Gunfire in the Morning

Old debate rekindled as duck hunters return to the area around Dyke Marsh.

BY MICHAEL LEE POPE
GAZETTE PACKET

Ducks gather in a cluster as the sun peeks out from a cloud over the Potomac River at the southern edge of Dyke Marsh. From his back deck, Tom Depasquale can watch the ducks move from the safety of the federally protected wildlife into the dangerous waters at the edge around Dyke Marsh. This is where hunters wait in duck blinds for waterfowl to emerge from the sanctuary. Depasquale pointed to a duck blind about 50 feet from his house, a wooden frame surrounded by dead branches allowing hunters to aim their shotguns into the nature preserve.

"Is it really hunting when you set your blind on the edge of a game preserve?" asked Depasquale, pointing toward the duck blind on the southern edge of Dyke Marsh. "I don't think you have to be a good hunter to do that. In fact I think you wouldn't have to be a very good hunter or maybe even a bad hunter."

In the eight years he has lived on South Down Road, Depasquale said duck-hunting season has been a lingering hassle. During duck hunting season, the gunfire near his house begins as early as 6 a.m. and often lingers until 9 a.m. Depasquale says hunters prowl the edges of Dyke Marsh on Christmas and Thanksgiving — even on Sundays, despite rules outlawing duck hunting on Sundays.

"If they're lucky enough to hit a duck, the duck may land in your back yard half wounded," he said. "And then your children get to watch the duck being picked up from your back yard half wounded."

WELCOME TO Mount Vernon, a community where duck hunting has a long history dating back to the earliest days of the commonwealth. George Washington himself once hunted waterfowl in the area, and duck hunters say they were here first — long before the multi-million dollar waterfront houses and neighborhood opposition to duck hunting. Hunters say their fees and taxes go to preserve areas such as Dyke Marsh, and they should have the right to hunt there.

"For homeowners to be upset, I want to sympathize with them," said Kevin Paulson, a duck hunter who frequently hunts in the area surrounding Dyke Marsh. "But that would be like me moving to an area near Dulles Airport and then calling up the airport to complain about the jets."

For years, a group known as Friends of Dyke Marsh has advocated for an end to duck hunting near the nature preserve. Their efforts culminated earlier this year

Ribble Places Fourth In National Pageant

After placing fourth in the National Pageant for Ms American Senior in Atlantic City, N.J. on Oct. 8, Maureen Ribble, the Ms. Virginia Senior winner, returns to Mount Vernon and her Riverside Gardens community to prepare for several local appearances arranged by the Ms. Virginia Senior Pageant organization.

One of those upcoming appearances is an invitation by Mt. Vernon Supervisor Gerry Hyland and the Board of Supervisors which is scheduled to formally thank Ribble at a regularly scheduled Board of Supervisors meeting on Oct. 19. "In my estimation, and I am confident others in Fairfax county and Mount Vernon agree with me, I am very proud to welcome her back to our community and congratulate her on a great run for the national title," Hyland said. "Ms Ribble is a wonderful and talented representative of Virginia and all seniors."

Ribble works for the National Theater as a professional singer, performing metro-wide before senior organizations, assisted living facilities, nursing homes, and other senior organizations.

"I will continue to encourage seniors to try different things, think out of the box, and strive to continue to be active and live a full life," Ribble said. "No matter what your age, believe in yourself, set goals, and work hard to achieve them; you will be happier and more fulfilled if you do."

Duck Hunters Return to Area around Dyke Marsh

when they asked officials at the Virginia Department of Game and Inland Fisheries to ban duck hunting near the wildlife preserve. Their request was denied, but leaders of the organization say they will continue to press their case with elected officials. Del. David Englin (D-45) said he agrees that duck hunting is not appropriate for the heavily populated areas surrounding Dyke Marsh, with include several neighborhoods and the Mount Vernon Trail. "I would say that given how close everything is there, the right thing to do would probably be to just not allow duck hunting in that area," said Englin.

But Englin admits that ending duck hunting in the residential areas surrounding Dyke Marsh will not be easy. Hunters are a powerful lobby in Richmond, and ending duck hunting near Dyke Marsh would be overturning centuries of tradition. Meanwhile, officials from the Virginia Department of Game and Inland Fisheries say they have no plans of ending duck hunting in this area anytime soon.

"We feel that waterfowl hunting is a completely legitimate activity," said Bob Ellis, wildlife division director for the Department of Game and Inland Fisheries. "And we have gone to great lengths to provide identified locations to be hunted at certain hours."

