WFCM Seeks Community's Help Providing Backpacks

Hoping to furnish them for 2,000 local schoolchildren.

BY BONNIE HOBBS

Western Fairfax Christian Ministries (WFCM) is once more collecting new backpacks for local students in need. It hopes to provide nearly 2,000 backpacks for qualified, low-income children attending 23 different schools in the Centreville, Chantilly and Westfield high school pyramids, plus Mountain View High.

But it can't do it alone; it needs the community's help. So it's asking area residents and businesses to donate new backpacks.

"Not many people realize that approximately 56,000 FCPS students are living in poverty and cannot afford basic school supplies and backpacks," said Jennie Bush, WFCM's Community Outreach Manager. "We see families struggling to pay bills and put food on the table, and the stress of getting their children ready for a new school year is heartbreaking."

So, for the sixth year, the nonprofit WFCM is partnering with Collect for Kids in a countywide effort. It's collaborating with Fairfax County, FCPS and a variety of other, local, nonprofit organizations to furnish high-quality, school backpacks to students in need. And thanks to KidsRFirst, a nonprofit dedicated to education, they'll be filled with school supplies.

"While all students need new school supplies each year, if they receive appropriately sized, good-quality backpacks, they won't need new ones every year," said Bush. "Typically, about one-third of the students on free and reduced-price lunches will receive new backpacks at school."

WFCM provided 1,995 backpacks last year. This time, Westfield High didn't need as many as before, but the amount of backpacks requested by Virginia Run, London Towne and Centreville elementary schools increased.

"We are so fortunate for the community's willingness to help us help these families," said Bush. "We have many churches that have agreed to sponsor an entire school – or two or three – to provide for all their backpack needs. For example, this year, Centreville Baptist and Centreville Presbyterian churches are working together to donate 200 backpacks for students at London Towne."

In addition, some businesses have contributed financially so WFCM can take advantage of backpack sales to help fill in gaps. And this year, it'll be receiving free haircut vouchers in August from Hair Cuttery so its clients' children may get new haircuts before school.

"We're so grateful for the church, business and individual donors who each do a little to help meet the many needs in the community," said Bush. "It truly is an example of neighbors helping neighbors."

She said one way for local businesses to participate is to hold a backpack drive at the office. Many stores have sales in July and August, and shoppers may take advantage of them for their own children and buy a few extra backpacks to donate to their office's collection.

Beginning Monday, Aug. 8, until Friday, Aug. 19, backpacks may be delivered, Monday-Friday, from 9 a.m.-2 p.m., to WFCM's new location at 4511 Daly Drive, Suite J, (off Willard Road) in Chantilly. Its new office and food pantry there will provide a bigger, more flexible space enabling WFCM to better serve its clients.

"Currently, we still need 250 backpacks for elementary-school children and 150

large-sized backpacks for middle- and high-school students," said Bush. "We still have three schools completely uncovered and one high school just partially supplied."

Backpacks should be new, good quality, with padded bottoms and shoulder straps. They should not be sling style, have wheels or be decorated with cartoon characters or corporate logos.

The need is greatest at high-school level; these backpacks should be 20x14x8 inches. Middle-school backpacks should be 18x13x8, and elementary-school backpacks should be 16x12x5.

Bush noted that Costco sells a large, two-compartment, quality backpack from High Sierra for under $20, which will meet the needs of middle- and high-school students. "We need the community's help," she said. "Good backpacks can really make a positive difference in a child's self-esteem, as well as his or her success in school."

For directions to WFCM's new location, call 703-988-9656. Bring backpack donations to the back door of the food pantry. For more information about the backpack drive or ways to help, contact Bush at jbush@wfcmv.org.

Wolfe Sentenced to 41 Years in Prison

Convicted of the March 2001 murder of Danny Petrole.

BONNIE HOBBS
CENTRE VIEW

Except for the prosecutors, no one involved in Justin Wolfe's murder sentencing last week left the courtroom happy. The victim's family still grieves a son, Wolfe's family continues to have a hole in it and Wolfe, himself, has decades more to serve in prison.

