The county is trying to limit taxes on Potomac Vegetable Farms, one of the few remaining farms within its borders.

County, Neighbors Support Farm

Just 4 miles from the congestion and bustle of Tysons Corner is a 40-year-old farm that cultivates about 26 acres of land on the south side of Leesburg Pike, one of the last true farms in Fairfax County. The problem is that not all the land that comprises Potomac Vegetable Farms in Vienna is contiguous.

For about two years, the county's Board of Supervisors has been looking for a way to include a 5-acre plot of the farm in the agricultural and forestal district that protects the rest of the farm from the sort of property taxes paid by other landowners in the area. The board is now enlisting the help of the area's state legislators.

"The purpose of A and F [agricultural and forestal] districts is to help large landowners who really don't want to develop their property," said Supervisor John Foust (D-Dranesville), in whose district the farm lies.

Potomac Vegetable Farms also owns about 180 acres in Loudoun County.

AT ISSUE are 5 acres of land that are now separated from the rest of the farm by a development under construction and are no longer being taxed as part of the farm. An agricultural district must be at least 20 acres in size, so the smaller parcel can't stand alone as its own district.

According to Hiu Newcomb, the farm's owner, the 5-acre plot that comprises her most fertile fields was never contiguous with the rest of the farm but was included in its agricultural district due to a mistake in the county's zoning ordinance. However, the state's ordinance requires the land in an agricultural district to be contiguous.

"It's a totally integral part of our farm even though it's not contiguous," Newcomb said. She said the 40-acre Moutoux Orchard had always separated the plot from the rest of the farm, and the county had realized in the mid-1990s that the land technically shouldn't be included in the district. But, she said, the county had "turned a blind eye" to the discrepancy until Moutoux Orchard was sold two years ago and houses started to be built on the property, making the division obvious.

The difference in property taxes, depending on the smaller parcel's designation, is about $3,000, Newcomb said. While it wasn't a matter of life and death for the farm, she said, "It takes a lot of tomatoes to make up the extra $3,000."

"It takes a lot of tomatoes to make up the extra $3,000."

— Hiu Newcomb, Potomac Vegetable Farms owner

"It didn't come to a head until the public hearing, which was a couple of weeks ago," Foust said. That was when the agricultural district came up for renewal. The county had been looking for ways to circumvent the state code, but "the attorneys were adamant that in the end we couldn't do it," Foust said. He said State Sen. Janet Howell (D-32) was submitting a bill in the General Assembly to have the state code changed.

"Once it becomes possible, the board will make it happen," he said, adding that neighbors supported the measure because they wanted the land protected from development "and just really want to see some local agriculture preserved in Fairfax County."

THE FARM is also familiar to many because it frequently is the destination of class field trips, Newcomb said. She said she would continue to farm the detached parcel regardless of its designation, "but it's an opportunity for the county to recognize that this is one of the few legitimate remaining agricultural activities" in the area.

McLean High Madrigals Ring In Holiday Season

The McLean High School Madrigals helped ring in the holiday season with a performance for preschoolers at McLean's Redeemer Lutheran Church. Under the direction of Linda Martin, the 16-member choir sang a medley of seasonal songs as well as some other favorites. This performance has become an annual event for the Madrigals, who make regular appearances throughout Northern Virginia during the school year.

OPINION

Happy Holidays

A time to reflect, a time to share.

For the observant of any faith, and even for the more secular among us, the close of the year brings ritual, magic, reflection and hope.

In events around the area, a sense of community has infused holiday parades, Christmas tree lightings, menorah lightings, choral performances, singing of carols, and other traditional events with warmth and joy.

In Great Falls, it was the 19th lighting of the Christmas tree, with holiday songs by the Langley Madrigals. In Reston, Santa arrived by boat across Lake Anne in a snow squall. In Alexandria, the Scottish Christmas Walk announced the beginning of the season despite the wet snow. In Clifton, the Christmas spirit was celebrated in a candlelight homes tour, among other events. In Fairfax, one congregation built a 7-foot-tall menorah out of Legos.

And in every community, volunteers have come together to provide food, clothing and some holiday cheer for the needy.

2009 has been a challenging year for many families, businesses, schools, charitable organizations. As the year comes to an end, we can count our blessings. Here in the Washington suburbs most of us have been spared the intense difficulties of the economic downtown. We'll all likely to welcome 2010 with optimism and relief.

