Summer Sweets

Nothing says summer more than a big, delicious scoop of ice cream. Yet our local stores can offer residents with a sweet tooth a whole lot more. Instead of ice cream, what not try frozen custard? There are more than a few local shops that specialize in cupcakes. Here is a list of local favorite dessert spots.

Summer Fun guide to desserts, ice cream and cake.

FLUFFY THOUGHTS CAKE

A little over a year old, this bakery offers cupcakes, macarons, truffles, brownies and other daily specials from its tucked-away office storefront. Owner Lara Stuckey previously worked at Cakelove. Stuckey rotates the cake flavors on a daily basis. Some of the "crowd favorites" include a white cake filled with passionfruit curd and blackberry buttercream and a pistachio cake brushed with a rose water syrup and filled with rose water buttercream and pistachio meringues.

NIELSEN'S FROZEN CUSTARD

Nielsen's Frozen Custard recipe includes both rich dairy cream and eggs and should be compared to "super premium" ice cream, according to this shop's website. The atmosphere at Nielsen's is one of a traditional ice cream parlor, with wood-paneled walls and furniture. Though the store only features two flavors, vanilla and chocolate, it is possible to order a "concrete" where staff will mix toppings like blueberries, brownie bits, oreo and peanut butter directly into the custard.

LE GRAND APPETIT

This small cafe has been family owned and operated since 1982. Their homemade desserts include carrot cake, cheese cake and chocolate cake. Patrons can also buy truffles or baklava. Soft serve ice cream, homemade scooped ice cream and sorbets are also offered.

THE CUPCAKE LADI

All of the cupcakes available at this Lake Anne storefront are made from scratch with organic ingredients. Special dietary restrictions — like gluten free cupcakes — can be purchased at this store. The owner's signature item is the Key Lime pie cupcake. Other cake flavors include vanilla bean chocolate fudge twirl, malted milk chocolate and lemon zinger strawberry cheesecake. The store also sells organic gelato. If a customer buys a Jaimie's Jimmi Jambo-ree cupcake, a portion of the proceeds go to the French Bulldog Rescue Network.

DANIELLE'S DESSERTS

Owner Danielle Poux serves everything from Sweet Potato and German Chocolate cakes to oatmeal raisin cookies and fudge brownies at her cafe located in the Tysons Galleria. A variety of cupcakes and pies are also available. According to the shop's website, the owner hopes to expand the menu to include gluten-free and sugar-free options this year. Patrons can buy pies and cakes whole or by the slice while in the store.

MILWAUKEE FROZEN CUSTARD

"Custard is not pudding, yogurt nor ice cream, which it resembles, but something like heaven in your mouth," writes Al Casey, owner of Milwaukee Frozen Custard, on his website. When he moved to Northern Virginia, Casey found his new home lacking in frozen treats that satisfied him as much as the custard. According to the website, Milwaukee Frozen Custard uses premium cream direct from Wisconsin and egg yolk.

KATIE'S COFFEE HOUSE

This coffee house is attached to The Old Brogue, a popular Irish bar and restaurant. Katie's feature illy coffee, teas and other drinks. The shop also sells baked goods. Katie's does serve afternoon tea for $19.95 per person Monday through Friday if advanced reservations are made.

EDIBLES INCREDIBLE DESSERTS

A few years ago, owners Alan Furman and Robyn Hanna found that their two flagship candy products — Robyn's English Toffee and Alan's Secret Recipe Fudge — were hot sellers at Dean and DeLuca in Georgetown. So, they decided open their own retail store in Reston Town Center. This retail outlet not only features cupcakes but over a dozen different kinds of fudge. The couple also sells gourmet truffles, according to their website. Red velvet, Butterscotch Baby, Chocolate Madness and Chocolate Oreo Lovers are some of the most popular cupcake flavors offered.

SILVA'S PATISSERIE

In addition to special-order wedding cakes, Silva's Patisserie offers a variety of European style pastries, including fruit-shaped Marzipan candy. Some of the more elaborate products include peanut chocolate cake, Grand Marnier cake, Key Lime tarts and Baklava. Silva's also has gluten-free products, according to its website.

Keeping Cool This Summer in Reston

Pools, festival highlight summer events.

BY ALEX MCVEIGH

THE CONNECTION

Mia Milosevic, 7, of Reston has a simple ingredient that has to be a part of her summer fun: water.

