Treating Wastewater Problems

GFCFA hears information on wastewater treatment.

The Great Falls Citizens Association hosted a session on alternatives to installing a sewer system Jan. 11, hearing a proposal from an Oregon-based waste management company. Orenco, which offers options for self-contained and decentralized systems, presented three different options for the Great Falls Village Centre's wastewater management issues.

Many of the current septic fields aren't working as intended and many more are almost to the end of their expected life cycle, which has prompted the GFCFA to begin exploring ways to manage the wastewater around the Great Falls Village Centre.

Eric Lanning, senior lead development specialist with Orenco, presented three different options to the GFCFA. The first calls for installation of STEP (Septic Tank Effluent Pumping) pre-treatment equipment, which would transmit effluent about two miles to the county sewer system.

The STEP equipment involves a watertight tank installed below ground that treats the water and transmits it through a small-diameter pipe (usually around 1.25 inches). The effluent and equipment is monitored and managed by Orenco remotely through an internet-connected control panel.

Lanning estimated the cost to be about $1.3 million, in addition to the cost of connecting to the county sewer system. He also said that the pre-treatment allows the effluent that heads to the dispersal field to be well below county standards when it comes to Total Suspended Solids and Biological Oxygen Demand, two ways to measure the effectiveness of treatment.

"What heads into the system without treatment is usually 60 to 80 [milligrams per liter] Total Suspended Solids and around 150-190 [milligrams per liter] Biological Oxygen Demand," Lanning said. "What comes out is usually around 10 and 10. The equipment is targeted to do five and five, but it averages about 10 and 10."

The second and third options involved installation of STEP equipment, but instead of connecting to a county sewer, the effluent would be treated by some of Orenco's AdvanTex systems, which are containers that measure about 16 feet by eight feet. The container is filled with layers of synthetic fibrous materials, which the effluent is sprayed over.

Each system can treat around 5,000 gallons per day, and often the individual facilities are installed together in rows, with various configurations, depending on the individual needs of each property.

The system would use subsurface drip dispersal, with the dispersal field being below the property. Several business owners asked if the pre-treatment facilities would allow for stream drainage, but Reed Johnson, territory manager for Orenco, said that it wasn't likely.

"Stream discharges require a [Department of Environmental Quality] permit, which has to be renewed every five years, which can get expensive," he said. "And there are very steep penalties for non-compliance."

The second option called for one large treatment facility to treat the effluent from the entire village centre, where it would be dispersed into a single field. Lanning estimated the cost of that option to be about $2 million.

The third option called for the STEP equipment and AdvanTex systems, but without the large dispersal field. Instead, each property would have its own treatment facility and dispersal field. The estimated cost is about $1.6 million.

Lanning said the costs were "a reasonable characterization," without any engineering work being done. That was also estimated if all the current equipment in the village centre had to be replaced, but it's possible some could be re-used.

THE ESTIMATES given at the November GFCFA meeting for installation of a sewer system connection ranged from around $7.5 million to $10 million, though a more recent estimate from the county is $4 million, according to GFCFA Long Range Planning Committee co-chair Glen Sjoblom, because they had previously assumed the only option was to build a pipe underneath the roads.

"Because these costs were so much lower, I asked the county, and they assumed there wasn't enough

Fionnuala Quinn of Fairfax regularly hops on her Trek hybrid bike for local trips, including visits to the dentist, grocery store and book club meetings. A native of Dublin, Quinn grew up bicycling and using public transportation.

Bruce Wright and his wife, Kerie Hitt of Reston, also use their bikes instead of a car for many trips. For nearly 20 years, they commuted to work on their bikes on a daily basis.

As active members of Fairfax Advocates for Better Bicycling (FABB), all three hope to make it easier for the other 200,000 bicycle-owners in Fairfax County to get out of their cars and onto their two-wheelers in the coming year.

"We often hear 'I wish I could ride my bike to work or to school but it's just not safe enough around here,'" said Wright, chairman and co-founder of FABB, which has a core membership of about 30 residents and an email list of 850 area cyclists.

"Since 2006, Fairfax County has become more bike friendly with the adoption of the county-wide bicycle initiative, but cyclists still need better-connected bike routes, secure bicycle parking and education programs to help them travel comfortably and safely," Wright said.

IN DECEMBER, FABB was recognized by the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors for publishing a resource guide for cycling advocates in Virginia. The Guide for Reviewing Public Road Design and Bicycling Accommodations for Virginia Bicycling Advocates has become a popular guide for enthusiasts, outlining how to navigate the road design process.

