Kate's Place consists of six apartments for extremely low-income and formerly homeless families. And to the mothers and children who just moved in, the homes are more than a roof over their heads — they're a lifeline.

"From the bottom of my heart, I thank you," said Silvia Galindo. "I wish I had a camera in my heart because I don't want to forget every, single face who helped give me such a sweet home."

She was speaking Monday afternoon, Feb. 23, during a Welcome Home ceremony at the Katherine K. Hanley Shelter, across the courtyard from the new homes. They're off of Lee Highway in Fairfax, at the intersection of Meadow Estates Drive and Route 29, across from the Hampton Forest community.

A mother of two daughters, 15 and 6, Galindo particularly praised Shelter House, the nonprofit which runs the day-to-day operations at the Hanley Shelter and provides case management. "Because we have support from Shelter House, my children will have a future," she said. "This is very special — God bless every one of you."

Several Fairfax County supervisors attended the ceremony, as did other stakeholders in Kate's Place. Deputy County Executive Patricia Harrington said that, on March 31, 2008, the supervisors adopted a plan to end homelessness in the county within 10 years. "Kate's Place is one step toward that progress," she said. "But it requires a collective effort."

Board of Supervisors Chairman Sharon Bulova said she was proud to celebrate a homecoming for these families. "This is a wonderful demonstration of the county's commitment to ensuring safe homes for its residents,"

WFCCA Reverses Decades-Old Policy

The change paves the way for gas stations to sell alcohol.

BY BONNIE HOBBS
CENTRE VIEW

They say it never hurts to ask, and Raj Gupta asked. Now, thanks to his persistence — and a local land-use group's willingness to reconsider one of its most long-standing policies — gas stations in the Sully District will no longer be barred from selling alcoholic beverages.

Gupta owns the Centre Ridge Exxon station, and he initially just wanted approval to add hot dogs to the station's convenience store's offerings. Last August, he made his request to the West Fairfax County Citizens Association (WFCCA) Land-Use Committee, which said yes.

But when he tried to obtain a county permit to do so, he learned the filing fee was $10,000. So in September 2014, he returned to the WFCCA seeking permission to also sell beer and wine in the store. Otherwise, explained Boopendra Prakash of TPS, a land-development engineering firm representing the Centre Ridge Exxon, the station would lose money.

Since then, the WFCCA members have been grappling with one of its most strongly held tenets — and one which, for them, has also been a moral issue. For decades, they've believed that drivers should not be allowed to purchase alcohol and gas at the same place. They don't want motorists to easily be able to buy a cold beer and drive away drinking.

The Centre Ridge Exxon is at 6330 Multiplex Drive in Centreville, and Gupta's owned and run it since 2000. And over the years, a great deal has changed.

"In the 1980s, when 7-Elevens and gas stations couldn't sell certain food items, the proffer was written that they couldn't sell alcohol," said Prakash. "[Now, though], a 7-Eleven across the street can sell five coolers of beer and wine, and it's the same way for the Shoppers Food Warehouse, 200 feet away."

So the Exxon wants to convert three or four of its 10 coolers to be stocked with beer and wine for sale. "We have a quick-service food store," said Gupta. "Most of our customers are local and ask us why we don't sell beer and wine. It takes them 30 minutes to buy it at Shoppers. So this would give them the service they need and would also give us some more small revenue in these tough times."

The WFCCA umbrella group (not the Land-Use Committee) discussed the matter at its Jan. 19 quarterly meeting, and At-Large

Shedding Pounds and Keeping Them Off

Suggestions for maintaining a healthy weight.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
 CENTRE VIEW

For Toni Williams, effective weight loss and maintenance have been a struggle her entire adult life. Her introduction to unhealthy food came in college.

"Instead of the 'freshman five,' I did the freshman 20," she said. "I ate cheeseburgers and fried chicken every day."

Williams, now 60, identified here by a pseudonym, counts herself among the estimated 97 million Americans who the National Institutes of Health identifies as overweight or obese and at risk for health problems such as diabetes, high blood pressure and heart disease. Approximately 90 percent of people who have lost weight, including Williams, have regained weight after a weight loss.

"There are a lot of different ways to lose weight, and I know how to lose weight," said Williams. "The problem is keeping it off."

Williams is a patient at the Washington Center for Weight Management & Research, Inc., in Arlington, and says that through her work at the center, she has discovered her own personal formula for losing weight.

"Weight is a constant work in progress," she said. "There is no one way to do it. What works for some people won't work for others. You have to figure out what works for you."

VIEWING OBESITY as a medical condition is the first step to solving it, said Dr. Domenica M. Rubino, director of the Washington Center.

