HAIL DAMAGE

Dear Homeowner:

If you live in Northern Virginia, your siding and perhaps your roof and gutters may have been damaged by recent hailstorms. Locally based Wadden Construction, insurance replacement specialists for the past 15 years, has helped thousands of residents with their damage claims. If your home has hail damage, you may be entitled to a combination of a new roof, gutters and complete wrap of your home with a quality vinyl product.

The damage to the siding appears as indentations ranging from pea size to quarter size. The pea size dents are difficult to see without a trained eye. So please do not dismiss this letter if you cannot see the damage, as practically every home in your area was hit by hail. You may have damage and not even know it. Whatever the size, you may indeed be entitled to a complete vinyl wrap of your home.

Not all siding and Roofing products are created equal. Wadden Construction, PREFERRED CONTRACTOR FOR NORANDEX and CERTAINTED, is proud to use the Norandex Sagebrush (.050) the thickest vinyl siding on the market, and the Certainteed Landmark Lifetime warranty Architectural shingle.

Please call Wadden Construction at Finding the Dancer Within

Classical Ballet Theatre offers ballet outreach, education.

BY ALEX MCVEIGH
THE CONNECTION

While the ballet might seem to be in the realm of big cities around the world, the Classical Ballet Theatre in Herndon is bringing it to local stages and schools around the area.

"We believe in every child there is a dancer waiting to come out," said Cynthia Donavin, executive director of the Classical Ballet Theatre in Herndon. "Here we've created an environment that allows each child to be individually trained to be the best dancer they can be."

Donavin founded the theater as a not-for-profit 22 years ago, and they provide many education, performance and outreach opportunities around the Northern Virginia area. She opened her doors with three students, and within a year it had grown to more than 60 students.

An Hour At the Ballet

The Classical Ballet Theatre will be performing a 60-minute version of "Sleeping Beauty" in April. They will perform April 9 and 10, at 1 p.m. at 4 p.m. both days at the theatre, 320 Victory Drive in Herndon.

They will also perform at the Northern Virginia Community College Annandale Campus Saturday April 17 at 12:30, 3:30 and 6:30 p.m.

More information on purchasing tickets can be found at www.cbtnva.org, or by calling 703-471-0750.

"I've been dancing since I was three, and I just love getting onstage, it makes me happy," Roberts said. "It was the first time I've ever partnered with another dancer, and it was pretty challenging learning to work around someone else. From the second day on,

"We believe in every child there is a dancer waiting to come out."

— Cynthia Donavin, executive director

we have to form a trust, and it worked out really well."

Donavin says Roberts has a "beautiful quality of movement, she's an incredible performer."

While Roberts is among the more successful pupils of the Classical Ballet Theatre on the dance floor, many students realize the benefits in other aspects of their lives.

"Once my daughter started doing ballet, I noticed her working harder in school, because she knew she had to keep up her grades to stay here," said Jennifer Campbell of Herndon. "As I parent, I can feel the energy here, and I know it's the right place for my children. It's fascinating to watch them work so hard at something that's so hard to learn."

The teachers are ballet professionals from around the world, such as Alisher Saburov, who started in Russia at the Bolshoi Ballet Academy in Moscow.

"It takes a lot of energy towards the craft for each dancer, but the passion becomes infectious," said Saburov, who serves as the artistic director. "I like it here because we do so much outreach to many local schools, and we have a good scholarship program for boys."