"Agencies make critical planning, design and budgeting decisions that shape the new facilities that become part of the overall transportation system. This guide details ways advocates can influence the process," said Quinn, a civil engineer who was the lead author of the guide.

"FABB is clearly focused on improving our quality of life and health by providing better opportunities for biking," said Supervisor Catherine Hudgins (D-Hunter Mill). "[The group] has already completed a key goal of informing the community and providing directions on how to improve biking opportunities with its wonderful guide."

Hudgins, who has backed many cycling initiatives, said she thinks cycling generally helps create more livable, healthy and sustainable communities by "connecting us as

“I have a great foldable Dahon bike that is not getting enough use. I usually ride the pathways in Reston and the W&OD Trail when I have time, but not lately,” she said.

Supervisor John W. Foust (D-Dranesville), who named improving pedestrian and bicycle safety as two of his top priorities, agrees with Hudgins, and said he supports FABB's efforts. “We need to encourage people to get out of their cars and exercise outdoors. Improving the trail and bicycle networks are excellent ways to do this,” Foust said.

Supervisor Penelope Gross (D-Mason) also said she welcomes the input of FABB and other cycling advocates who help determine “how and where we can get the best bang for our buck.”

“In my district, I have been working with my appointee to the Sidewalk and Trails Committee to identify those areas in Mason District that would be better served by improving bicycle connections. My appointee, and my new land use aide, who is an avid cyclist, recently took a cross-district bike ride to examine trails, stream valleys, and even culverts under I-395 for possible pedestrian and bicycle connections. It was a wet and dirty trek, highlighting the need for improvements,” Gross said.

BICYCLE ADVOCATES contend that cycling can improve quality-of-life issues such as traffic congestion, air quality and childhood obesity. But opinions vary among Fairfax County Supervisors as to how much the County can and should do to make it more bicycle-friendly, particularly in a tight budget environment.

“I think there's always room for promoting trails and promoting cycling,” said Supervisor Pat Herrity (R-Springfield), but he differs somewhat with FABB's approach. Instead of dedicated bike lanes on roads, he would like to see cyclists using Fairfax County's 500 miles of trails (shared use paths), that crisscross the county and range in width from six feet to the newer 10-foot standard.

“Fairfax County has an award-winning trail system, and I think most cyclists would appreciate more trails as connections, rather than riding on the roads and competing with motorists,” Herrity said.

When the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors approved the comprehensive bicycle initiative in 2006, a program committed to making Fairfax County bicycle-friendly, the plan established a full-time staff position devoted to bicycle facility coordination.

Wright and Quinn maintain that without the County's hiring of Charlie Strunk, the bicycle coordinator for the county's Department of Transportation, and Jeffrey Hermann, a transportation planner, Fairfax County would not have moved forward with recent projects that make the area more accessible to cyclists. “They have been invaluable in helping us with these initiatives,” Wright said.

Since 2006, several projects have been completed

❖ The County's fleet of Connector buses were equipped with front-mounted bike racks;

❖ Creation of a county bicycle route map;

❖ Large annual increases in Bike-to-Work day participation;

❖ Bike lanes added along several streets including Lawyer's Road, Gallows Road, Westmoreland Street and Wakefield Chapel Road;

❖ More bicycle parking – racks and municipal lockers at many locations, plus bike valets at several events;

❖ Accommodation of bikes in the HOT lane crossings being constructed over the Beltway.

“Fairfax County has a long way to go to be ‘bike-friendly,’ but I believe it's moving in the right direction,” said Oakton cyclist Chris French, who regularly bicycles with his wife and son on the weekends, and also organizes bike rodeo safety sessions for his Cub Scout pack.

“We need to encourage people to get out of their cars and exercise outdoors. Improving the trail and bicycle networks are excellent ways to do this.”

— Supervisor John W. Foust (D-Dranesville)

“The addition of bike lanes and other bicycle infrastructure improvements in part of the county, the Tysons Bicycle Master Plan, and energetic bike programs in Arlington and the district are all encouraging signs of progress,” but he would like to see initiatives that put cycling on a more equal footing with automobiles.

French regularly commutes from his home in Oakton to his job at Science Applications International Corporation (SAIC) in Tysons Corner. He said the commute – about 14 miles round-trip – started as something fun to do on a Friday in the summer, but the benefits were so great he evolved into a daily bicycle commuter about a year ago.

