to communicate with each other and heightens your dogs thinking capabilities" Sandy said. "By training your dog using positive reinforcement techniques, you can build a wonderful, loving, and fun relationship with your dog by teaching them good behaviors and to communicate with you and learn what is expected of them in the home and in the community."

Now we wait to see the program in August. I will let you know when it is set to air and how much of Maggie Mae you will see. Melissa Barry is with Animal Planet so we talked to her about the show. "We haven't reviewed all the tape from the shoot so we won't know until the end of May how much you will see of Maggie Mae when the show airs in August" she told me. Cross your paws. We will get back to you with more details as we get them.

So the story here is to get a good education. If Maggie Mae's person Sharon had not sought training, she would never have heard about Puppy Games 2008. There are many sources and places for training here in Alexandria. One example: The All Alexandria Reads Program, hosted by the Alexandria Library will have a demonstration of Clicker Training at the Duncan Library on May 17th at 10:am. Also, the City of Alexandria offers positive reinforcement training classes. The next group class begins on June 21st at the Warwick Village Club House.

After our interview, I got an e-mail from Sharon that I want to share with you my gentle readers. "Maggie has brought me so much comfort in my grief over Maxwell Smart. Maxwell Smart was very well known around the coffee shops and streets of Del Ray. Many people stopped me on the street and came by the house to offer their condolences. This is the way the residents of Del Ray are. It was heartwarming and a blessing to be living in such a caring community. I hope you add some of this to your article. Thanks"

Thank you! Sharon and Maggie Mae
Keep you feet dry and your tail high.

LOVE, DAISY MAE

Teen Raises Funds to Stop Child Abuse

Glasgow Middle School student Alexamarie Allen has a real passion to end child abuse. While researching on the internet, she came across the heart-wrenching story of Kelsey Briggs, a child who died of abuse before her third birthday. "She really touched my heart," says Alexamarie, "It's not right! I just knew I had to do something to help children like Kelsey and stop them from being hurt."

She took action by making flyers and blue ribbons, the symbol for child abuse prevention, and brought awareness at her school and to her friends. Since April was Child Abuse Awareness Month, Alexamarie organized a fundraiser. On April 26-27, she and her supporters manned the corners of Sleepy Hollow Road and Kerns Road in Falls Church, armed with their homemade posters, flyers and ribbons.

A local youth group, Junior Youth Empowerment, joined in Sunday afternoon and reignited everyone's spirits. All the efforts were rewarded with over $500 in donations!

The money raised will go to SCAN (Stop Child Abuse Now) of Northern Virginia, a non-profit organization, located at 1705 Fern Street, 2nd Floor, Alexandria.

Case Is First-Year Teacher of the Year

Alexander Case, who teaches Advanced Placement (AP) government and World History at West Potomac High School, has been named the 2008 Fairfax County Public Schools (FCPS) First-Year Teacher of the Year.

Case's nominators commend him for being a proactive problem solver, a collaborative worker, and a go-to person. They praise his organizational skills and his ability to communicate with colleagues, students, and parents. In his short time at West Potomac, he has been drafted by his peers to coordinate the school's Advanced Placement (AP) program and has accepted responsibility to coordinate the school's 65 clubs as the assistant director for student activities.

"By being 'everywhere all the time' as my students often jest, I witnessed the power of presence and its potency for reaching learners," he says.

In his classroom, Case requires his freshmen World History students to keep interactive notebooks, which he checks and makes comments in frequently. He is skilled at individualizing instruction to challenge each student on a level appropriate to him or her. His AP students work collaboratively on projects while analyzing and synthesizing information while he serves as facilitator, encouraging them to think on a higher level.

Margaret Panik

Panik Is Named VEA Support Pro of the Year

Margaret Panik, an instructional assistant at Bren Mar Park Elementary in Alexandria, has been named the Virginia Education Association's (VEA) Support Professional of the Year for 2008.

