

Demolition of the old Lewinsville Road bridge, which was replaced by this one in August, has begun, and will result in some night blasting and lane closures on Lewinsville Road and the Beltway.

A Look Back, A Look Forward

Community leaders' resolutions, picks & predictions.

Supervisor John Foust (D-Dranesville):

❖ New Year's Resolution: "Some of the things I have resolved to do in 2012 include: (a) work with County staff to ensure that numerous bike and pedestrian projects throughout my district get built; (b) work with community groups to expand playing field capacity; (c) ensure that plans to provide pedestrian, bike and transit access to stations along the Dulles Rail project move forward; (d) advocate for additional funding for widening Route 7 from Tysons Corner to Reston Avenue; (e) complete the Salona Park master plan and the transfer of Langley Fork Park from the National Park Service to the Fairfax County Park Authority; (f) move forward with plans for the new Herndon Fire Station; (g) advocate for smaller class sizes in Dranesville schools; (h) implement the utilities undergrounding project in McLean and encourage additional re-development efforts; (i) use my position as Chairman of the Board's Audit Committee to increase operational efficiencies and reduce costs; (j) as Chairman of the County's Economic Advisory Commission, work to implement the Economic Development Strategic Plan adopted by the Board in 2011; and, (k) work to ensure that the budget adopted in 2012 maximizes efficiencies to limit the tax burden on residents while adequately funding essential services."

❖ The most significant happenings of 2011:

"1. For decades, thousands of Fairfax County residents have been required to pay too much for water provided by Falls Church Water. In 2011, the Board of Supervisors passed legislation to resolve the overcharge issues and bring equitable water rates to thousands of County residents. The ordinance will require Falls Church Water to charge the same rates to Fairfax County residents that Fairfax Water charges its customers, unless Falls Church Water can demonstrate to the County that a different rate is 'fair and reasonable.'

2. The County reached agreement with the Washington Metropolitan Airports Authority and several other funding partners on a plan to finance Phase II of the Dulles Rail project. The plan reduces the cost of the project by several hundred million dollars and, possibly, by as much as almost a billion dollars. The savings will benefit County taxpayers and Dulles Toll Road users who are responsible for funding a substantial portion of the project.

3. For the fourth consecutive year, the Board adopted a budget that held the line on taxes while funding public safety, schools, human services and other priorities identified by the community."

❖ The top happenings of 2012:

"1. The Dulles rail project is a huge transportation project and many of the issues we address over the next twelve months and beyond will relate to that project. Efforts will continue to address the financing plan for Phase II, to further reduce the burden on tax payers and toll road users. The Dulles Rail project brings the opportunity for substantial transit oriented development in Tysons Corner and throughout the Dulles Corridor. Many issues involving the infrastructure needed to serve that development and plans for financing that infrastructure will be debated and decided during 2012.

2. The area's other major transportation project, the I-495 HOT Lanes project, is scheduled to complete in late 2012. In addition to relief from the inconvenience caused by construction, completion of this project will provide significant congestion relief, especially getting into and out of Tysons Corner.

3. Again in 2012, budgets will be a challenge in the County as the economy continues its slow improvement and the State continues to reduce its support for public education and other essential services provided by the County."

Lego Robotics Champions

Master Minds win Regional Tournament, place fourth in state.

The "Master Minds" First Lego Robotics Team from Cooper Middle and Spring Hill Elementary Schools in McLean won the Division 2 First Lego League "Food Factor" Regional Tournament held Nov. 20 at George Mason University.

The Master Minds team, two eighth graders from Cooper and four sixth graders at Spring Hill, competed at the State Tournament held on Dec. 3-4 at James Madison University. The team placed fourth in the Division 2 First Lego League state tournament. Division 2 is a middle school competition level. (<http://www.vadcfll.org>)

The Master Minds First Lego Robotics team won two Division 2 trophies at the VA-DC Regional Tournament. They won the Division 2 First Place trophy for "Robot Performance" and the Division 2 Second Place "Champion's Award" for overall performance in every category including Robot design and performance, teamwork, communication and project presentation.

The Master Minds were judged in four categories including: Robot Design, Robot Performance, Teamwork, Research development and presentation of a topic related to this year's food theme which was "Food Safety."

Langley Crowns Geography Bee Champion

Seventh-grader advances to next level of national competition.

Ten students in grades 4-8 at The Langley School in McLean tested their geographic knowledge during the first round of the 24th annual National Geographic Bee on Jan. 5. After the students tackled a series of challenging questions, Langley crowned its 2012 winner, seventh-grader Caroline Morin, who won the school's competition for the second straight year.

Sponsored by the National Geographic Society, the annual Geography Bee is held in thousands of schools across the country and is the first step toward naming a national champion.

As Langley's winner, Caroline will advance to the next level of competition, a written examination to determine state competitors. The top 100 scorers from each state on this written exam

Fretful about the impact of Governor Robert McDonnell's proposed budget cuts to social services, representatives from numerous Northern Virginia advocacy groups voiced their opinions to Fairfax County's state legislative delegation.