He was sentenced last Wednesday, July 20, in Prince William County Circuit Court for his role in a crime that happened 15 years ago – the gangland-style slaying of Danny Petrole. For his charge of first-degree murder, Wolfe received 33 years behind bars, plus five years and three years, respectively, for conspiracy to distribute marijuana and use of a firearm in the commission of a felony.

The sentences are to run consecutively, for a total of 41 years, minus the 15 years he's already served in prison, leaving him 26 more years to serve. (However, with good behavior, Wolfe, now 35, could possibly be released in his 50s).

"This murder was worse than most," said Fairfax County Commonwealth's Attorney Ray Morrogh. "It wasn't the product of a flash judgment and emotions – this was planned."

"My son was taken from me and my heart was broken."

— Jane Petrole, victim's mother

Wolfe

The crime happened March 15, 2001 and involved Centreville High grad Petrole, 21, and Chantilly High grads Wolfe, then 19, and Owen Barber IV, 21. Drugs and money were at the heart of it, and authorities said Wolfe hired Barber to kill Petrole.

At the time, all three were deep into drug dealing. Barber sold low-grade marijuana, called "swag," Petrole sold high-grade "chronic" marijuana and Wolfe bought it from both of them and dealt it to others.

During Wolfe's initial trial in January 2002, Petrole's roommate said Petrole spent $360,000 a month for 100 pounds of chronic sent to him from Seattle. But he also made big money selling it. After expenses, testified the roommate, Petrole pocketed anywhere from $100,000 to $140,000 a month from his drug enterprise.

Meanwhile, Wolfe owed Petrole $65,000 for marijuana Petrole had fronted him. But Wolfe didn't have the cash to pay him for it so, according to his written confession, he asked Barber to kill him. Barber did so, pumping nine bullets into Petrole outside the victim's Bristow townhouse.

When Wolfe was first tried, his charge was murder-for-hire, a capital offense; and in June 2002, he was sentenced to death. He was also given 33 years for drug and firearm charges.

Barber, who pleaded guilty to the murder, received 38 years in prison. As the triggerman, he, too, would have faced the death penalty but, in return for his testimony against Wolfe, prosecutors reduced his charge from capital murder to first-degree murder.

Over the years, Wolfe maintained his innocence and, after a series of events (see sidebar), he was retried again on slightly different charges. He was convicted in March after submitting a written confession to Prince William Circuit Court Judge Carroll Weimer Jr.

At the outset of Wolfe's sentencing last week, Petrole's parents both testified. "March 15, 2001 was the worst day of my life," said his mother, Jane Petrole. "My son was taken from me and my heart was broken. But I have faith in Jesus and believe we'll be together again, one day."

"What I don't understand is how Justin could have done it. [When he was with Danny that night], he shook Danny's hand, looked him in the eye and sent him to his death. And when he heard that Danny had died, he celebrated. Who does this?"

Petrole's father, former secret-service agent Dan Petrole Sr., spoke next, while his wife, two other sons and their wives sat in the front row and listened. "Danny was such a special part of our family," he said. "And Wolfe, Barber and Petrole: A tale of large-scale drug-dealing, money and murder.

BY BONNIE HOBBS
CENTRE VIEW

On March 15, 2001, Centreville High grad Danny Petrole, 21, was shot and killed outside his Bristow townhouse. The crime involved drug-dealing and money, and the shooter – Chantilly High grad Owen Barber IV, 21, who pleaded guilty in court – received 38 years in prison.

Largely on Barber's testimony, Chantilly grad Justin Wolfe was convicted of hiring Barber for the deed and, in June 2002, was sentenced to death. He was also given 33 years in prison for drug and firearm charges.

The murder uncovered a major drug ring that had been operating for some time in the Centreville/Chantilly area. Hundreds of thousands of dollars changed hands regularly, and Wolfe, Barber and Petrole were up to their eyeballs in it.

According to authorities and Wolfe's confession, Petrole had fronted Wolfe some $65,000 worth of marijuana, but Wolfe, then almost 20, didn't have the money to pay him back. Wolfe said he'd been spending his own drug-dealing proceeds on cocaine and alcohol. He also said he and Barber planned Petrole's death and agreed that Barber would kill him, they'd split the drugs Petrole was carrying and Wolfe would forgive a debt Barber owed him.

