A Good Year for Incumbents

Democrats retain power in Fairfax County, GOP celebrates statewide gains.

BY VICTORIA ROSS
THE CONNECTION

The anti-incumbent mood reflected in national polls did not express itself in Fairfax County when voters cast their ballots on Election Day.

With 99 candidates to pick from, and almost every state and local office up for reelection, voters overwhelmingly returned incumbents to office. And incumbent in Fairfax County typically means Democrat.

The Fairfax County Board of Supervisors remains the same, with a 7-3 Democratic majority. Chairman Sharon Bulova (D-At-large) — who first won the at-large seat in a 2009 special election — cruised to victory with nearly 60 percent of the vote over her Republican opponent Michael “Spike” Williams. Supervisor John Cook (R) held on to his Braddock District seat by a razor-thin margin, after a scathing and closely-watched battle with his Democratic challenger, Janet Oleszek.

On the 12-member Fairfax County School Board, the race that generated the most heated speculation, voters returned every incumbent, and elected newcomers who, with one exception, identified themselves as Democrats.

Although Republican hopes for more of a foothold in Fairfax County failed, GOP gains in the rest of the state effectively transferred control of the state legislature to Republicans.

The state Senate, which had a Democratic edge of 22-18, is now evenly split 20-20 between Republicans and Democrats. Lt. Gov. Bill Bolling, a Republican who was not on this year’s ballot, now wields the power to cast any tie-breaking votes. The Republicans increased their majority in the House of Delegates from 61-39 to 68-32. Republicans now control both chambers of the General Assembly and the governor’s mansion for the second time since the Civil War.

Virginia General Assembly

As the campaign signs come down, and post-election navel-gazing goes up, the question of “who

State Sen. Chap Petersen (D-34) said he is concerned about the “inflammatory rhetoric” from state Republicans during an interview Friday in his Fairfax City law office. “The rhetoric from the Republicans right now is ‘we’re in full control.’ But the power should reflect the 20-20 split,” Petersen said.

won?” shifts to “what does it all mean?”

“I think the real question is what the Republican gains in the state Senate will mean,” said Stephen Farnsworth, a Virginia political expert and professor at George Mason University. “It’s going to be a tough time for Northern Virginia, when you look at the make-up of who controls the levers of power in Richmond.”

Farnsworth said funding for transportation and education are key issues on the table. “There’s a pretty valid claim that even though [Northern Virginia] pays more than its fair share to Richmond, there’s not going to be any attempt to equalize the resources. When Virginia goes from Democratic to Republican, the power base moves south.”

Democrats say they are not just concerned with the shift in party, but with what they think may be a

31st Senate District

Democrat Barbara Favola defeated Republican Caren Merrick for the open 31st district senate seat, which was vacated by the retiring Democratic incumbent Mary Margaret Whipple. Favola, a member of the Arlington County Board of Supervisors, won Arlington County 71 percent to 29 percent. Merrick won the parts of the 31st district in Fairfax and Loudoun County, by 53 percent to 47 percent and 55 percent to 45 percent, respectively.

Favola said that creating and maintaining job growth and an educated workforce “are the things I care about, and I want them to continue.”

Barbara Favola

34th Delegate district

Incumbent Barbara Comstock (R) won her first re-election bid over Democratic challenger Pamela Danner 55 percent to 45 percent. The district had a higher percentage turnout, 35 percent, than the 30 percent projected around the state.

Comstock says she hopes to build on the community relationships she’s developed over the last term, including working with groups such as the McLean Citizens Association and the Great Falls Citizens Association, on local issues such as the Leesburg Pike-Georgetown Pike intersection plan.

Comstock said that she hopes to take that same community-oriented approach to the Route 7 widening project.

“I’m committed to making sure Virginia stays number one in jobs, it’s going to be the main thing that provides the revenue for education and transportation re-investment,” she said. “As a government, we’re focusing on logical growth, and I plan to do everything in my power to make sure it happens.”

Barbara Comstock

Dranesville Supervisor

John Foust (D) won re-election to his second term, defeating Republican challenger Dennis Husch 61 percent to 39 percent. He won all 30 precincts in the district by 5,360 votes.

Foust said he planned to focus his next term on the widening of Route 7 from Tysons Corner to Reston, secure more funding for Tysons redevelopment and Dulles Metrorail Phase Two.

He said a priority would be to “find the right balance of infrastructure in Tysons,” because, along with Dulles Metro, it will serve as the economic engine of the region.

When it comes to funding Phase Two of the rail, Foust said he wants to look at funding sources that will not increase the burden on taxpayers who drive the Dulles Toll Road.

Foust also said it would be a “huge mistake” not to finish Phase Two of the Silver Line.

John Foust

Dranesville School Board

Janie Strauss won 21 of 30 precincts in the Dranesville District. Eighteen of the precincts were decided by less than 100 votes, with Strauss winning 12 of those. The Langley precinct, which Epstein took, was decided by only 25 votes.

Strauss says she intends to use future funding to buy down the class size in the Dranesville District, which are among the largest in the county. “As money becomes available, I would like to put those additional resources back into the schools with larger class sizes,” she said.

Strauss also said she hopes to move beyond standardized tests.

“We have to move away from the overemphasis of [Standards of Learning tests], we’ve got to get back to higher-level problem solving,” she said. “I believe we can create some engaging, wonderful problem solving projects for our 11th and 12th graders that will be interesting and appropriate for what parents are asking for.”

