Help the Homeless Walk Breaks Record

More than 400 people walk to end homelessness in Reston Town Center.

Cornerstones CEO Kerrie Wilson kept tearing up as she looked at the crowd around her in Reston Town Center. Just minutes before the third annual Help the Homeless walk, more than 400 people showed up during their lunch break to raise money for Cornerstones by walking from Reston Town Center to the nearest shelter on Oct. 2.

“What an opportunity to recognize the homelessness right here in our community,” she said. “When you have a shelter half a mile away, many realize just how much need is around us.” The walk was $25 to join. Wilson said the money raised will mostly go towards the nonprofit’s rapid rehousing program. “The economic recovery is slow in our community, and this is to bridge the gap and get those people back on their feet,” she said.

She noted that in the past three months, 25 families and 15 individuals moved into a home thanks to the Cornerstones’ rehousing program. “I want to let each and every one of you know that you are changing a life today,” she said to the participants. Three years ago, the idea of the walk came from May Bernhardt, owner of Mayflowers. Today, she still helps to organize the annual event. “It’s my passion to help people who don’t have shelter,” she said. “People should help everyone and be a part of the community. Everyone deserves a home and food.”

“We’re going to beat homelessness,” said Plum. Wilson said L3 had the most participants from their company at the event with more than 250 registered employees. Leidos came in second place with 65 people participating. In third was Microsoft. “It’s a good cause, and there was a lot of promotion within the company to be a part of the walk,” said Tim Wong, L3 employee.

Many of the registered participants received bright umbrellas with a giant flower printed on it, courtesy of May, to raise awareness about the walk to other people in Reston Town Center. Kerry Oldfield, Fidelity Investments Branch Manager, said the branch has been supporting Cornerstones since they moved to Reston Town Center. “I’m amazed by the number of people in poverty that others don’t realize are so close to the town center,” he said. “I think it is a bigger problem than people let on.”

Touring the Decades

Reston Home Tour explores homes of all ages.

By Reena Singh
The Connection

This year, Reston Home Tour will take visitors back through the decades. Six homes, built from the 1960s until the current decade, are participating in the Oct. 18 Reston Historic Trust and Museum Home Tour the year the town celebrates its 50th anniversary.

“It will tell you a lot about Reston,” said organizer Bonnie Haukness. “Many areas in northern Virginia have the same kind of housing, but per Bob Simon’s vision, you can start off in an apartment here then upgrade as you get older.”

This will be the 13th year the event will take place. Haukness said the event has changed over the years and now has a VIP Reception for donors and those on the home tour to meet and mingle before the event. This year’s reception was at Shashi and Margaret Gupta’s home, which was featured during a past home tour. This year’s tour is Oct. 18 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tickets are $25 if purchased by the Oct. 11 and $30 after.

The oldest home on the tour, a townhouse designed by Charles Goodman in the 1960s, is nearly as old as Reston itself. There will be a stop at the Avant, a new high rise in Reston Town Center, where culinary students from South Lakes High School will serve food featuring all the decades Reston has gone through for guests to sample. “It will be a fun day,” said Haukness. “People get design ideas. People who are interested in art or interior design go on the tour.”

Alison Kal owns one of the homes on the tour spotlighting the 1980s. “I didn’t expect to put my home on the tour,” she said. She bought the home in 2011 and expected to have plenty of time to renovate it to her taste. “I had just finished remodeling it and wasn’t done settling in,” she said. “I now have deadlines to do things.”

She chose Reston and her home because her roots connect her with bodies of water. “I love the outdoor spaces,” she said. “I love being able to walk outside and get on a trail. Everybody is so friendly. It really feels like a little community.”

Steve and Emily Ward have lived in Reston since 1973 and have had a home on a previous tour. However, they recently downsized to an apartment at The Avant and will be featured again.

“We collected a lot of American folk art over the last few years and have somewhat of a museum,” said Steve. “Reston is such a diverse place where people can do so many different things.” He said that Haukness approached the couple about being on the tour again after seeing their new space.