"Obesity is a serious and complex disease that affects each individual differently," she said. "It is significantly influenced by risk factors including genetic, environmental, economic, psychological and social determinants, as with most chronic diseases."

Rubino recommends a research-based, comprehensive, mind-body approach to weight loss and maintenance that includes medical, nutritional, behavioral and psychological factors, and includes physicians, dietitians and psychotherapists.

"I try to help my patients explore the triggers [such as sadness, anger, and anxiety] that lead them to turn to food as a way to cope," said Mougeh Yasai, a clinical psychologist at the Washington Center. "Mindfulness can help patients become more attuned to their feeling states, and also how to deal with these feelings when they come up. Once triggers are identified, we explore various coping skills that can be helpful during times of distress. The emphasis on mindful observation of eating behaviors is to practice the skill of observing with a nonjudgmental stance."

HEALTH CARE PROVIDERS at Weight Loss Services at Inova Fair Oaks Hospital in Fairfax, also assist patients in a weight loss program that includes a variety of bariatric (or weight loss) surgeries, generally reserved for those with a body mass index (BMI) of 40 or more.

"We also might use pharmacological methods to jump start weight loss," said Carmen Spencer, a registered nurse. She is the clinical program coordinator at the clinic.

"Medical weight loss is pretty much open to anyone with a BMI of 27 or higher," she said. "We offer a 12-week program that uses meal replacements."

"Maintaining weight can be difficult for several reasons," said Yasai. "There are physiologic signals of appetite, satiety and hunger that increase after we lose weight. These are normal responses after weight loss."

Some strategies are helpful in increasing one's chances of keeping excess weight at bay. "The environment is filled with opportunities to eat high-calorie foods and not move much," said Yasai. "So in addition to continuing the lifestyle changes that helped you lose weight, it is important to have strengthened coping skills for managing stress as well as being mindful of potential emotional triggers to eating."

Setting unrealistic goals, losing too much weight at one time and following fad diets can lead to rapid weight regain or failure to lose weight in the first place.

"There is no magic, no special potion or diet," said Rubino. "In fact, no one person or thing holds the key for the treatment of obesity."

Maintaining a healthy weight takes work and dedication. Adherence to healthy eating and physical activity are two of the most important aspects of keeping weight off. Williams builds both into her daily routine.

"I go to the gym three times a week at 6 a.m.," said Williams. "If I don't do it then, something will come up later during the day. I use a trainer because I find that it's a luxury that I can't afford not to have. My trainer keeps me motivated and from making the gym my favorite charity."

ROUNDUPS

Tour Animal Shelter, Heliport

The Sully District Police Station's Citizens Advisory Committee will visit the Fairfax County Animal Shelter and the heliport of the county Police Department's helicopter, Fairfax One. The public is invited to participate next Wednesday, March 11, from 7-9 p.m. for a behind-the-scenes tour of both facilities.

RSVP to PFC Tara Gerhard, no later than Monday, March 9, at Tara.Gerhard@fairfaxcounty.gov. Transportation to the sites will be provided from the Sully District Station, 4900 Stonecroft Blvd. in Chantilly. The bus will leave promptly at 7 p.m. and will return to the station when the tour is over.

Free Carseat Inspections

Certified technicians from the Sully District Police Station will perform free, child safety carseat inspections Thursday, March 12, from 5 - 8:30 p.m., at the station, 4900 Stonecroft Blvd. in Chantilly. No appointment is necessary. But residents should install the child safety seats themselves so technicians may properly inspect and adjust them, as needed.

Because of time constraints, only the first 35 vehicles arriving on each date will be inspected. That way, inspectors may have enough time to properly instruct the caregiver on the correct use of the child seat. (The inspection may be cancelled in the event of inclement weather). Call 703-814-7000, ext. 5140, to confirm dates and times.

she said. “And it’s an attractive addition to the community.”

Bulova said the apartments provide “comfortable, affordable and supportive housing to families who’ve experienced prolonged homelessness. And since they’re living next to the Hanley Shelter, they can obtain the services they need to be successful in their independence.”

“Partnerships have been incredibly important in getting these homes open, she continued. “The Re-development and Housing Authority and other county agencies, plus the nonprofit organizations including Shelter House have all played a part. And without HUD’s funding, we wouldn’t have this facility.”

Supervisor Pat Herrity (R-Springfield) said the apartments “will give once-homeless families a place to call their own. And these families will be able to get services such as job-search and after-school tutoring, without leaving their neighborhood.”

Day of Celebration: Homeless No More

ship block grants providing homes for low-income families.”