Quieting McLean's Skies?

Air traffic controllers provide update on plane noise in McLean.

BY ALEX McVEIGH
THE CONNECTION

Charles Johnson of McLean is no stranger to plane noise. Living a few miles away from the Potomac River, the sound often supplants his alarm clock when it comes to waking up in the morning.

"It's more than just a sound, it's a feeling. You can feel your windows rattling, and the house vibrating," he said. "When we had the earthquake back in August, I paid it no mind until it continued for longer than the planes do."

Johnson isn't alone in feeling drowned out by airplane noise as planes from Reagan National Airport fly north along the Potomac River before finding their course, and often times they pass over McLean.

That's why the McLean Citizens Association, along with the office of U.S. Rep. Frank Wolf (R-10) hosted a community forum at the Old Firehouse Teen Center Tuesday, Nov. 8, to hear about ways the noise might be quieting down.

"We got a call from the congressman's office earlier in the fall and they said people would like to address the airplane noise and the new GPS system they're starting to use," said Rob Jackson, president of the MCA.

As currently planned, planes leaving from National Airport must travel north to leave the area, but they are limited in how far they go west because of the restricted airspace over Washington, D.C.

"No aircraft can penetrate the airspace [over Washington, D.C.], so we have to go around it, take angles to get away from it," said Bennie Hutto, vice president of the Potomac National Air Traffic Controllers Association. "This is a big issue when it comes to getting airplanes in and out."

Planes go north along the river, and begin turning at the American Legion Bridge. Hutto says the concern has been that some aircraft do not follow the bend all the way, and the cut corners lead to planes flying over parts of McLean, especially the ones that are closer to the river.

Hutto said that in February 2012, a new Radio Navigation system (RNAV) will come into use, which should make sure more planes stay on the proper path.

"It's more precise, it is point-to-point navigation," he said. "We take extreme precaution to minimize the noise that comes in on both sides, and the west side of McLean is the area we try to keep the cleanest."

Matt Fisher of the Air Traffic Controllers Association said the RNAV is "a wonderful technology, but we're still figuring it out, and the criteria will change every few months."

Hutto said that their data showed that the majority of planes stay within the proper spaces, the ones that deviate could be doing it for any number of reasons, such as medical emergencies, or weather conditions that limit vis-

Langley Seniors Chosen for Honors Choir

The 2011 Virginia Music Educators Association (VMEA) Honors Choir will feature 11 Langley High School seniors out of the 133 senior choral students selected from Virginia. The seniors were selected during a rigorous audition process held Saturday, Oct. 1 at Longwood College. For the second time in the past three years, Langley High School of McLean had the highest number of students selected of any high school in the state. Two Langley seniors were also chosen as alternates.

These top performers include: Sonya Zell singing

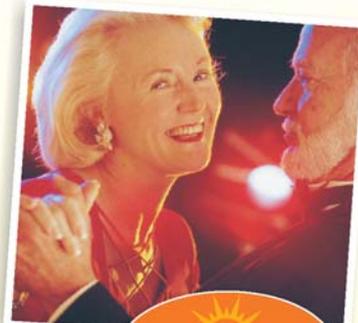

Soprano 1; Sarah Larkworthy, Abby Thompson and Rachel Street (alternate) singing Soprano 2; Isabel Hefner (2nd place), Mia Engelhardt (2nd Place), Jessica Bumsted and Sarah Etherton singing Alto 1; Stephanie Anderson (1st Place), Lauren Fernandez (1st Place), Elly Sheers, and Amber Bennett (alternate) singing Alto 2; and Mark Paulson singing Bass 1. The students will travel to Norfolk from Nov. 17-19 to participate in rehearsals for the Honors Choir that culminate in a concert at the VMEA In-Service Conference Event.

Veterans Visit Churchill Road

On Nov. 11, Churchill Road students learned about the meaning of Veterans Day from special visitors in uniform. Many branches of the service were represented.

Among those who visited the school was Frances Hashimoto, retired Navy Lt. Cmdr., who spoke to her grandson's kindergarten class about her duty aboard the U.S. Navy Hospital Ship, Repose, during the Vietnam War. Cmdr. David Baptista discussed his experiences aboard the U.S. Navy hospital ship Mercy with second graders. Army Col. Jeffrey Vuono spoke to second and third graders about his experiences while deployed in the Middle East. Lt. Col. Robert Smullen, USMC, took time to visit his daughter's kindergarten class and answer questions about the Marine Corps.

The Churchill Road students and staff learned much from these visitors and appreciated their willingness to share their experiences.

Virginia Technology Council Welcomes Herman Cain

Republican presidential hopeful speaks on future of technology, role of business community.

BY ALEX McVEIGH
THE CONNECTION

Republican presidential hopeful Herman Cain spoke to the Northern Virginia Technology Council Wednesday, Nov. 2. During the event, the former president and CEO of Godfather's Pizza shared his view on the role of technology in America's future.

NVTC board member Gary Shapiro said that Cain's diverse experiences served as an interesting example of the different roles one can take within a community at large.

"It's obvious that Herman Cain has been successful in business. He spent more than 40 years in the private sector, creating jobs as the president and CEO of Godfather's Pizza," Shapiro said. "He also succeeded and served outside of the business world. He chaired the federal reserve of Kansas City, he was a supervisory mathematician for the Department of the Navy and he put ethics into action as an associate minister in Antioch Baptist Church North in Atlanta."