After receiving complaints last year that duck hunting locations were inside the boundaries of Dyke Marsh, Ellis said he worked with officials from the National Park Service to determine the exact boundaries of the federally protected area. When the department realized that four of the eight buoys were inside Dyke Marsh, the department moved them outside the boundaries. Now, Ellis said, the closest hunting location to the federally protected area is 50 feet from the edge of Dyke Marsh. Friends of Dyke Marsh say they will continue the effort to put an end to duck hunting outside the boundaries of the federally protected wildlife preserve, even if it's after this year's duck-hunting season.

"We're not going to give up on this," said Glenda Booth, president of Friends of Dyke Marsh.

Scouts Participate in National Event

Several local Boy Scouts had the opportunity to attend the Attorney of the Year "Good Scout Award" luncheon held in Washington, D.C. earlier this summer. In attendance were Dan Pike, Sebastian Richard and Cullen O'Boyle from Mount Vernon Troop 1509 as well as several Scouts from Troop 1983.

In addition, several local judges attended as guests of Thomas J. Curcio. They included: U.S. Magistrate Judge Thomas Rawles Jones, Jr.; Magistrate Judge John F. Anderson; Fairfax General District Court Judge Lisa Mayne; and Arlington County Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court, Chief Judge George D. Varoutsos.

This year's event honored Carolyn B. Lamm, White & Case, LLP, President-Elect of the ABA, and Jack H. Olender, of Jack H. Olender & Associates P.C. They both received the "Good Scout Award," given to attorneys who have made extraordinary contributions to local communities and who practice law with the same high ethical standards attorneys hope to instill in our children. Past recipients include Don Dunner, Ted Olsen, Jamie Gorelick, and Bill Lightfoot.

In addition to recognizing the honorees, the luncheon also helps supported two ground-breaking programs of the Boy Scouts of America National Capital Area Council, "Learning for Life" and "Scoutreach."

"Learning for Life" supports schools and community-based organizations in their efforts to prepare disadvantaged boys and girls to manage the complexities of today's world by enhancing their self-confidence, motivation, and self-esteem. "Scoutreach" helps give young people from urban and rural areas the opportunity to experience the benefits of Scouting, regardless of their circumstances, neighborhood, or ethnic background.

Englin seeks his third term.

GAZETTE

Something about Del. David Englin (D-45) makes Republicans uneasy. Some say he's an interloper who rose into town in 2003 and launched a political career before establishing roots. Others say he's an exaggerator who oversells his role in the legislative process. Whatever his reputation is among opponents, Democrats say Englin is a hard-working member of the Virginia General Assembly who deserves to be returned to Richmond for a third term.

"I'm thrilled that David Englin drives the Republicans crazy," said Susan Kellom, chairwoman of the Alexandria Democratic Committee. "He's got great ideas, and when the Democrats get 51 votes in the House of Delegates then it will be much easier for his bills to get through."

When Englin issued a press release earlier this year announcing his intention to seek a third term in the Virginia House of Delegates, Republican chairman Chris Marston responded with a point-by-point rebuttal. Englin described himself as a "leader who knows how to overcome the partisan rancor in Richmond;" Marston responded that Englin is a "partisan attack dog." Englin said he had a reputation as being a "leader who knows how to deliver progress;" Marston responded that only four of Englin's 15 bills passed this year. Englin took credit for delivering legislation to "ban smoking in Virginia bars and restaurants;" Marston responded that Englin's bill was incorporated into a different bill, and that "no one who follows the General Assembly would credit Englin with any useful contribution to this effort."

"David claims credit for creating the earth," said Marston. "He's quick to claim credit for things he didn't actually accomplish."

ENGLIN RESPONDED to attacks against him with a sense of fatalism. The arena of politics can be difficult, he said, and elected leaders have to have thick skins. Nevertheless, he took issue with Marston's press release as being full of falsifications and mischaracterizations. He pointed to Republican constituents who relied on him for constituent services as evidence of his ability to be bipartisan. And he said that more of his bills would be successful if Democrats were in control of the House of Delegates.

