After decades of meetings and stalled re-development, the most recent plan for making over North Hill's 33-acre vacant site at the intersection of Route 1 and Dart Drive has gone the furthest.

On June 13, the development team CHPPENN (Community Housing Partners and Pennrose) submitted its rezoning application with Fairfax County. The proposal calls for 278 new multifamily rental units and 195 market-rate townhomes to be built where manufactured homes, or trailers, once occupied space.

Mario Wells, multifamily development officer with Community Housing Partners, and Robert Brant, an attorney with development partner Arlington-based firm Walsh Colucci Lubeley & Walsh, met with members of the Mount Vernon-Lee Chamber of Commerce Legislative Affairs Committee July 6 to give the latest updates on the project.

Now that the rezoning application has been submitted, the project team is hoping to make a Planning Commission meeting by January 2017 and for the proposal to come before the Board of Supervisors by the following month.

If they hit that target, construction could start by late 2017, Wells said, and then take between two and three years to complete.

But with heavy vegetation, steep elevation and marine clay throughout the site, Wells called the project "a monster to tackle," which could affect the timeline.

In addition to the housing, which would include 10 percent set aside for low-income residents, the rest of the site space would be taken up by a park. That would be developed by Fairfax County.

Fairfax County Public Schools has secured four more years with Dr. Karen Garza at the helm as superintendent.

The School Board members voted unanimously to extend her contract through June 30, 2020 at their June 30 meeting.

"Dr. Garza has been an agent of positive change for Fairfax County Public Schools," School Board Chair Pat Hynes, said in a statement, as she was absent from the meeting. "She has positively engaged the community in a number of critical issues and has been a passionate advocate for our students and teachers."

Torres Walks Free Former police officer released five days after sentencing for killing John Geer.

Former Fairfax County Police Officer Adam Torres walked free Wednesday morning, June 29. He was the first officer in the force's history to be charged with killing someone.

Five days after being sentenced to serve 12 months in prison for the felony charge of involuntary manslaughter of Springfield resident John Geer in 2013, Torres was released from Fairfax County Adult Detention Center at 8 a.m. on June 29.

Torres had been in jail since August 2015. The Fairfax Circuit Court judge counted the time served in determining the release.

Commonwealth's Attorney Raymond Morrogh said following the sentencing that 10 months is typical for release of a prisoner serving a year-long sentence.

At the time, Morrogh estimated Torres would be released within a few weeks of the sentencing. Attorneys said Torres would be returning to a wife, two young children and an infant that was born recently. Wearing a button-up blue-checked shirt and carrying a few personal effects, Torres walked to a car and declined to answer questions.

During Ramadan, Bringing Community Together

Mosque opens doors to its Christian neighbors.

BY MICHELLE BUTCHKO
THE GAZETTE

The Islamic Circle of North America (ICNA) VA Islamic Center welcomed the surrounding community on June 24 to participate in its traditional iftar meal to celebrate the month of Ramadan.

Members of both the Mount Vernon Unitarian Church and Mount Vernon Presbyterian Church were present, as well as additional community members. The event strived to unify differing religions and build a more consolidated community for both Muslims and non-Muslims alike.

"I think it's an amazing thing and you can never reach out enough. It's definitely a necessary step not only Muslims need to take

but people of all faiths so we can create that sense of community," said Sana Mahmood.

Mahmood, 21 years old, has been a member of the mosque for several years. She is also an Alexandria native having graduated from West Potomac

Community member Jensen Wainwright

High School. She, like a majority of her peers, feel that unifying religions is not only desirable but necessary in the community.

"At the end of the day we're all Americans and we're all apart of this melting pot. We never do enough to unify each other and I'm thankful for you guys for coming out to the mosque ... We're all human beings and we need to care for one another regardless of whether it's in or out of a place of worship. We owe it to each other," said Unaiza Khalid.

Khalid, a member of the ICNA, feels that religion shouldn't be a dividing factor among people despite differing beliefs or perspectives.

about you as a human being and want to be apart of your happiness, and your holidays and religion makes you happy, I'll be right there next to you supporting you regardless of what anyone has to say to pit us against each other," added Khalid.

Jensen Wainwright, a non-Muslim community member and West Potomac High School graduate, felt that the community still has a long way to go in terms of unifying religions.

"I feel our community is lacking a bit on inclusion. The Northern Virginia area is pretty divided by race and class, even if it isn't very apparent. I think events like this are amazing and so necessary in bettering the community."

West Potomac High School sophomore Cynthia Iraheta, a first generation Muslim in her predominantly Christian family, converted six months ago. Iraheta believes education is a key component to being more open and understanding of dissimilar faiths.

"Coming from a Christian family and being the only Muslim, it's important for people to explore and actually know about the religion. I tell my parents all the time that you shouldn't speak about something you don't know about. Learn about it. You don't have to become a part of it, but you can be informed," she said.

Also within the scope of education, Mahmood touched upon negative media coverage regarding Islam that influences many individuals.

