

Family, Friends Mourn Death of Rachel D'Andrea

Chantilly toddler, 3, loses her battle with cancer.

There's another angel in heaven — Rachel Katherine D'Andrea, 3, of Chantilly, has died. After a valiant, 18-month battle against neuroblastoma — a childhood cancer with no cure — she suffered a massive stroke Sunday morning, Jan. 9, and passed away that night.

"I'll never get the images of that morning out of my mind," said her father, Jon D'Andrea, Tuesday night. "But Rachel is now free of the pain which she had to endure over the last year and a half."

Normally a bright, cheerful child, Rachel had been especially suffering, the past few weeks, as the disease continued to take its toll on her little body. Desperate to save her, her parents planned to fly to Orlando, Fla., with Rachel on Monday, Jan. 10, to start yet another medical trial.

But then, said her father, that's when God held up His hand and intervened.

"I truly believe in my heart God felt that enough was enough and didn't want her subjected to anymore chemo, needles, sickness, pills, pain medications or travel, so He took her the night before we could get on the flight," said D'Andrea. "The timing of this could have only come from God."

Doctors diagnosed Rachel's condition in June 2009, two months before her second birthday. While tenderly rubbing her head, one night at bedtime, her mother discovered a hard knot. It proved to be one of two tumors, besides the neuroblastoma found in Rachel's bone marrow and bones.

The toddler immediately received treatment — mainly at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York. Her mother, Rebecca, remained by her side, while her father shuttled between the hospital and home, where he had to keep working to pay their medical bills.

Meanwhile, Rachel underwent chemotherapy, radiation and surgeries. Eventually, though, nothing was working and doctors there believed they'd done all they could for her.

But with their child's life at stake, Rachel's parents researched and found another hospital where they hoped she could be successfully treated. So in October, Rachel entered Children's Hospital of Vermont.

Things seemed promising, at first, but tests in mid-December revealed that cancer masses within her skull, lower back, chest and arms were growing larger. At one point, Rachel was unable to walk.

Frustrated, her father wrote in her CaringBridge Web site, "God forgive me, but I am very angry. I'm a heartbroken father who wants this cancer to stop stealing his daughter's life."

Rachel left the hospital shortly before Christmas and was able to spend the holiday with her parents, sister Kaitlyn, 12, and brother R.J., 14, in their home in Chantilly. But she developed a blood infection and, beginning New Year's Day, Rachel spent five or six days in Inova Fairfax Hospital before returning home again.

Then on Sunday, Jan. 9, around 6:30 a.m., she woke up not feeling well. "She threw

In June 2008, the Upper Occoquan Service Authority (UOSA) got Fairfax County's approval to replace a significant amount of the sewer pipes in Centreville and Chantilly. Now, officials say they should be finished with the project in half the time originally estimated, but they must also replace an additional section of pipe.

UOSA is responsible for wastewater management in the Occoquan Watershed, including western Fairfax County. But when obtaining the go-ahead needed before work could proceed, UOSA representatives explained that, unless it replaced some of its deteriorating, 30-year-old pipes, "sewage overflows" could result.

"We've been in construction a little over a year now," Project Manager Scott Brown told members of the West Fairfax County Citizens Association (WFCCA) Land-Use Committee on Dec. 21.

Virginia Run's Alex Nieves is a championship lacrosse player. He's also a 20-year-old college student who's just been diagnosed with leukemia.

So on Friday, Jan. 21, the Virginia Run community will hold its winter blood drive in his honor. It's from 2-8 p.m. at the Virginia Run Community Center, 15355 Wetherburn Court, off Route 29 and Pleasant Valley Road, in Centreville.

"We want to spread the word about leukemia and that blood is an important part of curing it," said friend and family spokesman

Bob Biagi, also of Virginia Run. "Leukemia patients require a lot of blood transfusions."

An athlete his whole life, Nieves competed on the Virginia Run swim team, the Riptides, from ages 6-15. "In 2000, he and his relay team of 9- and 10-year-olds set an NVSL record," said Biagi. "It stood for 10 years and wasn't broken until last summer."

Alex is the son of Mo and Troy Nieves and is one of four children. His sister Kelsey, 21, is a senior at JMU; sister Gabbi, 16, is a sophomore at Paul VI; and brother A.J., 12, is a sixth-grader at Virginia Run Elementary. Alex graduated

A Sad Farewell to Rachel

up and her body went stiff and she wouldn't open her eyes," said Jon D'Andrea. "We thought she was still sleepy and tired, so we let her sleep a couple hours. But when we couldn't wake her, we called the ambulance."

Rachel underwent a CT scan at Inova Fair Oaks Hospital and doctors discovered she'd suffered a catastrophic stroke. She was Medivaced to the Children's Intensive Care Unit at Inova Fairfax Hospital, but to no avail.

"They couldn't do anything for her; she was brain dead," said D'Andrea. "Doctors believe there was a tumor behind her eye; the wall of the brain collapsed and the blood rushed in. It affected her brain's complete, right hemisphere."

In the early afternoon, Rachel's parents removed her breathing tube. "She took her last breath around midnight," said her father. "Kaitlyn and R.J. said their goodbyes, but we had them leave the room before the end."

D'Andrea said the doctors told them there was nothing they could have done, no matter where Rachel was.

"They said they couldn't have seen it coming and couldn't have stopped it," he said.

Devastated, D'Andrea said there's no way he can make sense of this tragic loss, but he does believe Rachel's stroke was "one of many signs that God was there with us, all along. He just said, 'It's time for Me to take her.'"

Another sign, he said, was when "the Lord told me to get baptized, three months before her diagnosis. I also believe He placed the bump on Rachel's forehead to get us to take her to the doctor — because neuroblastoma doesn't normally act that way," giving an outward clue of something wrong internally.