Panik has worked for Fairfax County Public Schools (FCPS) since 1998, when she was hired as an instructional assistant to work with students in grades K-5. During her 10 years at Bren Mar Park, Panik has served as the advisor to the Student Council Association, created the Baghdad Buddies program to support a school volunteer who was sent to Iraq, and become an advocate for her fellow instructional assistants and colleagues as a member of the Fairfax Education Association and the VEA.

FORTUNATELY, BETTER WAYS TO SAVE MONEY ON YOUR ELECTRICITY BILL ARE WELL WITHIN YOUR REACH.

Although we can't control global fuel costs, we're working hard to control the things we can.

Rising global energy costs are affecting everyone—including Dominion and the nearly 6 million Virginians we serve every day. That's why we're working hard to help customers reduce electricity usage and lower their monthly bills.

To learn more about these and other ways Dominion is helping Virginians lower their heating and cooling bills and manage the rising cost of energy, visit www.dom.com:

- Dominion's new online Energy Calculator provides customers with energy-saving information customized for their specific home or business.
- A unique discount program sponsored by Dominion offers compact fluorescent light bulbs (CFLs) at substantial cost savings. CFLs use 75% less energy and can last 10 times longer than traditional incandescent bulbs. More than 1 million CFLs have already been sold.
- Budget Billing lets customers manage their energy costs by paying a fixed amount each month, eliminating seasonal fluctuations in bill amounts.
- A new Business Advantage program extends the benefits of budget billing to small- and medium-sized commercial customers and most non-profits. Eligible customers will be able to sign up beginning July 1.
- "More Than 100 Ways To Improve Your Electric Bill," published by the Edison Electric Institute, provides easy-to-use tips on practical ways to cut electricity use and save money. To download a copy visit www.dom.com (keyword: 100 ways).
- $5 million in additional funding for EnergyShare to help elderly customers and families in need with heating and cooling assistance.

Global energy costs may be changing, but our commitment to helping customers maximize their energy dollars is not.

ENERGY-SAVING TIP #12

Install low-flow showerheads and faucets. They're inexpensive, easy to install and reduce energy and hot water use.

LETTER

How is it possible to skip over Franco in such lessons? Because these standards are set, many teachers seem afraid and unwilling to go beyond what is necessary to help students expand their knowledge.

How can we expect to keep these underprivileged from being "left behind" when we can't find an enriching way to teach and engage them? The Washington Post's education writer, Jay Mathews, explained in his article Let's Teach to the Test that a teacher preparing his/her students for a standardized test is "forced to adhere to someone else's views on teaching ... [and] is likely to present the material too quickly, too thinly, too prescriptively, too joylessly — add your own favorite unattractive adverb." I couldn't have said it better myself. If the teachers are indifferent about what they are presenting to the class, how are we supposed to care?

Although doing well on the standardized tests is important, what is more important is that we are learning for the sake of learning! So what if I can recite a few facts that have been drilled into my head since the first day of school? Have I developed an interest in what I am studying, or am I too worried about just passing the test? Can I apply what I have learned to anything other than the test or out of the classroom? "Jamestown: First permanent English colony settled in the New World in 1607. Sponsored by the Virginia Company of London." Throughout the year, this fact has shown up on almost every so-called "SOL based test" in my history class. Alright alright, I get the picture!

In a January 2002 news release, President George W. Bush signed the No Child Left Behind law designed to "[strengthen] teacher quality by providing $2.8 billion for teacher quality programs...[and] to use additional federal funds to hire new teachers, increase teacher pay, improve teacher training and development or other uses." With this amount of money going towards teacher training under the No Child Left Behind act, I would hope, no, I would expect that teachers could figure out a better way to prepare us for our futures, not simply a standardized state test!

POEM

Listen to the Mockingbird

Spring arrives amazing in the marsh
It comes in a rush and rushes
Rise to meet the blazing sun,
Loft, blaise and gazing, that one —
The mockingbird — seizes scraps,
Songs and things heard,
bits bending
On the wind to his hearing, sending
Them aloft again, liting to the ear, while
Zeal unbounded tilts the singer,
Springing him into Spring's air
As if sheer delight beyond our ken
Flings him there, again and again
To testify to Spring, to sing.