Wolfe wrote that, on the night of Petrole's death, Petrole sold him some marijuana and left. Barber then stalked him by car, while being in constant contact with Wolfe via cell phone. So when Petrole arrived home, Barber was waiting. He fired 10 shots from a 9 mm Smith & Wesson through Petrole's passenger-side window, with all but one bullet finding their mark.

Driving away, Barber tossed the gun into a nearby intersection, where it was quickly found. Both he and Wolfe then fled the state – Barber to California and Wolfe to Florida – but were arrested that April. Meanwhile, Petrole's murder stunned the community because he was the son of a former Secret Service agent who lived in Virginia Run. And on the surface, he was just a college student who worked part-time delivering flowers.

But when police searched Petrole's belongings following his death, they discovered $965 in his wallet and $17,460 in the trunk of his car. In his townhouse were guns, $120,366 in cash and nearly half a million dollars' worth of ecstasy and marijuana. And during Wolfe's first trial, much of the testimony came from young, self-admitted drug dealers and users in the local area.

In June 2002, Wolfe was sentenced to death and spent 11 years on death row. But because Prince William County prosecutors deliberately withheld information that would have impeached Barber's testimony, in 2011 and 2012, two federal courts vacated Wolfe's convictions and sentences.

Initially facing the death penalty, Barber testified he didn't know Petrole, but killed him because Wolfe hired him. It was later revealed that prosecutors and a detective influenced Barber to say those things in exchange for his charge being reduced from capital to first-degree murder. And Barber, himself, later recanted his testimony implicating Wolfe.

During a November 2010 hearing in Federal Court in Norfolk, U.S. District Court Judge Raymond Jackson heard evidence not presented previously. Subsequently, in his July 2011 decision to overturn Wolfe's convictions and sentences, Jackson said Wolfe's due-process rights had been violated before and during his capital-murder trial.

In August 2012, citing "prosecutorial misconduct" by Prince William County prosecutors Paul Ebert and Rick Conway, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit upheld Jackson's ruling. But with Fairfax County Commonwealth's Attorney Ray Morrogh appointed as special prosecutor, Prince William County decided to retry Wolfe.

Help Children Arrive at School Prepared

Many opportunities to contribute; tax-free back-to-school shopping is Aug. 5-7 across Virginia.

The first day of school each year is fraught with anticipation and anxiety. Many local students will be concerned about what they wear, who they will see, what it will be like. They've already had multiple shopping trips, online and otherwise, to be sure they have the supplies and extras they need.

We live in an area where many, if not most, families have the means and desire to do almost whatever it takes to give their children the best chances for success.

But for thousands of students, families lack the financial resources to equip them for success on the first day of school and beyond.

In our affluent area, there are many poor families, families who are barely making it, families who are not able to indulge their children in a shopping spree before school begins, families who are already having trouble making up for the meals their children would be getting at school.

In Fairfax County Public Schools, more than 27 percent of more than 184,000 students are poor enough to qualify for subsidized meals. That's more than 50,000 children in Fairfax County who are going through the summer without their usual access to breakfast and lunch. For many of those children, having a fully equipped backpack on the first day of school is out of reach.

In the City of Alexandria, about 60 percent of the Alexandria Public Schools students are poor enough to qualify for subsidized meals. That's more than 8,000 of the city's 13,000-plus students.

In Arlington, more than 32 percent of the county's 23,000-plus students are poor enough to receive subsidized meals; more than 7,000 students.

Help these students get started on the right foot by contributing to one of the many local backpack drives.

Virginia sales tax holiday for school supplies and clothing is Aug. 5-7, 2016. Purchases of most school supplies, clothing and footwear are exempt from the Virginia sales tax. Each eligible individual school supply item must be priced at $20 or less, and each eligible article of clothing and footwear must be priced at $100 or less. See www.tax.virginia.gov/content/sales-tax-holiday.

A Tale of Drug-Dealing, Money and Murder

The proceedings remained in Circuit Court there and, this time, the charges included felony murder and engaging in a continuous criminal enterprise. And once again, Wolfe faced the death penalty – all the while maintaining his innocence.