“We talked about it,” he said. “I think we have an interesting story. We moved to an apartment less than half the size of our last home. It was a challenge to get rid of half of everything.” For more information about the Reston Museum and Trust’s events, visit www.restonmuseum.org.

Chuck Veatch and Bonnie Haukness present this year’s tour homeowners with sketches of their homes during this year’s VIP Reception.

Parents meet teachers at South Lakes High School in Reston.

Representatives of community groups and clubs set up booths in the early evening of Oct. 2 at Reston South Lakes High School. The school was hosting a back to school night, and several local organizations wanted to publicize some of their upcoming events. Groups which set up booths included NOVA Labs, the school newspaper the South Lakes Sentinel, the Ice Hockey Club, and the Washington West Film Festival.

Parents and faculty assembled at the Wendell G. Byrd gymnasium for a welcoming by Principal Kimberly Retzer. Retzer is a 1989 graduate of South Lakes and began her career in Fairfax County Public Schools as a special education teacher at South Lakes, where she also served as department chair. “I am so pleased with the wonderful turnout for Back to School Night,” said Retzer. “Connecting is a theme for us here at South Lakes this year and Back to School Night.”

Reston resident and South Lakes high school junior Jacob Hutzler represented community-based Nova Labs at the October back to school night event.

The Age Wave

BY KENNETH R. “KEN” PLUM
STATE DELEGATE (D-36)

Last week, Bob Brink, a former colleague of mine who represented Arlington-McLean in the House of Delegates and who was appointed by Governor Terry McAuliffe to be Deputy Commissioner for Aging Services, spoke to the Northern Virginia Aging Network’s (NVAN) annual legislative summit. His talk, “The Age Wave: Ready or Not, Here We Come,” highlighted the challenges of the aging of our population. “By 2030, as the last of the age wave turns 65, we will number 1.8 million people here in Virginia—20 percent of the population,” he said often flashing his Medicare card. “There are more of us, and we’ll be living longer: the fastest growing segment of our population will be those 85 and older.” While in 2010 nearly one in eight Virginia residents were 65 and over, by 2030 nearly one in five will be in that age range.

The age wave presents challenges to our society beyond the obvious impact on our health care system, he said. Adults age 65 and older are now twice as likely to be living in poverty as they were a decade ago. Almost 200,000 Virginia households, half of them 62 or older, are living in substandard conditions. Opportunity costs to those who are family caregivers will total more than $400 billion in lost wages, pensions, and Social Security. The cost of government services will rise at a time when revenues are not keeping pace or dropping.

The Northern Virginia Aging Network (NVAN) is made up of the six area agencies on aging serving the jurisdictions of the region, as well as the critically important regional service and advocacy organizations and volunteers. Brink indicated that the state Aging Division “will be aggressive in encouraging innovation in service delivery, including formation of public-private partnerships” to provide needed services. He praised the Fairfax County Elderlink (www.fairfaxcounty.gov/dfs/elderadultservices/elderlink.htm), a public-private collaboration of the Fairfax Area Agency on Aging, Inova Health System, and the Alzheimer’s Association for care coordination of older adults.

NVAN had recommendations for meeting the challenges of the age wave, among them expanding Medicaid services that would provide direct benefits to about 62,000 older Virginians who do not have and cannot afford healthcare. Ironically, at a time of shrinking revenues the expansion of Medicaid would bring back to the Commonwealth five million dollars a day in taxes already paid by Virginians. Recognizing that most seniors prefer to stay in their own homes, NVAN recommends tax credits and grants that would expand consumer access to livable homes. The professionals and citizen volunteers who make up NVAN see the need for a quality, cost-effective, continuously trained long-term care workforce to improve the quality of life for older adults and people with disabilities. The demand for long-term care workers is expected to increase by 160 percent by 2030. A critical element in building such a workforce is paying a living wage. An expansion of Virginia’s workforce is paying a living wage. An expansion of Virginia’s workforce is paying a living wage. An expansion of Virginia’s workforce is paying a living wage.