The last few weeks, said D'Andrea, Rachel had a great deal of pain in her knee and eye and was on constant morphine and pills.

"But two nights before the stroke, she started acting like herself — and I believe that was another miracle," he said. "God was giving her back to us for a few hours. She wanted to come into the living room, pet the cat, sit on Kaitlyn's lap and play with her toys. She loved her Easy-Bake Oven and wanted to make some muffins."

Then, said D'Andrea, "With a voice that had pain in it, she sat up on the bed and told Rebecca and I, 'I love you, Mommy, I love you, Daddy, and I love BroBro [R.J.], KayKay [Kaitlyn] and Gigi [Rachel's maternal grandmother]. I was happy I had my little girl back for awhile.'"

This week, as word of Rachel's death spread, others who knew and loved her mourned her, as well. Among them were Ginny Grivas, Fouad Qreitem and Joan Brady, who'd all held fund-raisers to help the

"We fell in love with Rachel when we first read her story in Centre View," said Qreitem, owner of Paisano's pizza restaurants. "Then we met her and her parents at my office, and she was just amazing. She had tubes sticking out of her, but she was singing and dancing for me."

"I've never seen someone with such determination as this little girl... Whenever we're facing trials and tribulations, we'll remember Rachel and her strength and that will spur us on."

— Ginny Grivas, family friend

"This girl really captured the hearts of everyone in my office, the minute we laid eyes on her," he continued. "How courageous she was; it's so sad. Rachel touched so many lives. Even my managers are devastated — they'd developed a bond with her. And Rachel's smile will forever be ingrained in my heart."

Although Paisano's was able to raise money for the D'Andreas, Qreitem said, "They did more for us than we did for them. Everything about Rachel taught us so much about life. It's truly a time for mourning."

Agreeing, photographer Joan Brady said, "I can't imagine going through what Jon and Rebecca have been through — and what they'll continue to go through. How awful for a family to have a child so young be diagnosed with something incurable. My heart goes out to them."

Brady was also impressed with the "fighting spirit" Rachel and her parents showed, day in and day out. "What incredible strength Rebecca had, dealing with things at the hospital in New York, and Jon running a business at home and driving up there exhausted," she said. "They had such profound faith. I feel lucky to have met such wonderful people and only wish I had met them under happier circumstances. So many people came together and met each other because they cared about Rachel."

At the D'Andreas' request, Brady's creating a photo collage to display at Rachel's funeral. She did four photo sessions with Rachel, and sorting through her photographs for the collage brought back a flood of memories.

"I think about this child with so much promise —

Dykstra Serves Jail Time

Following a trial, July 28, 2010 in Fairfax County General District Court, Centreville's Craig Dykstra, then 51, was convicted of unlawfully filming someone in the nude. Prior to a June 5 pool party at his Hunt Chase mansion after Westfield High's prom, Dykstra placed a camera disguised as a pen inside a changing room there.

Then, without their knowledge, he surreptitiously filmed several teen-age boys and girls – including an 18-year-old girl who was photographed completely nude as she changed out of her swimsuit into pajamas for a sleepover at the home with one of Dykstra's daughters, a classmate of hers.

Another student eventually found the camera, which was given to a parent and then to the police. The 70-minute film was played in court and Dykstra's attorney said his client "deeply regretted" his conduct. Judge Mark Simmons then found Dykstra guilty and sentenced him to 10 days in jail for this misdemeanor offense.

Dykstra immediately appealed his conviction and was given a Jan. 4 appeal date in Circuit Court. But instead, on Dec. 6, 2010, he withdrew his appeal and was jailed that day. Dykstra then served five days behind bars before being released on Dec. 11.

Free Carseat Inspections

Certified technicians from the Sully District Police Station will perform free, child safety carseat inspections Thursday, Jan. 13 and Jan. 27, from 5-8:30 p.m., at the station, 4900 Stonecroft Blvd. in Chantilly. No appointment is necessary. But residents should install the child safety seats themselves so technicians may properly inspect and adjust them, as needed.

However, because of time constraints, only the first 35 vehicles arriving on each date will be inspected. That way, inspectors may have enough time to properly instruct the caregiver on the proper use of the child seat. Call 703-814-7000, ext. 5140, to confirm dates and times.

Trudy Harsh Is Honored

She's named a
'Washingtonian of the Year.'

BY BONNIE HOBBS
CENTRE VIEW

Centreville's Trudy Harsh doesn't seek the limelight or need a lot of fanfare to do what she does. Steady and determined, she focuses on finding affordable housing for Fairfax County's mentally ill.

Now, though, her hard work and dedication are being recognized throughout the Washington Metropolitan area. In its January issue, the Washingtonian magazine named her one of 12 Washingtonians of the Year — a group including Maryland Sen. Barbara Mikulski.

Author Pete Earley, himself an advocate for mental-health services, was among several people who nominated Harsh, and he was delighted that she was chosen. He called it a "well-deserved honor" for someone who inspires him and who "demonstrates every day that one person can make a difference in the lives of others."

In a way, Harsh's mission is the legacy of her late daughter Laura, who was 8 when a brain tumor and subsequent surgery stunted her physically and emotionally. The experience of raising and advocating for Laura sparked Harsh's passion for the needs of the mentally ill — especially in housing.

In Laura's honor, in 2003, her mother established the Brain Foundation. Through loans, grants and donations, it raises funds to provide suitable housing for people afflicted with persistent brain disease or injury, but able to live on their own, with minimal help.

Noting that, according to Forbes magazine, the median household income in Fairfax County is $106,785, Earley said, "The area's wealth is one reason why finding affordable housing for persons with brain disorders is difficult — housing doesn't come cheap. The Washington Post reported a few years ago that a person with a mental illness could wait up to 18 years before finding supportive housing in Fairfax County. That was simply unacceptable to Trudy."

