Centreville High sophomore Valerie Nguyen founded the Wildcats vs. Cancer club at her school to help others. But for her, the battle against this disease is also personal.

"I'm the sister of a sibling battling cancer and I was inspired by a one-week, residential camp I attended for brothers and sisters of cancer patients," she said. "I was a counselor-in-training there, working with other siblings like me. And I realized that, no matter the age, we all faced the same struggles daily. So I wanted to give back to other families in the same situation."

The result was Wildcats vs. Cancer, which club president Nguyen started with her best friend, junior Shannon Lyons, the vice president. It began in October 2015 and now has 42 members.

"At the same time Valerie's sibling was diagnosed, I had a friend battling cancer," said Lyons. "So I scheduled and participated in Pajama Day for him. Kids come to school in pajamas on a Friday and each donates $1 or more for childhood-

Proffers in Danger?

State seeks to rein in county's power.

BY KEN MOORE

Richmond caught the attention of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors this week specifically with House Bill 770 (Gilbert) and Senate B 549 (Obenshain), bills Sharon Bulova says will place "significant restrictions" on development, specifically citing "unreasonable proffers."

The Board of Supervisors drafted an emergency letter during its board meeting Feb. 2 to the Fairfax County delegation to the General Assembly opposing the two bills.

"Please oppose HB 770/SB 549, or seek amendments to safeguard Fairfax County's proffer authority," according to the letter.

"Virtually all development in the county is infill development. In these types of cases, proffers are critical in meeting infrastructure and compatibility needs of surrounding areas. If enacted, these bills may require us to rewrite entire sections of our Comprehensive Plan and Zoning Ordinance," wrote Sharon Bulova, chairman of the board.

The board detailed the way the county works with developers to balance the impact of new development with "added demand for county services and public facilities that result from that development."

"We do that through the proffer system, which provides an opportunity for developers to work with the county to address community concerns related to the increased density of such development," according to the Board of Supervisors. "In Fairfax County, our collaboration with our partners in the development community has led to successful, innovative plans such as the redesign of Tysons, construction of the Mosaic District, and the revitalization of Springfield."

The board approved drafting the letter during its regularly scheduled meeting on Feb. 2.

The House of Delegates passed the bill later that day, 68-27. Local delegates voting in favor of the bill restricting local proffer authority included Dave Albo (R-42), Eileen Filler-Corn (D-41), Charniele Herring (D-46), Patrick Hope (D-47), Tim Hugo (R-40), Paul Krizek (D-44), Mark Levine (D-45), Ken Plum (D-36) and Vivian Watts (D-39).

Local delegates who voted against the bill included Jennifer Boysko (D-86), David Bulova (D-37), Mark Keam (D-35), Kaye Kory (D-38), Jim LeMunyon (R-67), Alfonso Lopez (D-49), Kathleen Murphy (D-34), Mark Sickles (D-43), and Marcus Simon (D-53).

Lobbying continued on the Senate version of the bill but it was expected to pass in the Senate on Tuesday, Feb. 9. The Senate version would exempt development around current or planned Metro stations.

Simon said he voted against the bill because it wasn't ready. "Fairfax uses proffer system as it currently exists to be creative in developing areas like Tysons and the Mosaic District," he said.

"We have to communicate how bad this bill is," said Dranesville Supervisor John Foust. "It flies in the face of everything we are trying to do for the economic success of Fairfax County."

ROUNDUPS

WFCWC Hosts CPR Demonstration

The GFWC Western Fairfax County Woman's Club (WFCWC) will host a CPR demonstration at the Cale Community Center, 4615 Stringfellow Road, at 7 p.m., Feb. 16, presented by Rebecca P. Kelly, Captain II, EMS supervisor, with the Fairfax County Fire and Rescue Department. Captain Kelly, a paramedic for 23 years and a CPR instructor for 24 years, will discuss the science of "compressions only" CPR.

