Demolition signals transformation of Springfield Mall into $200 million town center.

BY VICTORIA ROSS
THE CONNECTION

Fairfax County Supervisor Jeff McKay (D-Lee) could not have been happier as chunks of steel and concrete began falling off Springfield Mall Monday morning, Nov. 26.

“This is the biggest thing to happen in Springfield since the Mixing Bowl,” McKay said, watching as the CAT excavator began demolishing what was once Garfinckel’s department store.

McKay, who has been instrumental in pushing the Springfield Mall project forward for several years, joined Vornado/Charles E. Smith President Mitchell Shear and other civic leaders to kick off the exterior demolition of the mall, a visible sign that the 1970s-era “fortress” mall will be transformed into Springfield Town Center in 2014.

Holding a rock-sized piece of Garfinckel’s in his hand, McKay said it will be a relief to be able to tell constituents that the project, which the board of supervisors approved three years ago, is finally underway.

“People have doubted this project,” said Nancy-jo Manney, executive director, Greater Springfield Chamber of Commerce. “We are all excited to see the new re-done project.”

In July, mega-developer Vornado shuttered all of the interior stores as the first phase of the $200 million renovation began. But the project had lurched forward in fits and starts for so many years that many in the local business community were skeptical they would ever see a new mall.

Faiqa Bahtti, who works in sales at the Hilton across from the mall, walked over to the construction site on Monday morning to take photos of the demolition. “It’s exciting to finally see it happen. People wondered if this day would come,” she said.

In 2006, Vornado Realty purchased the mall for $171.5 million. In 2009, the board of supervisors approved rezoning of the property to permit Vornado’s development plans. Soon after, any sign of redevelopment came to a halt. No construction equipment materialized, and shoppers saw the mall continue its slow decline.

In 2010, Vornado defaulted on its mortgage of $171.5 million, and then refinanced the mall for $115 million, a strategic way to alleviate debt.

“People have been disappointed in the past,” McKay said, “but when everything is complete, the final product will knock your socks off.”

THE NEWLY-RENOVATED MALL, which Shear said would open in the fall of 2014, will include an addition of roughly 700,000 square feet of retail, restaurants, a food court and a state-of-the-art movie theater. The 20-foot-tall brown numbers that indicated the mall’s six main entrances—a hallmark of the 1970s-era mall—will be replaced with one central grand entranceway.

Though Shear said it was too early to disclose potential new tenants, he said the new center will have a more “upscale” tenant mix and the three anchor stores—Macy’s, Target and JCP—will remain open during construction.

“There will be much more in terms of variety of shops,” said Vornado’s project manager, Bob Byrne, adding that the mall will be turned “inside-out,” with outward facing storefronts in keeping with the town center look of the mall.

Later phases of the renovation—expected to take about 10 to 15 years—will complete the town center look, with a mix of upscale retail and commercial development, a 225-room hotel, pedestrian plazas, recreational facilities, 2,000 residential units and transportation improvements.

McKay and other county leaders have called the mall’s renovation “the most important redevelopment project in Springfield.”

Jerry Gordon, executive director of the Fairfax County Economic Development Authority, agrees.

He said Springfield has all the right pieces in place to experience a “rebirth” and create a vibrant new identity, despite its ubiquitous name.

“Every state has a Springfield, and Springfield, Virginia, has always been a bedroom community. Now it’s changing, and that’s exciting,” Gordon said. “I think Jeff McKay has shown a great deal of leadership on this.”

“The final product will knock your socks off.”

—Supervisor Jeff McKay

“People have doubted this project,” said Nancy-jo Manney, executive director of the Greater Springfield Chamber of Commerce, standing next to Supervisor Jeff McKay (D-Lee) and Vornado/Charles E. Smith President Mitchell Shear during the exterior demolition of the mall on Monday, Nov. 26.

Gordon said the time is right for the community’s transformation.

“You have transportation in place with the Mixing Bowl and a Metro station, and the jobs coming—an estimated 16,000 new jobs and $8-10 million in construction as a result of Ft. Belvoir’s Base Realignment and Closures (BRAC)—and the next thing are the amenities, such as the new Springfield Town Center... This all contributes to a higher quality of life.”

MCKAY SAID he was looking forward to new shops that cater to children, since he has two young children, “and good restaurants that my wife and I can enjoy.”

He said the chunk of Garfinckel’s—a place he remembers shopping with his mother, and being “bored to tears”—will take its place on a shelf in his office with other pieces of Springfield’s past, such as Chi-Chi’s Mexican restaurant and Circuit City.

Clifton Horse Parade

The holidays begin in the Town of Clifton this Saturday, Dec. 1, at 2 p.m., with a parade of horses and riders decorated in Christmas finery. Sponsored by the Clifton Horse Society, the parade travels up Main Street, goes through town and along Chapel Street to a field where participants and spectators gather for cookies and the awarding of prizes. The public is invited to share in the festivities.