So the Chalet Woods resident established "Laura's Houses" to do what she could to help remedy the situation. In November 2006, with funding from the Virginia Housing Development Authority, the Brain Foundation brought its first house in the City of Fairfax. It has four bedrooms and 3 1/2 bathrooms, and each of the four tenants pay rent ranging from $175-$300 a month. But that's not enough to cover the mortgage payment, so the Brain Foundation pays the rest, plus utilities.

"We now have 20 tenants in five homes, and we just bought our sixth house for four more tenants in Reston," said Harsh. "We have three homes in the City of Fairfax and two in Annandale. Because our tenants don't have cars, the houses have to be near transportation and within walking distance of a grocery store."

But with more than 500 mentally ill people on Fairfax County's waiting list for housing, the need is still critical. Knowing that homelessness or incarceration are their only other options, Harsh and her organization are continually scrambling for funds to purchase more homes and help keep the existing ones up and running.

"We pay mortgage, utilities, maintenance and homeowners association dues, as well as some of the rent," she said. "Our tenants generally have an income between $600-$700 a month, so our rents are less than $100-$350."

The Brain Foundation has a nine-member, working board, including Harsh and her son Drew of Fairfax. Chalet Woods' Ted Moriak writes the organization's grants and, said Harsh, board members Judy Betz, Pearl Hartley and Betty Klinge also provide invaluable help.

The Fairfax/Falls Church Community Services Board and Pathway Homes — a nonprofit organization that deals with the mentally ill — choose the tenants and provide services such as counseling and transportation. Pathway's social workers also make sure the residents take their medication and see that they get jobs and some recreational activity.

"We hope others will follow our example of separating housing from services," said Harsh, a Realtor, who's teaching similar mental-health advocates in Virginia and Florida how to purchase houses and transform them into group homes. "That way, you don't have to be an expert in everything."

Supervisors Approve Two Hotels

The Board of Supervisors Tuesday, Jan. 11, approved a special exception land use application to build two hotels on the headquarters property of Long and Foster real estate at Lee Road and Sully Road in the Sully District.

The hotels will be built on two separate 4 plus acre plots at a Long and Foster property called the Ellipse at Westfield's. One hotel will be four stories high, have 130 rooms, restaurant and parking for guests. The second hotel will be six stories high, have 210 rooms, a 125 person restaurant and a meeting space for 2,000 people.

Supervisor Michael Frey (R-Sully) said the hotels are being planned to accommodate increased tourist traffic attracted by the Air and Space museum and the nearness to Dulles International Airport.

He said the Sully District Council and the Fairfax County Planning Commission supported the project.

'Mother Goose's Really Fabulous Fairytales'

Chantilly presents children's play.

BY BONNIE HOBBS
CENTRE VIEW

Like Cinderella and her glass slipper, some things are just meant to go together. But when Mother Goose starts mixing up her fairytales — combining stories and characters in unexpected ways — hilarity ensues.

And that's just what'll happen during Chantilly High's children's play, "Mother Goose's Really Fabulous Fairytales." It'll be presented Friday, Jan. 21, at 7 p.m.; Saturday, Jan. 22, at 2 and 7 p.m.; and Sunday, Jan. 23, at 2 p.m. Tickets are $5 at the door.

Actually, the audience will see not one, but seven, different fairytales: "Jack and Jill," "Hansel and Gretel," "The Three Little Pigs," "Rumpelstiltskin," "The Empress's New Clothes," "Sleeping Beauty" and "Jack and the Beanstalk."

Each show is double-cast so, altogether, nearly 70 students will perform. And Director Ed Monk says the creative storylines and energetic acting will make the whole experience a real treat.

"There's a lot of silliness for everyone in the family," he said. "And we have a really strong group of kids; it was wonderful to have that many students audition and get cast. We hope everyone will come out to see it."

Playing Mother Goose is sophomore Chloe Vasquez, who introduces each fairytale. "My character gets hit on the head and gets loopy and forgetful," she said. "Then she mixes up aspects of the different fairytales and changes the characters."

For example, said Vasquez, "The mother in 'Hansel and Gretel' is a gambler, and one of the pigs has a house made of toilet paper. Then the actors get angry at Mother Goose, and she tells them that, if they don't act, they'll have to go back to their jobs at McDonald's and Chuckie Cheese."

Enjoying her role, Vasquez said, "At one point, I become a bird and start screeching. It's fun to play this crazy and humorous person. Overall, I think kids will like the goofy characters with different quirks than they're used to, and unexpected twists in the stories, and parents will like all the jokes.

'JACK AND JILL'

Freshman Lorraine Becker portrays Jill in "Jack and Jill." Initially, she said, Jill's a Southern belle, petite and preppy. "She then changes into a 'gangsta'-type person who's all tough, loud and outgoing," said Becker. "It's fun to play her because I get to fall down a hill, and I like acting and the people I'm doing the play with."

Chris Knarr plays Jack, and Becker said they both put lots of work into their parts. Children's shows are great, she said, because "you get to do big, outgoing characters and motions and go crazy with them."

'THREE LITTLE PIGS'

In "The Three Little Pigs," freshman Austin Vassallo plays the Big, Bad Wolf. "I have a really cool, wolf costume with big ears and fur," he said. "But my wolf has a Russian accent and isn't so big and bad; he's kind of sensitive because people call him big and ugly. It's cool to see how different this fairytale is; it's a nice escape from the normal one."

As a result, said Vassallo, "I can be more animalistic with this character and do a wider variety of things with him. The audience will be laughing at all the changes and will be surprised. It's a lot of fun and they can't predict what will happen."

'RUMPLESTILTSKIN'

Sophomore Greg Baker plays the lead in "Rumpelstiltskin." At first, he said, his character's a nice guy. "He's trying to help a poor woman's daughter who wants to marry a prince," said Baker. "But then he tricks her and takes all the prince's gold. He changes because Mother Goose messes up the fairytale and makes him greedy."

