Mother, Daughter Team as Authors

Their dogs proved inspiring.

From scouting out good properties to scouting out good publishers, real estate agent turned author Sharon Combs' children's book, "Puppy Pen Pals" finally has reached the public.

Tate Publishing and Enterprises released the book to bookstores nationwide the week of Oct. 13. In addition, it can also be purchased online at barnesandnoble.com, amazon.com or target.com.

Or it can be ordered through the publisher at www.tatepublishing.com/bookstore.

The pair plans to do another book for next Christmas.

Combs, an Ashburn resident, co-wrote the book with her daughter Terri Silveira who lives in Sunnydale, Calif. They pieced together the book through long and numerous telephone conversations.

As one might guess, their dogs provided the inspiration.

"She just got a puppy and I had one that was a year and half. Then, I decided that I would have my dog write her dog a letter to welcome him into the family. We just kept going back and forth and finally we decided that it would be fun to put it in book form for children." Combs said.

Trump outlines synergy with Loudoun.

BY MARTIN CASEY
THE CONNECTION

Eric F. Trump, executive vice president of development and acquisitions for Donald J. Trump's organization, returned Monday to host members of the Loudoun County Chamber of Commerce and to talk about the synergy between his organization's interests and those of the county and its business interests.

He and his father announced last April 30 their organization's purchase of the former Lowes Island Country Club in Cascades. At the time, they also announced how they planned to expand the facility.

Much of that expansion was visibly underway Monday — most notably installation of a new, large fountain in front of the club's main building entrance. The fountain was expected to be operating by next week.

The club sits on more than 500 acres of land along the Potomac River.

Trump told Chamber members Monday that the question most frequently asked of him is, "Why Loudoun County?" To which he gave the real estate answer: "Location, location, location." It is not easy to find 500 acres along the Potomac River just 30 miles from Washington, D.C.

"Washington continues to grow," said Trump, "and it's growing in this direction." He also noted that Loudoun County has the highest median household income, which bodes well for his new club's membership.

Foreclosure Rate Declines

BY MARTIN CASEY
THE CONNECTION

The number of real estate foreclosures filed in the Loudoun County Courthouse this year has dropped significantly since last year's spike, another sign of recovery in the local real estate market, and a possible indicator of economic improvement overall.

Clerk of Court Gary Clemens reported 1,230 home foreclosures this year through October. Last year was the peak year for local foreclosures, with 2,249 filings dur

The Leesburg National Guard unit, which traces its heritage to the town's Colonial Militia, was honored, along with all U.S. military veterans, last week with a ceremony on the grounds of Dodona Manor, the former home of Gen. George C. Marshall who was known especially for the post-World War II recovery program that bore his name: The Marshall Plan.

Leesburg's 3rd Battalion, 116th Infantry Regiment of the Virginia National Guard is also known as "The Stonewall Brigade" for its Civil War action at the first Battle of Bull Run when Gen. Robert E. Lee, observing the unit led by Gen. Thomas Jackson, commented, "Look at Jackson standing there like a stone wall." Jackson was known since then as "Stonewall" Jackson and the unit is part of the heritage of the 3rd Battalion.

The unit saw action in France during World War I and was the only National Guard unit at Normandy Invasion in World War II.

Brigadier General Theodore G. Shuey, a former commander of the unit who has written a book about the historic unit, told those gathered on Veterans Day last week that Gen. Marshall, before the Normandy invasion, thought it was important to demonstrate to Adolf Hitler that the American homefront was solidly behind the invasion. To do so, the guard unit was activated and placed in a leading position for the attack.

Since then, the unit has served in Bosnia in 1997, was deployed to Afghanistan in 2004, and to Kuwait and Iraq in 2007.

Among the Veterans Day speakers at Dodona Manor was U.S. Rep. Frank Wolf, Virginia's senior member of the U.S. House of Representatives, who noted it was appropriate to recognize veterans at Marshall's home for 18 years, observing also that President Truman had called Marshall "the greatest military man America ever produced."

