Blizzard of Spending

Polar vortex sends financial chill through local governments.

BY MICHAEL LEE POPE
THE CONNECTION

The unusually hard winter has created a blizzard of spending for local governments across Northern Virginia — bursting through budgeted amounts for snow removal and treating roads, leaving a lasting legacy of potholes that will be plaguing roads this spring. Officials at the Virginia Department of Transportation say they spent $175 million on snow removal this winter, more than twice as much than they were planning to spend. And that's just for starters.

"This is going to be a much worse pothole season than in years past," said Jennifer McCord, spokeswoman for VDOT. "We've been filling them, basically, since the winter started."

Alexandria spent $1.6 million on snow control. That's more than twice the amount city officials set aside in the budget, which was $836,000. And Arlington officials say they've already spent more than $2 million even though they had budgeted only $1.1 million. Local governments across the region will be forced to dip into their contingency funds to deal with the record amounts of snow dumped on Northern Virginia this year.

"If they don't deal with these potholes quickly, the cost will become much greater," said Frank Shafroth, director of the Center for State and Local Government Leadership. "Waiting longer means they have to dig up the road bed, which is way more expensive than filling a pothole."

POTHOLES FORM when roads experience moisture and then a rapid freeze and thaw. Moisture gets into cracks in the road, which undermines the road surface. Then traffic pummels the already undermined road surface over and over until the cracks become larger and larger. Over time the cracks start to peel away as pieces of asphalt fly away. When that happens over and over, the cracks start to grow larger and larger.

"That creates a minor depression that can sometimes grow into something much larger that we affectionately call a pothole," said Yon Lambert, deputy director for operations of the Alexandria Department of Transportation and Environmental Services.

Alexandria currently has 574 requests since the beginning of January to March 21, a 552 percent increase over last year, which was 88 requests for service. About 42 of those are still being investigated to see what kind of remedy would be appropriate. That's part of a regional effort to address potholes throughout Northern Virginia, a region that has been hit with a disproportionate amount of precipitation and freezing weather this year. All local governments are trying to figure out how much this year's winter will cost them as the next budget season approaches.

"All invoices for snow-related costs for the last event have not been paid. Some not received yet," said Arlington budget director Richard Stephenson. "In addition, the cost of pot hole repairs will not be known for some time."

THE COSTS of the polar vortex are not easy to grasp, partially because it's difficult to know what the final bill will be and partially because nobody knows how much the damage will be inflicted. Anecdotal evidence is overwhelming. Drivers know that their roads are deteriorating rapidly. Alexandria and Arlington have dominion over their own streets, although the roads of Fairfax County are maintained by officials at the Virginia Department of Transportation, who are scrambling to meet all the requests they have been confronted with since the polar vortex swept into town.

"Our roads are in pretty sorry shape," said Del. Scott Surovell (D-44). "The snow removal expense has now begun to eat into the repaving expense for this year, and so VDOT is having to look at deferring paving projects that were planned for 2014 because of the amount of money that it has to spend on snow expenses."

Budget officials across Northern Virginia will not know the final expense of the polar vortex for some time. That's because all the invoices have not yet been received by local governments. Those expenses will probably become more digestible for budget officials during the mid-year review or the third-quarter review, long after the snow has melted and the spring flowers have wilted. Until that time, government leaders will be working overtime to fix the damage of the polar vortex. One day last week, for example, Alexandria had four crews out repairing 375 potholes using six tons of hot-mix asphalt.

"We can't do a really active and intense period of pothole repairs when temperatures are very cold," said Lambert. "We've had more than 30 inches of snow this year whereas we had less than two inches last year, and that combined with the very cold temperatures has a very big impact on our roads."

Budget Competition

Taxes to increase across Northern Virginia, some more than others.

BY MICHAEL LEE POPE
THE CONNECTION

Two things are certain in life, death and taxes. And just as the spring flowers start to bloom this time a year, so do concerns about rising tax bills. As local governments across Northern Virginia consider budget proposals, taxpayers are reaching for their wallets. A review of proposed budgets in the region shows residential property taxpayers in Fairfax are looking at the largest potential increase, more than $300. Taxpayers in Alexandria are looking at the smallest potential increase, less than $200.

"There is always a competition among Northern Virginia local governments for who can either cut the most or raise their property tax the least," said Frank Shafroth, director of the Center for State and Local Leadership at George Mason University. "So it is a healthy competition."

Now that government executives have presented their proposed budgets to elected officials, members of the public are presenting their input in a series of formal public hearings and informal discussions. At issue for government leaders is what kinds of investments are necessary to enhance property values, the cash cow for jurisdictions in Virginia. Shafroth says homeowners generally want to see their assessments increase, although nobody wants to pay the higher tax bill.

