A 'Very Good Year' Ahead

2012 banner year for real estate in McLean and Great Falls.

BY KAREN BRISCOE

The overall number of real estate transactions was up in 2012 over 2011 by 11.7 percent in McLean and Great Falls. By delving deeper into the data, it reveals that all price points experienced a gain in number of sales year over year in this market segment.

Previously, sales in the lower bracket price range, considered to be those homes below $1.25 million in this market area, had continued to remain steady. In 2012 it had a respectable increase of 7.2 percent over 2011. What is most significant about 2012 is that the upper bracket market segment of over $1.25 million increased the number of sales dramatically by 27.1 percent over 2011. This is a healthy sign of recovery in that price point.

The most compelling factor of the real estate market in McLean and Great Falls currently is the number of homes available to purchase in relation to what has sold and is under contract. A balanced market is considered a six-month supply of inventory. In the under $1.25 million price point there was about a one month supply on the market as of Jan. 1, 2013. Almost everyone would agree that indicates a strong sellers market in that segment of the market. Good homes priced correctly for the current market are selling quickly and in some cases with multiple offers.

The upper bracket market segment in McLean and Great Falls area also saw improvement in terms of number of transactions relative to supply. In the $1.25 to $2 million price point as of Jan. 1, 2013 there was only a 4 month supply of inventory, which too would indicate a seller's market. In the over $2 million range there is about a 1.5 year supply available, which indicates that it is still a buyer's market. Even though this segment is still not at a balanced market, it is most definitely moving in the right direction.

The typical interim is seven years between market cycles from peak to peak. The Northern Virginia area saw real estate values peak in 2005-2006. Therefore, my prediction for this area that values will return to market peak in some segments beginning in 2012 was on target. Should similar conditions prevail, then 2013 should be a very good year in real estate in McLean and Great Falls.

The General Assembly's session will begin Wednesday, Jan. 9. Since 2013 is an odd-numbered year, the session is scheduled for 30 days, with the possibility of an extension of up to 30 additional days.

Favola said Medicaid expansion is one of her top priorities, and she hopes the General Assembly will "take a stand" this session and get it through.

"In my view, Virginia has an opportunity to take great steps forward to protect some of our most vulnerable and very low-income individuals by participating into the Medicaid expansion programs," she said. "Virginia has a very skeletal Medicaid plan, to increase the actual number of individuals eligible for Medicaid, about 400,000 people, and the cost would be covered 100 percent by the Federal Government for the first three years, and then 90 percent matched by the government."

She also said she is hoping to ease the transition for foster children after they turn 18.

"We are losing some of our foster children when they turn 18 and when they don't have that safety net to ensure that they'll be able to go on to college or job training, they could end up being homeless and never becoming productive members of society," she said. "It is such a worthy cause."

Comstock says she will reintroduce a bill to allow schools to choose their own start dates, and she supports the 2 percent salary raise for teachers, with a caveat.

"I think it needs to be tied to some reforms. I've talked with teachers and different groups about their concerns over who does the evaluations and what the process is, so I think we need to work with the teachers and education community on that," she said.

Comstock says she will also fight to ensure sales taxes in the area helps fund improvements in this area.

"I support having more of our state sales tax money stay here in this area, that is a net gain for Northern Virginia. The money we send down to Richmond, we're not going to get that same amount back for other things," she said. "When you look at transportation investments, we know that it's going to be good for our entire economy."

She also said she is working to introduce a bill about Lyme disease, which she hopes will improve diagnoses and care for patients suffering from the disease.

Parents Plead for Delay in Training Center Closing

Timeframe for closure puts disabled adults at risk, advocates say.

BY VICTORIA ROSS
THE CONNECTION

When it was Kenneth Gans' turn to speak to the panel of Virginia state legislators, the 78-year-old father of a severely-disabled son kept his remarks brief.

"This is absolute madness, a bloody disaster," Gans said, shaking his head. "You're going to fix a problem by destroying a perfectly good place," Gans told lawmakers, referring to the closing of the Northern Virginia Training Center, where his son Jeffrey, 53, has lived for more than 40 years.

He was among nearly 25 parents, caregivers and stakeholders to plead with legislators to reconsider the timeline for closing the center, a state-run facility on Braddock Road that houses nearly 200 residents. The center is scheduled to close in 2015.

"We consider NVTC a miracle, a blessing," Gans said. "My son Jeffrey is 53, but he will remain an infant the rest of his life. My greatest fear is that he will not survive for long in a group home," Gans said.