EDITORIAL

Next week between Christmas and New Years, look for our annual Children's Connection, when we turn our entire paper over to the contributions of area students — artwork of many kinds, poetry and other writing. Our next regular edition will come out the week of Jan. 4, 2010.

From the all the staff here, we wish you a merry Christmas, a happy Hanukkah, joyful holidays and a wonderful beginning to the New Year.

Give Locally

Remember that more local families are in need right now than ever before; thankfully, most of us are in a position to help. It's not too late to brighten the holidays for a needy family as many organizations are reporting record demand for holiday meals and help with providing children at least one present. The need will continue into the New Year as well.

Upbeat Look at Business in 2009

Economic Development Authority has worked with companies to add 4,000 jobs to local economy.

BY GERALD L. GORDON

As 2009 draws to a close, it will be remembered as an especially significant year for Fairfax County's economy and for those who live and work here. And, the successes achieved this year will position the county and its residents well during the economic recovery and beyond.

The national unemployment rate topped 10 percent this year, and in many communities it is much higher. Job creation in many locations is non-existent. Meanwhile, in Fairfax County, we will end the year with about a 4.5 percent unemployment rate. My office has worked with dozens of companies that have added or will add more than 4,000 jobs to the economy. Decisions by Science Applications International Corporation (SAIC), Hilton Worldwide and The Ignite Institute to locate their corporate headquarters in Fairfax County are especially noteworthy.

Individually, each of these new headquarters operations would be leaders in any business community. Adding another Fortune 500 headquarters — SAIC is the county's seventh — is a tremendous achievement. Hilton, perhaps the world's best-known hotel brand, and Ignite, a non-profit that is pioneering the field of personalized medicine, bring important new diversity to our economic base and business community. The same can be said of the 2007 addition of the headquarters operation of Volkswagen Group of America to Fairfax County.

Neither should we overlook the growth of the small and mid-sized firms that are the backbone of this and every economy. Of the more than 100 companies that the Fairfax County Economic Development Authority worked with this year, a vast majority of them are small businesses with fewer than 100 employees.

The successes of 2009 have important implications for Fairfax County taxpayers in 2010 and beyond. First, there will be more job opportunities, particularly compared to many other parts of the nation. Second, a larger commercial tax base means residents bear less of the cost of providing the range of high-quality services funded by the county Board of Supervisors.

Third, new workers in our community buy homes, dine in restaurants and shop in local stores. Fourth, the broader the base of companies that are here, the greater the likelihood that our economy and commercial tax base will be stable and grow. And, finally, the quality of life for which Fairfax County is known will be improved by economic stability and growth.

The mission of the Fairfax County Economic Development Authority is to build the commercial tax base by promoting the county as one of the world's best business locations — attracting companies here and working with them to stay and create jobs here and fill office space.

The FCEDA is proud of its success in 2009 to broaden the economic diversity of Fairfax County. It will help ensure that Fairfax County remains one of the best of the best places to work and live for decades to come.

Gerald L. Gordon Ph.D. is president and CEO of the Fairfax County Economic Development Authority.

Spring Hill Elementary Students Make State Tournament

The Spring Hill Technical Pantherbots, a team of six students, recently attended the Virginia/DC First Lego League Championship Tournament in Harrisonburg, Va. with 90 other teams from Virginia. The Pantherbots qualified for the state tournament after achieving second place in the robot missions at the regional tournament, which took place in Chantilly, in November. The team consisted of David Corcoran, Thomas Corcoran, Steven Corcoran, Will Pivik, Brandon Arcari and Cliff Yang. Coaching the teams included Becky Corcoran, parent, and Holly McGuigan from Spring Hill Elementary.

The Pantherbots used advanced LEGO NXT kits to build a robot that is programmed to perform specific, precise tasks. Over the course of eight weeks, the team designed, researched, built and programmed their robot to perform missions. This year's theme, Smart Move, asked teams to look at their community and discover how people, animals, information and things travel. The Technical Pantherbots focused on bike paths in the McLean Hunt and Hamlet area and were lucky to meet with Supervisor John Foust (D-Dranesville) and his Chief of Staff Jane Edmonson and discuss the issues revolving around the local bike/pedestrian paths. They also surveyed their local neighborhoods to garner support for future bike paths and educate the community.