"All of that, of course, could change significantly if Congress eliminates the deductibility of the property tax and limits the home mortgage deduction," said Shafroth. "Those two changes would make today's whines seem ludicrous in comparison."

IN FAIRFAX COUNTY, the county executive has proposed a tax rate of $1.085 for every $100 of assessed value. Earlier this month, the Board of Supervisors voted to advertise a real estate rate that's two cents higher, $1.105 for every $100 of assessed value. Budget officials say one penny of the tax rate is equal to about $21.9 million in general revenue, and an additional $50 for the average residential property taxpayer. That means that supervisors might end up increasing the average bill more than $400.

"It is important that the board allows for flexibility in considering a tax rate so that debate and discussion is not cut off at the very beginning of the budget process," said Fairfax County Board of Supervisors Chairman Sharon Bulova. "The board can adopt a tax rate that is lower but not higher than what is advertised."

Last month, County Executive Ed Long presented a proposed budget with flat commercial tax revenues and lower than expected tax revenues for sales taxes, hotel taxes and business and professional license taxes. Budget officials say the only area that is experiencing an upward tick is the assessed value of residential property. That means homeowners are likely to get stuck with a higher tax bill just to keep the current level of service.

"As the county continues to face fiscal challenges, we must persist in our cautious and deliberative approach to budgeting, only funding items that are sustainable," said Long. "We also must be ready to make the necessary decisions to maintain investment in our services, infrastructure and development of the community."

IN ARLINGTON, county manager has proposed a tax rate of

Last summer, 23 students studying Japanese at Lake Braddock, Hayfield and South Lakes High Schools received a full scholarship to visit Japan for ten days as part of the KAKEHASHI Project, a cultural exchange program that aims to connect students from Japan and the U.S.

After an exciting and educational trip, students from these Fairfax schools hosted Japanese students visiting the U.S. during the students' trip in March.

To celebrate the exchange of culture and friendship, the three schools hosted an event to celebrate the project at Hayfield Secondary School on March 24.

The Japanese exchange students, who attend Kawagoe High School in Mie Prefecture of Japan, shared lessons on Japanese culture to Fairfax County students, parents and community members. Audience members learned about Japanese food, literature, entertainment, and more.

Fairfax County students also reflected on their experiences in Japan.

"It was a lot of fun," said Safiyyah Nadeem, a senior at Lake Braddock Secondary School. "I want to go back."

Nadeem, along with several other students, hosted an exchange student at her house during the Japanese students' visit to Virginia.

Natsuki Tsuchimoto, a 17-year-old junior from Japan, stayed with Nadeem, and said it was the best part of her trip.

"I love my host family," Tsuchimoto said.

Tsuchimoto and her friend Ayano Ito said they have enjoyed their time in the U.S., especially visiting the Farmers Market in Seattle and the monuments in Washington, D.C.

They've also noticed the differences between U.S. and Japanese culture.

"The houses here are huge," Tsuchimoto

"It's a lot of fun being able to talk and do stuff together," Nadeem said.

The KAKEHASHI Project has allowed students from 28 high schools and nine post-secondary institutions to visit Japan since it began in April 2013.

The schools in the U.S. then host students from Japan, who visit two major cities and stay with an American family from one of the schools participating in the program.

"It's very impressive to see students come to another land and speak in a target language," said Gregory Jones, the chair of Fairfax County Public Schools World Languages program.

"That is exactly what we are trying to do with our students in terms of teaching them and giving them the opportunity to learn other languages and interact culturally appropriate within the target language and within the culture."

Adam Podell, Kyoko Vaughan, and Keiko Abrams, Japanese teachers from South Lakes, Hayfield and Lake Braddock, accompanied the Fairfax County students on their trip to Japan.

"These are all students from very strong Japanese language programs," Abrams said. "After they went on the trip, they are studying completely differently."

They are studying much more than before. A lot of them want to major in it in college."

The KAKEHASHI Project has set a goal of sending 47 secondary schools and 24 post-secondary institutions to Japan by the end of March 2015.

Compassion Award for County Animal Shelter

The Virginia Federation of Humane Societies has selected the state's top animal shelters and programs that made a difference in the animal welfare in 2013. And the Fairfax County Animal Shelter received the Compassion Award for its demonstration of strong leadership and significant progress toward reducing euthanasia of healthy and treatable dogs and cats in the community. Deborah Griggs, a board member of the Virginia Federation of Humane Societies, presented the award. Last year, Fairfax County was the largest jurisdiction in the U.S. with an animal-placement rate above 90 percent.

Walk, Candlelight Vigil Honors Crime Victims

The free event to kick off National Crime Victims' Rights Week, April 6-12.