Wolf also noted that the day honors "countless other American veterans forever — among them the brave men and women who just days ago were victims of a horrific domestic terrorist attack at

Hard Times, Hard Budget

Cut services, raise tax rate, or both.

BY MARTIN CASEY

County supervisors, with last year's difficult budget process in mind, have started earlier on the new budget, yet all appear to expect even more difficult budget choices this year.

That's because more students keep showing up to attend Loudoun schools each year regardless of economic conditions.

Fairfax schools reportedly have begun to show some easing in school attendance, but not so in Loudoun where 59,490 students were counted at the start of school this year, compared to 57,009 last year.

Yet, taxpayers are still going through a period of lower home values, job losses and pinched family budgets.

A revitalized economy is not expected to show up before the county must set a tax rate for fiscal 2011.

The push and pull was already evident last week between those defending funding for schools and taxpayers bitter about a budget in which schools traditionally get 70 percent of the tax dollar.

At a meeting of homeowner association board members in Sugarland Run, residents urged that Supervisor Susan Buckley vote to cut the school budget this go-round in order to keep real estate taxes down.

"We don't need to spend that much on schools," said one man, who was quickly joined by another during the comment period. But these comments were quickly rebutted by younger residents who had children in public schools.

AT LAST THURSDAY'S joint meeting of supervisors and School Board members, Susan Sullivan, president of the Loudoun Education Association, with more than 3,300 member ton," said Trump, "and that's good for Loudoun," he added, as businesses moving to the Washington area look for land and office space next to homes and near Dulles International Airport.

The Trumps are already at work to make the club's main golf course fully competitive with the courses now on the Professional Golf Association tour.

"We'll have the best [golf] course in the country," Trump promised Chamber members Monday.

The new "Trump National Golf Club, Washington, D.C.," as the senior Trump re-named the club upon its purchase, has two golf courses, three tennis courts under a rubberized roof, plus a formal dining room, a grill and a fitness center.

Expansion plans include lengthening fairways on the main golf course by 700 yards, replacing the tennis facility with six courts outside and six more courts inside a new permanent building, and expanding the main club toward the Potomac River to make room for a larger dining room, a larger grill, and a larger fitness center.

Workmen could be seen at work on the riverfront patio even as the Chamber meeting continued in the dining room.

Trump said that the new club will also serve "as a buffer on the Potomac River" and help the environment. Pointing overhead to six new chandeliers installed over the weekend, he noted as an example of his company's concern for the environment that the chandeliers all use low energy-consuming bulbs.

"Concern for the environment is a factor in all of the renovations at the club," Trump said.

Returning to his company's business interest in Loudoun, Trump reminded Chamber members that he needs members and general support for his club and the events he expects to host there, just as the county benefits from the attractions that his refurbished facility will soon attract.

He also noted that "although patriotic Americans can disagree about particular calls to arms, the honor of those who have put on the uniform on our nation's behalf should never be questioned. Many have given their lives because they believed in the basic goodness of their nation and the dream it embodied."

"I thank all veterans, past and present, for their service," Wolf concluded.

The program concluded with the laying of a wreath in honor of all of the nation's military veterans.

Clemens reported only 12 foreclosures filed in all of 2005. An apparent spike in 2006 to 139 foreclosures, which drew concern at the time, looked pale by 2007 when foreclosures jumped to 1,215 — but then nearly doubled in 2008 to 2,249.

January was the only month this year to show an increase compared to 2008 figures, jumping to 114 foreclosures from last January's 39 — but January 2009, also was a significant improvement over the previous December 2008 count of 176 foreclosures filed.

Since January of this year, each monthly foreclosures count has been significantly lower than for the same month in 2008.

The highest number of foreclosure filings during any month on record was 279 in July of last year.

In October this year, Clemens saw only 118 foreclosure filings, compared with 142 in September this year, and 226 in October of last year.

New Bus Service to Tysons Approved

Loudoun County will launch a new express bus service to employment sites in Tysons Corner next fall as part of a plan to reduce vehicle congestion in Tysons during the most disruptive period of construction of the Dulles Metrorail.