"Chris Marston is trying to tear me down in order to get a Republican elected," said Englin. "I'm not going apologize for being

David Englin, 35

Born on a United States military base in Germany, David Englin has lived in Alexandria since 2003. Raised by a single mother, Englin is a graduate of the United States Air Force Academy and Harvard University's John F. Kennedy School of Government. He joined the Air Force at the age of 17 and was deployed to the Balkans shortly afterward to participate in counter-genocide and peacekeeping operations. On Sept. 11, 2001, Englin was on duty at the Pentagon when the building was struck by terrorists who had commandeered American Airlines Flight 77. In June 2005, Englin beat out five other Democratic rivals to be the party's choice to replace former Del. Marian Van Landingham, who had held the seat since 1981. In November 2005, he received 64 percent of votes against Republican Chris Gregerson. In November 2007, Englin received 61 percent of the votes against Republican Mark Allen. He is currently vice president of Live Wire Media Relations in Old Town.

a Democrat with a backbone."

As to the charge that he didn't make a meaningful contribution to the smoking ban, Englin scoffed at this allegation. He pointed out that Democratic Gov. Tim Kaine joined him in a January press conference in Arlington to support the bill Englin had already filed with the clerk's office. He also pointed out that part of the negotiated settlement leading to the passage of the bill was that the final version should be carried by a Republican in the House, and that his original bill was very similar to the final version introduced by Del. John Cosgrove (R-78).

Ultimately, Englin said, he will trust voters of the 45th District to make a determination about his record.

"I make no apologies for being a strong Democrat," said Englin. "At the same time, it can be difficult trying to make transformational change when you're in the minority."

Englin said a number of his initiatives have been stymied by the Republican majority, including a rental assistance program to help people transition out of homelessness, a plan to eliminate the state food tax and a tax credit to encourage jobs in the renewable energy sector. When asked about his biggest successes over the last four years, Englin mentioned a bill that gives gays hospital visitation rights and the successful passage of the bill banning smoking in restaurants. He also said that he considers the defeat of a bill that would have gutted the powers of the Air Pollution Control Board a major victory.

"I'm not the kind of person who is going to give in without a fight," said Englin. "And I think the conservative Republicans are threatened by that."

Vasques offers fiscal conservatism.

After years as political appointee and a career-service employee in Washington, D.C. Vicki Vasques wants to bring her passion for public service to Richmond. She launched a Republican campaign to unseat two-term incumbent Del. David Englin (D-45), who replaced longtime legislator Marian Van Landingham in 2005.

Ousting any incumbent would be a difficult challenge for a first-time candidate, but the difficulties for a Republican are especially perplexing in the 45th District, which includes most of Alexandria as well as parts of Fairfax and Arlington counties. In 2007, Englin received 64 percent while Republican challenger Mark Allen mustered 36 percent. During his first campaign for office, Englin received 68 percent while Republican challenger Chris Gregerson took 32 percent of the vote.

"It's certainly no slam dunk," admitted Chris Marston, chairman of the Alexandria Republican City Committee. "But we think it's a winnable district."

The Republican strategy against Englin is to attack the incumbent's record. In a press release issued shortly after Englin announced for reelection in April, Marston invoked a ranking of legislators issued by a group known as Virginia FREE that placed Englin at the bottom 10 percent of legislators. And he criticized Englin for taking credit for delivering progress when only four of his 15 bills were passed by the General Assembly. Englin dismissed the charges as a misunderstanding of how the legislative process works in Virginia.

"I make no apologies for pursuing an aggressive agenda of legislation to stand up for the interests of our community," said Englin. "And the Virginia FREE rating done behind closed doors for lobbyists for industries like big Tobacco and the Mirant Corporation."

Her first involvement in politics is when she ran for vice president of her high school freshman class, later volunteering for Ronald Reagan's 1980 presidential campaign. She received a bachelor of science in human services from California State University at Fullerton, and taught elementary school in California before moving to Washington, D.C. to take a position as a political appointee in Reagan's Department of Education. She later became a scheduler for the AIDS Commission and the Department of Energy before taking a career service position as director of Indian Affairs at the Department of Energy. She describes many of her views on issues as moderate, and she describes herself as someone who would be willing to listen to the Democratic leaders at the local level who lobby for specific measures in Richmond. For example, she said she would support Alexandria City Councilman Rob Krupicka's effort to force motorists to stop rather than yield when a pedestrian is in an intersection. And she said she would

Mary Bassette Bowdring

Surrounded by her family, Mary Bassette Bowdring, 77, died peacefully at home Sept. 29 from complications of congestive heart failure. Mrs. Bowdring had many careers — registered nurse, wife, mother and community volunteer.