Public Guardianship Program is seen as needed for vulnerable adults, Commissioner Brink implored those in attendance to reach across jurisdictional lines and outside bureaucratic boxes as we work to meet the needs of our aging population, or as he expressed it, “to ride the wave together.”

‘Fields of Fire’ Marker to Be Dedicated

A state historical marker issued by the Virginia Department of Historic Resources for Fairfax County that highlights activities of the Union Army’s XII Corps during the Civil War and a heat wave in the region that afflicted marching soldiers and made a tinderbox of county fields and woods will be dedicated this month.

The public ceremony to unveil the new “Fields of Fire” marker begins at 10 a.m., Saturday, Oct. 11, and will be held at the marker’s location, across from the Reston Zoo, located at 1228 Hunter Mill Road, Vienna. The dedication will feature remarks by Steve Hull and Jim Lewis, both of the Hunter Mill Defense League, and Fairfax County Board of Supervisors member Cathy Hudgins. The 17th Virginia Infantry, formed in 1861, will present the colors during the ceremony. The “Fields of Fire” marker recalls that during June 17, 1863, at the beginning of the Gettysburg Campaign, the Union XII Corps broke camp and “left Fairfax Court House at daybreak, ate breakfast at Hunter’s Mill, and halted by 11 a.m. because of extreme heat, 99 degrees in the shade,” in the marker’s words.

Two days previously, the marker notes, the XII Corps was “devastated by sunstroke casualties” during the “grueling 25-mile-long march north.” The marker concludes by quoting the words of Brig. Gen. Alpheus S. Williams, the First Division commander, who wrote on June 17th that “the dry old grass of the fields and woods got on fire, and filled the air with smoke and additional heat.”

The Hunter Mill Defense League sponsored the marker and covered the costs of its manufacture. The sign was approved as a state historical marker by DHR’s Board of Historic Resources this past June.

Ebolas? Whoopee Cough? Enterovirus?

Wash your hands, get your flu shot.

There are plenty to be fearful about. Local outbreaks of whooping cough, due to some parents opting out of vaccines; whooping cough can be deadly for infants. Enterovirus, an upper respiratory illness mostly affecting children, which can become very serious very quickly for some children. The specter of ebola killing thousands of people in West Africa, and also possibly arriving via any international airport.

But there are a few things you can do to protect yourself and those around you from the likelihood of the biggest health threat in your neighborhood, influenza. The flu will kill thousands of people in the United States this flu season, ranging from October to May. Over 30 years, the average number of deaths was more than 20,000 annually according to the CDC, although the number ranged from 3,000 to 48,000. Flu vaccination is cheap, easy and effective. Getting vaccinated was associated with a 71 percent reduction in flu-related hospitalizations among adults of all ages and a 77 percent reduction among adults 50 years of age and older during the 2011-2012 flu season. Get a flu shot. Make sure everyone in your family gets a flu shot. Most people with health insurance can get the vaccination without paying anything for it. Getting vaccinated doesn’t just protect you, it also protects the people around you who might be more vulnerable, including young children, people over 65, pregnant women, people with other health conditions like being in cancer treatment or with chronic upper respiratory problems.

Quoting the CDC: “Influenza is a serious disease that can lead to hospitalization and sometimes even death. Every flu season is different, and influenza infection can affect people differently. Even healthy people can get very sick from the flu and spread it to others. Over a period of 31 seasons between 1976 and 2007, estimates of flu-associated deaths in the United States ranged from a low of about 3,000 to a high of about 49,000 people. During a regular flu season, about 90 percent of deaths occur in people 65 years and older. “Flu season” in the United States can begin as early as October and last as late as May.”

“During this time, flu viruses are circulating at higher levels in the U.S. population. An annual seasonal flu vaccine (either the flu shot or the nasal spray flu vaccine) is the best way to reduce the chances that you will get seasonal flu and spread it to others. When more people get vaccinated against the flu, less flu can spread through that community.”