The annual public hearing, held Saturday at the Fairfax County Government Center, gives any constituent the opportunity—in three minutes or less—to lobby Fairfax County's delegation to the General Assembly.

During Saturday's public hearing, 77 residents addressed the panel for nearly four hours on an array of topics. Fairfax County Board of Supervisors Chairman Sharon Bulova, who opened the public hearing, stressed the county's need for additional funding for education and transportation.

"As you know, K-12 and transportation

Local state delegates and state senators gathered at the Fairfax County Government Building on Saturday for an annual public hearing of the elected state officials in order to hear from their Northern Virginia constituents.

continue to be key funding issues for Fairfax County," she said, reiterating that Governor Robert McDonnell's proposed $48 million for transportation funding is "nowhere near enough to solve the commonwealth's transportation problems."

"In Fairfax County alone, we have identified $300 million in transportation needs annually for the next 10 years," she said.

John Horesji, coordinator for Social Action Linking Together (SALT), asked lawmakers to support a number of social policy reforms to help the state's most vulnerable residents. He said SALT's priorities include the expansion of Medicaid and banning the practice, through legislation, of shackling pregnant women in Virginia prisons.

Helen Kelly, a representative for the League of Women Voters of the Fairfax Area, pressed lawmakers to consider no-excuse absentee voting and online voter registration.

"Our vote is our voice. Let's make sure Virginia's voices are heard," Kelly said.

But a recurrent topic for nearly half the speakers concerned the closing of the NVTC. They want legislators to slow down the timeline for shuttering the center, and to increase funding for Medicaid disability waivers. The waivers help families pay for medical services and equipment for those with intellectual or developmental disabilities.

The closing of NVTC is not a surprise.

LAST JANUARY, the Commonwealth of Virginia and the U.S. Department of Justice reached a settlement to close all but one of the state's training centers for the developmentally and intellectually disabled. At the time, Supervisor John Cook (R-Braddock) and Chairman Bulova released a statement saying the county supports "community-based care," but that it was "critical in this regard that sufficient funding is provided in order to make the transition successful."

The question now, according to parents and stakeholders, is whether the state has sufficient funding to provide that quality community-based care.

"The waivers provide funding for services, but the state does not fund the waivers at a high enough rate to meet costs in the Northern Virginia market..." said Cook, whose district includes the NVTC facility. "We believe that state needs to increase the level of funding for the waivers."

Rikki Epstein, executive director of the ARC of Northern Virginia, echoed Cook's sentiments. She told legislators that while Virginia's settlement agreement with the DOJ "provided us with a historic opportunity to reform the entire disability support structure in Virginia," funding for disability waivers also needed reform.

Epstein urged the delegation to vote for waiver rate reforms that reflect "real and regional costs of providing services, so families can hire attendants who are able to stay on the job and to allow providers to support individuals with the most complex needs." She said more than 10,000 Virginians will be stuck on waiting lists for the next decade unless the state provides "more waivers than the DOJ settlement requires."

Kymerly DeLoatche, a Falls Church resident, told lawmakers about her family's struggles with Medicaid waivers while standing with her 9-year-old son Charlie, who has Down syndrome. She said the current Medicaid waiver program does not provide consistent, adequate care for her son. She told legislators that in the seven years her family has qualified for Medicaid waivers, Charlie has received just three weeks of the 24-hour daily care he needs.

"It sounds crazy, and it is. My job and my sanity depend on your actions," she told legislators.

Vienna resident Jack Bruggeman told legislators his family is "reluctantly facing a new reality" regarding moving his sister Cathy, an NVTC resident for 30 years, to a new community home.

He gave legislators copies of a December letter from Mark Sites, chair of the Fairfax-Falls Church Community Services Board (CSB), which provides services for 88 individuals living at NVTC, that raises questions about the state's timeline for closing the NVTC.

"I am holding in my hand two letters," he told the delegation. "One I received just last Friday from Heidi Dix, (the state's assistant commissioner of developmental services.) In her three-page letter, Ms. Dix outlines an elaborate placement process for the transition of current residents of NVTC to community placements. This will be done start

Girl Scout Improves County Curriculum on Holocaust

Rachel Blacker of Troop 2359 earns Gold Award.

Girl Scout Rachel Blacker from Girl Scout Troop 2359 has earned her Gold Award, the most prestigious award in Girl Scouting. Blacker, a current 11th grade AP/Honors student at James Madison High School in Vienna, focused her Gold Award Project on local residents' experiences during the Holocaust.