PEOPLE

Welcome Home

Members of C Company, 3rd Battalion, 116th Infantry Brigade Combat Team had an emotional homecoming Friday, April 25, when they arrived at the Leesburg Armory after serving a tour in Iraq. The 150 Guardsmen were activated in June 2007, after being home for just over a year from a tour in Afghanistan. "Charlie" Company was one of five companies called up, which represented the largest battalion task force the Virginia National Guard has mobilized in support of the "War on Terror."

The battalion first reported to Camp Shelby, Miss., for training before shipping out to Iraq in September 2007, where the infantry companies were assigned escort duty. C Company operated in the areas in and around Mosul and Kirkuk. Nine soldiers from the company were injured, but there were no fatalities.

"You've done yourselves proud and made all of Virginia proud," Maj. Gen. Robert B. Newman Jr., adjutant general of Virginia, said at the homecoming ceremony.

Saints Lacrosse Teams Prevail In States

Girls lax vying for ISL championship, while boys looking for IAC title.

BY ERIC J. GILMORE
GAZETTE

Halfway through the season, the St. Stephen's & St. Agnes boys lacrosse team had only one win. The same school that went on an unlikely run to the Virginia Independent School Athletic Association tournament title, the Saints were a pitiful 1-10.

Then SSSAS won at home against Collegiate, then-ranked in the top five in the state, and even then sensed they had turned the corner.

And boy they have. Heading into a mid-week tilt, the fifth-seeded Saints were vying for the Interstate Athletic Conference tournament title, a feat that seemed so improbable a mere three weeks ago.

Having won six straight games, fifth-seeded SSSAS ousted Bullis in the first round and then shocked top-ranked Georgetown Prep in overtime in the semifinal last Saturday.

Because the IAC works on a point system that splits the regular season and postseason tournament, the Saints can't conceivably win the league crown. But the fact that SSSAS, at 7-10 is even in the hunt for a tournament championship, explains how far they've come.

Sophomore Peter Labovich notched the game-winning goal in overtime, ousting the Little Hoyas for the second straight season. Last year, behind 14 seniors, the Saints tainted Georgetown Prep's undefeated season in the IAC tournament before winning its first-ever VISAA crown.

As the fifth seed in the eight-team tournament, SSSAS started its title defense, actually before the IAC championship, by defeating Woodberry Forest, 10-9, on the road Tuesday.

In the IAC, the Saints play Landon, who

COLLEGE ROUNDUP

Huey Half Of Top-Ranked Doubles Tennis Team

Treat Huey, a 2004 St. Stephen's & St. Agnes graduate, helped top-seeded Virginia's men's tennis team advance to the round of 16 of the NCAA Tournament for the fifth consecutive year, defeating Penn State 4-0 Sunday.

Teaming with Somdev Devvarman (Chennai, India), Huey clinched the opening point with an 8-2 win at No. 1 doubles over Michael James and Brendan Lynch.

"I thought that was as good as we have played all year in doubles," said head coach Brian Boland. "That gave us a lot of confidence and a lot of momentum that carried over into singles."

Huey is making his second NCAA singles appearance, as Virginia ties its 2005 school with three players in the singles draw. Huey is 32-5 in singles and is ranked No. 28 in the ITA rankings.

In doubles, Devvarman and Huey, ranked No. 1 in every week of the year in the ITA rankings, are the No. 1 seed for the NCAA Doubles Championship. Last year, the duo was the No. 2 seed and fell in the semifinals.

This season, Huey and Devvarman won both the ITA All-America Championships and the ITA National Indoor Championships in the fall, and are looking to be just the second team to win all three major tournaments in the same season, joining California's Doug Eisenman and Matt Lucena who won all three during the 1989-90 season.