"I feel like if there's one thing the mainstream media uses against us, it's the fact that we don't know much about other people's faiths or what other people are practicing. They use that lack of knowledge against us, but if we come together and teach one another about our differing religions and beliefs, I don't think the mainstream media would be able to use that tool against us and create an unnecessary divide," Mahmood said.

As Ramadan comes to a close on the evening of July 5, the group appreciates the sense of community they've been able to see throughout the month and hope to improve on this in the future.

"You can go into any mosque for Iftar and they'll welcome you with open arms ... It doesn't matter what your race is, your ethnicity, what language you speak, everyone is one big, happy family," Mahmood said.

ICNA will be hosting additional events open to the community during the month of October. For more information, visit icnava.org or call 703-660-1255.

Local U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary Patrols River

Volunteer force promotes recreational boat safety.

BY ASHLEY CLAIRE SIMPSON
THE GAZETTE

Since 1939, the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary has been supporting the Coast Guard in all its work — from conducting safety patrols to participating in search and rescue missions.

The all-volunteer USCG Auxiliary is made up of divisions in all 50 states and four U.S. territories. USCG Flotilla 25-08 of Mount Vernon is one of these local groups, focusing on the promotion of recreational boat safety. The group comprises about 80 Northern Virginia volunteers that meet at least monthly and educates the public on a full-spectrum of sea vessel safety matters.

Woodrow Johnson, human resources staff officer and vice flotilla commander, said the local flotilla is all volunteer and thus the Department of Homeland Security — to which the U.S. Coast Guard is assigned in peacetime — cannot and does not have any formal command authority over any member of Flotilla 25-08.

“We are, and always remain, volunteers,” Johnson said. “We are always free to decline any request made by the Coast Guard. Suppose, for example, a boat sinks in the Potomac River and the Coast Guard wanted three Auxiliary boats and crew to search for survivors. Although we are all likely to volunteer to help to meet their needs, no one is obligated to do so.”

“Semper Paratus” — Latin for “Always Ready” — is the USCG Auxiliary’s motto, and Johnson explained that even at the Coast Guard’s Auxiliary’s inception, the volunteers took the mission of the organization very seriously.

“The Auxiliary provided many private boats and crew that were used to serve various missions to support the military and protect U.S. waterways during World War II,” Johnson said of the 50,000 members who joined the war effort as civilians.

Throughout the Auxiliary’s history, Johnson added, it has provided boats and other tools and vessels for national defense efforts.

“Flotilla 25-08 focuses on boats, but the Auxiliary members have donated other ‘facilities’ that they own to support the Auxiliary,” he said. “This includes airplanes and various kinds of radios — for example, short-wave radio transmitters.”

When a member officially joins the Auxiliary, Flotilla 25-08’s former Flotilla Commander Rich Miller said that it involves a simple oath.

Close up of a Flotilla 25-08 crew during a refueling stop on Piscataway Creek midway through a patrol, summer of 2014.

“When a new member enrolls, the Flotilla Commander administers an oath,” Miller said, with the following being part of the wording that the new member accepts:

“The pledge you are about to take is your commitment to support the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, an organization dedicated to the promotion of boating safety and providing assistance to the U.S. Coast Guard in the fulfillment of its civil functions.

“You accept this membership as a volunteer and as a member you are charged with certain responsibilities and obligations. These include your willingness to support the Coast Guard Auxiliary and its purposes, to faithfully execute your duties and to participate in its authorized programs to the best of your ability and to the extent that time and circumstances permit.”

The volunteer status of the Auxiliary highlights just how much heart each member puts into their own flotilla.

“Here is an interesting fact that highlights the nature of being a volunteer,” Johnson said. “The Active Duty side of the U.S. Coast Guard has a ‘chain of command.’ The Auxiliary has the same thing, but it is called a ‘chain of leadership.’ Thus, we get to lead our members, but we do not get to command them. If we are good leaders, we will have followers. If we are not good leaders, well, everyone might go a different direction.”

FLOTILLA 25-08 focuses primarily on recreational boating safety, offering sailing and safety courses for the public throughout the year. They meet every third Thursday of the month at 6 p.m. for a workshop and 7 p.m. for a business meeting at the Mount Vernon Yacht Club.

All events are open to the public, and Johnson encourages anyone interested to contact the group before attending.

The Mount Vernon group is no exception to the “Semper Paratus” motto.

“How do we stay prepared?” Johnson said. “That is easy: training, training and more training. The Auxiliary follows the same training as the CG. When Auxiliarists want to become qualified to serve on boats as crew, they follow the same programs as those who serve in the active duty. Although I cannot speak to the details, I know that there are a couple of exceptions for the standards. For example, Auxiliarists do not need to maintain the same level of physical fitness. After all, a 50-year-old Auxiliarist might not be able to run as quickly or do as many pull ups as a 25-year-old active duty seaman.”

Still, Johnson reiterates that the USCG Auxiliary does not do military, or law enforcement, work in its regular functioning.

“The Auxiliary does not do military work,” Johnson said. “We are able to do everything that active duty are able to do with two exceptions: We do not issue tickets, and we do not carry guns. In other words, we do not do law enforcement or military functions.”