More than 60 residents gathered at the Fairfax County Government Center on Saturday, Jan. 7 to champion a number of causes. For nearly five hours, speakers touched on a wide range of issues - from education and the environment to transportation and no-excuse absentee voting. Many shared personal stories of survival and recovery, and the need to continue funding streams for Medicaid waivers and community-based social and mental health services.

THE ANNUAL PUBLIC HEARING gives citizens an opportunity to speak directly with their legislative representatives before each legislative session.

Lu Ann McNabb of Centreville spoke movingly on behalf of the VTV Family Outreach Foundation, created by families and survivors directly impacted by the 2007 shooting at Virginia Tech. She urged lawmakers to fight for mental health services for college students. "In the wake of the largest massacre on a college campus in United States history, the Commonwealth implemented much-needed legislative reforms,"

Comstock Prepares For Session

Delegate hosts town hall meetings in McLean, Great Falls.

BY ALEX MCVEIGH

As the Virginia General Assembly prepares for its upcoming session, Del. Barbara Comstock (R-34) held town hall meetings around her district to update constituents on her priorities, and to hear theirs. During two events at the McLean Community Center and the Great Falls Library last week, Comstock said jobs, education and transportation are at the top of her list.

"We're doing better with unemployment numbers, but we're still very focused on jobs, especially because a lot of Northern Virginia's economy is tied to the federal government and we have the threat of defense cuts looming," she said. "We want to make sure we expand our private sector economy, and technology is one of the areas that has a lot of opportunities."

COMSTOCK SAID she is especially interested in technology startups that can grow over the years while headquartered in Northern Virginia.

"We've been lucky to have companies like Hilton and Northrop Grumman, but they aren't the types of companies that will double in size over the next year," she said. "We want the next Google, the next eBay, companies that could be startups in a garage right now, but we have the business climate to help them grow."

When it comes to education, Comstock said she hopes to reintroduce a bill that would give teachers a three percent bonus, provided they can find the savings in their own budget.

"State employees had flat salaries for about three, four years, and a year or two ago we said 'If you can find the money for bonuses, we'll give it,' and they found double the amount needed," she said. "When you incentivize employees to find savings, those are longer-term fixes that don't bust budgets."

Eric Welch of Great Falls said he hopes to see funding for to get away from the "rigid public school structure" currently used by the county.

"In the future, it would be nice if there were more options within the school system, for example, full-year schooling opportunities for low-income households," he said. "I'd say the system is working for about 75 to 80 percent of the students, but there are better options. Right now, except for Thomas Jefferson [High School for the Arts and Sciences] and some of the academies, it's sort of a one-size-fits-all approach.”

Comstock said she would like to see the schools pursue more public-private partnerships to be able to offer a wider variety of opportunities.

Comstock said she also planned to introduce a bill that would address Phase Two of Dulles Metrorail by preventing a Project Labor Agreement that would mandate all Phase Two labor be performed by unions.

“We’re a right-to-work state, but if we have a PLA forced upon us, we could see a lot of the Metro jobs going to people in Washington, D.C. and Maryland,” she said. “These types of agreements can raise costs by an estimated 15 to 20 percent.”

MCLEAN CITIZENS ASSOCIATION’S President Rob Jackson said he hoped Comstock would help oppose a bill from Sen. Chap Petersen (D-34) that would undo Fairfax County’s recent decision to regulate water rates. McLean has been one of the communities affected by the overcharging from Falls Church Water, which led to the county’s decision.

“We would hate to see that bill go through,” he said.

He also said he would like to see Comstock examine the fees paid by overweight trucks in the state.

“Overweight trucks cause more than $200 million in damage to our roads, but they only pay around $3 million in fees,” he said.

Comstock said she wants to hear from her constituents leading up to and during the session as much as possible.

“Feel free to contact me about issues, don’t assume I know about it,” she said. “When we’re down in Richmond, it always helps to hear from home, to know what people are thinking.”

Teen Dies after Falls Church area Crash

An 18-year-old died at Inova Fairfax Hospital on Friday, Jan. 6 as a result of injuries he sustained in a traffic crash on Jan. 2, 2012. Carlos Hernandez of 2915 John Marshall Drive in Falls Church was a passenger in the back seat of a 2001 Honda Accord and was ejected during the crash.

The crash occurred around 12:40 a.m. in the 2900 block of Graham Road near Rice Street. The driver lost control of the vehicle, ran off the road and struck a tree. Police have not placed any charges but are continuing to investigate. Crash Reconstruction Unit Detectives believe that speed may be one of the causative factors of the crash

December DWI Arrests Up 12 Percent

Fairfax County Police officers arrested 358 drunk drivers as part of their Safe December 2011 efforts. Of those arrested the vast majority (150) were young adults between the ages of 21 and 29. Further analysis shows that 28 were between 15 and 20 years old, 82 were 30-39, 55 were 40-49 and 43 were 50 or older.