"I love hanging out at the pool as much as I can," she said. "But when we do go away, I like going to the beach and swimming, especially to Virginia Beach."

For those who aren't fans of salt water, beach traffic and the like, there are 14 pools open this summer that are a part of the Reston Association. The pools feature diving boards, wading pools, picnic areas and in some cases a slide.

Joseph Sgambati, 9, doesn't need anything fancy to play his favorite game, "Fish Out of Water," which is similar to the classic, "Marco Polo."

"It's the best game to play, and it's even more fun when you play with the older kids, because it's much harder to get away."

Elsewhere in Reston, there are plenty of other ways to enjoy a summer outdoors. The Lake Anne Village Center will host their annual Take a Break Concerts every Thursday, ending Aug. 18, from 7 to 9 p.m.

"I've always known Lake Anne to be a neat place to walk, fish or boat, but these concert series show what a cool venue it can be," said Sharon Sattel of Reston. "I came to see Ruthie and the Wranglers last week, and they were just rockin'. Being able to hear some music, sit by the lake, and then have your choice of place to grab a late bite afterward was a lot of fun, and I think I'll be out to a few more before the summer is over."

The big annual summer event in Reston is the Reston Festival, which will take place July 9 and 10 at Reston Town Center. The event will be open from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. both days.

"The Reston Festival is a great summer festival, and those are surprisingly hard to find around here," said Jason Brennus of Herndon. "I love the Herndon Festival, but it's always sort of early, and the Labor Day Festival is at the end, but the Reston Festival is the perfect middle-of-the-summer event that I think outdoes both Herndon events."

This year's festival will feature decade themed arts and historical exhibitions showing off the history of

The east section of the proposed Fairway redevelopment features a four-story multifamily building and townhouses with a central wooded park of approximately 27,000 square feet.

Members express disapproval of redevelopment, defer decision.

The Reston Association Design Review Board deferred making a decision on the updated plans for the redevelopment of the Fairway apartment complex at their June 21 meeting. While most members of the DRB expressed their disapproval with the plan, they voted to defer until after the developers go before the Fairfax County Planning Commission July 7.

DRB member Richard Newlon said that the decision made on the Fairway Redevelopment was essential for the future of Reston.

"This is probably one of the most significant projects that could influence or determine the kind of development we're going to have in Reston for the rest of Reston's life," he said. "We believe that a new development should be a clear part of the larger Reston Association community, strengthening the overall community fabric, avoiding the sense of self-contained town center style community."

This was the sixth different design the JBG Company has presented for the redevelopment of the apartment complex on North Shore Drive that currently has 348 residential units. The new design features a total of 804 units, down from the original proposal of 951 units.

"The redevelopment has a higher density than is currently in existence, which is consistent with Robert Simon's original view of Reston," said Alex San Andres, development manager with JBG.

THE DEVELOPMENT as currently proposed is split into an east and west section. The east section will contain a four-level multifamily building and townhouses with a central wooded park of approximately 27,000 square feet. The east section would also preserve 29,288 square feet of the existing tree canopy.

The west section would feature two five-level multifamily buildings that are connected by a parking garage, as well as a third five-level multifamily building and townhouses. It features a central wooded park of approximately 37,700 square feet and preserves 17,373 square feet of the tree canopy. San Andres estimated that 38.4 percent of the development would be open space, which is about 7.23 acres.

"We tried to be sensitive to the existing tree canopy, and the new design features larger setbacks along North Shore Drive, some of them more than what currently exists," San Andres said.

He also said that the increased development would help support the Lake Anne Village Center, because there would be increased connectivity through the development, and the residents would live between .4 and .7 miles away from Lake Anne, no more than a 13 minute walk.

Representatives of more than 6,000 businesses throughout Northern Virginia presented ways to cut costs on Phase II of the Metro Silver Line June 23. Members of the Fairfax County, Loudoun County, Dulles Regional and Greater Reston Chambers of Commerce, as well as members of the Dulles Corridor Rail Association, Washington Airports Task Force, Northern Virginia Transportation Alliance and more made their case to cut close to a billion dollars from the costs.

“Through the payment of real estate taxes, business license taxes and tolls on the Dulles Toll Road, Dulles Corridor employers and employees will contribute more than 90 percent of the capital costs associated with constructing Phase II of the Dulles Corridor Metrorail,” said Kurt Krause of the Northern Virginia Transportation Alliance. “Our collective stake in the final price tag of the completion of Phase II could not be greater.”