While not regularly relied on for military duties, the Auxiliary remains crucial to the U.S. Coast Guard. “In 2014, there were 36,235 Active Duty Coast Guard seamen and 29,620 members of the Auxiliary,” Miller said. “The Auxiliary frees the Active Duty Coast Guard to attend to the military and law enforcement duties. Generally, all our activities are directed to boating safety. Every year, over 500 people die in boating accidents. The statistics show that most people who die never had a boating safety class. I feel good that our work in teaching boating safety probably saves lives. And I’m sure we saved the life of an exhausted paddle boarder who got separated from his board on a windy day in the Potomac River. We picked him up on a river patrol.”

The only age requirement for the USCG Auxiliary is that prospective members must be 17 years old, so Flotilla 25-08 could hypothetically be made up of 17-year-old men and women to centenarians. The local flotilla is made up of both civilians and retired service members from all of the nation’s military branches.

Active Duty Coast Guard personnel have a 20- to 30-year career,” Miller said. “The Auxiliary only requires that you be at least 17 years old. Our flotilla had a member over 90 years old still going out on patrols. The general rule is to participate in at least one mission of interest as long as you are physically able to perform the mission.”

“I feel good that our work in teaching boating safety probably saves lives.”

— Flotilla 25-08’s former Flotilla Commander Rich Miller

Of the roughly 80 members of Flotilla 25-08, Johnson said that most are quite familiar faces.

“Many have been members for 15, 20, or even more years,” Johnson said, “but we also have many that have been members for less than five years. I would guess that the average tenure is around 15 years.”

Johnson has been a member for four years, and Miller for 15 years. They both encourage anyone interested — both civilian and military personnel alike — to seek out membership.

Johnson is a civilian and Miller is an Army retiree, having served 25 years in various assignments all over the world.

BOTH Johnson and Miller are boat and sailing enthusiasts, and agree that the Auxiliary is a great way to combine their passion with serving the community.

“By accident, I learned about the Auxiliary a few years ago,” Johnson said. “I remain a member for two reasons: First, the Auxiliary is a great way to learn more about boating. I have taken several college-level courses for free through the Auxiliary — some taught by Auxiliarists, and some taught by active duty personnel. Second, the Coxswain John Sawyer observes through binoculars a derelict cabin cruiser hard ashore on the Maryland side of the Potomac River during a patrol. The cruiser’s name, derelict state, and position was transmitted to USCG Station Washington.

At-large board member Ilryong Moon seconded acting chair and Mason District representative Sandy Evans' motion for the extension.

"Dr. Garza has not only the right skill set, but also temperament to continue leading," he said.

Braddock District representative Megan McLaughlin added, "We are deeply fortunate in this great county of over one million people, the 10th largest school system in the country, that we have been able to not only bring you here, but continue building on a relationship with you."

"You have led with vision and courage and innovation, and I want to thank you for that," Evans said.

After the unanimous vote in support of Garza, she took a few moments to thank the board, the leadership team and the school community.

"You took a chance on me, that Texas girl, and brought me here," Garza said. "Thank you for your continued support, absolutely, this vote of confidence."

"I think we're the best in the United States," she continued. "The possibilities are endless for what else we can do in this school system, the ability to really shape and lead the work at the state and national level."

plan forward further than in the past is CHPPENN's expectation they can obtain a nine percent housing tax credit for 2017 rather than the less competitive four percent credit. The difference would mean about $7.5 million.

Del. Paul Krizek (D-44) attended the July 6 meeting and called the revitalization "exciting, very exciting." "It's been too long, a long time coming," Krizek said. "This deal is for very mixed income — it's not creating too concentrated an area of low income residents."

Krizek said students in the Residences at North Hill Park would attend Bucknell Elementary School, which is undergoing its own revitalization.

Krizek also said he hopes the North Hill redevelopment can incorporate more environmentally progressive measures and sustainable technology such as solar panels.

Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Holly Dougherty said the mixed income development brings up larger community issues.

"Our schools are in crisis already," she said, "and we'd have more low income students requiring more services. But it provides opportunities also. You have to have the opportunities in place, and need to have the jobs in place."

Supervisors Jeff McKay (D-Lee) and Dan Storck (D-Mount Vernon) have also voiced concerns over the impact of the residences on local schools.

SLES Students Recognized for Community Service

The sixth grade students of Stratford Landing Elementary joined their teachers and families at Sandburg Middle School on June 22 to celebrate the 2016 Promotion Ceremony. Featured at this year's ceremony was the announcement of the first annual Stratford Landing Community Service Recognition Certificate.

The 2015-2016 school year marked the beginning of a lifetime of service for sixth grade students who participated in service learning opportunities, from Boy Scout and Girl Scout service projects to helping out with service at Stratford Landing and in the greater Alexandria area. While all students were required to complete five hours of service, one group of students completed up to 35 hours of service during their sixth grade year. These students completed an essay and were interviewed to be considered for the Stratford Landing Community Service Recognition Certificate. Students' essays shared many stories of service and fun. Sixth-grader Matthew Rusten learned that, "service is more than a word or a task [...] it makes a difference for the environment and the community." Caroline Henry shared that she, "felt like she made a difference" when stocking food in the pantry at United Christian Ministries. And Logan Price shared a sentiment echoed by all of the nominees when she wrote, "For me, doing service isn't just helping somebody. It is making their life better and at the same time, you are making your own life better." For their work and dedication, all 14 nominees were awarded the Stratford Landing Community Service Recognition Certificate. Recipients received a certificate and will have their names on a plaque at Stratford Landing.