The Kate’s Place families began moving into their new homes on Feb. 20. Altogether, there are six mothers and 13 children.

Rodney Lusk, on the governing board of the Fairfax-Falls Church Partnership to Prevent and End Homelessness, called the new apartments amazing and a “positive step” toward eradicating homelessness.

“Today is a day of celebration,” he said. “I congratulate all the partners who’ve come forward to make this new housing possible. To the new residents, welcome home, and I wish you continued success in your future endeavors.”

“This collaboration of compassion is a remarkable thing,” said Robert Schwaninger, chairman of the Fairfax County Redevelopment and Housing Authority. “Without people committed to helping, we couldn’t have gotten it done.”

Speaking next was former Board of Supervisors Chairman Kate Hanley, in whose honor both the shelter and the homes are named. “This is incredibly exciting,” she said. She also praised former Springfield District Supervisor Elaine McConnell for doing “a yeoman’s job” on the shelter. Hanley thanked the advocates for bringing nights than I can remember, she’s wiped my tears and kept me strong.”

Turning toward Kariah, she said, “Thank you. This is for you and for all the children who need a home.” For quite a while, said Edmonds, “My pride kept me from asking for help. But when your child is homeless, you keep up the fight. Finally, on Oct. 6, 2014, I moved into the shelter; I knew a new door had opened. We now have a new beginning and a place to call home.”

“When you’re homeless, you feel like no one can hear you,” she continued. “So to others in this situation, I say, ‘Make your crackly voice a roar so you can be heard.’ Tonight, when I tuck my princess into her bed in her new home, I’ll know my voice was heard.”

the long-awaited, new residences to fruition and noted that Cornerstones is the shelter’s nonprofit property manager.

“This time of year, when it’s dangerously cold, people focus on the homeless,” she said. “But that focus blurs when the weather’s warmer. We’re keeping the focus on it all year ’round.”

Hanley said people often stop and tell her how wonderful the Hanley Shelter is and how they volunteer there. “And that’s amazing,” she said. “All I did was find the money. This is a wonderful example of a community that cares.”

But, said Shelter House Executive Director Joe Meyer, “Without Kate, we wouldn’t be in this room today — and neither would the six families who’ve already moved in. It’s permanent, supportive housing for people who wouldn’t be able to pay regular, market rent or sustain their homes on their own.”

After the shelter opened in August 2007, he said, curious and wary neighbors asked questions about it. “So we invited them in,” said Meyer. “And that October, their homeowners association asked the [shelter] children to come trick-or-treat in their neighborhood. And now, we’ve allowed six families to integrate back into the community so they can have the integrity we all deserve.”

With her 7-year-old daughter, Kariah, by her side, Kate’s Place resident Tyrea Edmonds thanked God, Fairfax County, Cornerstones and Shelter House for all their help. “This has been a long journey for me and my daughter,” she said. “On more

Facts and Details on Kate’s Place

Kate’s Place is new, permanent housing owned by the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors. It’s on the campus of the Katherine K. Hanley Family Shelter and will serve county families who’ve experienced chronic or frequent homelessness and are in need of supportive services.

All Kate’s Place families face multiple barriers to maintaining stability, including disabilities that impede their household from earning a sufficient income. Each family will benefit from services provided by the nearby shelter, including tutoring and job-search assistance.

There are four one-level and two townhouse-style apartments within two, separate, three-unit buildings. Two of the one-level units are fully accessible, two-bedroom apartments. The remaining four units are three-bedroom apartments.

The total cost to develop the six units was $2.1 million. The county Department of Housing and Community Development (HCD), on behalf of the Fairfax County Redevelopment and Housing Authority, constructed Kate’s Place in partnership with the county’s Department of Public Works and Environmental Services. The project was funded through the federal HOME Investment Partnership Program and the Fairfax County Housing Trust Fund.

Hammerhead Construction of Virginia began building the homes in October 2013 and finished this February. Architectural and related services for Kate’s Place were provided by Stanmyre+Noel Architects, and civil-engineering services were done by ADTEK Engineers.

The units will be managed under the Fairfax County Family Supportive Housing Program, a partnership of Fairfax County Human Services agencies, including the Community Services Board, Department of Family Services, Office to Prevent and End Homelessness and the Department of Administration for Human Services, plus nonprofit services providers including Shelter House, New Hope Housing and Cornerstones.

A case manager from Shelter House will provide direct services to the families of Kate’s Place, offering holistic and comprehensive case management services to all clients. This includes intake assessment, benefit assessment, goal setting, long-term care plan development, weekly case plan development, progress monitoring, individual money management, tenant education, advocacy and referrals. Cornerstones will provide property-management services including inspections, tenant orientation, maintenance coordination and rent collection.