At the competition, the Technical Pantherbots were judged on their teamwork, research project presentation and robot design and the performance of their robot, which they named The Fish. The Pantherbots placed ninth and were thrilled to be part of the state competition.

THE CONNECTION

While many resign themselves to gaining a few pounds relaxing and eating holiday goodies this time of year, a dedicated group of McLean women maintain a strict daily 6 a.m. workout schedule and train to run in a spring relay race. Jenna Litschewski, Holly McGuigan, Holley Morse, Jane Smith and Amy Doherty, all of McLean, are members of the “Wolf Pack” team, which is planning to run the American Odyssey Relay (AOR) on April 23 and 24, 2010. The AOR covers a mostly back-road, 204 mile course that stretches from Gettysburg, Pa. to Washington, D.C. Teams of 12 runners take turns running three legs per person and riding in vans between legs to complete the relay. Teams of fewer or more runners are permitted. They just have to divide mathematically to complete 36 legs. The team sign-up deadline is Dec. 31 for an entry fee of $1,140. Beginning Jan. 1 the fee increases to $1,260.

Litschewski, Wolf Pack team leader, said she got involved in the relay as a way to do something new with her workout friends. “It was a different kind of physical and mental challenge that ‘regular’ races don’t provide,” she said. The relay may range from 24-35 or so hours with little to no sleep and no shower. Our workout coach at Next Level Fitness dared us to give this a try. We also looked at it as a good girls’ weekend away for our group of busy, type-A, driven women. When else do adults get to have a sleepover in a van with a bunch of fun girlfriends?”

To prepare for this year’s relay, the team practices running in the dark in addition to its daily early morning workouts. They find it is helpful to know what it is like to run with a headlamp at night on backcountry roads and how not to panic if they make a

“You need a GPS for your van” which rides along just ahead or behind the runners, said McGuigan. “To do this type of relay, you have to have a lot of flexibility. Last year, we did a 10-mile run every weekend for three to four weeks before the race. You are

Just Flamenco To Open in McLean

Lee Schneider launches her own dance studio.

BY CHRISTY STEELE
THE CONNECTION

January 2010 will mark the opening of a new dance studio in McLean. Just Flamenco will offer beginner flamenco classes for adults and will be run by Lee Schneider from the dance studio in her home in McLean. Schneider was born in South Africa and began dancing when she was 5. She started studying flamenco in her early teens. After moving to the United States, she began teaching flamenco with a dance company in Houston, Texas. After moving to Virginia in 2003, she began teaching for Joy of Motion, and occasionally substitute taught classes at Furia Flamenca.

After teaching three semesters of flamenco at the McLean Community Center, Schneider decided it was time to build her own studio. She had a sprung dance floor and a floor-to-ceiling mirror installed in the largest room in her basement, and has been preparing since then to open her business. Schneider's daughter, Ashley, has also been a dancer since she was very young and has occasionally assisted her mother during large classes by giving individual attention to students.

"[Schneider] is a very good teacher because she breaks it down into the elements and one element gets built upon another," said Jeanne Faubell, one of Schneider's students at the McLean Community Center. "Then she will gradually work them together one at a time so you're not overwhelmed. So even if you have never danced before, it is something that you feel you can do without getting unduly frustrated. And it's fun. We just laughed so much. I just felt such a joy when we left. I felt invigorated."

"I love teaching new students like Jeanne who didn't know anything about flamenco before," said Schneider. "I teach them the basics and I love seeing their progress over 10 weeks from having no knowledge of the dance form to being competent dancers."

Classes will be scheduled on weekdays and Saturdays, and a Web site will be up shortly. In the meantime, contact Lee Schneider via email or phone at leesflamenco@gmail.com or 703-790-3354 to enroll for upcoming classes.

McLean Women Train for Second American Odyssey Relay

with a flexible attitude and be able to think ahead.”

Last year, McGuigan she ran two early legs, was picked up by her husband to go to a mandatory post-masters degree class and returned to the relay course just in time to grab the baton and run her final leg for the Wolfpack.

Bob Fleshner, the director of the relay, headed up the first AOR last spring and describes the AOR course. “It has a Civil War theme. It goes through the Gettysburg and Antietam battlefields” and ends in Washington, D.C. The course is laid out along a circuitous route that avoids highways. Some legs are longer than others, some are run in the morning and afternoon and some are run at night. The level of difficulty varies considerably.