“Bike commuting has a lot to offer. It's a lot of fun, great for your physical fitness, an excellent stress reducer, reduces your carbon footprint, and improves air quality,” he said, adding that if none of that is appealing, bike-commuting also saves money. “As a daily commuter, I save more than $1,000 a year on gas and related car expenses.” French is on FABB's email list, but is not a board member.

LAST WEEK, FABB held its annual planning meeting, and announced its top two priorities for 2011. Wright said the group wants to work with Fairfax County to develop the county-wide bicycle master plan, similar to the Tysons Master Plan, and to educate the Board of Supervisors and Fairfax County Public Schools about the Safe Routes to School (SRTS) program. SRTS initiatives include creating more bike/walking lanes to elementary and middle schools, and teaching bicycle safety as part of the 5th-grade curriculum. On Feb. 1, FABB is scheduled to make its first presentation on SRTS to the Board's Transportation Subcommittee.

“Ultimately, we think everyone can benefit by Fairfax County becoming more bike-friendly; it reduces congestion, allows residents the option of using a healthy, inexpensive way to get around, and reduces our dependence on foreign oil,” Wright said.

OPINION

Transportation Plan without Substance

Say no to liquor plan, a giveaway to big business.

If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is.

It's a major component of consumer protection and something we try to teach our children.

So consider this quote from Gov. Bob McDonnell on his latest plan for transportation funding:

"I'm asking all of you to support a plan that pumps billions into roads, creates tens of thousands of new jobs, adds no new debt, starts work now, and doesn't raise taxes."

Lots of money, no debt, no taxes. Not likely.

In fact, the governor's plan would take existing revenue that is paying for existing costs, like public safety and education, and forcing reallocation to transportation.

The so-called privatization of the liquor business would cost the state hundreds of millions of dollars in lost revenue that is currently being used for core state services, services that have already been cut to the bone. The one-time infusion of up to $400 million (literally not enough money to pay for a single new interchange on a highway) does not make up for the loss of revenue annually. Or the harm of possibly tripling the number of liquor stores in the state.

EDITORIALS

Who would benefit? Very large retailers who would get almost all of the licenses to sell liquor.

Fixing the transportation debacle in Virginia will require new revenue. Gov. McDonnell is more interested in saying that he cut the size of government and turned more business over to the private sector than a meaningful fix for transportation. Right now, his proposal is to take the insufficient amount of money being spent on education, public safety and the safety net and spend it on roads instead.

The result will be irreparable harm and not nearly enough money to improve roads and transit.

Our legislators in the Virginia General Assembly should just say no.

Judge the governor's proposal for yourself, read it at www.governor.virginia.gov/News under Jan. 14.

Priorities for 2011

BY SHARON BULOVA
CHAIRMAN, FAIRFAX COUNTY
BOARD OF SUPERVISORS

COMMENTARY

School employees.

When our Board adopts the budget in April, we will be investing in our community's priorities. The budget we adopt must be balanced and cannot include a deficit. As in past years, it is critical to have the community at the table with us as we consider funding decisions and I look forward to working with my colleagues and constituents through another community engagement process.

A number of things will happen in Fairfax County during 2011 in addition to adopting the budget — some Supervisor districts will change, 13,000 Defense employees will move to Ft. Belvoir, and state and local elections will take place.

In addition to these items, I will be working toward achieving several goals for the year ahead. These goals deal with growth and redevelopment, energy efficiency, and sustainability, economic development, and transportation.

Fairfax County's future is in redevelopment. As Fairfax County continues to grow, it is important that we get it right by encouraging growth where it can be supported by mass transit in compact, walkable mixed use developments. This will allow growth to happen in a way that protects the environment, our older stable neighborhoods and offers another life style choice that is desirable for our residents through all chapters of life.

Our vision for transforming Tysons is a model for future smart growth in Fairfax County. Look for development to advance during the next year (as a result of Comprehensive Plan changes in Tysons, Merrifield, Springfield and other redeveloping parts of the county) that will contribute to that vision.

In 2011, I will make encouraging innovation and collaboration for energy that is clean, efficient, sustainable, secure and reliable a priority. Energy efficiency is critical for industry to remain competitive in Fairfax County. It is also the right thing to do. In November I began plans for a Private Sector Energy Task Force that will work with our county staff and my office to identify strategies to realize progress toward meeting our energy goals.

In addition to clean energy, I will be working with our corporate neighbors in identifying and fostering the emergence of new industry sectors, such as personalized medicine and tourism. Together with our business community we can build a new economy in Fairfax County, and emerge from the Great Recession stronger than ever.