BY BONNIE HOBBS
THE CONNECTION

Fairfax County remembers local people who've been victims of crimes. And on Sunday, April 6, at Fairfax Corner, they'll be honored via the second annual 5K Walk and Candlelight Vigil.

The free event, in front of the movie theater at 4100 Monument Corner Drive in the Fairfax Corner shopping center, kicks off National Crime Victims' Rights Week, April 6-12.

Each April, law-enforcement agencies, along with organizations and communities, join together to observe this week. The goal is to promote victims' rights and honor crime victims and the people who work tirelessly advocating on their behalf.

Fairfax County Police Chief Edwin C. Roessler Jr. and Commonwealth's Attorney Ray Morrogh will welcome attendees and give opening remarks at 5:30 p.m. First, though, check-in and a resource fair featuring more than 15 vendors from local and national service providers will be held from 4:30-5:30 p.m.

The participants include Dr. Will Marling, executive director, National Organization for Victim Assistance. In addition, Steve Shillingford and Peter Khan of the E and Me band will perform live jazz.

The walk will begin at 6 p.m., followed by the candlelight vigil honoring the victims, from 7-7:30 p.m. For more information and to register, go to <https://www.surveymonkey.com/s/NCVRW2014>. The first 200 people registered will receive free T-shirts.

The walk and vigil are being hosted by the Victims Services Section of the county Police Department and the Fairfax County Law Enforcement Foundation. And the community is invited to join the professionals who support local victims of homicide, trauma, sexual and domestic violence, child physical and sexual abuse, stalking, human trafficking and suicide as they walk together.

A related event during that week will be held Thursday, April 10, from 11 a.m.-9 p.m., at The Greene Turtle Restaurant, 3950 University Drive, Suite 209, in the City of Fairfax. Sponsored by the Fairfax County Law Enforcement Foundation, it's a fundraiser for the Victim Services Section so it can continue meeting the immediate needs of crime victims.

Those eating lunch or dinner that day at The Green Turtle will have 20 percent of the gross proceeds from their meal donated to the cause. To participate, people must download an event flyer at www.fairfaxfoundation.org, print it and present it to their server when they order.

OPINION

Challenging Budgets

Local Government should be able to access income taxes to give relief on real estate taxes.

Northern Virginia governments are facing shortfalls in the classic budget sense: projected revenues are less than last year's expenditures plus increases in costs.

Alexandria City Manager Rashad Young: "This is the seventh straight year of budgetary challenges, where the cost of current services and previous commitments exceeds our revenue growth." His proposed budget includes $190.6 million for Alexandria City Public Schools, a 2.62 percent increase over FY2014 but $2.5 million less than requested by the Alexandria School Board.

Fairfax County Chairman of the Board of Supervisors Sharon Bulova: "This will be a very challenging budget." Fairfax County Public Schools Superintendent Karen Garza proposed an increase of 5.7 percent, $98 million more than the schools requested last year, but supervisors have said to expect an increase of 2 percent.

Fairfax County, along with Arlington and Alexandria, is wrestling with how to fund increasing financial requests from schools, increasing needs for human services and providing a safety net, and many other areas of local budgets.

In Virginia, localities are allowed few areas of revenue, and local budgets are funded primarily through real estate property taxes. Property values have increased this year, and local governments are also considering increases in the property tax rate, meaning homeowners will pay more in taxes.

Fairfax County Real Estate Assessments increased 5.8 percent for single family homes, 8.4 percent for townhouses and 10.5 percent for condos. In Arlington, property values grew about 5.8 percent this year. That includes single-family houses and townhouses, which went up 6.2 percent, as well as condominiums, which went up 5.9 percent. In Alexandria, residential assessments increased 4.8 percent.

But just because a home is worth more this year than last year doesn't actually put any more money in anyone's pocket. The increases are mostly modest and necessary in an area that prides itself on providing an exceptional quality of life and thriving business environment.

Employment and jobs are also strong in Northern Virginia, with unemployment at 3.7 percent in Fairfax, 4.1 percent in Alexandria and 3.2 percent in Arlington. Northern Virginia is the economic engine of Virginia. The overall unemployment rate in Virginia is 5 percent, with these statistics from the Bureau of Labor Statistics. These rates are far below the national rate.

But state income tax, paid disproportionately by workers in Northern Virginia, are collected by the state for the state budget. The exact percentage of money that returns to Northern Virginia is debated, but it is definitely small. Localities should have the ability to add a piggyback tax to the state income tax in order to provide needed and expected services while giving relief to homeowners.

Anyone familiar with the political process in Virginia knows that this is a pipe dream with essentially zero chance. It would have to pass the Virginia General Assembly. Nevertheless, it makes no sense for Northern Virginia to pay income taxes to the state without being able to benefit.