“Everything is different for each runner,” said Fleshner. “Each team can pick times of day and the leg difficulty that is best for each member using the leg difficulty chart on the AOR Web site.”

Planners choose hand-off locations carefully. They are often in church or school parking lots. “People along the way have been very excited and helpful,” said Fleshner. Since the relay concept is very different from a marathon, he did educational presentations at a running equipment store and made sure information was available on the AOR through its newsletter and Web site. The first relay had 108 teams totaling approximately 1,300 participants.

Litschewski described Fleshner as very hands on. “[He] is great in that he listens to the suggestions and ideas of the runners and incorporates those” she said. One of the things that makes the race particularly fun is that “the focus in this type of race is more on the camaraderie rather than on individualism.”

McLean Boys Determined To Make District Noise

Bouchard, Fitzgerald give basketball team a solid foundation.

BY RICH SANDERS
THE CONNECTION

The first watershed moment every year for the McLean High boys' basketball team is its pre-Christmas game against local rival Langley. Highlander players and fans always look forward to the Liberty District matchup against the Saxons. Whether the contest is played at McLean or at Langley, the gymnasium is filled to capacity and the energy level is sky high.

The two teams were scheduled to meet on Friday night, Dec. 18 at Langley as part of a girls'-boys', double-header evening of basketball. The girls' game was to be played first, followed by the boys' contest.

"In the beginning of the season, that's what the kids can really point to on the schedule," said McLean boys' head coach Kevin Roller, of his team's first of two regular season meetings against the locals from Great Falls. "That's sort of a great way to end the first month of the season."

The coach said he has talked to his team during practices about how to best handle the high decibel crowd noise when his team takes the floor against Langley. It is often difficult for players on both teams to hear and talk with their own teammates because of the loud cheers or jeers.

"We've already talked to them about how we're going to communicate with 1,800 [people in the stands] screaming," said Roller, who said Langley coach Travis Hess always has the Saxons ready to play at a high level of basketball. "It's a game I really look forward to as a coach."

Last season in the first pre-New Year's game between the McLean and Langley boys, the visiting Saxons defeated McLean in a thrilling, double-overtime affair, 50-47.

"When you play McLean, it's going to be a great game every single time," said Hess, the Langley coach who led the Saxons to their second consecutive district title last year. "Kevin [Roller] does a great job changing defenses and their offense is very good. It will be a close game. Anything can happen when McLean-Langley play."

THIS YEAR'S MCLEAN team is one of the physically smaller and less experienced squads in the district. Just two players — senior forwards Phil Bouchard (6-foot 3-inches) and Sean Fitzgerald (6-1) — received quality playing time last winter. The two are the Highlanders' top players this season.

"We only returned two players who had significant playing time [last year]," said Roller. "Both of them are playing well."

Going into its Dec. 18 game against Langley, McLean stood at 2-2 with the wins coming over Battlefield High (Haymarket) of the Northwest Region and Northern Region opponent Falls Church. The losses have come to Northern Region foes Westfield and Yorktown.

The games against Battlefield and Westfield were part of the Langley Tip-Off Tournament, the Saxons' early season, four-team round robin tourney.

Bouchard scored 20 points with nine rebounds, along with two blocked shots and five steals, in the win over Battlefield, and he tallied 12 points and eight boards in McLean's victory over non-district opponent Falls Church. Against Westfield, the Highlander standout had 12 points and five rebounds.

"He combines height, speed and strength and is probably the best athlete we have," said Roller, of Bouchard. "He put a lot of time [into the game] this summer."

Bouchard usually matches up against bigger opponents at his forward position. Defensively, he more than holds his own against talented frontcourt players. On offense, he utilizes his quickness to drive past defenders. He also has developed a better outside shot.

Fitzgerald, meanwhile, is another solid, go-to player for McLean. He is a good all-around basketball player, but his best sport is baseball. Fitzgerald recently earned a scholarship to play baseball at Notre Dame.

"He's a big-time athlete and a big-time baseball player," said Roller, of Fitzgerald. "He's been a steady influence for us."

Two sophomores have handled the point guard duties for the Highlanders over the first part of the season — Gordon Rogo, a varsity back-up player last year, and Sango Amolo, who ran the McLean JV team's offense last winter.

"We have two point-guards in the rotation and they are both maturing," said the coach.