Home Values on the Rise

By Kerrie B. Wilson
Chief Executive Officer

Cornerstone

Why do you live where you live today? Is it convenience to work or good schools? Access to attractions? Does the housing cost fit your budget? For most people, finding the perfect home often comes down to a family’s values and priorities for the stage of life they are in, choosing what’s most important if you can’t get everything in one home. Yet, for many families and individuals in Fairfax County, there are only hard choices and tradeoffs that no person would willingly accept for their family. To afford a 2-bedroom apartment in our area at fair market rate of $1,469 requires an annual household income of $56,480. For a minimum wage worker that equates to 132 hours of work per week. In Fairfax County, nearly 1/5 of households earn less than would be required to pay that rent without some temporary or ongoing support. Do you move out miles and add hours and cost to get to the job? Do you sacrifice housing safety or time with your children to work two or more jobs to pay the bills? The stress on those with limited incomes or ability to earn a “housing wage” hurts everyone in community. Recognizing this, the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors prioritized “livable, caring and affordable communities” that reflect the options families value. Despite the headline goal, we have not kept pace with housing production and preservation needed to support affordable living opportunities. Huge increases in construction costs have outstripped growth in household income, compounded by the reduction in government subsidies now available to bridge those gaps. At Cornerstones, we understand the consequences for those who fall into this affordability gap and we are working on many levels to address the challenge.

Consider, the Brown family entered the Emby Rucker shelter with their children this summer. Shaken by the reality of shelter living, they are willing to make changes. It won’t be an easy road. Mr. Brown is unemployed and never completed high school. Mrs. Brown is an administrative assistant in a Reston-based business earning $36,000. They have two elementary age children who have made friends and feel at home at a local elementary school. The Browns’ total household income means they earn too much for some benefits, but not enough to support their family. A short-term solution is a transitional housing program that emphasizes educational attainment and job training for people willing to work hard to increase earning potential in exchange for time-limited rent support. The Browns make it? They have a lot going for them, but will still join thousands of other families in Fairfax County who are on waiting lists for housing vouchers or other affordable rental subsidies essential to surviving this chapter in their life.

Long-term, the only sustainable solution requires a community investment. Cornerstones has worked in our community for more than 40 years to preserve affordable housing and give families like the Browns realistic housing options. This month—after a long journey aided by our supporters and partners like Boozato, Wells Fargo, Fairfax County, Virginia Development Authority, Freddie Mac and the Greater Reston Chamber of Commerce Best of Reston partnership—Cornerstones will purchase and assume sole ownership responsibilities for the Apartment homes at North Point in Reston’s desirable North Point community.

Walkable to shopping, on the bus line, and just miles from the Silver Line metro, these attractive, accessible garden style apartments are available at below market rents—expanding the choice of living and working in a community rich with opportunities for service, great schools, and access to open space and recreational opportunities.

Who are these neighbors? North Point residents include teachers, government employees, retired individuals and students, and formerly homeless families like the Browns. Annual household income for our tenants range from $15,000 to $70,000 per year. The permanent subsidy required for Cornerstones to guarantee affordability can be as much as $25,000 per person per year, depending on the situation of the individual tenant. As tenant income grows, so too will the amount paid towards rent and the equity we reinvest to keep homes affordable for all.

While the 100 units we own and manage are part of the solution, Fairfax County is still far short of the overall number of homes needed to support a healthy, thriving community; a minimum of 1,650 units are still needed just to meet the goals established under the 10-Year Plan to Prevent and End Homelessness.

We are often asked to enumerate the benefits of our work. Ev-See Wilson, Page II

Hornets are 3-2 after producing 5 wins in previous 4 seasons.

By Jon Roetman
The Connection

Herndon senior running back Lamik Bumbrey stood on the McLean High School football field following Thursday’s game and said his goal is to make the playoffs.

While many players on many teams set their sights on qualifying for the postseason, such aspirations in recent years would have seemed far-fetched coming from a member of the Herndon football program.

From 2010 to 2013, Herndon produced a 5-35 record, winning just one game in three of the last four seasons. In 2014, however, the Hornets, led by new head coach Jeremiah Davis, have breathed life into a struggling program.