Mary Bassette was born and raised in Somerville, Mass., where she graduated from Saint Clement High School in 1950 with her future husband, Howard (Howie). There, Mary was a class scholar and stand out basketball player. Mary and Howie had their first date July 4, 1950, and eventually married in 1954 when Howie completed an Army tour with the 3rd US Infantry, ceremonial guard to the nation's capital and the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

As the oldest of five girls, Mary was a lifetime leader and constantly in service to others. Her boundless curiosity and caring nature led her to graduate from Saint Elizabeth's School of Nursing in 1953, in Brighton, Mass. She loved psychiatric nursing: her skills brought great comfort to her patients, and would prove endlessly useful in raising nine children, and in her volunteer work. Her organizational skills, sense of humor, and infinite patience made her the ideal head of a busy household and large extended family.

Mary and Howie moved into the Belle Haven area of Alexandria in 1965. Mary was mother to nine and mentor to countless more. She always made room for extra friends and neighbors at the dinner table. Not only did she serve her famous meatloaf, but she also offered healthy servings of her wit and wisdom. Of all her various roles in her life, Mary took the most pleasure from her career as wife and mother.

Mary had a vibrant mind and was a current affairs junkie her whole life. She once caused a minor sensation at a local radio station by calling in and describing being alone at home with eight small children, all with the chicken pox. She may well be the charter member of the C-Span fan club and always delighted in testing everyone's knowledge of what was new, and more importantly, what was right.

A tireless friend to all, she was part of a group of ladies who met weekly at the now defunct Dixie Pig restaurant. This group was still together 25 years later at other locations. Meeting for breakfast and staying until the lunch service, they were able to solve all the world's problems in several hours. The ladies delighted in calling Mary "Mother Superior," a play on words from many angles.

Mary's third career was volunteering for causes close to her heart. She spent 14 years with the Mount Vernon Center for Community Health. As a volunteer, Mary was at the center every Monday morning for 10 years taking phone calls from distraught clients. Her colleagues described her as a good listener with extraordinary patience who had the ability to impart many words of wisdom. This led to her appointment to the Advisory and Governing Boards to the Mount Vernon Mental Health Center. She also spent a number of years supporting the Mariah Center, a pregnancy crisis shelter in Alexandria as well as co-founding and administering the 500 Club for Saint Mary's Academy, a fundraising arm for the school.

Mary and Howie divided their time between Alexandria and Marshfield, Mass. In her retirement, Mary enjoyed bridge, crossword puzzles, and following her favorite news commentators. She also continued her volunteer work, this time with the Alexandria Police department. "Nana" was also known as the shout out person for any grandchild stuck on a homework question. A devout Catholic, Mary was a parishioner of Saint Mary's Catholic Church in Alexandria for the past 44 years.

Two daughters, Maryann and Arline, preceded her in death.

Survivors include her husband of 55 years, Howard P. Bowdring; four sisters: Audrey Williams of Quincy, Mass.; Anna Mae McFadden of Lexington, Mass.; Arline Ballotta of Stoneham, Mass.; Gerri Botsch of Merrimac, N.H.; seven children; Michelle B. Shaw of McLean, Katherine F. Bowdring of Alexandria, Nancy B. Mino of Mayfield Village, Ohio, Howard P. Bowdring of Alexandria, William F. Bowdring of Alexandria, Patricia Shaffer of Sterling, Elizabeth Day of Miami Shores, Fla.; fourteen grandchildren, many nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements were handled by Demaine Funeral Home, Alexandria.

Mary P. Bowen

Mary P. Bowen, 81 died peacefully on Sept. 25, 2009. Mary was a devoted mother and wife. She was preceded in death by her husband of 56 years, Glynn Mitchell Bowen. She is survived by five children: sons, Robert Bowen and Mitchell Bowen; daughters, Edwina Rieder, Glynda Hughes and Marylee Bowen; 14 grandchildren; 7 great-children; sister, Shirley M. Hooper.

A visitation was held on Wednesday, Sept. 30, 2009 from 7-9 p.m. A life celebration service was held on Thursday, Oct 1, 2009 at 11am. Interment was held at Quantico National Cemetery.

James D. Houser

James D. "Doug" Houser died on Oct. 2 while working in Saudi Arabia. A lifelong resident of the Fort Hunt area, Doug was a graduate of the Groveton High School class of 1970 and attended Virginia Commonwealth University where he met his wife of 30 years, Eileen. After spending many years abroad as a defense contractor for Raytheon, Doug returned to Fort Hunt to raise his family. He has two sons, Sean and Dustin who are both attending college. He was involved in many activities within the community. He coached and was a board member of Fort Hunt little league baseball and coached basketball for many years. He was an avid dog lover, skier, golfer and Redskins fan and enjoyed spending time with his family and friends on Rampart Drive.