Noting that it's his biggest part yet at Chantilly, Baker said, "It's got some funny lines; and in children's shows, you get to do funny voices and movements, plus physical comedy. The show will appeal to people of all ages."

'EMPRESS'S NEW CLOTHES'

"The Empress's New Clothes" features junior Ben Zimmerman as the female emperor of a kingdom, in this unusual take on "The Emperor's New Clothes." She's fashionable and has pretty dresses but, said Zimmerman, "Con artists sell her an ugly dress that they say can only be seen by stupid people. I don't mind wearing it because it's fun to do stuff out of the norm."

Calling his character "arrogant," he said she's shallow and thinks she's better than everyone else. "She's only concerned about clothes and is wealthy and materialistic," said Zimmerman. "I love playing characters different from myself so I have to completely change who I am. And this fairytale's not told that often, so kids will learn about it while being entertained."

'SLEEPING BEAUTY'

Freshman Brooke Johnson plays the lead in "Sleeping Beauty." Portraying "an innocent, teen-age girl who doesn't know what's going on and just does what she's told," Johnson has lots of funny lines. "Mother goose has all the play's actions out of order and changes the presents the fairies give Sleeping Beauty," she said. "The script's really clever and I can be over-the-top. It's like playing pretend when you're a kid."

'JACK AND BEANSTALK'

Playing Jack in "Jack and the Beanstalk," sophomore John Cuddehe said Jack's awkward and hasn't had much interaction with others, so "he's easily excited and laughs at everything at the end of conversations. It's fun being goofy, and I like how the slightest things change these well-known fairytales so much. We even refer to modern things, such as Wii."

'HANSEL AND GRETEL'

In "Hansel and Gretel," Sophomore Michael Hawthorne plays Hansel. "He's fat and German, with an unrealistic accent," said Hawthorne. "He wants to eat everything and, at one point, he asks his sister Gretel if he can eat her multivariable calculus workbook."

In this version, instead of a candy house, there's one made out of broccoli.

"Some of the funniest moments are when Hansel and Gretel are still stuck and Mother Goose says it's the end of the story," said Hawthorne.

"Then they have to cover for her mistake. The audience will love it."

Harsh said the five homes currently have an occupancy of 2/3 men to 1/3 women. "They come from all social classes and ethnic backgrounds, and we require that they be U.S. citizens," she said. "We also use parents of our tenants as house mothers to help out, as needed, such as sometimes joining them for dinner."

"Because our tenants don't have cars, the houses have to be near transportation and within walking distance of a grocery store."

— Trudy Harsh

Still, she knows her work is far from done. Said Harsh: "We have a desperate need for smaller homes in Fairfax County." That's why, instead of considering the Washingtonian's honor simply as praise for what she's done, she looks at it as an opportunity to educate the public about her organization and the ongoing need to help those with mental problems.

"The awards ceremony is a Jan. 18 luncheon at the Willard Hotel [in Washington, D.C.], and I'm excited about it," she said. "I get to choose eight people to sit at my table and I'll make a one-minute speech."

Selected for this recognition from a field of more than 200 nominees who've done significant things to help their fellow man, Harsh said, "I'm really thrilled. I'm hoping it'll lead to more donations so we can buy and rent more houses and raise awareness of the need."

Now, however, he'll have to concentrate on beating another foe, ALL – acute lymphoblastic leukemia. He was diagnosed Dec. 20, following a routine blood test after a sports injury and, since then, he's been undergoing several rounds of chemotherapy. According to Biagi, "Doctors are very optimistic about his prognosis."

Meanwhile, family, friends and members of the local community are rallying around Nieves. Although he can't see visitors right now, people may follow his progress on the Facebook page, "Rock the Orange," created by one of his sisters. And friends are asking local residents to wear orange – the color for leukemia awareness – on Jan. 21, to honor Alex and all others currently battling leukemia.

Additionally, by holding the blood drive in his name, Virginia Run is also showing its support of Nieves during this challenging time. ## Be Sure To Let Us Know in 2011

Reaffirming our mission in new year.

As a local, weekly newspaper, the Centre View's mission is to bring the news you need about your community that you are not likely to get anywhere else — to advocate for community good, to provide a forum for dialogue on local concerns, and to celebrate and record milestones in community and people's lives.

At the Centre View, we begin 2011 by looking for more input from our readers.

First, send us photos of you and your pet plus a few sentences for our Pet Centre View, which will appear the first week in February. We'd like to have photos by Jan. 20.

Let us know how we're doing, and let us know what is going on in your part of the community.

We invite you to e-mail us letting us know about something you especially liked or didn't like about our coverage, and to write us letters to the editor.

Joy

Joy comes gentle as snow on Christmas morning,
Filling wounded places in the heart,
Brightening dark corners,
Lifting soul shadows.
Joy comes thundering, roaring across the falls,
Powering life and driving all before it,
Washing doubt and fear,
Spraying skeptics.
Joy comes laughing, dancing in the house,
Singing riddles, digging out the closet,
Teasing those lost mind corners,
Opening doors.
Joy comes deep, a garden loved for 50 years

Enriched, composted, planted, watered —
Harvesting love in every season,
Tasting fresh and new.

Alice Foltz
Centreville

We learn a lot from readers' ideas and questions. If you see something that you think might be a story, or just something you wonder about, give us a call, or drop us a line.

We want to know if you have an idea for fixing traffic in your part of the world. We want to know if you've had a good or bad experience with local government or your schools.

We'd like to hear your ideas about how to make things better. If you know of a person or an organization that is interesting, doing important work, and might make a good feature story, let us know.

We are looking for interesting people to feature in our pages each week. If someone in your family or your community published a book, became an Eagle Scout, raised money for a good cause, accomplished some feat like running a marathon or having art included in an art show, these are all things that we want to know.

