Five students captured a national championship last weekend for Chantilly, but not in athletics. They did it with computers to emerge victorious in the Air Force Association's (AFA) CyberPatriot V National Finals.

Working together, Team VOID — seniors Weyland Chiang, Chris Kim and Bryan Nguyen and juniors Anirudh Bagde and Tim Rothschild — defended computer networks and systems from external threats.

For their efforts, each received a $2,000 scholarship from the Northrop Grumman Foundation, presenting sponsor for CyberPatriot V. They also brought home a trophy for the Chantilly Academy — a Governor's STEM Academy.

"Right from the beginning, they were driven, focused and passionate about it," said their academy coach, computer-systems technology teacher Davi Anson. "So it doesn't surprise me, at all, that they won."

"They're an exceptional group of kids, and also very nice," said Academy Administrator Doug Wright. "We're fortunate to have them. This win was a huge accomplishment for our students and we're all very proud of them."

The competition was held Friday, March 15, in the Gaylord Hotel at Maryland's National Harbor. Some 28 teams participated after battling through three rounds of virtual competition to reach the national finals.

"This year, the [initial] field of competitors was 1,225 teams, so making it to finals is a big deal," said Marynoele Benson with Northrop Grumman Information Systems. "[The challenges] also get increasingly more difficult, so these kids are really impressive."

At nationals, 80 percent of the team's score came from the three-and-one-half-hour-long, networking-security competition. Each member used a laptop to access 10 other vulnerable computers.

"An unknown, third-party team not in the competition attacks us to try to exploit the systems we're trying to protect," said Kim. "It's in real time

Plain talk about proposed county and FCPS budgets.

BY BONNIE HOBBS

In the presentation of the Fairfax County Executive's proposed FY 2014 budget, there's a slide titled, "Turned over Every Rock" — and that about sums up the county's current financial picture. After cutting back as much as it can and looking everywhere possible for extra funding, it still doesn't have enough money to do everything on everyone's wish list.

With less federal and state funds coming in and the full impact of sequestration still unknown, the county continues to operate in a tough economy. But its residents have needs, nonetheless, and supporting them all is becoming increasingly difficult.

"I've been on the Board [of Supervisors] 22 years," said Supervisor Michael R. Frey (R-Sully). "And the next couple years promise to be as challenging as any we've had."

He was speaking at a town hall meeting on the county and FCPS proposed budgets, last Wednesday, March 13, at Rocky Run Middle School. Also there were county and school-system budget experts, plus Sully District School Board representative Kathy Smith.

While the county doesn't get much federal money directly, said Frey, "The biggest impact of sequestration will be on the private-sector employers. And the uncertainty about what'll happen puts restrictions on their ability to grow."

He said businesses cut back because they have less business, but that doesn't happen to the county. "In down times like these, people still have needs for service," said Frey. "And, often, they have more needs. They go to the parks instead of the movies, use the libraries because they can't afford Internet, and need social services and help after they've lost their jobs."

In addition, he said, "The schools are 52.6 percent of the county's budget. Sully is demographically the youngest district — and with the largest number of children in the school system. But we'll get through it and will have a balanced budget."

Smith said FCPS receives 71 percent of its funding from the county. "The state is funding education at the same level as in 2007," she said. "But FCPS is growing by Residents peruse VDOT's three proposals for the Braddock/Pleasant Valley roads intersection.

A Roundabout or a Traffic Signal?

Braddock/Pleasant Valley intersection to be improved.

By BONNIE HOBBS
CENTRE VIEW

Pretty much everyone agrees that the intersection of Braddock and Pleasant Valley roads in Centreville is a pain. It's tiny and congested, with especially long waits for drivers during rush hours.

Now the Virginia Department of Transportation wants to fix that intersection, but whether it should build a roundabout there or install a traffic signal is a matter of heated debate among area residents. And some don't want that spot improved, at all, for fear of opening the floodgates to Loudoun County traffic that would then travel through Virginia Run.

During a meeting Monday night, March 18, in the Sully District Governmental Center, a VDOT administrator and a traffic consultant explained three proposals on the table. They also got an earful from several of the nearly 60 people attending. And in the midst of it all, Supervisor Michael R. Frey (R-Sully) tried to bring some perspective to the procedure.

"This isn't just about South Riding and Virginia Run residents," he said. "It affects everyone in western Fairfax County. When you're sitting in traffic and it takes you 25 minutes to get through that intersection, it doesn't matter where the car ahead of you started from — it's there on the road."

Actually, said Frey, the subject came up eight years ago and "there was strong support for a traffic circle. But after spending $1 million to $2 million, that intersection would still have design issues plus space, parkland and drainage problems. And pretty soon, the cost was $5 million to $6 million and we didn't have the money."

Both Braddock and Pleasant Valley are secondary roads, and there's no money for them in VDOT's budget for the next six years. But last summer, Loudoun County started things moving again by approving $1.2 million of its own money, matched by the same amount from VDOT's Revenue Sharing Program — plus $600,000 from the Commonwealth Transportation Board — to fix the intersection.

On Monday, Bill Cutler, assistant district administrator for VDOT's Northern District, and Chris Tiesler, an engineer with Kittelson & Associates in Reston, discussed the three plans under consideration. But first, Cutler detailed the physical constraints.

Surrounding that intersection near the Fairfax/Loudoun border are Cox Farms and Fairfax County Park Authority land with wetlands on it. There's poor drainage and some rare plant life, as well as utility poles that would cost about $80,000 each to relocate. And Cox Farms is in an agricultural/forestall district, so VDOT doesn't want to impact it.

