Fire Closes Center Playground

Gazebo at Sterling Community Center burns down.

The playground at Sterling Community Center will be closed indefinitely following a fire that consumed the gazebo next to the playground Monday evening.

The county got a call about the fire at about 5:21 p.m., and fire and rescue personnel arrived to find the gazebo “fully involved,” according to a press release from Fire-Rescue Services. Damages are estimated at $25,000 and the entire playground has been shut down. The cause of the fire is under investigation by the Fire Marshal’s Office.

Fire and rescue spokeswoman Mary Maguire said investigators had made no connection between Monday’s fire and the fire at the Discovery Park playground in late May, which neighbors suspect was an act of vandalism. “Until the fire marshal has determined a cause, we don’t want to speculate anything,” said Maguire.

Unlike the Discovery Park incident, this fire started in broad daylight while the playground was open and in use.

Steve Torpy of the county’s Parks and Recreation Department said he did not yet know how long it would take to have the gazebo rebuilt and the playground reopened. “We’ll have to discuss it with the insurance company and then we’ll come up

Cascades Seeks Park

Survey shows interest; Algonkian Park considered.

BY MIKE DICICCO
THE CONNECTION

The results are in on a survey conducted in Cascades last month regarding a possible dog park in the area and the response was overwhelmingly positive.

Martha Kaczmarczyk, general manager of the Cascades Community Association, said 69 of the 70 responses received were “very enthusiastic.” Although there are about 5,800 households in the community, she said, “if we get anything over 30 responses, it’s considered pretty good.” The question had been posed on the neighborhood’s Web site and in its newsletter.

Kaczmarczyk said the idea for a dog park had been kicking around for a year or two, after a few homeowners first brought it up.

Weigh In

To make suggestions regarding the Northern Virginia Regional Park Authority’s (NVRPA) capital planning for the next five years, visit www.nvrpa.org and click “Request for Public Comments Northern Virginia Regional Park Authority Capital Improvement Program.”

“Nothing moves quickly in a planned community,” she said.

RESIDENTS LIKE the idea because there is no place outside their own property where their dogs are allowed off-leash, said Kaczmarczyk. In a dog park, dogs “can run and play without any constraints except the fences,” she said, adding that the facility would also give dogs a chance to play with each other.

The community association looked for a place in the neighborhood to put the park, but found that there would be no space available without cutting down a lot of trees. So, in May, the association took the idea to Algonkian Regional Park and was

The Special Olympics of Loudoun meet to discuss plans for the fall season and for the installment of the Athlete Leadership Program.

The Special Olympics (SO) Council for the mentally disabled in Loudoun met Monday for its monthly meeting to plan for the fall season and to discuss fund raising. Headed by Loudoun SO director Caitlin Marcotte and North Section director Beth Frank, the council also discussed implementing an innovative program for athletes titled the “Athlete Leadership Program.” In thinking of the future of their athletes, the council proposed expanding athletes’ roles to include athlete ambassadors or giving them a voice at the State Council based on their own interests and concerns. The Athlete Leadership Program will also hold an Athlete Congress in which athletes can meet and talk about whether their respective sports and activities work for them.

THE SPECIAL OLYMPICS has been operating in the county for 25 years and has since grown to offer 11 sports for 160 athletes and growing. Now it is able to divide sports into seasons and for the upcoming fall season offers equestrian, soccer, partners golf, power lifting, bowling and volleyball. “The most important

Firefighter Released

On Friday, Aug. 1, Lt. John "Bones" Earley of the Loudoun County Department of Fire, Rescue and Emergency Management was released from the Washington Hospital Center. Earley, who had been in the Washington Hospital Center's Burn Unit for treatment of injuries sustained at the May 25 fire on Meadowood Court in Leesburg, was one of six firefighters injured at the scene.

"More than two months after the incident, Lt. Earley's much anticipated return home, marks a significant step forward for him," Fire-Rescue Chief Joseph Pozzo stated in a release. "On behalf of the Fire-Rescue System, I would like to extend our sincerest thanks to all who have reached out in support of Lt. Earley. Your kindness and assistance has been incredible."

D.C. Man in Custody

A Washington, D.C., man is in custody after an early morning barricade situation in the Brambleton community of Ashburn.

Deputies responded to the 42500 block of Rockrose Square around 4:30 a.m. Monday, Aug. 4, after receiving a call regarding a possible domestic situation. The suspect, 26, allegedly entered his girlfriend's residence. The suspect allegedly had a firearm and verbally threatened the woman and her infant child.

Members of the Sheriff's Emergency Response Team (SERT) and the Hostage Negotiations Unit responded to the scene. The suspect was taken into custody without incident shortly after 8 a.m. The female victim declined medical treatment at the scene.

The suspect was being held without bond at the Loudoun County Adult Detention Center and is charged with assault and destroying a telephone to prevent a victim from summoning law enforcement. The incident remains under investigation by the Sheriff's Office Criminal Investigations Division and further charges are possible.

Neighbor Crime Reports Online

The Loudoun County Sheriff's Office is offering residents the ability to find why, where and when deputies were called to their neighborhood. The agency is the first in the state of Virginia to join forces with crimereports.com to allow residents to go online and view recent crimes in their community.

Residents can now access local crime incident data in near real-time on the www.loudoun.gov/crimereports Web site or by clicking on the link located on the Loudoun Sheriff's Office Web site at www.loudoun.gov/sheriff.