The Centre View will publish photos and notes of a variety of community events and milestones, including births, engagements, weddings, anniversaries, awards and obituaries.

We are also interested in events at your church, mosque, synagogue, community center, school, etc. Email or mail us a photo and a note about the event. Be sure to include the names of all the people who are in a photo, and say when and where the photo was taken.

We also publish notes about news and events in local businesses. Notes about openings, new employees, anniversaries and other accomplishments and events are welcome.

Our calendar of events lets people know about upcoming events. Send the information at least two weeks ahead of the event, and include a photo if possible. Events to be listed in calendars should be free or at nominal cost and open to the public.

In covering the issues, we strive to provide a voice for our readers. We look forward to hearing from you in 2011. We have a new website in the works (our current site has served us well but is best described as an antique) that will open up many more lines of communication. Stay tuned.

CES's Girls on the Run Collects Gifts for Hospital

Centreville Elementary School sponsored the International Girls on the Run program this Fall and 17 girls enjoyed the experience of running, goal-setting, talking about challenges girls face in society, training for and running their first race, The Reston Reindeer Romp 5k race held Dec. 4. As the program came to a close at the end of December, the girls wanted to do something for others so they came up with the idea of collecting holiday gifts/toys for children at INOVA Fair Oaks Hospital.

Home Life Style Elegant and Efficient

Less is more as homeowners seek higher quality in smaller spaces.

BY JOSHUA BAKER

Today's homeowners are much more informed and educated about what they want in a home. Travel, home shows, the internet and a greater focus on the importance of transforming a house into a home, have led homeowners to be very particular about what renovations they do and how they go about them.

No longer are people limited to cookie-cutter plans from a builder selecting little more than the color of the tile or carpets. Instead today's homeowners have embraced the idea of actively participating in determining customized solutions that will best suit their family's needs, wants and lifestyle.

Here are remodeling trends that BOWA Builders predicts for 2011.

2011 Trends

PROJECTS – SMALLER AND BETTER

The trend to smaller, higher quality spaces continues as many local residents discover that what they need is not more space, but better space. Often when talking with clients about possible projects we find that making a home larger is not the answer to their concerns. The problem is the bulk of the existing homes in our area were not designed for the way we live today. Small, compartmented rooms, a kitchen that is meant to be occupied by two or three people at most and formal rooms that separate the family from each other are no longer the types of spaces families' desire. As a result today's home remodeling projects often focus on reconfiguring, opening up and otherwise improving existing spaces to better suit the way today's families live, play and entertain. Because many BOWA clients lead hectic schedules outside of the home, they continue to trend toward remodeling projects that create highly usable, comfortable living spaces in their home. Families want practical and appropriate spaces in their home retreats because they treasure their time there.

KITCHENS – TRANSFORMATION BY DESIGN

Kitchens are the social center of our homes and need to accommodate a myriad of uses. While sometimes the solution is adding square footage, particularly in homes built 30 or more years ago, frequently the solution lies in re-thinking the layout and improving the connection to surrounding spaces, both interior and exterior. In one BOWA project, the wall separating the formal dining room from the kitchen was removed completely, creating a spacious casual kitchen. The new expanded eating area was a much improved use of the families existing space, and is now consistent with their lifestyle and priorities.

THEATERS – AS LIVING SPACES Media rooms have become more and more prevalent as families look for ways to incorporate the latest technology into their homes and lives. While these rooms began as home theaters they are evolving to fit many more aspects of family life. No longer is their sole purpose to showcase a movie while the audience sits quietly in the dark in rows of comfortable seating. Incorporating theater seating with lounge seating and counter space provides an opportunity to socialize with friends during the game or gather the family on a weekday evening. After a recent BOWA renovation, the theater is now used each evening as the family relaxes together with their own focus or project.

REPEAT REMODELERS Requirements for homes change as the family grows and matures. Often what worked wonderfully when a couple is starting out with small children is no longer the best option as everyone gets older and schedules, hobbies and family dynamics evolve. Many families find that they decide to complete multiple projects during the life of the home. In other cases it just makes sense to phase projects to minimize interruption or spread the costs over time. Year after year, a number of BOWA clients return to us ready to take on the next phase of their home remodeling projects. For one local family, BOWA recently completed its fifth project including a family room expansion, a master suite addition and garage, a guest suite renovation, kids' bath renovations, and an exterior make-over.

HIGH PERFORMANCE HOMES For some homeowners the desire to be "green" and minimize their impact on the environment will drive them to investigate new available options, such as high-efficiency windows. For others it is the desire to reduce the costs of maintaining a home. For still others it is to reduce the contaminants that may exist in our homes. Today's answers to these issues can be flaunted in the design of a renovation or seamlessly incorporated into a home without compromising the integrity of the design. Whatever the goal, we recommend to all BOWA clients that they consider having an energy audit completed on their home before undergoing any renovations. The resulting report will pinpoint many small changes that can drastically improve a home's performance. Often these items can be incorporated into the planned renovation without driving substantial cost increases. These can include adding insulation in unseen gaps in the home envelope, changing the means of heating water or updating outmoded appliances and equipment.

Top 8 Home design and remodeling trends for 2011.

Case Design and Remodeling identified what they believe will be the top eight trends in home design and remodeling for 2011. Based on emerging industry developments and customer requests, the list was compiled by Bill Millholland, executive vice president at Case.

- 1. LED or compact fluorescent (CFL) lighting – Homeowners are moving away from incandescent fixtures toward more energy-efficient choices such as LED and CFL bulbs.
- 2. High-quality synthetic materials for home exteriors – Synthetic materials such as Hardie Plank siding and PVC trim pieces mimic the look of natural materials like wood, but are much more durable and better able to withstand climate changes.