However, justice moved slowly. With a slew of pre-trial motions, several changes in defense attorneys and a failed attempt at a Supreme Court hearing, the case dragged on for years with no end in sight – until Wolfe made a surprising confession. In a March 19 letter in which he spoke directly to Petrole's parents, he apologized for his actions and admitted giving the go-ahead to Barber to kill their son.

Wolfe said he'd fallen behind in the money he owed Petrole for shipments of marijuana to sell to his own customers, and he realized the best way to end his debt was to get rid of Petrole. "I am responsible for Danny's death, even though I did not pull the trigger," wrote Wolfe. "If I had not been involved, Danny would never have been killed."

Circuit Court Judge Carroll Weimer Jr. officially accepted the letter into evidence on March 29. Meanwhile, Wolfe's attorneys made a plea deal with the prosecution, taking the death penalty off the table. Wolfe then pleaded guilty to first-degree murder, use of a firearm in the commission of a felony and conspiracy to distribute marijuana. And his sentencing range was set at 29-41 years.

"We are not the sum total of the worst thing we ever did, nor is Justin Wolfe."

— Joseph Flood, defense attorney

Police Investigate Three Reported Shooting Incidents

Detectives from the Sully District Fairfax County Police station continue to investigate three incidents of homes being fired on in Clifton and Fairfax Station. They don't know yet whether the event are related, but don't believe the acts of violence to be random either.

A 55-year-old male victim reported his house on Henderson Court in Clifton was fired on twice: once on July 15 around 6 p.m. and again around 2 p.m. on July 19.

In the most recent incident, police said the man reported someone struck his garage with about six shots. They added that a white sedan was seen leaving the area around that time.

During both incidents in Clifton, the victim's family was at home, however no one was injured.

The second location, and third firing incident, was at a home on Yates Ford Drive in Fairfax Station on July 16. Police said investigators determined shots were fired between 2 and 3 a.m. that morning. The side of the family's house and garage were struck, with two windows being damaged.

The 56-year-old male victim and his family were also home at the time; again, no one was injured.

In this case, police said, a dark-colored sport utility vehicle was spotted leaving the area.

Virginia Run Hosts Season Ending Meet

The Virginia Run Riptide hosted their last NVSL A meet of 2016 and on an oppressively hot morning the Poplar Tree Pirates prevailed 225 to 195 in what was an exciting see-saw contest.

The 8 and under swimmers were standouts once again. With two new best times, Kevin O'Connor captured a first in freestyle and a second in breast, while Nicholas Harris swam for third in back and second in fly. Andrew Harkin, swimming a personal best, was second in back and Casey Konchar was third in free after taking 1.97 seconds off his previous pace. Cooper Hutt was third in breast and Ewan McDonough third in fly. Charis Roundtree won her freestyle event and was second in fly as her teammates Carolin Friess in backstroke and Jenna Van Buren in breaststroke swam for thirds.

For the 9-10's, Charles Beamon placed second in free with a new best time and swam for third in back. William Whitton was impressive taking second in back and fly as he swam to new personal bests in both strokes. Davis Collinsworth swam to second in breast and third in fly, while third places were won by Samuel Roundtree in free and Griffin Osterhout in breast. Posting two best times, Megan Marco took third in free and fly. Grace Ramey swam for third in back and Neha Srinivasan shaved 2.49 second off her breaststroke time to capture third.

The 11-12 year olds swam with enthusiasm as Andrew Boyle dropped 1.8 seconds and powered his way to first in butterfly. Jason Cheifetz secured a second in free and a third in breast, while Owen Thomas placed second in back and breast. Maddie Whitton was a double winner taking first in free and fly. Isabelle Cogan set a new best time to win backstroke and proceeded to take third in breast. Caitlin Kelliher was second in back and fly, while Emily Jon in free and Valerie Tonnu in back swam for third places. First place finishes for the 13-14 group were achieved by Anthony Arcomona in free and fly and with a new best swim William Beamon won breaststroke. William also placed second in back with a best time, while teammates Matt Guidash swam for second in free and fly and David Barron a second in breast. Important third place points were captured by Noah Schettini in free, Anthony Tonthat in back and Jack Liskey in breast.