The Loudoun County Board of Supervisors voted to accept Dulles Corridor Metrorail Transportation Management funds for the temporary service, which is scheduled to run from September 2010 through the end of 2013.

The funds will cover operation of the express bus service, including the purchase of four commuter coaches that will operate between two lots in Loudoun and various stops at employment sites in Tysons Corner.

The Loudoun County Office of Transportation Services plans to hold public meetings and conduct other community outreach efforts early next year to solicit input from potential bus riders related to possible routes and schedules.

More information about the new service will be posted as it becomes available on the Loudoun County Web site at www.loudoun.gov/bus.

Toughest Budget Yet

school teachers and other school employees, said: "A flat budget for the upcoming year endangers the outstanding quality of Loudoun's schools," adding that such a budget "puts jobs on the line even as LCPS prepares to welcome and educate more than 3,000 new students."

"Directing the creation of a school budget with a 5 percent reduction from current funding levels surely will cut deeply into our school programs, our employee base and directly impact our students," Sullivan said.

At the same time, supervisors are concerned about overcrowding in Loudoun Schools.

With Stone Bridge High School the county's most severely crowded school, Broad Run Supervisor Lori Waters in recent weeks has led an effort to secure early construction of a new high school in Ashburn on the north side of the Greenway. And to jump start the construction, she has pushed to build the new school on a 100-acre site that the county already owns. The site, along the south side of Farmwell Road, however has been designated in county planning for a new Monroe VoTech facility and commercial construction. The site may be large enough for the two schools if commercial uses are passed up.

MEANWHILE, Supervisors Chairman Scott York reported that if this year's budget is expanded to serve the additional number of students, additional debt service payments for capital construction, and factor in the drop in real-estate values and expected reductions in state funds to the county, "the tax rate would need to be increased from [the current] $1.245 to $1.458." He added that the result would be a $156.8 million shortfall in the new budget.

He said the board has instructed its budget office to produce:

- ❖ A budget that maintains funding at current fiscal 2010 levels, which would equate to a tax rate on homeowners of $1.30 per $100 of assessed value because home values are down from last year; and

- ❖ A budget that increases funding levels by 5 percent over the FY10 budget, which would equate to a tax rate of $1.37.

In either case, supervisors would need to make up the $156.8 million shortfall in the new budget.

This could be done, York said, by:

- ❖ raising the tax rate to $1.458, which would increase the average tax bill by about 10 percent;
- ❖ cutting the budget by the $156.8 million, or
- ❖ a combination of budget cuts and tax rate increases.

He urged residents to let supervisors know what they need in the new budget, from listing programs most urgent to suggesting a most optimal tax rate.

Residents may e-mail all supervisors at bos@loudoun.gov; write to Loudoun County Board of Supervisors, 1 Harrison St., SE, Fifth Floor, P.O. Box 7000, Mailstop #01, Leesburg, VA 20177-7000, or call the "comment line" at 703-777-0115. Residents may also sign up to speak at public hearings held on the Monday following the first Tuesday of each month, starting at 6:30 p.m. Additional public hearings will be announced. "I do acting emotions, one sad, one happy," she said.

Her mom said she can continue to pursue the entertainment field providing it doesn't take over young Julia's life.

"As long as she's having fun, I will support it and it doesn't interfere with school," Meryl Ferrara said. "So far, she's been able to balance it."

Julia's dad, Tom, is equally proud of his young thespian.

ACTING ISN'T the only thing demanding Julia's time. The youngster also plays soccer and basketball as well as likes singing and tumbling. Sometimes she has to miss soccer or basketball practice due to her acting, but she still finds time to hang out with her friends and be just an 8-year-old.

"When I'm at school, I talk about normal things," she said.

Some of her friends plan to make the trip to Washington, D.C., to see her perform. They have also gotten to see her previous work. Julia typically receives a disk of the commercials she's been in.

After the last curtain call, Julia is looking forward to doing more television shows and hopes to get a part in "long movies." But she would be happy to do more stage work.