This method focuses on saving a life by doing only compressions when those offering assistance are not comfortable doing mouth to mouth ventilations. Kelly will demonstrate both conventional CPR and compressions only CPR. She will also discuss the importance of calling 911 and of using an Automated External Defibrillator if one is available. Guests are welcome and admission is free. For more information, visit www.wfcwc.org or call Mary Jane at 703-378-4250.

Free Carseat Inspections

Certified technicians from the Sully District Police Station will perform free, child safety carseat inspections Thursday, Feb. 18, from 5-8:30 p.m., at the station, 4900 Stonecroft Blvd. in Chantilly. No appointment is necessary. But residents should install the child safety seats themselves so technicians may properly inspect and adjust them, as needed.

Because of time constraints, only the first 35 vehicles arriving on each date will be inspected. That way, inspectors may have enough time to properly instruct the caregiver on the correct use of the child seat. Call 703-814-7000, ext. 5140, to confirm dates and times.

Garza's 2016 Listening Tours

Fairfax County Public Schools Superintendent Karen K. Garza will hold five listening tours in 2016, and invites students, parents, employees, and community members to participate. The local session will be held at 6:30 p.m., Monday, Feb. 29 at Centreville High School.

Garza, accompanied by the regional assistant superintendents, will provide an update on the budget, Strategic Plan, classroom initiatives, and other happenings in FCPS and listen to ideas, comments, and questions from the audience. Those planning to attend are asked to register in advance online at www.surveymonkey.com/r/2016ListeningTour6YZ7PCY and indicate if an interpreter is needed.

Moving Equipment Is Sought

The Centreville Labor Resource Center is in need of moving equipment to add to its tool supplies. Requested items are back braces, lift belts, sliders and straps that are used for moving jobs.

This equipment can be checked out by workers and brought back when they complete jobs. It will ensure that they're able to complete moving jobs more safely. In addition, the CLRC is seeking Spanish-speaking people to fill a number of volunteer positions. Contact Molly Maddra-Santiago at director@centrevillelrc.org.

Food Donations for WFCM

Western Fairfax Christian Ministries' food pantry needs donations of 1-2 pound bags of rice, canned fruit (all types), canned pastas, canned meats (tuna, ham, chicken), cold and hot cereals, spaghetti and sauces, peanut butter, canned vegetables (including spinach, collar greens, beets) and cooking oil.

Toiletries needed, which WFCM clients cannot purchase with food stamps, include facial tissues, toothpaste, shampoo and solid deodorant.

Bring all items to WFCM'S food pantry, weekdays, 9 a.m.-1:30 p.m., at 13888 Metrotech Drive, near Papa John's Pizza and Kumon Learning Center, in Chantilly's Sully Place Shopping Center. A volunteer stocker/bagger is needed Wednesdays, 4-6 p.m. Contact Annette Bosley at 703-988-9656, ext. 110, or abosley@wfcmv.org.

'What's Changed and What Has Not'

BY BONNIE HOBBS

A volatile courtroom drama in 1930s Alabama comes to life in Westfield High's production of the Harper Lee classic, "To Kill a Mockingbird."

The curtain rises Friday-Saturday, Feb. 19-20, at 7:30 p.m., and Sunday, Feb. 21, at 2 p.m. Seating is reserved. Tickets are $12 at the door and $10 via www.westfieldtheatreboosters.com and with a student ID.

"This show takes the audience back to one of the most pivotal times in American history," said Director Susie Pike. "It tells the story of Scout and Jem Finch and their journey to figure out who people really are. When their attorney father, Atticus, defends a black man accused of raping a white girl, they struggle to see the best in other people. At the same time, they're busy trying to get the mysterious Boo Radley to come out of his house."

Senior Zachary Szmerekovsky portrays Atticus Finch. "He's a gentle, reserved, wise man, passionate about his family and justice," said Szmerekovsky. "He's moral, stands up for the truth and strives to teach his children the importance of courage, empathy and honesty. He's the moral center of the town of Maycomb and the townspeople look up to him. Atticus also values education and teaches his children his beliefs and values."

