County Limits Dog Tethering

New law limits the amount of time a dog can be tied outside to one hour a day.

"Man's best friend deserves legal protection," said Peggy Marshall, who adopted her best friend, Bianca.

Bianca endured a life on a chain for years until stray dogs attacked her.

"She tried to defend herself but couldn't run away and was badly bitten," said Marshall. Marshall's testimony at the Nov. 17 public hearing of the Board of Supervisors covered the intent of the board's proposed amendment regarding cruelty to animals, including dog tethering.

Bianca was then dropped off at an animal shelter to be euthanized. An animal care assistant intervened, got Bianca a week of medical attention and from there a rescue group intervened.

"Happily, Bianca's story ends with an unchained life and Boar's Head roast beef every day," said Marshall.

Tethering a dog for more than one cumulative hour during any 24-hour period, unless the dog is under the direct supervision and control of its owner or custodian, is now prohibited in Fairfax County. The Board of Supervisors voted Tuesday, Nov. 17, to amend the Fairfax County Code to incorporate the Code of Virginia's cruelty to animals provisions along with the tethering provision.

MORE THAN 20 people testified for more than two hours at a public hearing at the Nov. 17 meeting of the Board of Supervisors, and not all were in favor of the new regulations.

The Board of Supervisors met some resistance when proposing limits to dog tethering, the amount of time animals could be left unsupervised on a leash or a line in the backyard.

"When [Lee District] Supervisor [Jeff] McKay and I introduced this in late spring after working with some of the shelter staff," said Sully District Supervisor Michael Frey, "we never contemplated the idea that this would limit the amount of time you could walk your dog on a leash because that was tethering" or that if a groomer had a leash on a dog for more than an hour that would violate the ordinance.

Some people worried that dog groomers could be in violation of the new provision if they needed to tie a long-haired dog for more than an hour.

"That was an interpretation that never occurred to us, but I've talked with some folks and I've worked with our staff and the county attorney's office to propose an amendment that I think takes care of those concerns," he said.

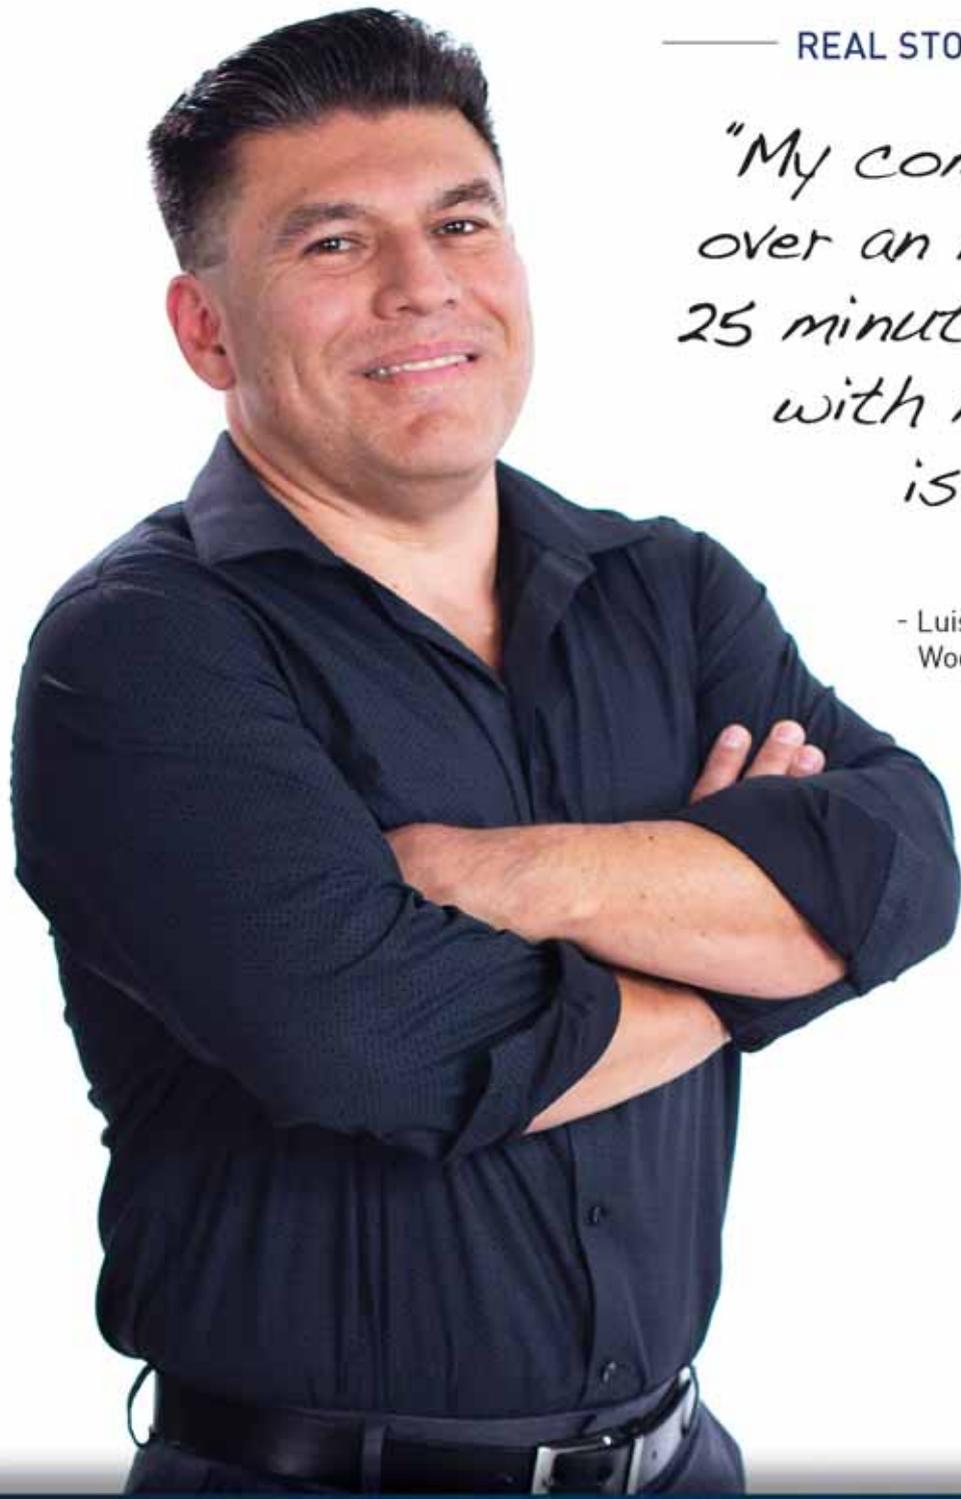

Frey started the public hearing by saying the board would add qualifying language to the proposal that would allow a dog to be tethered for longer than an