"I like doing stage, I'd do either one," she said.

To date, besides the Marriott ad where she got to lay in bed and eat ice cream, the play is her favorite job.

"The cast members are really nice. The cast say good job Julia," she said. "I'm the youngest. I like being the youngest."

"Julia is a very talented young actress and it has been a pleasure to work with her. She is professional, she has a great smile and she's going to be very good in this play," Alan Paul, the production's assistant director, wrote in an e-mail. "We all love watching her."

He wrote Julia was chosen because of her stage presence and energy. "When we saw her at the audition, we knew that the audience would fall in love with her," he wrote.

Julia, who is slated to play two roles, shares the part with another young actress, McKennah Edmunds, also from Virginia. The pair will take turns, each doing an equal number of performances be-

Rise in Child Deaths Requires Volunteer Action

To the Editor:

A new report by the advocacy group Every Child Matters focused on the disturbing rise of child deaths in the United States due to maltreatment. Local reports earlier in the year also pointed to an increase in family violence across Northern Virginia as well.

What readers need to know is that the majority of children who die from maltreatment had no prior contact with child protective services. We need to understand that each one of us is responsible for the children in our community — not just child protective services — and that we each have the power to prevent these tragedies.

Another grim statistic? Over 75 percent of the children who die from maltreatment are under the

Make Loudoun a 'Community that Cares'

To the Editor

The national economic downturn has affected every region of the United States; some far more severely than others. Loudoun County, too, has felt a tremendous impact with many job losses and with increased foreclosures. Many more residents are struggling to get by in ways they had not imagined just a short time ago.

The citizens of Loudoun County have shown many times before that we can come together as a united community, willing to step forward in times of national emergency and to assist with disaster relief. After September 11th, Hurricane Katrina and the Indian Ocean tsunami our citizens made it clear that we are a community that cares.

Traditionally, we gather to celebrate the holiday season with our families and friends and to count our blessings. But this year, many in our county will have fewer blessings to count as they struggle to provide the basic necessities for their families.

This year the Loudoun County Board of Supervisors asks all Loudoun's citizens to reach out to our neighbors who find themselves in difficult circumstances.

Let's make the 2009 holiday season a year in which we help one another.

Our county has very good resources available for citizens who would like to offer a helping hand during this holiday season. Please see the special link on the County's Web site, "A Community that Cares," at: www.loudoun.gov and follow to the volunteer and donation opportunities list. Some of our local non-profits are looking for volunteers; some have specific requests for food, clothes, toys or building materials. Some non-profits would be grateful for a monetary donation.

You can choose to volunteer with one of our non-profit agencies or to donate much-needed food, toys or household items. We know that you will make a difference for someone you may not know and help make Loudoun a better place through your kindness. Thank you.

Saying Thanks

Ashby Ponds honors its veterans and remembers the fallen.

THE CONNECTION

Frank Thomas, a former Marine and resident at Ashby Ponds, began planning the retirement community's Veterans Day Program and Memorial Service last January and soon realized it would be a large task. So he did what any good Marine would do, called on his fellow brothers in arms to help. Thomas recruited his friends, also veterans, and together they discovered Ashby Ponds was home to 124 veterans from all five branches of the armed services representing World War II, the Korean War and the Vietnam War. The planning committee collected photographs from each vet, along with years served and the military branch, and created a slide show which opened the program Nov. 11. In addition, the planning committee arranged a breakfast the day before for a number of current Marines and their spouses Nov. 10 was the U.S. Marine Corps'

234th birthday and Saturday's movie night featured the Navy-themed comedy "Mr. Roberts."

Thomas said Veterans Day is a time to honor those who serve and remember those who sacrificed everything.

"It's all that served their country, past and present," Thomas said. "I'm a survivor of the Chosin Reservoir Battle [Korea, 1950]. I was lucky to survive it and my story is not unique at all."

AL BEYER, a retired Army colonel, agreed to serve as master of ceremonies. He and his wife moved to Ashby Ponds in September, too late to help with the planning, but he still wanted to be a part of the program.