Krause said the message was not about stations, rail yards or labor agreements, but cost management to ensure the project is completed.

“For years this project, whether it be Phase I, and now Phase II, has always been regarded as the single most important investment to Northern Virginia’s economy and to our quality of life,” he said. “We have always believed that the transformation of this corridor will have a lasting, positive effect on our community.”

THE BUSINESS LEADERS laid out five areas in which it would be possible to reduce costs. Tony Jim Corcoran, president of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce, offers suggestions to cut costs for Phase II of the Dulles Rail Thursday.

Howard, president of the Loudoun County Chamber of Commerce, said the first was to eliminate the requirement that the primary contractor implement a mandatory Project Labor Agreement on Phase II. The PLA would call for all construction contracts on Phase II to be awarded to unionized firms.

The board of the Metropolitan Washington Airports Authority adopted a resolution April 6 to require the PLA. Phase I featured a PLA, but it was chosen by the contractor after they were awarded the contract, it was not a previous requirement. The Phase I contractor also exempted the subcontractors from the PLA, said Howard, resulting in about 40 percent of the work being performed under the PLA.

“Being a right to work state, Virginia has a lot of merit-based shops, and a lot of merit-based contractors say they cannot accept Project Labor Agreements, and they will not bid on the project,” Howard said. “It discriminates against Virginia’s workers. Ninety-six percent of our construction workforce is non-union. They shouldn’t be made to join a union in order to feed their families.”

Howard estimated not having a PLA could reduce the costs by 12 to 18 percent.

He went on to say that “given that 90 percent of Phase II is being funded by Virginia taxpayers, Virginia businesses and Virginia’s commuters, we think that discriminating against Virginia companies and Virginia’s workers is an outrage we simply cannot accept.”

Eileen Curtis, president of the Dulles Regional Chamber of Commerce, said that using an aboveground station at Dulles Airport would save approximately $300 million from the current underground tunnel proposal.

“The decision to construct an underground station is not only more expensive, it won’t provide any meaningful additional convenience to air travelers,” she said. “Worse yet, it will reduce the Authority’s capacity to support the funding and construction of its Tier 2 midfield terminal, which is essential to Dulles Airport’s growth as an international gateway and our region’s link to world markets.”

Jim Corcoran, president of the Fairfax Chamber of Commerce, addressed a rail yard that is being built at Dulles Airport, which could cost as much as $100 million, which would be used to service the entire Metrorail system.

“Every train in the Metro system can be parked and serviced at this rail yard, yet it’s being funded strictly by the Phase II cost,” he said. “Why isn’t the entire Metro system paying a share of this? We urge the Metro system and the Washington Metro Transportation Authority to fund a larger portion of the rail yard.” Corcoran also recommended that Loudoun and Fairfax Counties be allowed to enter in public-private partnerships for parking garages to create a long-term revenue stream.

“By allowing Fairfax and Loudoun County to engage in public-private partnerships to construct the station parking garages, altering the configuration of the Dulles Airport rail yard and pursuing the aboveground option for the Dulles Airport Metro station, the project costs for Phase II can be reduced by hundreds of millions of dollars,” Corcoran said. “These are the kinds of efficient and innovative actions that need to be taken for Phase II ... to be completed on time and on budget.”

MARK INGRAO, president of the Greater Reston Chamber of Commerce, said that Phase II cannot be allowed to end at the Wiehle Avenue station.

“Rail to Dulles is the single most important economic development driver in the corridor, period,” he said. “This project cannot be allowed to fail or the terminus will be at Wiehle Avenue. It is vital to not only Northern Virginia, but the entire National Capital Region’s economic future. Businesses and their employees in the Dulles Corridor have long demonstrated their commitment to complete this project in a financially responsible way. MWAA and its funding partners must now do the same.”

Hale gave freely of her time for the benefit of others. Active in the Reston community, she volunteered with GRACE (Greater Reston Arts Center) to present art to elementary school students. In the early 1980s, she headed the Reston Street Lighting Advisory Committee, where she successfully championed low-glare metal halide bulbs in lieu of the sodium vapor lighting used at that time. For that work, Hale was awarded the title of Restonian of the Year in 1992 by the Reston Citizens Association. She was active in the American Association of University Women’s Reston-Herndon Branch and served as branch Cultural Affairs chair and a mentor to local students.