Winning points for the 15-18 year olds were Leo Wang with a first in breast and a third in fly, Nick McGrath with a second in free and breast, Patrick Kearney third in free and Geoffrey Eisenhart third in backstroke. Chloe Hicks won her free and back heats and Mia Newkirk with new best times won the breast and butterfly. Third place were won by Didi Pace in free and Sara Boyle in back.

As the meet moved into the relay events the Riptide attempted to overtake the Pirates and despite winning a majority of the relay races, finished short of the winning margin.

Saturday, July 30, Virginia Run will host their Divisional Meet, where the top two swimmers in each age category and in each stroke type in NVSL Division 4 will compete for awards and for the opportunity to qualify for the NVSL all-star championships.

Senior Dogs: Untold Stories

BY JOAN BRADY

Like many geriatrics, senior dogs in our area are illness survivors and living with a range of conditions including arthritis, hip dysplasia and chronic back pain. But nothing keeps them from enjoying their people, traveling, taking walks, napping and eating as many snacks as are made available.

While primary canine focus is limited to what goes on in their own backyards, some are paying attention to the election. And, if able to talk, they would offer some advice to the presidential candidates.

Sasha Marusin is concerned about the environment, "Pay attention to climate change, it's important for animals and humans." Max Kennedy has an opinion about Trump's proposed wall, "No walls (or leashes!), we all want to run free." Daisy Gilbert wants both candidates to do a better job of getting along, "I accept and love everyone. You should find a way to do the same."

And, quoting Senator Ted Cruz, Buddy Emami offers advice to voters for November, "Vote your conscience."

Daisy Gilbert: Age 10, Yellow Lab, Great Falls
Beloved by her young two-legged siblings, Daisy does all kinds of tricks for them. She rolls-over, gives hugs and balances a treat on her nose. She especially loves going to West Virginia where she gets to play with her biological sister.

Sasha Marusin: Age 14, Border Collie, Great Falls Sasha likes to hike with the family, when she isn't napping. Mom, Robin Marusin, says that if Sasha could talk, she would likely say her biggest regret was not having puppies.

Penny Hargroves: Age 12, Dachshund, Great Falls
Penny has two, twolegged sisters who adore her. When the girls were little, mom, Cindy Hargroves, would send Penny to wake up the youngest by licking her face.
The girls taught Penny to fetch a tissue for them when they sneeze. Her biggest adventure was when she crossed the stepping-stones at Difficult Run.

Lily Stowell: Age 14, Australian Shepherd, Great Falls
A retired agility champion, if Lily could talk, mom, Kathy Stowell, thinks she would likely ask, "Why won't you let me use the toilet, so I don't have to go outside?"