"Despite all our Safe December education and enforcement efforts, hundreds of drivers chose to drink and drive in Fairfax County, presenting an unacceptable safety risk to us all. Clearly, impaired driving remains a threat and our officers will continue to aggressively pursue violators," said Captain Susan Culin, Commander of the Fairfax County Traffic Division.

Tune in to General Assembly

Republicans control House of Delegates and Senate; Senate has served as roadblock to many things passed by the House in the past.

The newly configured Virginia General Assembly has begun its work in Richmond, convening on Jan. 11.

By Valentine's Day, the Senate and the House will be done with their own legislation and will be considering only legislation already passed by the other chamber. In previous years, this is where the legislation passed by the Republican-controlled House often met its demise in the committees of the Democratic-controlled Senate, but this year is different.

With 20 Democrats and 20 Republicans making up the Senate, and Republican Lt. Gov. Bill Bolling able to cast the tie-breaking vote on many issues, plus a Republican governor to sign bills passed, this year is likely to have a somewhat different flavor and outcome than sessions past.

If everything goes smoothly passing the budget and Congressional redistricting (what could go wrong?), the session will adjourn on March 10.

Some things to watch: As the Governor seeks to increase money for transportation without raising taxes, the proposed budget will reduce money for K-12 education and social services. More conservative legislation, including concerning abortion and guns, is likely to emerge. The Governor's proposals to reduce regulation will likely move freely through the assembly.

Northern Virginia residents expressed their concerns at a hearing before the Fairfax County delegation to the General Assembly last Saturday, Jan. 7. About 60 people spoke, many about the need for continuing funding for social services, help for people with disabilities, treatment for people struggling with substance abuse, and more.

Chances are excellent that the senator and delegate representing you have changed since last year because of redistricting, elections and the retirements of several long-time representatives. New districts snake, rattle and roll around Northern Virginia in a way that makes it impossible to say simple things, like, if you live in Arlington, your senator is so-and-so. Unfortunately, if you live in Arlington or Alexandria, your senator could be one of three people. If you live in Fairfax County, it's also impossible to describe simply. You need to look it up.

The good news is that the General Assembly website is relatively user-friendly. Visit http://legis.virginia.gov/1\_cit\_guide/contacting\_my.html to look up who your legislators are, and how to contact them. You can also track particular legislation that interests you, or browse some of the thousands of bills that have been introduced by topic.

It's Not About The Water

BY J. CHAP PETERSEN
STATE SEN. (D-34)

Fairfax County residents on average pay $5,000 a year in real property taxes, one of the highest amounts in Virginia. The reason for the cost is the excellent quality of County schools and the high demand for County services.

By contrast, County residents pay about $250 a year for water, one of the lowest rates in Virginia. The lowest rates of all belong to the customers of Fairfax Water, the County's own water system. The reason is twofold: Fairfax Water spreads its costs over an enormous customer base, and it enjoys supplemental revenue from expensive "hook-up" fees from new construction.

By historic circumstance, not all County residents are customers of Fairfax Water. Nor do they have access to its pipes. Indeed, throughout the County, there are "independent" systems constructed before the advent of Fairfax Water. Most of these are municipal systems (Fairfax City, Herndon, Vienna, Falls Church), which were built right after World War II when the County was still reliant on well water.

When Fairfax rapidly expanded between 1960 and 1990, new County neighborhoods were constructed just outside these towns and cities. By agreement, the existing independent systems expanded to serve the new residents. As a result, the independent water systems serve thousands of residents outside their own borders, where Fairfax Water does not provide service.

State Sen. Chap Petersen (D-34)

Because the independent systems have fewer users than Fairfax Water and minimal hook-up revenue, their rates are marginally higher (about $6 a month). The average cost for the County homeowner on independent water is still below $400/year – well below the statewide average.

This has been the status quo for about fifty years with minimal attention or dissension.

Then things go interesting. In 2009, Fairfax Water sued the City of Falls Church for transferring the "surplus" from its water service fund over to the City's General Fund. Since that surplus was largely paid by County residents (who don't vote in Falls Church), the Fairfax County Circuit Court found that transfer to be an illegal tax.

The Court issued an injunction against Falls Church forbidding the transfer and confirming that water revenues must be held in the water fund. It did not order refunds for the simple reason that not a single County homeowner had joined the lawsuit or claimed damages.

The 2009 litigation solely impacted Falls Church and its customers. There was no litigation with Fairfax City, Vienna or Herndon. Nor has there been any claim that these localities are operating their water service on a "for profit" basis. (Note: I served on Fairfax City Council from 1998-2001 and the water system was a separately managed fund to which we had no access).

Fast forward to 2011...

In December, the County Board of Supervisors passed an ordinance which unilaterally set a "County-wide" water rate (i.e. the Fairfax Water rate) and required the independents to "justify" their higher prices.

With all due respect to my friends on the County Board, the new ordinance is a nullity for several reasons:

1. under Section 15.2-2143 of the State Code, the County lacks legal authority to "regulate" a water system which it did not build and does not own;

2. that same state law already requires that all water and sewer rates be "fair and reasonable," i.e. based on the cost of service;

3. it is an obvious conflict of interest to have Fairfax Water, a competitor, supervising the independent systems and deciding what costs they can recover.