A devotee of Virginia history, Hale read widely and shared her knowledge with others as an Historian at the Sully Historic Site in Chantilly from 1983 through 2009. Following her retirement from Sully, Hale and Bill continued their travels, visiting European and American historic sites, friends, and family. Hale was also an avid gardener and naturalist.

Hale is survived by her husband and two daughters, Carolyn Ament of New York City and Margaret Ament of Reston. She also leaves behind her brother, Richard Almy of LaGrange, Illinois; two sisters, Elizabeth Davis of Willow Grove, Pa., and Rebecca Graves of Clemmons, N.C.; and five nieces and three nephews.

Housing Confusion

It's true that many aspects of housing in Northern Virginia don't make much sense. Some areas have a significant number of foreclosed properties sitting vacant, currently identifiable by their foot-high lawns.

Hundreds of families are homeless, tens of thousands of families spend far more than they can afford every month for rent. Some families live overcrowded into tiny spaces. And tens of thousands, perhaps hundreds of thousands, of workers have moved far away from their jobs in Northern Virginia to housing that they can afford, only to clog the roads and foul the air commuting.

The sustained efforts in Fairfax and Arlington to provide a supply of affordable housing by developing some new and preserving existing housing has still left tens of thousands of families on waiting lists, and thousands more shut out of even the waiting lists.

But it is good policy to provide a range of high quality housing scattered around the area in all kinds of neighborhoods.

A current swipe at "luxuries" afforded to people living in some subsidized housing is misplaced at best.

Pursuing policies that would make affordable housing stripped down, basic and concentrated would not save money, and would create a variety other problems. Many cities and localities are still recovering from decades-old policies that resulted in concentrations of low income housing in one place.

We know better than that now.

The region will soon see its largest jump in new development, residential and commercial, around the Tysons Metro stops and the Dulles rail corridor. Developers, who will benefit from the rail and increased densities, will provide a percentage of affordable and mixed income housing there, a critical part of smart growth.

Fourth of July Safety Net

Parties and celebrations on the Fourth of July often involve alcohol, and the holiday is one of a handful designated as "high risk" for drinking and driving.

A local organization, Washington Regional Alcohol Program, provides free rides home for anyone over 21 by calling their SoberRide number.

WRAP's 2011 Independence's Day SoberRide program will be offered from 10 p.m. Monday, July 4 to 4 a.m. Tuesday, July 5, 2011. To receive a free cab ride home (up to a $30 fare), call 800-200-8294. You must be 21 or older to use the SoberRide service. Callers are financially responsible for anything over $30.

WRAP's SoberRide helps area residents have a safe way home on high-risk holidays. Since 1993, WRAP has provided over 52,000 safe rides home.

Parents are still the ones who must provide the guidance and safety net for their teens and young adults under 21. Summer is the most dangerous time for teen drivers. Remember to talk about it.

The Fairfax County School Board

BY JACK KENNY
PAST PRESIDENT,
REPUBLICAN
CLUB OF GREATER
RESTON

It has now become evident that about 60 percent of the current membership of the Fairfax County

School Board is retiring or will not stand for re-election. This means we will see a drastic change in the make-up of the Board. While a non-partisan elective office, it is widely accepted that there is an identifiable partisan bloc currently making up the majority on the board. The Hunter Mill representative Stuart Gibson will not be running for re-election.

There is an opportunity to effect some drastically needed changes. We need to get away from the liberal, Pavlovian response: just throw more money at the problem. In spite of almost 200 percent more growth in the school budget over and above our population, test scores have stayed virtually static.

Somewhere over 22 percent of our graduating seniors going on to a state college or university must take a remedial math or English course.

We need to conduct an outside, independent audit of the school system to see if we are getting the most out of our tax dollars. We need to enable each student to achieve their best, not just pass the SOLs. Remember, the SOLs are the bare minimum. We need to reverse the culture we have been operating under: that is to teach to the lowest common denominator. It is a rare child that does not have some passionate interest. We need to find that hot button and nurture it so each child can excel.

Of course, there are those who question where will the money come from? We need to reduce our administrative tail.

We have invested millions in information technology. Yet, our teachers are burdened with administrative minutia that should be easily taken care of with a few clicks on a keyboard. We can save a substantial sum spent on lawyers to defend against parental lawsuits because our current Board was not being forthcoming.