The information is presented on Google Maps where users can review up-to-date crime information for any location under the jurisdiction of the Loudoun County Sheriff's Office. Residents can also receive free e-mail crime alerts that are sent when crimes occur close to home or near any other address of interest. Users control the e-mail crime alerts they receive by specifying the address, the crime types and the distance from the address from which they wish to receive alerts.

The CrimeReports service is free to the public, allowing them easy access to neighborhood crime data in near-real time, however, it is important to understand that due to the timeliness of the reporting, investigations will not yet have been completed and the information will be preliminary and subject to change during the course of the investigation. Crime incident data will be updated nightly by the Sheriff's Office.

The system does not reflect sensitive calls such as incidents of rape, sexual assault, crimes against children, domestic violence and calls that are medical in nature.

thing people know about the Special Olympics is that it is free to athletes," Beth Frank said. The SO Council of Loudoun generates revenue from fund raising, donations from businesses and the state to give athletes the opportunity to train and to compete in tournaments across the state and the country for free. One fund-raiser in particular that the council is excited about is the Polar Plunge, Feb. 2, at Virginia Beach in which 4,000 people jump into the ocean for charity or Sterling Fest Oct. 11. Russell Turner, Global Messenger and power lifting coach, said that fund raising and donations allowed 30 of the athletes to compete in the state tournament over the summer at the University of Richmond. Beginners train with coaches and master athletes, SO athletes have to excel in their sport, for a minimum of eight weeks before they can compete to ensure safety said golf coach Jim Mahood. Volunteers are also given a seminar by Marcotte encompassing mental disability awareness.

become leaders beyond their sports because they voice the concerns of their fellow athletes. This is the essential idea behind the Athlete Leadership Program. "It's made for athletes so they can go on to different things," Marcotte said.

Turner said that because Special Olympics starts offering sports for 8-year-olds that they have "watched [their] athletes grow into adults because they keep coming back." It isn't certain whether the Athlete Leadership Program will go as far as having athlete representatives at the SO State Council, but the local council will nevertheless be looking out for the future of their athletes.

Beating the Odds

A local boy faces many challenges and returns triumphant.

By JUSTIN FANIZZI
THE CONNECTION

Many people find it difficult to muster courage in the face of adversity. No matter the circumstances, it can be very trying to hold your head high and move on. However, not everyone has the bravery that 13-year-old Jon Hochstein of Ashburn has shown in his young but eventful life.

When Jon was 3 years old and living in Salt Lake City, Utah, a virus attacked his heart. Though he was healthy up to that point, the virus damaged his heart so thoroughly that it led to congestive heart failure, suppressing his heart to the point where it was only pumping at 6 percent of its full capability. After numerous attempts to get his heart to pump blood to the rest of his body using myriad medications to no effect, doctors determined that to survive, Jon would need a heart transplant as soon as possible.

JON WAS PLACED on the waiting list for a new heart on Jan. 21, 1999, and received his heart three weeks later on Feb. 11, even though waiting lists can be so long that some patients never receive their new organs. It came nine days after his fourth birthday, just as his own heart was failing and doctors did not expect him to live through the night. "I am so grateful [the donor family] made that decision [to donate]," Barb Hochstein, Jon's mother, said. "We knew it meant another family was suffering the loss of their little one and in the midst of their terrible tragedy, they told any decision about adding a dog park to the Algonkian would be up to the Northern Virginia Regional Park Authority (NVRPA) leadership.

"I know that's a very dog-friendly community," said NVRPA operations director Paul McCray, adding that he used to live in Cascades. He said the park authority had heard from the association but had not yet started evaluating the idea. However, he said the authority was currently seeking public input for its capital planning for fiscal years 2010 to 2014 and that he would be happy to hear suggestions regarding a dog park or any other amenities. He said input is being accepted until mid-October.

"Space could be a little tight there," said McCray, noting that wet areas, the golf course and the riverside occupy much of the park. But, he said, the space factor is often secondary to public interest.

KACZMARSKYJ SAID she envisioned a setup similar to the one used by the Reston Association, with two fenced-in areas, one for smaller dogs and one for big ones. The park would have a water source and a set of rules, and the surface could be grass, gravel or mulch. She said the park would not likely have any other equipment.

But Deanna Mitchell, owner of the Animal Medical Center of Cascades, said she was wary of dog parks, where dogs can catch parasites and diseases and get into fights. She said she had treated a number of wounds incurred in dog parks, although she acknowledged that those probably accounted for a small percentage of dog park users.

While the parks provide socialization for both dogs and people and can cut down on obesity by encouraging exercise, she said, "in this clinic, the doctors don't think that well of dog parks."

"You increase the concentration of parasite eggs if dogs are defecating in one area," Mitchell said, adding that roundworms and hookworms were of particular concern, as they can be transferred to children, while fleas, respiratory infections and conjunctivitis can also be spread.

She said she encouraged her clients to take their dogs to play with their friends' and neighbors' dogs instead. "It's like taking your kids to a friend's house instead of a public playground where you don't know if the other kid is going to turn around and smack them."

"I know that's a very dog-friendly community."

Annual Kiss-A-Pig Contest Raises Money for Fair

BY JUSTIN FANIZZI
THE CONNECTION

The Loudoun County Fair brought many families and friends a great deal of fun and entertainment the past week, but for one individual, it offered the chance to get a nice big, wet smooch. Honoring the 10-year tradition of the fair, winning the annual competition rewards the champion with an intimate moment with ... a slimy snout and rancid breath.

“I thought [the fair] was excellent. Everything went smooth, everyone had fun and the weather was great.”