Cain said that the increasing availability of technology is one of the things that will shape future generations. He recalled outfitting his campaign office with all new computer systems, and expecting the bill to be $40,000 to $50,000, but it was only $12,000.

"Because the cost of technology is going down, technology is increasingly impacting the way we live our lives," he said. "When I was doing my graduate work at Purdue, they had a whole floor of computers that didn't have the power of this iPhone. To say that technology is a driving force in the way we live our lives is an understatement."

Cain said if elected president, he would examine ways to keep the government invested in technology.

"You don't have to be on the cutting edge of technology, but if you want to stay up on things, you better be on the blade somewhere," he said. "I believe that we are missing some opportunities in government when it comes to technology."

He also stressed that the key to getting out of the current economic slump is to help the business community.

"The engine of economic growth is the business sector, and if you want to grow the economy, you've got to put fuel in the engine," he said. "Right now there's so much uncertainty that businesses are in the state of survival ... Businesses in this country are the best in the world, if you get government out of the way."

Shapiro said that Cain gave "this audience a perspective of what it is like to go directly from the business world of strategy and results into the 'gotcha' political world."

The event was the first in the NVTC's presidential series. President Barack Obama, as well as Republican candidates Mitt Romney and Rick Perry, have been invited to participate in future events. As of this week, only Romney has accepted, he is expected to speak to the council in early 2012.

Give Locally

The need has never been greater.

As the holidays approach, many nonprofits that provide holiday meals, food support and other services for people in need are reporting that they are overwhelmed.

More than 45,000 students in Fairfax County Public Schools are from families poor enough to qualify for free or reduced priced meals. That's more than 25 percent of students in the schools. In Arlington, 34 percent of students are poor enough to qualify for free or reduced meals. In the City of Alexandria, more than 54 percent of students are poor.

In Fairfax County, 46,000 live below the poverty line; more than 80,000 have no health insurance.

Where To Give

This is a partial list of charities helping those in need during the holidays and beyond. Let us know about other organization not listed here.

In Northern Virginia, thousands are unemployed and many more are underemployed. Among the homeless in Northern Virginia, many are working poor, families with at least one wage-earner who doesn't make enough to pay for housing for the family.

In this environment, more and more people are turning to food pantries for part of every month. And it's not surprising that many, many families will have little to offer in holiday cheer and holiday gifts for children without the help of organizations and individuals. It's hard to imagine, but there are hundreds of children in the area who would not receive a single holiday present without the help of a charitable organization.

If you're reading this paper, chances are that you are among the people at the other end of the spectrum, trying to devise methods to keep the holidays more modest. One way to do this is to help your children understand how lucky they are with a glimpse at the needs of others right here.

There are many ways to give, with some local charities connecting the donor to a specific family to provide a holiday food basket and fulfill some wishes for gifts. Many organizations encourage the donation of gift cards. Every local group seeking to help the needy right now is facing extra demand and needs both volunteer and financial help.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Facing Major Surgery

To the Editor:

Later this month, I am scheduled to be wheeled into the operating room for a major surgical procedure, the outcome of which is highly problematic. I have spoken at length with my surgeon and key members of his operating team and they have assured me that they are fully prepared to do whatever is necessary to bring about a successful outcome. I have read a number of articles about the procedure and have tried to educate myself as best I can although the terminology is a bit daunting.

The surgeon has assured me that the team members are highly credentialed and are strong believers in the Hippocratic Oath. I asked if any members of his team felt that they could not perform any parts of the surgery because of strong personal feelings or because they had signed an oath or taken a pledge to not do something. He assured me that once I am "on the table all options are open" and that the team would be fully prepared to act in the best interest of the patient. He also said the recovery period would be lengthy and not without pain.

For the past several weeks the Congressional Super Committee has been in the operating room and later this month is expected to wheel out their plan, a plan that will lead the country back to a financial health, by cutting from the Federal Government budget and reducing the federal deficit. I want a plan to be implemented, I want it to be successful so the country will survive and ultimately thrive. However, our dysfunctional Congress must consider all the options and not place anything off limits. They must ignore the special interest calls coming from outside the operating room. Defense, Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid and all other elements of the budget must remain on the table and considered as part of the overall solution. And yes, if transfusions are required, then increases in taxes must be brought about either through a major overhaul of the tax code or the elimination of deductions and increases in rates. If we are to survive the surgery and deal with the pain of healing, then the malignancy that has rendered our political system impotent and guttured our tax system must be removed; otherwise, Washington, D.C. will become nothing more than an American Acropolis.

Fairfax Remains Blue, GOP Celebrates Statewide Gains

“Arizona, Mississippi, and Wisconsin will be pushed off the front pages of national newspapers as Virginia takes leadership with right-wing legislation,” said Del. Ken Plum (D-36), who was first elected to Richmond in 1978 and serves as the chairman of the House Democratic Caucus.

Issues that concern Democrats include reductions in public education funding resulting from resources being diverted to charter schools, restrictions on abortion, immigration enforcement, and weakening health and safety regulations.

“The Senate of Virginia will no longer be the safeguard that it has been for the past several years to stop wacky legislation,” said Plum.

“When you look at the legislative agenda, a lot of the more polarizing social issues were killed because of the Senate,” Farnsworth said. “There will probably be more of these issues moving forward now.”