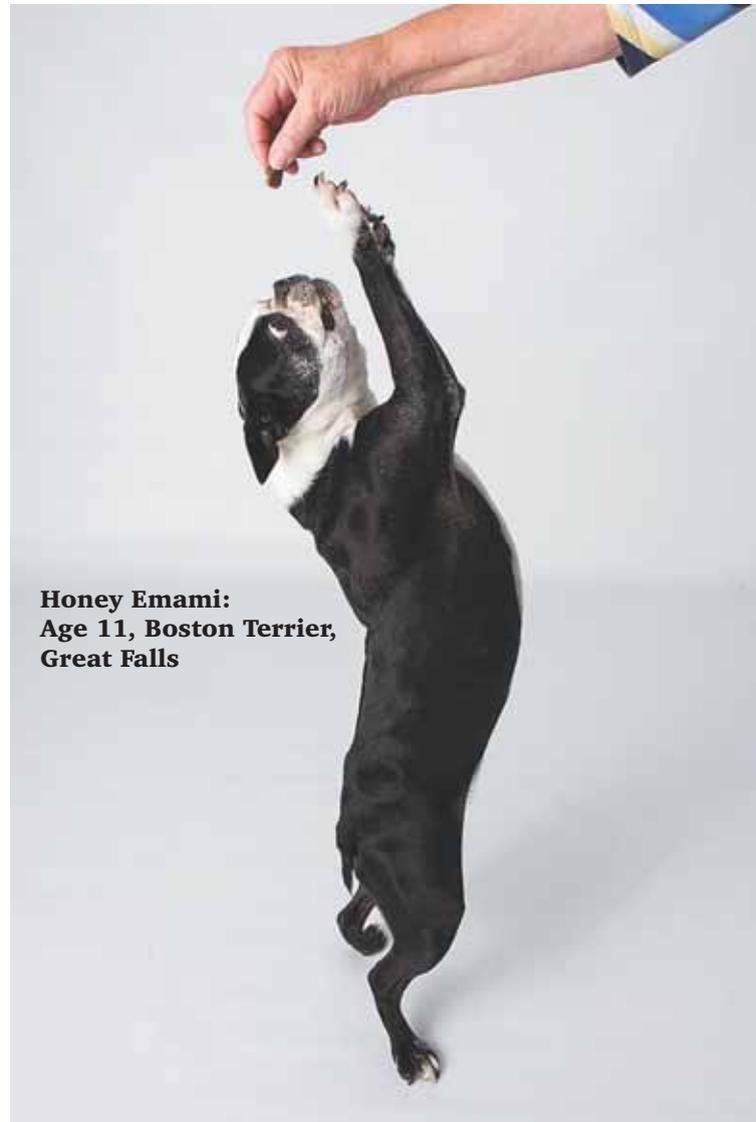

Max Saunders: Age 11, Boxer, Great Falls
Max enjoys riding in the car and his daily trips with his dad to Starbucks and Great Dogs in Great Falls. Mom, Danielle Saunders, says that if he could voice his biggest regret, it likely would be that the family got a puppy last year.

Max Kennedy: Age 12, Husky, Reston
Max won the heart of his foster mom, Tallie Kennedy, and never left. Despite his love of the beach, creeks and ponds, he hates baths. A picky eater, Max will only eat if his food includes a topping of cheese.

Fred and Hank Brady: 14 and 12, respectively, Beagles, Great Falls
Fred and Hank have both visited all 48 of the contiguous U.S. states. Now super-seniors, they spend more time sleeping than awake. Given their druthers, they would prefer to spend every waking moment eating.

Honey Emami: Age 11, Boston Terrier, Great Falls

There is some dispute as to whether Honey has had run-ins with badgers or raccoons, but for sure there have been two big fights. A young Honey prevailed in the first. But it was her brother, Buddy-the-beagle who took credit, bringing the trophy to mom and dad. If she could voice her regret, mom, Karen Emami, thinks it would be that she didn't kill the badger that got away.

Buddy Emami: Age 11, Beagle, Great Falls

Cancer survivor, Buddy, has no regrets. He lives a happy life with his sister, Honey Emami. Some words have to be spelled in front of Buddy, lest his expectations get raised, including any reference to his favorite, Great Falls p-a-r-k. Living up to his name, he is apparently a great buddy.

Cancer Patient Super Heroes

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

To say that cancer patients have to call upon superhuman qualities to fight their disease is, to those of us in the trenches, the most obvious and perhaps most under-appreciated fact. The emotional, physical, psychological and spiritual toll is excruciating at best and the tip of the iceberg at worst. The relentless, never-ending, life-threatening, roller coaster ride of highs and lows – and some in-betweens, is more than enough tumult to unsteady any man – or woman. And so I'd like to introduce some of the non-Hollywood/non-comic book super heroes for your consideration:

"Statman." Because of the seriousness of the underlying diagnosis, lab work is always ordered "stat," meaning top priority. "Statman" has the wherewithal to learn results quickly and not allow potentially negative results to affect his day-to-day activities. Much easier said than done.

"Stuperman." Because of the exhausting side effect of some heavy-duty chemotherapy infusions, the patient is often dazed and confused after treatment. Add in some ongoing sleep deprivation – and anxiety, and the patient's ability to get out of his or her own way is compromised. Yet, "Stuperman" endures, somehow. No longer can he leap tall buildings in a single bound, though.