And lastly, improving mobility in Fairfax County that incorporates multi-modal options for our workers and residents will be a top priority for 2011. We must continue to plan for and invest in pedestrian and bike routes, light rail, Metro, and the VRE, and ensure they connect to offer efficient mobility options.

Fairfax County offers a great quality of life. The most important ingredient in making that happen is the positive engagement of our community. I extend my warmest wishes for the year ahead as we work together to realize its promise.

L'Auberge Chez François Among 50 Best Restaurants in the U.S.

OpenTable.com, the online restaurant reservation and review site, announced their list of the 50 Best Restaurants in the United States for 2010 with the Great Falls' L'Auberge Chez François among the top vote getters.

"My father, François, who founded the restaurant in 1954, always said his keys to success were simply 'stick to the basics; good food, good ambience and good service.' Dining should be a total experience, from the service to the setting. This is a tradition that has lived on at the restaurant for more than the 60 years and is something we pride ourselves on," says Chef Jacques Haeringer, chef and owner of L'Auberge Chez François. "We are so pleased and honored to know that our customers feel the same way."

Wastewater Options Studied

right away to go alongside the road," he said.

Johnson estimated that there are at least 2,500 systems being used in Virginia, and more than a dozen in Fairfax County. Martin Thompson, environmental health supervisor with Fairfax County, says that the systems could be a solution to the Great Falls Village Centre's wastewater problems.

"These are all viable options, and each has its merits and detractors," he said. "We'll have to look and see what the community feels is the best option. STEP systems are new to us, but it's something to be looked at by this community."

Sjoblom said he was glad to see an option that was "environmentally-friendly and cost-effective," and that the GFCA was hoping to get input from the entire community on this decision. The next meeting will be Feb. 8 at the Grange at 7:30 p.m. Zoning and other issues for the possible wastewater management options will be discussed.

Meeting the Artist

Drew Nussbaum featured in Avenue Beau Sejour Gallery reception.

By Shirley J. Gregory
The Connection

Modern artist Drew Nussbaum, accompanied by his wife Meredith, was the featured artist at the January Wine and Cheese Reception at Avenue Beau Sejour Gallery in Great Falls on Thursday, Jan. 13. The reception is part of the Gallery's monthly series highlighting the artists represented by the Gallery.

Drew Nussbaum and his wife Meredith at the Avenue Wine and Cheese Reception Thursday evening.

Nussbaum said, "I am specializing in large-format canvas paintings of contemporary abstracts and pop icons." Marilyn Monroe and Willie Nelson are examples of the pop icons he has captured on canvas, as well as the famous landmarks he has painted such as the Capitol in Washington, D.C., all with an abstract twist.

Also on exhibit was a collaborative yet derivative art based on Nussbaum's work created by

Tampa photographer Brian Adams. Adams manipulates relatively small elements of Nussbaum's paintings by photographing, digitizing, synthesizing, and remixing them to create new art, a whole new concept connecting traditional methods with digital media.

Avenue Beau Sejour displays and sells handmade art - paintings, jewelry, pottery, and more, juried for its quality and originality. Not just a gallery, it is a studio where classes are given, and a coffee-house featuring Starbucks's coffee, along with fresh-baked goods to be enjoyed in a comfortable setting with free wi-fi access. Located in the heart of Great Falls' artistic community, the Avenue is the creative meeting place for fresh ideas.

Avenue Beau Sejour is located at 10135 Colvin Run Rd., Suite 100, in Great Falls. It is open Monday-Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and Saturday from 12 Noon-4 p.m. Visit www.AvenueBeauSejour.com or call 703-268-5355 to get more information about the monthly wine and cheese series.

Dr. Valentin Cukierman

Dr. Cukierman recives Outstanding Teacher Award

Dr. Valentin Cukierman, Russian teacher at Langley High School, recently accepted the award for Outstanding Teacher K-12 (pre-college level) from The American Association of Teachers of Slavic and East European Languages (AATSEEL). Dr. Cukierman was selected after a nationwide competition, on the basis of his reputation, testimonials, and the prestige and success of the Russian program under his direction. Dr. Cukierman has built up the Russian program at Langley to the point where over 115 students are registered for Russian I for this school year. In addition, Langley students are actively involved in the ACTR Olympiada of Spoken Russian, with 30 to 40 participating in the Virginia Olympiad each year. They have won a number of medals and placed in the international Olympiada. He is also instrumental in planning the Virginia Olympiada, held at George Mason each year.

EMPOWER THE CHILD. EMPOWER THE MIND.

Looking Ahead to Summer

Parents begin signing up their children for summer camp.