Meanwhile, Arlington FY 2015 tax rate public hearing is March 27 at 7 p.m. More on Arlington's budget: <http://countyboard.arlingtonva.us/budget/>

Small Farmers Need Clean Water

BY MARIETTE HIU NEWCOMB AND KIMBERLY WILLIAMS

Northern Virginia's small farmers know the importance of keeping the water that we all depend on clean. They worry that polluted water could contaminate their crops — the fruits and vegetables that are supposed to keep people nourished and healthy. Local farmers are doing their part to reduce runoff pollution into the streams that feed into the Potomac River.

But the Potomac River and other waterways across Virginia remain at risk.

The Clean Water Act has been helping protect waterways across the country from pollution for the past 40 years. Through its protections, we've made huge progress in cleaning up Virginia's waterways, giving even more Virginians the opportunity to fish and swim in rivers like the Potomac. But if polluters like Big Ag and Big Oil have their way, that progress will stop here.

Polluter-led lawsuits have opened up huge loopholes in the Clean Water Act.

These loopholes leave 57 percent of Virginia's streams and many of its wetlands at risk of unchecked pollution. To make matters worse, these are the same waterways that feed and filter waterways like the Potomac River and, on their own, provide the drinking water for 2 million Virginians.

The effects of these loopholes on Virginia could be huge. The health of our families, our local economy and the ecosystem depend on our waterways being clean and safe. And our farms need clean water to grow healthy food for our communities. No one should be allowed to dump waste into the waterways that provide our communities with drinking water and a place to visit and enjoy. We all have a stake in clean water, and we know from the days before the Clean Water Act that when polluters dump into our streams and pave over our wetlands, we all suffer.

Virginia's small farmers have a particularly large stake in clean water and would feel the impacts of an impaired water source. And because of that, many small farmers in Virginia take great care to be stewards of their land and our waterways. But without adequate protections to all our waterways, we can't ensure that our water will remain clean enough for drinking, swimming, or watering our crops.

Fortunately, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has the power to close these loopholes and help ensure that all Virginia's waterways are safe for future generations to enjoy just like we do today.

For over a decade, the nation's biggest polluters have been fighting tooth and nail to keep the EPA from fixing these loopholes and letting the cops on the environmental beat protect waterways like the Potomac River. But this fall, the EPA took the first big step toward protecting all of Virginia's waterways when it initiated the process to finally close these loopholes. This is great news for people across Virginia, especially small farmers. If the EPA continues to move forward and fixes the Clean Water Act, our waterways could soon again have the protections they deserve.

Whether we're fishing, swimming, watering crops, or just turning on the tap, the health of our waterways is critical to our way of life. All our waterways should be clean enough that we can swim in them without risking getting sick and fish from them without fearing the catch is too contaminated to eat. And the water that farmers give to their livestock should come from protected sources. Whether we're farmers, entrepreneurs, local officials, or ordinary families, we all need the EPA to move forward and fix the Clean Water Act now to ensure that places like the Potomac River are protected now and for future generations.

Mariette Hiu Newcomb is the owner of Potomac Vegetable Farms, a local farm in Northern Virginia that specializes in growing crops without synthetic fertilizers or pesticides. Their vegetables, herbs, and cut flowers are available at farmers markets, our two on-farm roadside stands, and through their 550-member CSA.

Kimberly Williams is the Clean Water Associate with Environment Virginia, a citizen based advocacy organization.

A Short Walk to Save a Life

To the Editor:

As a kidney transplant recipient, I know firsthand how kidney disease impacts a family and how a little knowledge can go a long way.

I ignored the symptoms of my failing kidneys for three years. I chalked them up to stress, poor diet and lack of sleep. One day I passed out, was rushed to the hospital, and immediately put on dialysis. In the blink of an eye, my family nearly lost me.

This spring, I will be walking with kidney patients, organ donors, transplant recipients, family, friends and co-workers to help raise awareness of the 700,000 individuals and their families affected by kidney disease in the National Capital Area. Join me on Sunday, April 13 at the Northern Virginia Kidney Walk [in Reston Town Center] or on Saturday, May 17 at the National Capital Area Kidney Walk.

Funds raised at the National Kidney Foundation serving the National Capital Area Kidney Walks go directly to vital programs that help fight kidney disease through prevention, advocacy and education.

Take the first step, visit www.kidneywalk.org.

County's Urge to Spend

To the Editor:

The power to tax is the power to destroy. When the economy was booming Fairfax County spent (and spent) and most of us were too busy to take as much notice as needed. Now many years later the county urge to spend remains high as if the taxpayers have unlimited resources. My tax rate, based on the assessment letter recently received has a rate in the order of 12 percent in spite of the letter's claim that the increase is (only) 9 percent.

Hopefully the Board of Supervisors will, with taxpayer input, do a line by line review of the draft budget and get the fat out before it's too late.