In actuality, the current water/sewer system in northern Virginia works well. It is simple, reliable and relatively inexpensive for all users, especially compared to statewide rates. It also provides backup water from multiple sources. When the system is abused, there is immediate access to the Circuit Court and a long line of state cases, which justify a Court's injunction.

With this new ordinance, there is a "chilling effect" on new infrastructure necessary to serve the customers outside the scope of Fairfax Water. There's also a question of enforcement. If the smaller municipality doesn't comply with the ordinance, what will the County do? Invade?

Fairfax Water has made great strides in the past fifty years. It does a great job and County resi-

Old Lewinsville Road Bridge Demolition Begins

New bridge opened in August, old one to be removed over next month.

BY ALEX MCVEIGH
THE CONNECTION

Demolition of the old Lewinsville Road bridge has begun, which will result in some night blasting as well as lane closures on Lewinsville Road and the Beltway. The old bridge was replaced in August by a new one, as part of the Virginia Department of Transportation's Beltway HOT Lanes project.

The demolition, which VDOT estimates will take about a month, will take place between 11 p.m. and 4 a.m., with work hours extended to 7 a.m. on Saturdays.

"Obviously we're not too crazy about the loud noises that go on, but it's something we're going to have to deal with as the old bridge is taken out," said Ross Manning, who lives in the nearby McLean Hamlet neighborhood. "But as the people who live so close to the bridge, we're able to take advantage of the new one in cars and on foot, and as long as they're not planning to add any new bridges in the next few decades, we'll bite our lip and wait for everything to be done."

The new bridge is the most northern bridge over the Beltway to be replaced, and includes pedestrian and bike lanes, as well as a new curb and gutter system. It opened last August, and it's 30 feet longer and 13 feet wider than the old bridge, which was about 50 years old.

"It is sort of nice to not feel like you're taking your life in your own hand whenever you want to go to the other side of 495 on a walk or bike ride," said Lauren Adhimi, who lives just west of the Beltway on Lewinsville Road. "I like being able to feel safer if we ever want to ride to the community center or downtown McLean."

In addition to being more pedestrian friendly, making the bridge larger will allow the Beltway to accommodate the extra lanes that are being built for the HOT Lanes project.

On the Beltway, there will be three lanes closed during the listed times from Tuesday to Saturday, as well as intermittent closings of up to 30 minutes after midnight, according to VDOT.

tickets are $30 each. To make reservations, contact the Wolf for Congress Committee at 703-817-9691.

Wolf, the most senior of Virginia's 11 members of Congress, has been involved in nearly every major transportation initiative in northern Virginia over the last 30 years, including reducing HOV restrictions on I-66 and getting the full funding to complete the original 103-mile Metrorail system. He played a key role in securing the funding to replace the Woodrow Wilson Bridge and has been the driving force behind the effort to extend rail to Dulles airport and Loudoun County. He also pushed for the additional westbound lane on I-66 inside the Capital Beltway, which is now open, and worked to permanently open the Monument Avenue and Stringfellow Road slip ramps on I-66. In addition, he continues to draw attention to the high tolls on the Dulles Greenway and is a vocal proponent for distance pricing on the road.

Wolf was re-elected in 2010 with nearly 63 percent of the vote.

dents are the beneficiaries. It also has enormous built-in advantages, which allows it to offer the lowest rates, albeit a few dollars a month.

There may be a time for the parties, by agreement, to consolidate their services so that cost efficiencies can be spread around. Even then, the savings would be marginal, about the price of a monthly Happy Meal. The resulting consolidation would be a true water monopoly. It would also mean the loss of the largest capital asset belonging to our smaller localities.

Every Virginia citizen has the right to water and sewer access at a rate based upon the lowest cost of that service. The holiday season is now a festive memory, and Yuletide decorations are packed away. The New Year offers an opportunity for a fresh start and a chance to get organized.

For some, the thought of sifting through unruly closets, disheveled desk drawers and messy cabinets is overwhelming. But experts say clearing out a clutter conundrum can actually bring serenity.

“Organizing is good for the mind and emotions,” said Margaret Buco, owner of Organizing-by-Margaret in Potomac. “When a home is organized, stress and chaos are lessened and are replaced by efficiency and freedom.”

When faced with linen closets that hold everything from batteries to extension cords, and kitchen drawers that are home to items ranging from hammers to toothpaste, it is difficult to know where to start. Local professional organizers say there are simple steps to home organization and believe it is wise to work incrementally.

“The best thing to do is begin with your most difficult area and break your project down into small pieces so it is not overwhelming,” said Sally Reinholdt of Closets 911 in Alexandria.

DECIDE which organizational hotspots cause the most angst and tackle those first. “Let’s say it is the closet,” said Potomac-based organizer Nancy Atkinson Patch of Not-A-Problem. “Pull everything out and then take a good look at the space.”