"Iron-Deficiency Man." Because some chemotherapy obliterates both white and red blood cells, cancer patients are often terribly anemic and quite weak, and unable to fend for themselves. In effect, there is no fuel in the tank. Still, "Iron-Deficiency Man" manages to complete his most basic tasks: eating and going to the bathroom. Not without a struggle, though.

"Sedentary Man." Is able to stay in one place for hours, hardly moving. Nevertheless, given the extreme fatigue and the challenge of moving even 10 feet, "Sedentary Man" is still able to work the television remote, walk to the mailbox and pet the cats.

"Port Man." Due to the recurring nature of most chemotherapy (every three weeks, generally), often a device is implanted in the patient's chest to avoid potential vein collapse that regular intravenous injections – and their toxicity (lasting six hours plus) – can cause. "Port Man" is able to endure the temporarily permanent implant and live his life as if a foreign object has not been embedded just under the surface of his skin. (It would certainly get under my skin.)

Thor/Thorazine. Because of the side effects of dexamethasone, a drug prescribed to facilitate the absorption of the chemotherapy infusion, serious hiccups result. Though not exactly the hammer, Thorazine, at 25MG, stops the hiccups and saves the day.

"Chemosabe." There's no more important person in a cancer patient's life than his or her companion. And though it's equally important to never feel like a lone ranger, for a cancer patient to be treated respectfully and affectionately carries benefits Tonto likely never imagined.

"Barco Lounger." While being infused non-stop for up to seven hours, "Barco Lounger" can recline in one chair, in one place, for the entirety of his/her treatment. Moreover, while tethered to an I.V. pump, "Barco Lounger" is able to read, write, eat, drink, even go to the bathroom (with a few minor adjustments) without ever stopping the infusion. Certainly, receiving the medicine is important, but so too is having some control over your environment. "Barco Lounger" succeeds on all fronts.

Legendary Hollywood actress Bette Davis is credited with having said: "Old age ain't no place for sissies." As a 61 and half years-old, seven years and five months-long cancer survivor, I would welcome old age and the arrival of yet another cancer-patient super hero: "Survivor Man," who lived years beyond his original "13-month to two-year prognosis."

THE CONNECTION NEWSPAPERS

Thoughts from Justin Wolfe's mother.

"I hope the Petrole family can finally find the peace they have been waiting for. The past 15 years have been a nightmare for our family, as well, not knowing if Justin would live or die, and we are devastated with this result. Though he confessed, I am not really sure what the truth is at this point. I believe the truth was lost somewhere in the years of solitary confinement and threats of death to both Owen and Justin.

"What I do know is that drugs can cause a person to do things they never would have done if no drugs were involved; and since all of our conversations and visits are recorded, we have not really discussed guilt or innocence since he turned himself in 15 years ago to 'clear his name of this murder.'

"I also know that this should never have been a capital case; Justin never should have gone to death row and spent 13 years overall in solitary confinement. My family should not have had to live with the threat to his life constantly hanging over our heads, or worry that the solitary confinement would steal his mind.

"It is a sentence for all of us – hardest on Justin, but hard on his family struggling to save his life. Justin was facing so many charges, he was bound to end up facing his execution again or life in prison. Had this case been handled properly and fairly from the beginning, we could have known the truth then. Closure for both families could have begun 15 years ago.

"Justin has helped many others from inside those walls, and guards wrote letters that talked about Justin being a model inmate for all those years. He is not the same 19-year-old, drug-infected teenager making bad choices. He has had to grow up under the harshest conditions, and he has done so without bitterness or complaints. He is truly sorry for the loss of Danny and he has done everything he can to try to be a better man. If anyone has reformed, it is my son.

"Justin was celebrating his 20th birthday, the night of March 15, not Danny's death, as the judge was led to believe. There was testimony in the first trial which proves Justin did not even know Danny was dead until after he got a phone call in the middle of the night, from a mutual friend, to Justin and Danny's brother. It was stated back then that he fell to the floor and cried.