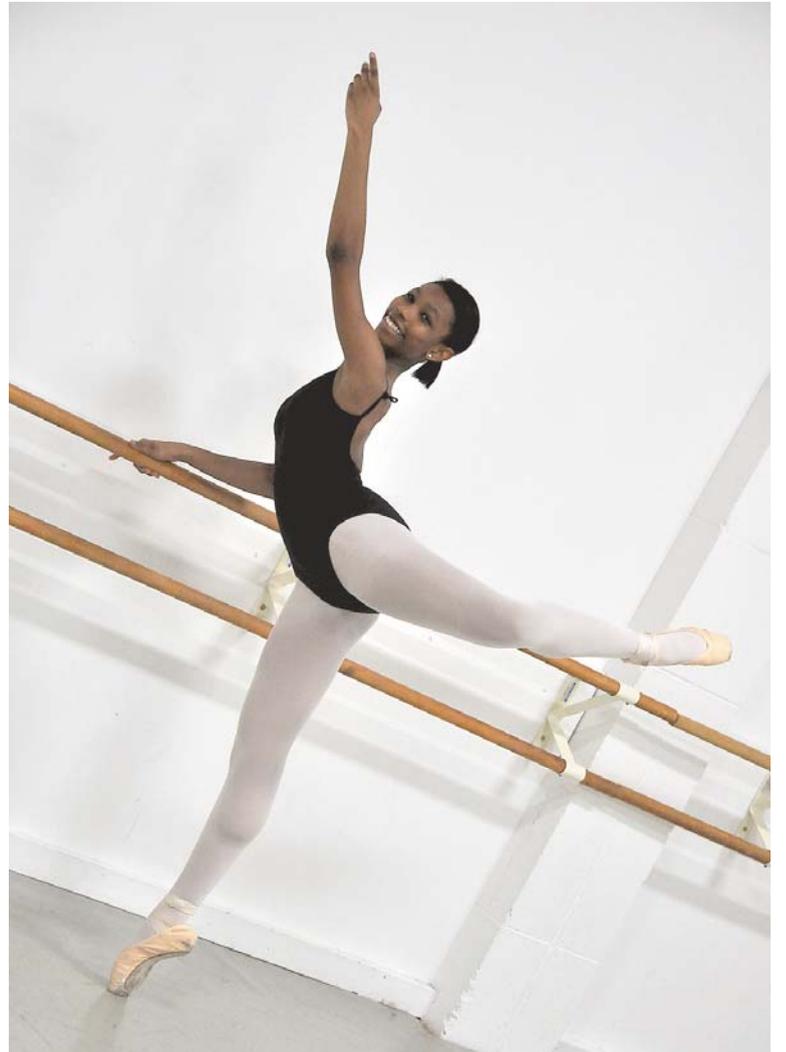

Donavin offers scholarship opportunities for boys because she says they are less likely to start ballet, and not having to pay for it opens up the opportunities.

In addition to outreach to local schools, they perform at local events such as the Herndon Festival, and offer groups attending their shows a behind-the-scenes look at the ballet.

THE CLASSICAL BALLET THEATRE will be performing a 60-minute version of "Sleeping Beauty" in April, as part of their annual Children's Series, which provides families a chance to see the ballet that isn't three hours long and requiring a trip into the city.

"A three-hour ballet can be intimidating, so the short version can offer an easy introduction," Donavin said. "You can see a high-caliber performance without going all the way to the Kennedy Center."

Classes are offered to boys and girls at various levels, starting at age three. More information on the Classical Ballet Theatre can be found at www.cbtnva.org.

Jasmine Roberts, 15, a sophomore at South Lakes High School and a student at the Classical Ballet Theatre in Herndon, recently completed an internship at the Suzanne Farrell Ballet at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

Time to Talk about 'Discipline'

Schools need to consider the best interests of the student.

Our hearts go out to the parents of Nick Stuben, a student at Woodson who died of suicide last month after an ordeal of navigating a suspension and disciplinary process that clearly has gone awry.

Nick was not the first local student to suffer from the process. In March 2009, Josh Anderson, then a junior at South Lakes High School, died of suicide the day before he was to face expulsion from the Fairfax County school system at a disciplinary hearing.

It is true that a teenage suicide never has only one cause; the students' deaths are not the "fault" of disciplinary policies. But no one can deny that the disciplinary process contributed to the unhappiness that these two students experienced.

We have heard now from many parents whose teenagers (and even younger children) have suffered through an inflexible and adversarial process that separates students from support systems and healthy activities and even schoolwork at exactly the moment that they need them the most.

Students who have not been in serious trouble before suddenly find themselves isolated at home, unable to participate in sports or clubs, unable to interact with peers or teachers on a regular basis. The results have been devastating for many families.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Prudent Response To the Recession

To the Editor:

I would like to respond to Catherine Lorenze's recent letter regarding my service as the Dranesville Representative on the Fairfax County School Board ["Time for New Leadership," Connection, February 12-22, 2011].

First, my colleagues and I responded prudently and responsibly to the recession. In spite of declining revenues and increased student enrollment, we did not narrow the curriculum. McLean and Langley parents lobbied hard to save student programs, and I listened. When our budgets had to be reduced by $465 million, we cut 1400 positions, froze pay, and reduced administrative costs by 15 percent and school-based costs by 7 percent. But we preserved critical programs in the arts, world languages, and sports. As the economy improves we must reverse the countywide increase in

Many people are seeking a dialogue to understand and hopefully modify the current approach.