Free Carseat Inspections

Certified technicians from the Sully District Police Station will perform free, child safety carseat inspections Thursday, Dec. 10, from 5-8:30 p.m., at the station, 4900 Stonecroft Blvd. in Chantilly. No appointment is necessary. But residents should install the child safety seats themselves so technicians may properly inspect and adjust them, as needed. Because of time constraints, only the first 35 vehicles arriving on each date will be inspected. That way, inspectors may have enough time to properly instruct the caregiver on the correct use of the child seat. Call 703-814-7000, ext. 5140, to confirm dates and times.

Sully District Council Meeting

The Sully District Council of Citizens Associations and its Land-Use Committee will meet Wednesday, Dec. 16, at 7 p.m., in the Sully District Governmental Center, 4900 Stonecroft Blvd. in Chantilly. Call Jeff Parnes, evenings, at 703-904-0131. Because of Christmas, this meeting is on the third Wednesday of the month.

Fairfax County Fire and Rescue Department Chief Richard Bowers or Assistant Fire Chief John Caussin will discuss countywide trends and Sully statistics. Also on tap is a presentation on a proposed maintenance building at the Lakeside Apartments at 14301 Summer Tree Road in Centreville. The Applicant wants to replace an existing, covered carport with a two-story 1,152-square foot maintenance facility.

Seeking Donations for Victims

The Fairfax County Police Department Victim Services Section is kicking off its Second Annual Holiday Gift Card Drive in an effort to provide holiday help for children of domestic and sexual violence.

Many of these children and families are facing the reality of not celebrating the holidays this year due to the financial burden that comes with being a victim of crime.

The Victim Services Section is seeking donations of gift cards for the families they have worked with this past year, the opportunity to bring a smile to the faces of their children — those who have witnessed or been a victim of domestic or sexual violence themselves. Gift cards can be dropped off or mailed to the Victim Services Section main office, located at 10600 Page Ave., Fairfax, VA 22030.

Our Neighbor's Child brightens Christmas for local families.

BY BONNIE HOBBS
CENTRE VIEW

The volunteers of Our Neighbor's Child are working as hard as Santa's elves to bring holiday joy to local families in need. But with so many people in need, they can't do it all without the community's help.

Now in its 24th year, ONC provides new toys and clothes to financially struggling families. And it has 771 families — including 1,863 children — on its list. The largest number of children needing gifts are ages 4-13, but presents are needed overall for children ranging in age from infants to 17.

"It's wonderful to be part of something that helps all kinds of people with many kinds of need," said ONC Founding Director Kelly Lavin. "Some need basic, material things and we work to provide them. Others need to be involved in helping others, and we're glad we can provide opportunities that will bring them their own joy."

This Saturday, Dec. 5, from 9 a.m.-noon, Stone Middle School's National Junior Honor Society will hold a Panther Drop-Off gift collection. People may drop off donations of brand-new toys, books, games and clothing at the school, 5500 Sully Park Drive in Centreville.

Area residents may also help by volunteering on packaging and/or delivery day. "Having enough packaging volunteers on Thursday, Dec. 10, is really critical," said Lavin. "Then on Sunday, Dec. 13, from 1-4 p.m. is delivery day, and we need as many drivers as possible to bring the gifts to the recipient families."

In addition, ONC will deliver approximately 20,000 homemade cookies along with the gifts, so lots of baking help is needed. Bring cookies in disposable containers, Dec. 10, from noon-4 p.m., to the Virginia Run Community Center, 15355 Wetherburn Court, off Route 29 and Pleasant Valley Road, in Centreville. And to volunteer for any of these needs, go to www.ourneighborschild.org.

"Each family gets a mixed assortment of two dozen cookies," said Lavin. "Many of the recipients are single parents with no time to bake. And on delivery day, when the families see us carrying cookies, along with their gift bags, it helps identify us as Our Neighbor's Child."

ONC has more than 400 volunteers, all working on different parts of the process, and each one is valuable. For example, said Lavin, "We really appreciate the many hours the school counselors devote to these families in need of holiday assistance. We depend on them for accurate address and gift wishes, and they follow up when address changes occur — something quite common for struggling families."

Besides that, many ONC volunteers return year after year. "We have delivery-day volunteers who participated as preschoolers and are now bringing their babies," said Lavin. "It's become part of their holiday tradition. Westfield High football players are in their 14th year of unloading our trucks, and Chantilly High lacrosse players help us on cleanup day. Westfield and Centreville High SGA members bake cookies for us; and this year, in addition to collecting gift wrap for the recipient families, Chantilly High will join the cookie-baking, too."

Still, ONC needs the community to help contribute the gifts, and giving trees adorned with ornaments containing children's Christmas wishes are in various churches and businesses. "We received some grants in the past for books," said Lavin. "But this year, we don't have them. So I'd love it if some group or company that really values starting kids off right with books would partner with us. If they'd collect monetary donations, we can use them to purchase these books."

Clothing is also critical. "Many families can't afford their own homes, so they're living with another family," said Lavin. "So some of these addresses have as many as 10 children living in the same home. And they're not asking for toys for Christmas — they're asking for things like warm blankets, pajamas and socks. Studying in an environment with little heat can be a challenge, so we try to help any way we can." She said some teens have requested grooming items, makeup, nail polish, athletic socks, backpacks, watches and small overnight bags. "Because of their cost, even twin sheets and pillowcases are needed," said Lavin. "And we've gotten requests for a huge amount of diapers — especially sizes 4 and 5 — and wipes." And, of course, people may make monetary donations at ONC's Web site or mail them to: Our Neighbor's Child, P.O. Box 276, Centreville, VA 20120, Attn: Karen Moore, Treasurer. That way, ONC volunteers may shop for the wished-for items left on the giving trees.

"We're overjoyed to be back for our 24th year," said Lavin. "But it's only possible to bring holiday gifts to local people in need with help from the community."