Herndon defeated McLean 51-35 on Oct. 2, improving its record to 3-2. The Hornets are averaging 39 points per game and have scored at least 46 points on three occasions.

Herndon, in search of its first playoff berth since 2008, showed its offensive potency against the Highlanders, amassing 560 total yards, including 243 on the ground. The Hornets led by as many as 23 points in the second half, when a 28-yard touchdown run by Bumbrey gave Herndon a 38-15 advantage with 2:50 remaining in the third quarter.

“It feels great,” said Bumbrey, a third-year varsity player who experienced back-to-back 1-9 seasons as a sophomore and junior. “I just want to go to the playoffs. … It’s my main goal.”

Before Bumbrey shared his desire to play in the postseason, No. 28 spent four quarters making Herndon look like a playoff contender. Bumbrey, listed at 5 feet 11, 195 pounds, carried 37 times for 236 yards and three touchdowns. He also returned kickoff for the Hornets.

“He’s special,” Davis said about Bumbrey. “[He] doesn’t say a word, doesn’t say a peep. [He] just puts his head forward. [He’s a] what-can-I-do-next-for-the-team kind of guy.”

Bumbrey’s 2-yard touchdown run with 10:01 left in the second quarter gave Herndon a 10-3 lead it wouldn’t relinquish.

McLaughlin also had big night for Herndon. The 6-foot, 210-pound senior completed 17 of 20 passes for 272 yards, including 243 on the ground following Thursday’s game.

First-year head coach Jeremiah Davis has led the Herndon football team to a 3-2 record.

“He made some nice touch throws, got behind the defense, and that’s what you ask from your quarterback,” Davis said. “[He ran in on the goal line tough.”

Bumbrey and McLaughlin each said the Hornets have worked hard to get to this point, and each acknowledged a job well-done by Davis, who spent the previous two seasons as head coach of the West Potomac Wolverines.

“He’s a great coach,” Bumbrey said. “He brings a new attitude to this program.”

“We want to be very competitive in our out-of-district schedule and put ourselves in a position … [to] compete in district, and that’s going to take some time. Some other schools are ahead of us in weight training and attitude and history and all that stuff, but what’s old is old and this is the new stuff going on.”

Teatro De La Luna
Comes to Lake Anne

Performance group Teatro De La Luna performed at Lake Anne Elementary School in both English and Spanish. The storyline for kindergartners through third graders included Sweet Miss Lettuce and her uncle Mr. Cucumber. There were teaching children that they can fight the evil Mrs. Laziness, discovering a world of good nutrition that, along with exercise, allows them to live happily and healthfully by eating right, getting enough sleep and exercise.

School Notes

Five Fairfax County Public Schools (FCPS) students have received national awards for their writing from the Scholastic Art and Writing Awards.

Three of the students received Gold Medals, the highest form of recognition.

Aline Dolinh of Oakton High School received the American Voices Medal, the equivalent of the best of show award, for her poetry, “Accent Marks, Excorium, Model Minority, Second-generation.”

National winners include:
❖ Melissa Halfbrook of Woodson High School, Gold Medal for humor, “Kim Jung-Un’s New Clothes.”
❖ Jean Jeon of Herndon High School, Silver Medal for novel writing, “Strain.”
❖ Sara Warrington of T.J.H.S.S.T., Silver Medal for Journalism, “Overcoming In-tolerance.”

The Scholastic Art and Writing Awards, a 91-year old program of the Alliance for Young Artists and Writers, will honor the winners at a special ceremony at Carnegie Hall in New York City on Friday, June 6.