A visitation will be held on Thursday, Oct. 15 from 6-8 p.m. at Demaines Funeral home in Alexandria. A memorial Mass will be said at Good Shepherd Catholic Church on Friday, Oct. 16, at 10:30 a.m. followed by a luncheon at Tom and Karen Shaw's home at 1786 Rampart Drive.

Walter Patrick Lukens

Walter Patrick Lukens of Alexandria died on Oct. 9, 2009. Mr. Lukens is survived by his loving wife, Sylvia. He is also survived by his brother, Robert Lukens; sister, Elizabeth Lukens; nephews, John and Timothy Noble; and sister-in-laws, Elaine and Ray Biondi.

Volunteer, Oct. 24 and Beyond

Volunteering to help your community, to help people in need, is good for soul and good for families. But often it's hard to know where to jump in, how to be helpful, where your efforts will do the most good.

But many local organizations have geared up for Oct. 24, a national day of volunteerism, providing structured and specific opportunities for people to help out for a day. And by starting on that one day, perhaps your family will find a way to volunteer several times a year or more.

Many families find that they benefit from volunteering at least as much as the organization or people they are helping. Volunteering develops a sense of community in children, and expands their capacity for empathy. In this area, many families' daily lives only bring them into contact with other affluent families. Volunteer efforts can give children and teens perspective, and more of an ability to count their own blessings.

Some teens might conclude that they are not well off because they drive an older car to high school — a cruise around a local high school student parking area could lead to the conclusion that nearly everyone in our area is a millionaire. A little time helping serve meals to homeless, to collect food for families who are having trouble putting food on the table, to help with repairs in a homeless shelter can have a powerful effect.

Support Music In Schools

To the Editor:

I would like to bring to your attention the issue of the No Child Left Behind Act's influence on music education in Fairfax County. While accountability for our public schools that we pay a large amount of taxes for is important, the effect it has on our schools' music programs is unacceptable. Fairfax County is known for their music programs, which are frequently ranked in some of the top ratings in the country. So why would we think it'd be logical to support an act that would cut down on that which this county's public schools are known for?

While in the NCLB Act, it states that music is a "core subject," it doesn't seem that way in the rest of the legislation. With the continued emphasis on reading and math and preparing children for standardized tests in those subjects, schools are putting more and more time, money, faculty, and resources into those two subjects in order to make AYP and continue to receive federal funding. That, combined with a terrible economy, forces schools to make cuts in certain areas. Among these areas, the first one to get hit, and the one that usually gets hit the hardest, is the music programs. Budgets for music programs are being cut, forcing some programs to raise their dues, which causes more kids to drop the music groups, use out-of-date and damaged instruments, rotting and ragtag uniforms, and cutting out on competitions and trips.

Why should we be saving music in public schools? Because, ironically, music programs actually help kids excel in core subjects such as math and reading, the two subjects tested the most under the NCLB Act. It also gives students opportunities to perform, meet new children, and have a special bond they can't receive in any other format in public schooling. It teaches them life-long lessons, characteristics, and human qualities that cannot be duplicated in any other program and cannot be measured by a bubble sheet. It's these skills that students desperately need, and, a lot of times, lack, out in the real world with any kind of job or career choice. Usually, the students who were involved in music found it easier to critically think, work with groups of their peers, and get the job done right the first time.

Those who were never involved in music, or whose children were never involved, may not completely comprehend why the most expensive programs in public schools should be saved. They will come back retorting, "How will this help me or my child?" While it may not directly affect them, it sure affects those around them, which in turn affect them in the long run.

My challenge to you is to do something about this. Make it clear to your politicians that music programs are worth saving in order to bring the best out in students. Spread the word to everyone you know to come out to public school music functions. Whether or not you were ever involved in music, you might still have a great time watching a marching band at a football game, listening to a fine orchestra around the winter season, or enjoying the sound of an energetic choir at their spring show! Support music fundraising whenever you have a spare dollar and some time on your hands. Volunteer to help those programs in your neighborhood. You never know, you might learn something new, meet new people, and have a great time, just like those students involved.

present the General Assembly with a detailed proposal, but instead hopes to develop a "state-wide plan." It goes on to note that the basic tenets of any proposal would likely include funding for the Coalfields Expressway and Hampton Roads — but not one word about Northern Virginia.