OPINION

Good, Bad and Ugly

A look at recently ended session of the Virginia General Assembly.

The 2015 session of the Virginia General Assembly came to an end last week, and some of the biggest news was about what it did not do. By far the ugliest debacle rests in the Assembly's ongoing refusal to expand Medicaid to cover as many as 400,000 uninsured people in Virginia, even though it would come at no cost to Virginia (Federal government pays 100 percent for the next two years and 90 percent after that) and would be a massive boost to Virginia's economy. The local and state economy is suffering from the loss of federal spending in other areas, and it's just plain crazy and mean-spirited to deny medical care for people who can't afford it otherwise, and at the same time, turn away an economic stimulus equal to 20,000 or more jobs and a direct infusion of nearly $2 billion a year.

GOOD: The Assembly nixed a bill which "empowers the Director of the Department of Corrections to make and enter into contracts ... to compound the drugs necessary to carry out execution by lethal injection. ... Information relating to the identity of the persons or entities compounding such drugs, the identities of persons or entities engaged to manufacture or supply the materials used to compound the drug products, and the name of the materials or components used to compound drug products for use in an execution are confidential, exempt from the Freedom of Information Act, and not subject to discovery or introduction as evidence in a civil proceeding ..."

The House of Delegates nixed executing people with secret potions. Passed in the Senate, blocked in the House of Delegates. Be sure to thank those local legislators who voted against this craven proposal: Senators: Adam Ebbin, Barbara Favola, Janet Howell, Dave Marsden and Chap Petersen. Delegates: David Bulova, Eileen Filler-Corn, Charniele Herring, Patrick Hope, Mark Keam, Kay Kory, Rob Krupicka, Jim LeMunyon, Alfonso Lopez, Ken Plum, Tom Rust, Mark Sickles, Marcus Simon, Scott Surovell and Vivian Watts.

EDITORIAL

And ask these local legislators who voted to carry out executions with secret drugs and secret methods what they were thinking: Senators George Barker and Dick Saslaw. Delegates: Dave Albo and Tim Hugo.

No good comes from conducting the people's business in secret, all the more true when the business is brutal. Killing people is wrong, two wrongs don't make a right, killing people and keeping the brutal details secret is wrong.

BAD: State Sen. Barbara Favola's bill to extend foster care services and support, including foster care maintenance payments, to qualifying individuals age 18 to 21 years who were formerly in the custody of a local board of social services passed unanimously in Senate, and died in the House of Delegates. The money spent would have been matched by Federal dollars, and every dollar spent helping former foster children become independent, self-supporting adults saves a bundle in other costs down the line.

UGLY: "Ethics reform" put a $100 cap on each individual gift from lobbyists to members of the Assembly, with no enforcement mechanism, and no changes in campaign finance. Former Gov. Bob McDonnell and his wife were convicted of corruption for taking more than $170,000 worth of gifts and favors from Star Scientific and related individuals; this was the catalyst for the so-called reform. It is apparently fine, however, that Star Scientific also gave $108,000 to McDonnell's campaign. More than 40 other entities gave more, including Dominion ($383,720), Altria ($361,556), Smithfield Foods ($267,738), Walmart ($121,250), just as examples. (Source: vpap.org). No good comes from having our legislative body awash in this kind of cash. You can visit the Virginia Public Access Project at vpap.org and look up who has been giving how much to the people who represent you. It's fascinating.

Inova Announcement a Huge Win for Fairfax Economy

BY GERALD L. GORDON, Ph.D.

There has been a lot of talk in recent years about the need to diversify the Fairfax County and Washington-area economies. Sequestration served as a wake-up call that the county and region must not be overly dependent on federal spending any more than Pittsburgh in the '70s was overly reliant on steel and Seattle on Boeing.

The Feb. 9 announcement by Inova Health System that it will acquire the 117-acre Exxon Mobil headquarters in Merrifield and create the Inova Center for Personalized Health has the potential to redefine the Fairfax County and regional economy just as much as the life sciences altered the Pittsburgh economy and Microsoft and Amazon changed Seattle's business landscape.

The Fairfax County Economic Development Authority has worked tirelessly for more than 50 years to build economic security for the county by attracting and retaining thousands of companies here. These companies have created hundreds of thousands of good-paying jobs and built the commercial tax base that the Board of Supervisors uses to fund the high-quality services, for which Fairfax County is known around the nation, and has done so without making residents pay the full cost of those services.