Del. Kaye Kory introduced legislation in the Virginia House of Delegates that would have required schools to notify parents if their student was in trouble that might lead to suspension. The bill failed, but the idea that such legislation might be needed is eye-opening. Fairfax schools opposed it.

Caroline Hemenway founded Fairfax Zero Tolerance Reform, a community group that advocates for changes to Fairfax's approach to disciplinary matters, years ago after her family's ordeal with suspension years ago.

School board member Tina Hone (At-large) has been asking for data about suspensions and expulsions from schools staff, but reports that she has been unable to get good answers, leaving open questions about minority students being over-represented in students who have been suspended, among other issues.

The Fairfax County Board of Supervisors voted unanimously Feb. 8 to "make outreach efforts" to the local school system about student disciplinary tactics, hoping to begin a friendly and ongoing discussion about possible reforms to the schools' current system.

Fairfax County Superintendent Jack Dale made it clear he had no intention of discussing the disciplinary system with the county. Dale said in a statement that the resolution demonstrated a "serious misunderstanding" of the school system's current disciplinary policies.

Note that this exchange involved dueling "statements," not discussion.

class size that occurred early in the recession and bring back summer school. I am also committed to finishing the implementation of full-day kindergarten in all of our schools. The recession stalled the roll-out of this program. Five Dranesville schools have full-day kindergarten and nine don't. It is time to finish the job.

Ms. Lorenze questioned whether the school buildings in our area have received their fair share of capitol dollars. Much has been accomplished during my tenure. Colvin Run was opened and full renovations were completed at Great Falls, Spring Hill, Churchill Road, Franklin Sherman, Chesterbrook, Kent Gardens, Lemon Road and McLean High School. Longfellow's addition and renovation is well underway. Haycock and Herndon have received modular additions and Langley has a new classroom wing. Spring Hill will receive additional classrooms as well as a refigured kiss and ride that will improve student safety as well as traffic on Lewinsville Road. Langley High School has begun actively planning for its upcoming renovation. I helped ensure an earlier start date for Haycock's and Forestville's renovations.

The first phase of Thomas Jefferson's high-tech renovation is nearing completion and construction will likely begin next year. I was privileged to be part of the academic visioning committee that laid the groundwork for this project. Some years ago Mr. Moon and I were instrumental in increasing the size of the TJ student body, giving more students the chance to attend this excellent governor's school. The renovation will include a sizable addition to accommodate this larger student body.

As for Fairgrade, I felt from the beginning that the parent concerns were real. I met with many people, listened carefully to the debates, and encouraged my fellow Board members to pay close attention. In the end it was my motion that changed the scale and the weights, thus giving the parents and students what they asked for.

Our Dranesville students benefit from rich educational opportunities because of our many wonder-

Dale is correct when he suggests a broader approach of tackling teen depression in general, but this must be in addition to grappling with the challenges in the disciplinary process.

"I believe our efforts would be far more productive if we focused on the incidence of depression among our county youth and how our agencies can work together to tackle this problem," wrote Dale in his statement.

In the meantime, if you have a teenager in your family, it might be worth letting him or her know that they shouldn't sign any statements admitting they've done anything wrong at school without having the school call you first.

Jerry Witt, 81, of Reston, Dies

Jarold Curtis Witt, 81, a long time resident of Reston and Herndon, died on Jan. 29, 2011. He was born July 29, 1929 in Fillmore County, Neb. to Curtis Leroy Witt and Esther Marie Salmen Witt. Jerry was the oldest of five surviving children.

As a child, Jerry lived in Nebraska, Colorado and Arizona, sometimes with grandparents, because of his mother's health. Life wasn't easy for the family at that time. Among the stories told are one of him selling newspapers, barefoot, to earn enough money to take his mother to a movie. As a teenager, Jerry taught himself to play the piano and began his lifelong pursuit of health through diet and exercise. Jerry's mother remarked in later years of his intelligence and noted how as a child, he was curious about everything.