As for the proposals, Concept 1 centers the roundabout in the intersection, but would require a slip ramp and more right-of-way than the other plans. Concept 2 moves the roundabout slightly west, affecting Cox Farms and the parkland more. It avoids the rare plants, but not the utility poles. Concept 3 involves a traffic signal and left and right turn lanes.

Burglary Suspect Arrested

Fairfax County police have charged an Alexandria man with the March 9 burglary of a Chantilly home. He is Victor T. Ellis, 25, of Fairchild Lane. The offense occurred in the 3600 block of Great Laurel Lane. A resident told police she was sitting in the kitchen when someone entered the home. The intruder stole a purse and fled. A K-9 team and helicopter helped search for him to no avail.

However, on March 10, around 10:45 a.m., detectives arrested Ellis and charged him with burglary, entering a vehicle to commit a crime and petit larceny. He was apprehended after reportedly fleeing from officers in a vehicle that day, around 6 a.m.

Police said he led them in a pursuit beginning at the Fairfax County Parkway and Leesburg Pike and ending in a crash in Loudoun County. Ellis evaded capture until he was seen by officers in the Herndon area, where he was taken into custody. There have been several, recent burglaries in the Fair Oaks and Reston police districts, as well as in Loudoun County, and police believe they may be related. These cases are still under investigation.

Fair Oaks CAC to Meet

The Citizens Advisory Council of the Fair Oaks District Police Station will meet Tuesday, March 26, at 7 p.m., in the roll-call room of the police station. It's at 12300 Lee Jackson Memorial Highway in Chantilly.

Sully District Council Meeting

The Sully District Council of Citizens Associations and its Land-Use Committee will meet Wednesday, March 27, at 7 p.m., in the Sully District Governmental Center, 4900 Stonecroft Blvd. in Chantilly. Call Jeff Parnes, evenings, at 703-904-0131. Agenda items are as follows:

- ❖ Fairfax County's Fairfax Forward plan to replace the APR (Area Plans Review) land-use process is ready for a public hearing. The panel will receive an update briefing.

- ❖ Verizon Wireless has identified a gap in wireless coverage and service in the local community. Verizon Wireless and Milestone Communications have applied to have a wireless telecommunications tower at London Towne Elementary.

- ❖ The panel will learn about proposed changes to the Dulles Discovery parcels on both sides of the Air and Space Museum Parkway, east of Route 28.

Free Carseat Inspections

Certified technicians from the Sully District Police Station will perform free, child safety carseat inspections Thursday, March 28, from 5-8:30 p.m., at the station, 4900 Stonecroft Blvd. in Chantilly. No appointment is necessary. But residents should install the child safety seats themselves so technicians may properly inspect and adjust them, as needed. However, because of time constraints, only the first 35 vehicles arriving on each date will be inspected. That way, inspectors may have enough time to properly instruct the caregiver on the correct use of the child seat. Call 703-814-7000, ext. 5140, to confirm dates and times.

Food Donations for WFCM

Western Fairfax Christian Ministries' food pantry urgently needs donations of spaghetti sauce, canned fruit, rice (2-lb. bags), canned pasta, peanut butter, canned tuna and meat, hot and cold cereal, fruit juice, and pancake mix and syrup. ## Fashions, Music and Silent Auction

The latest looks for spring, live entertainment, luncheon and a silent auction are all in store for those attending the 33rd annual fashion show benefiting the Fairfax Salvation Army. It'll be held Friday, April 12, at the Waterford in Fair Oaks (across from Fair Oaks Mall), but reservations must be made by March 27.

Sponsoring the event is the Fairfax Salvation Army Women's Auxiliary, and the fashion show — with both male and female models — will feature clothing from Bloomingdale's of Tysons Corner.

"It's a chance to get together for lunch with some nice, interesting people," said the Auxiliary's Meg McLane, in charge of the models. "And while you're enjoying a lovely fashion show, you're supporting a worthy cause."

The social hour and silent auction begin at 10:30 a.m., followed at 11:30 a.m. by a performance from guest entertainer Carlos Alberto Ibay, an accomplished concert pianist and talented tenor. Lunch catered by the Waterford will be served at noon, with the fashion show starting at 12:50 p.m.

Tickets are $40 ($10 is tax-deductible). To purchase them or donate gift certificates and merchandise for the silent auction, contact event coordinator Angela Ganey at angelaganey@verizon.net or 703-250-5809. "Women look forward to coming to this," she said. "And when they hear Ibay sing and play piano, they'll be amazed."

Bloomingdale's Effie Elkorek is supplying the clothing and will provide the fashion-show commentary. "People will see a sampling of dressy, casual and sporty clothes for spring," said McLane. "There'll be different looks and colors in a variety of sizes for all figures."

Modeling will be Mary Lou Glover of Clifton and Sharon Gottlieb of Fairfax Station, as well as Kathleen Lear, Carolina Hurtado, Paul Meade, Stephen Braitsch, Christina O'Connell, Jeanette Crutchfield and Bridget Sampson. Meade, of Fairfax Station, is a volunteer firefighter and Braitsch is a personal trainer.

The silent auction will include an array of gift certificates, jewelry, gift baskets, home goods and an overnight stay at the Red Fox Inn in Middleburg. Heading it up is Connie Lauther of the City of Fairfax.

There'll be gift certificates to several restaurants: The Cheesecake Factory, IHOP, Ruth's Chris Steakhouse, P.F. Chang's, Great American Restaurants, Applebee's, Bonefish Grill/Outback Steakhouse, Red Lobster, and Maggiano's/Macaroni Grill/ On the Border.