Determined to improve upon the depth of the public schools' teaching of the Holocaust in the seventh grade curriculum, Blacker used interviews with four local Holocaust survivors to develop teaching and learning materials for students at Fairfax County middle schools.

Rachel developed an interactive unit plan that highlights the experiences of current survivors of the Holocaust in order to show students a personal, first person account of the atrocity that they learn about in History class. She then met with seventh grade history department chairs and teachers at Frost, Thoreau, Kilmer, Robinson, and Lake Braddock middle schools, as well as the director of the Fairfax County Public Schools Middle School History database. She presented these teachers with teacher and student packets of the condensed interviews, indexes to the interviews, lesson plans, vocabulary lists, quizzes, activities, a World War II chronology and a list of other Holocaust learning resources.

Rachel Blacker earned her Girl Scout Gold Award for research deepening and contributing to Fairfax County's middle school curriculum on the Holocaust.

ing July 1 of this year and continue into 2015..." "I also have another letter," Bruggeman continued "addressed to Governor McDonnell in which [CSB Chair Mark Sites] says there is not enough funding or enough time to develop adequate capacity and services for the transitioned resident of NVTC. So which of these two letters do I trust?"

He has a point, said Del. David Bulova (D-37).

"There is a lot of concern and discomfort among legislators about plans to close NVTC, especially on a very tight deadline," Bulova said after Saturday's session. "While I strongly support increasing community-based services, we also do everyone a great disservice if we close NVTC without the proper support and oversight to make sure that the level of care is equal, if not greater, than what is received at NVTC."

Bulova said that he has been working on a resolution with Sen. Barbara Favola (D-31) and Del. Eileen Filler-Corn (D-41) that would provide more General Assembly oversight for the transition process, including establishing some benchmarks for what would make families comfortable with moving forward.

"If those benchmarks aren't being met, and ad-equating funding hasn't been dedicated, we really have an obligation to also re-examine the timeline for closure. . . . No artificial deadline is important enough to put any NVTC resident at risk. The purpose behind the DOJ settlement was for Virginia to make much needed investments in our community-based services, not to take away choices."

"You're going to fix a problem by destroying a perfectly good place. This is absolute madness, a bloody disaster."

Kenneth Gans, a McLean resident whose son, Jeffrey, has been an NVTC resident for more than 40 years.

ANOTHER CRITICAL ISSUE, according to Cook, is that the community group homes for NVTC residents simply do not exist.

"The state has not developed a plan for creating them," Cook said. "It takes $1 to $1.5 million to convert a regular house to a group home that is fully accessible and has all the necessary equipment to serve this population."

"Our system ought to be designed to provide a continuum of care that is appropriate to each individual. That definitely means change," Bulova said. "I believe that there is room for common ground—and that is what I am aiming for during the General Assembly session."

The General Assembly's 2013 session begins Wednesday in Richmond.

OPINION

More Fodder for Comedy?

2013 session of the Virginia General Assembly to tackle serious issues.

The 2013 30-day session of the Virginia General Assembly begins Wednesday, Jan. 9. We can only hope that the various legislative proposals do not provide as much fodder for comedy as last session. The Virginia House of Delegates and the Senate of Virginia will offer live streaming video of the 2013 Legislative Sessions, and it is well worth tuning in once or twice.

The General Assembly typically considers between 2,000 and 3,000 bills during a session. It's like drinking from a firehose. There will be proposals about revenue and lack thereof, transportation and education funding, bills proposing to allow concealed weapons in schools, bills to allow civil penalties against gun owners who fail to secure their guns, bills that would limit access to insurance coverage for contraception, bills to further limit abortion, bills about undocumented immigrants and other bills beyond imagination.

Every resident of Virginia is represented by one delegate and one state senator. You can find out who your representatives are, and look up what they actively propose and how they vote on the General Assembly website at <http://virginiageneralassembly.gov>.

Here is a sample of bills local legislators have prefiled as chief patron.

Del. Barbara Comstock (R-34): School calendar. Makes local school boards responsible for setting the school calendar and determining the opening of the school year and eliminates the post-Labor Day opening requirement and "good cause" scenarios for which the Board of Education may grant waivers of this requirement.