There is hope when we view the current crop of candidates standing for election this November to fill the vacant seats. In Hunter Mill, we have Nancy Linton, a professional counselor with two children in Fairfax County Public Schools.

We have several highly qualified candidates for At-Large seats that are busy out knocking on doors and listening to your concerns. A quote from the song "God Bless America, "Stand beside her and guide her..." means we vote on Nov. 8, 2011

SUMMER FUN

Reston Savors its Flavor

BY ALEX McVEIGH
THE CONNECTION

Summer is the time of fairs, festivals and carnivals, but most of them offer the same kind of entertainment. Ferris wheels, carousels, Tilt-a-whirls and Whack-a-Mole games don't change much. But at the 21st annual Taste of Reston at Reston Town Center, things were a little different.

"When my kids were younger, we'd always take them to carnivals, and they're fun, but sort of the same wherever you go. But the one that always stuck out to me was the Taste of Reston," said James Tippert of Reston. "Because instead of the standard hot dogs, hamburgers, cotton candy and funnel cakes the food was just incredible, it's from the best places in the area. And now that the kids are grown and I'm not chained to the rides, I'm free to wander around and eat my fill."

Tippert was one of thousands that came to Reston Town Center June 17 and 18 for the Taste of Reston, hosted by the Greater Reston Chamber of Commerce. More than 20 local restaurants came with their tastiest dish for visitors to try as they walked up and down Market Street.

"My two favorites were the burgers from The Counter and the gelato from Pitango," said Stephanie Eckert of Herndon. I was blown away when I found out that not only are they both in Reston Town Center, but they're right next to each other in that alley between Market [Street] and Democracy [Drive]. I think I'll have to venture there next time I come to town center."

THE FROZEN TREATS proved to be big draws over the two days, whether it was Pitango or the 7-11 Slurpee van located at the intersection of Presidents Street and Market Street. Staff dished out tray after tray of various Slurpee flavors.

"It's too bad the Slurpees are all the way at one end of Market Street, they're a good palette cleanser between foods," said Jose Jimenez of Reston with a laugh. "I'm anxious to see what flavors go well with what foods. I think a cola-flavored Slurpee would go well with the sushi."

Many businesses set up large grills to cook their food, and the smoke could be seen rising from all along Market Street.

Vinifera, which is located at the Westin in Reston, took it a step further in making a huge dish of paella. It was cooked over a wood fire in a pan that was more than three feet in diameter, and the smells of the cooking rice and shellfish drew quite a few people to their display.

"That paella drew me like a magnet since I arrived," said Thad Becker of Reston. "I could smell it from blocks away, and once I saw that huge pan I knew that's what I was after. It was amazing, the shrimp, the mussels and the rice, you could tell it was prepared right in front of you, it tasted that fresh."

ONE OF THE MOST POPULAR spots was Pollo Peru, which offered charcoal-broiled chicken. This was their first year at the Taste of Reston, but lines for the chicken often stretched far down Market Street as people waited to try it.

"I love that charcoal cooked chicken, but I'd never tried Pollo Peru before," said Emily Blank of Vienna. "I saw the line, and almost didn't want to wait, but I'm glad I did. It was the most tender, juicy, flavorful chicken I've ever had. I should have known when I saw the line, 30 or so people can't all be wrong."

Fairway Decision Deferred Again

a traffic study conducted in 2009, before the number of units were reduced. The study showed that the new development would generate an additional 317 peak morning hour trips and 375 peak evening hour trips that the roads would "maintain adequate levels of service."

Roads in the county are graded on an A through F scale, with D and above considered "adequate." Since the stretch of North Shore Drive in question has no traffic signals to impede traffic, it is rated as an A, and will continue to be rated as such.

JBG's study suggested the greatest level of impact will be at the intersection of North Shore Drive and Temporary Road, but with proposed re-striping and the addition of a turn signal, the level of service could be brought to a D or higher.

Despite the results of the study, DRB members were skeptical about the findings.

"I just don't understand how the level of service along the road wouldn't go down with all those new trips," said DRB member Ed Abbott.

DRB member Neal Roseberry said the development reminded him of examples they are trying to avoid in Reston.

"It feels like a little bit Fairfax Corner, Ballston or Ashburn just plopped down here," he said. "The apartments that are there now aren't anything special from an architectural standpoint, and this is too big an opportunity to allow what seems to be just a 2011 version of those apartments to go in there."