— Terry Corle,
Loudoun County
Fair, superintendent

This year, Joseph Myer, an assistant vice president and financial advisor at Merrill Lynch's Leesburg office, won the contest by raising the most money out of four contestants, winning the kiss. Myers, a resident of Clarke County, raised a total of $1,800 since June, and according to him, smooching the swine was not as bad as one would assume.

“It was a very kind pig,” Myer said. “He gave me a little squeal, but it was a pleasure to kiss it, especially with a good cause behind it.”

The cause was certainly worthwhile, as the contest runs yearly to help raise money for the upkeep of the fairgrounds, namely the maintenance of the barns and buildings and for youth programs and scholarship awards.

Kiss-A-Pig winner Joe Myer.

This year, the specific cause was to get money to help rebuild the show barn, where many of the animals are displayed and various competitions are held.

ACCORDING TO MYER, he raised his money through a network of friends, family and colleagues. In addition, to boost his total gross, he also purchased Redskins tickets and raffled them off. His efforts were strengthened by the fact that he is a former 4-H and Future Farmers of America (FFA) member, so he knows how much the contest meant to the fair and the people putting it on, adding extra motivation to his goal.

“I raised beef, lambs and pigs during my years of involvement [with 4-H and the FFA], so I have a firsthand appreciation for the time and energy that go into these kids' projects,” Myer said of his fund-raising efforts. “This was a great way for me to be supportive of the fair in a very creative way.”

Myer and the three other contestants were chosen by a nominating committee in mid-May, for having a notable role in the community and for their potential fund-raising prowess. Myer's fellow rivals vying to kiss the pig were Heather Elias, a Purcellville resident and real estate professional, Sola Pallotta, owner of The Pink Shop and the Very Virginia Shoppe in Leesburg and Wayne Bramhall, an advertising sales consultant. Together with Myer, the four brought in a grand total of $4,287.73, which is successful given the fact that the participants had to devise their own fund-raising methods.

“I was suspect of [my opponents'] motives in wanting me to kiss a pig, but I am grateful for their support,” Myer said of his competitors.

IN ALL, the fair was a massive success again this year, mostly thanks to the animals, which were the stars of the show as usual. In addition to the Kiss-A-Pig Contest, the livestock auction, two rodeos and myriad animal shows brought hordes of people to the fairgrounds over the course of the seven days, said fair superintendent Terry Corle. Corle said that this year's total exceeded the turnout of 20,000 people last year, though exact statistics on attendance and the total amount of money raised will not be known for a couple of weeks.

“I thought [the fair] was excellent,” Corle said. “Everything went smooth, everyone had fun, and the weather was great.”

“It was a very kind pig. He gave me a little squeal, but it was a pleasure to kiss it, especially with a good cause behind it.”

found the grace to give the gift of life to others so they wouldn't suffer the same loss and despair."

At Children's National Medical Center, where Jon was being treated, he and his family were informed of the Transplant Games by their transplant coordinator. The Transplant Games is a competition for anybody who has had a solid organ transplant that has been functioning for six or more months. Held every two years, every local chapter National Kidney Foundation across the country sponsors a team of transplant recipients and sends them to that year's site to compete in 12 different events in several different age groups, depending on who attends.

"It was awesome. You get to stand on a platform [to receive the medals] and it felt just like the Olympics."

— Jon Hochstein, transplant recipient and cancer survivor

Jon immediately was interested in the games, first being accepted to compete in 2000, at age 5. That year, the games were held in Orlando, Fla., and Jon, fully prepared to participate, was eager to play. However, just before the games kicked off, he came down with pneumonia and spent the games in the Florida Children's Hospital instead of running, biking and swimming.

TWO YEARS LATER at age 7, Jon finally got his wish to participate in the games, but his attempts at a medal fell just short as he placed fourth in the 1-kilometer bike race. Determined to push ahead, Jon focused on the 2004 games, ready to take home a medal and achieve his dream. Once again, Jon and his family were rocked with devastating news when he was diagnosed with Hodgkin's Lymphoma just prior to the games. Jon was forced to miss the competition as he underwent chemotherapy to help cure him.

Finally, in 2006, after his treatment, he was healthy and ready to return to competition to try to win a medal. Of course, Jon's plans were sidetracked yet again as two weeks before the games, he broke his foot playing basketball at his team's Transplant Games send off party. Just like the other times, Jon was left unable to participate. At a time when many other people would have given up, no matter their age, Jon, at 13, ignored his past hardships and pressed on; determined to try again at the 2008 Transplant Games.

THIS YEAR'S GAMES were held in Pittsburgh, Pa., from July 11-16. Jon entered in several events, fully healthy with no reoccurrence of his Hodgkin's; ready to seize the opportunity and bring home a medal. On the first day of competition, he broke through and won a bronze medal in the men's 18 and under 50-meter backstroke and knew that it was a sign of things to come.

"After the first day, I won a bronze in swimming. The next day, I felt like this was my year," Jon said about the 2008 games. "I was near the top of my age group and knew I had to get something."

Jon added two more medals to his total with a bronze in the boys age 12-14 softball throw and a silver in the boys age 12-14 1K bike race and after eight years of trying, facing numerous setbacks, Jon's hopes and dreams were realized.

"It was awesome," Jon said. "You get to stand on a platform [to receive the medals] and it felt just like the Olympics."

Perhaps the only ones more proud of Jon were his parents, who endured the uncertainty of Jon's health and all of the hospital visits over the years. After watching their son battle life-threatening illnesses and constantly come out on top to achieve a major goal, they were flooded with emotion.