"We also have quite a lot of lovely, decorative items," said Lauther. "These include guest towels, small appliances such as a crock pot, a set of steak knives and a Martha Stewart, cobalt blue, cast-iron Dutch oven. There are garden items, such as planters, and also a Mont Blanc pen-and-pencil set."

Gift baskets contain things such as a baby girl's layette and a bread assortment from the Great Harvest Bread Co., including a bread a month to that basket's winner. The jewelry will range from freshwater pearls to a sterling-silver bracelet. Also up for bid will be a Shell gasoline credit card.

"I have about 110 items altogether," said Lauther. "Everything's new and people will find some treasures at probably half the retail price. It's a fun shopping time, while supporting the Salvation Army."

Ganey's chairing the event for her third time. "The Salvation Army does so many wonderful things," she

‘How Does This Help Us?’ Some residents say fixing congested intersection may lead to other problems.

BY BONNIE HOBBS
CENTRE VIEW

At Monday night’s meeting about plans to fix the Braddock/Pleasant Valley roads intersection, VDOT’s Bill Cutler said early cost estimates for the project are in the $3 million to $4 million range. But, he added, utility relocation, environmental problems and land-acquisition costs could raise the price. Virginia Run’s Steve Logan asked how getting traffic through that intersection quicker would affect the Braddock/Route 50 intersection and the already-dangerous S-curve on Braddock. Engineer and project consultant Chris Tiesler said there’d be “the same amount of vehicles, but it’s hard to measure [before it happens].”

However, Mark McConn of Bull Run Estates said, “The S-turn is a major problem now. If you add more traffic to it, it’ll be a problem down to Lee Road.”

Another resident noted that 16,000 new homes are being built in that area (on the Loudoun side), and Tiesler acknowledged that traffic there is predicted to increase in the coming years. “But those roads won’t be four-laned,” he added. “So at some point, there’ll be a tipping point [where it won’t be faster to take them than other roads]. We’re just trying to improve the driver experience through that intersection.”

PHOTOS BY BONNIE HOBBS/CENTRE VIEW

Engineer Chris Tiesler explains what’s proposed for the intersection.

“Is this circle to slow traffic down or move it?” asked Sully District Transportation Commissioner Jeff Parnes.

“It’s processing it more efficiently and controlling traffic speeds through it,” replied Tiesler. “And it’s a single-lane roundabout to minimize the impact.”

But resident Chris Terpak-Malm was alarmed. “I only live a couple hundred yards from [this intersection],” she said. “People in my neighborhood and in Virginia Run think that South Riding people will never let us in, unless there’s a break. It happens to me all the time. You let them go even faster and Pleasant Forest and Virginia Run will never get out of their neighborhoods. That’s the fear — you’d be giving South Riding the right of way.”

“To me, the only fair way to have breaks in the traffic so we can get through is to put in a stop light,” she continued. “I’ve seen roundabouts elsewhere and people blast through them — they do not yield.”

Tiesler said VDOT did traffic-volume counts there in fall 2012, and Virginia Run’s Ted Trosciancki asked if data was collected on the direction traffic was going at certain times. Tiesler said it was and that “in the a.m., over 50 percent was traveling west to east; in the p.m., it’s going west.”

“So if a majority of morning traffic is going west to east, wouldn’t a broader solution be to address the S-curve?” asked Trosciancki. Cutler agreed, but noted “there’s no money prioritized toward that.”

Virginia Run’s Greg Richter said fixing the intersection “would just move the problem to the top of the S-curve. But in the next six months, more money may be available to do this.”

But Supervisor Michael R. Frey (R-Sully) said most of that transportation money would be for interstates and primary highways and for 2014 and 2015. “We’re not going to count that money until it comes,” he said. “And the S-curve may not be where the money falls.”

Saying he often drives to Leesburg in the morning, Virginia Run’s Jim Hart said, “Some mornings, Route 50 traffic is backed up to the Fairfax County Parkway. So improving this intersection without telling us how much more Route 50 east traffic would be attracted to it may not be an improvement for us. At least now, we can dribble through to go north on Pleasant Valley. So how does this help us?”

SEE RESIDENTS COMMENT, PAGE 15

Braddock/Pleasant Valley Intersection To Be Improved

“We want as small an impact as possible,” said Cutler. “But we want to improve this intersection in a meaningful way.”

Agreeing, Tiesler asked, “Where do we put the whammy? Finding that sweet spot is what we want to do. In the roundabout plans, there’s a separate bypass lane coming up from Pleasant Valley — especially in the morning when eastbound traffic is heaviest. And it would accommodate westbound traffic in the evening.”

He noted that the roundabouts have 100 feet of right-of-way outside them. But they don’t entail all the widening required, with a traffic signal, to extend the turn lanes several hundred feet beyond the intersection. So, he said, “That’s one key tradeoff.”

Say Yes to Health Coverage

Governor, state panel must accept coverage for 400,000 Virginians without health insurance.

More than 140,000 residents of Fairfax County have no health insurance. That's more than 13 percent of the slightly more than 1 million people who live in the wealthiest county in the nation. Arlington and Alexandria have similar percentages of uninsured.

These are some of the 400,000 people in Virginia who could receive health coverage under an expansion of Medicaid if only officials in the commonwealth are gracious enough to accept on their behalf.

Virginia's current eligibility requirements for Medicaid are so strict that although it is the 11th largest state in terms of population and seventh in per capita personal income, Virginia ranked 43rd in Medicaid enrollment as a proportion of the state's population and 47th in per capita Medicaid spending, according to a 2013 Fairfax County report.