Outdoor Classroom

Spearheaded by STEAM teacher Dr. Sofie Hussain, Woodley Hills Elementary School worked this year to win a couple of grants to put together a community garden and outdoor classroom at the school. Highlights include 13 garden beds, a pollinator garden, an archeological dig site, an experimental garden, a weather station, and a bean tepee, to name but a few. The gardens are planted with crops that the students learn about in their Virginia history classes, and a soda bottle garden, put together with recycled soda bottles, will feature herbs that were used as medicines in colonial times.

Basdekis Named Outstanding First-Year Principal

Paul Basdekis, who was named principal at Riverside Elementary School in July 2015, has been named the Fairfax County Public Schools (FCPS) 2016 Outstanding First-Year Principal.

To tackle the school's accreditation with warning in science by the Virginia Department of Education, Basdekis took a look at data to come up with a plan to raise student achievement.

He developed quarterly student recognitions for both citizenship and work habits, encompassing "Effort and Attitude," the school's new motto.

To recognize improvement, parents receive a personal call from the principal when their child earns top marks and high-achieving students are recognized in the monthly newsletter.

As a result of these new initiatives, unexcused absences decreased by half and behavior referrals to the office decreased. Basdekis hired a science resource teacher to create a lab to support STEAM (science, technology, engineering, art, and math) programs and increase student engagement in science.

Basdekis earned a bachelor's degree from Mount Saint Mary College in New York and a master's in educational leadership from George Mason University.

OPINION

Hungry in Summer

There are hungry children in Northern Virginia, more so in summertime.

Summer for most children in Northern Virginia is a time of fun and activities, camp and vacation, trips to the pool and possibly to the library. Specialized camps and activities tuneup sports skills and academic skills. Parents try to ensure snacks are at least somewhat healthy.

In this environment, most of us don't come into much contact with families that might be having trouble feeding their children. We can't imagine that there are children who are hungry in summer.

But many children in our region don't know what their next meal will be in summer. During the school year, many have depended on school to provide breakfast and lunch during the school year. Volunteers have stepped in to provide backpacks to go home with hungry students on the weekend.

In the City of Alexandria, 60 percent of students in public schools qualify for subsidized meals at school.

In Fairfax County, that overall number is lower at 27.5 percent, but in many areas, more than 50 percent of students qualify for subsidized meals at school.

In Arlington, more than 30 percent of students qualify for subsidized meals at school.

But most of the students who counted on school meals during the school year are not in school for the summer.

LETTER

Uninspiring Romper Room

To the Editor:

I would like to respond to U.S. Rep. Don Beyer's column titled "Help Reduce Gun Violence" in the June 30 issue of the Mount Vernon Gazette. Unlike the congressman, I was not moved and inspired by the Democrat "sit-in" in the House of Representatives.

Acting like spoiled children, they turned the floor of the House into a rerun of Romper Room so they could distract from the real cause of violence in Orlando. Not once did I hear them mention violent Islamic jihadists.

If Congressman Beyer is really serious about curbing violence, then he should support HR 3892 to ban the Muslim Brotherhood by designating it a terrorist organization. The pro-jihad (and stealth sharia) Muslim Brotherhood gave rise to Hamas, Al Qaida and other terrorist groups. The FBI supports this bill because elements of the Brotherhood show up in almost every terrorist case they investigate. Even other Muslims understand the Brotherhood's danger and have outlawed it in Saudi Arabia, Egypt, the UAE.

So Congressman Beyer, what will it be? More petulant preschoolers in Congress conspiring to further erode the constitutional rights of U.S. citizens or elected representatives (and public servants) doing what is right and necessary to keep Americans safe in accordance with their oath of office?

Hollin Hall Automotive Supports 9/11 Heroes Run

Annual race to be held Sept. 10.

Tom Harvey, owner of Hollin Hall Automotive located at 7926 Fort Hunt Road, presented a check on June 20 to Jim O'Farrell, race director of the 2nd Annual 9/11 Heroes Run. The Heroes Run is being held on Saturday, Sept. 10, at 9 a.m. at Carl Sandburg Elementary School on Fort Hunt Road and honors the local first responder and military communities. Last year's race had more than 1,500 runners, walkers, volunteers and spectators along with dozens of corporate sponsors.

The 9/11 Heroes Run is a 5K race series held each September in more than 50 cities and towns across the United States with the support of local volunteers and the Travis Manion Foundation (TMF) (www.travismanion.org). Its purpose is to bring communities together to remember those lost on 9/11 and in the wars since, honor the sacrifices of military and first responders, and raise funds to provide needed support for them.