Week Of Weak On, Week Off

By KENNETH R. LOUISE

This column completes the three-week arc which describes what I have endured mostly successfully for approximately five years now: chemotherapy every three weeks — with one year off for good behavior (not really good behavior; the year off was to switch to a twice-a-day pill, Tarceva, to be taken at home, since the previous treatment was no longer stemming the tide). It’s been my experience that these anti-cancer drugs don’t exactly work forever. Realistically speaking, if they work at all — on you, you take them until they don’t work any more; then you hope there’s another drug somewhere: in the pharmacy, in the oining, in the pipeline, that the cancer won’t recognize and ignore, to give you hope that as a patient, you haven’t run out of treatment options. And so far, as you regular readers know, my body’s tolerance (let’s call it a “good behavior”) has been above and beyond, his third miracle,” my oncologist says.

Two weeks ago, I wrote about the week/week immediately following chemotherapy. Last week, I wrote about the week-of/week preceding the actual infusion, waiting for the lab results and dealing with the associated anxiety pertaining to all of it. This week, I’d like to jump ahead to two weeks post-chemotherapy, the week after I feel worst and the week before I feel anxious again worrying about new results and then anticipating the Friday infusion and the subsequent post-chemotherapy discomfort to follow. This of course is my favorite week, my week feeling most normal, my week when cancer is not top of mind, more so middle of mind. But I’ll take it in the middle, that’s a significant enough displacement so I don’t mind it there. (This may be a bit of mind over matter/any port in a storm, but when you’re in the cross-hairs, any break in the usual action, any respite is so cancer-centric. But after five-plus years of it, the routine has become almost second nature and not, believe it or not, a constant reminder that I have cancer; more like a means not to a premature end. It’s not even anything I think about any more. Just like the week-of, week-on and week-off have become. It’s what I do. It’s who I am. It’s how I roll. Nothing to complain about. Something more to write about. If I had my druthers, I’d rather not be writing about life in the cancer lane. But since this seems to be my permanent address, and I’m a homebody at heart, I’ll continue to write about what I know best. It used to be sports and chocolate; now it’s about living with cancer. Living being the operative word. And you know what, it makes me happy writing about it.)

To the Editor:

Thank you for your informative editorial about the new Photo ID requirement (“Does the Change in Voter ID Laws Matter?” Connection, October 1-7, 2014) and the opportunity for those who do not have acceptable Photo IDs to obtain free ones for voting purposes from any general registrar’s office.

The Fairfax County Office of Elections is not arranging transportation for people to get to the office, though some organizations may be. The county is taking the photo ID equipment out to libraries, government centers, in-person absentee voting sites, and other locations to enable citizens to get the IDs more easily. The schedules of locations and times are on the Office of Elections website.

People who apply for a Photo ID too late to receive it in the mail can ask for a temporary photo ID. It will be accepted as a valid ID for voting. Registered voters go-ning to the polls on election day who do not have an eligible photo ID can vote a provisional ballot and then go to the Office of Elections by noon on the Friday after election day, obtain a temporary photo ID, and have their provisional ballot counted.

Neighbors Helping Neighbors

Neighbors help each other. That’s what communities have always been about. Long-time Clifton resident Bob Gallagher is rallying his friends and peers to help his neighbor Elsa Armendaris.

Armendaris, a mother of seven, needs funds to repair the badly deteriorated driveway to her home, which is also a local day care center. To help out, Gallagher, who is a principal at Sun Design Remodeling, has organized a tour of three newly remodeled Clifton homes, each the handiwork of a different remodeler.

“The homes are all pretty spectacular in their own right,” Gallagher says. “We’ve found that homeowners really enjoy seeing what their neighbors are doing. But this is also about helping a local person in need; that’s the sense of community which Clifton has always exemplified.”

In addition to showcasing a home recently renovated by Sun Design Remodeling, the tour will feature recent work by Daniels Design and Remodeling and Kohlmark Group Architects and Builders, all active in Clifton and environs for years.

Tim Reed of Tibbs Paving will be donating the labor, equipment and trucking needed for the driveway re-paving.

A native of El Salvador, Armendaris lost her husband, David, to leukemia six years ago and, as the sole means of her family’s support, decided to set up her home as a day care center.

Since it was convenient to nearby Clifton Elementary, parents would leave their children with Armendaris before and after school. But when Clifton Elementary closed in 2010, the day care center lost more than half its students. Not long after that, the winding asphalt driveway leading to the house began to seriously deteriorate.