Once the space is empty, start to visualize the possibilities.

“Go into a room or space and really daydream about what you want that room to be,” said Eileen LaGreca, owner of Sensational Spaces in Fairfax. “What is its function? How do you use it? Then plan what you want to have happen in that space.”

Next, divide the contents of the room into categories. “Set up a sorting station,” said Atkinson Patch. “Get everything in one spot, and then start grouping so you can get a handle on what it is you’re dealing with.”

Belongings should fall into three categories: those to keep, those to donate and those to discard. Experts say be ruthless. “This is an excellent quality to have when you are organizing,” said Atkinson Patch. “Look at the items and ask, ‘Have I used this in five years?’ If the answer is no, it is time for the item to go bye-bye. Hang trash bags on the door knobs while you’re organizing.”

Create specific spaces for each object. “There is a saying: ‘A place for everything and everything in its place.’ Buy appropriate storage containers and label them,” said Atkinson Patch. “Then think in departments. Group similar items in one place, put them in a container and call it a department. For example, the extension cords go in the electrical department. Hammers go in the tool department. Needles and thread go in the sewing department.”

As you sort, you might find multiples. “Once I had a client who started organizing and discovered that she had 12 staplers because

Organized in a New Year

when she couldn't find one she would go out and buy another one," said Susan Unger, an organizer and owner of Clutter SOS in Vienna.

Work gradually until a home or space is organized. "Do it in small, manageable chunks," said Jody Al-Saigh, owner of Picture Perfect Organizing in Arlington. "Perhaps 15 or 20 minutes per day and perhaps one day out of the week. Make manageable goals that you can achieve because you are going to get frustrated if you don't. If you can't do a whole room in one day, maybe do a drawer one day and another one the next day until the room is finished."

ORGANIZERS say resist the urge to purchase organizing tools until you assess your needs. "First start by using things you already own before buying new things," said Buco.

Drawer dividers, non-slip hangers and clear plastic containers are among organizers' top weapons in the battle against chaos.

"[One] client had a lot of necklaces and bracelets that she never wore because they were in a drawer and she couldn't see them," said Unger. "I found these great Lucite jewelry hangers that we attached to her closet, and now she sees them and wears them all the time."

"One main organizational problem is a lot of junk drawers," said Atkinson Patch. "Everybody has them. They hold everything from bills to throat lozenges. You're allowed to have one junk drawer in your house. Put everything else in the proper place."

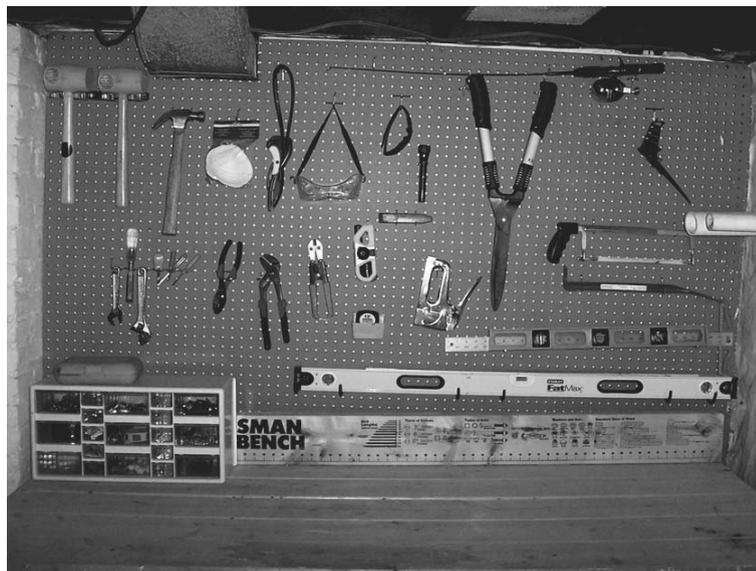

Another source of clutter is unsorted mail. "Stand next to the trashcan and go through the mail when you first get it," said Atkinson Patch. "Throw out or recycle things you know you don't want or need. Ask yourself, 'Do I have money to give to this charity right now?' If the answer is no, throw it in the trash. You don't need to save these things. You can go online to give to charity and order from catalogs."

To help eliminate excess paper, scan documents and store them electronically whenever possible. "For important things like passports and birth certificates get a fireproof box so you can keep them safe and access them quickly," said Buco.

With the proper organizational gadgets, crowded closets become more spacious. "One way to make more room in closets [is to buy] hangers with several clips so you can hang multiple clothing items on one hanger and use your lateral space more efficiently," said Reinholdt. "You can piggyback your hangers and hang maybe four or five things in the same space. I am also big on using over-the-door shoe pockets for not only shoes but for storing all kinds of things like scarves, jewelry [and] small items like socks and underwear."

When organizing a child's space, techniques such as labeling containers with pictures instead of words makes it easier for young children to put belongings in the proper space. "If there is a bin for blocks, put a picture of blocks on the front," said Buco. "Keep like items together. Dolls with dolls, crayons with crayons."