Environmental Quality of Life Advisory Council issues 512-page vision for county environmental policy.

BY KEN MOORE

Read EQAC Report Online

<http://www.fairfaxcounty.gov/dpz/eqac/report2015/>

Flooding will rise in concern in Fairfax County as a result of climate change, warned Stella Koch, chairperson of the county's Environmental Quality Advisory Council.

"We want the county to develop policies on development and redevelopment in areas that are vulnerable to sea rise," she said. "We've all seen increased flooding in parts of the county and that will only increase over time. We ask the county to take a focused look."

Preparing for flooding could involve levees, berms and changes in land use, according to the report. Fairfax County would be impacted in a number of locations, but especially in the Belle Haven/New Alexandria area of Mount Vernon, along the tidal Potomac River.

Providence Supervisor Linda Smyth wants the county to find a solution to recycling glass, which is not currently being recycled, according to the report.

"People really appreciate recycling and glass is something you can recycle forever," said Smyth. "This is causing our whole recycling ability not to work the way we want it to."

According to the report: "The majority of recyclables collected in Fairfax County are delivered to third-party material processors that sort, purify and package target recyclables for resale. As a result, some collected recyclables do not ultimately go to market, due to contamination or the absence of a willing buyer. For example, such is currently the case for glass, for which none of the processors used by county collectors are actually recycling this material; it is currently considered a discard at area recycling plants and is shipped elsewhere for disposal."

"Has our solid waste ever looked into a separate program for recycling of glass?" asked Smyth.

"We have this discussion frequently because it is not simple," said Koch. "We're working on it."

THESE ARE JUST TWO issues raised in the 512-page annual report on the environment, which the Board of Supervisors approved at its Nov. 17 meeting before Thanksgiving.

The nine chapters of EQAC's annual report on the environment present the county's vision on topics ranging from deer management, light pollution, stormwater, recycling and more.

"I always use your report, your annual report as a model and an example of our being able to track our progress on our environmental agenda and making sure things don't fall off our radar screen," said Chairman Sharon Bulova. She said having environmental vision is a way "to make sure we stay on top of the recommendations and the things we have committed to do," said Bulova.

Koch recommended increased funding in watershed and environmental improvement programs, as well as funding two positions, an ecologist in the park authority and a wildlife management specialist.

"Most of those projects are cost effective, and they actually save the county money over time," said Koch.

"Funding for the additional wildlife specialist would be really needed," she said.

She asked the Board "to continue to support the environmental projects that you have established. These programs are important if we are to maintain the high quality of life we have in Fairfax County and the high standards we have set for ourselves. We note that for Fairfax County residents, quality of life is not just about good schools and jobs but also about having a clean and healthy environment in which to live and recreate."

Supervisor Jeff McKay asked that EQAC keep monitoring advancing technology and methods to be used to control the white-tailed deer population.

"Obviously controlling the deer population is critical to the natural environment," said McKay.

SUPERVISOR Cathy Hudgins asked if the county could find the proper balance between light pollution and creating pedestrian friendly environments especially in transit areas.

"We've made some progress in terms of addressing light pollution and recognizing that the urban settings that we have require a given amount of light for pedestrians," said Hudgins. "Our desire is to be a non-polluting environment but one that is pedestrian friendly."

"We'll be happy to get back to you," said Koch. "We like our homework assignments, because they help us focus."

Quiet Riot: 'C'mon Feel the Noise'

County passes new noise ordinance, will revisit effectiveness in 18 months.

BY KEN MOORE
CENTRE VIEW

The Board of Supervisors is at peace with the county's new Noise Ordinance. "Believe it or not, that passes," said Board of Supervisors Chairman Sharon Bulova.

On the Nov. 17 meeting of the Board of Supervisors, the Board adopted a new Noise Ordinance. The new ordinance becomes effective on Feb. 17, 2016.

"There were times during this process that I thought we would never get to this point. Let me tell you, there are competing needs, issues all over the place as to what is too noisy, what is not noisy, about what is needed and what is not," she said.

In June, the Board had deferred action on the proposed changes to the county's noise ordinance in June until Nov. 17, 2015.

"It was a very productive evolution through five cycles of revisions," said Supervisor John Foust. "We negotiated this thing for so long."

"We're not totally where I want to be, but this is a significantly improved product and something I can vote for," he said.

Supervisor Michael Frey spearheaded the Board's efforts and thanked county staff. "They've managed to grasp the things we were trying to codify," said Frey.

The Board delayed the effective date of implementation of the new ordinance to February in order to provide time for staff training, to update County websites, and to assist staff in understanding the new regulations, according to county documents.

The Board will revisit the impact of the noise ordinance and its effectiveness in 18 months to determine what might need to be tweaked for the long run.

"I'm not happy with everything that is in here, but at this point I'm prepared to support it, but appreciate that we can revisit it," said Supervisor Pat Herry.

Supervisor Jeff McKay says the outcome makes the ordinance much easier to enforce.

"This turned into something entirely different from where it started. I also agree that this wasn't intended to address every noise issue," said McKay, "but at the end of the day it makes for better enforcement and makes it a lot more clear which made the noise ordinance difficult to enforce."

OVERALL GOALS of the proposed Noise Ordinance is to recognize that there will always be certain levels of noise that occur in the normal course of daily living; to allow certain levels of daytime noise so that people can live, work and play during the day; and to minimize noise at night so residents have an appropriate quiet environment in their homes at night.

More than 30 speakers testified at a public hearing last May on the noise ordinance.

"When babies cannot sleep, when the elderly cannot rest, when a voice teacher cannot instruct, when a family cannot share a meal together on their patio, when a homeowner has to close her windows and move to another part of the house just to make a telephone call, when a cancer patient cannot recuperate and rest in her yard because music is amplified in the neighborhood at intrusive levels, then we know something is not right with life in Fairfax County," said Joyce Harris of McLean.

Sheila Casey, of Reston, said she can hear mowers on a nearby golf course before dawn with maintenance crews sometimes using headlights on lawnmowers before 5 a.m. "All I know is when those lawn mowers are running, I can turn on my air conditioning, I can put in my earplugs, and I still hear the noise," she said.