Del. Tom Rust (R-86): In-state tuition; undocumented persons. Establishes that an undocumented person who is unlawfully present in the United States shall not be eligible for in-state tuition unless he (i) entered and began residing in the United States prior to his 16th birthday; (ii) has graduated from a public or private high school in the commonwealth...; (iii) has registered as an entering student in a public institution of higher education in the commonwealth; (iv) has resided in the commonwealth for at least five years immediately preceding...; (v) has provided an affidavit to the institution stating that he has filed an application to become a permanent resident of the United States... or will do so as soon as he is eligible, and that no grounds exist for the denial...; and (vi) has submitted evidence that he or, in the case of a dependent student, at least one parent, guardian, or person standing in loco parentis, has filed, unless exempted by state law, Virginia income tax returns for at least one year prior to the date of enrollment.

Sen. Barbara Favola (D-31): Eligibility for TANF; drug-related felonies. Provides that a person who is otherwise eligible to receive Temporary Assistance for Needy Families assistance shall not be denied assistance solely because he has been convicted of a felony offense of possession of a controlled substance, provided that he complies with all obligations imposed by the court and the Department of Social Services, is actively engaged in or has completed substance abuse treatment, and participates in drug screenings.

Sen. Janet Howell (D-32): Elections; absentee voting. Provides that qualified voters may vote absentee in person without providing an excuse or reason for not being able to vote in person on election day. The bill retains the present statutory list of specific reasons entitling a voter to cast an absentee ballot for those persons who vote absentee by mail.

Sen. Chap Petersen (D-34): Fuels taxes; indexing of tax rates. Increases or decreases each year the rates of Virginia's fuels taxes using a fuel efficiency index. The bill defines the fuel efficiency index as the quotient that is obtained when using as the numerator the total annual vehicle miles traveled in the commonwealth for the relevant year and using as the denominator the total gallons of motor fuel consumed for highway use in the commonwealth for the relevant year, as published by the Federal Highway Administration of the U.S. Department of Transportation.

Seeing the Spirit of Giving

To the Editor:

I would like to share with you about the St. Joseph School Onesight eyeglass collection drive. It was held by the eighth grade students at St. Joseph's school and was headed up by Great Falls resident Abigail DiOrio. In the spirit of giving, the school managed to deliver 100 pairs of glasses. It was a rewarding exchange. We were told about how Onesight has refurbished and distributed over 8 million glasses since it started. Two of the employees from Sterling actually go on the mission to South America to help screen and re-distribute. The organization was set up by The Luxottica eyewear group to help needy people all over the world.

They were all so grateful! Did you know they provide free glasses to our local needy families also? It really motivates the kids when they recognize their efforts in their local community. The more people that know about Onesight, the bigger the circle gets. If people want to continue to donate, we will keep a box in the front Lobby of St Joseph's School. We encourage everyone to rummage through their cluttered drawers and find a new use for those old glasses!

Increasing Slots for Virginia Students

To the Editor:

It's January and with January brings the most common concern of high school seniors, that's college acceptance! Are you in? Are you out? Where are you going? How will we pay? This is all high school seniors are thinking about right now, as I was right there with them last year applying to Virginia colleges. With many of my high school classmates having their eyes set on William & Mary as their first choice, I did a little research and found out how fortunate I was to have gotten into William &

Mary. William & Mary provides 32 percent of our college spots to out of state students. That makes it very difficult for many of our best and brightest Virginia students, including my classmates, to get in.

That is why I was pleased to hear Delegate Comstock discuss her bill for more in state college spots when I attended the McLean Community Association Town hall last week. This bill will increase the in-state slots guaranteed for Virginia's students to 75 percent—a reasonable and a modest goal. This increase will allow more qualified Virginia students to attend Virginia's schools and will provide these students and their parents with more reasonable tuition bills than they would face at a private college. I appreciate the work Delegate Comstock has done to get us more in state college spots at Virginia colleges and universities and I hope all of our local delegates and senators will join her and do the right thing for Virginia students and families.

Great Falls Foundation for the Arts (GFFFTA) announced the addition of two new teachers at its Great Falls School of Art, Patti Chisholm and Karen Graff. Chisholm will be teaching a class called, "Let's See, Let's Draw" in which students will learn line drawing, positive and negative shapes, forms and textures using pencils, charcoal, and other media. She has a Bachelor Degree in art education and master level credits in art education from the University of Virginia.

Graff will be teaching Zen painting, Art Brunch, and a course called "So You Think You Can't Draw." This course will play with a variety of drawing materials and simple exercises to "draw out" that capable artist within, in both fun and unique ways. Celebrating Christmas On 12-12-12

Cooper Middle School Chorus & Orchestra performs in the Great Falls Historical Society event.