Buco organized the playroom in her grandchildren's Centreville home using the same tools that she uses for adult spaces. "What is important for children is that they can see everything clearly and that everything is in arms reach," she said.

Take inventory of children's spaces quarterly. "Go through playrooms and children's bedrooms four times each year to organize and assess toys and clothing," said Buco.

Once a home is tidy and everything is in its proper place, what is the secret for keeping it that way? Experts say it takes discipline. "There is a maintenance routine where for 10 minutes every day you go around your house and put things back where they belong," said LaGreca.

The "one in, one out" rule is golden in the world of organization. "If you're buying something new, that might mean getting rid of something else to make room for it," said Al-Saigh. "When you buy something, you need to be thinking first about where it is going to go in your home. If an item doesn't have a home, it should not be coming into your home."

SPORTS ROUNDUPS

Langley, in recent high school ice hockey action, defeated Paul VI High (Fairfax), 6-1, in a Friday night contest in Reston. Paul VI jumped out to an early lead when the Panthers scored off a screened shot. But Langley goalie Ryan Framinan would not allow another goal.

Langley tied the game shortly afterwards when Sam LaFuria backhanded the puck into the net off a perfect pass from Kevin Diner. Next, Griffin Boedicker's slapshot was expertly deflected into the goal by Atte Happonen, giving Langley a 2-1 lead. Additional goals were scored by Evan Sterling, Diner, Conor Maddry, and Happonen, with assists coming from Mike Adams, Zach Shames, and Colin Dibble.

The Langley defensive lines controlled the puck throughout the game, holding PVI to just six shots, while the PVI goalie bravely faced 38 shots. Langley, with the win, improved to 3-2 on the season. The team will be back in action against South Lakes at Reston on Friday evening, Jan. 20 at 6:10.

In an earlier season game, Langley lost a close contest to Chantilly, 4-2, in Ashburn. The Chargers jumped to an early lead with a pair of goals over the first four minutes. Langley, despite outshooting the Chargers 22-14 and controlling the puck well the rest of the game, was never able to recover from the early deficit.

Langley's Drew Schneider scored unassisted to end the first period, pulling Langley to within 2-1. Neither team would score again until the third period due to solid defensive play on both ends of the ice. The pace of the game was incredibly fast despite the late hour.

The Chargers went ahead 3-1 in the third period, but Langley soon answered when Peter Nam assisted Evan Sterling for a score that got the Saxons within 3-2. Langley then pulled its goalie and created several good scoring opportunities. But Charger goalie Dylan Harris (21 saves) never allowed the equalizer.

Langley's defense did an excellent job of controlling the league's top goal scorer, Chantilly's Chris Howland, until he scored on an open net shot during the last seconds of the game to end the contest at 4-2.

Langley Girls Handle Liberty Foe Fairfax, 57-47

Saxons, despite tough record, playing hard and showing improvement.

BY RICH SANDERS
THE CONNECTION

The Langley High girls' basketball team opened 2012 up with a victory on Tuesday, Jan. 3 when the Saxons defeated visiting Fairfax High, 57-47, in a Liberty District game played early last week.

The win was the third of the season for Langley (3-9) and second in a row. The Saxons, later in the week, lost a district game at Stone Bridge, 52-44, last Friday night.

Langley lost eight of its first nine games this season but had won two of its next three contests going into this week's play. Saxon head coach Amanda Bates likes the makeup of her squad and believes the team will get better and better as the season moves on. Langley was scheduled to play district home games this week against Madison (Tuesday, Jan. 10) and Marshall (Friday, Jan. 13).

"This is a really special group of players, and when they come ready to play for 32 minutes we are a tough team to beat," said Bates. "We're going to take the rest of the season one game at a time and work to get a good seed for the district tournament."

In last week's win over Fairfax, three Langley players - junior forward Jessica Stewart (19 points), junior guard Alexis Biggs-Garcia (12), and junior guard Jennie Kleinknecht (11) - scored in double figures. The Saxons, in the win, jumped out to an 18-4 lead after one quarter. Fairfax played a good second quarter and was within 26-19 at halftime. The Rebels (5-5) played Langley fairly even in the second half but the Saxons prevailed for the much needed victory. Fairfax received a huge outing from Liz McNaughton, who scored a game-high 27 points.

Langley rebounded the basketball particularly well in the win over Fairfax, with Stewart bringing down a game-high 18 boards.

"Going into Tuesday's game against Fairfax, I challenged the players to do a better job controlling the boards and we really did a fantastic job on the glass," said Bates. "Jessica Stewart was unreal."

Later last week, Langley fell behind the Bulldogs of Stone Bridge, 20-10, after one quarter. The Saxons outscored the home team from Ashburn over the following three quarters but lost by eight points. Langley's top scorers in the game were junior guard Grace Goettman (12 points) and Stewart (9). Catie Chaudhry, a senior guard, added six points for the Saxons and Biggs-Garcia scored five. For Stone Bridge (10-1), Murielle Teirnan scored 22 points.