Democratic Senators are also not willing to concede full control to the GOP. “The rhetoric from the Republicans right now is ‘we’re in full control.’ But the power should reflect the 20-20 split,” said state Sen. Chap Petersen (D-34), referring to control of the chamber’s floor sessions and committees. “Democrats need to make sure our funding for education and transportation doesn’t drop off.”

But Del. Dave Albo (R-42), who was first elected in 1994 and is Northern Virginia’s most senior member of the House, said the alarmist rhetoric is just party politics.

“Everybody needs to take a chill-pill,” Albo said. “[Democrats] are all crying like babies about [the election]. They try to scare people into thinking that suddenly there’s going to be all this wacky legislation out of Richmond. The immigration bills are not wacky at all. We allowed police officers to detain someone as an illegal alien when they get a hit on their car. We require businesses to use E-Verify. When they say it’s wacky, I want to say, specifically, tell me which bill you’re worried about. We are not going to be doing anything out of the ordinary,” Albo said.

Albo said revenue for some transportation projects, such as road maintenance, may increase with the GOP in control.

“One of the good-news things of Republicans in the Senate is that we should be able to get some thing passed for more money for secondary road maintenance and improvements,” Albo said. “The Democrats have never wanted to use the General Fund for revenue to pay for the roads.”

Ryan McElveen, 25, of Vienna, was the youngest candidate in any of the races. Democrat-supported McElveen won one of the three at-large School Board seats.

Even though Republicans now reign south of the Rappahannock, Fairfax County is likely to remain blue.

“You had an optimal environment for Republicans this year. There was a lot of money sloshing around...and they just can’t close the deal in this part of the state,” Farnsworth said.

“I was disappointed countywide,” Albo said. “I doubt that Republicans will ever gain a foothold when [Republican] candidates like Bill Cooper, who was running for sheriff, or Lolita Manchino-Smoak, who was running for the School Board, can’t win...Slowly but surely, Fairfax County is becoming Alexandria and Arlington.”

Fairfax County School Board

The Fairfax County School Board race was the one to watch this year. It was the most talked-about, blogged-about, debated and partisan-fueled race in the board’s 19-year history.

Political insiders predicted that parental anger over discipline, boundaries, class size and grading policies would sweep out incumbents and usher in a slate of candidates running as “reformers” and endorsed by Republicans.

The predictions proved wrong. Voters returned six incumbents to the 12-member board and handed the three at-large seats to the Democrat-endorsed candidates. Elizabeth Schultz, in the Springfield District, was the only Republican-endorsed candidate to win a district seat.

“Voters didn’t reject ‘reform,’ this was a partisan victory for the Democrats pure and simple,” said Sheree Brown Kaplan, who lost her bid for an at-large seat.

But Ted Velkoff, a former PTA president from Rocky Run who won an at-large seat, said the message voters sent on Election Day was more nuanced than partisan politics.

“I don’t think it was a rejection of reform, or embracing of the status quo,” Velkoff said. “In the end, I think people in Fairfax County are generally happy with the schools. They said, on balance, that the school system is being run well, and voters manifested their diverse spectrum of views about issues by electing a diverse group of people.”

“What the voters have rejected,” said Ilryong Moon, who retained his at-large seat, “is the oversimplification of complexity of governance of our school system and efforts to meet needs of all students with a few sound bites or campaign slogans.”

Moon, who will be serving a fourth term on the board, said the six new board members will be facing several challenges when they meet in January, including a tight budget climate and the selection of a new superintendent.

Fairfax County Superintendent Jack D. Dale, who steered the 175,000-student system for seven years, announced in September that he will retire when his contract ends in June 2013.

“Voters want us to continue staying on the current path, and maintain the quality of our top performing school system,” Moon said.

Supervisor Pat Herrity (R-Springfield) said he thought many of the winners, even though they were endorsed as Democrats, supported the reform message of transparency, accountability and smaller class sizes.

“A prime example is the independent auditor reporting to the School Board...This and many of the issues that finally got open and honest discussion will result in better schools,” Herrity said.

Velkoff agreed that the lengthy campaign process called attention to a number of issues the new board will address, including class sizes, needs-based staffing, “21st century learning,” and advocating for an independent auditor to bring more transparency to the School Board’s budget. Currently, the School Board absorbs 53 percent of Fairfax County’s annual budget of $3.3 billion.

“There needs to be confidence in the budget process. We can’t defend initiatives without independent confirmation of our budget from an outside auditor,” Velkoff said.

“While voters in this election expressed satisfaction that the Democratic leadership provides good stewardship over our high-ranking public school system, I think voters also made it clear that they expect the school board to spend more time listening to parent and community concerns,” said Rex Simmons, chair of the Fairfax County Democratic Committee (FCDC).

Ryan McElveen, who also won an at-large seat, said he wants the School Board to be more responsive to stakeholders.

“I hope parents, teachers, school employees of all stripes, and especially students, will get in touch and share their concerns and ideas. I’m excited for the road ahead,” McElveen said.

“My hope is that we move away from teaching to the test and find ways to make sure students are well-rounded and ready for college or careers,” Velkoff said. “I think it would be great if we could look back in 10 years at how Fairfax County became the model for 21st century learning.”

Fairfax County Board of Supervisors

With the exception of the scorched-earth battle for the Braddock District seat — which Republican Supervisor John Cook won by just 327 votes — the nine other incumbents on the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors retained their seats with fairly wide margins of victory.