Gerald Gordon

The FCEDA has made tremendous headway in diversifying the county's economic base. Just since 2007 the FCEDA has helped build these non-governmental sectors: automotive (with Volkswagen of America's North American headquarters), hospitality (Hilton Worldwide corporate headquarters), engineering and construction (Bechtel global services headquarters), satellite services (Intelsat's administrative headquarters) and software (Cvent's corporate headquarters).

However, the enormity of the Inova announcement is almost indescribable. The research, education and commercialization entities that will make up the Inova campus will make Fairfax County a primary hub for genomic research and the commercialization of ground-breaking discoveries in the burgeoning field of personalized or translational medicine. Inova intends to spend hundreds of millions of dollars to fit the Exxon Mobil building for lab, research and education space.

The 1.2 million square-foot building will attract funding that will in turn attract world-class researchers, who have the ability to do pioneering research that will lead to discoveries that could change the way we diagnose and treat individuals with illnesses such as cancer. Companies that can commercialize those discoveries – get them to medical professionals and patients – will grow close to the Inova campus in order to be near the source of the talent and work.

Inova wins by becoming a leader in another aspect of health care. Fairfax County wins with a larger and more diversified commercial tax base and an even better reputation as a business location. We all win with discoveries that improve the quality of life for millions.

When Mobil Corporation relocated its corporate headquarters to Fairfax County from New York in 1987, it in essence started the process of diversifying our economic base. In transferring its building to Inova, it furthers the process of strengthening the local economy for decades to come.

Gerald L. Gordon, Ph.D., is president and CEO of the Fairfax County Economic Development Authority.

WFCCA Reverses Its Decades-Old Policy

Planning Commissioner Jim Hart — a past WFCCA Land-Use Committee chairman — also weighed in.

“For many years, this committee has been concerned about the sale of alcohol at gas-station convenience stores,” he said. “But things have changed since then. The area’s a lot more built up and we’re the only land-use committee with this policy.”

“That’s not to say you can’t review this on a case-by-case basis,” continued Hart. “Or do you want to revisit the policy? Whatever you do, you need to be consistent.”

WFCCA’s Carol Hawn said there were at least 12 gas stations, over the years, that the committee denied permission to sell alcohol.

“We’re hindering businesses in our area from making revenue,” explained WFCCA’s Ted Troschiancki. “So I think we should shift our position and come up with the times.”

Besides, added WFCCA’s Steve Chulick, “In so many cases, people can just go next door [to a gas station] and buy alcohol.”

Prakash, who was at the January meeting, said the filing fee has now risen to “close to $17,000,” so he was waiting for the WFCCA’s decision before filing with the county. But he hoped it would go in the Exxon station’s favor so it could be competitive with the businesses around it.

The Land-Use Committee was slated to meet and finally vote on the issue Feb. 17. But due to bad weather and icy roads, the members didn’t meet in person. However, they did take action and voted via email.

“The long-standing policy was revised to allow sales of single servings of alcohol,” said Land-Use Committee Chairman Jim Katcham. “The vote was three in favor of policy change, two opposed.”

'Snowy-Day of Fun Sled'

London Towne Elementary School's second grade classes assembled a "Snowy-Day of Fun Sled" filled with books, games, toys, movies, crafts, mittens and more. The sled was created for the annual 2014-2015 PTA Silent Auction that raises money for the school. An anonymous donor had the winning bid and donated the sled to the Kathy Hanley Family Shelter in Fairfax on behalf of London Towne's Second Grade. The London Towne students pictured above represent the six classes that filled the sled and then were pleased to find out it was donated to children in need. In the photo are, front row: Carrie Chiara-Quispe, Laila Castro; middle row: Angye Ardon Garcia, Egan Le, Alexander Hwang, Michael Caputo, William Berglie; back row: Caitlyn An, Claire Tatar, Claire An, Kiara Baker, Gabriel Presidio, Christopher Kruse and Madison Woodard.

'LAX for a Cause' Set for March 14

Chantilly Youth Association (CYA) and Southwestern Youth Association (SYA) are again joining forces to host the Second Annual "LAX for a Cause: Purple vs. Red" lacrosse marathon. The eight-hour lacrosse event features dozens of lacrosse games and will be held March 14 at Centreville High School. The goal is to raise $20,000 to benefit the nation's wounded warriors through the Wounded Warrior Project. Last year, both CYA and SYA donated $10,000 each to support our nation's wounded warriors.

The lacrosse marathon will feature more than 20 teams – with players ages 5 and up – which will play at a different time slots throughout the day. Funds will be raised through both individual player and corporate sponsorships, as well as through concessions and T-shirt sales on the day of the event.