"It was so thrilling," Barb Hochstein said. "To finally see him achieve his goal was overwhelming emotionally."

Though still fresh off of an exceptional performance, Jon already has his sights set on the 2010 Transplant Games, which will be held in Madison, Wis. He does not have to train to get ready for these games, as he said that "I'm just athletic enough to get this stuff done" and notes that he plays tackle football in the fall, basketball in the winter, baseball in spring and swims in the summer, so he gets all the practice he needs. Courageous and as confident as ever, Jon's mission is clear for 2010: "I want to get a gold in two years."

"It was so thrilling. To finally see him achieve his goal was overwhelming emotionally."

Boom In the Market

August is busy time for farmers markets.

While most activity is winding down for the vacation month, the Cascades Farmers Market is in high gear. This is the peak season for vegetables, peaches, tomatoes and corn, said market manager Steve Baker of Bakers Farm Fresh Pork. "That really draws the people," he said at last Sunday's market. "We got just about a full house today."

"It's been a great day," said Max Tyson of Tyson's Farm, noting that the first market of the month tends to be busy because it's just after many people get paid. "And it doesn't hurt when it's 85, sunny and no humidity."

The market, which runs through October, has about 20 vendors, up slightly from last year.

OPINION

Deeply Saddened by Attack

To the Editor:

Members of the Unitarian Universalist Church of Loudoun have been shaken and profoundly saddened by a lethal shotgun attack on the Tennessee Valley Unitarian Universalist Church in Knoxville.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

As our congregation gathered for worship in Leesburg on Sunday, violence erupted in Knoxville. Local members did not learn of the shooting until after services when news reports began to circulate on radio and television. We all feel we have been violated.

According to press reports, a 52-year-old man who had not previously attended the church entered the sanctuary as the children of the congregation presented a performance of the musical "Annie, Jr.," which they had been preparing for all summer. The sanctuary was filled with members, parents and visitors, including some from another Knoxville UU congregation. The gunman opened fire on adults in the pews, not the children on the stage. Two were killed and several others rushed to local hospitals in serious condition before the gunman was subdued.

Among the dead was 60-year-old Greg McKendry, an usher and church board member. Witnesses say that he placed himself in front of the gunman to shield others. His 16-year-old foster son, a member of the cast, witnessed the shooting from the stage.

Make sure everyone knows that Greg McKendry was a hero, an absolute hero, the boy was quoted as saying in the Knoxville News Sentinel.

Sixty-one-year-old Linda Kraeger, visiting from the Westside Unitarian Universalist Church in Knox County was also killed before members of the congregation disarmed and subdued the shooter.

In Boston, the Rev. William Sinkford, president of the Unitarian Universalist Association (UUA) wrote to UUA members across the country that, "A tragedy such as this makes us acutely conscious of the beauty and fragility of our lives and those of our loved ones. I am especially saddened by this intrusion of violence into a worship service involving children and youth. I know that many people, both in Knoxville and around the country, are struggling with shock and grief right now. I pray that those so affected will find strength and comfort."

The FBI is assisting local police in the investigation, including the possibility that it was a hate crime. The Knoxville congregation has a long history of supporting social justice causes going back to the Civil Rights Movement. And like many UU congregations it has been strongly supportive of gay rights. A sign supporting gay rights was put up on the church building just days earlier.

We will continue to pursue vigorously our Unitarian Universalist belief in "the inherent worth and dignity of every person" and to pursue "justice, equity and compassion in human relations."

Returning to Green Gables

By MATTHEW RAZAK
THE CONNECTION

Since 1908, a fictional girl named Anne, from Green Gables in Avonlea on Prince Edward Island, has been entertaining children and adults alike whether it be in the original book "Anne of Green Gables," by Lucy Maud Montgomery or in film or stage. To celebrate this 100th anniversary, the Leesburg Theatre Company (LTC) will be putting on their own version of the show Aug. 9, 10, 16 and 17 and they hope to bring the story to life for a whole new generation of children and adults.

"Anne of Green Gables" was one that everyone said, 'I remember the first time I saw that,' and it struck a nostalgic chord. We hope parents would want to share that with their children," Karl Meier, assistant director of the show and vice chairman of LTC, said. "It's a widely appealing story. The story line appeals to everyone and the antics are just generally funny to everybody and very endearing."

THOSE ANTICS involve Anne, played by Emily Price, an orphaned child who is adopted by Marilla and Matthew Cuthbert. The problem is they were expecting a boy. However, they keep her and the show follows the over-imaginative Anne through her life growing up in the area. Though many of the scenes are comedic, director Kevin G. Summers, who is also one of the founding members of the LTC, said that the story also contains many emotional scenes that can pull at the heartstrings.

"[Anne is] very over-dramatic about everything," Price said. "She gets a lot of ideas from the books she reads and she just believes that's how people act. Since she's gone through so many sad experiences in her life, to get over it she acts overly dramatic about everything. She's a very innocent character as well."

While the show is set in the turn of the century, the director believes that the antics of Anne and her cohorts apply to children and adults today. The story is really about growing up in the world and coming into one's own he said. Of course, the script has been slightly abridged since the show is being geared toward children, a first for the LTC, but the overall themes and important scenes that most people remember are included, including one where Anne gets caught in a sinking ship.