Huey is already Virginia's all-time career doubles win leader, a mark he set as a junior. The Cavaliers are 30-0 and have been ranked No. 1 in the ITA rankings every week of the season. They recently won their fourth ACC championship in five years.

As a Saint, he was a three-time All-Met Player of the Week, and was ranked No. 1 in the USTA boys' 18s singles rankings during his senior year.

Virginia will travel to the NCAA Championships, held at the University of Tulsa. The Cavaliers will meet No. 16 seed Michigan on Friday.

Williams Sets Meet Record

In the ISL track championships this past week, junior Danielle Williams finished first in the 100 and 200 meters, setting a new meet record. She also anchored the first-place 100-meter relay with Tatiana Bull, Mya Reid, and Olivia Hooper. The same relay, with sophomore Brianna Richardson replacing Reid, set a new school record of 51.22 at the Penn Relays recently. Reid also won the high jump, helping the Saints to a sixth place finish.

Close, But No Cigar In Championships

Ireton's girls lax, baseball fall in WCAC tournament title games.

BY ERIC J. GILMORE
GAZETTE

Bishop Ireton knew it was going to have to pull something special — or magical — to end up with a rare and much-coveted Washington Catholic Athletic Conference tournament title. In both baseball and girls lacrosse, the Cardinals couldn't muster any more mystique when it counted.

The girls lacrosse team dropped an 11-8 decision to Good Counsel on Tuesday at Ludwig Field on the University of Maryland's campus. Not having won against the Falcons since 2003, it was the Good Counsel's fifth straight WCAC title.

But second-seeded Ireton still had its chances, especially early. The Cardinals, led by George Mason signee Julianne Tela, scored the game's first four goals, and then held a 5-1 advantage before giving up five straight to close the half.

Ireton, behind sophomore Janet Tela's (Julianne's younger sister) three goals, regained the lead in the second half, only to have it once again disappear. Junior Chesney Hellmuth pulled the Cardinals within a point in the fourth quarter, but Good Counsel's Mary Swarouth, the WCAC Player of the Year scored the last of her game-high four goals to preserve the win.

Brittany Barnwell had two goals for Ireton, but received a second yellow in the waning moments of the first half. Junior Allie Fife and Julianne Tela each scored once.

Under first-year head coach Cara Hurrin, Ireton currently has a 16-4 record, and will play in the quarterfinals of the Virginia Independent Schools Athletic Association (VISAA) state tournament on Thursday. The Cardinals will take on Paul VI, a team they beat 15-8 on April 16.

Jefferson Crew Wins Gold at States

For the Jefferson Colonials, last Saturday's Virginia Scholastic Rowing Championship had a special significance. The regatta included a ceremony in memory of former Jefferson rowing coach Eric Rothstein, who was killed in 2001. Driven by their desire to honor Rothstein and to continue their decade long winning streak, Thomas Jefferson's Men's Varsity 8 quickly took the lead in the finals and raced to a gold medal finish. Also finishing in first place for Jefferson were the Women's 2nd 8 and the Men's 3rd. Taking home silver for the Colonials were the Men's 2nd 8 and Women's 3rd 8. Next week, TJ will compete in Philadelphia for the prestigious Stotesbury Cup, with the Men's Varsity 8 and Women's 2nd 8 defending their championship titles.

downed St. Albans 8-4 to advance to the finals on Thursday. With a win, Landon will win the IAC, but will share the league title with Georgetown Prep if the Little Hoyas down Bullis in the consolation game.

Regardless, SSSAS will take on top-ranked Norfolk Academy, who displaced Episcopal 14-2 in the first round at St. Anne's-Belfield School in Charlottesville, Va. The game will start at 5:30 p.m.

SSSAS' NATIONALLY RANKED girls lacrosse team started its title defense in the VISAA tournament, pounding Flint Hill, 16-1, on Tuesday.

Because of the constant rain cancellations, the undefeated Saints are also undergoing some creative scheduling.