Virginia Bluebells: Native Spring Beauty

Carpets of bluebells coming soon to a park near you.

BY DONALD SWEIG

The Virginia Bluebells are coming!

In early Spring, these beautiful native wildflowers will burst into bloom profusely throughout much of the Washington area. Botanically named Mertensia virginica, one of a number of species of Mertensia, Virginia Bluebells can be found in many moist, woodland areas, especially along streams and rivers.

Depending on the weather, they first appear in early April as light pink buds, and then open into several shades of pink, blue and even white. In some areas along the local rivers they bloom in stunning profusion, creating a veritable carpet of color.

After perhaps ten-days to two weeks, the blossoms will fade and not appear again until the following Spring. They are not difficult to find in season and most wildflower enthusiasts have a favorite Bluebell haunt.

They are easy to find along the floodplain of the Potomac River at Turkey Run Park, a National Park Service site, on the George Washington Memorial Parkway, just inside the beltway in McLean.

There are also large and popular stands of Bluebells at the Bull Run Regional Park, a Northern Virginia Regional Park Authority site.

Look for them also at Great Falls National Park in Virginia, or along the C&O Canal in Potomac. Take your binoculars; bluebells often grow on the islands in the middle of the river.

Bluebells grow best, and most profusely, in the sandy soils of the floodplain along the local rivers. A particularly stunning and easily accessible stand of Bluebells is in Fairfax County's Riverbend Park, where one can walk the paths both up and down river from the visitor center with copious bluebells on both sides of the path. It's sight to behold. One might also notice other Spring wildflowers along the various trails, along the river floodplains and in the nearby woods.

The annual appearance of the Virginia Bluebells is a treat too sweet to miss. Take your camera to preserve the memory, but please don't pick the wild bluebells; they are very fragile and will soon wither if plucked.

If you are interested in growing these flowers yourself, they like moist to wet soil in part or mostly shaded areas, according to the Master Gardeners of Northern Virginia: "Best planted at the edge of a woodland path or by a shaded pond." Bluebells appear to be both deer and rabbit resistant.

Where to Look for Virginia Bluebells

Try these public places for reliable stands of Bluebells. Depending on the weather, early to mid-April is the best time to find them in full bloom.

Riverbend is a particularly easy place to see a stunning display of Bluebells. The park is open every day, admission is free. Try calling the park to check when the bluebells are in full bloom. Visitor is center closed on Tuesdays. "Spring is wildflower time. Many species of spring ephemerals grace the river banks from March to June. Take a walk between carpets of Virginia Bluebells and Spring Beauties, and look for Wild Ginger, Dutchman's Breeches and Trout Lilies."

Flight Trampoline Park Opens in Springfield

Kids and adults welcome for spring fun.

By JANELLE GERMANOS
THE CONNECTION

The area surrounding Interstate 95 off of Fullerton Road in Springfield isn't exactly known for a variety of activities for fun.

Filled with warehouses and industrial parks, the area has been in need of a fun activity for the whole family for some time now.

That's where Flight Trampoline Park comes in. With over 13,000 square feet of trampolines, the new facility is fun for kids and adults.

The park just opened three weeks ago and already has generated a strong community interest.

"We have almost 10,000 Facebook fans," said Dusten Estes, co-owner of Flight Trampoline Park.

Estes, along with Cameron Gentry and Dustin Ward, opened the first Flight Trampoline Park location in Connecticut. Estes said that the location was successful, so they decided to look into opening more East Coast locations.

"Trampoline parks are fairly new to the East Coast," Estes said.

Springfield was an optimal location for the Washington, D.C. area location because it has great demographics, and Estes says there isn't a lot of competition in the area in terms of trampoline parks.

Estes said the Springfield location is doing pretty well, and will be launching fitness classes in a couple weeks on April 5.

"The fitness classes include boot camp, high intensity and high calorie burning classes," Estes said.

In addition to open jump, which is priced in half hour, hour and two hour sessions, Flight Trampoline Park is available for birthday parties, corporate events, fundraisers and sleepovers.

LivingSocial and Groupon are also offering deals tickets to Flight Trampoline Park.

Although Estes said Flight Trampoline Park targets kids, it is a fun place for adults as well.

Weekends are the busiest times at Flight Trampoline Park, although the Springfield location is open seven days a week.

More locations along the East Coast, including one in Chantilly, will be opening soon.

Lee High School Students Visit Port Isobel

IB environmental systems and societies students learn about the Chesapeake Bay.

THE CONNECTION

Before beginning their trip to Port Isobel, an island in the Chesapeake Bay, students in Rachel Clausen's International Baccalaureate (IB) environmental systems and societies class at Lee High School had to do something that today is almost unheard of: turn in their cell phones and watches and spend some time without technology.