Virginia has the option to add new coverage, at least 90 percent funded with Federal dollars, that would extend to individuals earning less than about $15,000 per year and families earning less than about $31,000 per year, to low income teens who lose Medicaid when they turn 19, and adults with disabilities not currently eligible.

It isn't as if there is no health care cost for these currently uncovered residents. Right now, they access health care when they are very sick by going to an emergency room, where the hospital spreads the cost of care around. But this is inefficient, expensive and unhealthy. Expanding Medicaid coverage would allow far less expensive preventative care and lead to better health outcomes. Uninsured people don't receive preventative care; they seek treatment later in illnesses when the costs are much higher, and the consequences in terms of lost days at work and other productivity are also much higher.

Expanding Medicaid to 133 percent of the poverty level would generate state general fund savings and new revenues that would total more than $2 billion and more than offset the state's share of expansion costs over the next eight years, plus provide significant numbers of new jobs and economic growth, according to multiple reports including the Virginia Hospital and Healthcare Association. Expanding health care is a job creator, and would add tens of thousands of new jobs.

Virginia stands to lose more than $9.2 billion in federal funds over the first five years of the new law if it opts out of the provision that expands Medicaid.

Turning away federal money to provide healthcare to uninsured Virginians makes no more sense than declining federal funds for transportation because you don't like the feds telling you to wear your seatbelt.

If Gov. Bob McDonnell and members of a General Assembly panel considering whether to accept funding to expand Medicaid decide against this benefit for 400,000 Virginians, perhaps they and their families should go for a year without health insurance as well.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Transportation Bill: A Political Train Wreck

To the Editor:

In the aftermath of the governor's successful Transportation Bill, HB 2313, some commentators have described the 109-page final product as a "bipartisan compromise" which, despite its flaws, is a benefit to Virginia's urban areas.

In reality, the legislation is a political train wreck, which raises the wrong taxes on the wrong people and creates the wrong incentives for modern transportation system. It also locks in certain inequalities to the detriment of Northern Virginia.

As a representative of central and western Fairfax, I am acutely aware of our transportation issues and the need for more highways and transit. I have supported countless bills, including my own SB 855 in 2013, which sought to raise dedicated revenues on a uniform and statewide basis.

I voted "no" on the final version of the governor's bill. Here are five critical flaws:

First, by reducing the tax on gasoline and raising the general sales tax, the governor's bill corrupts the traditional "user pays" method for financing transportation in Virginia. The ultimate irony is making hybrid users pay a $100 annual penalty. We are incentivizing people to buy larger cars and drive more miles. That is nonsense.

Second, the governor's bill creates discriminatory tax rates. Now, Northern Virginia consumers must pay an enhanced sales tax of 6 percent, while their downstate cousins enjoy a lower rate of 5.3 percent—to receive the same level of state services. There is no plausible basis for this discrimination which targets urban areas.

Third, the bill removes $200 million annually from the state's General Fund for transportation. Coincidentally, that is the exact same amount which the assembly has reduced from higher education funding since 2008. So money that could be used to reduce college tuition (which greatly benefits Northern Virginia) is instead siphoned to road maintenance.

Fourth, the legislation accepts the current inequality on the rural-dominated commonwealth Transportation Board which must approve all state highway projects. Right now, the 2.2 million residents of Northern Virginia presently get one vote on the board, or the same voting power allocated to the 380,000 people in the Bristol district. Rather than change this absurdity, we are now locking it into law.

Fifth, the idea of the "regional accounts"—financed through the discriminatory taxes—is inherently contradictory. If Northern Virginia and its urban cousin Hampton Roads pay with projects through "regional" funds, then that is one less project that the Transportation Board must finance through ordinary state funds. While the governor's bill includes aspirational language to avoid the "supplanting" of existing state support, there is no practical way to enforce it.

In fact, the only guaranty from the governor's legislation is that Northern Virginia consumers will get hit by discriminatory higher taxes, whether it's the sales tax surcharge, the increased recordation fee on home sales, or the annual $100 "hybrid penalty." In regard to the last measure, it's worth noting that the majority of Virginia hybrid owners are located in... Northern Virginia!

It must be noted that only a handful of lawmakers from Northern Virginia voted against the final version of the governor's bill. I'm proud to be part of a small band that opposed the Richmond establishment on this dysfunctional mess. There were a dozen different transportation plans that were offered in 2013 on both sides of the aisle.

There was no requirement for the assembly to accept the worst one.

Plain Talk about County Budget

thousands of students a year."

Susan Data, head of the county's Office of Management and Budget, said sequestration could result in cuts in services for local residents. "Programs are in jeopardy," she said. "A large portion of our economy is based on federal employment and government contracting. When people are furloughed and lose a day of pay, they buy less and the county receives less tax revenue."

"We've made a lot of adjustments and turned over all the rocks," said Data. "And people's anticipation of what's going to happen because of sequestration has led to flat growth in the economic sector. [But] people live here and businesses locate in Fairfax County because of who we are and [what we offer], so we have to protect it."

The county's proposed FY 2014 budget is $7 billion. Real-estate taxes comprise 62.4 percent of the county's revenue; and in 2014, the county expects a 3.5 percent revenue increase, based on a recommended 2-percent real-estate tax increase.

"But commercial properties — which grew 8.2 percent the year before — are anticipated to only grow by .14 percent," said Data. "Businesses are reluctant to make major moves and investments. And we're seeing much lower rates of leasing until businesses know what the effects of sequestration will be. Spec buildings are being built, so that's a good sign, but we'd like to see even more of them."