Playing such a strong and moral man, said Szmerekovsky, "I focus on my core beliefs of justice and morality to help guide me. He's very deep, and I like bringing to life the famous character people have come to love from the book and play. We all tried our best to keep our characters as real as they are in the book, so this play will be iconic, nostalgic and memorable for the audience."

Junior Kaley Haller plays Scout, 6. "She's an outgoing tomboy who matures as the story progresses and she deals with the struggles of a divided town," said Haller. "She gains insight about the world around her as the trial forces her to understand racism and bigotry. Her father raised her to stand her ground and not be afraid to speak her mind."

"I'm excited to play this character because of her complexity," continued Haller. "Scout has a fearlessness and special awareness about her that I really admire. I've grown up with the story and relate to the messages Scout conveys. She brings a sweet innocence to the show's heavy plot. This is honestly my dream role, and I'm thrilled for everyone to see it. 'To Kill a Mockingbird' is such a classic story, and the message kind of still applies to today's society, so I think the audience will take something away from it."

Portraying the defendant, Tom Robinson, is senior Eni Oyeleye, who's also assistant directing. "Robinson is unfairly targeted for a crime he didn't commit and is found guilty simply because he's black and his accuser is white," said Oyeleye. "In the 1930s deep South, that's all that's needed to ensure his conviction. Atticus Finch is determined to make sure justice is served. But unfortunately, his passionate plea for equality under the law is no match for the prevailing social currents of the time."

As assistant director, said Oyeleye, "It's been incredibly exciting to help shape our production of one of the 20th century's most beloved and iconic stories. I feel a sense of duty to tell this story well because the issues it talks about are important, not only from a historical perspective, but also from a modern one. Much progress has undisputedly been made since the days of Jim Crow laws; but sadly, much of the volatility and tension present in the 1930s doesn't seem to have abated."

Noting that an actor's job is to tell an "honest and compelling story," Oyeleye says this cast is doing just that. "The audience will be moved and impressed by the ability of the actors to display immense, emotional depth and to play their roles as real characters, rather than caricatures," he said. "And I believe the audience will leave the auditorium as hopeful and joyous as they are touched and sad."

Senior Andrew Sharpe plays Jem. "He's a mature 10-year-old who lives an imaginative life with his sister, creating stories about their so-called crazy neighbor, Boo Radley," said Sharpe. "He becomes disenfranchised with the justice system when he discovers the inequality that exists in the world and in his own town. But he admires his father's efforts to defend Robinson despite the hopelessness of a fair trial."

Sharpe's "thrilled to play this role" because he believes Jem has the greatest character arc in the play. "His loss of innocence is something truly tragic," said Sharpe. "I love this story and how it will never become irrelevant in the world. With so much inequal-

(PSV) — a group of Inova hospital doctors who treat children with cancer. Nguyen spoke to them about the club and also told parents how teens can become involved in it.

“And while she was speaking, our club members did activities with their children at the Life with Cancer facility in Fairfax,” said Lyons. And in mid-December, the students also helped with Life with Cancer’s holiday party for children. They also hosted and sponsored a toy collection and gift-wrapping event with CYA (the Chantilly Youth Association) for that party.

“It was so nice to see the kids sit on Santa’s lap and open their presents,” said Lyons. “And we also volunteered at the DC Candlelighters Halloween party.”

“We played games, told fortunes, gave out candy and did face-painting,” added Nguyen. “And we had a photo booth and did crafts, like decorating pumpkins.”

In November, Ellie’s Hats talked to the club members about its hat collection for pediatric cancer patients. “And then, with the help of the Centreville High Key Club, we collected 150 hats for children fighting cancer,” said Nguyen.

“We got to see them pick up the hats we’d collected at the Christmas event,” said Lyons. “And it was exciting to see them with their hats on. I brought one with a Superman cape on the back, and a little boy was running around trying to make it fly.”