FCPS Superintendent Search

FCPS Superintendent Jack D. Dale is retiring on June 30, 2013, and the county school board is actively seeking his replacement. The county is gathering community input via an online survey about the important characteristics of an effective superintendent. The survey opened Nov. 26 and will be open until Jan. 18, 2013. Go to <https://survey-admin.ecr.agroup.com/index.php?sid=57779&lang=en>.

In addition, a public meeting about the search is planned for Monday, Dec. 3, at 7 p.m., at South County High, 8501 Silverbrook Road in Lorton. All county residents and FCPS employees are invited to attend.

Police Collect Toys for Ill Children

For the 26th year in a row, the Fairfax County Police Department motorcycle squad is working collaboratively with the Fairfax County Sheriff's Office, Virginia State Police, Fairfax City Police, Falls Church Sheriff's Office, and the Town of Vienna Police to collect and distribute toys for sick children, as well as local charities such as the Ronald McDonald House.

Please consider donating a new, unwrapped toy, game or book at any Fairfax County Police station before Monday, Dec. 10. Donations are also being accepted at the Fairfax County Police Headquarters at 4100 Chain Bridge Road,

History Conference Focuses on Conflict and Courage

Local historians honored.

The eighth Annual Fairfax County History Conference was held on Saturday, Nov. 10, at the Stacy C. Sherwood Community Center in the City of Fairfax. A record 120 participants were in attendance to enjoy the theme of “Conflict & Courage: The Civil War in Fairfax County.” Over 20 authors and exhibitors also attended and the day was filled with living history, including the re-enactment of the “Secession Vote in Fairfax County” by the Jon Vrana players.

The passion of both sides was clearly portrayed, including the reminder of the silence women endured in not being able to share a voice in local or national elections. Other living history presentation included the premiere of Chuck Mauro’s play, “Chantilly: After the Storm” depicting three survivors from the Battle of Ox Hill/Chantilly on Sept. 1, 1862. Award-winning author and speaker Greg Clemmer spoke on “Why the Civil War Still Lives” and captivated the audience by numerous references to how present the Civil War is in our daily lexicon—including the comparison of all presidential speeches to the Gettysburg address and the presence of Civil War music still used in Hollywood today—with “Dixie” being the most commonly used song in movies. Kevin Knapp captured the audience’s attention with his period dress and stories of Thaddeus Lowe—the Reconnaissance Balloonist who landed a balloon in our own Vienna, and literally launched the First American Air Force. Letters written by Clara Barton were read by Susan Rosenvold, an educator at the Clara Barton Medical Museum.

The Fairfax County Park Authority sent three of its premier historians, Mike Henry, John Rutherford and Jim Daniels to speak on, “Echoes Still – This Land = Our Land”—a review of the many sites and stories that are the backdrop to Fairfax County’s parks today. The “Seeds of Independence” historic preservation group from Gunston Hall shared their video which had been released earlier this year, “The Story of Free Blacks Living on Mason’s Neck During the Civil War”—a fascinating look at a prosperous and now forgotten part of Fairfax County—where numerous “free” blacks lived, owned homes, property and business establishments—yet who unfortunately got caught up in the horror of the war as it took place around them. The conference ended with a passionate “Appeal” from President Abraham Lincoln—masterfully re-enacted by Fairfax County School Board member Dan Storck.

Three Narcotics K-9s Support the Force

Leroy, Lucy and Vegas are trained and ready for duty. With their keen sense of smell, they are experts at scanning wide varieties of locations and assisting patrol officers with requests for service on a 24/7 basis. These dogs are busy, industrious professionals.

Last year, officers assigned to the Fairfax County Police Department Organized Crime and Narcotics Unit were responsible for 392 arrests and removing 263 pounds of drug material from Fairfax County.

Canines and their handlers play a key role in helping keep Fairfax County safe and drug-free. According to the unit's commander, Captain Mike Wall, “The K-9 teams are an invaluable resource to our detectives.”

All of the K-9s were bred and raised by Green Collar K9 in Leroy; a one-year-old yellow Labrador retriever started work in July 2012. He replaced retired K9 Jazz, who he lives with, along with another black Labrador named Tebow.

Lucy; a three-year-old Red Fox Labrador who loves to work. She also loves children, lying on the floor, and getting petted. She lives with retired K-9 Otis and another dog named Molly.

Vegas; a two-year-old Labrador has been sniffing out narcotics since December 2010. She lives in a home with another 7-year-old Labrador.

Christmas Tree Fire Safety

Fairfax County Fire and Rescue Department crews distributed Christmas tree safety tags to holiday tree lot vendors during the week before Thanksgiving. These tags provide valuable, fire-safety tips for residents when purchasing a tree.

Residents should keep the tree base immersed in water; not allow smoking near the tree; use only lights approved by Underwriters Laboratories (U.L.); use flame-retardant decorations and paper; inspect lights for frayed or cracked wiring, broken plugs and defective sockets; unplug lights at night and when leaving the home; and remove the tree soon after the holidays, before the needles dry out.

Learning in a Global Community

Students in Fairfax County speak 160 languages.

This week our ongoing series about immigration in Fairfax County takes a look at county schools, and some of the joys and challenges of having a diverse student body that speaks as many as 160 different languages at home.