BY KATHLEEN MURPHY
GFHS PRESIDENT

The Great Falls Historical Society delighted in the Christmas Carols sung and played by Cooper Middle School students at our Old Fashioned Christmas held at the historic Great Falls Grange on Dec. 12. The energetic and spirited music teachers and talented students filled the hall with warm holiday cheer and good tidings.

The GFHS Board prepared some desserts, punch and warm apple cider, using historic recipes from our local Great Falls cookbook.

Highlighting local tradition, it is important to recall the Christmas holiday as celebrated in days gone by:

In the late 1890s, there was no electrical power or running water, no car or bus—everyone was restricted to travel by horse, foot, or boat. All of the historic recipes were from this time when cakes and cookies were cooked on wood stoves, and there were not temperature or time limits identified. Great Falls was an area of very large farms with farmhouses set far apart from each other. It was common to find intermarriage among neighbors, with most local families being related to each other in some way. A Christmas gathering in the 1890s would most likely be a gathering of family and relatives.

Celebrating Christmas in the Great Falls Grange in 1929 would have been a very joyous occasion, attended by a room full of local dairy farmers and their families. Dairy prices had begun to erode since 1920, and Great Falls farmers banded together to join the national grange movement and worked to gather money for and build The Great Falls Grange, which opened in 1929, a crowning achievement of their mutual cooperation and team effort.

Celebrating Christmas on 12-12-12, we were cognizant of our freedom as expressed in the chorus and orchestra before us. Our community at the grange that evening was a medley of students and their families from many nations, cultural backgrounds, and religious beliefs. Breakthroughs in transportation have made it possible for us to move to different cities, towns and continents to pursue our gifts, develop our creativity, and reach our highest potential. This blessing of vast possibility requires our best effort in defining a future grounded in sound values, noble purposes and a willingness to join together in forming a thriving creative community.

'Once in a Lifetime'

In Terri Peters' first grade class at Spring Hill Elementary School, students took a moment to celebrate Wednesday, Dec. 12, 2012—the last palindrome date of the century—by documenting a moment in time on 12-12-12 at 12:12 p.m. The first grade students posed for a picture following a morning of higher-level thinking activities which focused on the number 12.

Education Under Fire

A 30-Minute Documentary about Flagrant Discrimination and Denial of Higher Education to Baha'is in Iran

Saturday, January 12, 2013
4-5 PM

Great Falls Public Library
9830 Georgetown Pike
Great Falls, VA 22066

Sponsored by the Great Falls Baha'i Community

The documentary will be followed by a conversation on the themes of religious discrimination and the right to public education which the film addresses.

The 30-minute documentary, which has been endorsed by Amnesty International, deals with the Iranian government's denial of the right to higher education for the past thirty years for all of the members of its largest non-Muslim religious minority – the Baha'is. In 1987, the semi-underground Baha'i Institute for Higher Education (BIHE) was formed to give young Baha'is their only chance for a university-level education. Despite repeated raids and arrests, volunteer teachers and administrators created an independent, decentralized university system that has lifted the lives of thousands of Baha'i students across Iran. In May, 2011, an organized assault was launched by the Iranian government in an attempt to shut down the BIHE. Over 30 homes were raided and over a dozen BIHE professors and administrators were detained. Several are still in prison for doing nothing more than trying to teach. The film connects a diverse audience to a grave human rights issue, a powerful story of resilience against oppression, and the need to respect human rights everywhere.

Immediately after the sale, the successful bidder shall execute and deliver a memorandum of sale with the Substitute Trustees, copies of which shall be available for inspection immediately prior to the sale, and shall deliver to the Substitute Trustees the Deposit and the memorandum of sale. The balance of the purchase price shall be paid by the Purchaser. Settlement shall occur within thirty (30) days after the sale date, TIME BEING OF THE ESSENCE with regard to the Purchaser's obligation.

Settlement shall take place at the offices of Venable LLP, 8010 Towers Crescent Drive, Suite 300, Tysons Corner, Virginia 22182 or other mutually agreed location. Purchaser shall pay all past due real estate taxes, rollback taxes, water rents, water permit renewal fees (if any) or other municipal liens, charges and assessments. The Purchaser shall also pay all settlement fees, title examination charges, title charges and title insurance premiums, all recording costs (including the state grantor's tax and all state and county recordation fees, clerk's filing fees and transfer fees and taxes), auctioneer's fees and/or bid premiums, and reasonable attorneys' fees and disbursements incurred in the preparation of the deed of conveyance and other settlement documentation.