OVER THE HOLIDAYS, Langley competed at the Pohanka Classic at Chantilly High School. There, the Saxons went 1-2 overall. Langley, in its first game of the tournament on Dec. 27, lost 66-35 to a talented Georgetown Visitation team in a game which began at 9 a.m. They lost to Robinson the following day, 53-38, but came back strong on Dec. 29 in their final game at the Classic, defeating Jefferson High 64-27.

Langley showcased a balanced scoring attack in the win over Jefferson as seven Saxon players scored at least six points. Langley's top scorer in the win was Stewart with 14 points. The winners also received nine points from junior guard Kaelin Testa and eight apiece from both Goettman and Kleinknecht. Three Langley players - Biggs-Garcia, Chaudhry, and senior forward Blair Stuhlmuller - each scored six points, and junior forward Hayley Soutter scored four.

In the tournament opener loss to Georgetown Visitation, Stewart and Goettman scored 11 and 10 points, respectively, for the Saxons. And in the setback to the Rams of Robinson (8-3), Langley's top scorers were also Stewart (17 points) and Goettman (10). Robinson's top scorer was Megan Green (13 points), with Ram players Jenna Lamb, Noelle Martinson, and Christie Michals each tallying eight points.

"We played a very talented Georgetown Visitation team in our first game," said Bates, summing up her team's play at the Classic. "We played hard against Robinson but came up a bit short down the stretch. We ended the tournament with a solid victory over Thomas Jefferson, giving us a lot of momentum going into district play."

Legislators Urged to Restore Funding for Human Services

mental health issues of our young people, from the gunning down of two police officers at the Sully District Police Station...to the five beautiful young women who died on April 16, 2007," McNabb said. "Each and every day, families are devastated by mental illness. We can no longer bury our head in the sand..."

Carmen Clark and Daniel Ing talked about the mental health and addiction services they received from the Fairfax-Falls Church County Community Services Board (CSB).

"Frankly, without these services, I would be dead," Clark said to the panel. "Using and abusing drugs and alcohol is a way to cope with mental illness, so we need to have services that get to the core issues."

"People with mental illness can be productive," Ing testified "But only if we have access to these services. As a community, we are only as strong as our weakest points," Ing said.

Del. Vivian Watts (D-39) said she noticed more people willing to talk about mental health issues. "That's a shift from previous years," Watts said. "We've heard more from those advocating for the mentally ill, not only substance abuse or autism, but a wide range of needed services."

She said it was encouraging that more people are willing to acknowledge the impact that mental illness has on families and the community. "We need to support and fund these services, because many of these programs, as we've heard today, are critical in helping people with mental illness to be functional," Watts said.

Kari Warren of Mount Vernon brought her two young daughters with her to the podium. "We are here to put a face on domestic violence, because we are survivors." Speaking on behalf of the Commission for Women, she thanked the delegation for passing anti-stalking legislation last year, and urged lawmakers to support more shelters for victims of domestic violence.

"Everyone has the right to be heard," said Sen. Richard Saslaw (D-35), who presided over the annual forum. "These are people who don't have high-powered lobbyists to speak for them in Richmond. I never get tired of hearing from them."

SPRINGFIELD MOTHER Carrin Brandt, whose 10-year-old daughter, Bailey, has profound intellectual and developmental disabilities with uncontrolled seizures, which resulted in the removal of half her brain, told lawmakers how important continued funding of Medicaid waivers is to her family. In addition to Bailey's anti-seizure medications, which can cost thousands each month, Medicaid helps pay for a full-time aide, allowing Bailey to live in the community with her family and friends instead of being institutionalized.

"These are not frivolous things we're asking for," Brandt said. "If we lost Medicaid, it would jeopardize her life and health; my husband and I would not be able to work or maintain our community relationships." Brandt is also president of the ARC of Northern Virginia, and said there are 7,000 families "who live in daily crisis because they receive no services as they remain on the waiting list for a Medicaid waiver."

Brandt, who is a licensed marriage and family therapist, said that while Bailey's medical and developmental challenges can be overwhelming, the joys of raising her are also great.

"Bailey is a human being, and she adds value to this world. Bailey is our greatest teacher. ...I don't want you all and our community to miss out on the opportunity to learn from Bailey."

Marta Conner of Centreville also spoke about the challenges of raising a child with disabilities, and the critical support and intervention services she received from The Infant & Toddler Connection of Fairfax-Falls Church (ITC), a program under the um-brrella of the CSB. Conner told lawmakers that her daughter, Caroline, was diagnosed with severe developmental delays at 10 months, and her pediatrician suggested she contact the ITC.

"They helped us determine that she had significant delays in all areas of development, and gave us strategies to help her," Conner said. "We are learning that we can expand our child's horizons through therapies and individualized education." She urged legislators to ensure sustainable funding to continue services "for all Virginia families who need them."

"This is a tough budget environment with difficult decisions, and, unfortunately, most of the cost-cutting comes from social services," said Del. Mark Sickles (D-43), who was elected caucus chairman in November. "One thing that stuck out today was hearing that CSB lost 19 acute care beds. We need to work to get those back."