That’s when her friend, Christina Gallagher, whose children had attended the day care center, offered to ask her husband, Bob, for ideas.

“I just thought there must be a way that a community as old and close-knit as Clifton could help one of its own,” said Bob Gallagher, who grew up in Clifton where his father practiced medicine. “My company has learned a lot from doing our own home tours, so a coalition of remodelers already active in Clifton seems like a logical way to reach out to the community.”

The Family That Plays Together … Needs New Space

Innovative Great Falls solution with art studio meets needs of three generations.

By John Byrd

A home is a machine for living in,” architectural pioneer Eduard LeCorbusier said in the 1930s, by which he meant good residential design should meet current lifestyle requirements, yet retain enough flexibility to readily transition into a place that supports newly arising needs.

Design consultant Mindy Mitchell, concurs on some basic principles.

“You want a solution that fully responds to everyday needs,” Mitchell says. “But it’s also useful to consider how you might be re-using key spaces from time to time, or even a decade from now.”

This may be especially true in a “creative” household, Mitchell adds, where the goal is fostering an environment that organically responds to all sorts of overlapping projects.

Case in point: the recently re-invented lower level plan to the Great Falls home of Lesley and Tim Hackman, two long-term residents now actively involved in the community’s burgeoning art scene.

Looking around the sunny family play space, which will be featured in the upcoming remodeling home tour Oct. 17-19, it’s a little hard to imagine that last year the Hackmans were scarcely using the suite at all.

Recently retired, Tim was free from professional obligations. The couple’s two daughters were out of the house, raising families of their own. Like most empty-nesters, the Hackmans were idly wondering how to better use a spacious home designed for past needs.

“We had been talking about upgrading some rooms, but weren’t using the lower level for much more than laundry and storage,” Lesley recalls. “All the light in the entire suite originated from windows and doors on the rear [side of the house], so the interior rooms were too dark. Still, we hadn’t gotten too far into an actual plan.”

Then an unexpected turn brought latent remodeling considerations to the fore: last spring the entire lower level was flooded by three inches of water when a sump pump failed; it was a situation that could not be ignored.

“One way or another, we knew we were going to have to do something about it,” Lesley said.

A professional organizer as well as a space planner, Mitchell has been working with Sun Design Remodeling for close to a decade.

“I’m generally the point person and facto project manager,” Mitchell said. “My job is to help owners get a clear idea of what they’re looking for so that the design process is focused and on-track from start to finish.”

This is especially critical, Mitchell notes, when the makeover needs to satisfy a diverse agenda.

Lesley wanted functional studio space for her quilting and photography, but she had also decided to babysit two of her grandchildren three days a week, a commitment that would require work stations for arts and crafts projects as well as kitchenette suitable for the occasional cooking lesson.

They wanted a media center large enough for the extended family (both daughters live in the metro area), and places to prepare and share a meal with easy access to an adjacent outdoor patio and backyard barbecue.

On an entirely different note, the lower level still had to perform its duties as the family laundry room. And it should also provide quarters for the occasional sleep-over guest.

“It’s when an agenda becomes more specific that space planning really needs to be thoughtful and precise,” Mitchell says.

The existing full bath is enlarged and upgraded into something suitable for overnight guests while one wall of the studio now accommodates a handsome custom cabinet that conceals a comfortable Murphy bed. The redesigned “all purpose room” (laundry/kitchenette/dining table) now features a full-sized refrigerator, microwave and dishwasher.

Lesley Hackman says the makeover has proven to be a perfect solution in this newly active phase of her life.

“I can spend the morning or afternoon working on art projects and helping the grandchildren. Then take a hot bath. It’s a great environment,” she said. “I’m really glad we created it.”

Planting for Fall

Planning your autumn garden and yard.

By Marilyn Campbell

As the first few weeks of fall unfold, carrying with them the promise of rich and vibrant colors, many local residents are starting to plan their fall gardens, both ornamental and edible. Pruning and overall garden cleanup will make way for fall plants. In fact, this is the perfect time to clear away summer foliage and plant, horticulture gurus said.