“There was also a Build-a Bear station, and it was fun to see the children’s faces lighting up with joy while stuffing their bears,” said Nguyen.

At the club’s Jan. 20 meeting, the members put together goodie bags for cancer patients and their siblings at Inova Fairfax Hospital and the PSV clinic in Falls Church. They contained craft kits and small games for Valentine’s Day.

“We’ll also participate in the Relay for Life in June with students from our school, plus Chantilly and Westfield high schools,” said Lyons. “And in the spring, I’ve planned a carnival for the pediatric oncology patients at their new building connected to Inova Fairfax Hospital.”

She said she and Nguyen “didn’t expect as many kids to have the same feelings about the club as we do and to be excited about helping at our events. So it’s good to know how many people care.”

“And it’s great to see people who’ve also been touched by cancer — or know someone who has — give back,” said Nguyen.

“And seeing the children’s joy at, for example, the holiday party, we realize that — although people may have cancer — they still laugh and enjoy the same things every human being does. And it spurs people’s compassion.”

“It also opens their eyes to see patients in different stages of their cancer journey,” added Lyons.

“And it was really touching to see the strength of families and how a terrible disease brought them together,” said Nguyen.

ity still existing in America, I hope everyone can once again learn the timeless lesson of loving one another." Besides that, he added, "Our beautiful set and wonderful cast will really appeal to the audience."

Playing Scout and Jem's friend Dill is senior David Johnson. "Dill accompanies them on many adventures," said Johnson. "He has an oddball personality — imaginative and fun-loving while wise beyond his years — which makes him fun to play."

"The audience will like the show because it has a lot of depth," continued Johnson. "It tackles the serious topic of race, but there are light moments along the way. And our immensely talented cast and crew are putting their all into this play. The audience will laugh, maybe even cry, but will definitely leave the theater with food for thought and fuel for discussion. That's what makes this show extra-special."

Narrating and playing the Finches' neighbor Maudie Atkinson is senior Alexa Tucker. "She's sensible and wise, but has a sharp wit and some sass," said Tucker. "She's protective over Jem and Scout, but knows when to let them fight their own battles."

"Miss Maudie feels strongly that Robinson deserves a fair trial, yet she knows the deeply ingrained racism of the townspeople won't allow justice to be served. But she remains optimistic for the future. I like portraying her wisdom, sensibility and kindness — qualities I hope to emulate both on and offstage."

Tucker believes audiences will enjoy seeing this "classic novel brought to life. The issues in the play are as relevant today as they were in 1935, and I think people will appreciate the chance to observe what has changed — and what has stayed the same."

Limiting Local Authority

Assembly rushes bill limiting proffers without addressing who will pay for infrastructure.

In Virginia, a Dillon Rule state, local governments have only the powers explicitly granted by the General Assembly. And what the assembly gives, the assembly can take away.

It's the reason, for example, that localities have limited means of raising revenue and limited taxing authority. And those limited means are one reason localities have turned to proffers, payments and improvements to infrastructure agreed to by builders as part of approval and zoning changes for new development.

Members of the General Assembly, including many who represent only Fairfax County districts, agree with builders that in many places, the way local governments are using proffers is unfair, even out of control.

Many point to Loudoun County, where builders pay substantial cash proffers, as an example. And to other counties where large, off site intersection improvements were required.

Everyone seems to agree that the "abuses" are not taking place in Fairfax, Arlington and Alexandria. But the restrictions apply to these areas as well.

How are local governments supposed to pay for the costs of growth? Should the lion's share be paid by existing residents through increase property taxes?

This is a complex question, not one that should be rushed.

But right now, the General Assembly is rushing to restrict proffers and to give developers and builders substantial clout in legal challenges to local government action. And they are doing this without any consideration to how localities will replace the resources they will lose.

EDITORIAL

It's time to slow this process down, and for a reasoned consideration. What exactly are the abuses that require action? Look at specific examples and address the specifics.