She said the county's nearly $1.9 billion transfer to the school system is for school operations and debt service (on past school bonds). But, she added, "The county also pays another $70 million for things not in the school budget, such as clinic aides and SROS."

Public safety and human services get the next largest slices of the county budget pie, and no pay increases are foreseen for county employees.

FCPS CFO Susan Quinn spoke next, detailing the school system's needs. The county proposes giving the schools $41.3 million more than it gave them in FY 13. This figure equates to the entire amount the 2-percent real estate tax rate increase would yield.

But the School Board is requesting an additional $95.4 million over last year's transfer — or $54.1 million more than the county has in mind. And even though FCPS has updated its beginning revenue projections, said Quinn, "We're still left with a gap of $44.7 million."

"Over 85 percent of our funds go toward instruction," she said. "Then come transportation, building maintenance and central-office support. By the end of 2014, the schools will have added 15,000 more students over the past five years, costing more than $170 million."

Along with the enrollment hike, said Quinn, more children will need free and reduced-price lunches and there'll be more ESOL and special-education students. Furthermore, she said, "More kids are coming into the schools at the lower grades than are graduating, so we're adding 300 positions to accommodate the growth."

Further complicating things is a Virginia Retirement System (VRS) cost shift from employer to employee. "In the past, the school system picked up the employee portion of retirement," said Quinn. "But if the employees pay for it, we have to increase their salaries. So we gave them a 2-percent increase in the past — meaning we have to pay benefits at a higher cost, which is $16.6 million total."

Basically, she said, "It's a perfect storm. We're going to have significant challenges, moving forward; our revenue is decreasing and costs and student population are going up. And 2015 looks just as bleak — everything's coming at us, all at once."

The supervisors will hold public hearings on the proposed budget, April 9-11, followed by an April 23 mark-up session and budget adoption on April 30. Public hearings on the School Board's budget will be May 14 (and May 15, if necessary), followed by a May 16 work session and May 23 budget adoption.

"We're in this together, so go to the public hearings and tell the supervisors what you want in the school system and what programs you care about," Smith told the meeting attendees. But, she reminded them, "The county has services it has to pay for, too."

Ruby Tuesday Holding Fundraiser for WFCM

BY BONNIE HOBBS
CENTRE VIEW

If area residents eat a meal at a particular Chantilly restaurant next week, they can help feed hungry families in the local community. That's because Western Fairfax Christian Ministries (WFCM) and Ruby Tuesday are partnering to make it happen.

To help raise money for its programs that help local families in need, WFCM is participating in Ruby Tuesday's Give Back community program. From Friday-Sunday, March 29-31, customers presenting a flyer to their server will have 20 percent of their purchase cost donated to WFCM. (The flyers may be printed from www.wfcmva.org).

The effort is called "Take a Bite out of Hunger," and is being held at the Ruby Tuesday at 13915 Metrotech Drive in Chantilly. For directions to the restaurant or to view the menu, go to www.rubytuesday.com. To make reservations, call 703-818-3713.

"Many people continue to go hungry in our community, and many people need a little help to make ends meet," said WFCM's Community Outreach Manager Jennie Bush. "Financial support is vital to WFCM so that we can help those neediest in our community stay in their homes and feed their families."

She said the organization can't carry out its programs that aid others without the generosity of the local community. "We appreciate whatever size gift anyone is able to share," said Bush. "By participating in 'Take a Bite Out of Hunger' at Ruby Tuesday's Give Back nights, people are providing financial support for WFCM."

In February, she said, WFCM served 332 families with food. Clients are able to shop at WFCM's food pantry once a month, and Bush says that opportunity does more for them than just fill their stomachs. "We know we are helping a great deal because they can then use the money they would have spent on food for that week toward a utility bill, rent or even gas for their car so they can go to work," she said.

Last year, WFCM's food pantry received $589,801 of in-kind donations of non-perishable and perishable food. "The value is calculated based on the IRS value for in-kind donations, which is $1.61 per pound. And these donations keep the pantry in business.

"Many people may not know that we accept perishable donations for our food pantry," said Bush. "Our clients love to get fresh produce, and some of their favorites are apples, oranges, potatoes and broccoli." "We used to have a grant for milk, eggs and meat but, unfortunately, those sources have been used." "So we hope that, the next time area residents shop, they'll also pick up a bag of produce to share with our pantry." "Our clients would be so grateful."

Meanwhile, she's hoping for a large turnout at the Ruby Tuesday fundraiser. "Financial support is vital to Western Fairfax Christian Ministries to help our neighbors in need achieve financial stability," said Bush. "We cannot administer our programs without community support, and we appreciate our community participating in this event."

WFCM's food pantry is at 13888 Metrotech Drive. Food donations are accepted Monday-Friday, 9-11 a.m. They should be brought to the rear of the building via the access road behind Papa John's Pizza. For alternate donation times, contact Terri Kelly at tkelly@wfcmva.org.

Student Team Wins CyberPatriot V Competition

and, at the last minute, they added users and got remote access to one of our machines. We weren't allowed to attack back; we had to patch the vulnerabilities."

THE REST OF THE SCORE came from forensics and network-hardware contests. "In forensics, we get encoded and encrypted messages and have to decode them," said Chiang. "In network hardware, they give us a router and a switch to set up a local area network [LAN] with computers to access the Internet."

Nguyen said time constraints made the competition difficult. "We knew, if we had more time, we'd be able to secure everything and solve all the problems," he said. "But we all had an idea of what to do; if one person was stuck, another could help him. So it was coordination, planning and teamwork."