BY CRISTINA ABELLAN-MATAMOROS
 THE CONNECTION

In spite of harsh winter winds, parents are shifting their focus to warmer months and looking for the perfect summer camps for their children.

"Late January is the time to start looking," said Grace Becker from Northern Virginia, mother of a 10 year old and a 13 year old. "It can be a stressful process initially, but every year gets a little bit easier. For me, I didn't have much of a choice because I needed the childcare, but every family is different." At most summer camps, enrollment works on a first-come first-serve basis, causing some to fill up quickly.

To help guide parents in their search, the Fairfax County Association for the Gifted has compiled a summer camp guide, available for $10. The guide focuses on "enrichment [and] academic camps," according to Lara Bove of McLean, producer of the guide. "I try to get as much of an overview of the camps listed in the guide as I can."

Music, drama, and nature camps are also featured in the guide, providing "exposure for niche camps ... that won't put a flashy ad in the Washington Post," said Becker, who volunteers on the production of the guide.

"Parents are looking for different things," Becker said. "There are working parents who are mostly looking for childcare for the summer, and then there are stay-at-home moms who look for more flexible camps [with] half-day sessions."

The availability of extended care hours is a growing concern among working parents, according to several camp directors. Kate Summer, who runs the Katydid Kids summer camps in Frying Pan Park, Burke Lake Burke, Colvin Run Mill Park, and Lake Fairfax Park, said that she has "a lot of parents signing up for after care." About 60 per cent of the parents who enroll their children in one of her sessions are working parents, according to Summer. The guide includes information about childcare for each listed camp.

Although specifics vary, most parents are looking for a safe, fun camp where their child will be actively engaged. "[I'm looking for] safety, fun, the typical things that parents want," said Bove.

Clifton's Elizabeth Schultz, mother of four, added, "I investigate for things that are fun. It's great [for the youngsters] to have an outdoor experience, [to] exercise brain and body ... and [to] give me a break."

But for many parents, money is also a concern when considering camps for their children. "Especially if you have three of four children, price is a biggie," said Schultz.

However, some parents such as Tim Higgins of Great Falls, say that expensive enrichment camps can help flesh out a college application.

Nancy Soschan, who runs a camp-advising program in Springfield called Summer Solutions, strongly agrees. "Wilderness adventure camps, academic enrichment camps, art camps are really great for teenagers," she said. A representative of Wilderness Adventure, a sleepaway outdoor camp in Roanoke, claimed that such summer experiences give college applicants intriguing essay topics.

Soschan strongly recommends sleepaway camps to foster competence and independence. "Kids learn to be independent," she said. "They learn ... sharing and communicating with others."

Langley Fashion Show Scheduled for Saturday, Jan. 22

Langley High School will present Once Upon A Runway: A Fashion Fairytale on Saturday, Jan. 22 at 7 p.m. in the Langley Auditorium. Tickets can be bought during the school's lunch periods in the cafeteria or by contacting Tricia Poythress, fashion marketing teacher at Tricia.Poythress@fcp.edu. Tickets are $10 in advance or $15 at the door.

The 36 students in Langley's Fashion Marketing II class are running the show, the largest production put on by the school. The Co-Directors are Alicia Underhill and Jacqueline Pifer. Fashion students have been planning the event for many months. Roughly 170 students participate, as well as some of the Langley staff and teachers. Once Upon a Runway: A Fashion Fairytale will present eight fashion trends: Bohemian, Little Red Dress, Military, Lace, Leather & Sequins, Alpine, Nautical, and Mixed Prints.

The show features original designs by Langley students, outfits put together by the models, and designs from several donors. The donors include CAbi, Cache, and Men's Warehouse Tuxedo. Paul Mitchell The School will do the hairstyles and makeup for all the models.

In addition to promoting the show itself, fashion students are raising money to support Suited for Change, a local charity that provides low-income women with professional clothing and training to help them find jobs and become economically independent. Cash and checks to support Suited for Change are encouraged; donations are tax deductible and can be given when tickets are purchased or the evening of the fashion show.

Great Falls Sharks Volunteer to Help Homeless

Members of the Great Falls Sharks 14U, a girls fast-pitch softball team (www.gfsharks.org), recently volunteered at the Good Shepherd Alliance Thrift Store in Ashburn. The Good Shepherd Alliance (www.loudounhomeless.org) is a non-profit organization that helps the homeless and families in need, providing emergency shelter, food, clothing, children's programs, counseling, and transitional housing.