NEIGHBORING RESIDENTS said while they thought the design was an improvement over what is currently there, the traffic issue is a big one. Tom Garrity, president of the nearby Governor's Square Cluster, said he liked the new design, but was unsure about the traffic impact.

"As someone who looked out the back window at those apartments, this is a welcome change," said Tom Garrity, president of Governor's Square Cluster, which is located across the street. "But the traffic issue is very real. The cumulative effect of what's going on is going to be extreme. I appreciate the numbers that were generated, however, these things tend to snowball once they get out of the planning stage and into actual operation."

Roberto Ortega, who lives on nearby Waterhaven Court, said he wasn't sure that the pedestrian access trails through the development would help.

"I don't see the folks in the new complex walking to Lake Anne, there's no retail, there's no grocery store," he said. "I don't think the Farmer's Market is going to cut it."

Other community groups have recently passed resolutions or released statements in opposition to the proposed development.

The Reston Citizens Association passed a unanimous resolution May 23, saying, "the redevelopment proposal fails to address adequately the unacceptable impact this redevelopment would have on already substantial traffic congestion because the development is not within any Reston village center area, town center or half-mile walking distance from any Metrorail station, and is inconsistent with the adopted Reston planning principle calling for development to be phased with infrastructure."

Sustainable Reston, a project committee of the Fairfax Coalition for Smarter Growth, also released a statement in which they strongly oppose approval of the project.

"Our objections to the plan are based upon what we recognize as being its probable disruptive effect on the community's aesthetic, environmental and economic values," it says. "In addition, we note that the current plan continues to contravene the 2011 planning principles of the Reston Master Plan Special Study Task Force recommendation regarding maintenance of the character of existing residential neighborhoods."

Reston, as well as contributions from local restaurants, businesses and organizations.

On Saturday, July 10, the festivities will continue at the Pavilion Stage until midnight, with Time Machine providing hits from across the decades from 8 to 10 p.m. and DJ Edward Daniels spinning the hits of today and beyond from 10 p.m. to midnight.

The dance party will continue Sunday night from 7 to 9 p.m. with a Decades Costume and Dance Party and awards ceremony.

"I'm really excited about the costume party Sunday night, finally I have an excuse for my wife as to why I've got so many clothes from my younger days," said Ed Barnhardt of Reston with a laugh. "Now all I've got to do is decide between crushed velvet and stonewashed jeans."

And of course, no summer would be complete without a fireworks display. Lake Fairfax will open at 7 a.m. July 4. The Water Mine will open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. on July 4 as well.

The fireworks will begin at approximately 9:15 p.m., and will be shot over the lake, so as to be seen from almost anywhere in the park.

Having Fun in Area Parks

Visitors enjoy Lake Fairfax in Reston, Frying Pan Farm Park in Herndon.

BY SAMRA KHAWAJA

THE CONNECTION

Lake Fairfax in Reston offers just about everything in its 476 acres of land, featuring an 18-acre lake, a water park for kids called The Water Mine, campgrounds, a carousel, and a playground.

"I love going to parks," Irene Bowman from Richmond said. "Anything that's free is my idea of having fun."

Fees at Lake Fairfax are only charged for the Water Mine, carousel, boating and camping attractions. Recently, the park underwent renovations that included the addition of a boardwalk across the lake.

The lake, attracting fishers like Keith Halsell, who moved from Reston to Manassas, gives a chance to reel in fish without having to travel too far.

"Mainly, what I want to do is nothing," Halsell said.

His love for the outdoors allows him to sit back and look at the scenery he said. He added that bringing his children to enjoy life is easy and inexpensive at Lake Fairfax.

The park is friendly for kids, who have a multitude of things to choose from.

"You can go to the water park," Janjira Marshall from Burke said. "If the kids get bored with that, then you can bring your bicycle and bike."

In the open picnic area, where families and friends can grill and organize events, hammocks can be tied between the trees for a relaxing nap under the shade.

The aromas of food from Indian spices, to barbecued ribs, mingle above the heads of people as they listen to music or chat away.

While groups of adults can join together to play a game of soccer, friends toss Frisbees, and couples walk hand in hand along the trail.

"Being outdoors and playing games is my idea of fun," Kevin Ashcraft from Vienna said.