“With the Board of Supervisors, we’re looking at a situation where the voters were less angry than in other parts of Virginia. There wasn’t much voter dissatisfaction with the current board,” Farnsworth said.

“The Board of Supervisors has the turnover rate of the Supreme Soviets; they only leave by death or indictment,” quipped state Sen. Chap Petersen (D-34), who endorsed Democrat Janet Oleszek in the race to unseat incumbent John Cook in the Braddock district.

Three of the 10 supervisors were unopposed — Pat Herrity (R-Springfield), Jeff McKay (D-Lee) and Cathy Hudgins (D-Hunter Mill) — while Michael Frey (R-Sully), Gerry Hyland (D-Mount Vernon), Penny Gross (D-Mason), John W. Foust (D-Dranesville) and Linda Smyth (D-Providence) faced nominal opposition and ran relatively quiet campaigns.

Chairman Sharon Bulova (D-At-large) easily won her bid for a second term, running on a solid record of accomplishments as leader of the most powerful governing body in the county. The only nail-biter was in the Braddock District, where Cook was narrowly reelected after a contentious 10-week battle with his Democratic challenger, Janet Oleszek, a former School Board member.

“I was very pleased with the win by my colleague John Cook in the Braddock District. This was a race that the Democrats made a priority and put a lot of time, energy and resources into,” Herrity said.

Rex Simmons, chair of the FCDC, said voters sent a message that they were pleased with the county’s quality of life, strong fiscal management and sound governance in returning incumbents to the board.

“Fairfax County has weathered the worst recession since the Great Depression with few service cuts and minimal tax increases,” Simmons said. “We have great schools, major transportation improvements underway, excellent environmental protection programs, a modest affordable housing program, and well maintained parks and recreation centers... Even in tough economic times, Fairfax County has remained an economic engine for Virginia.”

One critical decision facing the returning board is the hiring of a new county executive. Just two days after the election, County Executive Anthony H. Griffin announced that he will step down in April after serving 12 years in the position.

Shopping Season Starts in McLean

Mesmerelda's, Preppy Pink Pony offer range of gift ideas.

THE CONNECTION

When it comes to Christmas shopping, Jennifer Crawley of McLean prefers to stay away from the hustle and bustle of malls and large shopping centers. Instead, she heads to downtown McLean, where stores offer all the variety of a mall, but without the hassle.

"There was a time when I was a Black Friday shopper, but not anymore," she said. "Now I head downtown, and can find something interesting and unique for literally everyone on my list."

Mesmerelda's Gifts in the Salona Shopping Center has been one such destination for the past 57 years. With a full selection of cards, stationery, puzzles, soaps and more, it has quite the regular clientele.

The Preppy Pink Pony specializes in local college merchandise, as well as personalized clothing and household goods.

"I feel like I've been shopping here for eternity," said Ginny Bays of McLean. "I spend a lot of time out of town, in places like Naples, Fla., but I've never seen a store like this."

One of their top items are Byers Choice figurines, or "carolers." The Pennsylvania-based company makes a variety of figurines for any occasion, but Debbie Jones, of Mesmerelda's says they are one of the most popular gift items.

"Their faces are always so detailed, and there's always new ones, that they always stay popular," Jones said. "We also carry a wide variety of Christmas ornaments and nutcrackers."

The ornaments can be found adorning a tree in a corner of the store, and the nutcrackers fill shelves behind the store's registers. Mesmerelda's Gifts is located at 1339 Chain Bridge Road, and can be reached at 703-356-4494.

JUST DOWN Chain Bridge Road, The Preppy Pink Pony hasn't quite entered the holiday mode yet, but staff says after Thanksgiving, "the store will explode with Christmas and Hanukkah cheer."

One of the more popular items at the store are the Scout bags, made by a company from Georgetown. Their Boatman-Geller items are also popular around the holidays, as they offer monogrammed stationary, trays, platters and other items.

"I think the Preppy Pink Pony just screams style, and I have a lot of friends that I know will love the gifts I get them from here," said Sandy Shaw of Vienna. "I found a great dish for a friend's dog, some nice stuff for Christmas cards and some items I really like that I hope wind up under my tree as well."

The Preppy Pink Pony also offers monogrammed soaps in a number of different scents and styles, as well as memorabilia from popular schools such as Georgetown, the University of Virginia and Virginia Tech.

There are also items for children, ranging from customizable picture frames for newborns to knit teddy bears and clothing.

"I really liked the fashionable iPod speakers and headphones, everyone I know is always looking for stuff that looks unique but also serves a function, and these are perfect," said Francis Brooks of McLean. "I also really like the pretty iPad cases and the wireless computer mice with pretty designs on them will definitely be going to some of my family and friends."

The Preppy Pink Pony is located at 1355-A Chain Bridge Road. Visit www.preppypinkpony.com.

Danielle Wertz Wins 'McLean Idol' Competition

McLean High School (MHS) students competed in McLean's own Burke Theatre, Oct. 27-29, in the first annual "McLean Idol." In a joint Drama Club and Choral Department production, Directors Amy Poe and Linda Martin presented this competition showcasing student talent and providing a means of funding club and departmental activities.