Local delegates voting in favor of the bill restricting local proffer authority included Dave Albo (R-42), Eileen Filler-Corn (D-41), Charniele Herring (D-46), Patrick Hope (D-47), Tim Hugo (R-40), Paul Krizek (D-44), Mark Levine (D-45), Ken Plum (D-36) and Vivian Watts (D-39).

Local delegates who voted against the bill included Jennifer Boysko (D-86), David Bulova (D-37), Mark Keam (D-35), Kaye Kory (D-38), Jim LeMunyon (R-67), Alfonso Lopez (D-49), Kathleen Murphy (D-34), Mark Sickles (D-43), and Marcus Simon (D-53).

The Virginia Senate was expected to vote for an amended version of the bill on Tuesday, Feb. 9.

Reasonable action will fall to the conferees in reconciling the House and Senate versions, and to the governor, who would be able to amend the bill before signing or veto.

"It makes them treasure and value every, single moment together."

Lyons said they learned that, "Whenever we talk to cancer patients, we never say, 'Goodbye,' but 'See you later.' It makes me more grateful about the regular activities I can do that others may not be able to."

"And it makes me see how important family is and that they'll always be there for you," said Nguyen. "And, at the end of the day, they'll always love you. Having cancer touch my family definitely brought us closer together and gave us a better, mutual understanding of each other."

Lyons said the club members make friends with each other and bond by sharing their personal experiences. And members who've had cancer in their family "feel good about being able to give back in ways they couldn't to their own loved ones," said Nguyen. "I like being able to help others like me because no one should ever have to fight cancer alone. When one person in a family has it, the whole family goes through it together.

Valerie Nguyen showing the front and back of the club's T-shirt.

And it makes you appreciate what you have."

Club sponsor is PE. and health teacher Katherin Strobl. "There's simply nothing that stops Valerie from reaching a goal," she said. "Last year, she initiated a tutoring club for athletes. She saw a need and acted on it. Wildcats vs. Cancer has been no different."

"The members have volunteered at Halloween and Christmas events, made crafts, donated hats and given up a lot of their time to help with this club," continued Strobl. "That can be rare at this age. Kids are traditionally egocentric and have little time to dedicate themselves to anything outside of sports, academics, family and friends. It's been refreshing to see kids involved in something so important and meaningful. It restores a teacher's faith in teenagers sometimes."

Although Strobl's the club sponsor, she says Nguyen and Lyons have done all the work. "These girls and the club members are so special," said Strobl. "They've accomplished so much in a short time. I'm hard to impress, and they've done it."

Lyons hopes someone will take on the club after she and Nguyen graduate. "We hope to leave a legacy for others to give back to their community and advocate for awareness of how cancer affects patients and their families," said Nguyen. "And I can honestly say this is one of my proudest achievements. I was able to not let something that happened to me define me, but to use it to help others in similar circumstances."

For more information about the Wildcats vs. Cancer club or to join, email her at valerieunguyen@gmail.com. "You don't have to be touched by cancer to join," said Nguyen. "Anyone's welcome."

Westfield Boys Win Three Straight

Bulldogs beat Chantilly, Robinson, Herndon.

BY WILL PALENSCAR
CENTRE VIEW

The Westfield boys' basketball team took to the hardwood three times last week. Two of the three games were games originally scheduled as home games. However, a leaking roof at Westfield, the result of melting snow from the January winter storm forced the games location to be changed.

In the first game, Westfield traveled to crosstown rival Chantilly on Feb. 2 and defeated the Chargers 69-57.

Westfield would start a little slow in the first quarter as Chantilly jumped to an early 17-15 advantage. In the second quarter, things changed as Westfield would register three consecutive quarters registering 18 points, while holding the Chargers to eight points. In the third quarter, Chantilly also added 18 points. Trailing 51-43 to start the fourth, Westfield would outscore the Chargers 18-14, and Westfield completed the first of three consecutive road wins.