In 1947, Jerry graduated from College High School in Greeley, Colo. and moved to Denver where he worked at Regis University. Still a teen, he joined the Navy and served with commendation during the Korean Conflict as a radioman stationed in the Philippine Islands. While there he met the love of his life, Enriqueta Arellano. They were married in Manila on Nov. 23, 1954 and later moved to the US where Jerry continued to serve in the Navy stationed in San Francisco and at the Pentagon. After the Navy, Jerry worked at the Savoy Hotel in Georgetown. He enjoyed telling accounts of meeting scientists, actors, musicians and other celebrities there. Jerry then began a career as a civilian employee of the Weather Bureau and later the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. While there, Jerry received recognition as a superior satellite controller, retiring in 1993.

During their life together in Washington D.C. and Northern Virginia, Jerry and Henrietta enjoyed training together, traveling, dining and events in the area, especially jazz music. Jerry acted as Henrietta's conditioning coach during her participation in the sport of Taekwondo. He found some irony in the fact that his last months were spent at Sleepy Hollow Nursing Home, across Columbia Pike from the Mason District Park where he and Henrietta often ran.

In later years, Jerry lived in Reston and Herndon where he maintained a gym membership for him and Henrietta, as well as bike lockers on the W&OD Trail. Jerry was known for his kindness to others and especially his willingness to drive those in need of transportation to doctor's appointments, funerals and shopping. During his life, Jerry wrote music and poetry. Some of his works have been published. The themes of these works range from those inspired by his love for Henrietta to philosophical and religious works. A highlight of those later years was his participation in The Brethren in Harmony, a local Christian Barbershop Chorus.

Jerry went to be with his Lord on Saturday, Jan. 29, 2011 after being transported to the emergency room for difficulty breathing. Full time nursing care had been required since April 2009. The day before his death, he was observed in the hall smiling and talking, waiting for Henrietta to visit. He will be greatly missed by his friends and relatives, especially his wife of over 56 years, Henrietta of Reston. He is also survived by three sisters, Juanita (and Wayne) Ball of Greeley, Colo., Jacqueline (and Carroll) Cone of North Bend, Ore., Carolyn (and Thomas) Truitt of Omaha, Neb. and one brother, James (and Lorraine) Witt of Keenesburg, Colo. as well as three generations of nieces and nephews. A memorial and celebration of Jerry's life was held at Adams-Green Funeral Home, 721 Elden Street, Herndon, on Saturday, Feb. 5, 2011 at 11 a.m. Interment will be at a later date, next to his parents in Greeley, Colo.

7 Things You Must Know Before Putting Your Home Up for Sale

Washington, D.C. —A new report has just been released which reveals the 7 costly mistakes most homeowners make when selling their home, and a 9 Step System that can help you to avoid them and sell your home fast and for the most money.

This industry report shows clearly how the traditional approaches to selling homes have become increasingly less effective in today's complex and fast paced society. The fact of the matter is that three quarters of home sellers don't get what they want for their homes, become disillusioned and – worse – financially disadvantaged when they put their homes on the market.

As this report shows, most home sellers make the same 7 deadly mistakes costing them thousands of dollars needlessly. The good news is that each and every one of these mistakes is preventable. In answer to this issue, industry insiders have prepared a FREE, Special Report called, "The (Step System to Get Your Home Sold Fast and For Top Dollar."

To learn more and order your personal copy of this FREE Special Report just call, toll-free, 1-800-363-0356 and when prompted enter ID # 2000. You can call any time, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Opening Hearts, Changing Minds

Students pledge to always treat people with respect and dignity.

BY DONNA MECCA
ARMSTRONG ELEMENTARY READING SPECIALIST

Let me win, but if I cannot win, let me be brave in the attempt.

This oath, taken by the athletes who compete in the Special Olympics, was but one small part of a presentation given to fifth grade students at Armstrong Elementary School on Jan. 6. Ashley Counts, a Special Olympic athlete, came and spoke to the students about what it was like attending public school as a student with an intellectual disability, and how the Special Olympics has impacted her life in such a positive way.

The time she spent with the students included an educational component about the Special Olympics, an inside look at her heroes and friends, and an honest conversation about how difficult it was being ignored or teased in school.

"School was a very sad time for me," she recalled when discussing her memories of the way she was treated by other students. Her message to the fifth grade students focused on the importance of showing kindness to others and making an effort to include people with physical and/or intellectual disabilities.