The Purchaser shall be required to sign an agreement at settlement waiving any cause of action Purchaser may have against the Substitute Trustees, and/or the Beneficiary for any condition with respect to the property that may not be in compliance with any federal, state or local law, regulation or ruling including, without limitation, any laws, regulation and ruling relating to environmental contamination or hazardous wastes. Such agreement shall also provide that if notwithstanding such agreement, a court of competent jurisdiction should permit such a claim to be made, such agreement shall serve as the overwhelming primary factor in any equitable apportionment of response costs or other liability. Nothing herein shall release, waive or preclude any claims the Purchaser may have against any person in possession or control of the property.

If any Purchaser fails for any reason to complete settlement as provided above, the Deposit shall be forfeited and applied to the costs of the sale, including Trustees' fees, and the balance, if any, shall be delivered to the Beneficiary to be applied by the Beneficiary against the indebtedness secured by and other amounts due under the Deed of Trust in accordance with the Deed of Trust or applicable law or otherwise as the Beneficiary shall elect. There shall be no refunds. Such forfeiture shall not limit any rights or remedies of the Substitute Trustees or the Beneficiary with respect to any such default. If the property is resold, such re-sale shall be at the risk and the cost of the failing bidder, and the failing bidder shall be liable for any deficiency between its bid and the successful bid at the re-sale as well as the costs of conducting such re-sale. Immediately upon conveyance by the Substitute Trustees of the property, all duties, liabilities and obligations of the Substitute Trustees, if any, with respect to the property so conveyed shall be extinguished, except as otherwise provided by applicable law.

"If It Ain't Broke..."

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Today is a day I feel like writing – not merely one when I am looking forward to having written, but rather one when I am interested and motivated by the process. The situational gods have been aligned: I have time on my hands, an empty house with peace and quiet, and adult cats who are a sleeping and a kitten who is blissfully asleep (not always the case). Unfortunately, I don't have anything particularly insightful to "prose" about. But I will persevere, as the opportunity with which I've been presented rarely presents itself, and certainly not nearly as often as literary pursuits might require – for me, anyway.

Oddly enough, what I think I've found is, as a writer, prattling on about nothing – as I have in the first paragraph, is sort of an exercise in mind stretching (not futility) – akin to when athletes maneuver themselves into awkward-looking, pre-game warm-ups. The act of writing something, mildly coherent but not necessarily on any particular topic, sort of warms me and my synapses up as well and hopefully gets them firing on enough cylinders so that what words are eventually written are words worth reading. (No comments from the peanut gallery, please?)

I imagine you regular readers are probably wondering how I could possibly relate the content of these initial paragraphs to my stage IV, non-small cell lung cancer diagnosis (a fact with which you all are excruciatingly familiar), or if this week's column might possibly avoid the subject altogether – for once, as perhaps cancer-fatigue may have finally set in. After all, too much of a good thing can be too much, as it has often been said. Moreover, too much of a bad thing then (and being diagnosed with terminal cancer certainly qualifies as a "bad thing") can likewise be way more than "too much;" it can be, as my mother so often said about so many subjects/circumstances: "Enough already!" (I'm almost finished.)

The point of these "cancer columns," as I call them, is not to bring anybody down emotionally/make anybody miserable (least of all, me); in fact, there is no point. I'm simply telling a story – that I'm able to tell in a reasonably intelligent and unflinching way, about the trials and tribulations of being a lung cancer diagnosee, not because of who I am (hardly), but rather because of what I have. Cancer is a killer and since I've been fortunate to still be a "liver," – in spite of the odds, predictions, presumptions, statistics, etc., 45 months post-diagnosis, continuing these cancer columns weekly as I do, seems more like a success story than a failure. Ergo, writing about cancer reinforces to me all the positives – even while occasionally writing about the negatives, and the more positives I can infuse into my own life, the healthier I'll likely be. So please indulge my writing these cancer columns, as they have probably contributed to my above-average, better-than-expected, life expectancy. Given how much longer I've lived than my original prognosis: "13-months to two-years," I don't see any reason to stop now. My future is ahead of me, not behind me.

Flint Hill Boys' Basketball 'Trying to Find an Identity'

Huskies force overtime against Bishop Ireton but fall short.