"The price of freedom is high and we cannot forget those willing to pay it."

"I think all veterans are proud of our service and I wanted to contribute," Beyer said.

The program attracted a standing-room-only crowd at the community with many of the resident veterans in attendance. Beyer said he doesn't think anyone who hasn't served, or been a family member of someone who has, truly understands the sacrifice and commitment of our nation's military personnel. He said celebrating Veterans Day is a way for others to gain a greater perspective and understanding of what it takes to keep our nation free.

After reading from a Department of Defense tribute and words from the Vietnam Memorial, Beyer told the crowd, "Today it is our privilege to say thank you. The price of freedom is high and we cannot forget those willing to pay it."

Underscoring Beyer's words was guest speaker Air Force Col. Brian Newberry who told the crowd stories about the acts of bravery and courage of specific Virginian soldiers from each conflict since World War I along with the total number of servicemen and women who died in each conflict. The stories served to put a face on what it means to serve and to sacrifice.

"Liberty is not free," Newberry said. "I am heartened by the resilience I see from our military today."

"I feel honored to be a part of a rich history"

While the writing process wasn't a headache for the novice author and her daughter, shopping around for a publisher was a challenge.

"It's time consuming. It takes time for people to get back to you after you've sent them your transcript. We found it hard to find a publishing company that would do it the way we wanted it done." She said.

Bulldogs Burst into Playoff Mode

Stone Bridge's quarterfinals football win over South Lakes sets up rematch encounter with Madison.

BY E. DENIS EATON
SPECIAL TO THE CONNECTION

In a first round game of the Northern Region Div. 5 football playoffs last Friday night, the Stone Bridge Bulldogs and South Lakes Seahawks were meeting for the second time in as many weeks.

On Nov. 6 — in both teams' regular season finale — the teams had played in Ashburn, and the Bulldogs had walked off with a 45-22 win. Then, this past Friday night in the postseason meeting, Stone Bridge got the better of it again, defeating the Seahawks in the playoff affair, 28-7.

Rainy weather conditions forced a change in venue as both teams traveled to Jimmie Miller Stadium at Marshall High School in Falls Church to play the game on artificial turf.

From the opening kickoff, the Bulldogs were able to set the pace for the game, as they executed a 17-play, 85-yard drive that consumed 8 minutes, 20 seconds and ended with a three-yard touchdown run by Marcus Harris.

"They were just better than we were up front," said South Lakes coach John Ellenberger. "It seemed they ran the same [running] play 10 times [on the opening drive]. We just couldn't stop them. I think they're as good as we've seen."

The Seahawks then went three-and-out and punted, and the Bulldogs started to march down the field again. However, Stone Bridge fumbled the ball away and gave the Seahawks good field position at their 45. A procedure penalty moved the ball back to the 40, but South Lakes was able to cover the 60 yards to the end zone on just three plays, the last of which was a 15-yard scoring run by Ja'Juan Jones on the second play of the second period to tie the score at 7.

Back came the Bulldogs. They moved 60 yards on seven plays, the most critical of which was a pass from quarterback Brian Rody to Michael Kajut that the receiver turned into a 42-yard gain. The Bulldogs regained the lead on a seven-yard pass from Rody to Taylor Lambke.

The teams exchanged punts for the remainder of the period, and the Bulldogs went into halftime leading 14-7, not unlike the 17-7 lead they had held in the previous meeting.

The Seahawks were unable to gain a first down in the third quarter, while the Bulldogs scored twice to essentially put the game away. Harris capped an 8-play, 64-yard drive with a seven-yard run for his second TD of the evening and 20th of the season. On its next possession, Stone Bridge was forced to punt, but the Seahawk punt returner fumbled the ball right back to the Bulldogs, giving them the ball on the Seahawk 25. The Bulldogs took advantage of the opportunity and covered the 25 yards on five plays, with Kyle Gouveia scoring from the three-yard line to put Stone Bridge up, 28-7.