NBC Channel 4 Washington Meteorologist Tom Kierein gives a presentation about weather forecasting and weather safety at Chesterbrook Elementary.

Weather 'Live' at Chesterbrook Elementary

To the delight of about 100 Chesterbrook Elementary fourth graders, NBC Channel 4 Washington Meteorologist Tom Kierein gave a presentation about weather forecasting and weather safety. "Thunder is our friend" was one of the important messages the TV broadcaster told the students, explaining that thunder warns us of storms and lightning, and gives us warning to seek shelter. The presentation, timed in conjunction with an upcoming fourth grade science unit on weather, explained the orientation of the earth and why we have weather.

Kierein gave the students a lesson on variables to forecast the weather, and why it is important to respect weather and pay attention to weather forecasts. After showing video of the earth's atmosphere and examples of deadly tornados, he cautioned the children, "The atmosphere is a wilderness. It is not easy to predict, and can act like a wild animal. Sometimes it is nice, and sometimes it is nasty and mean." He then explained how super-computers are used to day to help forecast the weather, what to do in weather emergencies, and how weather can even affect the price of food and other commodities.

Kierein, author of the book, Weather, published by the National Geographic Society was presented with a few Chesterbrook souvenirs at the end of his talk. Kierein offered to sign a copy of his book, which the school PTA will auction during its February online auction fundraiser. He featured his Chesterbrook t-shirt and thanked the school during his forecast on Wednesday's morning's broadcast.

MONDAY NOON

Not Just Any Wednesday

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Today is the first Wednesday – in three week intervals, going back nearly 22 months, on which I haven't been scheduled for my regular/recurring chemotherapy, per doctor's orders, of course. Given the fact that I've semi-outlived my original prognosis (13 months to two years) and that there are few lung cancer patients who've been infused with Avastin for as long as I have (and lived), according to my oncologist, he decided, pending the still unknown/undiscussed results of my end-of-December scans, that I skip this week's chemotherapy. He wants to wait and see. The risk-reward of continuing to introduce this poison into my system with its potential harmful internal side effects is a constant concern, trying to balance the positive with the negative. The negatives being breathing problems, hypertension, muscle weakness, among others. The most-positive being remission.

Twice before, during my most intense chemotherapy (March '09- July '09, a "cocktail" of three drugs infused for six hours every three weeks) when my white blood cell count was too low, the treatment was delayed one week to allow the cells to regenerate. Fortunately they did – on both occasions, and my treatment continued. That stoppage was, of course, precautionary – and prudent. The stoppage now (perhaps it too will simply be for one week) seems more serious.

Not because of any health reason per se, other than the obvious, but more so because of treatment protocols and how I think I will be monitored going forward: differently for sure, less frequently, presumably. What this likely change in frequency means to me is, that my treatment will now become more reactive as opposed to the feeling/sense that it has been proactive. And what little I know about medicine and health care is, advocating and being proactive likely saves more lives than depending/waiting and reacting does. I can't get the oil light illuminating on the dashboard advisory out of my head: if the light comes on, it's already too late; the damage is done. Being too late is what I'm afraid will now characterize my treatment. Generally speaking, stopping treatment/medication, etc., is better than starting but who knows? The doctors don't, and that's the problem now that I've lived beyond the original prognosis.

And it's the doctors not knowing that's unsettling. Being the exception that proves the rule (I'm still alive) has its benefits but, in so proving, you end up where few have ever been before. Uncharted territory doesn't begin to accurately describe where I feel I find myself now as I near/pass the end of my original prognosis. Where do I go from here? Treatment-wise, routine-wise, frequency-wise. On one hand, living this long – and believing what I believe, feels like a leap of faith. On the other, I feel like I've earned the extra time. And if I've earned any extra time, I've earned it doing what I've done; treatment, routine, frequency – diagnosis-to-date. The last thing I want to do is change what I've been doing. It got me this far, farther than my oncologist anticipated/advised on Feb. 27, 2009, so why would I want to change? I don't think I do but, apparently change is exactly what's coming; it's happened already. No chemotherapy this week. Hopefully, it's a change for the better.

But I'd rather not hope, I'd rather know. (So would the doctors.) I'd rather be monitored as closely as I have, not as closely as future symptoms dictate. Being asymptomatic – so far, has been a blessing. As I consider/anticipate the future, my fear is, now it will become a curse.

Basketball Season Heating Up

BY RICH SANDERS
THE CONNECTION

A strong second half effort by the South Lakes' High boys' basketball team was not quite enough as the Seahawks lost a well-played Liberty District contest, 71-64, to home team McLean last Wednesday, Jan. 12.