Find the series compiled online at <http://www.connectionnewspapers.com/news/Immigration/>.

For the director of language acquisition in Fairfax County Public Schools, the 44 percent of students who speak a foreign language at home present an opportunity to create language immersion classes where half a kindergarten is learning Spanish or Korean while the other half is learning English.

For principals of some elementary schools where more than half of their students are not proficient in English, the need to have students meet benchmarks in a variety of subjects is a relentless process. In addition to limited English, immigrant students come from varied backgrounds, some with good basics in their own languages and some with limited previous education in any language. The parents of these students are similarly varied.

Meanwhile, representation of Latino and African American students in Fairfax County's top instructional centers for gifted students lags dramatically.

EDITORIAL

FCPS is conducting two critical sets of public meetings this week and next. The call for public input is not specifically about growing diversity in the schools, but related challenges make both the possible expansion of centers for the county's most talented students and the selection of a new superintendent of schools that much more important.

A fast moving proposal to expand the number of centers to provide "advanced academic" services is the topic of meetings this week. The meetings will run from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 27, in the Westfield High School cafeteria; Wednesday, Nov. 28, in the Lee High School cafeteria; and Thursday, Nov. 29, in the Kilmer

Middle School cafeteria.

Fairfax County Public Schools Superintendent Jack Dale will be retiring in June of 2013. The School Board has hired a search firm, Hazard, Young, Attea and Associates, which will be gathering community input. Many of the challenges facing the new superintendent will revolve around growing diversity, and a track record of open communication and achievement in this will be key to success.

FOCUS ON IMMIGRATION

Immigrants and Today's Faith Response

By JOHN HOREJSI, COORDINATOR
SOCIAL ACTION LINKING TOGETHER (SALT)

The presence of increasing numbers of immigrants is a challenge to the Fairfax County faith community commitments. The challenge is to be a faith community with open arms.

Historically the churches in the United States have been immigrant churches. Who among us cannot trace one's ancestors back to a country outside the U.S.? The church's care and concern for countless European immigrants is well known. Today, we the faith community are called to welcome immigrants with similar hospitality.

The situation of immigrants is often desperate. Entering a culturally strange and different land, and struggling financially is as scary today as it ever was in the past. Perhaps it is even more so because of the quickened pace of American life.

Those who are fortunate to connect with helpers are settled within a few years. Others remain in transition the rest of their lives as families struggle with complex adjustments. All face major problems in housing, employment, health care, legal assistance, and a difficult new language.

Immigrants frequently face the additional obstacle of cruel prejudice and racism. Non-immigrants often want to exclude them from the benefits of a free country, yet are eager to use cheap and reliable labor of immigrants.

The immigrants and other refugees keep coming, not necessarily because they want to, but as one, fleeing from war and persecution, put it, because of "the persistent advantage of life over death."

Presently, many Hispanics from Central America are located in Northern Virginia. About 65 percent are Salvadoran, 15 percent Honduran, and 10 percent each are Guatemalan and Nicaraguan. The faith community in Northern Virginia has not been unaware of the presence and plight of these immigrant refugees.

Nationally, for more than 65 years, Catholic Charities agencies have responded to the needs of people who come to this country in search of a better life. Thousands of refugees have been settled. Over 90 percent of Catholic resettlement services are provided through Catholic Charities, which is one of the keys to the future of migration ministry in the U.S.

In Northern Virginia, one of the responses of the faith community has been through Hogar Immigrant Services, a program of Catholic Charities. Hogar assists immigrants in participating more fully in their everyday lives. Information referrals, legal information services, and educational opportunities are just some of the aids. The aim is to help the Northern Virginia immigrant population become knowledgeable, participating individuals in society.

Yet much remains to be done, especially in and by the faith community. What are the elements of this challenge?

- ❖ Recognizing the contributions of the immigrants to the community;
- ❖ Providing a greater voice to the immigrant community in decision-making within the community;
- ❖ Supporting programs designed to improve the quality of life for newcomers;
- ❖ Serving as advocates to create a favorable public opinion out of which good things can happen; and
- ❖ Seeking to raise consciousness for solidarity with the poor and the stranger.

Our response must be to acknowledge by word and action that the spirituality of the faith community and the spirituality of the immigrant communities are interdependent. Through love, kindness, service and advocacy for each other both stand to gain.

The Secret Beauty of Holiday Assistance

BY LISA WHETZEL

Every year I grapple with the appropriateness of Our Daily Bread's very popular Holiday Assistance Program. I'm conflicted. Is it really doing anyone any good providing a local child a Pillow Pet or toy fire-truck this holiday? What the children of our clients really need is quality day care/preschool, consistently nutritious food, and decent paying jobs for their parents, among other things.

Should I care that the Holiday Program perpetuates consumerism? Six years ago we launched our Financial Literacy Program which today teaches over 500 people a year how to budget their limited incomes and to withstand the bombardment of advertising and unabashed consumerism. They are barely making ends meet and here we are sending them a contradictory message that "stuff" is needed during the holidays.

So how do I reconcile this conflict?