Bagde worked mainly on Linux, an alternative to a Windows operating system, to secure it from attacks. He especially liked "the challenge of finding all the vulnerabilities and having the satisfaction of fixing them so the other team couldn't attack us."

Most exciting for the team as a whole, said Kim, was "being in an environment of energetic individuals who were all focused and enjoyed the concept of cybersecurity."

Added Rothschild, who worked on the forensics challenge: "I'm interested in information technology and I saw this as an opportunity to more deeply explore more parts of this field."

Joan Ozdogan, coordinator of the Chantilly Academy's CyberPatriot program, solicited mentors and corporate sponsors and advanced a strong working relationship with the AFA's local Gabriel Chapter. She also helped recruit enough students for 10 teams, so she was thrilled with the victory.

"I am immensely proud of the more than 105 students who began the competition last fall at our academy," said Ozdogan. "Six student teams made it to national semifinals and Team VOID went all the way to earn its title as National Champion."

PHOTO CONTRIBUTED

"The team's success must be attributed to individual technical knowledge and skills — and the amazing power they harnessed by working together," she continued. "As cybersecurity looms large as a threat to our society, I'm comforted knowing these five, future cyber defenders will help us meet the challenge."

ANSON SAID THE TEAM prepared by working every other Saturday since October, plus some evenings. "We did practice images to simulate vulnerabilities we might see during the competition," said Rothschild. "Later, we decided who on the team would do what." And in the final competition at nationals, they paired up to work on different operating systems.

Going in, said Chiang, they felt strong; but toward the end, the enemy started attacking all their computers. They also didn't finish the whole networking portion. "So we went into the awards banquet not knowing how we did," he said. "The Marshall Academy came in second and third, and we wondered who beat them. Then they said, 'Chantilly Academy.'"

Ultimately, said Rothschild, "It wasn't a competition of who could finish. It was about who could do the best with what we were given."

"It was amazing how much energy we felt, walking up to the stage, with big smiles across our faces," added Kim. "We did it."

"In my 24 years as an educator, seeing kids perform in competitions, this was the most professional, well-thought-out and executed one," said Wright. "It was cool watching the students work in unison and help each other. It was really incredible and truly a proud moment for the Chantilly Academy." Anson said students learn networking cybersecurity and how to defend against hackers in all their Academy computer classes. And, said Rothschild, "The goal of the CyberPatriot competition is to raise awareness and get more people interested in cybersecurity."

KIM SAID CYBERSECURITY will be one of the biggest concerns of the general population. "Our lives are so connected to technology today that, once people realize it, they understand what a big threat the world is facing," he said. "We put data onto the cloud, but it needs to be secure." Not to mention, added Anson, the U.S. power grid and financial system.

"The U.S. is experiencing a growing shortage of professionals interested in science, technology, engineering and math, threatening our economic future and national security," said Sandra Evers-Manly, president of the Northrop Grumman Foundation. "Programs like CyberPatriot, which are increasing the pool of young people interested in STEM, are critical to our international competitiveness and our ability to defend ourselves from cyber threats."

Principal Keeps Her Word

Poplar Tree Principal Sharon S. Williams promised to kiss a pig if the students could read 5,000 books. The students were challenged to accomplish this task during the months of February and early March. Bright pink links hung from the halls all around the school as the students excitedly met the challenge. When the students reached 2,000 books, teachers at the school wore their hair in pigtails. When they reached 4,000 books, the staff wore pig noses. Finally, on March 15, the students met their goal and were treated to an assembly with Farmer Minor and his pet pig, Daisy. Williams happily puckered up and gave Daisy not one, but two kisses as the students cheered her on.

said. "They're silent angels; you don't hear much about them. But they help at disasters, all over the world; and when other charities leave, they remain. And there are so many families in Fairfax below the poverty level, and the Salvation Army helps them in many ways."

Sylvia Laiti of Clifton and Clara Richcreek of Fairfax are the Auxiliary's co-presidents. "When I started as the fashion-show chairman, 21 years ago, we had 25-30 Auxiliary members," said Laiti. The number's now smaller, so she admires their efforts in putting on this event. "They work hard," she said. "But we have a faithful group of women who come to this show every year and support us so we can make a donation to the Salvation Army."

And it's greatly appreciated by Majors Janice and Earl Fitzgerald who run the Fairfax branch. Janice said the Auxiliary's monetary contributions help send 65 children in need to a weeklong summer camp, purchase backpacks and school supplies for them and fund weekly, community-youth programs at Salvation Army headquarters at 4915 West Ox Road. Besides tutoring and recreation, there's also a Gospel Arts music program.

"We provide the instruments and teach children to play piano, guitar and brass instruments," said Janice Fitzgerald. "There's also instruction in dance and puppetry. Volunteers and staff teach about 50 students, and the Auxiliary gives us every bit it raises for all these programs."

In this tough economy, she said, "Budgets are tightening and donations are decreasing. So it would be hard for us to continue to do all these things without the Auxiliary's financial support. It's wonderful, and we appreciate the ladies and all they do."

Westfield Baseball Struggles Against McLean

Bulldogs lose two after beating Woodbridge in opener.

BY JON ROETMAN
CENTRE VIEW

The McLean batting order isn't loaded with sluggers, but the Highlanders showed Saturday that strong pitching and putting the ball in play is enough to get the job done.

The McLean baseball team earned its first win of the season on March 16, beating Westfield 4-1 at Westfield High School. The Highlanders totaled seven hits — including six singles — and struck out just three times. Meanwhile, the Bulldogs committed five errors, including four in the third inning, which led to three McLean runs.