McLean, under head coach Kevin Roller, won its following game as well two nights later, a Friday night affair at district foe Stone Bridge, 60-47. The victory over the Bulldogs improved the Highlanders' record to 8-4 overall, 4-2 in the district.

South Lakes, which going into the McLean game had won consecutive games over both Jefferson and Stone Bridge, lost its most recent game - an 85-71 setback to visiting district rival Fairfax on Friday, Jan. 14 to slip to 6-7 overall and 4-2 in the district.

Another important Liberty District game last Friday matched Langley versus host Madison, a meeting won by the visiting Saxons, 63-51. With the triumph, the Saxons, under head coach Trevor Hess, improved to 8-6 overall. Langley, a much less experienced team than the Saxon squads that captured consecutive district tournament titles the past two years and reached the Northern Region finals last year, is a perfect 6-0 in district games.

Langley, which is guard-oriented this season, saw three players reach double figures as junior guard Austin Vasiliadis, senior guard David Adams, and junior guard Tristan Evans each scored 12 points. Senior guards Braden Anderson and Brenden Dwyer each added nine points and Daniel Dixon, a junior guard, scored seven for the Saxons, who led 28-23 at halftime and 41-31 after three quarters. Madison (4-9) had nice games from senior guard Ian Doyle and junior Nate Favero, who both tallied 13 points. Kavan Ranasinghe, a senior, contributed nine points.

Madison, two days earlier, had beaten Vienna-cross-town rival Marshall High, 52-49, in a district home game. The victory was the Warhawks' second in district play this season. Doyle (15 points), Jack Baule (11), and Favero (10) led the way for the Warhawks, who trailed 12-9 after one quarter and 31-26 at the half before coming back to win the close contest. Marshall, which received 16 points apiece from both Shelton

McLean will travel to Langley this Friday night to take on Brenden Dwyer - shown here playing defense against Madison - and his Saxon teammates.

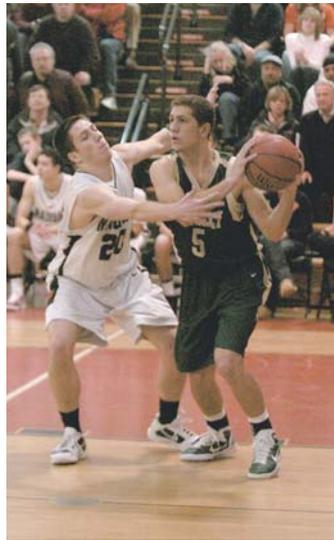

Hardy and Latrell Watkins and 11 from Connor Barrand, fell to 3-11 with the loss.

MCLEAN, in its win over South Lakes last Friday, received a game-high 22 points from junior center Thomas Van Wazer. Other big games for the Highlanders came from junior guards Gordon Rogo (17 points) and Sango Amolo (12). For South Lakes, under first year coach Andrew Duggan, Joe Daye, a senior guard, put up 20 points while junior guards Mitchell Dempster (15 points) and J.D. Wallace (13) had big nights as well. Other scoring contributions for the Seahawks came from junior forward D.J. Christian (9 points) and senior guard Darius Smith (7).

The Highlanders jumped ahead of the Seahawks early, 8-2, and outscored them 20-10 in the first quarter to grab early control of the game. South Lakes made a couple of good runs in the second half - getting within three points at one point - but could not overtake the Highlanders.

"We haven't started lots of games great," said Roller, the McLean coach. "It takes us a while to get into it. I think [starting fast] is demonstrating the team we're becoming. The rest of the game I thought we played disciplined and well. South Lakes made two strong runs to get back in the game in the second half. It was two pretty good teams playing."

McLean followed the win over South Lakes with the victory over Stone Bridge on Friday. Van Wazer, McLean's 6-foot-3 inch pivot player, scored 18 points and pulled down Langley sharp-shooting guard Austin Vasiliadis, with the ball, was one of three Saxon players to score 12 points in the team's win over Madison.

12 rebounds against the Bulldogs (2-12).

"Thomas plays the same way every game - he's very, very consistent," said Roller, of Van Wazer's 14 points and eight rebounds per game average. "He's our best rebounder and only takes good shots. He's one of our best three-point shooters. He plays very solid, makes good decisions with the ball and is a real good shooter."