- 3. Large format bathroom tiles – Smaller square tiles are being replaced with tiles measuring 12" x 12" or larger, as well as non-square shapes (12" x 18"), producing flooring and walls that showcase more tile and fewer grout lines.
- 4. Multiple finishes on kitchen cabinetry – Complementary multiple stains and a mix of painted and stained finishes on cabinetry enables homeowners to escape the look and feel of a "cookie cutter" kitchen where all surfaces match.
- 5. Screened porches – Homeowners

SEE TRENDS, PAGE 9

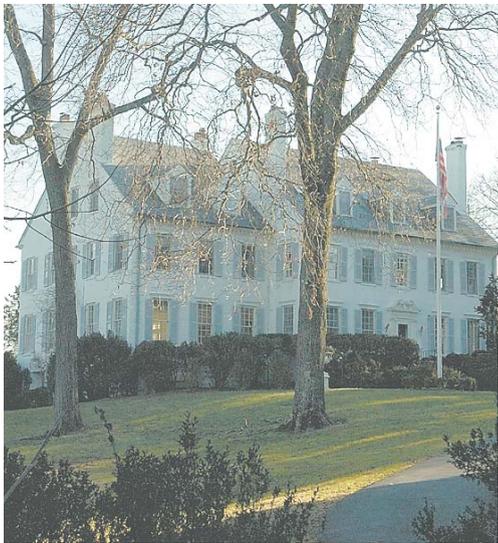

A predicted trend in remodeling for 2011 is larger bathroom tiles, as in the Reston bathroom remodeled by Case Design.

Trends

are extending their living areas with screened porches that allow them to enjoy the outdoors throughout the year without the nuisance of insects.

- 6. "Furniture-like" detailing in kitchens – Varied cabinet and counter heights, distressed finishes and furniture-style toe kicks provide visual interest and help eliminate the "component" look of many kitchen cabinet designs.
- 7. Heated bathroom flooring – Heated mats underneath bathroom flooring tiles provide radiant heat that is proven to keep homeowners warmer than forced-air heating systems, helping to save on energy costs.

- 8. Kitchen cabinet accessories – With drawer inserts for cutlery, spices or dividers, homeowners are making better use of every available space within their kitchens.

"The remodeling industry is poised for substantive growth in 2011 due to the number of options available to homeowners wanting to revive their living spaces," said Millholland.

REBECCA D'ANDREA

Before chemo, Rachel had long brown hair.

Farewell

and that huge smile, big blue eyes and spring in her step," said Brady. "I have pictures of her dancing in Central Park, and then I realize she's never going to do that again. It's just heartbreaking. But her parents left no stone unturned in trying to find something that would help her, so I hope they can find some comfort in that."

GINNY GRIVAS held the first fund-raiser for Rachel and has become a close, family friend. "I've never seen someone with such determination as this little girl, and she's causing me and others to re-examine our lives," said Grivas. "Whenever we're facing trials and tribulations, we'll remember Rachel and her strength and that will spur us on."

Referring to Winston Churchill's quote, "The highest reward for a person's work is not what they get for it, but what they become because of it," Grivas said it epitomizes how Rachel and her family have changed her. Soon after Rachel's diagnosis, she felt called to become a caregiver to Rachel's caregivers.

"As a result, I can't help but want to dedicate myself to helping families in their fight against children's cancer," she said. "I believe Rachel was a very special angel lent specifically to Jon and Rebecca. God knew that together they would provide the perfect love necessary for her light to shine so brightly that no one could resist being drawn to it. I'm so grateful for Rachel and so happy I trusted my heart and instincts. Her light will forever shine in me."

For their part, the D'Andreas thank the local community for the kindness and concern shown to their family. "Words cannot express my love and gratitude for every, single person who's followed Rachel's story," said Jon D'Andrea. "I only wish the journey was still going on and Rachel was still here fighting."

messages of support. He's only just begun his fight against leukemia, but those who know him remain upbeat.

"Alex is a tremendous athlete," said Biagi. "He's a winner — and that's why we know he's going to beat this."

Of Maximum Importance

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

By the time this column prints on Jan. 12, 2011, I will have met with my oncologist and discussed the results of my end-of-December scans. Given the Jan. 5, 2011 due date of this column however (as was the case with last week's column), it is being written and submitted for copy-editing consideration before the Jan. 7, 2011 appointment with my oncologist will actually have occurred. Ergo the continuing uncertainty.

This kind of waiting and wondering and mind-racing-out-of-control is nothing new for me, nor is it for any patient, terminal or otherwise, who is scanned/X-Rayed and/or examined regularly (women waiting for the results of a mammogram certainly come to mind). And though I don't think I feel any differently (meaning symptomatic/worse), I do feel something. And that something is inevitability. Consider the fact that my oncologist initially told Team Lourie back on Feb. 27, 2009 that I had 13 months to two years to live and Feb. 27, 2011 (the end of that two years) is merely six weeks away, and I'm sure you can imagine the calendar-watching I'm obsessing on.

And as much as I want to, try to, ignore that original prognosis (I hesitate to characterize it as fact since medicine is, after all, a science; it's not arithmetic), it is nearly impossible to do so. Moreover, I have made many changes in my life since first receiving my cancer diagnosis, and they, presumably, along with my attitude, have served me well and likely enabled me to maintain an atypical quality of life (for a terminal patient, I mean) and to outlive that original prognosis. However, as a long-time salesman, I can't shake one of the adages that many of us have learned to live by: "Waiting for the other shoe to drop." Meaning, something negative is lurking — which you can't control. And the corollary to that adage/attitude is inevitability: the longer the news is positive, the closer it gets to being negative. (Or for non-terminal salespersons — in general: "Every 'No' is one step closer to a 'Yes.'")