Greg Brandon of McLean said he supported the parental notification of school investigations and beginning school before Labor Day. He also asked legislators to support the Child Care Assistance and Referral program, "a gateway into education for our most vulnerable children." Brandon said the program plays a crucial role in preparing at-risk children for kindergarten.

"Unfortunately, people in Richmond are fiddling with the CCAR program that will increase the waiting list for families most in need of child-care help," Brandon said.

David Baldacci of Arlington and Bob Stewart of Chantilly testified for SALT - Social Action Linking Together - in support of a number of social justice issues, from increasing welfare payments to Virginia families, banning the practice of shackling pregnant women in Virginia's prisons and promoting work-sharing, which enables businesses to avoid layoffs.

Del. Ken Plum (D-36) said the hearings give legislators a chance to hear from the most vulnerable citizens. "What we see are the real lives of people impacted by issues beyond their own capacities and beyond their own blame...It's critically important that government has to be in part about helping the most vulnerable. It sends a message to the delegation that we need to step back and remember the people who are hurting, aged, intellectually disabled, or suffering from a mental illness."

Del. David Bulova (D-37) said prioritizing the state's limited resources will be the most important task facing legislators this session.

"The big take away is how important the budget is in terms of reflecting our community's values," Bulova said. "It also highlights why it is so important to develop new, sustainable sources of revenue for transportation, rather than simply taking money from our already stressed general fund that supports public education, safety, health and human services, environmental protection, etc."

THE GOVERNOR'S BUDGET - a two-year $85 billion plan - is weighted in favor of transportation and higher education. But many of the speakers said they are concerned about the hundreds of millions of dollars in proposed cuts to social services. For example, McDonnell's budget proposes slashing $81 million from the Virginia Preschool Initiative (VPI), which pays for preschool programs for low-income families in Northern Virginia.

Plum said he and other members of the Fairfax delegation will be pressing the governor to take crucial "incremental" step in providing funding for social services. "There are still 5,000 people on waiting lists. The governor's budget does not progress us on that need. We need to step it forward," Plum said.

The Virginia General Assembly will meet for its 2012 session on Wednesday, Jan. 11. "We predict that over 2,000 bills will be introduced. There's a lot to watch, especially on human services," said John Horejsi of Vienna, founder of SALT.

Write From The Heart

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Obviously I find comfort in writing. Obviously I have some need to put down on paper that which is in my head. In fact, evidence suggests that cancer patients who write about their feelings have some kind of improved quality of life and/or longer life expectancy. Let's hope so because I have those feelings and I certainly am writing about them. As it relates, the date on which I'm hand-writing this column is the date three weeks out approximately, before I'm scheduled for my every-four-month CT Scan and every-12-month Full Body Scan. I'll know exactly how I'm doing - after the oncologist advises me of my scan results. Saying or doing anything now, assuming any facts not yet in evidence, hardly seems like a prudent course of presumption. Yet here I sit, pen in hand; with cats on the table.

As much comfort and companionship as "The Boys" (Biscuit and Chino) provide, they can't eliminate my cancer thoughts, especially the thoughts now, during those final weeks leading up to the scans, when the rubber will really hit the road, when an inanimate piece of technology will determine my immediate future. Nor will the technician assisting me that day play any part in the outcome. Although it doesn't stop me from asking for a good result. Usually I'll receive a smile and a thumbs up in response. Joking with the staff seems to put me at ease and soothes the savage beast in me that is working like crazy to maintain the healthy (all things considered) status quo that has characterized the preceding 34 months.

But there's only so much pretending one can do. The scan will ultimately tell the tale. Hopefully it won't be a tale of woe because woe is me is not how I operate, which is good since my tumors (stage IV) are inoperable. In fact, stage IV means inoperable, I believe. Synonymous seems too innocent a word to attach to such a life-changing and serious diagnosis/prognosis, but if the shoe fits (which it doesn't anymore because of the edema in my feet, a side effect of the high blood pressure medication I take in an attempt to meet the levels mandated by the manufacturer of the targeted treatment drug, Avastin, which I'm infused with monthly), I suppose at this stage (pun intended) I should be happy to wear it.

And I most definitely am wearing it, a larger size though. But to not admit that all of this cancer stuff wears on me would be a lie. And since, generally speaking, I don't like to lie, and I have this need to vent and the space to vent it (and from all indications and feedback, a fairly receptive and interested audience on whom to vent), I am writing this column about the betwixt and between that a cancer patient (who's terminal) feels waiting for words to live by, words which have never been promised, are not guaranteed, subject to change and totally out of my control: "All stable. No growth and/or movement." Positive (meaning good) scan results.

All I can do is wait. When I know, you'll know. There's not much else to say really, but I've tried to say it anyway; except, the longer I'm a patient, the less patient I seem to become. I'm not losing it yet, but I'd sure like to find it. A cure would be nice, but I'll settle for more encouraging/stable scan results. It is said that "Good things come to those who wait." I only wish it were that simple.