"There are so many fun scenes and Anne's character is very enjoyable to watch I like the scene where Aunt Diana gets accidentally drunk and I get to just rattle on about the story before I realize it. That's a lot of fun," Price said. "We have another scene where Anne tries to re-enact a poem where she's the Lady Elaine and she goes off to a boat and gets in some trouble. The scene is just a lot of fun."

FUN SEEMS TO be what the actors are having, too. The show is comprised of mainly local actors from around the area. Some have performed before professionally and for others it is their first time on the stage. Summers says that the cast has been really getting into character and that with a week left in rehearsal they're ready to go on now and deliver a great show.

"The cast is really good," Steven Watters, who is a first-time actor and is playing Matthew Cuthbert, said. "I've been particularly impressed with Emily. She definitely has the lion's share of the time on stage and script and she has been fantastically fun to work with."

It's fun to watch people who have been in plays before and are used to this and they've been open to me and given me pointers on different things, so it's been really fun working with them."

The cast has been working well together and feels that the show is going to be very good. Part of the thanks goes to Summers, who cast members said is a very character-driven director and whose style works well with the play. He has also been helping some of the newer actors work into their roles and teaching them different tricks to acting like how to memorize lines and really get to know characters.

"Kevin is very much a director who is focused on character and what is really interesting is that, yes, he starts out with blocking, but really he wants to see what characters come out of people and it has been really interesting to work with him and see these characters come out of people. I think he gets a very natural result and you see the characters shining through the actors in a very natural way," Meier said.

The stage is located at Crossroads Baptist Church, which donated the space. While the area is small LTC is bringing in a piece to extend the stage and working around the size limitations.

"It's wonderful stage. They've let us come in and use their space and move around everything. There are some limits to what can be done there because the stage is small and the ceiling is low, but we're constructing a second space to make more room. I took the constraints into account before I picked the show, so I knew how to work with it," Summers said.

Some tricky parts have been getting lighting right and figuring out a way to make the boat Anne gets caught in sink. But the stage designers and director have found ways around the problems despite a tight budget.

THE LTC IS funded by volunteers and donations along with a few grants from the county and Leesburg itself. Many of the costume and stage designers are volunteers and are also involved in area theater companies like the Sterling Playmakers, which have been around a bit longer than the LTC, which was founded in the summer of 2004.

"I had been in a production of 'Our Town' in Vienna and I was driving all the way there

"Since she's gone through so many sad experiences in her life, to get over it she acts overly dramatic about everything."

— Emily Price, who plays Anne and thinking, why am I doing this? Why isn't there a theater group in Leesburg that's nearby. I think it should be the arts center of the county, but it isn't and so we wanted to bring a theater group here."

The group's goal is to try to perform plays that locals might not get a chance to see anywhere else. Since it's inception LTC has tried to put on plays that go outside the standard norm of community theater.

"We want to do plays that don't regularly get done. Not that I don't love 'The Music Man' and 'Oklahoma,' I do love those shows, but you see them all the time. Some other things get overlooked so we try to do some new shows that haven't been done. The Playmakers do the big shows really well so we wanted to do some smaller more intimate shows," Summers said.

All the shows hold open auditions for performers and welcome anyone of any skill level. Meier describes the LTC as a great place for beginners and veterans to perform, learn and grow as actors. The group is also hoping to expand its children's programming with "Anne of Green Gables" being its launching point.

"I kind of see our children's program doing one a year in the summer. I don't want to be the only director for children's theater either, I'd love a bunch of people to come in with different shows. We really want the children's program to expand," Summers said.

Riding into Redskins Park

Ever wonder what car Clinton Portis or Jason Campbell drive? On Sunday, Aug. 10, the public will be able to find out what they and a host of other Redskins players own when they join hundreds of other classic and modern car owners for the Redskins Rides Car Show at Redskins Park in Ashburn. The show will play host to what its organizer, Greg Calloway of Eastern Motors, who is sponsoring the event, hopes will be one of the largest car shows in the area.

"Easterns has been using the 'Skins players in their TV commercials and when the opportunity came about to produce a car show we jumped all over it because it was perfect for us. We have players coming out with their cars on display, we have several food vendors, we're giving out a lot of prizes — we've got 10 Garmin navigation units we're giving out, free auto detail, a car," Calloway said.

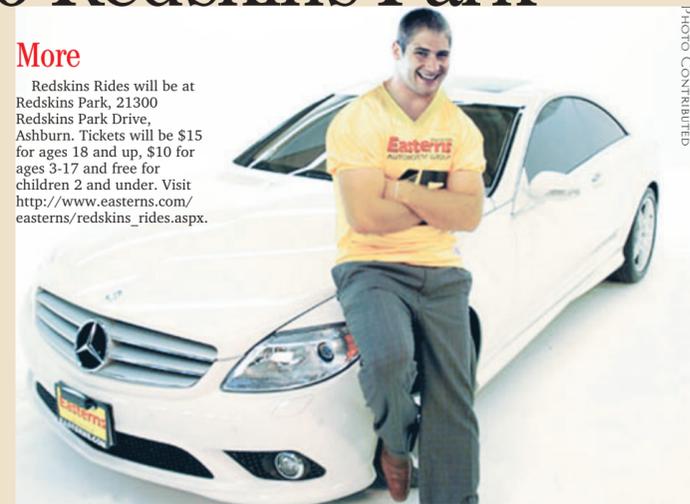

The event will run all day and feature cars ranging from classics to modern sports cars. The Redskins will be around, signing autographs and showing off their own cars. Chris Cooley has a Mercedes CL he will be bringing while Mike Sellers said he will be showing up with a tricked out Impala, just to name a few. Calloway says that around half the cars will be privately owned while the others will be from body shops and other area car businesses. There will be hundreds of cars coming from as far away as Pennsylvania and all of them will be competing to win prizes like best in show.