The plan of Republican candidate Bob McDonnell, on the other hand, is described as focusing on "projects in highly congested regions such as Northern Virginia." Among the specifics is expediting $3 billion in bonds that have been approved but not spent, privatizing the state liquor stores and dedicating revenue to transportation, and tolling drivers entering Virginia from North Carolina.

One measure of the concern the candidates have about transportation in Northern Virginia is from their own Web sites. Bob McDonnell's plan references Northern Virginia 15 times. Creigh Deeds references our region only once.

Without specifics, Mr. Deeds is asking voters to buy off on the unknown. But voters in Northern Virginia, who have seen far too much of their taxes stream downstate, deserve better than a "secret plan to solve transportation" through higher taxes.

Can't Afford To Wait

To The Editor:

It seems that Mr. Medico's lack of attention to detail is demonstrated by the fact that he spelled my name wrong throughout his response. However, that is indeed a most trivial offense weighed against his continued distortion of much more important matters. He again misleads the public. Social Security and Medicare are not going broke. For example, Medicare's shortfall (affecting only the Hospital Trust Fund, Part A, supported by payroll deduction), is expected to be 1.7 percent of the Gross Domestic Product (GDP) over the next 75 years according to its trustees. Not a gigantic problem, Mr. Medico.

Although the Senate Finance Committee voted against a public option, the public option is alive and well in the House bills, which he didn't mention. The health insurance industry currently pays 340 lobbyists to fight against health care reform. Why does he suppose that is? Let me suggest an answer. They know that a public option will provide real competition and would actually lower costs, which is what Mr. Medico says he wants. Of course, competition could also reduce the premiums their customers pay to their insurance companies. According to the American Medical Association, a single insurer controls more than half the market in 16 states, and a third in 38 states. That's some competition! It sure hasn't reduced costs.

According to Medicare's actuaries, as early as 2025, about half of the average Social Security check would be consumed by out-of-pocket health care costs. The Congressional Budget Office projects that without cost controls, total spending on health care will grow to 49 percent of our GDP by 2082, clearly not a good thing. Current health care reform measures will go a long way towards preventing that from happening by providing opportunities for the government to bargain for lower drug prices on behalf of Medicare (as it does with the Veterans Administration), to provide real competition through a public plan, reducing preventable hospital readmissions, among numerous other measures in the pending legislation. We cannot afford to wait any longer.

Missing Resource

To the Editor:

In a recent Mount Vernon Gazette in an article headed "Newcomers' Guide," there was a listing of local telephone numbers which might be of assistance to citizens new to our area. The various headings included Emergency, General Information, Driver's Licenses, Utilities, and Government.

Absent from the listing is the Inova Mount Vernon Hospital.

Why?

If I were a newcomer to the area, I would appreciate knowing the location and the telephone number of the nearest hospital. A spouse might be ill, or a child, or a parent who is now lives in my household and who might need medical assistance quickly.

Certainly, I would need to find a local physician(s) for the members in my household.

I would look for a hospital listing under General Information, or, depending on the circumstances, under Emergency.

Thank you for understanding my concern that this very important telephone number is missing from your list.

Dyke, Not Dyke's

To the Editor:

The Gazette should be aware that the proper name of our local freshwater tidal wetland on the Potomac River in the Mount Vernon area is "Dyke" Marsh, and not "Dyke's" Marsh, as in your Oct. 8 headline. The name "Dyke" does not refer to a person, nor is it any reference to persons of a gay orientation. Dyke is simply an old spelling of dike, meaning a linear earthen structure used to control water. When European colonists settled this area, they looked at a wetland, saw a wasteland, and wanted farm land. So they diked the area to provide land for grazing and crops. In time the river defeated them, and the marsh re

Ofrenda: Day of the Dead

Masked Ball, Parade, Art Exhibition in the Mexican Dia de los Muertos tradition.

Art Outlet presents Ofrenda 2009, an art exhibition of local artists' shrines, altars, and other art in the Mexican Dia de los Muertos (Day of the Dead) tradition, along with a masked ball and parade. The third annual Ofrenda exhibition is presented in partnership with the Torpedo Factory Art Center on the waterfront in Old Town Alexandria.

A free Masked Ball will be held on Saturday, Oct. 31 from 3 p.m. to midnight. Revelers are invited to come to the Ofrenda reception and parade dressed in the style of Day of the Dead, or decked out in Halloween finery.

An artist-led sugar skull activity and Mariachi performance by Mariachi Estrellas will kick off the celebration from 3 to 4 p.m. Live music including rock, swing, and blues will be interspersed with belly dancing and silk trapeze performances throughout the event. Guests can participate in the exhibition by bringing personal remembrances — ofrendas — to contribute to the artist-made public altar honoring those who have left us.