“Because the ground is still warm and air is cool, there is less transplant shock for plants when you take them out of the container to plant them,” said Kelly Grimes of Good Earth Garden Market in Potomac, Md. “Now is a great time to put in a landscape.”

The first step is preparing the ground. “You have to amend the soil; that is mixing in compost and soil so the plants’ roots can grab a hold of the soil with compost,” said Grimes. “That really helps any planting.”

Katia Goffin of Katia Goffin Gardens in McLean, Va., likens planning a garden to putting together a puzzle. “Everything has to [look] like it belongs,” she said. “It’s about designing your bed line so it enhances your property, versus ‘I stuck this in my garden and doesn’t it look good?’

Take a few minutes and actually plan out your garden because no matter what you decide to plant for fall, an aesthetically appealing garden starts with an effective strategy. “It is getting a good plan together,” Goffin said. “It is a question of scale and putting it together right. You have to look at your plot of land and decide where you want plants to go and how you want it to look.”

best flowering plants. “Mums need full sunlight to open and come in obvious, bold fall colors,” said Grimes. “Pansies will take part sun, are a great color and will continue to bloom through spring.”

Yarrow, asters, sedums, Lenten roses, and coral bells are among the fall plants that Jonathan Storvick, natural resource manager at the Office of Sustainability at George Mason University in Fairfax, Va., recommends.

“Fall is a great time to plant larger-sized perennials and container shrubs,” said Storvick. “It also happens to be the time of year when nurseries are trying to get rid of a lot of their stock, so you can find some great deals.”

For example, said Joel Cook of Merrifield Garden Center, in Fairfax, Merrifield and Gainesville, Va., “Burning bushes have beautiful fall colors like orange and fire red. As far as trees, maples like Japanese maples, sugar maple or black gum maple have beautiful colors.”

Another eye-catching option is the yellow twig dogwood. Its “bright yellow branches and twig color ... are also fantastic for winter,” said Mark White of GardenWise in Arlington, Va.

Fireplaces Warm Outdoor Rooms

Tips for making your outdoor spaces comfy through the fall.

By Marilyn Campbell
The Connection

As the air turns crisp and we settle into fall, the time is ideal for creating a cozy setting, whether it’s elegant or rustic or modern. Many people have adapted part of their landscape as an outdoor room.

“Outdoor porches whether screened or just covered with a roof are great fall spaces,” said Susan Matus, a Potomac, Md.-based architect. “One can cozy them up with pillows and throws and outdoor lights, such as decorative twinkle lights or candles can create great ambiance.”

Local designers reveal their favorite accessories and ideas for outdoor rooms and screened porches to help welcome the new season with style.

An outdoor fireplace commands attention and can offer a warm place for reading, napping or chatting with friends, and makes it comfortable to sit outside on a chilly evening.

“I just built a stunning fireplace in a screened-in porch that transformed the space into a three-season room just in time for fall,” said Robert Kalmin of Skill Construction and Design, LLC in Fairfax, Va. “Indoor-outdoor rugs and seating in fall colors make the space great for entertaining.”

When it comes to outdoor fireplaces, however, there are a few caveats: “If it is a screened in porch, be careful of your ventilation. Whether you have a gas or wood-burning fireplace you have to have noncombustible material for the mantle and it needs to back discharge for smoke,” said Kalmin. He says such fireplaces can be added to an existing space in one-to-two weeks.

Accessories in warm, vibrant colors can help transform an outdoor room from summer to fall. “Adding some cozy throw blankets to outdoor sofas allows you to stay outside on chilly nights,” said Kerra Michele Huerta of Apartment Envy.

In fact, lighting can transform a screened porch or outdoor room. “To a screened porch, you can add a ceiling fan with a down light and an up-light,” said Kalmin. “The higher light can give you general lighting and the lower lights can create ambient lighting, and can be moved in different directions for setting a mood.”