"My son was convinced that accepting responsibility would spare both families the torture of another trial. His stellar behavior since he's been drug-free, as well as the hard time he's served on death row, should have made a difference. He could have better served his time talking to young people about bad choices and how they can ruin your life in the blink of an eye. Drug use is still a problem in our society. I just hope that somehow some good can come from all of this. I will continue to keep the Petrole family in my prayers."

— TERRI STEINBERG

Wolfe Sentenced to 41 Years

even now, 15 years later, birthdays and holidays aren't the same without him."

Danny was the oldest of three sons, and his father described him as "a good person, kind and compassionate, and a loving son and brother. My job involved considerable travel, and he was the man of the family when I was gone. He called me at 5:30, the day he was murdered. We talked about taxes, his job and his school, NVCC. He told me, 'I love you, Daddy,' and I said, 'I love you, too, buddy,' and those were the last words I heard him say."

"I'm disappointed he became a drug dealer, but I believe he might have become a success doing something else, if Justin hadn't caused his death," continued Dan Petrole. "That night, the phone rings and I hear Janie say, 'Is he dead?' Danny's roommate says they're doing CPR on him in the parking lot."

Racing to Bristow from Virginia Run, the Petroles arrived about 30 minutes later and a police officer told them, "I'm sorry." Dan Petrole said his wife started crying "uncontrollably" and he went to see his son. "He looked so peaceful," he said. "I kissed him on the forehead and told him I loved him. The next morning, we had to wake up Bobby, 14, and tell him his brother had been killed. And we phoned his brother Johnny, away on spring break from college. Everyone was devastated."

Dan Petrole then spoke of the "continued pain and suffering" caused by Wolfe's "lying and deceit" about the crime. "But I'm grateful that Mr. Wolfe finally confessed his guilt," he said. "It was important to my family to have closure and an end to the lies. As a Christian, I've forgiven him; but I believe forgiveness and justice don't counteract each other. And in a civil society, people have to be held accountable for their actions – actions have consequences."

The judge had already received several letters written on Wolfe's behalf, and defense attorney Joseph Flood gave him others from Wolfe's brother and sister, cousin and the security superintendent at the prison where he was. But he didn't call any witnesses to testify – including Wolfe's parents, stepfather and sister – who were all in court, along with many family friends.

Morrogh then said he thought Wolfe had "an addiction to his high-flying lifestyle, at the expense of those who were gentler" and "chose evil. While Mr. Petrole was kissing his son goodbye, Wolfe was celebrating with his friends at Bridges in Fairfax County."

"Danny's family has suffered greatly and can never get their son back," continued Morrogh. "The hole in their hearts can never be mended. I've submitted a plea agreement for 41 years, but it seems a small price to pay for taking the life of such a kind and special young man."

Flood told the judge that Wolfe "had the courage to take responsibility for his crime, committed by a young, immature and angry young man. Since then, Justin's done everything to redeem himself and is now a humble, contrite, mature and remorseful person. Justin did a terrible thing, but that's not his true character. Don't just sentence that immature kid, but the man he's become in the last 15 years."

At 19, said Flood, Wolfe was "impulsive and impaired by drugs, with a brain not yet fully developed, and his [turbulent] youth was a significant factor in this crime. He's been a model inmate for 15 years and he's not incorrigible; he's capable of rehabilitation. There's a sentencing range of 29-41 years, and we believe 29 years is the most appropriate."

Flood said Wolfe's admitting guilt is "indicative of a willingness to change, reform and atone for a grievous sin. Justin had no history of violence. And in prison, he was subjected to pure, solitary, soul-crushing confinement, but never complained. We are not the sum total of the worst thing we ever did, nor is Justin Wolfe."

But, said Morrogh, "He waited 15 years to plead guilty, and only when it was to his benefit to do so."

Wolfe then stood and addressed the Petroles. "Danny was a great person and I understand the pain and suffering I've caused," he said. "I know an apology isn't enough, but I'm sorry."

Before pronouncing sentence, Judge Weimer said, "No one can adequately understand what the Petrole and Wolfe families have been through. I don't look at this as impulsive or youthful indiscretion; it was planned, deliberate and premeditated. And instead of saying, 'What have we done?' [Barber and Wolfe] celebrated that they were rid of this person to whom Mr. Wolfe owed money."