Prior to the competition, the department held auditions, scouring the school for the most distinguished vocal talent. After careful deliberation, 24 students were selected to perform, twelve each on Thursday, Oct. 27 and Friday, Oct. 28 with the top contestants from each night proceeding to the finals on Saturday, Oct. 29. Each student chose a song to best demonstrate his or her vocal capability and took the stage to give their chosen song a unique twist. From Adele to Rick Astley songs, the student performances pleased both the audience and the guest judges, Karen MacNamera, Zach Roberts, Brent Stone and Lonnie Bickel. After audience voting over two nights, the final round on Saturday featured twelve finalists: junior Kate Lyn Broom, sophomore Sunny Dunn, junior Wolfe Glick, junior Max Johnson, junior Damian Leverett, freshman Lily Lord, junior Madelyn Paquette, sophomore Nancy Pruett, sophomore Cara Schaumberg, freshman Alex Stone, senior Nick Stone, senior Danielle Wertz. At the end of the evening, the audience dubbed senior Danielle Wertz "McLean Idol" with freshman Alex Stone recognized as first runner up and sophomore Nancy Pruett as second runner up.

First Runner-Up, freshman Alex Stone.

COMMUNITY

Call for Annual Children's (& Teens') Connection Contributions

Every year Connection Newspapers dedicates one issue entirely to the imaginative works of our community children and teenagers. We publish artwork, essays, creative writing, opinion pieces, short stories and photographs.

We are now asking that all submissions be digital so they can be sent through email or on CD. Please provide the submissions no later than Thursday, Dec. 8. If you have any questions, please call Kemal Kurspahic at 703-778-9414 or email kemal@connectionnewspapers.com.

Some suggestions for submissions:

- ❖ Drawings, paintings, photographs or 2-D and 3-D artwork that have been digitally photographed.
- ❖ Short stories, poetry, essays, class-wide prompt writings.

❖ Opinion pieces about family, friends, traffic, sports, food, video games, toys, trends, etc.

Images should be submitted as .jpg ATTACHMENTS to an email, not embedded in the body of the email.

All submissions should include the child's first and last name, school, grade and/or age.

Email submissions for our Vienna, McLean, Great Falls, Reston and Herndon editions to ChildrensNorth@connectionnewspapers.com. Subject should be school name, town and teacher's last name (or for individuals or home schoolers, the child's last name and town).

The issue will be published the week of the Christmas holiday. We will publish as many submissions as possible.

Be a Part of CHILDREN'S (& TEENS') CONNECTION

Every year between Christmas and New Year's, The McLean Connection turns its pages over to the contributions of local students. We are seeking artwork, photography, poetry, opinions, short stories and reflections. We welcome contributions from public schools, private schools and students who are home schooled.

E-mail to: ChildrensNorth@connectionnewspapers.com, or mail (.jpg and text files on disc only) by Nov. 30, to 1606 King St., Alexandria, VA 22314. Please be sure to include the student's name, age, grade, school and town of residence along with each submission. For information, call 703-778-9410.

Students study at George Mason University's Arlington Campus. Many professional master's degree programs are structured to meet the needs of working adults.

Where Science and Business Collide

New master's degree programs address employer demand for more science and math knowledge.

Some call it the new MBA. Others say it is one of the keys to employability in a difficult economic environment. Meet the professional science master's degree, a relatively new, two-year graduate degree that combines advanced training in science or math with business skills often desired by employers.

Professional science master's degrees are designed to address what forecasters say is a future of economic growth and job creation driven by advances in science, bringing a new emphasis in science, technology, engineering and mathematics [STEM] education at many levels.

"A master's degree in a STEM field often offers a clear pathway to professional employment and career success — even in a difficult job market," said Debra Stewart, president of the Council of Graduate Schools. The Council of Graduate Schools conducted a study of graduates with professional science master's degrees and found that 82 percent were employed. More than 55 percent of those were earning $50,000 or more.

Like many other professional master's degree programs, PSMs are structured to meet the needs of working adults.

"Most of our graduate students are part-time students," said Michelle Marks, associate provost of Graduate Education for George Mason University, and an Oakton resident. "There is a market of students who are interested in graduate school — and are working full time and don't want take a break in their careers to go to graduate school."

The concept of designing graduate degrees around needs of working professionals is not new. "The motivation for a lot of these programs is access," said Carol B. Lynch, senior project director, Professional Master's Programs Council of Graduate Schools. "When you look at the ads that you see on the Metro and in the newspapers, they are really targeting people who are working and want to advance but don't have the luxury to take time off to go to a more traditional program."

According to the National Professional Science Master's Association (NPSMA), schools in the Washington, D.C., region offering PSM degrees are George Washington University, University of the District of Columbia, American University and University of Maryland University College, Georgetown University and Virginia Tech formed a partnership and created a PSM program in Biomedical Technology Development and Management.

“[George Mason] is currently developing programs that will likely be PSMs that combine science courses with management [and] workplace skills,” said Marks.

PSM programs, which often include internships and training in workplace skills, are generally developed in coordination with employers, including nonprofit organizations, businesses and government agencies. Both George Mason University and George Washington University offer professional studies classes at their Arlington campuses.

“We do a lot of market research, and we also have advisory boards and professional groups that we talk to about what is actually needed [in the workplace],” said Kathleen Burke, Ph.D., dean of the College of Professional Studies at George Washington University. “Then we can create programs based on what we know are specific needs.”

Unlike traditional graduate science programs, PSM programs are generally terminal; they do not lead to a Ph.D.

“[Part-time] programs are really geared towards people achieving a breadth of business knowledge and then moving into the workforce,” said Marks, “as opposed to a more traditional master’s program where people may very well move onto a Ph.D.”