Not that I'm depressed or on any kind of mental slide, it's more that I'm living a very time-sensitive existence, according to my oncologist. And having been diagnosed with stage IV lung cancer which, generally speaking, doesn't go away, and in my case is inoperable to boot, doesn't exactly enhance what quality of what life you do have. So minimizing anything that is happening to me: symptom-wise, diagnosis-to-date-wise or plain old words-to-the-wise-wise, is challenging to say the least; and the bane of that existence to say the most.

But what else is new? Nothing! This recurring quarterly cycle is of course familiar to me — at this juncture, and comfortable, sort of. I go to the same places, see the same people, follow the same routine. And for me, "same" is good as is "familiar." It lessens the impact and eliminates any of the awkwardness. All of which contributes to managing stress — and stress, as I've been repeatedly told, especially as it effects terminal/cancer patients, is a killer (literally and figuratively). And since being the exception that proves the rule has been my mantra, I am happy to find a path of less resistance.

Still, knowing what I know and doing what I do, doesn't make life any easier, it just doesn't make it more difficult than it already is. And simplifying the cancer tasks (as well as most others, if you want to know the truth) is my goal, because I've reached a point where I can no longer be bothered. I'm already bothered enough.

ATTENTION ALL RECIPIENTS OF DE PUY DEFECTIVE HIP IMPLANTS
Don't rely on the company who gave you a potentially defective hip implant to advise you on your legal rights!

DePuy Orthopaedics, a division of Johnson & Johnson, has issued a worldwide recall of its ASR™ Acetabular System for Total Hip Replacement, after determining that these hip implants may fail at an alarming rate. The "metal-on-metal" composition of these implants can release particles into the patient, potentially causing serious and painful reactions — sometimes requiring complete revision surgery.

Reportedly, Johnson & Johnson has been seeking medical releases from recipients so that their claims adjustors can speak with you directly and possibly take down statements without your having counsel present — an unwise action for any recipient to do.

Having a defective hip implant in your body clearly demands having your own lawyer. You must be very cautious with dealing with the manufacturer or its representative without proper legal representation.

If you have a DePuy ASR™ product, please call us immediately, as there are time limits for filing a claim. You might already have problems with the implant about which you are unaware, so please contact us — and certainly do not forfeit your legal rights without talking to us.

Centreville Wildcat Swimmers Continuing To Work Hard

Team members show steady improvement in their events.

BY RICH SANDERS
CENTRE VIEW

Improvement has not been seen in the win-loss record for the Centreville High girls' and boys' swim and dive teams this season. Nevertheless, the Wildcats, even if team record is not an indicator, have progressed and gotten better and better as the winter season has moved on.

"We have not won any meets," said Centreville head coach Jennifer McFeely. "However, we have been very successful in dropping times this season."

McFeely has been impressed with her team's positive attitude, good work ethic and enjoyment of the sport.

"My measure of success is if the kids are improving and having fun," she said. "Our swimmers individually have dropped a lot of time in each of their events."

There have been lots of bright spots for Centreville, and more to come. Numerous swimmers are putting together terrific seasons.

Johnny Germanis, a senior and team captain, has qualified for next month's Virginia State Championships in both the boys' 50 and 100-free events.

On the girls' side, freshman Rachel Anderson has earned a seeding for the upcoming Northern Region Championships in both the 200 IM and 100-butterfly events.

CENTREVILLE'S team captains this season, on the boys' side, are Germanis, Mitchell Cole and Nick Cole. For the girls, team captains are Taylor Avery, Gina Masters, and Erin Hessler.

The dive team captains are Chance Roman (boys) and Mary Pat Colandro (girls). Dive team members are under the leadership of head coach Edie Rutz.

Other key members of the Centreville swim team include sophomore Abby McCranie (50-free, 100-back); Rachel Anderson (100-fly, 200-IM); Taylor Avery (sprinter, 100-fly); sophomore Johnathan Clarke (sprint free); junior Connor Culleiton (sprint free and back); senior Nick Cole (200 and 500-free); and junior Michael Helme (sprint free, fly).

"We have a very spirited team and they swim with a lot of heart," said Coach McFeely. "They are really doing a great job in the water."

Centreville has two more regular season meets remaining - versus Herndon High this Friday night at 7 at Herndon Country Club, and the following Friday, Jan. 21, versus Westfield at Oak Marr Recreation Center at 6. The Concorde District Championships will be held the following week at Cub Run - the dive championships will be held Thursday, Jan. 27, the swim preliminaries will take place Friday, Jan. 28 and the swim finals will be on Saturday night, Jan. 29.

The Northern Region Championships will take place at Oak Marr the first week of February (Feb. 1-5). And the state finals are scheduled for Feb. 18-19 in Virginia Beach.

At upcoming districts, Centreville will certainly be an underdog in both the boys' and girls' meets. But the Wildcats will definitely give it their all at the championship meet.

"I am predicting that by the end of the season at districts we will see more improvement from each swimmer," said McFeely. "It is fun to watch them get excited as they drop time and improve. We have extremely hard practices which are and will be paying off for them especially as the season comes to an end."

Local boxing sensation Jimmy Lange will return to the ring on Saturday, March 12, at the Patriot Center on the George Mason University campus in Fairfax, officials at Ice Promotions announced over the holidays.

In his most recent bout, Lange, a Great Falls resident who sports a professional record of 34-4-2, with 24 knockouts, captured the North American Boxing Association's U.S. super welterweight title on Nov. 6 when, in dramatic fashion, he earned a 10th-round knockout win over Joe Wyatt.

Currently rated as the No. 15th ranked super welterweight boxer (154-pounds) in the world by the World Boxing Association (WBA), Lange, the former star of "The Contender" TV show, will be headlining his 12th live pro boxing event at the upcoming March 12 event. His opponent has yet to be determined. Plans are underway for another undercard line-up showcasing many of the region's top rising prospects and established veterans. Doors at the Patriot Center will open at 6 p.m. with the first fight scheduled to begin at 7.