"They were a little worked up at first. I have a video of their reaction," said Clausen. "But we didn't want them to be trying to get service with their cell phones the entire trip."

At Port Isobel, the students were truly on island time.

"It was hard to get used to. But after a while, it was fine. It's a beautiful island," said junior Mark Kellam.

Clausen was awarded a Good Neighbor Student Achievement Grant in fall 2013, which is meant to be used for addressing problems in the community and participation in service activities.

This grant led to the trip to Port Isobel, a small island east of Tangier Island in the Chesapeake Bay. Clausen and Lee High School principal Abe Jeffers, along with parent chaperones, led 13 of Clausen's environmental systems and societies students to the remote island.

THE GOAL was to teach students more about the Chesapeake Bay and to have them become stewards of the bay.

"We talked a lot about what we can do in our own lives to make the bay a cleaner place," said junior Karina Lizano-Blanco.

Activities on Port Isobel included scraping for oysters, crabbing, water testing, and even some games in the marshes.

"We learned about the marshes on the island. In the marsh, it was really, really muddy, so we had a lot of fun there," said junior Grace Rihl.

The group said they thought it would be somewhat awkward to have their principal on the trip with them, but it ended up being fun.

For the most time he did not feel like our principal. He felt like someone different," Kellam said.

According to Clausen, the principal even joined the students in the mud.

The students said that their trip to Port Isobel taught them more about the importance of the Chesapeake Bay.

"We also went to the neighboring island, and people live there. It showed us that the Chesapeake Bay is a lifeline for people because it's where they get their main employment and resources. It has a lot of aesthetic values for them. It showed us the difference between this island in the middle of the Chesapeake Bay and how we live. It was really eye-opening," Rihl said.

The trip also allowed students to witness the problems that the Chesapeake Bay is facing.

"People have been taking out too many of the crabs and oysters, so the oyster population used to be very large, where you were going along you used to be able to see the oysters, and now you can't see them at all. Even when we were scraping for them, we didn't find very many. Because of that, other populations and species are also having trouble," Rihl said.

SEVERAL STUDENTS in Clausen's class say the course has expanded their interest in environmental science. Some of the stu-

$1.006 for every $100 of assessed value, which includes the base rate of $0.993 and the county-wide sanitary district rate of $0.013 for stormwater management. Last month, members of the Arlington County Board voted to advertise no increase in the rate, which means elected officials must find a way to balance the budget using the increase in property values. Fortunately for Arlington, property values in the county have been some of the strongest in the region.

"The gap between funding for ongoing county services and revenues that I predicted in the fall was eliminated by our higher-than-anticipated real estate assessments," said County Manager Barbara Donnellan. "But we must still work to achieve efficiencies and continue to invest in our community."

In Arlington, unlike Alexandria, the tax base is split evenly between residential property and commercial property. County budget officials say that's a blessing and a curse. When residential values declined during the recession, jurisdictions that were heavily reliant on them suffered. But commercial properties have been sluggish in the wake of sequestration and shutdown because the local economy is so heavily tied to the fate of the federal government. That means that Arlington finds itself balanced between two different markets instead of tied to the fate of one.

"We like to say we like balanced development in the county," said Budget Director Richard Stephenson. "But that can be good or bad depending on where we are in the cycle."

IN ALEXANDRIA, the city manager has proposed a tax rate of $1.038 for every $100 of assessed value. Earlier this month, City Council members voted to advertise a tax rate that's half a cent higher. That tax rate of $1.043 for every $100 of assessed value would raise the average residential property tax bill by $230. That's a 7 percent increase compared to last year.

"I did not run to raise property taxes," said Councilwoman Allison Silberberg. "But we have some growing needs."

Unlike Arlington, Alexandria's tax revenues lean heavily toward residential properties. Almost 33 percent of the city's revenues come from residential property taxpayers, while commercial property taxpayers contribute only 25 percent of the tax base. That means the average single-family house, which increased about 3 percent this year, is shouldering a disproportionate amount of the burden for the increased cost of government in Alexandria. "We have an 18 percent vacancy rate that's devaluing the commercial side of the ledger," said Alexandria Budget Director Nelsie Smith. "If we had a healthier commercial base that wasn't contributing to an 18 percent vacancy rate, we would not have seen the 0.68 percent growth from last year to this year."

dents, including Kellam, plan to major in the subject in college.

"This class has given me more knowledge about environmental science and sort of opened my eyes to that fact that it's something that is really important." Rihl said.

After their IB exam, Clausen's class will bring their knowledge and experiences from Port Isobel to Springfield at the Community Science Day on May 31.

"They are going to use their knowledge of what they did in the bay to help the other kids that didn't get to go in their class, and they are going to be teaching water-related lessons and hands-on demos to elementary and middle-school kids in the area," Clausen said.