First, learning a lesson from our Financial Literacy classes, we encourage our donors to stay within a modest donation budget, tempering their well-meaning holiday excessiveness. Second, we encourage donors to spend more on food than on gifts. Food provides nutrition, obviously, but a meal also brings people together. Bringing loved ones together to experience a holiday meal strengthens their bond. Feeling this bond causes a ripple effect which plays out in their everyday lives. Kids who feel connected do better in school. Parents who feel connected to their community persevere to stay on course. Our communities thrive when we all feel connected.

Third, and most importantly, the secret beauty of the Holiday Assistance Program is the transformation of the giver. Our hope is that when donors "sponsor a family" for the holidays, they serendipitously see what a family in need looks like. If ODB facilitates a human connection that then motivates people to give back year round, then the Holiday Program promises exponential generosity and a stronger community. Better yet, when persons of influence are sensitized perhaps they will make a connection that raising the cost of their business products by pennies is worth it to provide adequate wages and benefits to their employees. Perhaps when they see the innocence in the eyes of the child clutching the Pillow Pet and who deserves the same care as their own kids they will make the connection that subsidizing quality day care or head start programs should be a priority. Perhaps investing in affordable housing is a good idea too.

The beauty of the holiday assistance program is that it reminds us that we are more alike than different and that we need to live according to our values year round. People are more important than stuff or our maintaining maximum profits.

What's more beautiful is that when a struggling parent receives their prepared meal or food gift card, it gives them hope. It gives them hope that they are not alone in their struggles, and we, their community, care about their plight.

So, Our Daily Bread will continue to match neighbors with neighbors for the Holiday Program. It is our mission to empower the community to support our neighbors in need. Our hope is that the act of giving during the holidays transforms us all, prompting us to live out our generosity every day.

Learning From Diversity

To the Editor:

Diversity is a wonderful part of living in Northern Virginia. It is fabulous that my husband, daughters and I have opportunities to learn about various cultures. As the workforce development director at Infant/Toddler Family Day Care, a nonprofit, state licensed, family child care system representing approximately 28 countries and 15 languages, my family and I have the opportunity to get to know individuals that have immigrated to the United States recently and others that did so long ago. Founded in 1983, the organization started to see diversity early on, around 1985. Women immigrating from all around the world were looking to combine their love of children, need for financial stability and desire to be at home. I am honored each time I have the opportunity to visit a new home and hear stories of immigration and the struggles some have gone through. Each time I get another perspective on what it means to have our freedom. Even if a family does not have a lot of resources they often want to make sure they feed me or send me home with food for my family. The caring and nurturing family child care providers I work with have changed who I am and allowed me to expose my family to opportunities that may not otherwise be possible. This best kept secret in Northern Virginia has supported and empowered our very diverse community for almost 30 years and I hope it continues celebrating differences for many more.

FOCUS ON IMMIGRATION

Schools Using Diversity for Student Benefits

Immersion, ESOL programs aim to take advantage of area cultures.

“We highly value the diversity of our population, because it’s advantageous for our students to grow up here, as global citizens.”
— Teddi Predaris, director of the county’s Office of Language Acquisition

As Fairfax County has experienced massive growth in its international population, its effects have spread to its educational institutions. Forty-four percent of the Fairfax County Public Schools students come from homes that speak a language other than English, which includes 160 different languages.

In 2006, the county came up with the goal to eventually have all graduates be able to communicate in two languages. The county currently offers 11 different languages.

“We highly value the diversity of our population, because it’s advantageous for our students to grow up here, as global citizens,” said Teddi Predaris, director of the county’s Office of Language Acquisition. “We believe it’s a huge asset for our students in their future endeavors.”

Approximately 28 percent of the county’s current population are foreign born, with Spanish, Korean, Vietnamese, Arabic, Urdu and Chinese/Mandarin being the most common languages spoken in the homes of elementary school students.

The county’s kindergarten two-way immersion program is one method used by schools to take advantage of increasing diversity. The program consists of half English speakers and half who speak the immersion language.

“In this program, the teachers and students are language models for each other, and they spend half the day working at each language,” Predaris said. “Our criteria for adding these programs is having a large enough population of the non-English speaking group to make a 50-50 mix possible. This is one of the models we hope to expand in coming years.”

The county has five Spanish kindergarten two-way immersion programs, at Bailey’s, Braddock, Lake Anne, London Towne and Rose Hill Elementary Schools. New this year is a Korean two-way immersion school at Colin Powell Elementary School in Centreville.

THE PROGRAM AT COLIN POWELL was designed to take advantage of the area’s large Korean population. The Korean students who are in the program all could speak a little English.

“The program is a niche that fits very well in our community. For the native English speakers, it helps them understand more about the culture of the people they share the community with every day. It gives everyone more understanding of the people that walk through our doors every day,” said

Principal Linda Clifford. “Walking into a classroom the other day, I was amazed at how many non-Korean students were able to understand Korean very well.”

Clifford said she hopes in future years that the school can expand the program beyond kindergarten, eventually to every grade at the school. The school also offers an after school program to all students who are interested in learning Korean, and they even have a pre-school program to teach immigrant families about school programs and other information they might not otherwise be familiar with before their children start school.