South Lakes, a week prior to its loss to McLean, had beaten Stone Bridge, 69-66, at home on Jan. 6. Four Seahawks scored in double digits that night - Wallace (17), Daye (15), Christian (13) and Smith 12. Dempster added eight points for the Seahawks, who opened up an early 19-12 lead. South Lakes' balanced scoring effort helped offset a huge night from Stone Bridge's Jack Wohlfert, who scored a game-high 30 points.

In Liberty District boys' games this Friday night, South Lakes will play at Madison, and Langley will host McLean.

The Langley, McLean matchup is always a great cross-town rival affair. McLean fell to Langley, 43-42, at home on Dec. 17. This Friday night's meeting will be in a packed-out Langley gymnasium.

"The Langley game is always fun," said Roller. "I told the kids, the game is going to be fun, exciting and it will be sold out. Langley has run the [district] table so far. They beat us by a point and have found ways to win the close games."

SPORTS ROUNDUPS

The Madeira School swim and dive team, in a competition versus Holton Arms on Jan. 13, lost by a score of 107 to 78. Following the meet, Madeira School's record was 2-2 for the winter season.

"We swam a strong meet against a good team," said Madeira coach Rod Montrie. "While we won seven events, Holton's depth earned them a meet win."

Madeira junior Brittany Jansen continued her dual first place winning streak with wins in both the 100 free and the 50 free events. Also taking two first place victories for Madeira were senior Christa Ann Saunders, who won both the 100 butterfly and the 100 back races.

Madeira won the 200 medley relay with a team of Christa Ann Saunders, Brittany Jansen, junior Ann Griffin, and sophomore Maddie Alagia. Madeira also won the 400 free relay with Saunders, Jansen, Alagia, and sophomore Grace Johnson.

Coach Montrie also noted junior Kat Pflieger's performance.

"Kat deserves kudos for scoring in the 100 back and 100 free, as well as her great split times on the 200 free relay and the 200 medley relay," he said.

Madeira's next meet is this Friday evening, Jan. 21 against Sidwell Friends at home.

On Jan. 7, Madeira went up against Maret. Madeira came out victorious with a 150-50 triumph.

"This meet gave us a chance to look at our rookie swimmers and they did an amazing job," said Montrie, the Madeira head coach.

Madeira freshmen who posted notable performances included Ingrid Boyum (200 freestyle), Brianna Langster (500 free), and Marina Jackson (100 breaststroke).

Junior Brittany Jansen took two first place wins in the 200 IM and the 100 butterfly.

The Marshall High School girls' lacrosse program is offering a healthy alternative to staying home this coming teacher workday. Girls, ages 8-to-18, can sign up for the Lady Statesmen Winter Lacrosse Clinic. Unlike other area clinics, the Statesmen Clinic will run all day from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Cost is only $65. Equipment and supplies for the camp will be provided for free, including stick and goggles. Each child, however, will need to bring their own mouth guard. The Clinic will offer sessions for beginner to advanced players. A staff of high school and Div. 1 college players will be on hand to at the camp. For additional information please contact coach Depaz at ncdepaz@gmail.com, or visit <http://www.fcps.edu/MarshallHS> to download the clinic registration form.

The Vienna Girls Softball League is holding on-line registration at www.VGSL.org. Girls ages 5-to-18 in Northern Virginia are invited to sign up for all levels of play, from T-ball to competitive fast-pitch softball. Clinics for softball basics are now being held. Teams will be formed and practices will be held in March, with league play running from April through early June.

The Greater Vienna Babe Ruth Baseball League (GVBRL) will continue holding walk-in registration sessions for the Spring 2011 season on Friday, Jan. 28, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Vienna Community Center (120 Cherry St., Vienna). All first-time players must register in person. Returning players may use online form. Information is available at GVBRL.org.

Laurel Hill Golf Club in Lorton, which is owned and operated by the Fairfax County Park Authority, has been selected by the United States Golf Association (USGA) to host the 2013 U.S. Amateur Public Links Championship. The dates of the championship will be July 15-20.

"It is a tremendous honor for the USGA to have selected Laurel Hill Golf Club to host this national championship," said Peter Furey, director of golf for the Fairfax County Park Authority. "This selection speaks well for the vision of the Park Authority and Fairfax County in transforming a once desolate and underutilized property into a beautiful and challenging test of golf."

A championship like this draws competitors from public-access courses and speaks well of the Park Authority's mission in public golf."

Designed by Bill Love and opened in 2005, Laurel Hill Golf Club is situated on rolling terrain that previously housed the District of Columbia Corrections facility at Lorton.

For more information about Laurel Hill Golf Club, visit <http://www.fairfaxcounty.gov/parks/golf/laurelhill/>.