As one hikes over the hill, visitors find the more quiet part of the park where motor homes and tents are set up for camping.

Susie and Nick Lynch, who moved from the Midwest to Virginia, wanted to get the family together in a "family friendly place with camping and swimming."

The vastness, they said, is one of the features parks in the Midwest don't have so much of.

On the other hand, free summer entertainment is offered at Frying Pan Farm Park in Herndon where local entertainers are invited to perform. The agricultural layout of Frying Pan Farm Park is slightly different than Lake Fairfax as it offers a piece of farmland with chickens, sheep, and other small farm animals for viewing.

In the Frying Pan Farm Park picnic shelter, reservations can be made for renting the site.

What is your favorite way or place to have fun this summer?

— SAMRA KHAWAJA

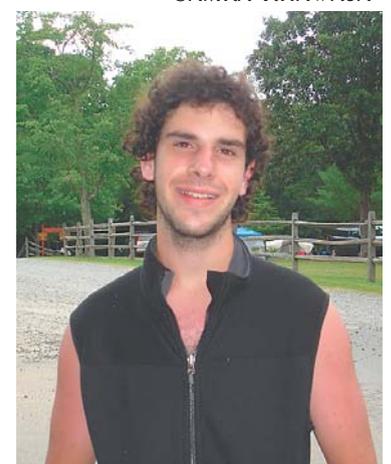

Antonio Mejia, Reston

"I like to go fishing with my friends or by myself. I like to go to Ocean City for fishing. Also, I like to come out to the parks to have some fun with my sons and family. Since there is no fee to come to the park, this is the rate to go for the summer!"

Colleen Elliott, Reston

"I love being around water. My favorite place to go is Virginia Beach. I go there every year. I'm like a beach bum. I enjoy cooking or grilling and being on the beach."

Jordan Schmuckler, Herndon

"I like coming to Lake Fairfax during the summer because it's during the time where I have a couple of days to hang out with friends and do anything. I don't mind working during the summer either."

Sophia Landeryou goes all out in the girls' 25-meter freestyle as she breaks an RSTA league record that has stood since 1981.

Andy Carro of Newbridge competes in the boys 11-12, 50-meter butterfly event during the Dolphins' meet versus Hunters Woods last Saturday.

Sparkling Performances

Swimming season swings into high gear with two girls leading the way.

Saturday brought one of those rare occurrences for our area — a beautiful sunny day with not too much humidity. Truly something that we don't see much of at this time of year. Maybe the beautiful weather was an omen for the sparkling performances put on by Joanne Fu of Lake Anne and Sophia Landeryou of Glade.

Joanne set a new Lake Anne record in the girls' 50-meter freestyle event with a time of 33.87, besting the record of 33.97 she set two weeks ago.

For the second consecutive week, Sophia Landeryou led her Glade team with record-setting performances. As part of the girls' 6-18, 200-freestyle relay, Sophia, along with Natalie Bardach, sister Emily Landeryou and Olivia Wolfe, set a new Glade record with a time of 2:12.76. In the girls' 25-freestyle event, Sophia took more than two seconds off of her Glade pool record that she set last year. Her old record of 17.86 was easily surpassed with a new time of 15.83. This time also set a new RSTA league record set back in 1981 by Jessica Paul. It was truly a remarkable day for a fabulous young swimmer.

Scores and highlights from Saturday's meets follow:

The Bobby Mitchell Autotrader.com Hall of Fame Golf Classic will celebrate 21 years this July when 45 Hall of Famers descend on Lansdowne Resort in Leesburg for a weekend of golf. 2011 Hall of Fame inductees Chris Hanburger (Redskins) and Richard Dent (Bears) will join tournament mainstays Darrell Green, Anthony Munoz and Sonny Jurgensen, for the 21st Anniversary event.

The Classic, which is run by co-chairs Tammy Darvish and Todd Heavner, benefits The Leukemia & Lymphoma Society (LLS).

The tournament will honor patient heroes Taylor Law and Alex Nieves, two of the many people affected by blood cancers. The Classic weekend will include a media and sponsor breakfast on Friday, a banquet and awards dinner on Saturday evening, and a tournament round on Sunday.

The main event — Sunday's Golf Classic — is open to the public. Fans may participate in the gallery and see their favorite sports heroes tee off throughout the morning. Gallery tickets are available for $5 at Lansdowne the day of the event. Both children and adults will have the opportunity to participate in a putting contest for great prizes.