Travis Manion lived in the Fort Hunt area until age 10. He attended Hollin Meadows Elementary School, played football for Fort Hunt Youth Athletic Association and lived in a house just a few blocks from Hollin Hall Automotive. He attended the Naval Academy, where he was a top wrestler, leader and individual known for being a midship-man who consistently demonstrated moral courage, integrity, leadership and service. He was a Marine Corps 1st Lieutenant in 2007 and member of the Marine Corps' 1st Reconnaissance Battalion when he was killed in Iraq by a sniper while pulling two fellow Marines to safety during an ambush. Due to his actions, each of his teammates survived the firefight and Manion was posthumously awarded the silver star. His family founded TMF to honor his sacrifice and the sacrifices of all military members and first responders.

According to Jim O'Farrell, "Travis Manion lived by the motto, 'If Not Me, Then Who ...' and through the 9/11 Heroes Run, we hope to provide a community event where people can come out, have fun and remember those we lost on 9/11 and since then."

O'Farrell, who has lived in the Fort Hunt area since 1996, also attended the Naval Academy and his roommate was a member of the elite SEAL Team Six when he was diagnosed with a brain tumor. After his roommate died, O'Farrell vowed to dedicate his spare time to doing the things his roommate would have done, like starting a 9/11 Heroes Run.

Travis Manion

Harvey had similar reasons for wanting to support the Heroes Run. Harvey's family has a history of military service. His dad landed on Omaha Beach in the deadly first wave on D-Day, June 6, 1944. For 50 years, Harvey didn't know exactly what his dad had done in World War II, until an article was written by a fellow soldier to commemorate the 50th Anniversary of D-Day that mentioned his dad. Military service continued in Harvey's family when his oldest brother, Butch, became a Force Recon Marine during Vietnam. He died while attempting to rescue his fellow Marines who had become trapped behind enemy lines.

According to Harvey, "I'm proud to sponsor the 9/11 Heroes Run as a way to say thank you to the men and women who serve our country on a daily basis both past and present. And the Heroes Run is a terrific event too."

The theme of the event is to "Honor the Fallen By Challenging The Living."

This year's race proceeds go to TMF, Fairfax County Explorer Post 2252, which meets at West Potomac High School, and the Armed Services Arts Partnership (ASAP). Race Committee members include: Cindy Anderson, Karin Kulinski, Walt

The local 9/11 Heroes Run is supported by members of the Fairfax County Fire Department, Police Department, the Fort Hunt Youth Athletic Association, Alexandria Cars & Coffee and dozens of corporate sponsors including IHOP, Starbucks, Safeway, Mercedes Benz of Alexandria, Enterprise Rent-A-Car, the Village Hardware and Hollin Hall Automotive.

ACCT Presents 'The Dixie Swim Club'

It's a little "Steel Magnolias" meets "Same Time Next Year" meets "Golden Girls" and "On Golden Pond"

BY STEVE HIBBARD
THE GAZETTE

Aldersgate Church Community Theater (ACCT) is presenting "The Dixie Swim Club" from July 8-24. It's the story of five Southern women, whose friendships began many years ago on their college swim team, who set aside a long weekend every August to recharge those relationships. Free from husbands, children and jobs, they meet at the same beach cottage on North Carolina's Outer Banks to catch up, laugh and meddle in each others lives. It's a little bit of "Steel Magnolias" meets "Same Time Next Year," but it resonates with notes of "Golden Girls" and even "On Golden Pond."

As their lives unfold and the years pass, these women increasingly rely on one another, through advice and raucous repartee, to get through the challenges (men, sex, marriage, parenting, divorce, aging) that life flings at them. And when fate throws a wrench into one of their lives in the second act, these friends, proving the enduring power of teamwork, rally round their own with the strength and love that takes this comedy in a poignant and surprising direction.

Producer Jean Coyle said this is a story of lifelong friendship growing ever deeper despite very different personalities among the women. "There are some hilarious moments, as well as some truly poignant ones," she said. "The audience will identify with the characters and laugh and cry with them as if they, the audience, were right in the middle of the Pemberton College Swimming Team. I hope the audience will leave pondering their own friendships and those they love — and remember to tell them of that love."

Director Eddie Page said he decided to direct "The Dixie Swim Club" because, growing up in Hampton, Va., he was always traveling to Nags Head, N.C., in the Outer Banks. "In fact, for many of those years, it was a "guys" weekend to mile marker nine at the See Sea Hotel. When I first started reading the script it was so contagious I couldn't put it down."

He added: "Good friends stick together through the good and bad times, but friendship doesn't just happen, it has to be maintained. These ladies can teach us all something about what we need to do to keep these lifelong bonds strong."

As far as challenges, he said the play takes place over a 32-year period and the actors have to "age" through this time in looks, tone, and attitude. "Getting that balance correct is both a challenge and an opportunity to explore how we age."

He added: "The play is a celebration of friendships — the kind that last a lifetime and endure through joy and hardship. The audience should feel like the sixth silent roommate — right there in the beach house."