The class will also be picking service projects in June as part of their final project for IB environmental systems and societies.

Clausen said the trip was meant to give the students a hands-on activity, as well as to remind them of the Chesapeake Bay's importance.

"In Springfield, we don't always think about the Chesapeake Bay. But it's all connected," Clausen said.

East All-Stars Beat West in Suburban Classic

West Springfield's Berglund wins 3-point shootout.

BY JON ROETMAN
THE CONNECTION

Sunday's 10th Suburban Classic started with a 3-point shootout — the perfect competition for West Springfield senior Amy Berglund to show off her sharpshooting skills.

After posting the top score of the first round (19), Berglund won the event with a score of 9 in the finals, beating McLean's Cami Prock, Centreville's Jenna Green and Osbourn's Bailey Dufrene.

Berglund, who scored more than 1,000 points in her high school career, knocked down countless 3-pointers in her four years as a Spartan, but she said performing in front of a small crowd in a quiet Oakton High School gym was more nerve-wracking than playing in a big game.

"My heart was racing, I don't know why," Berglund said. "I was pretty nervous. It was fun. I felt like I was in the NBA all-star [shootout]. My legs got tired in the second round, that's why my score dropped so much, but it was fun."

Berglund's 3-point shootout title preceded the afternoon's main event: the East-West all-star game. Berglund, who plans to play for University of Northwestern St. Paul next season, scored 10 points and helped the East all-stars beat the West 78-64 on March 23.

THE SUBURBAN CLASSIC featured some of the top seniors from the 6A North and 5A North regions. The Northern Virginia Women's Basketball Coaches Association sponsored the event and helped raise scholarship money for athletes.

The East all-stars, coached by Edison's Dianne Lewis, led the West squad, coached by Madison's Kirsten Stone, by as many as 22 points in the second half.

Prock finished with 12 points for the East and earned team MVP honors. Prock "took a couple emotional days off" following McLean's season-ending loss to T.C. Williams in the opening round of the 6A North regional tournament on Feb. 24. Following her decompression session, Prock returned to the gym to work on her game. While her time with the McLean girls' basketball team was over, Prock's hard work paid off a month down the road with a strong performance in the Suburban Classic.

The East all-stars led 34-30 late in the second quarter. Prock helped the East pull away, though, scoring six points in the final 90 seconds of the first half as the team built a 41-30 halftime advantage.

Prock agreed that the environment was a combination of competitiveness and enjoyment.

"It was definitely a great mixture of both," she said. "I know when I'm competing and having fun at the same time, it's a great feeling."

West Springfield senior and East all-star Amy Berglund won the 3-point shootout at the 10th Suburban Classic on March 23 at Oakton High School and scored 10 points during the main event.

Lake Braddock senior Caitlyn Mandela scored four points for the East all-stars during the 10th Suburban Classic on March 23 at Oakton High School.

Prock will attend the College of William & Mary next year and is debating whether to attempt to join the university's basketball team as a walk on.

South Lakes guard Caitlin Jensen, a member of the West all-stars, was another athlete who didn't take long to return to the gym after her high school season had ended. Jensen said she went back to work the following day after the Seahawks lost to Centreville in the regional quarterfinals on Feb. 25.

On Sunday, Jensen led all scorers with 22 points, including four 3-pointers.

"I've been working really hard since the season ended," Jensen said. "It's a great feeling."

Jensen will continue her basketball career next season at the University of Mary Washington. On this afternoon, she got to play once again with South Lakes teammate Abby Rendle, and with girls she had competed against during her high school career.

"It was a good experience," Jensen said. "It was nice because I've played against these people forever and now playing on the same team with [Centreville point guard] Jenna [Green] and all them, it's a new feel, but I liked it."

Madison senior Katie Kerrigan has also been working hard, but in a different sport. After the Madison girls' basketball team lost

"My heart was racing, I don't know why. I was pretty nervous. It was fun. I felt like I was in the NBA all-star [shootout]. My legs got tired in the second round, that's why my score dropped so much, but it was fun."

— West Springfield senior Amy Berglund

to Stonewall Jackson in the region semifinals on Feb. 27, Kerrigan transitioned to her primary sport of lacrosse, which she will play at Ohio State University. On Sunday, she was back on the hardwood as a member of the West all-stars.

"It was definitely a lot of fun playing with the best players in the region," Kerrigan said. "It's definitely a little hard because I haven't touched a basketball in three weeks. It was fun."

It was a great experience. I got to play with a lot of my close friends. It was a great way to end my high school career."

Kerrigan scored six points, played aggressive defense and got to play for Coach Stone one more time.

"It was fun," Stone said of coaching Kerrigan in the all-star game. "She's just a workhorse. You don't really see many of those. ... I turned to the girls on the bench and I'm like, 'I would hate for her to have to guard me.' And they were like, 'it's awful.'"