Amolo scored nine points in the loss to Yorktown, while Rogo contributed six.

Roller said his team has had both good and bad stretches of play.

"We've had some very good flashes in our first four games, and at other times our lack of varsity experience has shown up," he said. "We need to consistently play 32 minutes of varsity basketball, which should happen when guys [better] learn their roles."

McLean will participate in the Wootton High Holiday Tournament after Christmas. The Highlanders will meet Rockville High in their first tournament game on Dec. 29.

Local Wrestlers' Classic Success

Early season wrestling event officially kicks off new season.

BY RICH SANDERS
THE CONNECTION

The Northern Region Classic Wrestling Tournament took place Dec. 11-12 at Westfield High School. The annual, early season showcase event brings together top teams from the Northern Region and other areas of the state.

This year's team champion was host school Westfield (302 points), which finished well ahead of second place finisher Fairfax High (162). Rounding out the top five were third place Woodbridge (153), fourth place Annandale (143) and fifth place Potomac Falls of Sterling (142). In all, 32 teams competed at the two-day mat bonanza.

Local teams to finish well included seventh place Marshall High (126.5), ninth place Herndon (97.5), 15th place South Lakes (81.5) and 16th place Madison (80). McLean High finished 22nd overall and Oakton was 29th.

From Marshall, Andrew Embree captured the championship in the 215-weight class. He was a finals winner by second round pin over South Lakes' Reed Dismuke. Also for the Statesmen, Mark Bergenholtz (189) earned a third place finish, heavyweight Matt Crawford took fifth place, Connor Driscoll (103) finished seventh and Daniel Picado (145) was eighth.

Herndon High had several place finishers, including two Hornet wrestlers who gained second place medals in Matt Olem (135) and Josh Pike (125). Also for the Hornets, Gabe Pike (103) garnered fifth place, Justin Magerer (145) was seventh and Ramon Reyes (112) finished eighth.

From South Lakes, Reed Dismuke was second in the 215-weight class. Also for the Seahawks, Ryan Forrest (135) earned a third place medal while Alex Stanley (189) took sixth place.

For the Madison Warhawks, Albert Schultz (119) earned third place honors, while teammate Robert Dooley (112) battled for a fourth place standing. Daniel Feldman (103) finished sixth, Alex McSween (130) was seventh and Andrew Reinhard (heavyweight) was eighth.

From McLean, Marvin Garcia (130) and Andy Chung (119) both took sixth place in their respective weight divisions, while Highlander wrestlers Billy Dvorkin (189) and Ethan Arkin (135) both finished eighth.

Oakton's Wade Kostkan (152) took seventh place.

Oakton High Girls Win First Five Games

Caroline Coyer (5) and the Oakton High Cougars, shown here at last year's state AAA girls' basketball tournament, won their first five games of the new season, including a 69-30 home win over Jefferson on Dec. 15. Coyer, a standout sophomore point guard, scored 17 points in the win. The Cougars' leading scorer in the game was Zora Stephenson, who scored 20 points.

Tibetan History and Music Come to Brookfield School

BY CATHERINE PASCHAL
THE CONNECTION

Students at Brookfield School had reason to dance Monday morning, Dec. 14, and it wasn't Miley Cyrus that got them moving, but snippets of a Tibetan Opera performed by a native musician who paid a visit to the McLean school.

The school's Anthropology Express Program, with its focus on Tibet this year, hosted guests Tencho Gyatso, special assistant for advocacy for the International Campaign for Tibet, and Tibetan musician Karma Gyaltzen.

Bringing Tibet's culture, architecture and people to life through photographs, Gyatso related the attachment nomads feel for their colorfully adorned yaks and explained that, although a herd might consist of 50 to 60 of the animals, nomads know them all by name and can tell instantly if one is missing.

The conversation also turned to the Chinese invasion and the origins of the conflict that drove Tibetans into exile, with Gyatso noting that her people were unprepared for the unprovoked attack of their country 60 years ago.

"You can't fight with stones against guns," she said.

Today, 130,000 Tibetans are living in exile worldwide with between 7,000 and 8,000 living in the United States and a small community of approximately 200 in Northern Virginia. Brookfield students learned that Tibetan children in the U.S. attend schools that teach them the language and culture of their native country.