Tyler Scanlon led Westfield with 20 points and Blake Francis finished with 19. Chantilly was led by Zach Crenshaw's 16 points and Daniel Carmichael's 13.

The following evening, Westfield headed to Fairfax to take on Robinson, a team they defeated on the road less than one month earlier, 70-51. Again, Westfield was able to jump out to a quick advantage in this game as they did in the first meeting and eventually won 67-58.

This time, Westfield started with a 20-8 first quarter lead. In the second quarter, Robinson would cut the lead, outscoring the Bulldogs 17-14 and going to halftime down 34-25.

In the third, each team would score 12 points and 21 points in the fourth quarter. Francis and Scanlon scored 18 points apiece, and Hank Johnson added 15. Robinson was led by Markos Eyob's 18 points and Danny Krug added 13.

On Feb. 5, Westfield traveled to Herndon, for the second matchup between the two conference foes, Westfield winning the first 74-65. The Bulldogs won the rematch, as well, 84-80.

Herndon early seemed to ignite the Herndon crowd as they would take an early 49-40 advantage to halftime. The Bulldogs fought back even after having trailed by double digits. Scanlon scored a game high 32 and teammate Kory Jones added

16. Hank Johnson added 14 and Blake Francis 12.

Herndon was led by James Lees 22 points while teammates Michael Griffin and Colby Gardner each added 16 apiece. Herndon falls to (9-5) while Westfield improved to (14-2) and (6-0) in Conference 5. Westfield will take on Chantilly at home on Feb. 9 for senior night.

Westfield Girls Drop 2 of 3

The Westfield girls' basketball team laced them up three times last week, all of which were played on the road.

On Feb. 2, Westfield took on crosstown rival Chantilly. After being outscored 30-17 in the first three quarters, the Lady Bulldogs had a valiant comeback come up just short, falling to the Lady Chargers 35-33.

Westfield was led by Nikki McNamara's 11 points and Mia Savoy's seven points. Chantilly was led by Mary Clougherty's 13 points and Grace Rauch's eight points.

On Feb. 3, the Lady Bulldogs traveled to play another conference game at Robinson. This time, Westfield came away with a 52-46 win. After one quarter, Westfield led 10-7. In the second quarter, Westfield scored 20 points while holding the Lady Rams to 10 points. In the third quarter, both teams would add 10 more points. In the fourth, Robinson outscored Westfield 19-12.

Danielle Little led Westfield with 16 points and McNamara added 14. Robinson was led by Tyler Seay's 21 points and Jalyn Seale's 13. The two combined for seven of the team's nine three pointers. Although Westfield did not connect from long range, they managed to go 20-for-27 from the charity stripe and nine Lady Bulldogs scored in the game.

Finally, on Feb. 5, Westfield traveled to Herndon to play the Hornets. Westfield jumped out to a 26-24 advantage at halftime. However, the Lady Hornets duo of Janiece Loney and Indeya Sanders combined for five 3-pointers. Sanders would end up with a game-high 24 points, while Loney would end up with 15 as Herndon won 63-51.

Westfield's Mia Savoy would score a team-high 16 points and McNamara would add 13.

Westfield (7-8) will host Chantilly (14-5) on Feb. 9 for senior night.

Stylish Valentine's Day Table Settings

Flowers and candles create romantic designs.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
CENTRE VIEW

Fresh flowers and candles are an easy way to add elegance and romance to a Valentine's Day table. From dramatic to understated, local tastemakers offer suggestions for setting the mood for a memorable dinner.

"Candles are key to set a romantic atmosphere," said Marika Meyer of Marika Meyer Interiors in Bethesda, Md. "Soft lighting is flattering to all of us and creates a sense of intimacy for conversations."

The ambience is enhanced, says Meyer, when the candlelight glints off of metallic accessories like candlestick holders. "You can use silver, mercury, glass or even gold or brass to help move the light," she said.