This year's event also includes speaker Jeremiah Pauley, an Army veteran representing The Wounded Warrior Project, as well as a color guard to honor the nation's armed service members. Pauley, who was injured by an IED in Iraq, will speak about his experience and what inspires him today to "carry on and be positive."

Bark and Call

Mobile pet grooming services.

Marzi Sharifi started HoPPooH in Fairfax, a mobile pet grooming service, in 2013. With her two vans and groomer, Sara, HoPPooH — which means little dog or dog in Persian — will come to the pet owner's door to groom and style man's best friend...or his cat.

HoPPooH's area of coverage is between 10 to 12 miles of its base. Sharifi said that her business provides convenience for her and for her clients. "I can choose my clients, make my own hours."

She has learned a lot since she first started, such as accepting clients that are not more than 75 pounds. She once had a German shepherd in the van that started "growling and barking" at her. "It was very dangerous for me," she said. But her confidence has grown. "I'm really good at grooming dogs, especially poodles."

Sharifi, a Persian-American, has a background in videography. It was this background that got her started in pet grooming. As a volunteer at the Animal Welfare League of Arlington, Sharifi created a video about one of its dogs, Gaston, an American Pit Bull Terrier mix, for Best in Shelter's first virtual dog show. The video won first prize and $50,000 for AWLA.

"I have always loved animals," she said. To learn more about HoPPooH, go to <http://www.hoppooH.com/>.

Pinball Wizard

Chantilly man wins state pinball championship.

BY KENNETH MOORE
CENTER VIEW

Kevin Stone took out a loan to buy the 15 pinball machines in his McLean basement, the site of this year's Virginia state pinball championship. Virginia was one of 33 states to take part in the simultaneous championships on Saturday, Feb. 7.

Stone's Harlem Globetrotters machine was built in 1979, others from Stern Pinball and Jersey Jack Pinball are contemporaries. One machine cost him $7,200, another cost him $500, he said. "It depends on the bells and whistles."

"I thought, 'I might as well. If I take out a loan now, I'll be able to enjoy them while I pay the loan back,'" said Stone, who is known as "Pinball Kevin."

More than 30,000 players are ranked and more than 2,400 events bounce around the globe annually, according to the International Flipper Pinball Association, which started tournament-tracking nine years ago.

"I'm still shaking. I've got adrenaline pumping," Pinball Kevin said, after losing the first game in the second round to Julie Schober of Great Falls. Schober sent Stone down the chute in the first round in 2014.

This year, Stone got his revenge. "Everyone wants to win," said Stone.

But Pinball Kevin, a Langley graduate, was more than a gracious host; he lost to Austin Mackert, this year's Virginia state champion in the final round of the four-round tournament.

By winning the Virginia trophy, Mackert, 32, of Chantilly, qualified for the National Championship in Las Vegas at the Pinball Hall of Fame on March 26. Mackert lost only two games in his four "best of seven" matches, meaning he won 16 times and lost only twice.

"He played great and deserved the win," said Stone.

THE PINBALL WIZARDS call the stray machines they see at various restaurants and bars as being "in the wild."

Mackert calls his sighting of an "Avatar" machine in Manassas when he was doing an errand a "stroke of luck."

"I threw a quarter in there," he said. Afterwards he found himself driving to Manassas just to play the Stern Pinball machine.

Winners

- 1st – Austin Mackert – Chantilly
- 2nd – Kevin Stone – McLean (host)
- 3rd – Dale Geiger – Central Virginia
- 4th – Steve Kapinos – Ashburn
- 6th – Joe Schober – Great Falls
(Defending VA state champ from 2013-14 season)
- 8th – Julie Schober – Great Falls (wife of Joe)
- 11th – Edan Grossman – Fairfax Station
- 14th – Daniel Cotter – Vienna
- 15th – Gilles Melanson – Sterling

Getting better was a simple economic payoff. "When I first played, I would spend $25 to $30 a month for three to five hours of play. Now, I can go in there with about five bucks and play the same amount of time."

Mackert had no idea there was competitive pinball before Pinball Kevin saw him playing and told him he had to come out and play. "You step in your first game and you're nervous, not in a zone, but by the end of the game you're locked in," said Mackert.

Mackert looked at tutorials about some of the machines he knew would be used at this year's tournament. "Pinball is about making good decisions," he said.

Pinball Kevin said he approaches everyone he sees playing pinball.

"It's a community of people, you always have a good time," said Stone.

GREAT FALLS couple Joe and Julie Schober have 22 machines at their home.

"We play a lot of pinball," said Julie Schober, the 2014 Virginia state runner-up.

"It's how I met my wife," said Joe Schober, the 2014 Virginia champion.