The Ofrenda Parade will be held from 7-7:45 p.m., Oct. 31, and is open to anyone. It will be led by drummers, fire dancers, artists in costumes, and Day of the Dead puppets. It will begin at the historic Market Square near City Hall at 301 King Street at 7 p.m. and end at the Torpedo Factory Art Center at 7:45 p.m. with a drum circle.

MEMBERS OF THE PUBLIC wishing to join the parade can come in their costumes, bring puppets, shrines, and noise makers. For details, go to ofrendaparade@artoutlet.org.

An art exhibition will be held from Oct. 31 to Nov. 2. Art Outlet has curated 1152 square feet of wall exhibition space (18 panels, courtesy of Artomatic) and space for sculpture/media on the first floor of the Torpedo Factory Art Center. A public altar outside the Torpedo Factory will include candles and incense. Artist-made Dia de los Muertos altars and ofrendas will draw the beloved dead to visit their loved ones, feast on their favorite food and drink and listen to their favorite music — remembering the dead and celebrating life. Artwork in a variety of media will be presented.

Exhibiting artists will include: Michael Auger, Kathlyn Avila-Reyes, Jennifer Beinhacker, Jennifer Bishop, Ismael Carrillo, Kate Clark, Andrea Collins, Rosemary Feit Covey, Anthony Delfin, Jackie Ehle, Cavan Fleming, Ric Garcia, Jeannette Herrera, Kevin Irvin, Jessica Jastrzebski, Rebecca Marion Kallem, Lori Katz, Shauna Lee Lange, Emily Green Liddle, Carolina Mayorga, Peggy Meckling, Heather Miller, Mara Odette, Claudia & Sergio Olivos, Chris Peloso, Kevin Chopper Peshkepia, Caren Quinn, Lisa Rosenstein, Skeeter Scheid, Heather Schmaedeke, Hillary Sloate, Kenya Rene Smith, Constance Springer Zabowski, Neil Leon Stavely, Erika Stone, Henrik Sundqvist, Roy Utley, and Alexandra Zealand.

Del Ray Halloween Parade Is Oct. 25

Families and parade enthusiasts will not want to miss the 13th Annual Del Ray Halloween Parade scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 25 at 2 p.m. Last year, more than 5,000 participated in this annual event which included over 2,000 children, local dignitaries and elected officials; over 50 pets in Halloween costumes; and 25 decorated strollers.

The parade will begin at 2 p.m. at Mt. Vernon Avenue, south of E. Bellefonte and continue down to the Mount Vernon Recreational Center play fields at Mt. Vernon and Commonwealth Avenues. Children, pets, and strollers in costumes are invited to march and show off their finest and scariest Halloween garb. To register your stroller, look for the registration desk at Bellefonte and Mt. Vernon Avenues beginning at 1:30 p.m. Pet registration begins at 1:30 p.m. at Barkley Square at 2006 Mt. Vernon Avenue.

This year's parade will feature awards for the Best Pet Costume, Best Decorated Business, Best Decorated Home, and Best Decorated Stroller. Judges include local city and community officials, past and present. Awards will be given out at a brief ceremony at Mt. Vernon and Commonwealth Avenues following the parade, along with refreshments (hot dogs donated by 7-Eleven, cider, and cookies) and goodie bags for the children. Entertainment will be provided by Legend of Lummy Hallin, and again this year, thanks to the Alexandria Jaycees and DC Metro Church there will be games and activities for the children. They will take place at the Mt. Vernon fields immediately following the parade. All activities are free.

For the fifth year, Halloween costumes will be collected and distributed for children who would otherwise have to go without. Donated costumes can be dropped off at the Caboose Cafe, 2419 Mt. Vernon Avenue and A Show of Hands, 2204 Mt. Vernon Avenue. They will be distributed on Saturday, Oct. 25, from 2-4 p.m. at the Mount Vernon Recreation Center.

After the parade, beginning at 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m., for the third year, families can enjoy a haunted graveyard that is being constructed by Bean Creative and will be located next to their lot at Mt.

Vernon and E. Del Ray Avenue.° It is definitely a must-do Del Ray tradition.

The parade is sponsored by the Del Ray Business Association (DRBA). Finally, if you would like to help stuff 2,500 goodie bags, join your neighbors on Saturday, Oct. 24, at 2 p.m. at the Mount Vernon Recreation Center.