In fact, gold accents are a current trend, says Angela Phelps of Le Village Marche in Arlington. "They pair well with pinks, reds, and fuchsias," she said. "So, as you're planning a romantic dinner at home, think about incorporating china, vases, candle votives, trays, and glassware with a gold trim for a stunning table."

Metallics combined with a few pops of a soft color help create an elegant setting. "White and silver tables can be very romantic — for example, a white tablecloth, mirrored or silver placemats, silver flatware and crystal stemware," said Fay Johnson, an interior designer with J.T. Interiors in Potomac, Md. "The centerpiece [could be] a silver ice bucket with white and blush colored roses and a array of assorted size candles and votives."

For a more traditional table, Johnson stated that "a black, white and red table can be very dramatically romantic. A black and white tablecloth [such as] a houndstooth or herringbone ... pattern with red, glass stemware, white dinner plate, a ruby-red glass salad plate and silver flatware."

Johnson suggests completing the look with a crystal or silver vase filled with red roses and accented with few red glass votive candles.

Johnson believes that not all centerpieces need to be flowers. She suggests filling three compote dishes, graduating in size, with chocolates and red and pink rose petals for table design with a touch of whimsy.

A vase can add a powerful style impact. "A vase is like a frame for a picture," said Linda Wilson-Vertin, Floral arrangements can offer a powerful style impact.

floral designer with Merrifield Garden Center in Fair Oaks. "A clear vase is like not having a frame on the picture."

Instead, choose a vase that has visual interest or one that is meaningful on a personal level. "I like using things that are special to the individual," said Wilson-Vertin. "I ask clients to bring in a container that they like so that I can create an arrangement that works with it."

While red is often the go-to floral color for Valentine's Day, Wilson-Vertin says that shades of pink, peach and purple can offer elegance and romance. "Go with what works for you and what works in your home," she said. "For example, red doesn't work in my home, so I use watermelon and apricot."

Consistency adds an unexpected touch of enchantment. A monochromatic palette conveys more romance than contrasting colors," said Wilson-Vertin. She recommends using "red roses with deep burgundy mini carnations to vary the size of the flower head and texture. Mini carnations have ruffled texture."

For the ultimate in texture and color variety, "think English garden, like roses, hydrangeas, lisianthus and snapdragons," said Wilson-Vertin. "Add berries and eucalyptus" to complete this elegant floral arrangement."

Linen napkins offer a finishing touch to an elegant table setting, says Kelley Proxmire of Kelley Interior Design in Bethesda, Md.

"Use pretty salt and pepper shakers, festive napkin rings, and if you have fancy water or wine glasses, now is the time to use them," she said. "And don't forget the champagne bucket nearby for cooling white wine or champagne."

Not Snow Fast

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

As an originally diagnosed-as-terminal, lung cancer patient, I try not to panic or worry unnecessarily or be a harbinger of doom or a purveyor of gloom. Unfortunately, the providers of the news/weather reports of "accumulating" (that seems to be the popular phrase of late) snow in the forecast currently and in general, apparently are of the opposite opinion. Rather than make light of the inches predicted, the common (as if they're all reading from the same script) presentation is typically fraught with inferences of impending disaster and/or catastrophic loss. Not only is the message tiresome, its redundancy is downright distressing, as if the goal is to strike such fear into the local population that toilet paper, bread, water, and batteries aside; it's the media that will be the most important must-have.

Do you know what my most important "must-have" is? Sanity, and calm in the face of adversity; logical and rational behavior in the midst of over-the-top reporting of events (maker that snow/weather predictions) destined to change lives – of the media, for the most part. Granted, there's lots of valuable information that must be disseminated when a storm of generational proportions smother the area. Nevertheless, don't burden us with emotional baggage in the interim. The weight of the snow, especially for us manual shovelers, will do more than enough to keep us "sheltered in place." Sometimes, the message is lost in the hyperbole, or in the "emergency" programming as seen on the non-stop, 'round the clock reporting. The sheer volume of it diminishes its impact. Quite frankly, less is more, and more manageable, too.