In the Independent School League (ISL) final, SSSAS faced third-seed Georgetown Visitation on Wednesday at Bullis School. Considered the heavy favorites, the Saints (22-0) haven't lost a league game in more than a decade, and downed their league rivals 16-3 earlier this

Ireton

IN BASEBALL, the fifth-seed Cardinals weren't even expected to make it past the first round, much less the WCAC championship game against third-seeded DeMatha. After dispatching O'Connell and Paul VI over consecutive days, the Stags won handily, 11-3, in the tournament title last Thursday at Shirley Povich Field in Rockville, Md.

With both team's best pitchers fatigued, DeMatha got to Ireton junior starter Dan Nicoll. The Stags scored three runs in the third, then added another run in the fifth, before exploding for seven runs in the sixth.

Ireton (13-13) struggled at the plate, mostly in part to outstanding DeMatha defense, before tacking three runs in the seventh.

First-year coach Mike Gallagher, selected as the league coach of the year last week, had five juniors in the starting lineup, and none on the first-team all-WCAC. If the Cardinals had won, it would have been their first WCAC boys' championship in any sport. Ireton reached the VISAA state title game in football playing an independent schedule.

"I think it speaks real well to where we're going," said Ireton athletic director Bill Simmons. "We're headed in the right direction and we've put a lot of money into the facilities. And we have some great coaches right now — when you put that combination together, it makes you better."

Ireton failed to make the eight-team (VISAA) state tournament, which began Tuesday.

season.

The Saints (23-0) displaced Holton-Arms, with a 16-3 defeat, in the semifinals, when senior Cassie Pyle notched five goals and had an assist. Junior Charlotte Davis had two goals and an assist, and senior school-record assist holder Hadley Lankford had a goal and yet another assist.

The Saints are eyeing a repeat of last season, when the 2007 team won the ISL regular season title and tournament title, and the Virginia Independent Schools Athletic Association championship.

Area Basketball Coaches to Hold Camps

Even though its still spring, the area basketball coaches are already gearing up for summer basketball camps.

At Bishop O'Connell, head coach Joe Wootten will continue his Coach Wootten basketball camp, with a boys and girls overnight camp, as well as a boys day camp and separate coaches clinic.

The boys and girls overnight camps are five-day, four-night sessions, located at Frostburg State University in Frostburg, Md., with ages ranging from 9-18-year-olds. There are five sessions, starting on a weekly basis on June 15, with tuition set at $475.

The two sessions of boys day camp at O'Connell starts on July 21, with hours ranging from 9 a.m. – 4 p.m. on Monday – Thursday and 9 a.m. – 3 p.m. on Friday. Tuition is $220.

Wootten will oversee a two-day coaches clinic Oct. 3-4, with tuition set at $80. Past speakers have included Duke's Mike Krzyzewski, Minnesota's Tubby Smith, Syracuse's Jim Boeheim and Maryland's Gary Williams. The coaching roster will be announced in July. All slots are currently open.

For more information, visit <http://www.coachwootten.com> or call 301-805-4667.

Sportsman's Club To Hold Annual Banquet

The Alexandria Sportsman's Club will host its 2008 Annual High School Athlete Awards Banquet at the Hilton Mark Center Alexandria Hotel on Wed., May 21. Mount Vernon alum and former NFL offensive lineman Ed Cunningham featured as the guest speaker.

Individual tickets prices are $50, with a corporate sponsorship table going for $750.

A reception hour will be at 6 p.m., with a dinner to follow at 7 p.m. To purchase tickets, mail checks payable to Alexandria Sportsman's Club at P.O. Box 1011, Alexandria, Va, 22313.

The Sportsman's Club, which was founded in 1947, has themed monthly meetings at the Old Dominion Boat Club. Social Hour begins at 7 p.m. followed by the regular meeting, which starts at 7:45 pm. Each meeting features a guest speaker, and an award presented to the high school and recreation department athlete of the month. The meetings are followed by a casual dinner.