West Potomac's Mathewson Returns from Knee Injury

Wolverines have dropped five straight games after winning season opener.

BY JON ROETMAN
THE GAZETTE

The return of quarterback Colin Mathewson from injury is good news in an otherwise disappointing season for the West Potomac football team.

Mathewson was back on the practice field Monday, more than three weeks after spraining the medial collateral ligament in his left knee against Chantilly. The Wolverines were 0-3 in his absence, producing a total of 42 points.

"He knows the offense best," head coach Eric Henderson said. "He came in [Tuesday] and threw the ball all over the place. He was able to deliver it on time, the receivers are in sync with him, he worked with everybody over the summer and the spring. "It's nice to have your starter back."

Mathewson returns in time to face Robert E. Lee (5-1), which lost its first game of the season last weekend against Lake Braddock. The senior said watching from the sideline has had its ups and downs.

"I [got] a different perspective of the game," Mathewson said. "I [got] the perspective as a coach, basically. It helped a lot. [Tuesday] was probably the best practice I had all year.

"It's tough at the end of the game when I just wanted to get out there and bring the team back and win the game, but there's nothing I can do. It's hard just standing there, watching it all happen."

antee success for the Wolverines. Even when Mathewson was healthy, the offense was inconsistent. West Potomac scored a season-high 42 points in its opener against Mount Vernon, but followed with 14 against Westfield. West Potomac scored seven points against Chantilly, the game Mathewson was hurt.

Still, the numbers Mathewson posted in the first two games of the season should provide hope to the 1-5 Wolverines. He completed 17 of 28 passes for 295 yards and four touchdowns against Mount Vernon. He was 16 of 30 for 191 yards and two touchdowns, while throwing one interception against Westfield.

The senior was 3 of 10 for 25 yards before leaving the Chantilly game.

Mathewson is one of several key Wolverine players to suffer an injury this season.

West Potomac has been without standout receiver Will Rosenkranz for the whole year after he suffered a knee injury during a scrimmage. The injury situation came to a head at the quarterback situation last week during the Wolverines' 42-7 loss to Woodson.

Nik Dimitrijevic, who took over when Mathewson hurt his knee, tore muscles in the thumb on his throwing (right) hand early in the Woodson game. Adding to the bad news for West Potomac, the third-string quarterback was suspended and the fourth-stringer was out with a concussion.

Henderson used receiver Shawn Lee at quarterback for the remainder of the first half before turning to sophomore Charles Ruiz.

"I've never seen anything like this season,"

Henderson said. "We must have had a dozen concussions, broken thumbs, ribs, hips; people are just dropping like flies. ... [Dimitrijevic] couldn't control the ball [after his thumb injury]. We're a throwing offense. If the quarterback can't control the ball, that kind of destroys it."

Henderson said Ruiz suffered a concussion earlier in the season.

"I didn't want to throw him in at the second quarter and just say, 'Try and win the game,'" Henderson said. "I just wanted to get him mentally prepared. We used Shawn as a spot quarterback. ... Who expects to work on their fifth-string quarterback? That's not an excuse, kids have to perform. You've got to start changing things and doing things that the kids can handle instead of going with your plan. You've got to adjust on the fly.

"It's been a wild, wild year."

ON THE DEFENSIVE SIDE, sophomore Kofi Adom will make his first start at linebacker. He, along with the other members of the Wolverine defense, will face a tough task in trying to slow down Lee running back Idreis Augustus, who is considered one of the best backs in the region.

Henderson said other young players are starting to make an impact for the Wolverines.

"I'm not saying we're de-emphasizing the seniors, it's just that younger kids are starting to step up and assert themselves and that's good," the coach said. "You need that competition. You don't want complacent kids on a 1-5 team."

While the postseason is likely out of reach for the Wolverines, Henderson is looking for improvement — something the return of Mathewson should help.

"I think our goals are to re-establish ourselves," the coach said, "to try to get back to where we were at the beginning of the season — playing well, playing confident."

ADOPT CAMEL!

The sweetest dog – playful, friendly, and very affectionate. Abused and starved for several years before our rescue took her in, Cara is about six years old, housetrained, very obedient, and has passed her AKC Canine Good Citizen Test. Caramel is animal-aggressive, but has improved and is very manageable. She loves going on walks, meeting new people, playing, & taking naps. Interested in adopting Caramel or have questions? Please contact her foster mom, Juliana, at 410.409.1683 or email julianapwk@yahoo.com.