What us viewers and listeners endure in the Metropolitan Washington, D.C. Area, or what it has increasingly become known as: "The D.M.V.;" (yet another media creation forced upon us residents) is above and beyond the call of citizen duty. Being called as a juror appeals to me more than being subjected to the media maelstrom that precedes (and of course, follows), these "weather events."

Yet here I sit and write, approximately two weeks after the "Blizzard of 2016," trying to filter out fact from fiction concerning next week's "snowcast." And even though the two-plus feet of snow is mostly long gone (but not forgotten), I fear its effect on our preparations and predictions will inhibit us for years: fueled in no small way by the media's fascination with itself and its presumptive place in the world as well as its presumptive place in the lives of thousands of local residents for whom they feel uniquely responsible.

Not that I totally understand many of the ulterior motives behind the means and methods of communication when snow is in the atmosphere, but the pattern seems familiar: create the fear, report the fear, and then cover the effects of the fear; and then in another occasional adjunct: the after-the-fact self-analysis of the fear that was created, the reporting of that fear, and then a post-mortem on all the fear and its consequences.

I have to tell you; as a cancer patient, I can't live my life this way. Every day, I have to buck up and not look for trouble – and not make any trouble, either; not exactly the mission of the media. Ergo, I don't need to make matters any worse than they might otherwise be, nor can I presume and anticipate the worst, or create consequences in advance of them being consequential. Since I'm a great believer in context, having an incurable form of cancer (NSCLC, stage IV) may make me less tolerant of the snow coverage by the media. Then again, maybe I'm just a victim of circumstance, tired of being made to feel like the victim.

THE CONNECTION NEWSPAPERS

bill, the worse it seems to get," said Providence Supervisor Linda Smyth, warning of profound effects on in-fill development. "We will no longer get proffer features on design issues." Later version of the bill in the Senate appear to allow architectural and design proffers.

"If enacted it may require us to rewrite our entire Comprehensive Plan. We will have to rewrite our entire ordinance," said Lee Supervisor Jeff McKay.

"This is major in terms of the repercussions we will face here in Fairfax County," said Smyth. "This will be huge, it will be time consuming, and it will be expensive to us."

Smyth and other supervisors discussed the ability of developers to work with the community during the proffer process.

"There may be a unique opportunity, a community that may need a stream restored, and all that will be gone, and we will have to rewrite our residential zoning," said Smyth.

"Our development community does not support this. What they are seeing is something set up in other parts of the state that will undermine what we are doing here," she said. "We have a very responsible development community."

Springfield Supervisor Pat Herrity voted against the letter.

"I think we have gone too far with proffers," he said. "This will lower the cost of housing in Fairfax County."

"I agree with Supervisor Herrity that we have to be careful about the requirements we put on builders. It is expensive to build in this county," said Braddock Supervisor John Cook.

"The answer to this problem is not asking Richmond to fix this problem for us," Cook said. "Going to Richmond for the answer is a bad, bad, bad idea."

But legislators in Richmond who support the bill said localities have gone too far with proffers, using them in ways that were never intended.

"What businesses have repeatedly told me about being able to work with the government, whether it's zoning, procurement, public-private partnerships, etc., is that they need to have fairness, predictability, and systems that work," said state Sen. Scott Surovell (D-36). "Otherwise, they don't want to put the time into trying to get to the end zone. Right now the litigation check on [proffers] is totally tilted towards the localities. That can't continue."

State Sen. Dave Marsden (D-37) admitted that one reason localities turned to proffers was because of severely limited tax authority. But he supports the bill, with amendments, in part because the costs of proffers add to the cost of housing, making houses less affordable. Proffers should also serve the area around the new development, not the other side of the county, he said.

"I did feel like something needed to be done on behalf of the builders," Marsden said. "It's a depressed industry."