For more information regarding the club, visit alexsports.org.

Write On!

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

I have never been a knight in shining armor. Nor have I ever been a man in uniform (Cub Scouts and organized team sports notwithstanding). Certainly I have been a fish out of water and on occasion, I will admit to having been a bit of a wallflower. I may not be the most memorable character you'll ever meet, but nor am I totally forgettable, either. I try not to take up too much space (figuratively speaking) and require very little attention as well. Left alone, I will not wither and die.

Basically, I need to be fed and watered daily, just like our mini rex rabbit, Chester; he seems fairly content to nibble his kibble, crinkle his nose, drink his water, inhale his kale, and toss his toys from side to side and seems not bitter at all when he uses his litter. When out and about (about 30 minutes a day), he hops and hops and chews everything in sight, and a few things we can't see so he needs to be monitored at all times (not unlike some people I know).

Left well enough alone, he will cause goat-like carnage in the house (he's an indoor bunny). He's already chewed Comcast cable wires, "Monster" brand stereo cables, newspapers and magazines, the fringe on Oriental rugs, upholstery and anything and everything he can get his buck teeth on. As simple and mundane as his routine/life appears to be, he seems content, so far as we know. I mean, we haven't received any complaints as yet, and he's been a member of the family going on five years.

It seems like the responsibilities I have — and fulfill — with respect to care-giving our animals (four at present; two cats, one dog and of course, Chester), are the closest I'll get to wearing shining armor. And yet, I'll likely never know if that's how my actions are perceived. Will a cat rubbing his hind quarters against my leg or curling his tail under my nose mean love, gratitude and appreciation? Or will he merely be scratching an itch and I'm the closest thing around? Does my dog Bailey's close proximity to my body indicate his love for me or am I simply protection from a nearby draft or is it a non-verbal queue to "treat" him as soon as I get up? Is Chester's licking of my hand yet another sign of love and affection or is it, as my wife, Dina, has suggested, merely his need for salt and moisture (a salt lick is a recommended in-cage necessity for rabbits)?

Obviously the animals can't talk to me (unless this was a Disney movie), but their actions speak volumes, right? I am their hero, their universe, their savior. Without me (and Dina, too) their life would be difficult, incomplete you might say. Their eyes, their focused glares, tell me all I need to know. And though they are not blood relatives, they are family nonetheless and providing their cradle to grave needs gives me a certain stature — and pride — that I don't think I would otherwise have, nor have ever had not having been in uniform — or armor — in my life (not counting Halloween, either).

Granted, there's more to life than animal magnetism, but given my modest demands and familial associations, I'm fairly content to walk quietly — and write weekly — as to my comings and goings, misgivings, faults and foibles and stick it to the man; that man most often being me. It's easy to take shots at others, anybody can do that. I'd rather stick to the subject matter I know best; me, myself and I. It may not be much but it beats the alternative.

Excavation is in process for underground mechanical, electrical and plumbing for the central utility plant building.

New NGA Under Construction

east of the Mississippi, at least for the military," Augsburger said.

An estimated 8,500 employees will relocate to the EPG from their offices in Bethesda, Reston and the Potomac Navy Yard.

"We're starting to see lots of concrete being poured, things are slowly starting to move upwards."

— Chris Augsburger

All this construction work has been underway without any complaints from residents near the site, said Supervisor Jeff McKay (D-Lee).

"The good thing is, the site is big and heavily wooded, so much of the construction activity is isolated," he said. "I haven't had a single complaint from anyone who lives near there."

McKay said the new NGA headquarters is one of only a few projects he believes will be completed on time, by the September 2011 deadline established by Congress.

"I think the work at the EPG and the work on the hospital are the only things that are moving along and can complete the original schedule," he said. "The right of way is in place for the rest of the Fairfax County Parkway (which will run through the EPG), and all the environmental work is done."