Other speakers included: Greg Budnik who discussed helicopter noise from training runs at Fort Belvoir; Mark Grove of Fairfax whose wife was recuperating from cancer treatment and had to contend with music from a supermarket across the street that had permits to play music until 11 p.m.; Keith Elgin, worship director of Vine Church in Dunn Loring, who wants to create events such as outdoor movies and concerts during the summer months; to neighbors in Reston who say they can not get relief from noise of nearby dog parks; to those who take their dogs to dog parks to spare neighbors from noise.

AMPLIFIED MUSIC from loudspeakers at schools during athletic practices and pre-game festivities took center stage.

Fairfax County Public Schools will replace loudspeakers at McLean High School with regulators to ensure that they are properly calibrated.

The school system is finalizing regulatory guidelines so athletic directors know exactly what needs to be done to keep harmony with neighborhoods in proximity with the schools.

"That's a big deal, and let's make sure when that agreement is formally adopted that we keep it with our noise ordinance," said Bulova.

Other topics of major concern addressed dog parks, trash pickups from commercial shopping centers next to neighborhoods, and lawn maintenance.

Fairfax and other Virginia governments had to rewrite their noise ordinance as a result of a Virginia Supreme Court decision overturning the ordinance in Virginia Beach, according to county documents.

'Webelos-in-the-Woods'

Lots of hands on learning took place recently when Boy Scouts of Troop 30 in Centreville held its 12th annual "Webelos-in-the-Woods" event on Saturday, Nov. 14, on the wooded property of Centreville Presbyterian Church. This event provides local Webelos Cub Scouts who are looking for Boy Scout troops to join in February and March of next year an opportunity to learn more about Boy Scouting and Troop 30.

Twenty-four Webelos Scouts from local Packs 127 (Centreville Elementary), 448 (Deer Park Elementary), 1459 (Poplar Tree Elementary), 1858 (Willow Springs Elementary), 1862 (Cub Run Elementary), and 2011 (Virginia Run Elementary) came out to learn and enjoy a day outdoors.

These Webelos Scouts participated in six skill stations that included: cooking on a camp stove (pancakes), fire building and starting, survival bracelet construction, rope making, knot tying, and crossing a 50-foot rope bridge built by the Boy Scouts.

The afternoon event showcased for the Webelos Scouts and their parents the Troop 30 Boy Scouts' ability to plan and execute a five-hour program of hands-on skill stations that highlight what Boy Scouts learn and how they pass those skills on to younger Scouts.

Everyone at the event enjoyed a meal prepared by the Troop 30 Scouts consisting of beef stew made from scratch, salad, and three types of cobbler. It was also a learning experience for the Troop 30 Scouts who met the challenge of cooking for more than 60 people.

Crossing a rope bridge was one of the activities in the "Webelos-in-the-Woods" event on Nov. 14.

In addition to the homemade supper, many of the Webelos Scouts stayed until after dark and participated in an old fashioned campfire that included skits, songs, and Scout camaraderie.

Troop 30 is open to all Webelos Scouts who are transitioning to Boy Scouts next year, as well as any boys between the ages of 11 and 17 who may have no prior Scouting experience.

Troop 30 Scouts attend the schools of the Westfield High School, Centreville High School, and Chantilly High School pyramids, or are home-schooled. Troop 30 has been helping shape boys into Eagle Scouts and provide lessons in character and self-sufficiency since 1999.

Fixing I-66 Politics is getting in the way of long-term solutions.

BY STEWART SCHWARTZ
COALITION FOR SMARTER GROWTH

We all know I-66 is a mess. But politics have made it difficult to have an objective discussion about the causes and potential solutions. Not only did the recent election include dramatic T.V. ads about tolls, the first bill proposed for the coming General Assembly session would ban tolls inside the Beltway. Its sponsor favors widening all the way to the Roosevelt Bridge in D.C. instead. To some that seems intuitive, but will it actually solve the problem?

At its most basic we have too many cars trying to use limited road space during peak hours. The traditional approach has been to widen highways – again and again, but has meant significant impacts on our homes, neighbors, parks, and our health. And “if you built it we will come” — new highway lanes in metropolitan areas can fill up again in as few as five years. In the particular case of I-66, where would all of the additional cars go when they hit Constitution Avenue in D.C. or exit onto local roads in Arlington? In contrast to the $40 million for toll infrastructure, widening of I-66 could cost hundreds of millions of dollars and lead to years of construction-related traffic delays.

The Governor’s proposal for variable tolling, carpools, and transit will move twice as many people through the corridor as today, with far greater reliability and a minimum guaranteed speed of 45 mph. And, unlike today, single-occupant vehicles will be able to use the highway in the peak direction for the first time, albeit by paying a variable toll. No one who is currently using the highway for free today (HOV-2 and above) will have to pay anything when the plan is implemented in 2017.

The public will also retain ownership of the revenues, allowing funding for transit to carry even more people.

Outside the Beltway, the state proposes privately-operated HOT (high-occupancy toll) lanes like those on I-95 and the Beltway. Unlike the two prior projects, I-66 would include funding for more commuter express buses. But the new lane capacity may well lead to still more growth 30 miles beyond D.C. and yet more traffic in the future.

Under both Republican and Democratic administrations, Virginia failed to evaluate the longer-lasting benefits of a transit-first approach combining Metro, Virginia Railway Express, and commuter express buses, with better land use and fixes to bottlenecks like the Route 28/I-66 interchange. Providing more homes closer to jobs, and creating the compact, walkable, mixed-use and transit-accessible neighborhoods that are so much in demand today will reduce the amount we have to drive.

We have to think more carefully about how we handle growth. Do we keep expanding highways, destroying our neighborhoods and quality of life in the process? Or do we address where we build and how we design our communities, in such a way that we can drive less and for shorter distances, and have access to more options like Metro, VRE and express buses? This is the conversation we need to have.

COMMENTARY

Standing Up for the Safety Net

BY PIPER PHILLIPS CASWELL

Everyone may know someone like Brian, a child who struggles at school, has emotional outbursts, and is constantly visiting the office and facing detention. It’s children like Brian and their families—whose lives are spiraling—that members of the Virginia Association of Independent Specialized Education Facilities serve—including PHILLIPS Special Education Day Schools.

We are part of the educational system many people don’t see or know about. Programs such as ours provide a custom education for those who have significant learning and emotional challenges and for whom school has often been a place of repeated failure and frustration. As partners to the public schools systems and families, we step in to give a child another chance at education and life success.