"This is the second annual car show and last year ... the players just walked around looking at cars and enjoying themselves. It will definitely be a chance to talk to the players and meet and greet," Calloway said.

Along with the cars, the show will feature live music throughout the day and an hourly

The Redskins' cheerleaders will also be making an appearance at the show along with a plethora of food from The Original Steakhouse, who will be cooking hot dogs, ribs and more and Papa John's Pizza all at a discounted price.

"It's a great family event. Sometimes when you go to car shows it gets a little adult, but we're directing this straight to families," Calloway said. "We want people to come out with cameras and autograph materials and have an amazing day with family and friends."

Not only will the car show be a great chance for children and adults alike to poke around some classic cars and hang out with Redskins players, but all the proceeds from the event will be going to the Washington Redskins' Charitable Foundation and the Eastern's Community Care Foundation. Both charities help out the local community in the area with money and support for programs.

"I just want the attendees to come out and have great time," Calloway said. "We're really doing it for the fans as well as for charity. Our goal is to raise as much money as possible so that next year we can get even bigger and raise more money."

Concertgoers are encouraged to bring a pillow or a blanket to sit on and a picnic to enjoy. Contact the Bluemont office at 540-338-4640 or visit www.bluemont.org.

Introduce yourself:

I am Zack Smith, the leader of the Dixie Power Trio.

How did you get your start?

The band formed around 1992. Back then, we were a three-piece group with banjo, tuba and me on cornet — playing Dixieland and rock and roll covers. Over the years, the band has changed and grown into a four-piece band with guitar, bass guitar, drums and me on cornet/accordion/rubboard and vocals. We play a mix of Zydeco, Cajun, rock, funk and New Orleans jazz.

How long have you been performing?

The band has been playing and touring for about 16 years.

What has been your best memory when it comes to music?

There are many, but one of the highlights was when Wynton Marsalis and his band came and sat in with us at an event in Washington, D.C. We ended up marching around the room playing "When The Saints Go Marching In."

Describe your sound:

We play the music of Louisiana. About half of our concert repertoire is original music with the same flavor.

Biggest musical influences:

Buckwheat Zydeco, Terrance Simien, Dirty Dozen, Professor Long Hair, Beausoleil, Louis Armstrong.

Other influences:

There are too many to name. As musicians, we are influenced by just about everything we hear.

Favorite pieces? Why?

Most of my favorite pieces we do are original tunes — stuff like "Virgil Under the Hood," "Happy Song," "Baby Give Me One More Chance." They all are the result of real life inspiration — and they are fun to play. A new song I have been enjoying playing lately is a tune by Branford Marsalis called "Mo Better Blues," from the movie of the same name. Our guitar player Chuck Underwood has been killing it.

Where is your favorite place to perform and why?

One of our favorite places to play is Ashland Coffee & Tea in Ashland, Va. It is a great listening room, with really cool people who run it. We also enjoy playing the Dockside Restaurant in Colonial Beach, Va. — the vibe there is very loose and we can play pretty much anything we want to and the audience is open to it.

The Dixie Power Trio.

What do you enjoy most about performing live? The reaction and energy that an audience creates.

Anyone you would really like to play with? Why?

I would love to trade solos with Nicholas Payton and Leroy Jones. They are two of my favorite living trumpet players.

Best compliment about a performance?

The best compliment anyone can give a performer is when they buy your CD at the end of the show. It means that you touched them somehow—you can't ask for a whole lot more than that.

The Scenes at Redskins Park

Burgundy and gold fans get their training camp fix.

BY RICH SANDERS
THE CONNECTION

Last weekend was a banner one for the Washington Redskins, who saw two of their best-ever former players— Art Monk and Darrell Green — get inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio on Saturday. The next evening, in the annual Hall of Fame pre-season game, the Redskins defeated the Indianapolis Colts.

The following piece is in regards to the Redskins' recent training camp week that was made open to the public.

FOR FANS of the burgundy and gold, the recent open practice sessions at Redskins Park were probably akin to going to football heaven.

Local fans, for the most part of the weeklong open practice sessions to the public, swarmed towards the NFL team's headquarters, located off the Loudoun County Parkway in Ashburn.

The most overwhelming numbers of folks, approximately 30,000, swarmed the facility on July 26 for 'fan appreciation day.'

From a fan perspective, it was easy to get overwhelmed during one of the open practice session visits. Thousands, many seated in bleachers and attired in team t-shirts or ball caps, focused on the team's every move — from its offensive pass plays, exercise drills, or anything else coach Jim Zorn and his staff were directing the players to do.

Near the end of a morning practice session during the middle of the week, the Redskins' offense ran plays against the defense, attempting to move the ball down the field. Although it was not a full contact exhibition, the fans on-hand cheered loudly with each well-run play. When veteran wide receiver Santana Moss caught a long ball down field, the faithful erupted as if the popular No. 89 had just cradled in a ball in front of a packed out crowd at Fed Ex Field against a division rival.

Another time, quarterback Jason Campbell threw a long strike to tight-end Chris Cooley. Following the impressive hook-up, fans began yelling, 'Cooley,' as they would on a game day.

EARLIER in the morning, one renowned Redskins player of the past, former line-backer great Sam Huff, watched the Redskins' newest defensive standout, former Miami Dolphin Jason Taylor, who in recent weeks was traded to Washington.