Four runs were plenty for McLean starting pitcher Joey Sullivan. The junior right-hander allowed one earned run and five hits while walking one and striking out eight in six innings. Westfield put two runners on base in the bottom of the sixth, but Sullivan got out of trouble with a strikeout and a fielder's choice.

"Joey Sullivan has got a big-time arm," McLean interim head coach Ray Zdancewicz said. "He just came out and did a super job. Getting him on the mound, throwing strikes, kind of putting them on their heels a little bit and getting that run early kind of set the tone a little bit.

"We just did what we've been preaching pretty much from Day One ... to put the ball in play. Be tough two-strike hitters because we don't have anybody that's going to knock the ball out of the park — we have maybe one guy that even has the chance — so we need to be a little tougher and be productive."

McLean took a 1-0 lead in the top of the second. Senior Jack Fant led off the inning with a single and, two batters later, freshman outfielder Matt Collins delivered a two-out, run-scoring single.

"[McLean] put it in play, that's the biggest thing," Westfield head coach Chuck Welch said. "They put it in play and we didn't. I give them a lot of credit for [what] they did. I thought they did a tremendous job. We certainly didn't make all the plays, but in high school, if you put the ball in play hard, your chances are pretty good of something happening ..."

Welch wasn't pleased with any aspect of the Bulldogs' performance.

"There was nothing that we did well," he said. "We didn't run the bases well, we didn't throw well, we didn't pitch overly well [and] at the plate we were terrible. ... This was not good for us, but it's all a learning experience. We're a young team and hopefully we can bounce back."

Junior Lorenzo Allensworth started on the mound for Westfield. The right-hander allowed four runs — one earned — and three hits in three innings while walking one and striking out three. Welch pulled Allensworth after three innings due to the VHSL pitching regulations that came into effect this season. Allensworth pitched four innings against Woodbridge on March 12. The regulations state if a pitcher throws four to seven innings in a day and then pitches again on three days of rest, he is limited to three innings.

"That's the whole new pitching rule rearing its head," Welch said about taking Allensworth off the mound after three innings, "which I think is stupid."

Offensively, sophomore Kenny Barry had an RBI double for Westfield. Allensworth, senior Patrick McLaughlin, sophomore Mason Scoville, junior Kyle McGill and senior Corey Banks each had a single.

Welch said he's looking for the team's four seniors — catcher McLaughlin, outfielder Banks, infielders Johnny Gullette and Ryan Wittman — to step up this year.

Westfield opened the season with a 4-0 victory against Woodbridge on March 12. The Bulldogs lost to defending state champion Lake Braddock 5-1 on March 14. The Bulldogs faced Loudoun Valley on Wednesday, after Centre View's deadline. Westfield will participate in a tournament in Myrtle Beach, S.C., March 25-29.

CVHS SPORTS REPORT

Centreville Boys' Soccer Beats Woodson

Centreville's soccer teams opened regular season play last week. Both teams are looking for good seasons behind strong senior classes augmented by solid juniors and promising younger players.

Due to scheduling conflicts, the boys played at Woodson on Wednesday, March 13 while the girls were idle. Woodson's boys' team is garnering a lot of attention as one of the early favorites in the region, but the Wildcats showed they should not be overlooked, knocking home the lone goal of the game when Johnny Rios laid a hard shot off his left foot into the lower right corner of the goal in the game's 60th minute. For the final 20 minutes the 'Cats, and particularly the back line of Sean Kelly, Matt Hambright, Chris Winans, Phil Falke and goalkeeper Jason Hoernke, staved off the speedy Cavaliers and preserved the one-goal win.

On Thursday, March 14, the team played its home opener, welcoming the Yorktown Patriots to Centreville. While the boys played hard, the speedy Yorktown team was able to capitalize on a 'Cats mistake to score the only goal of the night.

Boasting 11 seniors, the Wildcats, behind second-year coach Steve Lee, look like a team to watch this spring.

Centreville Girls' Soccer Defeats Yorktown

The Centreville girls' soccer team is led by six seniors, five of whom have committed to college soccer teams. On Wednesday night, March 14, the Wildcats traveled to Yorktown High School. The girls expected a tough game, and Yorktown gave it to them, with periods of sustained attack on both ends of the field punctuated by long segments of midfield battles. Defender Clara Logsdon, who will play her college ball for William & Mary next year, found space coming out of the back and beat several midfielders before laying a through ball to Centreville's speedy forward, junior Jenna Green, who pulled away from the defenders flanking her to set up a 1-on-1 with the Yorktown keeper. Her goal put the Wildcats up 1-0 going into halftime.

Second half play featured more of the same back-and-forth play, and Yorktown evened the score about halfway through. The tie stood through the end of regulation, leading to a 10-minute overtime period. As time ran down, the 'Cats found themselves with a sustained attack inside the Yorktown penalty box, and after a number of shots were deflected, junior Madi Simons found a crease and slotted a ball to the bottom left corner of the net. The Yorktown keeper dove to stop it but it rolled off her fingers, hit the post, and rolled in to the goal with 16 seconds left on the clock. Yorktown's last desperate attempt to tie the game was stymied by goalkeeper Tori Collar, who will play for Liberty University next year. Collar wisely used the time allotted to her, holding the ball and finally punting it as time expired.

Centreville Softball Shuts Out South Lakes

The Centreville softball team opened its 2013 season with a 9-0 win over the Seahawks from South Lakes High School on Friday night, March 15, at Wildcat field.