With the elections past us, new and returning members of the state legislature are preparing for the 2016 legislative session. As they do, we wanted to make a plug for the safety net. It’s important that kids—especially vulnerable ones like Brian—don’t get lost in the shuffle. We often work with youth who are part of the foster care system. It can be a difficult journey for a child, especially as they are emancipated from the system. Some select to do so before their 21st birthdays—choosing to forgo services. However, if they change their minds, it is difficult for them to opt back into services that can help them succeed. That’s why we hope legislators will help this fragile population regain access to services if they have a change of heart.

Changes that provide funding for comparable education services for students approved for residential services are also critical to meeting the needs of youth who have emotional, behavioral and other special challenges. Currently there is no mechanism for children placed in residential care to have any of their educational costs paid. That puts more children and families at risk.

Another way we can help these at risk children is to make it easier for them to get services. Too often children and their families are denied critical services due to burdensome, confusing and time-consuming assessment and qualification criteria. Virginia’s serving agencies must be facilitators for families to access services, not barriers.

Families we meet are often frazzled by the challenges they face in getting appropriate education and services for their children. For those of limited means, the process and costs of getting help can seem insurmountable. That’s why expanding Medicaid up to 133 percent of the poverty level will remove another obstacle to low-income families getting help.

Having a strong safety net is critical to ensuring youth with special challenges grow, learn and succeed. But the net is only good if it can catch kids as they are falling. Our legislators can make it stronger, protecting and propelling youth forward.

Piper Phillips Caswell is CEO, PHILLIPS Programs for Children and Families.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Board Promotes Right to Vote

To the Editor:

The League of Women Voters of the Fairfax Area (LWVFA) commends the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors for its 2016 Legislative Program that includes specific requests in support of qualified Virginians’ right to vote.

The Legislative Program asks for “no-excuse” absentee voting and extended polling hours; legislation to find an appropriate balance between “maintaining integrity of elections” without interfering with the right to vote; examining effects of voter ID law before enacting any future voter ID laws. In addition, ...“reactions at the state and federal levels to the recent Supreme Court decision, striking down Section IV of the Voting Rights Act which eliminated the requirement that changes to Virginia’s election laws be ‘pre-cleared,’ should be closely monitored.

Additionally, the Legislative Program also requests greater state financial support for election administration.”

The LWVFA also commends the Board of Supervisors for its foresight in recently purchasing new voting machines and in training election staff to use them before the 2016 Presidential election.

The LWVFA will continue to lobby for the introduction and passage of bills that would increase voter participation in elections and would protect eligible Virginians’ constitutional right to vote.

Lane Closures This Saturday

Drivers can expect lane closures at Braddock Road and Pleasant Valley Road from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 5, according to the Virginia Department of Transportation. Crews will be doing pipe work and grading.

This work is in addition to regular weekday closures Mondays through Thursdays, 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., and Fridays, 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Motorists should expect delays and are advised to use alternate routes.

Construction began in late April to replace the existing four-way stop at the intersection with a one-lane roundabout in western Fairfax, to improve operations and enhance safety. The $5.8 million project is being administered in cooperation with Fairfax County and is expected to be complete in Spring 2016.

Business Goes Tobacco Free

Virginia Tire & Auto (www.vatire.com), the Fairfax-based full-service automotive maintenance provider, became smoke-free at its 12 Northern Virginia locations on Nov. 19. The business is located locally at 14611 Lee Highway, Centreville.

Virginia Tire & Auto chose to launch its smoke-free initiative to coordinate with the American Cancer Society's Great American Smokeout event.

Under the Virginia Tire & Auto Tobacco Free Campus Plan, all smoking, chewing, and use of e-cigarettes/pipes and other tobacco products are prohibited on any property owned, operated or managed by Virginia Tire.

To further encourage and support a smoke-free workplace, Virginia Tire & Auto offers a credit of $1,800 per year to associates enrolled in the company health plan who also abstain from tobacco use. Virginia Tire & Auto also has ceased tobacco sales at all of its gas stations.

Carfax To Expand

Carfax will invest $5 million to expand its headquarters in Centreville, creating 120 new jobs.

The company also will invest $10.8 million to upgrade its data center operation in nearby Loudoun County.

"Carfax is a great example of a company that is diversifying the Fairfax County economic base as it grows," said Gerald L. Gordon, Ph.D., president and CEO of the Fairfax County Economic Development Authority (FCEDA). "This is a leading firm in the automotive sector that is taking full advantage of the excellent workforce we have, and I am delighted to see that the company is expanding its data center capabilities in the Commonwealth as well as expanding its headquarters here."

Carfax provides information that helps people shop, buy, own and sell used cars. The company maintains a database comprising more than 15 billion vehicle history records from 92,000 sources worldwide and handles more than 2.7 million requests for vehicle history information every day.

"Fairfax County is a special place that has been home to Carfax for more than 20 years," said Carfax President Dick Raines. "With ready access to the I-66 corridor, our corporate headquarters in Centreville has proven a desirable location for our staff, the majority of whom call the county home."

We've maintained a diverse workforce, with myriad career opportunities in sales, marketing, account management, business development, technology, product management, IT, finance, and legal. Our staff consistently votes us a best place to work and a big part of that success is made possible by our residence in Fairfax County."

The FCEDA worked with the Virginia Economic Development Partnership to secure the headquarters expansion for Virginia. Gov. Terry McAuliffe approved a $150,000 grant from the Commonwealth Opportunity Fund to assist Fairfax County with the project. Funding and services to support the company's employee training activities will be provided through the Virginia Jobs Investment Program.

SCHOOLS

'Recycling Is the Power'

Team AMP promotes recycling.

The First Lego League (FLL) Team AMP of Poplar Tree Elementary School is a group of eight students full of ideas about recycling. The name AMP is derived from the first letters of their first names. Letter "A" is the first letter of Advait, Arnav, Austin, Alton and Aneesh. Letter "M" is from the first letter of Mallina and Matthew ... and letter "P" is the first letter of Praneeth. Also, they believe that recycling is the power and power (electricity) is measured in AMPs. That is why the name Team AMP.

As part of the FLL activity, these fourth graders from Poplar Tree ES have started researching about the plastic recycling issue and based on their research, they believe that people in America don't recycle plastic enough and that poses a major environmental issue and results in ecosystem imbalance.