Janette Moman plays the role of Dinah Grayson, a sharp-witted, wise-cracking, high-powered Southern lawyer who enjoys these weekends with the girls to let her hair down. "She enjoys her martinis and has not been very successful when it comes to love and relationships until midlife," she said. "She and Lexie have a special bond being the only two in the group who have not had children. She considers these ladies the only real family she has and finds ways to take care of them when they aren't aware of it."

She said just like the Dixie Swim Club, relationships among friends are complex. "And my relationships with this wonderful cast of women has had its ups and downs. We have laughed, we have cried, we have dealt with each others' weaknesses, benefited from each others' strengths, and learned that togetherness and understanding make us better."

As far as audience takeaways, she said: "I believe audiences will appreciate this show because these are strong women who are resilient and smart, powerful, yet vulnerable. Friends make you stronger. Relationships are what life is all about."

Lise Downing plays the role of Jeri Neal McFeeley, the most upbeat and empathetic of the characters. "Jeri Neal's life changes along the way bring her from naive innocence to grounded maturity," she said.

She said it was a challenge "Adapting my dry New England humor and realist attitude to Jeri Neal's perky Southern optimism ... I hope people are enticed to take a weekend out of their busy lives to stop and smell the biscuits."

Lorraine Bouchard plays the role of Vernadette Sims, a fun-loving gal who enjoys the annual special weekends as a great escape from the black cloud of rotten luck that follows her. "I adore Vernadette. She's feisty. She embraces who she is and stands up for what she believes. I am very lucky to play a gal who can make you both laugh and cry," she said.

She added: "I hope that the audience members will reach out and call their old buddies. Treasure those rare, long friendships that cheer us on and support us along the bumps in our lives."

Tina Anderson plays the role of Sheree Hollinger, the cheerleader, the All-American mom, group leader, health nut, and eternal tomboy in the group. "Seriously, I can really identify with Sheree, and I really wish I had her energy," she said.

She added: "I hope that the audience is so delighted by this bone-tickling, heart-warming story of lifelong friendships that they will feel compelled to re-connect with old friends after the show."

Aldersgate Church Community Theater (ACCT) is presenting "The Dixie Swim Club" from July 8-24. Showtimes are Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m.; Sunday matinees at 2 p.m. Tickets are $12 and $15. Aldersgate Church Community Theater is located at 1301 Collingwood Road, Alexandria. Visit <http://acctonline.org>.

Mount Vernon Local Thrives in Women's Professional Football

Brownson leads D.C. Divas back to Conference Championship.

BY AARON LUNDMARK
THE GAZETTE

Playing the game of football professionally is something not many people get the opportunity to do. However, one player in particular that's making a push for women's football, is Mount Vernon local Callie Brownson.

In this case, professional women's football is alive in the D.C. area, as the D.C. Divas women's professional football team is headed back to the conference championship after defeating the Pittsburgh Passion 41-29 in Landover, Md. last Saturday.

Callie Brownson attended Mount Vernon High School, graduating in 2008, where she played softball for all four years and now gives her time there as a coach as well.

Callie Brownson is in her seventh season with the Divas as a defensive back. She also won a gold medal with team USA in the IFAF tournament in Finland in 2013.

She knew she wanted to play football at a young age.

"It's different because there is no youth or developmental phase of women's football, so it's tough," said Callie Brownson. "But just playing while I was growing up, I fell in love with it."

She was able to play in the Fairfax County Youth Football League and her father, Bruce Brownson, mentioned at that age she was playing guard and defensive end.

Callie's father no doubt is her biggest supporter on and off the field.

"My dad was a single dad and I watched him wake up every morning and go work hard for us," said Callie Brownson. "He's always been so supportive of everything I've ever wanted to do."

Bruce Brownson, who has been coaching his whole life, has become not only his daughter's biggest fan, but every member of the D.C. Divas biggest fan as well.

"I'm honestly like the team dad," said Bruce Brownson. "I pour myself into this. I've been exposed to a lot of great people over these last years and to see these girls blend together and become sisters is really something special."

According to Bruce Brownson, he's only missed a total of two games over the seven seasons his daughter has been playing in D.C.

For those people that question the competitiveness of women's football and women's sports in general, both Brownsons assure it is every bit as competitive as any men's sport.

"When I first started watching I never knew of the culture of women's football," said Bruce Brownson. "They all love the game. It's an unbelievable group of women who play the game because they love the sport. That's why I do what I can to help out."

The women of the teams don't get paid to make a living by playing football; they play because of their love for the sport. Mostly every player has a job outside of playing football.

"Women love to play and the passion we have is just as good as any other sport," said Callie Brownson. "It's rigorous and time consuming, but that all speaks volumes for the toughness of these women."

She also can't get enough of all the support she does get from her father.

"He's fallen in love with the same thing I have," said Callie Brownson.

As for the upcoming weeks for the D.C. Divas, they have a chance to go back to their second consecutive Super Bowl, a game in which they won last year by defeating Chicago. No women's professional football team has ever repeated as a Super Bowl champion, so by claiming another title the Divas could be the first to go back to back.

The Divas' general manager, Rich Daniel, who is in his 12th year as the general manager, seems to be optimistic about the next few weeks ahead.