"We play aggressively against each other," he said, adding that he knew he would be happy with whomever won the final match last year.

Schober was hooked on pinball when he was a child; "if I behaved my mother would give me a quarter to play."

His parents gave him his first pinball machine, a machine made out of particle board, the next Christmas. "I played that thing until I literally made it collapse," he said.

When he started playing in a league he found through fspazone.org in College Park, he started getting better, Schober said. "Everybody is so serious about the competition. If it's something you love, you go deeper and deeper."

The two buttons have a multitude of physical repercussions, he said. "It's a game of milliseconds."

Sole-Searching

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

There's no denying the emotional fact that the CT Scan results I received and wrote about last week were a bit of a disappointment. Not a shock, mind you, because once yours truly was characterized as "terminal," back in late February 2009, all subsequent bets came off the table, almost literally; and expectations, such as they were explained to Team Lourie, likewise nearly ended up on the floor, figuratively speaking, meaning they were pretty low at that point. And ever since, my life has been about managing expectations and reacting to scan results and lab work and trying to live forward. This recurring assessment has dominated my life over these past six years.

So receiving results last week was, in and of itself, nothing new. Heck, I've received bad results before; I've even been hospitalized because of them. Obviously, I was not hospitalized this time. Nor will there be any changes to my treatment protocol, although we are advancing by one month my next CT Scan, as a precaution/prudent course of reaction to the mass which seems to be forming in my left lung. At this juncture however, premature as it may or may not be, nothing really has changed. Life goes on.

Nevertheless, I can't help thinking that change has indeed occurred. Unfortunately, the process by which one finds out about such change: scans, sort of happens in arrears. That's not to say that now is definitely too late, but neither is it too early. It's more that this kind of timeline makes for worrisome days and sleepless nights. All of which, if you believe the anecdotal evidence, are counter-productive to surviving cancer. It serves no purpose, other than as an entirely reasonable and predictable response to an incredibly difficult set of circumstances, to focus on such a negative. Moreover, attempting to control something likely beyond one's control similarly stretches one's emotional strings. Finding a balance between what is and what isn't quite yet, or what might become of what hasn't been confirmed, is a constant struggle.

Do I care and/or worry now and beat the rush, or do I do neither, and care/worry later? If this growth isn't quite something, do I presume its nothing? Or do I presume it's something even though it may still be nothing? Do I go around in circles or do I attempt to live long and prosper and damn any torpedoes that interfere with my life?

Such is life as a "terminal" cancer patient (mine anyway); upside down and all around, and never the twain shall meet, "except on the twack," as my father always joked. And though I am regularly supported – and encouraged, by friends, family and many of you returning readers, this surviving-cancer business is most often a solitary endeavor. Living with my own thoughts, internally, this cancer-afflicted life, regardless of what I hear, see or read externally, is my responsibility and somehow I must navigate the landscape; a landscape I knew very little about previously and one fraught with danger, both mentally and physically.

Kenny Lourie is an Advertising Representative for The Potomac Almanac & The Connection Newspapers.

HAS YOUR CORN FARM LOST MONEY?

Despite China's refusal to approve Syngenta's GMO seed, Syngenta continued to sell its seed to U.S. corn farmers. When China banned U.S. corn imports, the price of corn fell dramatically, and corn farmers across the country lost BILLIONS of dollars.

We represent individual farmers.

Our team represented over 2000 individual farmers in the Rice GMO claim. We opposed the class action and secured more for the farmers we represented. Our group of lawyers will continue meeting with farmers with respect to each farmer's individual Syngenta claim.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Westfield Boys' Basketball Survives Upset Bid

The Conference 5 champion Westfield boys' basketball team entered the 6A North region tournament riding a 20-game win streak.

But the Bulldogs, considered one of the favorites to compete for a region title, almost didn't make it out of the first round.

Westfield survived an upset bid by West Springfield, beating the Spartans 70-69 on Feb. 27 in the opening round of the regional tournament at Westfield High School. The following evening, the Bulldogs defeated Osbourn 63-59 at WHS.

The Bulldogs were scheduled to face Fairfax on Tuesday in the region semifinals, after The Connection's deadline. The winner would advance to the region championship game and earn a state tournament berth.

The region championship game is scheduled for 8 p.m. on Friday at Robinson Secondary School.

Chantilly Boys Upset Champion SoCo

The Chantilly boys' basketball team entered the 6A North region tournament as the No. 4 seed from Conference 5 and quickly dispatched a champion.

The Chargers defeated South County, the No. 1 seed from Conference 7, 51-47 on Feb. 27 in the opening round of the tournament. The following evening, Chantilly fell short, ending its season with a 51-47 loss to Fairfax in the quarterfinals.