The students decided the solution to this problem is to educate people and persuade them to recycle plastic more. Motivated by the encouragement they got from the principals of Poplar Tree Elementary school, Team AMP has set out to reach to as many people as possible to explain the benefits of plastic recycling. More information about team AMP's research and their solution can be found at:

<https://www.youtube.com/channel/UC5fau5pXacXdNnZb04SYv6w>

<https://m.facebook.com/FLL-Team-AMP-1475960279379682/>

As part of the research, they have visited the Fairfax County Recycling plant and the American Recycling center in Manassas. Thanks to staff at these recycling plants, the students learned about the plastic recycling process. Then, they started researching about plastic and problems caused by excessive usage of plastic. Here is some information they learned about plastic, its usage, and benefits of recycling:

- ❖ Nearly 90 percent of the waste in the oceans is plastic.

- ❖ About 80 percent of marine trash comes from land, swept by wind or washed by rain off highways and city streets, down streams and rivers, and out to sea.

- ❖ The Great Pacific Garbage Patch is exactly what it sounds like: a giant floating patch of trash off the coast of California. It is twice the size of Texas. It appears that there are about six large garbage patches in the oceans.

- ❖ About one million seabirds and 100,000 sea mammals are killed annually because of garbage in the ocean.

- ❖ The United States is the world's leading consumer of bottled water: Americans buy 28 billion bottles of water annually, and 70 to 80 percent of those bottles end up in landfills. Each year Americans throw away enough of the material to circle the earth four times.

- ❖ For every 1 ton of plastic recycling, about 7 yards of landfill space is saved. By recycling, people can also help save 80 percent of the energy that's typically used when making new plastic bottles, containers and other items instead of recycling.

- ❖ Recycling in Northern Virginia remains at about 35 percent.

- ❖ Recycled plastics are used to make items such as clothes, carpet, containers, bottles etc.

After their research, they then surveyed about 40 people in Chantilly area about plastic recycling and found that more than 70 percent of people do not know enough about plastic recycling. After brainstorming sessions under the guidance of their coach, these children came to the conclusion that educating people is the best possible solution.

As part of the community outreach, team AMP is visiting schools, libraries, retailers in the

Take a Journey of Imagination

in Eddie's inventions.

Then Eddie and Frosty attend an international toy convention in New York City to sell Eddie's ideas. And as the tale unfolds, the audience will see whether Frosty will learn a lesson or will totally commercialize Christmas.

The cast of 36 has been rehearsing since August, and director and choreographer Raynor van der Merwe says everything's "going wonderfully. The dancers are working amazingly hard and have some incredibly quick costume changes which have to be rehearsed just like the dance numbers."

Set designer Tabitha Dees will transport the audience to Santa's workshop. "It's 24 feet high and 40 feet wide," said van der Merwe. "It's a beautiful, glorious set with staircases and balconies. Scenes will also take place inside the convention at a hotel with views of the New York City skyline. There'll be soaring, 16-foot-high windows, plus stairs and revolving doors. It's gorgeous and elegant."

She said this show "takes young and old on a journey of imagination. New York City is transformed into a magical place, and we get to see these North Pole characters in it. And this being our 20th anniversary, we've hand-selected some iconic dance numbers that we're bringing back for this show. It's fast paced, with storyline and dances connecting really well, so it'll be an exciting two hours that'll put people in the holiday spirit."

In her ninth year with Encore, Centreville High junior Jenna Frisby has been dancing since age 3. "I'm a girly girl, so it fills that part of me," she said. "And my mom and grandma danced, too. I play the elf teacher, trying to keep the elves in order and teaching 'Christmastology.' And I also dance in about 14 numbers."

The snow finale is her favorite because she changes her costume five times and does a special ballet on pointe. And, added Frisby, "I like the white tutu, leotard and tiara I wear for it." She said the audience will love the "relatable characters, and the story about school, plus the scenery and costumes are always very professional and fun. We work about 25 hours/week and then do 12 shows, and it's really nice to see it all come together."

Chantilly High junior Claire Griese is in her 11th Encore show and loves "being onstage and performing — and doing the Christmas show is my favorite part ever. I play Melinda, a mad scientist at the convention in New York. She's terrified of public speaking, has a nerdy voice and big glasses and speaks in a monotone. It's fun to act that way and make people laugh."

Griese especially likes the "Rockettes" number best. "It's a new number this year with new costumes and choreography with a crisp, more professional style," she said. "And I think every dancer's dream is to be a Rockette." Since the story involves an elf school, there are more child actors this year, so "the kids in the audience will relate to them," said Griese. "And the set and music will transport them and everyone to the North Pole."

Portraying Eddie is a Herndon Middle eighth-grader Henry Metcalf. "Eddie's an elf with brilliant ideas for Christmas-toy production; but at first, no one listens to him,"

Alia Artieda performs the rag dolls dance number.

Henry started dancing with Encore last year and enjoys it. "It's a way to channel my energy," he said. "If I'm stressed out, I can just let it all out and dance really hard." As for the show, he said audiences will like the bright costumes, sets and "all the work everyone's put into it."

Mariana Artieda, who's 17 and homeschooled, has danced with Encore since age 4. "I like having my own style, performing for people and making them happy," she said. "I'm in almost every dance number; 'Reindeer' is my favorite. We wear fishnets, brown leotards, cute little jackets and antlers. And it's the number I can put the most facial expressions into."

Artieda said audiences will enjoy seeing a Broadway-type show here in Virginia. And, she added, "The sets are colorful and imaginative and the dances are full of Christmas characters."

Both homeschooled and attending NOVA, Sara Avery has been in Encore's performing company six years. "Encore's helped me manage my time and work smart," she said. "I can keep focused and positive, even when tired."

In this show, she dances, sings and acts in 15 numbers. "I especially like 'Rag Dolls' because we each get to be characters — our own, fun toy — wearing plaid dresses and pigtails," said Avery. "Overall, the show's upbeat, entertaining and funny and will make people excited for Christmas."

hour if "the dog is under the direct supervision and control of its owner or custodian."

"That will take care of some of the concerns that were addressed," Frey said.

Capt. John Naylor, commander of the Animal Control Division, said tethering can deprive dogs of their ability for survival necessities, such as water and food. Limited to a life on a chain regularly can make dogs aggressive as well as potentially cause strangulation, he said. They can be at risk for hypothermia and heat stress, which can lead to severe health problems.