Professional musician Karma Gyaltzen had the students and staff on their feet and dancing as he demonstrated instruments native to Tibet and explained the musical and dance customs of his country. He performed a fraction of an eight-hour-long Tibetan opera noting that such performances in Tibet are interactive and interwoven with symbols of the culture.

Brookfield's Upper School students then performed for their guests, led by Performing Arts Specialist Sandra Kammann. Kammann decided to make Tibet the focus of this year's Anthropology Express Program after partaking in an international delegation of women who visited India and Nepal to work with the Tibetan Buddhist community-in-exile.

"Students are exploring traditional nomadic life among yak herders and the twin challenges of a desolate landscape and harsh weather conditions," Kammann said.

"Through stories, geographical maps and group discussions, students have come to understand the movement of many Tibetans across the borders into India and Nepal." The class will culminate with a performance this May at Brookfield.

Updated, But Still Sweet

Sweet Stuff owners open Sweetleaf downtown, emphasizing 'green' and fresh.

After McLean resident Sherry Matini's son and daughter finished college, they decided they wanted to stay in their family's restaurant business. So, while the Matinis still own their Sweet Stuff carry-out restaurant at Old Dominion Drive and Spring Hill Road, they relinquished the restaurant's operations and, earlier this year, opened Sweetleaf at the old Moorenko's location in downtown McLean.

"The difference in the menu is just the way the food is prepared," said Matini's son, Andre, noting that salads are now made to order, rather than prepackaged, and sandwiches are available hot. This was his idea, and he summed up the sandwich and salad concept on the staff's T-shirts: "Guys like it hot, girls like it fresh."

MINOR DIFFERENCES include the addition of cupcakes to the menu and a change in yogurt flavor. "You can get anything you want, healthy or unhealthy," Andre Matini said.

The restaurant opened in early June. Primarily a lunchtime establishment, Sweetleaf's menu also includes soups, frozen yogurt, smoothies, pastries, a variety of coffees and 15 flavors of ice cream. The food is made fresh from scratch each day and the produce comes from local growers.

The family also embraced a "green" concept for the new restaurant, springing a little extra for wind power and recycling diligently. The cups and flatware, however don't need to be recycled. They're made from corn and are biodegradable. "Everybody's trying to be a little more environmentally friendly, but we didn't want it to cost too much to operate," Andre Matini said, noting that the family had not wanted to make the operation so "overly green" as to drive up prices.

"We wanted to stay in the neighborhood because my mom knows a lot of people here," he said, adding that he knew about half the new restaurant's customers from Sweet Stuff. To support the community, Sweetleaf entertains the chorus from neighboring McLean Baptist Church on the church's chorus nights, and students get free wireless access between 3-6 p.m. during the week. And if they're studying, they get free coffee. "We had a couple of kids bring it up and we thought it would be a great idea," Andre Matini said.

His sister, Arita, took care of the interior design for the new eatery, which uses earth tones and lets interior beams and ducts remain exposed. Seating, indoor and outdoor, consists of tables with chairs or benches. There are no booths. She said she wanted to create a homey, country feel.

MCLEAN RESIDENT Sarah Richmond Reid said she had been familiar with Sweet Stuff but had become a regular at Sweetleaf since it opened. "I'm so ecstatic that we finally have a restaurant that has healthy food and is delicious," she said, adding that her favorite dishes were the yogurt — loaded with raspberries — and the chicken pesto sandwich. She said the restaurant's location, reasonable prices, attitude toward the environment and friendly, personal atmosphere made it a favorite for her and her family. She noted that the owners even knew her dog by name.

"Rarely a day goes by that one of my family members is not going to Sweetleaf, and usually, it's me," Reid said.

'Tis the Season...

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

To be thankful. Let's be realistic; I'm a stage IV lung cancer patient/survivor, eight months into a treatment protocol with a life expectancy initially projected out to between 13 months and two years, so jolly isn't really in the discussion – or in my vocabulary any more. Still, I'm not complaining, just providing a little context for the rest of this column.

It's post-Thanksgiving Sunday and now that the food and festivities are mostly finished (and work looms tomorrow, Monday, for many), reality has once again reared its ugly head. Life goes on (for me, Thank God!) but to not be thankful every day for the "above average"/relative good medical fortune I've experienced (since receiving my quite unexpected diagnosis last March) would be disrespectful to those very Gods who likely control my fate.