Taylor, under the tutelage of a Redskins position coach, was participating in a drill in which a defender tried to shed off the blocking attempts of an offensive lineman. The drill was taking part on a backfield, not in front of the fans. After one short blocking/shedding drill exchange, Taylor fixed the shoulder pads of fellow defensive end Chris Wilson. Huff, standing off to the side by himself, keenly focused in on the players, and in particular Taylor.

At one point, Huff, a color commentator on Redskins radio broadcasts, could be heard telling someone, with a chuckle, "Since they got Jason, I thought I'd watch practice. Like Sonny [Jurgenson] with Brett Favre."

Taylor, tall and lean and wearing No. 55, did not appear as a superstar player as he practiced with his new teammates.

But he certainly displayed his pizzazz later in the morning after the a.m. practices had wrapped up. He enthusiastically moved towards the throng of fans who were calling out his name. Taylor, a potential Hall of Famer who recently basked in the national spotlight as a participant in Dancing With the Stars, easily mixed with the adoring onlookers as he signed footballs and tee shirts.

Taylor and the rest of his teammates would not have been talking to fans, media or going along their ways had it not been for the heroics of a pair of Redskins linemen, who prevented the long, morning workouts from being extended simply by both successfully catching a punted ball.

Zorn, who replaced the retired Joe Gibbs this past offseason, had huddled the entire team together at what appeared to be the end of practice. Seconds later, Redskins players Ryan Boschetti and Justin Geisinger, both linemen, briskly jogged down the field before turning around. As the players and coaches at the other end of the field looked on, a Redskins punter, Durant Brooks, booted a high, towering ball towards Boschetti, a defensive lineman. In impressive fashion, Boschetti successfully cradled in the ball before spontaneously punting it back towards the herd of Redskins players. Fans and players burst into cheers for the 289-pound Boschetti, who had caught the ball and even played up to the crowd with his return punt.

Next, it was Geisinger's turn. And, just like his teammate moments before, he also caught the punted ball.

The successful punt catches by the two-some meant that the Redskins, as a team, would not have to take extra running. It also meant an extra hour of curfew later that night.

Reporters at practice's end mobbed Geisinger, a third year offensive lineman from Vanderbilt.

"It was something fun for the guys at the end of practice," he said, of the lineman punt catching display. "I probably would have gotten ripped [by teammates] in the locker room the rest of camp if I hadn't caught it. I played a little tight-end in high school."

Redskins' cornerback Fred Smoot signed a few autographs and chatted with the team's faithful.

REDSKIN Ladell Betts, a key running back over the past five years, said players' spirits have been high under the new coaching staff.

"Everything is good, the enthusiasm is definitely up with the new regime in place," said Betts, as he headed towards the dressing room. "We focus on our work but you can't help but pay attention to the fans. They're a real pick-me-up."

Redskin star lineman Chris Samuels echoed the same sentiments in regards to the Redskins faithful.

"It's been great," said Samuels, the eighth year standout from Alabama. "We have the greatest fans in the NFL. They come out and support us thick and thin. And [coach Zorn] is doing a great job."

Fred Smoot, the talkative Redskins cornerback, spent several minutes after practice with military personnel who were visiting Redskins Park.

"Where are you from?" he asked one individual. After getting an answer, Smoot replied, "I'm from Jackson, Mississippi."

Then, Smoot told the group, "I appreciate you all."

Moments later, on an outdoor media platform, Cooley, the popular and talkative Redskins' tight-end, told reporters about a beard-growing contest he is running on his blog site. The scruffy Cooley, who was married this past offseason, said he alone would pick the contest winner.

"They'll get two tickets to the Bills game," he said. "None [of the beards I've seen] are as good as mine yet. I'm really happy with my beard. Originality is the key to a good beard."

Cooley then expressed his appreciation to Boschetti and Geisinger for coming through with the clutch, end of the practice punt catches.

"I've got an added hour of curfew," said Cooley, with a big grin. "I was pretty confident in them. [Geisinger's] catch was sketchy, but he pulled it off."

Cooley, who played in last year's Pro Bowl game in Hawaii, said his offseason was a whirlwind of activity as a result of getting married and travel.

"I've been real busy," he said. "I wasn't sure if I was ready to come to camp, but I got [good workouts in] the first four days."

Following Cooley, coach Zorn came onstage and addressed the press. He talked about being impressed with Jason Taylor's attitude since coming aboard from Miami.

"I've been most pleased and surprised how he has jumped right in, taking reps and enjoying it," said Zorn. "He's trying to get himself mentally up to speed on the [defensive] terminology. He's a pro."

Of his new starting quarterback, Campbell, Zorn said, "I think he's coming along very well with the knowledge of [the new system]. I'm throwing so much to him and the other quarterbacks. The recall is what takes a little time."

Zorn, a born again Christian like Gibbs before him, had to answer questions about the fact that he does not like to curse.

"I don't try to say cuss words, but I've muttered some," he said, with a smile. "I'm not 'St. Jim.' But [cursing] is not necessary. I hope that by saying words and speaking truth to guys, it will have an impact on them."