The idea for Ashley's visit came about after Stephen Giese, fifth grade teacher, and I, as reading teacher, began a read-aloud unit with a fifth grade language arts class last November. As part of their reading workshop, the students have been listening to a book called Out of my Mind, by Sharon Draper, which focuses on the experiences of a fifth grade girl who has severe disabilities and is unable to communicate. When the main character finally receives a new state of the art communication device and can begin to "speak" for herself, the school community is stunned to discover that she is exceptionally smart.

With the book as the center of the teaching unit, the Armstrong fifth grade students have been led through a maze of complex issues that span topics like inclusion, tolerance, advances in technology, and fair treatment for people with disabilities of all types. Teachers have been trying to get the students to think deeply about these issues and have provided them with opportunities for role playing, discussion, journal response, blog entries, and the chance to engage with some special visitors who have deepened their understanding of how important it is to make an effort to include and support people with disabilities.

On Friday, Jan. 14, the fifth grade students had an extra opportunity to show their support and encouragement for people with intellectual disabilities as they attended the state level Special Olympic speed skating competition in Reston. Armed with supportive posters, the students showed up ready to be fans and cheered on the athletes. The teachers and students were thrilled to have a chance to watch the event and bring along some "Armstrong Spirit" to share.

With the end of the read-aloud unit now in sight, teachers feel that the last few months have had a positive impact on the students. "Students have inspired me with their thoughts, connections, and insights, as we have seen the world through the main character's eyes. I hope that this unit will help students better understand, respect, and include all people with disabilities," said Giese. His reading workshop students have each signed a pledge in their journals that seals their promise to always treat people with respect and dignity. The hope is that the students will think carefully about the words they choose to use and the treatment they choose to give others. As the ending phrase in the pledge states: "...we all have the power to open hearts and change minds."

Hornets Storm Back to Sting Chargers in District Finals

Hamilton leads Herndon to Concorde District title game win.

BY RICH SANDERS
THE CONNECTION

It took a little while for Herndon High senior point guard and star player Austin Hamilton to find his rhythm during last Friday night's Concorde District tournament boys' basketball title game between the Hornets and Chantilly. Hamilton, the District Player of the Year this winter, had a mundane six points at half-time and his team was trailing the talented Chargers by 11 points - a deficit which would extend to 15 early in the third quarter.

But ultimately Hamilton's game ignited, leading to an incredible second half comeback by the top-seeded Hornets and a remarkable 64-58 Herndon victory in the finals contest played on Chantilly's home floor.

"He turned it on and that's what I expect," said Herndon head coach Chris Whelan, of the 5-foot-11 inch Hamilton. "He's our leader."

Both Herndon and Chantilly were set to begin play at this week's 16-team Northern Region tournament, which began Monday, Feb. 21 (President's Day) with the Hornets hosting W.T. Woodson and the Chargers playing at home against Lake Braddock.

Hamilton, in his team's district finals win, scored 13 of his game-high 27 points in the third quarter as Herndon overcame its large deficit and took a 51-49 lead into the final quarter.

The fourth quarter was close the entire way as a determined Chantilly squad, which early in the final quarter fell behind 56-51 following a Hamilton three-pointer shot from the left wing, stayed in the game. A close range, spin move basket by Chantilly senior center John Manning got the Chargers within 60-58 with 1 minute, 44 seconds remaining in the fourth quarter.

Herndon held on to the ball for the next minute-plus with senior guard Jonathan Beltran (12 points) handling the ball a majority of the time.

Eventually, Beltran, after getting fouled with 26 seconds left, converted both free throws to make the score 62-58 Herndon. A missed shot by Chantilly on its ensuing possession resulted in a rebound by Herndon's DeAndre Thomas (7 points) and a fast break transition basket by senior guard Raleigh McKenzie (8 points) with five seconds left to clinch the win for the Hornets.

"Herndon is a team of winners," said Chantilly coach Jim Smith after the game. "I told our kids I was proud of their effort. We played extremely hard. Herndon might be the best team in the region."

HAMILTON, when it appeared the game was perhaps getting away from Herndon early in the third quarter, picked his team up with his sizzling third quarter play. Over a stretch of just over a minute Hamilton converted three long range 3-pointers, the final one pulling his team within 40-39 with 4:33 left in the quarter.

"It feels great to finally win the district. We've worked so hard. Each of the 15 guys on this team is special."