Are professional degrees like the PSM less rigorous than their traditional counterparts? Just because the courses are offered nights and weekends doesn’t mean that the program is less strenuous, university officials said.

“Our programs are very high quality. They are selective,” said Burke. “They have admissions requirements and standards that are very comparable to other graduate programs. We don’t admit very many students into our programs.”

While the overall enrollment of new students at U.S. graduate schools fell 1.1 percent in 2010, according to the annual CGS Survey of Graduate Enrollment and Degrees, the number of students entering science and engineering programs grew as much as 8.6 percent.

Marks adds, “I don’t think there is a rigor difference, certainly not at George Mason, between [traditional] programs [and those] that are offered on the weekends or evenings or in a format that appeals to students who have full-time jobs.”

Saxons' Volleyball Just Misses State Playoff Berth

Langley makes strong region playoff run before losing to Cavaliers.

BY RICH SANDERS
THE CONNECTION

Langley High girls' volleyball coach Susan Shifflett was disappointed her Saxons did not play to the high level she has come to see from them when they squared off against Northern Region power Stone Bridge for the Liberty District tournament championship match earlier this month on Nov. 3.

Langley, a team which continually improved throughout the fall season, had defeated Jefferson, 3-1, and McLean, 3-0, to reach the finals against the Bulldogs. But in that title match, Stone Bridge, playing on its home floor, came away with a 3-0 win.

"We showed our improvement against McLean, but just didn't have enough for Stone Bridge," said Shifflett.

Langley's lone district loss of the regular season had also come to Stone Bridge, 0-3, in the regular season final on Oct. 27 in Ashburn. So over the course of the regular season, the Saxons had gone 15-6 overall and 6-1 in district play to earn the No. 2-seed for the district tournament.

Langley expected to and did ultimately meet up with the top seed Stone Bridge team in the district finals. And while there was natural disappointment at having fallen to the Bulldogs there, the Saxons were still confident and poised to make a strong showing at the following week's Northern Region

Tournament.

Langley did just that, defeating both Edison and West Springfield by 3-0 scores to advance to the region semifinals of the 16-team tournament. But the Saxons then saw their season end with a round of fours loss to W.T. Woodson, 2-3, on Nov. 10 at Centreville High School. The Cavaliers, members of the Patriot District, trailed the match at certain points but ultimately prevailed in comeback fashion.

The loss for Langley was naturally disheartening because it not only prevented the Saxons from moving on to the region championship match but it also kept them out of the following week's Virginia State AAA playoffs. Only the two region finalists — Woodson and Stone Bridge — qualified for states.

Going into regionals, Shifflett knew anything was possible for her talented, hard-working team.

"We showed our improvement against McLean, but just didn't have enough for Stone Bridge."

—Langley coach Susan Shifflett

"There is a lot of parity in the region," she said. "We could go out early, or make it to the finals — which would probably mean another date with Stone Bridge. I'm optimistic, but we have to play like we played versus McLean [at the district semifinals] and not like we did with Stone Bridge."

In fact, Langley played well at regionals, reaching the final four and nearly going further only to fall victim to a solid Woodson squad. Nevertheless, it was quite a good season for the Saxons, who finished with a 19-8 record.

The Langley and McLean High football teams, shown here in their regular season finale against one another two weeks ago, both lost their Div. 5 Northern Region quarterfinals playoff games last week. Langley, against top-seeded Stone Bridge, lost 35-0 in Ashburn. The Saxons finished with an overall record of 5-6 this season. McLean, meanwhile, lost its game at Yorktown, 20-6, to finish with a 6-5 record.

McLean High School's first-ever Athletic Hall of Fame class was announced during halftime ceremonies of the McLean versus Langley football game on Nov. 4.

McLean High, which opened in 1955, has never had a Hall of Fame for athletes, coaches, administrators, and contributors.

Fourteen individuals and one team were inducted:

- ♦ Roger Cole — assistant football, baseball, basketball coach 1955-1959; head football coach, 1969-1972; athletic director 1972-1986; won two district football titles at McLean in the 1960s.

- ♦ Cricket Call — coach and administrator, 1967-1989; helped start several girls' sports programs; long-time overseer of girls sports at McLean.

- ♦ Marsha Ehrsam — 1979 graduate and head field hockey coach, 1986-1997; first-ever coach at McLean to win a state championship.

- ♦ Jason Johnson — 1993 graduate; two-time state wrestling champion; led McLean to first-ever playoff football win in 1993; standout baseball player who helped McLean to 1993 district title.

- ♦ Ellen Fox — 1983 graduate; only female to win state title at McLean in track and field event in the high jump; also high jump winner at Penn Relays; competed at UVA; still holds McLean record for high jump and 100-meters dash.

- ♦ Warren Harvey — community contributor who was official basketball scorekeeper for 30 years; ran football chain gang for all three teams for 30 years; overall, worked more than 1,000 games lifetime — all as a volunteer; also helped construct first permanent snack bar in football stadium.

- ♦ 1986 State AAA Championship Field Hockey Team — first state champion in school history; the only other McLean High teams to win state titles were the 2010 girls' softball team and the 2011 girls' soccer team.

- ♦ Craig Fielder — 1984 graduate; Ironman Award named for him at McLean for athletes who earn nine varsity letters; one of the best athletes in history of McLean; dominant four-sport athlete who played football at UVA; football standout; soccer goal-keeping standout; two-year basketball starter; shares high jump record at McLean; succumbed to cancer in 1987 during college football career; UVA award named after him to the Cavalier athlete who best overcomes adversity.