One major project still awaiting resolution is the future home of the Washington Headquarters Services, which just signed a three-year lease at its current location in Crystal City, McKay said. With about one-third of all BRAC-related employees transferring from that location to an as-yet-undetermined future site, that piece of the BRAC puzzle will most likely not meet the September 2011 deadline.

New Plans For Kings Crossing

ANOTHER PROPOSAL brought to the group Monday night sought their approval for having a carnival on the Kings Crossing site in June to benefit the Mount Vernon-Lee Chamber of Commerce fundraising efforts. JBG Rosenfeld gave the Chamber their approval "if the community approves," ac-ording to Holly Dougherty, Chamber executive director.

"We have had carnivals along the Route 1 corridor before but most of the sites previously used are now built out and there is not enough room. The carnival needs 80,000 square feet of space," Dougherty explained.

Known as "Jolly Shows," the carnival is a family business based in Annapolis, according to Dougherty. It would be located on the site for one or two weeks and would close weekday nights at 10 p.m. and weekend nights at 11:30 p.m., Dougherty said.

She acknowledged that both Mount Vernon District Supervisor Gerald Hyland and Mount Vernon District Substation Commander Mike Kline, Fairfax County Police, have expressed objections to bringing the carnival to the Kings Crossing site. Hyland stated he was not in favor of the idea during the Chamber's recent "State of the Districts" luncheon but gave no reason. Jolly Shows brings its carnival to Alexandria City each year. It is usually located in the front parking area of Landmark Mall on Duke Street.

One potential use of the Penn Daw Properties' land on Route 1 is for development of mixed office/retail space.

After a series of questions to Dougherty on various aspects of the carnival, SBCA members voted 11 to six in favor of having the carnival at the JBG site with several caveats to prevent impinge-ment upon nearby neighborhoods.

But, as Dale pointed out, "This does not mean that there is any guarantee this will go forward." As Dougherty noted, "Carnivals are tightly regulated by Fairfax County."

The carnival is being proposed this year to aid the Chamber's fund raising efforts due to the fact that one of their primary events had to be canceled, according to Dougherty. Each year the Chamber provides approximately $6,000 in college scholarship aid to deserving high school graduates.

OPEN FORUM PUBLIC HEARING
Rolling Road (Route 638)
in Fairfax County will be held on Thursday June 12, 2008

between 5 and 8 p.m.
West Springfield High School
6100 Rolling Road, Springfield (zip 22152)

Find out about a proposal to widen Rolling Road to four lanes from 0.369 mile north of the Fairfax County Parkway (Route 7100) northerly to the intersection of Old Keene Mill Road (Route 644). The project length will be approximately 1.40 miles of Rolling Road.

Review the proposed project plans depicting the major design features and the environmental documentation, prepared under the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) in the form of a Categorical Exclusion, at the public hearing or before the hearing at VDOT's Northern Virginia District office located at 14685 Avion Parkway in Chantilly, telephone number (703) 383-2000 or TTY/TDD 711. Please call ahead to assure the appropriate personnel are available to answer your questions. Property impacts, right of way policies, and tentative construction schedules are available for your review at the above addresses and will be available at the public hearing.

In compliance with the National Historic Preservation Act, Section 106 and 36 CFR Part 800, information concerning the potential effects of the proposed improvements on properties listed in or eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places will be available at the hearing.

Give your written or verbal comments at the hearing or submit them by June 22, 2008, to Mr. Doug Miller, VDOT Northern Virginia District Office, 14685 Avion Parkway, Chantilly, Virginia 20151-1104. You may also e-mail your comments to us at: Meeting_Comments@vdot.virginia.gov. Please reference "Rolling Road, Fairfax County, PH Comment" in the subject heading.

VDOT ensures nondiscrimination and equal employment in all programs and activities in accordance with Title VI and Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. If you need more information or special assistance for persons with disabilities or limited English proficiency, contact VDOT's Civil Rights Division at the Northern Virginia District Office, 14685 Avion Parkway in Chantilly at (703) 383-2341 or TTY/TDD 711.