Chantilly finished the season with a 12-13 record.

Nova Elite Tryouts

The Nova Elite boys' 17U basketball team will hold tryouts at 9 p.m. on Sunday, March 8 at nZone, located at 14550 Lee Rd. in

Chantilly Girls Advance To Region Semifinals

The Chantilly girls' basketball team advanced to the 6A North region semifinals with tournament victories over T.C. Williams (60-45, Feb. 27) and Fairfax (48-41, Feb. 28).

Chantilly, the No. 2 seed from Conference 5, was scheduled to face Madison in the semifinals on Tuesday, after The Connection's deadline. Madison is the No. 1 seed from Conference 6.

The winner would earn a state berth and compete for the region title. The region championship game is scheduled for 6 p.m. on Friday at Robinson Secondary School.

CAMPS, CLASSES & WORKSHOPS

2015 Summer Programs.

Registration is now open for the following Fairfax County Public Schools summer camps. Students should register for programs based on the grade they are in during the current 2014-15 school year. Visit www.fcps.edu/is/summer/index.shtml for more.

❖ Tech Adventure Camp will be held July 20-31 at Robinson Secondary School from 8:30 a.m.-2 p.m. for students currently in grades 5-7. This camp allows students to explore careers and technology by rotating through eight areas including graphic design, automotive technology, culinary arts, television production, robotics, and computer technology.

❖ STEM Camp. Held in two sessions at Robinson Secondary School: July 6-10 and July 13-17 both from 8:30 a.m.-2 p.m., daily. STEM (science, technology, engineering, and math) Camp is a one-week camp for students currently in grades 3-5 to explore careers and technology as they rotate through activities focused on science.

❖ Elementary Institute for the Arts. Held July 13-24 at Robinson Secondary School from 8:30 a.m.-2 p.m. daily, Monday through Friday. Designed for students currently in grades 3-5, E-IFTA offers participants a total immersion in the arts as they rotate through classes in dance, drama, music, and visual art.

❖ Institute for the Arts. Held July 6-30 at Robinson Secondary School from 8:30 a.m.-2 p.m. daily, Monday through Friday. Designed for students currently in grades 6-11, IFTA allows students to create, perform, experiment, and explore—all in various music, dance, visual art, and theatre venues.

❖ Robinson Extended Day Adult and Community Education Enrichment. Programs will be held July 6-31 at Robinson Secondary School and will begin after Tech Adventure Camp, STEM Camp, IFTA and E-IFTA end. These programs are for students currently in grades 1-11 and will provide a continuum of activities for students who want additional programs and activities. Programs will include the Foreign Language Experience Program (FLEX), Culinary Adventure Camp, Language Immersion Camp, Creative Writing, Computer Graphics, and Chess.

❖ Credit Recovery Academy. This program will be held at Fairfax High School for students seeking credit for high school level courses. Students will be able to take one course during each of the two sessions from June 29-July 16 and July 20-Aug. 4.

❖ Online Campus. For credit recovery, acceleration, and enrichment for middle school and high school students. Health, Physical Education, and Geometry Honors run June 29-Aug. 4; all other courses run July 6-Aug. 4.

❖ SOL Remediation. For FCPS high school students who passed an SOL course but did not pass the SOL test. Held at Fairfax High School.

❖ SOL Test Only. This program is for FCPS seniors who plan to graduate by Aug. 28 and passed an SOL course but failed the SOL test.

❖ ESOL Numeracy and Literacy. The ESOL Numeracy and Literacy class provides currently enrolled FCPS high school ELP Level 1 students with the opportunity to develop their numeracy and literacy skills. Students will meet face-to-face with their teachers daily. This is a noncredit class. Held at Fairfax High School July 6-24.

❖ Online ESOL - Through this three-week class, students will continue developing their academic and reading and writing skills in an online discussion with an ESOL teacher. This is a noncredit class. Held July 6-24.

❖ Extended School Year Learning Communities. Services for identified students with disabilities in accordance with their individualized education programs (IEPs). ❖ Thomas Jefferson High School for Science and Technology (TJHSST) Summer Technology Institute. The Institute will be held July 13-Aug. 7 at Woodson High School. Students currently in grades 7 and 8 will be introduced to science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM) through week-long sessions that allow them to explore a STEM topic of interest.

❖ Thomas Jefferson High School for Science and Technology (TJHSST) Academic Summer School. This program will be held July 6-Aug. 6 at Woodson High School. Current TJHSST students and incoming freshmen choose from a variety of courses for academic credit.