— Herndon's Austin Hamilton

"He's a sensational high school basketball player," marveled Smith, of Hamilton. "He came down and hit some deep bombs, hitting 25-footers. Give him all the credit in the world."

As good as Hamilton was, he had lots of support from his teammates. In that decisive third quarter, McKenzie, one of the better defensive guards in the region, nailed a pair of three-pointers and Beltran also landed a trey.

Beltran's long ranger gave his team a 44-43 lead.

In all, Herndon made six 3-point shots in the quarter and eight for the night, four of those coming from Hamilton and two each from McKenzie and Beltran. Chantilly, which was effective much of the night working the ball inside to big men Manning (11 points, five blocked shots) and senior forward Jake Wiegand (13 points, 10 rebounds), answered with three treys of its own.

But Chantilly, which displays terrific balance on offense between its post play and backcourt game, could not quite hold down a Herndon squad that found its game in the second half.

"These kids deserve this win," said Whelan, whose team struggled offensively in the first half. "They've worked hard and earned it."

"They woke up a little bit in the third quarter," said Whelan, whose squad outscored the Chargers 29-16 during that eight-minute stanza. "I told them at half-time to fight through it. Austin put [the team] on his shoulders a little bit [in the third quarter]. But the other guys - Raleigh and Jonathan - also played well."

Herndon (21-2) was unbeaten in district play to capture the regular season title. The Hornets received a first round tournament bye before defeating Oakton, 67-54, in a semifinals game last Thursday, Feb. 17. The Hornets were then set to meet Chantilly, last year's region champions, in the district title game. Herndon had beaten Chantilly twice in two close regular season games - 55-53 at Chantilly on Jan. 21, and 63-58 at home on Feb. 11. Chantilly (18-6), like Herndon, earned a first round district tournament bye before edging Westfield 42-41 to make the championship game.

As expected, Chantilly came out determined to get the best of its district foe in the tournament title game, building up the 15-point lead early in the third quarter before the Hornets got untracked.

"It was a great win," said Herndon's McKenzie. "All of us [from Herndon and Chantilly] have played against each other since the fifth grade. Chantilly [in youth travel ball] used to beat us with their height."

McKenzie was proud of Hamilton's outstanding game.

"He's a leader and you knew he'd hit some shots," said McKenzie.

Hamilton said there was no quit in Herndon when the team fell way behind.

"We expect to make runs like that," he said, of the Hornets' incredible third quarter. "I hit some shots and we started feeding off each other. It feels great to finally win the district."

We've worked so hard. Each of the 15 guys on this team is special."

Chantilly received fine games from senior guard Devin Ballam (10 points) and senior forward Trey Huelskamp (7 points). Herndon received fine play from senior Nick Delgado (6 points).

10,000 Customers and Counting

BY ALEX McVEIGH
THE CONNECTION

When Susan Martel showed up for her massage Sunday afternoon, she was informed that as the 10,001st customer of Rejuvenations Massage Therapy in Herndon, she would be getting a free massage. Rejuvenations had five people book for the 3 p.m. time slot, which was when the 10,000th customer would arrive, but she was the second person to book, her husband Rich the third.

But after her 90-minute massage, she came out to a better surprise: the 10,000th customer was a no-show, and Susan Martel was the 10,000th customer, winning a year's worth of massages.

"I'm just elated. I look forward to a massage every month. I can't believe it," she said after being informed that she was the winner. "I can't wait to use them."

Susan Martel credited her husband with finding Rejuvenations when they started coming in September 2009.

"It was one of the few that would take both of us at the same time," Rich Martel said.

Rejuvenations opened in its current location in March 2008, and owner Rick Morgan says they are different than other local massage places.

"Our goals are a little different than a spa or a chiropractic office, we try to create a place where talented therapists can come and work," he said. "We searched high and low for exceptionally talented therapists, and we're really, truly a therapeutic massage center. We just want to make people feel good."

It's that dedication to making people feel good that helped Rejuvenations weather the past few years in a rough economy. While people were cutting out expenses

Rejuvenations Massage Therapy owner Rick Morgan awards Susan Martel a year's worth of free massages for being the 10,000th customer. Martel was actually supposed to be the 10,001st, but the person before her did not show.

for luxuries, many people felt the massages were part of their general well being.

Morgan says while their growth slowed during the down years, most of their customers continued coming in.

"I think something like a spa, where you're pampered, seems more like a luxury, but this is clinical, therapeutic work," Morgan said.