In the fourth quarter, the Bulldogs returned the favor to South Lakes and fumbled away a punt, giving the Seahawks new life on the Stone Bridge 33. They moved the ball to the eight-yard line, but the Bulldog defense held and the Seahawks turned the ball over on downs on the Stone Bridge 10. The Bulldogs retained possession for the last 6:23 of the game; Rody, Harris, and Gouveia gave way to freshmen Ryan Burns and Sean Rankin-Bell, and the Bulldogs moved the ball all the way to the Seahawk 31 before time expired.

The fact that the Bulldogs controlled the pace of the game was evidenced by time of possession — the Bulldogs held a 31:14-to-16:46 advantage over the Seahawks. South Lakes managed just 123 yards of total offense against the Stone Bridge defense, and half of that yardage came on its only scoring drive of the evening. In the second half, the Seahawks were held to just 23 yards of offense.

The win was Stone Bridge's 10th of 2009. (The Bulldogs have won at least 10 games each season since 2002). It also set up a return meeting between Stone Bridge and the only team it lost to during the regular season — Madison High, a 31-10 first round playoff winner over the Edison Eagles last week.

GAME NOTES:

On Oct. 30, Stone Bridge defeated McLean High, 38-21. Few realized the win was the 100th victory in the 10-year history of Stone Bridge varsity football. Including this season, Stone Bridge has played 123 games, and has won 102 of them, for a winning percentage of .828. Stone Bridge is averaging over 10 wins per year.

The Bulldogs passed several other milestones in last week's playoff win. In its varsity history to date, Stone Bridge has amassed 30,131 rushing yards and 45,279 yards of total offense, which averages out to over 3,000 rushing yards and 4,500 total offensive yards per season.

Last week's game at Marshall marked the fourth time in which Stone Bridge has played a game at a neutral site. Two of the other games — versus Hampton in 2005 (a 15-8 loss) and versus Potomac in 2007 (a 38-0 win) — came in state AAA championship games, in Newport News and at the University of Virginia, respectively. The third game was a Stone Bridge regular season game versus Park View on Oct. 20, 2002 that was moved from Ashburn to Clarke County High in Berryville due to the D.C. sniper situation. Stone Bridge lost to Park View in that game, 34-21.

The Stone Bridge High girls' volleyball team, under head coach Jill Raschiatore, enjoyed an outstanding fall season, capturing the Liberty District crown before advancing all the way to the Northern Region semifinals. The Bulldogs, who lost their region semis match to South County last Thursday, finished with an overall record of 23-2. During the postseason, Stone Bridge went 5-1. District tournament wins came over South Lakes, Fairfax and Langley in the finals. Then, at regionals, the Bulldogs were victorious over Lake Braddock and Herndon.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Former Olympian gymnast Kerri Strug, who captured the heart of the U.S. at the 1996 Summer Olympics (Atlanta) with a one-legged landing on vault that solidified the USA teams winning of the Gold, was in Sterling last week. Strug stopped by NVGA Gymnastics, where she has been visiting regularly, to share her gymnastics knowledge and to work with the NVGA program's competitive gymnasts.

Strug, at the '96 Olympics, competed with six other American gymnasts, including Shannon Miller and Dominique Moceanu, under the direction of head coaches Marta and Bela Karolyi. The team, often called the Magnificent Seven, struggled against the Russian team to win the all-around gold medal. On the last day of team competition Strug needed a high score on vault in order for the American team to win. On her first attempt, she severely hurt her ankle, causing many spectators to fear she could not complete a second attempt. Despite the injury, Strug went on to complete her second attempt, scoring a 9.7 and winning the gold medal for the Americans.

The tour consists of nationally-ranked junior golf events in Suburban Maryland and Northern Virginia during a split fall/spring season. Several local players are among the points leaders in various divisions. Jackson Lizardo of Fairfax (Oakton) and Chas Bassing of Great Falls (The Heights School) currently sit in second place in their respective age divisions. In the boys' 10-12 division, Nathan Chuwait of Herndon is the points leader. Among girls, Nicole Flores of Ashburn (Briar Woods High) leads in the 13-15 age division, and Amber Liu of Vienna leads the 10-12 year-olds.