Whatever mental exercises in futility I employ to defeat these death-defying cancer demons, I do so without their expressed written consent. It is a battle royal every day (more so the nights) and no doubt it will be a battle to the end, or at least that's my intention. And one of my unique weapons in this war against attrition is my attitude. Inherited from my parents, I guess, programmed somehow into my DNA, I can fight this fight with positive – and realistic optimism, good humor and good sense. But "jolly" I can no longer be, regardless of the season. Thankful though, at every opportunity, I can and will be this holiday season.

And not that I think this "holiday season" will be my last. Hardly. But as a cancer patient, one of the attitudes you are encouraged to embrace is "today." I can still remember Team Lourie's first meeting with my oncologist (how can I forget?) when, after listening to the doctor's reading/reviewing of all my medical reports/scans and biopsy, ending in the diagnosis with which many of you regular readers are intimately familiar, I replied, "Wow, it doesn't sound like I should be working any more;" to which the doctor added, "And you might want to consider taking that vacation you've always wanted to." ("WHAT!?", in my head.) From that moment (the beginning, if you will), it was communicated to me/us (my wife, my brother and me) that tomorrow (the future) has now left the building. At that point, the word "jolly" also left and went right out of my brain for evermore.

But it's eight months later, almost nine in fact, much has transpired in my treatment. I have "tolerated" (a semi medical term commonly used, in my experience, anyway, to describe the body's reaction to whatever the doctor/medication is doing to it) extremely, maybe even exceptionally well, all that my oncologist has "protooled." What happens next? What scenario might play out? It depends on everything that it is dependent upon. Meaning, death and taxes – as they say, are all that's guaranteed, as opposed to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. One is a declaration, the other is a decree, almost.

Every day presents new challenges, mentally and physically. My attitude remains good, great even. "Jolly" it will never be, though. Thankful, it most certainly is.

TPE Presents Winter Showcase

Comedy, improvisation and commedia dell'arte performed.

BY CHRISTY STEELE
THE CONNECTION

The Traveling Players Ensemble (TPE) presented their Winter Showcase on Saturday, Dec. 12, at Cooper Middle School. The performance was the culmination of the ensemble's fall classes. More than 20 middle and high school students performed in various capacities for parents and community members. The afternoon included improvisational games, monologues and commedia dell'arte performances.

Producing Artistic Director Jeanne E. Harrison founded TPE in 2003. Located in Great Falls, the ensemble is a non-profit professional theater company that offers classes in the winter, spring and fall, as well as a three-week summer day camp at Madeira High School.

Rachel Spicknall of Takoma Park taught the improvisation class this fall and guided her students in their performances on Saturday. "I feel like no matter what I ask of them, they are going to be able to give something back," she said, of the children she taught this fall. "They eat up the challenge."

Spicknall's students rapped spontaneously on stage after audience members provided stimulus. They also created short improvisation scenes based on audience participation.

Toby Mulford, associate artistic director, taught the commedia dell'arte class this past fall and said that his students were "no nonsense."

"With normal groups, when you ask them to do something utterly ridiculous or un-

TPE Announces Winter Theatre Classes

Traveling Players Ensemble has announced its 2010 Winter Theatre Classes for middle and high school students.

- ◆ "Acting and Scene Study" class, for grades 5-8, meets on Saturdays from 2 to 3:30 p.m., Jan. 9 to March 13.

- ◆ "Shakespeare in Performance", for grades 8-12, meets on Saturdays and Sundays, 2- 5 p.m., Jan. 9 to March 14.

The classes are taught at Cooper Middle School in McLean.

Registration will also open on Jan. 1 for TPE's 2010 Summer Camp, with spaces available for rising 6th through 12th graders. Traveling Players summer camp is in residence at The Madeira School in McLean. TPE offers need-based scholarships for all its educational programs.

comfortable, it takes a while to get over their reticence," said Mulford. "But these students have bought into the idea that anything goes in our classroom and they are willing to go with it."

Harrison taught the monologue class this fall and her students performed both a classical and contemporary piece at the ensemble. "This community is so strong and sticks together," she said, about being part of the ensemble and teaching. "We are working from such a strong base and are able to see these children for years and watch them grow up and learn who they are and then bring that on stage. We are part of an amazing growth process."

The ensemble provided students opportunity to demonstrate the skills and techniques they have learned during the year. To learn more, visit travelingplayers.org.