BY JON ROETMAN
THE CONNECTION

The Flint Hill boys' basketball team trailed the Bishop Ireton Cardinals by 13 points at halftime on Jan. 5. With some clutch plays, a determined effort and a 9-1 run to close regulation, the Huskies forced overtime against their opponent from the mighty Washington Catholic Athletic Conference. Despite a valiant Flint Hill comeback, Bishop Ireton dominated the extra period, leaving the 3-8 Huskies with the consolation prize of a moral victory.

The Cardinals defeated the Huskies, 70-56, in overtime at Flint Hill School. Bishop Ireton outscored Flint Hill, 16-2, during the overtime period, limiting the Huskies to a pair of free throws. While Flint Hill ran out of gas late, the Huskies' performance is something on which head coach Rico Reed said the team can build.

"I feel that our kids battled and competed," he said. "I'm really proud of our effort. I think that right now, we're going through some growing pains. We've got some young guys who don't have a lot of varsity experience and it shows. I thought what we did defensively disrupted their scheme. . . . We kind of turned it into an ugly game, which I think for us is something that we're pretty comfortable with."

After trailing, 30-17, at halftime, Flint Hill outscored Bishop Ireton, 19-9, in the third quarter. The Huskies cut the Cardinal lead to one with an 11-2 run, capped by a three-point play by junior Britton Anderson. Flint Hill tied the score on multiple occasions in the fourth quarter, including a jumper by junior Matt Kennedy to force overtime.

Kennedy's 3-pointer with 6:36 remaining in the fourth quarter tied the score at 43-all, the game's first tie since the 3:21 mark of the opening quarter. He finished with five points.

Flint Hill boys' basketball coach Rico Reed speaks to the Huskies during a Jan. 5 contest against Bishop Ireton.

Reed said Flint Hill also got solid efforts from junior Cole Herdman (six points) and sophomore Damien Jones (10 points).

Anderson is the Huskies' leading scorer. He finished with a team-high 16 points against the Cardinals, 12 of which came in the second half and overtime.

"Britton Anderson is a very talented kid," Reed said. "We want to get the ball in his hands as often as possible, but I think that there are times when, as a team, we need to run our sets completely through and trust the system. Britton Anderson is . . . a guy we need to have play well in order for us to be successful."

Flint Hill has victories against Trinity Christian, Woodberry Forest and Sewickley Academy. The Huskies faced MAC opponent St. Andrew's on Tuesday, after The Connection's deadline. Flint Hill will host Middleburg Academy at 6:15 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 10.

"Right now, we're still trying to find an identity," Reed said. "We recognized the fact that Bishop Ireton is going to be a solid team this year; we're just trying to figure out how to make Flint Hill a solid team. . . . I love how hard we played [and] the fact that our guys refused to quit. We just want to continue to build on that. That has to be something we do every day, not just on game days."

Langley Hockey Rolls To Another Win

Langley's club hockey team started 2013 with a bang, beating up on a depleted Centreville/Fairfax squad, 10-0, despite missing some of its better players. Junior Drew Schneider had his second hat trick of the season and added two assists for a five-point night. Not to be outdone, senior Derick Paxton also had a five-point night with two goals. Defensemen Peter Nam, Logan Pontell and Will Clemson each had a goal and an assist while freshman Jason Guidi scored his first goal of his high school career to go along with an assist. Sophomores Sam LaFuria and Conor Maddry both registered two assists.

This win came on the heels of a successful 2012 start, which included a 7-1 win before the holiday break against cross-town rival McLean.

Langley Boys' Basketball Falls to 9-3

The Langley boys' basketball team suffered back-to-back losses for the first time this season, losing to Stone Bridge, 64-52, on Jan. 4 after losing to Theodore Roosevelt in the championship game of the Wakefield holiday tournament on Dec. 28. The Saxons fell to 9-3 overall and 2-2 in the Liberty District.

Langley faced Madison on Tuesday, after The Connection's deadline. The Saxons will host Marshall at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, Jan. 11.

Langley Girls' Basketball Beats Stone Bridge

The Langley girls' basketball team evened its record at 6-6, including 2-2 in the Liberty District, with a 40-34 victory against Stone Bridge on Jan. 4. The Saxons faced Madison on Tuesday, after The Connection's deadline. Langley will travel to face Marshall at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, Jan. 11.

McLean Girls' Basketball Improves Win Streak to Eight

Langley Crew Team to Hold Garage Sale

Home Design and Décor Trends for 2013

Designers predict what we will see in the year ahead.

What are the design trends that will define the way we live in 2013? Local tastemakers and design experts break down the trends that will be popular this year.