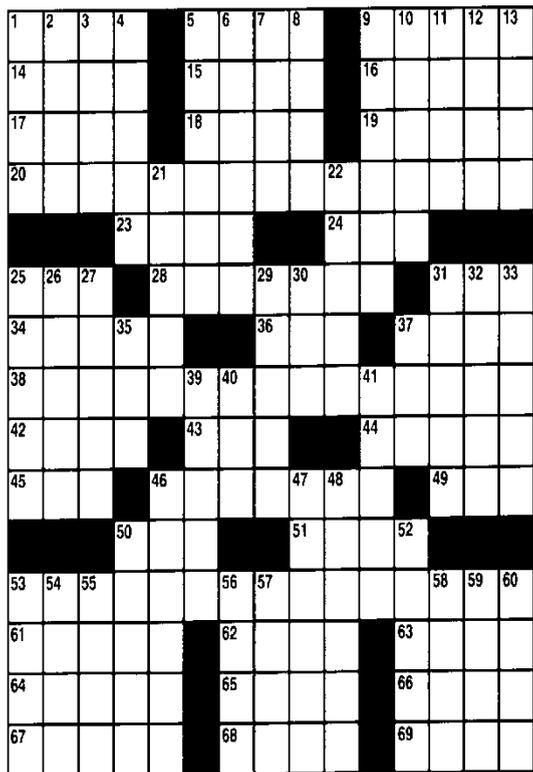

Zorn, the former left-handed QB, said he sometimes feels like he could get in there and throw a few crisp passes.

"I'm 55 and I think I could still play," said Zorn, in a light moment. "I think I could still chuck the ball."

PEOPLE

Daniel Dales, Scott Reynolds, Kara Rutherford and Sheriff Steve Simpson.

Scholarships Awarded

Three Loudoun County students were presented with checks for $500 from Loudoun Sheriff Steve Simpson as part of the Virginia Sheriffs' Institute (VSI) scholarship program. Daniel Dales of Sterling, Scott Reynolds of Ashburn and Notre Dame Academy student Kara Rutherford are the 2008 scholarship recipients. Dales attends James Madison University, Reynolds attends Radford University and Rutherford will attend George Mason University this fall.

Rep. Frank Wolf (R-10) announces the 10th District's appointments to the nation's service academies.

United States Naval Academy, Nicholas Galvan of Potomac Falls, Potomac Falls High School.

United States Merchant Marine Academy, Renee Elizabeth Hogan of Sterling, Potomac Falls High School; Adam Roland Wise of Sterling, Potomac Falls High School.

The appointees were nominated by Wolf's 10th District service academy advisory board, which interviews candidates and recommends nominees.

Eileen Nguyen and Lynn Ruths, with the Loudoun County Department of Management and Financial Services, have completed the Virginia Government Finance Officers' Association (VGFOA) Certificate Program.

The program requires individuals to complete and pass exams in Virginia law and other related topics pertinent to state and local governments.

On Wednesday, Aug. 6, the Loudoun County Adult Drug Treatment Court will hold the program's fifth graduation ceremony. Virginia Del. David E. Poisson (D-32), will address the participants and guests.

There are 19 participants in the program, one of who will graduate that day. The graduate has completed all four phases of the program and has maintained a considerable period of abstinence.

The drug court model is a specially designed docket within the existing court system that focuses on nonviolent substance abusing offenders. The court utilizes immediate sanctions and incentives to promote participant progression through the four-phase program. Participants enter the program voluntarily and are made no promises as to their probation supervision status post-graduation.

The Loudoun County Drug Court Program, implemented in June of 2004, is one of about 30 such programs in Virginia.

The Loudoun County Victim Witness Program honored Loudoun Sheriff's Office Investigators Tim Ortwein and Dave Canham at the 10th Annual Victim Services Awards. The awards ceremony is held each year during National Crime Victims' Rights Week and was established to honor and recognize those who have exhibited services on behalf of crime victims.

Eagle Scout Honored

George C. Black Jr., a member of Boy Scout Troop 966 in Sterling, received his Eagle Award during a Court of Honor ceremony May 24, at the Fairfax Church of Christ. The Eagle Award is Boy Scout's highest rank. Black achieved the rank by earning a total of 30 merit badges and by holding several leadership positions in Troop 966. He is also a member of the Order and Brotherhood of the Arrow. With help from friends and fellow Scouts, Black reconstructed the courtyard at Farmwell Station Middle School by excavating and installing a pond with waterfall and bridge for his Eagle Scout project. He graduated from Broad Run and will be attending Virginia State University. Troop 966 is sponsored by the Sterling Ruritan Club.

Ashburn, VA

We're opening the doors to Ashby Ponds, Erickson's newest 132-acre retirement community, this September 2008! But there's still time to be part of this premier event! Come to our OPEN HOUSE and discover opportunities to play a starring role on our team:

- Certified Medical Assistant
- CNAs (Flex)
- Senior HVAC Mechanic
- Maintenance Mechanics
- Waste Management Workers
- Housekeepers
- Floor Care Technician
- Transportation Supervisor
- Assistant Supervisors/Officers (Nights and/or Weekends)
- Drivers (CDL & Non-CDL)
- Pastoral Ministries Coordinator
- Restaurant Manager
- Assistant Manager
- Executive Chef
- Cooks (Lead/Line/Prep)
- Cafe Associates
- Dishwashers
- Utility Supervisor
- Wait Staff
- Administrative Assistants
- Front Desk Attendants (Nights and/or Weekends)
- Special Projects Workers

Recognized by FORTUNE Magazine as one of 2008's "100 Best Companies To Work For", we can offer attractive compensation, benefits and growth opportunities! If you have experience in any of these areas - meet our management team at our One Day Only Open House on August 9th and apply in person.

If unable to attend our Open House, please email resume along with cover letter and salary requirements to: APLresumes@erickson.com