Students in the program at Bailey’s Elementary take health, math and science in their native language. As a magnet school, students from across the county can apply, which the school uses mainly to fill its English-speaking requirement.

“The native Spanish speakers come to Bailey’s with a wide range of English skills, depending on where they come from,” said Assistant Principal Rachel Charlton. “Some come from very rural areas where they have little to no schooling. There’s always a silent period in the beginning, but periods like lunch and recess allow the Spanish speakers to talk among themselves, which helps open them up. Children learn most of their language from each other, so having native speakers of both languages helps both groups immensely. Each group of native speakers gets to be the language role model for half a day, with the other students learning from them. It really boosts their confidence.”

COUNTY SCHOOLS also feature

ELEMENTARY SCHOOL ATTENDANCE AREAS

immersion programs in Japanese, German and French at elementary and middle schools.

Another area of growth has been the county’s English for Speakers of Other Languages program, which started 35 years ago with 300 students. Since then it has seen a steady increase, with 15,000 in fiscal year 2001 and 31,000 this year.

Janet Funk, principal of Gunston Elementary School in Lorton, where approximately 300 students come from a home where another language is spoken, says everyday interaction with new cultures is an important part of early education.

“Interesting conversations can be heard in the lunchroom, especially when students from other countries bring their food from home. Children are very interested in bringing their favorite foods, which naturally flows to a discussion of traditions and celebrations,” she said. “With these informal discussions, the students learn the importance of accepting classmates for who they are. This supports our goal of cultural acceptance and collaborative interaction among our school community.”

But with such diversity comes challenges, especially when it comes to Standards of Learning tests.

“Classroom teachers and ESOL teachers work diligently to help the students learn the English language. Many of our students from other countries are still learning English and are reading below grade level expectations,” Funk said. “These students receive reading instruction in the classroom setting and the ESOL classroom. They are receiving a ‘double’ dose of reading on a regularly scheduled basis. However, when it comes time to take the SOL tests, they are required to take the test on grade level in a language in which they are not proficient.”

In Virginia, SOL tests must be taken in English, but in Texas, for example, standardized tests can be taken in Spanish.

CHANGES to the state’s licensure requirements this year have also caused some difficulties. This year, the state required teachers in elementary school programs to not only be licensed in their language, but also for elementary education.

“We’ve struggled this year due to the new requirement,” Charlton said. “We’ve had to use some long-term subs until as recently as two or three weeks ago before we had enough full time teachers that met qualifications. Now I think the universities are aware of the change, so it might be better in future years, but it can definitely make it difficult to find people.”

In the U.S., the students said, you have extracurricular programs that enhance the total person. What the U.S. does not have, however, that international schools stress, is an emphasis on foreign language fluency.

English is a compulsory curriculum in many school systems the world over. Some students, such as Kasthury Paramiswaran, a Marshall senior from Malaysia, speak multiple languages, fluent in each. Kasthury’s family moved around the world as part of her father’s job, and Kasthury mastered four languages in her journeys. Teachers discuss challenges of teaching English as a Second Language.

BY MICHELLE KAIN
THE CONNECTION

Garfield Elementary School in Springfield, like all of Fairfax County, has a population that reflects a wide range of backgrounds. With 33 languages spoken, the school's ESOL (English for Speakers of Other Languages) program has had to expand. The school has a first grade class of 60 students, 58 of whom are ESOL students ranging from levels one through four.

Jane Cofie-Raczko, who has been a teacher for the past 13 years, teaches one of three first grade classes in which all 20 of the students have English as a second language.

The majority of these students are from Hispanic or Middle Eastern backgrounds and common languages include Spanish, Arabic, Urdu, Farsi, Korean, Chinese and Vietnamese. The challenges involved with teaching these students depend on their proficiency with the English language.

"For students who speak almost no English, it can be difficult to communicate to the students that you want them to succeed and that you are there to help them. It can also be difficult to get the students to ask for help, mostly due to their lack of confidence in their speaking ability. For students with a better knowledge of the social language, it can be tough to give them a similarly strong academic language. Add the already difficult material to learning English for the first time and it can be very challenging," said Cofie-Raczko.

"The success of the students with the curriculum and their preparedness for middle and high school depends on the schooling they received in their home country as well as when they enrolled at Garfield," said Rozi Khakpour, an ESOL teacher at Garfield Elementary.

Students who have attended Garfield from the start get the opportunity to develop oral language at an early age through programs such as Lunch and Bunch in which kindergartners with English as a second language meet twice a week to have lunch and practice this important skill.

The program, along with others, have proven to be successful as "students who have been at Garfield since kindergarten often exceed in high school and earn positions on the honor roll," Khakpour said.

"Another thing that has proven to be helpful," said Kirsten Howard, another first grade teacher, "is Garfield's social curriculum." This social curriculum, which concentrates on teaching students cooperation, assertion, responsibility, empathy, and self-control, has given students a greater awareness outside themselves and has helped them in middle in high school as demonstrated by their willingness to take on leadership positions.

of being Italian." Dalila carried that warning with her when she entered Marshall. The dire warning turned out to have no basis at her new school. "When I tell people here I'm Italian, they say, 'oh, I love Italy' and then, I'm so relieved. Yes, I am proud to say I'm Italian here."