Created in 1988, the Bobby Mitchell Hall of Fame Golf Classic has raised more than $7 million for the mission of The Leukemia & Lymphoma Society. For more information on sponsorship opportunities, foursomes or the banquet, or to purchase a raffle ticket, call 703-399-2900.

Carolyn was known for many personal attributes, including her love of life long learning, her positive attitude, her faith, and her kindness to others. She successfully pursued advance degrees at Virginia Tech, changing disciplines to teach English, and was continuing to work toward additional advanced certifications at the time her latest illness was discovered. She was an eleven year Breast cancer survivor and supported research efforts to identify a cure for cancer. Carolyn was very active in and a former President of the Manassas Kiwanis Club and always sought to help other people. Her faith enabled her to remain optimistic that she could tolerate the treatments and overcome the latest bout with cancer. She was a Sunday school and Vacation Bible school teacher at her former church, Westover Baptist Church. She will be missed by many different communities.

The family will receive visitors on Friday, June 24, 2011 from 2 P.M. to 4 P.M. and 7 P.M. to 9 P.M. at Pierce Funeral Home 9609 Center Street, Manassas, VA, 20110. Law & Order: Ocala, The Day After

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

After sleeping on it, I woke up the next morning wondering what the bank was doing/planning to do – if anything, to catch this thief and retrieve the $3,500, which was now really their money since I'm likely to be made whole. I had been told – and saw, actually, when I went to my branch yesterday, a photocopy of the actual withdrawal slip with my wife's signature on it from the Ocala, FL. branch where this fraudulent transaction had occurred. Moreover, it was explained to me that this woman had a copy of my wife's driver's license as well (presumably altered with this woman's photograph), which provided enough of a signature and identification match that the bank felt compelled to authorize the withdrawal. After all, the depositor is entitled to withdraw their own money. And so it happened with nary a flag waved, red or other wise – until I raised it the day of. (See last week's column: "Law & Order: Ocala, The Day Of.")

Since the bank was following procedure – as it seemed to me during our phone and in-person meetings, I, too, started to follow a procedure – in my head, the procedure the bank might follow to identify and locate this thief and retrieve her ill-gotten gains. Given my hours of experience watching the CBS "procedural dramas" CSI/NCIS and the NBC Law & Order franchise on television, I felt fairly capable of solving this crime.

Since the bank had a copy of the actual withdrawal slip used for this transaction, I wondered then, presuming the "withdrawer" was not wearing gloves – in Florida, in May, that perhaps there were usable fingerprints or even DNA from the slip itself. And if there were, accessing AFIS (Automated Fingerprint Identification System) and/or CODIS (Combined DNA Index System) might "get a hit," as they say on television (maybe even real life, too). In addition, from personal observation (and from watching these programs), I know banks have video cameras pointed at the teller windows. It seems plausible to me that the bank could use the time stamp on the withdrawal entry (since such transactions are routinely processed by computer) to sync up with the time stamp on the video to generate a photograph of the woman who made this withdrawal.

If this means of identification was not sufficient, due to camera angles or clothing or whatever, perhaps the bank could use the same video camera – if it had a wide enough view, to follow the movements of this woman as she exited the bank. Once outside, the camera in the ATM machine or any other local security/surveillance cameras might capture her "leaving the scene." And if she left by car – which was likewise captured on video, traffic cameras (presuming they are in use in Ocala, FL.) could be used, according to the shows I watch, to further track her movements. Also, in one of the camera angles, perhaps the car's license plate number and state of registration could be enhanced providing the authorities a potential means of identifying the owner of this vehicle. "Running the plate" through the Motor Vehicle Administration database could provide a current name and address and, Bob's your uncle, the thieves could soon be captured at their home – counting their/my/our money.

Now if the car was a rental, the authorities could get a copy of the credit card used for the rental and garner even more information. In learning that number, its usage could be monitored. Now having a name and a credit card, perhaps other personal-type information could be learned, like whether the suspect has a cell phone, which most people have. Once having that cell phone number, its calls could also be monitored and "pings" from cell towers would indicate, in real-time almost, where the suspects were at a certain time.

If the suspects used "throw-away" cell phones, had no credit cards, stole the car and all the video cameras showed no compelling means of identifying or even tracking the thief, then CSI:Ocala likely won't make it onto the fall schedule.