Samantha Porter (Mount Vernon/Christopher Newport) and Amber Bryson (Lee) each scored 10 points for the East all-stars. Tykera Carter (T.C. Williams) finished with nine points, while Michelle Noel (Wakefield) and Tatianna Torres (Edison) each had eight. Caitlyn Mandela (Lake Braddock) and De'Ja Jeanpierre (Mount Vernon/Barton College) each had four points for the East, and Angie Schedler (T.C. Williams) had three.

FOR THE WEST ALL-STARS, Centreville's Green finished with 13 points and earned team MVP honors. Arnelle Collins (Freedom) scored 12 points and Alexia Johnson (Broad Run) had nine. Kayla Hix (Stonewall Jackson) and Bailey Dufrene (Osbourn) each had one point. Freedom's Nicole Lubovich also competed for the West team. Centreville's Katie Blumer was a member of the West all-stars but sat out due to injury.

Lewis, who coached Edison to its second consecutive region championship this season, said allowing players to have fun was a priority, but she takes pride in winning.

"Absolutely," she said. "I hate to lose."

Lake Braddock senior Ashley Flesch pitched a one-hitter against Bishop O'Connell on March 22.

Lake Braddock freshman third baseman Patty Maye Ohanian made several plays to help keep pitcher Ashley Flesch's perfect game alive into the seventh inning on March 22.

Lake Braddock Softball Beats O'Connell

Bruins pitcher Flesch tosses one-hitter against Knights.

BY JON ROETMAN
THE CONNECTION

The Lake Braddock softball team returns two all-state athletes from a 2013 group that captured the program's first district championship since 2001.

If Saturday's performance against Bishop O'Connell, one of the premier programs in the Washington, D.C.-metro area, is any indication, the Bruins have a chance to be even better in 2014.

Lake Braddock senior pitcher Ashley Flesch hurled a one-hitter and the Bruins defeated O'Connell 2-1 on March 22 in Burke.

O'Connell, a private school located in Arlington, has won the last 10 Washington Catholic Athletic Conference championships, yet Flesch had a perfect game going entering the seventh inning. She hit O'Connell leadoff batter Hayley Metcalf with a 3-2 pitch, giving the Knights their first base runner of the afternoon. After retiring the next two batters, Flesch surrendered a single to O'Connell first baseman Olivia Giaquinto, ending the no-hit bid. A Lake Braddock error on the play allowed a run to score and put the tying run in scoring position for the Knights, but Flesch got O'Connell pitcher Erin Sweeney to fly out to left field to end the game.

"[Flesch] started getting tired, I think, but she held it together," Lake Braddock head coach George Rumore said. "I didn't want to switch [pitchers] in the seventh because she had a no-hitter going."

After Flesch lost her perfect game, Lake Braddock had an infield meeting near the pitcher's circle to discuss strategy. Did Flesch struggle to bounce back?

"No. I was just trying to get the win the whole time," Flesch said. "I didn't even realize that I had a perfect game until after the fact. But, oh well. We got the win, that's all that matters."

Flesch, who earned honorable mention all-state honors as a pitcher last season, threw seven innings, allowing one hit and one unearned run. She struck out eight, walked none and hit one batter.

While O'Connell struggled to get the bats going, Lake Braddock jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the first inning when junior first baseman Amanda Hendrix, a first-team all-state selection last season, delivered an RBI double. The Bruins added what proved to be a pivotal insurance run in the bottom of the sixth, when junior center-fielder Jenna Edwards led off the inning with a single and, two batters later, sophomore left-fielder Danielle Newman drove her in with an RBI double.

Edwards finished 2-for-3. Flesch and junior second baseman Katherine Plescow each had a single.

Last season, Lake Braddock finished 19-2 and defeated six-time defending Patriot District champion South County for the Bruins' first district title in more than a decade. However, four days after beating the Stallions in the Patriot District championship game, the Bruins lost to Centreville in the opening round of the regional tournament.

Rumore said the Bruins entered regionals mentally drained after winning the district title. Flesch, a four-year varsity athlete, said Lake Braddock has a chance to be even better this year. "It was a great measuring stick for us, where we are, what we need to improve," Flesch said of beating O'Connell. "... That's a big boost for the team, mentally. ... Every year, we've gotten more and more talent and we just expect more out of each other. We're expecting to get further and further every year."

If Saturday's win is any indication, the Bruins have a shot to make that happen.

"It's a good win for us, especially under the circumstances — nobody's really been [outside]," Rumore said. "This is only our third time since tryouts started we've been out on a field, so it's nice."

Lake Braddock will travel to face South County at 6:30 p.m. on Friday, March 28.