He describes himself as a "numbers guy," and it was during the course of checking his figures that he saw they were approaching their 10,000th customer.

"I said 'Holy cow, that's a big number, we need to do something to celebrate it,'" he said.

Best of Reston Winners to Be Announced

The winners of the 2011 Best of Reston Awards will be announced Thursday, Feb. 24 at the "Revealing the Best" reception. The reception will be held at Google's Reston Office, 1818 Library Street, 6 - 8 p.m.

The 20th Annual Best of Reston Awards honor businesses, organizations, and individuals for their commitment to community service and improving the lives of others. The Awards and Gala are produced in partnership by Reston Interfaith and the Greater Reston Chamber of Commerce. Community members submitted nominations for the awards during the months of November and December 2010. An anonymous panel reviewed all nominations and selected the seven winners of this year's awards. Winners of the 2011 Best of Reston Awards will be formally honored at the 20th Annual Best of Reston Gala on Thursday, April 28, at the Hyatt Regency Reston. Sponsorship opportunities for the gala are available and details can be found at www.restoninterfaith.org. Proceeds from Best of Reston support the programs and services of Reston Interfaith.

Attitude It To The List

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

As often as I think - and write, about my cancer-affected circumstances and consider the past, present and future; what I did, what I didn't do; what I'm doing, what I'm not doing; and what I might do - or not do - living forward, sometimes I wonder if the reason for whatever success or failure I've had in causing/preventing any of it is simply good genes/bad genes (luck) and not really anybody's fault? An admission Robin Williams' character (Sean Maguire) in the movie "Good Will Hunting" spent half the movie trying desperately to treat Matt Damon's character (Will Hunting) into admitting that the abuse he endured as an orphan from his foster father "was not his fault."

When I was first diagnosed, my oncologist was not interested - too much, in what had caused the malignant tumors in my mediastinum (doctor-speak for the middle of my lungs) to appear. They were there and the fact that I had never smoked cigarettes or that I smoked pot in college - 35 years previous, or that my mother smoked four packs of Chesterfield King cigarettes throughout my childhood and into my early adolescence, was not of any particular significance to him. His interest was in moving/treating forward, not researching/recriminating backward.

Nor has his interest been ever since - too much, in what things/changes (for me); lifestyle, diet, exercise, pills and supplements, etc., I've assimilated into my life to assist my body in fighting the cancer. If I had to characterize his approach/treatment, I would say it has been traditionally Western. However, since I have now outlived any other stage IV lung cancer patient he's treated with Avastin, he said (in fairness, others may have survived this long, but due to changes in their insurance, change of employer or some patients moved away/not in his care any longer), I am, at this point an exception to the two-year rule he cited back in Feb., 2009. That rule being, and I use the word pejoratively, a time-frame/prognosis of 13 months to two years - for someone who presented like I did.

But maybe his job his neither to concern himself with the why or the how, but rather concern himself with the what, as in what to do next - and the when, as in when to do it? I imagine treating terminal patients for a living has to cause some sleepless nights and plenty of agonizing days. Watching patients die under your care, not because of your care and/or concern, but in spite of it almost, has to be a frustrating and challenging endeavor. And managing the stress that naturally evolves from making life and death decisions for a living; some of which, for an oncologist specifically, are not likely to prevent the patient from dying, ultimately, has to create a survival-type, self-preservation instinct in the doctor. Somehow, he has to find a way, I would guess, not to get too emotionally invested or too interested/focused on what any particular patient is doing. He's probably more concerned with what the patient is not doing/not tolerating, treatment-wise; not what, in my case, the patient is doing on his own. As the Philadelphia comedian, David Brenner used to joke: "It's not the mosquitoes I can hear that worry me, it's the ones I can't hear." I'm doing so well (comparatively speaking) that my doctor can't worry about me, sort of. As my brother, Richard says: "He's got sick people to worry about."

And I don't consider myself sick, either - even though I have stage IV lung cancer, have inoperable tumors and am characterized as terminal. I consider myself a cancer patient, nothing more. And perhaps, that's how my oncologist has to treat me, as just another patient, nothing more. I know that's what helps me get through the day. He can't worry - too much, about me and apparently, I shouldn't worry too much about him. We both have more than enough to worry about already. That's not anybody's fault, that's just making the best of a very bad situation.