In Italy, it was always school and studying through late evening, Dalila said. She had no social life there.

"When I came here, it was such a relief," she said. "I was so happy I finally had time for myself."

Millan Mbise, from Tanzania, was pleasantly surprised by the degree of interaction between students and teachers. Teachers are less approachable than in the U.S. Millan, whose native language is Swahili, grew up speaking English, up their native language.

"Studies show that bilingual students do better academically."

Bloom said the school helps newly-immigrated students to transition by embracing the families as they enter the school. Relationship-building is how he refers to the partnership. "When you establish that relationship with new families from other countries, you get rid of a lot of hurdles. When you do that, the families feel valued and a part of the Freedom Hill family. We have students learning from one another simply from their exposure to each other."

The children of Freedom Hill Elementary School are so accustomed to establishing relationships within the classroom, they don't recognize barriers, Bloom said. "It's a representation of the world."

Bloom refers to the school's dias well. English is compulsory in the schools, and, Millan calls it the "unofficial" language of Tanzania.

Millan is bused from Marshall daily to Falls Church High School for a class in "pharmacy technology." He learned what he wanted to do with his life while living here and attending an American school. He wants to be a pharmacist some day.

FREEDOM HILL ELEMENTARY SCHOOL feeds into the Marshall pyramid. Like Marshall, Freedom Hill is the world in microcosm. There are more than 42 languages spoken in the students' homes and the children of Freedom Hill represent more than 53 countries. Some Freedom Hill students are from diplomatic families, already bilingual or multilingual with English exposure. Others are new to English. The school, through its many ESOL levels, works with these students to help them adapt to English.

"Within the realm of school, the kids are held accountable to communicate in the English language," said first-year Freedom Hill principal Scott Bloom. As the kids interact with their peers, they pick up English.

"I like to think we also recognize the importance of kids having that dual-language skill," Bloom said. "We want them to learn English, but, we don't want them to give versity as a "hidden curriculum."

"There's so much value in having a school where children from all over the world can come together," Bloom said. "You set the stage for the children to share their history, backgrounds, culture, and experiences. "There's so much power in bringing all these different cultures together that I think it's justified to call it a hidden curriculum."

"The kids don't even know they're learning from this diversity."

Marshall's roundtable students eager to discuss their new lives all said that school life is more pressured in their native countries with little opportunities within the school system to learn nonacademic things. Schools do not promote extracurricular activities as they do here.

"Students are pushed by their parents to excel academically in Malaysia," Kasthury said. "Many of these kids commit suicide. They're told, 'if you're not the best, you'll never succeed.'"

Amber Holder has found a multitude of extracurricular activities to engage in. In Panama, there was only a single option. Here, she said, she's involved with the marching band, the literary magazine and other programs. "In Panama, you have to find one place to fit in. But, here, you can fit in in many places."

Avoiding Holiday Debt

Plan now to prevent post-holiday bills.

Festive store displays mean the holiday shopping season is in full swing. While a recent survey by the National Retail Federation is estimating that consumer spending will be conservative this year, the group predicts that the average shopper is planning to dole out $421.82 on family members, $75.13 on friends and $23.48 on co-workers.

"The holidays bring on a feeling of consumption on the part of individuals to provide gifts to families and friends," said Charles W. Miller, associate professor of finance at Marymount University in Arlington. "Often, when monies are not available, people turn to the path of least resistance which is the credit card."

While the holidays mean increased spending for many, financial setbacks can be avoided. Local money experts offer strategies for those determined to emerge from the season with minimal or no debt.

McLean-based financial advisor Kristan Anderson said, "Avoiding holiday debt is all about setting a budget and being creative about gifting options," she said. "The budget should be an amount that does not require the additional use of credit cards for short-term financing."

Potomac, Md. resident Linda Berg-Cross, a researcher and professor of psychology at Howard University suggests, "Avoid developing a consuming style based on what the media is selling. Media literacy is critical for financial savvy in today's world."

Berg-Cross recommends that consumers use money-saving tactics like "holiday shopping at resale stores, waiting for sales, cutting coupons, and [internet] surfing to comparison shop."

Theresa Wansi, Ph.D., professor of finance at Marymount University adds, "You can go to a store like Bloomingdales and look around and then go to a discount store and find the same items at a much lower price."

Anderson says avoid waiting until the last minute to purchase gifts. "Starting early...allows you to spread the costs out over a few months or more," she said. "Some stores are offering layaway, which is another option that avoids increasing credit card debt.

Steve Pilloff, Ph.D., assistant professor of finance at George Mason University advises consumers against going shopping without a methodical plan. "Stores have colorful displays and holiday lights that lure shoppers," he said. "Before going shopping you have to sit down and decide how much money you are going to spend on each person. Make a list and take it with you to help resist over-spending. Don't charge more on credit cards than you can afford to pay off easily in three months."