The Lady Wildcats won the game behind a strong pitching performance from sophomore Gretchen Kernbach, who struck out 12 batters and gave up three hits in seven innings of work. South Lakes came into Friday's contest with a 2-0 record, but the Wildcat hitters were too much for them to handle. Senior left fielder Lauren Knoble led the Wildcats with three hits and three RBIs.

Junior catcher Macy Luck and Kernbach each contributed two RBIs. Junior center fielder Morgan Yi provided two additional timely hits. For the night Centreville had 10 hits, including two doubles, and played error-free ball on defense.

Just Wondering

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Having never attended medical school (and not really having had the grades or commitment to do so), and having only completed 10th-grade Biology and freshman-year Astronomy, and rarely even driven by a medical school growing up, my understanding and/or instincts regarding how a medical professional plans and/or prepares for his day is as foreign to me as sugar-free chocolate (if I'm going down, I'm going down swinging; in truth however, considering the anti-cancer, alkaline diet I'm following, I do need to swing a little less frequently).

Nevertheless, having had multiple appointments with doctors/health care professionals over these last four cancer-centric years, I've often wondered how much preparation occurs before each appointment. There's a schedule certainly, but does the doctor review it daily/weekly – in advance, to determine the course of his possible action/discussion with the patient? And if so, does he review/study/research said patient's medical chart/history to better prepare for these discussions or does he sort of "wing it," professionally speaking, and instead wait to hear what the patient has to say? Moreover, if there's been lab work, diagnostic scans, etc. completed previous to the appointment, does the doctor receive indications – electronic or otherwise, before the appointment, with enough time to evaluate the results/read the reports or does he see it for the first time sometime during the day of the appointment? And while this curiosity exists in my head, is the doctor likewise preoccupied (even a little bit) with my ongoing health situation beyond the 30 minutes or so we spend together every few months or his time too precious, respectfully speaking? I realize he's busy, but do I rank in his file? And if so, what does he know and when did he know it?

Not that I've ever felt unknown or disrespected when visiting either my primary care doctor or my oncologist, but I have felt a little distance when I've seen specialists: pulmonary, thoracic, nephrology, surgery, to whom I've been referred, who previous to seeing me face-to-face had never met and/or spoken to me. Now I never took it personally; I took it professionally, as in: I suppose this is the process. However, how do they know a patient they don't know, let alone advise with proper consent?

Over time though, my thinking has evolved. Now I'm thinking/wondering if they are even supposed to prepare for me – and not by reading my file for the first time when I'm sitting on an examining table directly across from them or through study the night before, but at all? Perhaps my situation – as serious as it is to me, is not as serious to the doctor? And by that I mean, he's not ruled by his emotions – he's not terminal, that I know of, anyway. It's just another day at the office – so to speak. I understand that he likely has many patient histories on his mind/in his head and focusing/preparing too much for one somehow has adverse consequences for the others. Maybe the treatment protocols, as complicated as they are to me, are fairly mundane to the doctor and don't require that much homework, so discussing my chart as he reads it for that first time is no big/complicated deal and standard operating procedure?

I've actually experienced this sensation a couple of times with my oncologist. When I was a more frequent visitor to the Infusion Center – every three weeks, occasionally I would see him tending to other patients; he didn't seem to know I was going to be infused that day (in fairness, the infusion appointment does not directly involve the oncologist), even exhibiting surprise at my presence. Still, I would more often than not ask him a question about my specific health situation. However, if I didn't have a non-infusion appointment scheduled that day, he wasn't comfortable answering my questions. He would say: he wasn't prepared to answer the question. Apparently, he couldn't pull my information out of thin air. I came to understand and accept that if it wasn't my day to be examined, it wasn't a good day to ask him health-related questions about yours truly.

Still, I wonder, as much from lack of knowledge as anything: are my expectations unreasonable? I know, in my head anyway, as concerns my cancer treatment, it's all about me. But what about in my oncologist's head? Am I on his radar or am I out of sight, out of mind? And if so, is there any harm in that, or is it just me wondering too much about too much (the bane of this cancer patient's existence)?

Residents Comment on Intersection

"It's a horse trade," answered Tiesler. "This isn't meant to be a panacea. It's really hard to say how much more traffic will shift back to Braddock from Route 50. [This intersection's] congested now, but people still wait and use it. We're trying to fix a hot spot that's been a thorn in everybody's side for a long time."

Hart said that intersection floods now and "the ditches get full of water. It seems to me there'd be more water with more pavement."

"We'll slightly raise the intersection and put pipes beneath it," replied Cutler. "But it's complicated because we also don't want to damage the ecosystem there. It's a balancing act."

Still, McConn said the whole area should be considered in the plan "because this'll impact everyone." But Frey said Fairfax County got the same arguments when it first proposed widening Poplar Tree Road and putting double left-turn lanes on Stone Road.

"Prince William and Loudoun traffic is going to come through us and, if we do nothing, they'll overwhelm us," he said. "This is an incremental improvement, but it's something. Other road projects — Route 606 in Loudoun and Route 50 here — will all help the situation. That's the nature of progress. And the concerns you all have will be taken into consideration."

But Trosciancki said the residents are just asking VDOT to think things through. "Our questions need to be answered more adequately," he said.

Cutler said they'd like to return in early fall with a preliminary design, plus some answers to the community's questions. He'd like construction to start in 2014 and said it could take a year to finish.

Meanwhile, residents' comments may be sent to Frey at the Sully District Governmental Center, 4900 Stonecroft Blvd., Chantilly, VA 20151 or at Michael.Frey@fairfaxcounty.gov, and he'll relay them to VDOT.