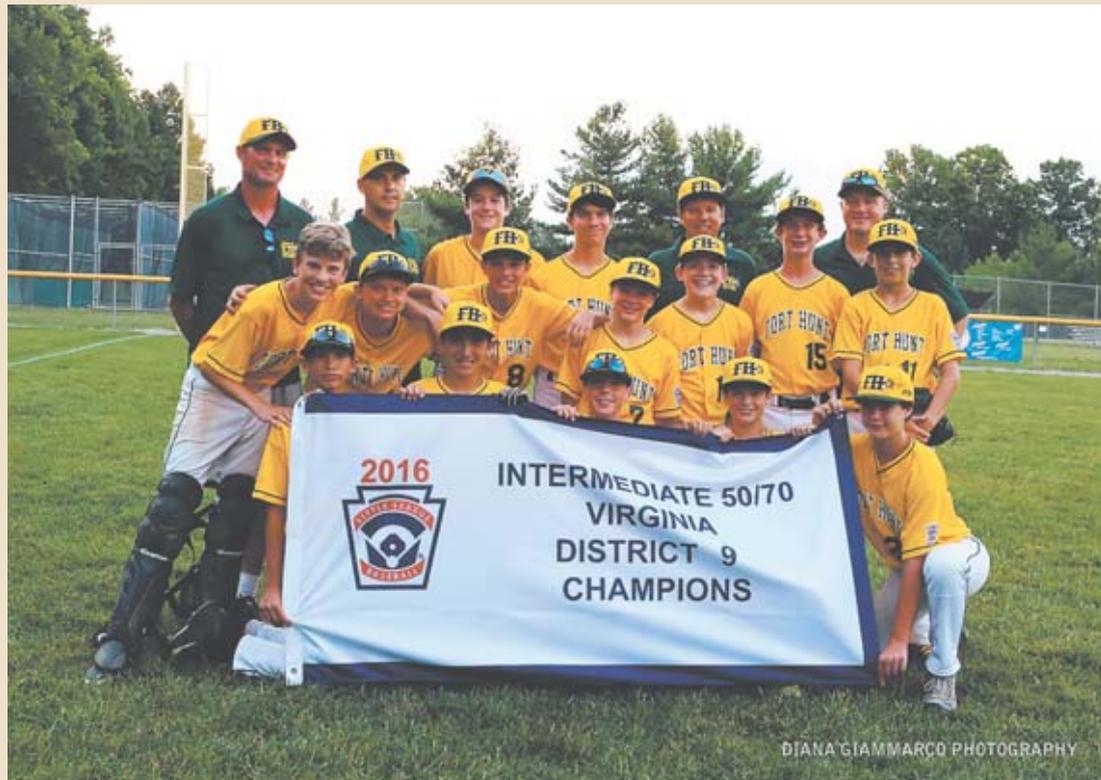

"I think the mood around the team this year is confidence," said Daniel. "I think we have a very nice mix of young girls and veterans. We're more athletic than we were last year."

The Divas appear to be in good shape with Brownson on the back end helping out the defense.

"We knew that going in we had a shot to repeat," said Callie Brownson. "We're motivated by the fact we have that opportunity to win again."

The Divas (8-1) will host their archrivals, the Boston Renegades, at Oxon Hill High School on July 9 at 5 p.m. in the WFA's Eastern Conference championship game.

"My expectation is that we'll finish strong," said Daniel. "We've worked too hard and put in too much time to not finish strong."

Strategies for Preventing Concussions This Summer

Area physician is pioneering traumatic brain injury treatment.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL

Summer has been dubbed trauma season by health care professionals. Warm temperatures make swimming, biking, hiking, waterskiing and other outdoor activities irresistible during the summer, but this also means a rise in concussions and other injuries. In fact, every 19 seconds someone in the United States sustains a traumatic brain injury (TBI).

The National Institutes of Health define a concussion as a mild traumatic brain injury caused by an external force, such as a blow to the head. Symptoms can include a headache or neck pain, nausea, ringing in the ears, dizziness, or fatigue, while serious symptoms include seizures, trouble walking or sleeping, weakness, numbness, or decreased coordination, repeated vomiting or nausea, confusion, and slurred speech.

Michael Lewis, M.D. is the president of the Brain Health Education and Research Foundation in Potomac, Md. Lewis, who retired from the U.S. Army after more than 30 years of service, is dedicated to improving public health. He spent the last five years of his military career working on nutritional interventions to help prevent and treat brain injuries from physical and psychological trauma.

His interest in brain injury treatment was sparked by the 2006 explosion at the Sago coal mine in Sago, W.Va. The blast and collapse trapped 13 miners for nearly two days.

"Only one guy survived," said Lewis. "They used high dose omega-3 fish oil to help his brain recover from carbon monoxide poison. I wondered if it would help soldiers recover from traumatic brain injury. I put together a program to do that kind of research for the military. How can we improve from the inside out for any soldier or athlete who is at risk for head injury?"

Lewis' focus is on the clinical use of omega-3 fatty acids for the prevention, acute treatment, and rehabilitation of brain injuries from traumatic brain injury and concussions, stroke, PTSD, and other conditions.