CVHS SPORTS REPORT

GYMNASTICS: The Wildcats' varsity gymnastics team finished fourth out of six teams in its meet on Jan. 6. Megan Riedel placed 3rd on the bars and on the floor routine. Centreville was scheduled to compete earlier this week on Monday, Jan. 10 against Chantilly, Herndon, Oakton, Westfield and Robinson.

BOYS BASKETBALL: The Centreville boys basketball team fell to 4-8 overall (0-1 in the Concorde District) after falling to the Westfield Bulldogs, 60-50, on Friday, Jan. 7. Centreville trailed by three at both the end of the half and the end of the third quarter, but could not close the gap. Cameron Owens had game highs of 20 points and 9 rebounds. Ken Ekanem added 13 points and 6 rebounds.

Earlier in the week, the Wildcats lost to W.T. Woodson HS, 47-43. Owens and Ekanem combined their talents for a total of 22 points and 12 rebounds between them, with junior Travis Whitney contributing 4 assists and 6 rebounds.

GIRLS BASKETBALL: The Centreville Lady Wildcats staged a furious fourth quarter rally Friday night against Westfield, cutting an 18-point Westfield lead to six, before falling to the Bulldogs, 44-35. Senior Erin Meador led the Cats with 13 points and 6 boards. With the loss, Centreville's record moves to 8-4 overall and 0-1 in the Concorde District.

On Jan. 4, the Lady Wildcats won a Thriller Over Woodson. Playing without injured starters Erin Meador and Taylor O'Hara, Centreville put together a total team victory with a thrilling 54-52 victory over the Cavaliers. CVHS was led in scoring by Chaney Forbush with 17 points and Jenna Green with 15. Haley Diamond knocked down three 3-pointers. Forbush and Katie O'Donnell each had eight rebounds with sophomores Kiran Ghuman and Tori Collar adding seven and six rebounds, respectively.

Collecting Food for Those in Need

Salon Antoine in Fairfax became a food drop center over the Christmas season benefiting Clifton's St. Andrew's the Apostle Catholic Church.

Two area ministries the church traditionally aids over the holidays — Our Lady of The Blue Ridge in Madison, Va., and Western Fairfax Christian Ministries in Chantilly — were the primary recipients of the food donations.

Thirty-three boxes with more than 1,000 items of non-perishable food donations were gathered and will help stock the kitchen pantries of both nonprofit organizations. Salon Antoine's Tony Chahine said, "I'm thrilled we could make such a difference for people in need."

The Rev. John D. Kelly, pastor of St. Andrew the Apostle Catholic Church, added, "Businesses like Salon Antoine don't have to do this sort of charitable giving, yet they do. On behalf of St. Andrew's, I thank Tony Chahine and Salon Antoine for their willingness to share."

UOSA To Replace More Sewer Pipes

"And we've added a 3,500-foot section needed to complete the Cub Run Gravity Delivery System."

That system is 13 miles long and consists of the Upper Cub Run, Middle Cub Run, Lower Cub Run, Flatlick and Rocky Run branches. Wastewater flows north to south through this system, and pipeline in almost all sections needs replacing.

Project cost is $27 million, with funding coming from UOSA's bond money, plus water-bill payments. The system was built in the 1970s but at that time, the pipe sizes were capped. The existing pipe is just 27-42 inches in diameter, but the new pipe will range from 36-60 inches in size and is expected to last more than 100 years.

The system was designed to take this local service area to the 1990s and a population of 45,000. But when the population here hit 100,000, it became evident that more capacity was needed. And with 108,000 residents now, that need is even more critical.

"We're trying to prevent future overflows — not building it isn't an alternative," said Senior Project Engineer Dave Wieller. "And we need to keep it in the same alignment and general corridor [that it's already in]."

The original pipe is reinforced concrete, but the new pipe is made out of a corrosion-proof Fiberglas. The new section will be some five miles long and will be sized to convey peak flows through the year 2050.

Construction began in September 2009 and is proceeding in phases from south to north. An area 80 feet wide had to be temporarily cleared during the work, but UOSA promised to restore the disturbed area to the property owners' satisfaction.

Currently, between 2 million and 12 million gallons a day of raw sewage come to the Cub Run Pump Station. So sewage is being pumped around the work area to maintain continuous service during construction.

Construction access is at Route 29, Wetherburn

Drive and Hidden Canyon Road in Virginia Run, Honsena Drive in Chalet Woods and Braddock Road near Cub Run Elementary. UOSA agreed to use each entrance equally — for about six months each — to bring in its equipment, and it won't use Route 29 during rush hour.

Wieller said the new section of pipe will go south of Braddock Road, toward Chantilly National Golf Course, and will use the already-existing, Braddock Road construction access.

"A 50-foot-wide area will be temporarily cleared to provide a safe and efficient work space," he said. Since that's 30 feet less than in the rest of the project area, Wieller said, "This will minimize the impact on the surroundings, and then that area will be restored after construction."

Depending on the weather, he said, "We're looking at March or April to begin construction on this section. It should take eight to 10 weeks, ending in June or July."

Since Park Authority land is disturbed when the old pipes are dug up and the new ones inserted, Wieller noted that, throughout the entire project, "Almost 7,000 trees are being planted and we've already planted 1,300-1,500 trees."

In addition, UOSA is building two footbridges over the Cub Run Stream — which will enhance local residents' enjoyment of the area. Wieller said the pedestrian bridge in the vicinity of Oakengate Drive is scheduled to be set in place this month.

The WFCCA then voted unanimously to recommend approval of the extra section of pipe. The Planning Commission has the final say and, according to Sully District Planning Commissioner John Litzenberger, "We've met with several residents and there's been a lot of positive feedback from them."

Furthermore, said Wieller, "The whole project was initially anticipated to take four years. But now, we expect to finish up two years ahead of schedule, so we should be wrapped up by summer."