For those having financial difficulties Anderson says, "It is worth having a discussion with family members and opting to not exchange gifts outside the immediate family. Or just have a simple gift exchange where each person has only one person to buy a gift for. Don't underestimate the value of a homemade gift, either."

THE CONNECTION

'Tis the season for giving, and that includes donations to charities. According to a recent survey, charities report that year-end contributions make up nearly 40-percent of annual donations.

"With regard to your tax planning, if you're in a favorable position and can afford to do so, this is a good time to give to charity," said Charles W. Miller, associate professor of finance at Marymount University.

Money experts say there are a few things that one should consider before donating to a charity. Potomac resident Glen J. Buco, president, West Financial Services in McLean, says, "Your first thought with regard to charitable gifts is that you need to support charities and groups that you would like to support and the tax deduction should be a secondary factor."

sure the charity's priorities are consistent with one's philanthropic goals. "Look at the mission of the charity," he said. "Does it feed hungry people? Does it provide funds for medical research? I am always more comfortable with a charity that I'm familiar with."

RESEARCH A POTENTIAL CHARITY to learn how one's donation will be spent. "There are websites where you can go to see how much of every dollar given goes to charity and how much goes to administration," said Buco. "One more point to note, you need written acknowledgment from the charity for gifts over $250 in order to deduct the donation."

Make sure the charity of one's choice has high ethical standards. "Unfortunately, you always read about scams," he said. "There are charities that are not fully legitimate, but have names that sound similar to established charities to try to confuse people. When someone is going to make a donation they should try to make sure that their money is going to where they think it is going."

Buco adds, "In the wake of [Hurricane] Sandy, you have to be especially careful of scams. The IRS (Internal Revenue Service) has a website called "[Exempt Organizations] Select Check" where you can look up a charity to see if they are registered with the IRS."

Consider local charities. "There are a lot of local organizations and groups that really don't get the funding that they need, so it is nice if you can support local charities," he said.

Four Northern Virginia Harriers Heading to Nationals

Lake Braddock's Chase, West Springfield's Alcorta earn trip to San Diego.

BY JON ROETMAN
THE CONNECTION

Chantilly senior Sean McGorty and Lake Braddock senior Sophie Chase were the best in the state of Virginia this year, each winning a VHSL AAA cross country championship on Nov. 10.

Two weeks after capturing state titles at Great Meadow, McGorty and Chase took their running show on the road to compete at the Foot Locker Cross Country Championships South Regional on Nov. 24 in Charlotte, N.C. They experienced familiar results.

McGorty won the seeded boys' race with a course-record time and Chase won the seeded girls' race, earning each a spot at nationals on Dec. 8 in San Diego. McGorty, who is committed to Stanford University, finished with a personal-best time of 14:28, and Chase recorded a time of 17:05 at McAlpine Greenway Park. McGorty's effort broke the record of 14:32, set in 2004 by Andrew Bumbalough of Brentwood, Tenn.

"My performance was all I could have hoped for," McGorty wrote in an email. "To run that fast on the course was amazing and I couldn't be happier with my performance. . . . My time was a course record and this means so much to me. The course has such history and to hold the record there is truly an awesome feeling. I went out pretty hard so I knew that I had a chance at the record, but I really thought I had it in the last 200 meters."

This was McGorty's fourth year competing at the Foot Locker regional meet and his third year running in the seeded boys' race. As a sophomore in 2010, he finished 35th. McGorty placed sixth as a junior last season, earning him a trip to nationals. The top 10 finishers advance to the national championship meet. McGorty went on to place 10th at nationals in 2011.

CHASE COMPETED in the girls' seeded race at Foot

Locker regionals each of her four years of high school. She placed 41st as a freshman, eighth as a sophomore and second as a junior. At nationals, Chase finished 38th as a sophomore and 11th as a junior.

Chase wasn't the only girls' harrier from Northern Virginia to advance to nationals. West Springfield junior Caroline Alcorta placed eighth (17:19) and Oakton sophomore Allie Klimkiewicz finished ninth (17:29), securing their places in San Diego.

Alcorta's time was a personal best. "It's unbelievably exciting and nerve-wracking all at once," Alcorta wrote in an email. "Making it to Foot Locker Finals has been one of my goals ever since the beginning of the season and I can't believe it's actually happening! It's like a dream come true!"

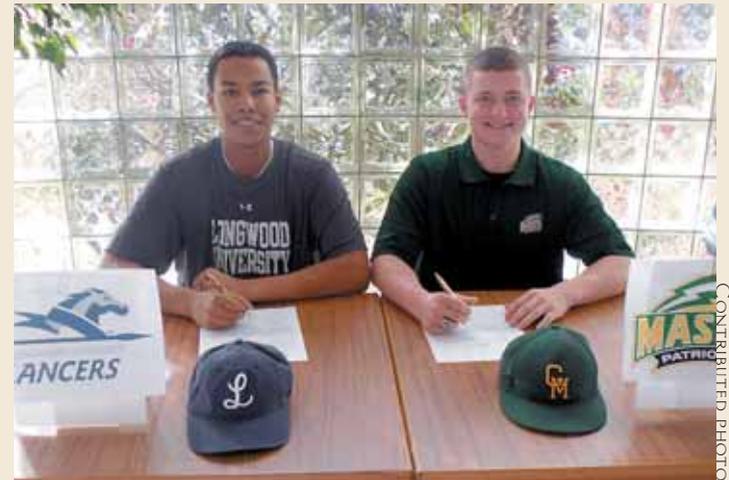

Alcorta knew about two-thirds of the way through she had a chance to crack the top 10.