On a more personal level, Lewis' 16-year-old son Isaac attends Winston Churchill High School and plays two sports often associated with concussions: football and lacrose. Lewis says his son has never sustained a concussion, but he is working with the school's athletic staff on strategies to prevent concussions among athletes. He also makes sure his son takes fish oil every day.

"The value you get from sports far outweighs the risks, but we should mitigate the risks as much as possible," Lewis said. "I implement this with my own 16-year-old son." He also advises his patients to "take a fish oil supplement every day or eat good sourced salmon."

Symptoms of a concussion might not be immediately apparent. "The more subtle symptoms are those that appear days or weeks after an injury," said Lewis. "The personality might change, a person might become more irritable, have brain fog or have trouble thinking, or their head feels like it's stuffed with cotton."

Among the signs that one might have sustained a concussion are a "loss of consciousness, followed by marked confusion," said Robert Wade, Ph.D., dean of Nursing, Northern Virginia Community College's Medical Education Campus, "Most likely a headache too."

No two injuries are the same. "Each concussion is different, which means the same child could have different symptoms during different concussions," said Ryan Wildenhain, head of Sports Medicine at Marymount University.

When students are back in school, parents should watch for another common in-indicator of concussions in student athletes. "One of my warning signs are grades that are falling off," said Lewis. "A straight 'A' student whose grades drop is a warning sign. A good kid who all of a sudden becomes irritable should prompt questioning. Kids are not always good at telling, they tend to want to play through it — it's part of our culture."

Wearing proper protective equipment is recommended as a way to prevent concussions. "Minimizing the risk of a child sustaining a concussion is extremely difficult and dependent on the type of activities the child does," said Wildenhain. "Every child should be properly educated on how concussions occur, the signs and/or symptoms of a concussion, and how to avoid dangerous situations for the specific activity they intend to do."

Lewis warns that even protective equipment isn't foolproof.

"Even if you're wearing a football, hockey or motorcycle helmet, when you hit something, another helmet or another head, it causes injury," he said. "If coaches see anything that is any way questionable they should get them off the field and out of harm's way. I think it's a parent's duty to stop the game and pull the kid out of a game if they see something that a coach doesn't see or doesn't respond to."

Healthy Summer Entertaining

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE GAZETTE

While summer means weekends filled with trips to the beach, backyard grilling and al fresco dinner parties, the food that accompanies these gatherings is often laden with fat and calories (think ice cream, potato salad, hot dogs, s'mores and summer cocktails) and can wreak havoc on a healthy balanced diet.

"Summer here is by the far the best time for food in the Mid-Atlantic region and it goes all the way through September," said Nick Phelps of From the Farmer. "Unfortunately, that's when most people are out of town."

An online food delivery company, From the Farmer delivers fresh, primarily local produce, sustainable meats and artisanal pantry items to clients in Maryland and Northern Virginia, including Arlington, Alexandria and Fairfax County.

Phelps recommends serving plenty of fresh fruit when planning summer entertaining. Fruit has a high water content and is not only refreshing, it's also filling and can satisfy a craving for sweets. "The most exciting [locally grown producer] are fruits like peaches and plums, which come out mid-summer," Phelps said. "There are still some spring produce like strawberries and blueberries."

Summer ushers in fresh vegetables that are bursting with color and packed with fiber. Eating them raw or cooked minimally helps preserve the amount of fiber and vitamins.

"I think entertaining is easier during the summer," said Terri Carr of Terri's Table in Potomac, Md. "There's so much available that can be cooked or prepared easily, and there's just so much that you can do with the produce and the fresh herbs that we have in season now."

The bounty even yields alternatives to ubiquitous ice cream. "You can make sorbet with fruit and beautiful berries," said Carr.

Auxiliary on Patrol

Auxiliary is a great way to serve my community. Among other areas, I have chosen to serve through volunteer teaching, including our monthly 'About Boating Safely' course and by volunteer conducting on-the-water patrols in the Potomac River and the Chesapeake Bay."

Miller said he joined in the first place to do something useful with his time, and also to volunteer for the Coast Guard, to which he said he feels indebted to in some ways.

"I wanted to do something useful, connected to boating, when I returned to Alexandria after living aboard my boat for 10 years," Miller said. "I always carried an EPIRB (emergency position indicating radio beacon) to use if my boat should be sinking. I expected to be rescued by the Coast Guard. Also, I owed the Coast Guard a debt of gratitude. In 1977, the Coast Guard had rescued 17 soldiers under my command from a nuclear power barge which got caught in a storm off Cape Hatteras and was in danger of sinking. Now that I have almost 15 years with the Auxiliary, I'm thinking that I should postpone my retirement until I reach age 84. That will pay back a year with the Auxiliary for each soldier saved by the Coast Guard."

He continues his involvement with Flotilla 25-08 for four specific reasons. "The more I think about why I joined the Auxiliary, I think about the four things that are the basis for service in the Auxiliary: helping to save lives, increasing my own boating skills, supporting the Coast Guard, and fun and fellowship — it's just good to be working with like-minded people," Miller said.