But others raised concerns about the meaning of "direct supervision and control."

"I've been a dog owner my entire life," said Springfield District Supervisor Pat Herrity, who asked that the proposal be deferred for more consideration. He raised the example of taking his dog with him when he plays rugby, with the dog tethered in sight, but for more than an hour for the game. County staff replied that the scenario would not be allowed, and that the dog should be directly supervised by someone during the game. Alice Harrington, legislative liaison of the Virginia Federation of Dog Clubs and Breeders, spoke in opposition.

"This bill is written and assumes all tethering is bad, and that is not true," she said.

"There is no link [in this proposal] between tethering of a dog and the condition of the dog. Anyone who tethers a dog for 61 minutes can be charged with animal cruelty," even if there is no harm to the dog.

Allison Volpert, who serves on the county animal services advisory council, participates with two of her dogs in agility classes at Frying Pan Park. She regularly leaves one dog tethered for somewhat more than an hour, with a cooling pad and water in summer, while she participates with her other dog in class. But with the new provision she will no longer be able to do so.

SHE URGED the supervisors to delay the vote and to work with a more diverse group of animal lovers to make recommendations.

Arlington County animal control officer Jennifer Toussaint said Arlington County uses its tethering law and enforcement to educate homeowners how to be more effective dog owners.

Holly Hazard of the Humane Society of the United States testified in favor of the limits on tethering.

"Experts agree that tethering is not conducive to the well being of dogs," she said, and is "inhumane."

"Most citizens don't want to be bad pet owners, they need guidance, and if control officers can intervene, she said, they can eliminate tethering from becoming a punitive measure.

"Citizens need guidance," she said.

"The ordinance fulfills our commitment to treat animals with dignity and compassion," testified Timothy Parmly. "It's a good ordinance," he said. "Chaining a dog is cruel."

Fines and penalties for violating the tethering provision, range from a fine of $500 for a first violation to being punishable by fine of up to $2,500 and/or penalty of up to one year in jail for a third violation within the same year.

The Westfield football team traveled to Burke on Nov. 28 and defeated Lake Braddock 31-7 in the 6A North region semifinals. The Bulldogs secured a spot in the region championship game and will face South County at 2 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 5 in Lorton.

Westfield and Lake Braddock each entered Saturday's semifinal with 11-1 records. Each team's loss came to South County, which defeated Robinson in the other semifinal matchup to advance. Prior to the kickoff, Westfield honored graduate Conor Bouveron, who died earlier in the week. Bouveron was the 2014 No. 1 in kicker in the state and a Washington Post All-Met selection in football. Bouveron also played lacrosse and soccer and held The Boy Scouts of America highest rank of Eagle Scout.

Westfield started Rehman Johnson at quarterback and shifted Tyler Scanlon, who was named Conference 5 Offensive Player of the Year while playing quarterback during the regular season, to receiver. The move paid off early as Johnson connected with Scanlon for a 20-yard touchdown with 8:24 remaining in the first quarter. Brian Delaney's PAT gave Westfield an early 7-0 lead.

Lake Braddock, after starting at its 28-yard line, wasted no time countering. With 6:24 to go in the first quarter, Bruins running back Lamont Atkins ran in from 2 yards out, and after a Nicholas Bruhn PAT the score was deadlocked at 7.

On the next possession and four unsuccessful offensive plays, the Bulldogs were forced to punt. Lake Braddock, starting from its 27-yard line would move the ball down the field. On third down Kyle Edwards dropped back to pass and Westfield's Kevin Petrillo intercepted Edwards' pass and Westfield would take over with 1:38 to go in the first.

In the second quarter, Scanlon was inserted briefly at quarterback, where he and Westfield marched down the field with a mix of passes and runs. Then, on second down, Johnson again was back at quarterback and hit Scanlon for a 19-yard score with 10 minutes to go in the quarter. Delaney's extra pointy made it 14-7 Westfield. With 5:59 to go in the quarter, Delaney kicked a 41-yard field goal to put Westfield up 17-7 at halftime.

In the third quarter, Westfield's Terrell Monticue rushed in for a 1-yard score with 7:21 on the clock and Westfield was now up 24-7. Later in the fourth, Westfield's Johnson connected once again with Scanlon for the pair's third touchdown reception of the game, Westfield was now up 31-7.

Westfield intercepted four passes on the afternoon, including two by linebacker

Kevin Petrillo. Linebacker Billy Pickett and safety Joe Caron each had one.

"Our game plan was to provide pressure and force [Lake Braddock quarterback Kyle Edwards] to throw the ball before he was ready," Westfield assistant coach Rob Everett wrote in an email. "In addition, we disguised our coverages and where we were coming from to not allow them to get into a rhythm. We are excited about another chance at South County and are fortunate to be healthy and still playing."

Lake Braddock ends its season with an 11-2 record. Westfield will play at South County (13-0) in the 6A North final. The winner of that game will play either Oscar Smith (12-0) or Thomas Dale (9-4) in the VHSL state championship game, which will be played at Scott Stadium at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville on Dec. 12.

Scanlon Signs with Boston University

Westfield senior Tyler Scanlon signed a National Letter of Intent to play basketball for Boston University. Scanlon chose BU from 16 Division I offers including William and Mary, George Mason, Hofstra, Delaware, Princeton, American, Bucknell, Lehigh, Miami of Ohio and Bowling Green.

As a junior Scanlon, was named All-Met by The Washington Post, and earned first-team honors for Conference 5, the 6A North region and state of Virginia. He was the conference Player of the Year, and led Westfield to its first-ever appearance in the state finals in Richmond. Scanlon is ranked 20th in the ESPN top recruits state rankings.

Scanlon is a dual-sport athlete. As a wide receiver last season for the Westfield football team, he was named all-conference, all-region and all-state. As a quarterback this season, he was named conference Offensive Player of the Year.

Merry and Fit

Support groups help members maintain fitness during the season of indulgence.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
CENTRE VIEW

Just after 7:30 on a recent Sunday morning, the steady beat of Cold Play's "Viva la Vida" pulsed through the warm, sleepy air. In the back of the dim room, lit only by a lavender florescent strobe, were four women perched on stationary exercise bikes. At the command of the instructor, they stood up on the pedals, leaned in to the space in front of them and started to climb a virtual hill.