Potomac, Md., area architect David Benton of Rill Architects says that while architecture is a long-term investment, rather than a passing trend, there are some design and construction techniques that will be in demand in the coming months.

"Sustainable or green design is still growing in popularity as people become more educated on the topic," said Benton. "In the coming year, we expect clients to continue to investigate areas of added energy efficiency. For example, spray-in insulation, geothermal heating and cooling, high quality windows and LED lights, to name a few."

Benton adds that the concept of donating discarded building materials is growing in popularity: "Instead of demolishing an existing house and trucking it to a landfill, we have been dismantling the home and donating the building parts to charities. Everything from kitchen cabinets, counters and sinks, to siding and windows can be donated."

Potomac-area designer Nadia Subaran of Aidan Design believes that creative storage spaces will be big in 2013. "With limited storage space, displaying utensils is a creative and functional alternative to drawer storage," she said. "The hanging knife rack in the butler's pantry is another clever storage technique, as well as a great way to create a visual element along a wall. Another trend we're seeing is open shelving so items are easily accessible and close at hand."

Benton also predicts an increased interest among homeowners in creating rooms that serve dual purposes. "The traditional living room is becoming smaller or has been replaced by the study or library," he said. "Clients want to use every part of their home to get more bang for the buck. Rooms that were only used occasionally or were for show, like the living or dining rooms, are now multi-functional spaces."

When it comes to color, vibrant hues will replace muted tones: "Grey is the new black, and jewel tones like emerald green and fuchsia, mixed in with grays and whites, will be very hot this spring and fall," said Chantilly-based designer Sallie Kjos. "People are going for a much cleaner look, a little more contemporary mixed with traditional."

In the home accents department, Courtney Thomas, of The Picket Fence in Burke says, "It is a pretty classic combination," she said. "Any sort of décor, like decorative bowls and urns in a blue and white color scheme will be popular."

Thomas also says soy candles will continue to be popular. "They burn clean and last a long time. Floral scents are popular in spring and citrus scents are always big for kitchens."

Experts say some flowering plants like dormant hydrangeas can be planted now and bloom in spring.

Preparing for a Spring Wonderland

Experts offer advice on what to do now to create a pleasurable outdoor space in spring.

Chilly January temperatures can make spring seem far away. However, it's closer than you think. A recent Residential Landscape Architecture Trends survey from the American Society of Landscape Architects showed that as the weather gets warmer, many want an undemanding outdoor space.

Local landscape designers and builders actually recommend planning now for an outdoor warm-weather wonderland and suggest a few simple tasks that homeowners can perform today to get ready for spring.

If you're planning to build an outdoor living room or patio, this is the time to begin: "It can take anywhere from a couple of weeks to a few months to complete a project, depending on the complexity," said Steve Magill, remodeling consultant for Case Design/Remodeling, Inc., and an Oak Hill, resident. "People who are smart book a contractor in January."

Magill suggests developing a plan as soon as possible. "Do you want a koi pond or fountains? Is the design driving the budget or is the budget driving the design? These decisions should be arranged, finalized and ready to go for spring and then they can enjoy the outdoors."

Begin compiling a spring garden wish list. "Take pictures and bring them in to your local garden center to get ideas and thoughts," said David Watkins of Merrifield Garden Center in Merrifield, Fair Oaks and Gainesville. "Things are slower at nurseries now and we have a lot more time to spend with you and give you ideas."

There are some flowers that can be planted now to yield bursts of colorful blooms this spring. "If you can find them, you can still plant spring bulbs like tulips or daffodils," said Randy Best of The Behnke Nurseries Company in Potomac and Beltsville, Md. "With caution, you can plant dormant, deciduous trees and shrubs, but you might mulch them heavier than you normally would."

Best added that some evergreen plants like junipers, pines and spruces, as well as flowering varieties like dormant hydrangeas, can be planted now to bloom in spring. "You can plant a maple tree now with no problem," he said.

Experts say pruning now will lead to a healthy spring landscape.

Experts warn homeowners not to overlook maintenance during the frigid winter months. "It would be nice if everybody could make sure that their plants are watered thoroughly throughout the winter, because if the ground freezes and the plants are dry, they will die over the winter," said Watkins. "I would also recommend cutting back any perennials that have died, and add mulch to help protect plants."

Magill says that taking care of routine tasks means one less thing to do this spring. "Make sure your gutters are cleaned and free of fall leaves before snow falls on the gutters," said Magill. "Have roofs and chimneys checked before the snow and have chimneys re-pointed, if necessary."