- ♦ Ted Pease — winningest coach in McLean High history; 27-year soccer career, 26 winning seasons; also, top-notch wrestling coach; high school state champion wrestler and a member of the Fairfax High School Hall of Fame; All-American wrestler at East Stroudsburg University.

- ♦ Mary Lou Carroll — longtime championship field hockey coach from 1955-1985; also won district titles as girls' basketball coach; long-time softball coach; a member of the James Madison University Hall of Fame as an athlete.

- ♦ Ed Ryan — 1971 graduate; two-time state wrestling champion; wrestled at Indiana State; helped start youth wrestling in McLean; still coaching today at both McLean High and with the local youth program.

- ♦ Eric Dorsey — 1982 graduate; most dominant McLean football defensive player in history; four-year starter at Notre Dame; first-round pick of the New York Giants in 1986; part of two winning Super Bowl teams with the Giants; holds McLean High track and field records in shot put and discus.

- ♦ Marcia McDermott — 1983 graduate; soccer, field hockey, and basketball standout at McLean; won three NCAA soccer titles at University of North Carolina, where she was an All-American; longtime head college coach at several programs including Maryland, Illinois and Arkansas; General Manager and Executive with Chicago franchise of the WUSA; assistant coach on 2011 World Cup soccer team.

- ♦ Seth Greisinger — 1993 graduate; second winningest pitcher in McLean baseball history; All-American at UVA; first-round draft pick of the Detroit Tigers in 1996; pitched in Major Leagues with Detroit, Atlanta, and Minnesota; current standout pitcher in Tokyo.

- ♦ Nate Friends — 1991 graduate; basketball and soccer standout; All-Met soccer player for the Highlanders; played at UVA, where he won four NCAA titles; featured in Sports Illustrated; member of U.S. Junior National Soccer Team.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON PROPOSED 2012 BUDGET

Fairfax County Water Authority (Fairfax Water) is proposing a $141.3 million budget for calendar year 2012. On Thursday, December 15, 2011, Fairfax Water will conduct a public hearing on its proposed 2012 Budget in its offices at 8570 Executive Park Avenue, Fairfax. The public hearing will begin at 6:30 p.m. A copy of the proposed budget can be viewed on our Web site at <http://www.fairfaxwater.org/>. Those wishing to speak at this hearing or desiring a copy of the proposed budget should call Ms. Eva Catlin at 703-289-6017. Revenues are expected to be $141.3 million in 2012. Water sales are expected to provide $121.9 million. Approximately $19.4 million is expected from connection charges, investment income and other sources.

A Predicament

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Not that I'm stressing about having cancer – too much (really?), but I wish there were an off switch. A figurative button to press that would stop the flow of cancer-induced, cancer-related cancer consumables: information, concern, anxiety, focus, orientation, predisposition, etc. And if I were to attempt to delude myself into saying that I don't think about having cancer all the time – consciously, then I suppose I would admit to it being top of mind (bottom of mind, too) subconsciously, whether I like it or not – and of course this column is about not liking it.

But as Popeye the Sailor Man so often said: "I yam what I yam." And what I am is a cancer survivor, still surviving 32 months post-diagnosis, after being given a "13-month to two-year" prognosis back in late Feb., 2009. And as much as I want to look forward – and presumably it is much healthier, anecdotally speaking to do so, it is difficult – for me, to not consider the past as some sort of prologue, with a premature end hopefully not in sight, and one whose epilogue has yet to be determined. This preordained time line, indeterminate though it may actually be, wears on me. Not that I want to know what the future holds, but something inside me almost needs to know. Unfortunately, if I were to be realistic though, given my diagnosis, the future is not exactly my oyster. Certainly it's there for the taking, it's simply impossible to know if I'll be alive for the receiving.

Considering that I'm a planner and that I live today for tomorrow instead of living today like there's no tomorrow (ironic given my diagnosis/prognosis), I'm always thinking about what's next and what I have to do to get from point "A" to point "B." Being diagnosed and "prognosed" as I have, my thought processes have been turned upside-down and inside-out. I still know my left from my right, but so many other presumptions about life/the future are no longer what I thought they were or anticipated they would be. If I had to hazard a guess/offer an explanation about the topsy-turvy world in which I now try to exist – normally, I would rationalize it and say: a terminal diagnosis will do that to you.

But I don't want it to do it to me. Yet it does. It's almost as if I've been rewired. All the connections, all the pathways, all the familiar/functioning routes that I understood/took to get through the past, present and future are all jumbled up and not nearly as clear as one would have lived 57 years expecting them to be. All bets are off, as they say. From now on, my life is one big gamble, a risk few players would likely take.

But if I don't take any risks, I may very well succumb to that what ails me. Living like I don't have a future is probably the surest way to not have one. For me to do so, however requires a complete reversal of who I am, how I think. The problem is, I like who I am, who I've become. Nevertheless, continuing to be this person, living and thinking as I do, might be counter-productive (counter-intuitive for sure) to fending off my cancer.

Whatever I decide to do, however I'm able to change, being unhappy and negative about the choices that I make is also counter-productive. I don't exactly want to die young and leave a good-looking corpse (as James Dean is alleged to have said – or a derivation thereof), but nor do I want to be miserable for the rest of my life. I need to find a compromise somewhere/somewhat, some way to live for today – and tomorrow.