The 13-under Loudoun South Eagles are seeking interested players to fill rosters for its rising 13U team for the 2009 fall season. A make-up tryout date is Nov. 22 at 1 at Diamond Elite in Sterling. For more information contact: lisapresgrave@comcast.net or Duane Presgrave at 703-508-3008.

A Big Shot I'm Not

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

I would have thought – or expected, that after nearly eight months since I received my cancer diagnosis and six months since I've been column-writing my thoughts on the subject, that I would (perhaps even, should) be able to actually talk about it. And in talk about it, I mean, actually say the word cancer out loud in response to a friendly inquiry about my appearance, my hair (or lack thereof), my water-drinking, my diet, my work schedule, etc. But I can't, apparently, at least not without a lot of stammering and stuttering, and hemming and hawing, anyway.

And here I thought I was so well-adjusted, so comfortable in my cancer-affected skin; Mr. Positive, Mr. What-A-Great-Attitude, Mr. I-Can-Handle-This, that a simple question asking the obvious wouldn't illicit such a verbal vacuum. I know silence is supposed to be golden, but this silence seems so awkward, so inappropriate, sort of, that I find myself trying, occasionally, to avoid the conversation/situation altogether. Sometimes it feels better to be simply left alone with my own unspoken thoughts rather than struggling to express them in public to a sincerely interested person but one who is not, quite frankly, someone who my life is not dependent upon (the kindness of others notwithstanding).

And not that my life is dependent upon anyone right now, thank God! And not that cancer patients in general, or anyone with serious medical issues, are not dependent in some way on said kindness and queries – and prayers of others, because I've certainly come to realize that we are. Moreover, it's not that I'm a private person fearful of the invasion of that privacy. Hardly. I'm comfortable writing about it (obviously) and comfortable having people know about it. But in the past few weeks, social situations have presented themselves that have made it clear that I'm not nearly as comfortable talking about it as my writing would have lead me to believe.

I don't think I'm in denial; I think I'm in reality. Heck, when they stick a needle in your arm every three weeks for chemotherapy and every week for lab work, there's not a minute (make that second) that goes by when you're not keenly aware that you're "Not in Kansas anymore," unless of course, you're a cancer patient who actually lives in Kansas. I know exactly where I am, what I'm doing and more importantly, why I'm doing it. I don't know the outcome, yet. However, if I were to guess as to why my words are more easily written than they are spoken, I would bet that not knowing my future may be the cause of some of the verbal problems I'm having in the present.

It's that uncertainty that ties my tongue, I believe. And in recounting various conversations I've had with my oncologist, my oncology nurse and miscellaneous other health care professionals with whom I interact (and who know my diagnosis), my prognosis is so interdependent on variables impossible even to predict and/or anticipate that receiving a definitive assessment/scenario/future summarizing them and in turn comforting me, is unrealistic, apparently.

Therefore, when I ask the existential question, "What does it all mean, doctor?" the answer I usually receive is unsatisfactory. But at least I'm alive to ask it (and to hear the answer, too).

For a stage IV lung cancer patient that may be as good as it gets.

to share. Her grandfather and father both are veterans, and she grew up listening to the "no scary" stories her grandfather had to tell and coped with the two years her father was absent due to his service. "I want to say a very large thank you to all those who served and for the sacrifice of those who stayed home and kept things going," she said. "What we have to learn as a society is to remember and give thanks."

Julia Ferguson leads the Ashby Ponds Songbirds in tribute to the armed forces during the community's Veterans Day Program and Memorial Service, Nov. 11.

Wings-on Learning

Some children at The Boyd School raised five Painted Lady butterflies while learning all about metamorphosis. The children saw the caterpillars' transition as they matured, changed into chrysalides, and finally emerged as Painted Lady butterflies. The butterflies' development took three weeks and were released into the environment. The Boyd School Broadlands Campus is currently enrolling for the 2010-11 school year.