"If these classes and our workouts weren't fun it'd be hard to get motivated, especially this early in the morning," said Jennifer Henry, one of the women.

The women, all friends, are taking an early morning spin class in an effort to achieve a common goal: to stay in shape and fend off weight gain during the holidays. They've formed what they refer to as a holiday fitness team. During the days between Thanksgiving and New Years Day, the average American will pack on at least an extra pound that they won't shed, according to the New England Journal of Medicine.

So seeking out like-minded people and forming a support group with the goal of staying motivated, disciplined and accountable when it comes to health and fitness is an effective weapon in the war on holiday bulge. The group concept is a fitness trend that becomes more useful during the season of indulgence, say experts.

"Working out in groups offers camaraderie and accountability," said Paul Raker, YMCA Alexandria, Virginia, which offered a "Find Your 150" program aimed at encouraging healthy eating and at least 150 minutes of cardio exercise each week. "What you'll find is that people are more likely to show up [for exercise] when they have a friend or small community as opposed to the person who tries to do it on their own."

Henry says her group has created a schedule that, in addition to their Sunday morning spin class, will include a once-weekly power walk at 8 o'clock in the evening, a weekly standing appointment with a trainer and an early morning bike ride. While they say that it is unlikely that each woman will make all of the sessions during the entire holiday season, they hope that having a road map will keep them on track. "If we didn't have any sort of plan, our group would totally fall by the wayside," she said. "We're making it as convenient for ourselves as possible to make sure we stick with it."

"Before developing a schedule, there needs to be an acceptance by group members that the season will likely have an impact on one's diet and ability to exercise," says Bethesda, Maryland-based Kate Heller, a certified personal trainer and CrossFit trainer.

"Even if you find yourself missing a Zumba class or with less time to spend at the gym, it's still important to make exercise a priority," she said. "If you are over scheduled and can't get in a full workout, set aside time to at least do something to break a sweat and get your heart rate up."

Heller suggests maintaining a schedule by setting a calendar or smartphone reminder as you would for a doctor's appointment. Planning early morning workouts, like those of Henry's group, can head off scheduling conflicts.

"No one will have an office holiday party or meeting scheduled for 5 a.m.," said Lauren Blumenthal, an Arlington-based wellness coach. "Even a short cardio routine that gets your heart rate up and boosts your metabolism can help you feel healthier during the rest of the day."

Meeting a group of friends to plow through a Crossfit workout DVD or having pool of buddies to source when looking for healthful recipes that will hold up against calorie-laden holiday fare is another benefit of group fitness. "We found that when we offered nutrition seminars and then had a potluck dinner where all of the group members prepared and brought a healthy dish, it was a great way to benefit from shared knowledge," said Raker.

When an evening holiday party is on your calendar and the temptation of heavy chocolate Yule logs and rum-spiked eggnog lurk in the subconscious, meal skipping to conserve calories should not be part of the health plan, says Sarah Leonard, an Oakton-based dietitian.

"You'll be ravenous by the evening and ready to eat everything in sight," she said. "If you know you'll be in a situation where you're tempted to eat rich and unhealthy food, eat small, vitamin-packed bites throughout the day. Try half of an avocado with a tomato or celery with a teaspoon of peanut butter. These are vitamin-packed and have good fat, so they're filling."

The group should acknowledge that the holiday season will be filled with merriment and temptations to indulge, and it's ok to yield to those desires with caution, says Blumenthal. "The goal of a fitness group shouldn't be to lose 10 pounds before the New Year. That's too restrictive and unrealistic and could backfire," she said. "Focus on not gaining any weight and on maintaining any fitness achievements you've acquired this year, like increased endurance."

"Working out in groups offers camaraderie and accountability."

Slippery Hope

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

As much as I want to believe that there will be no adverse cancer/health consequences to my recent decision to extend my chemotherapy infusion from three weeks to four, the truth is: no one knows, really, and it's that unknown more than the known that really scares me. And by "known," I suppose I mean experience, as in the last nearly seven years of chemotherapy every three weeks (save for a year or so when I was not infusing but instead taking two Tarceva pills per day). There's something to be said for routine – at least in my mind, anyway. But routine might not be the best methodology for treating cancer. In fact, in my experience, it's the cancer that dictates the terms and conditions, not the patient or the patient's preference for routine.

It's not as if the cancer is in control, but it's certainly calling the shots. And as much as being proactive is an intelligent strategy to fend off the evil spirits, the fact of the what's-the-matter in the cancer-prevention/cancer-treatment world is that we're mostly reacting. As soon as my scans indicate tumor growth or movement – or fluid increase – changes, or not, in protocols are suggested; and with my/the patient's approval, off we go into the wild blue yonder of doing something different than we had most recently been accustomed to, and not being at all sure what will happen because of it. And again, the presumptive solution is not continuing treatment just because you've become "accustomed" to its side effects; the reality is, one's prospects hang in the balance, and since change is not simply for the heck of it, but rather for the necessity of it, the guarantee/expectation that continued success lies ahead is likely the exception.

As much as I'd like to continue to be the exception that disproves the rule, last week's relief and anticipation about extending my infusion interval has morphed into a fear of the unknown and of living with the associated anxiety, as well as of the consequences of not maintaining my previous three-week interval and in turn not leaving well enough alone. Even my oncologist had doubts. A few months ago, I asked for a similar extension and he thought we should not change anything as we had "the cancer on the run." But the dialogue has continued and with a recent "stable" PET scan, I asked once again. This time, he agreed (I didn't say acquiesced). Hopefully, this a decision/change with which I can live.

Aside from the fear and anxiety I mentioned, there's another emotion to consider: quality of life. Whenever change has occurred, this has been part of Team Lourie's conversation. Moreover, my quality of life has been important to my oncologist/his recommendation of my treatment as well. I've written previously about how disappointing a cancer diagnosis/terminal prognosis is and how it creates all sorts of problems: emotional, spiritual and physical. Finding a way to navigate through this "mindfield" is a 24/7 challenge. As such, any change in treatment which could possibly enhance and improve the quality of my life – or not, has been a major part of any treatment discussion/decision we've made. Who knows ultimately whether changing my infusion schedule will matter? What matters is if I feel I have a better quality of life because of it; and for "terminal" patients, quality is often more important than quantity.