"Somewhere around the two-mile mark, I realized that there was only seven of us in the pack," she wrote. "I was shocked there was only seven (later I was caught by another girl), but I came to the realization that we were all going to make it. We had all worked and pushed ourselves so hard that we were able [to] pull away from the rest of the field, and after that I decided I was not going to let this opportunity just slip by, I had come too far to lose it."

Alcorta placed 23rd at last year's Foot Locker South meet with a time of 17:52. She remembers the experience.

"Last year, I didn't really have any goals in mind except to try and finish top 30 (top 30 is considered to be 'All South'), and felt like I was running just to run and maybe even PR," she wrote. "I remember during the race the top 10 girls just flying away from me and thinking, 'Off they go!' After that, I knew I'd have to stick to that group the next and upcoming year if I had ever wanted a chance to try and qualify for the Finals. This year, I feel like I knew what to expect and knew what I needed to do in order to have a shot at making top 10."

LAKE BRADDOCK senior Nick Tuck finished 14th in the Foot Locker South seeded boys' race with a time of 15:15. In the girls' race, Robinson junior Macey Schweikert finished 21st with a time of 18:00. West Springfield senior Maddie Wittich was 22nd with a time of 18:01.

Committed to Play

Two Bruins baseball players college-bound.

Alex Lewis and Garrett Driscoll, two members of the 2012 Virginia state champion Lake Braddock Bruins, saw their hard work pay off as they signed their NCAA National Letters of Intent to play Division I baseball. Lewis will be heading to the Big South (Farmville) as part of the Longwood Lancers, while Driscoll will be staying close to home and playing for the George Mason Patriots. Not only have they been teammates in high school, but over the years, they have played travel baseball together. They were both an integral part of the Bruins success this past season, winning the first state championship for Lake Braddock Bruins baseball. This is a culmination of years of hard work by both boys.

Lewis played third base for the Bruins and is likely to have an opportunity to start as a freshman and make an immediate impact. He was 2012 first team All-Patriot District and LBSS 2012 Defensive MVP. In addition, Lewis was a member of Championship 2012 VA Commonwealth North Team.

"There were other schools who had interest but in the end I chose Longwood because it was a good fit for me," Lewis said. "It is a rapidly growing baseball program and I have a good chance to start as a freshman. I like the coaching staff and how they approach the game and I really liked the field and campus."

Garrett Driscoll is the catcher for the Bruins. He was second team all-Patriot District and received the 2012 Mike Muresco Award for Commitment from LBSS. Earlier this month, Driscoll completed his travel season with an invite to the MLB sponsored "South Atlantic Border Battle" in Burlington, N.C. where he played for the Virginia team coached by the MLB Braves.

"It has been my goal to play college baseball since I played Little League," Driscoll said. "I have been fortunate to get to know Coach Brown and the rest of the coaching staff over the years. I can't think of a better baseball program to play for. I have had a chance to spend some time on campus because my sister, Mckena, is there too. It will be great to spend my first two years there with her. George Mason is an outstanding school and I look forward to getting an excellent education as well as contributing to the Patriots on the field."

OBITUARY

Mike Wilder of Centreville, Virginia passed away on November 12, 2012 on his 48th birthday. Mike was born in Knoxville, TN. He grew up in Lake Ridge, VA and graduated from Woodbridge Senior HS in 1982.

Mike attended George Mason University and later Marymount University where he received his Bachelor's degree in Communications while working at AT&T part-time. Through a program offered by AT&T, Mike got his Master's degree in Human Resource Development from American University. Mike met his wife Sonja at AT&T in 1988. They were married in 1992. They have two daughters, Rachel and Erica.

Mike continued to work at AT&T until he transferred to Concert. He later joined Nextel Communications and was working as a Senior Manager when his illness occurred.

Mike was diagnosed with a brain tumor in August 2002. He had surgery to remove the tumor on August 15, 2002. Through the years, he never fully recovered from the initial surgery and as a result of his injuries never worked again. He had several recurrences of the brain tumor. In June 2012, the tumor returned and was nearly as large as the initial tumor. The doctors determined that the only treatments they could offer this time were palliative.

Mike's mom passed away in 2001. His dad passed away in 2008. His brother, Dave, lives in Lake Ridge, VA with his wife, Jane, and daughter Kristi.

Mike touched many people's lives before and after his illness. He was adored by friends, co-workers, and caregivers. He had a quick wit and made funny comments right up until his last day.

A funeral Mass will be held at St. Timothy Catholic Church, 13807 Poplar Road, Chantilly, Virginia 20151 on Friday, November 30, 2012 at 2 p.m.
