Three Reported Shooting Incidents in Clifton, Fairfax Station

Detectives from the Sully District Fairfax County Police station continue to investigate three incidents of homes being fired on in Clifton and Fairfax Station. They don't know yet whether the events are related, but don't believe the acts of violence to be random either.

A 55-year-old male victim reported his house on Henderson Court in Clifton was fired on twice: once on July 15 around 6 p.m. and again around 2 p.m. on July 19.

In the most recent incident, police said the man reported someone struck his garage with about six shots. They added that a white sedan was seen leaving the area around that time.

During both incidents in Clifton, the victim's family was at home, however no one was injured.

The second location, and third firing incident, was at a home on Yates Ford Drive in Fairfax Station on July 16. Police said investigators determined shots were fired between 2 and 3 a.m. that morning. The side of the family's house and garage were struck, with two windows being damaged.

The 56-year-old male victim and his family were also home at the time; again, no one was injured.

In this case, police said, a dark-colored sport utility vehicle was spotted leaving the area.

With Fairfax County Police officers blocking traffic, dozens of community members crossed Stonecroft Boulevard in front of the Sully District government center in Chantilly.

Once they reached the other side of the street, the majority of women, children and teenagers whipped out their phones and continued to play Pokémon Go, the smartphone version of the popular video game.

In the game, players are tasked with searching for, capturing, battling with and caring for imaginary animal-esque creatures called Pokémon.

In this latest viral iteration, players engage with “augmented reality,” where elements from the game are overlaid on the physical map, allowing someone to see something on their phone in the same place where nothing exists to the naked eye.

For Pokémon Go, the Pokémon creatures can be found roaming, seemingly randomly, through the individual worlds of players as they move through their day-to-day routines.

But as the game itself became wildly popular in just a short time, the number of crimes and accidents as a result of people walking around outdoors with their heads buried in a handset has also gone up.

IN JUST THE SULLY DISTRICT, Crime Prevention Officers say there have been several “near-misses” between drivers and pedestrians, where they were walking unaware into the road.

Also, they said, there have been regular calls coming in overnight reporting suspicious persons walking around, that have turned out to be people playing the app.

In Springfield, in just the past two weeks, five individuals were arrested for trespassing on school property. They were pursuing Pokémon.

ers out of the house and interacting more with both the world and each other — several elected officials organized a day-long event to engage with community members face-to-face-to-phone.

Lt. Matt Owens, acting commander for Sully Station, encouraged those in the audience to be safe drivers, and to be respectful of memorials or locations where Pokémon may be hiding.

Supervisors Kathy Smith (D-Sully) and Pat Herrity (R-Springfield) then lead excursions around the station so visitors could practice good safety habits while playing the game.

“This is another example of a police department really getting out there and being proactive in the community,” Herrity said.

Smith received a tutorial in playing the game from William Phan, of Fairfax, who founded the Facebook Group Pokémon Go. He says he started the page out of a paternal instinct to protect people he saw as putting themselves or others around them in danger by not hydrating, going out by themselves, going out at night, etc.

The food truck was on hand on July 20 for the Sully District Pokémon Go community event.

“It needs good policy,” Phan said. “I’m here to make everyone happy, get them at their optimal level.” Phan’s Facebook page acts as a forum for players to communicate, as well as a message board for posting helpful tips.

OTHERS ALL AGREED one of the successes and attractions of the game is how it requires movement through a very real world, providing very real exercise.

“It’s nice to be out in the community,” said Staff Sgt. Miesha Collins, of Mount Vernon, a U.S. Army recruiter based in Falls Church.

“You find people with the same interests as you,” Collins said. “This game is bringing a lot of people together. Also, there’s a Jigglypuff in my neighborhood and I’ve been walking around for days trying to find it.” Though the app’s server was down for a short period in the afternoon, Fairfax County Sheriff Stacey Kincaid and Public Schools At-Large School Board Member Ryan McElveen spent time at the event as well.

Kincaid arrived with custom-made Pokémon cards for her office, encouraging people to be safe when they play the game in public.

McElveen had promoted the event — which was scheduled to run from 10 a.m. until 10 p.m. — through his Twitter account that’s popular among FCPS students.

A similar event is being scheduled for the West Springfield area at the end of next week.

No one knew it at the time, but Sen. Timothy M. Kaine's (D-Va.) public appearances moderating roundtables in Northern Virginia last Thursday, July 21 would be his last day of relative political anonymity before being catapulted to political prominence 24 hours later as Hillary Clinton's pick for her vicepresidential running mate.

Trailed throughout the day by a phalanx of political reporters, Kaine remained relaxed, composed and engaged (but never boring) during his two events.

While the first event – a roundtable discussion on immigration in Arlington – was closed to the media, the second event on religious freedom and civil rights held at the All Dulles Area Muslim Society in Sterling was open to the press, and dozens of reporters, representing nearly every prominent media outlet, planted themselves in one of the conference rooms at the center, setting up cameras, adjusting boom microphones, juggling tripods and waiting.

“Why don't they talk to us?” asked 13-year-old Faateha Syed, a young Muslim woman from Reston, who seemed baffled as the media throng descended on Kaine as he entered the room.

“They're not here for us. They're here for him,” an older Muslim woman replied. “They want to know if Senator Kaine is going to be our next vice president.”

Despite the intense media scrutiny and political speculation swirling around Kaine, roundtable participants said they were impressed by Kaine's focus and genuine interest in them and their concerns.

Syed Moktadir, president of the ADAMS center, said he appreciated Kaine's willingness to spend time discussing issues and challenges moderate Muslims face every day.

“He gave each of the panelists here a voice to talk about the issues confronting Muslims,” Moktadir said. “The ADAMS Center has a history of openness, moderation and civic engagement. Senator Kaine did a great service highlighting the importance of tolerance and religious freedom.”

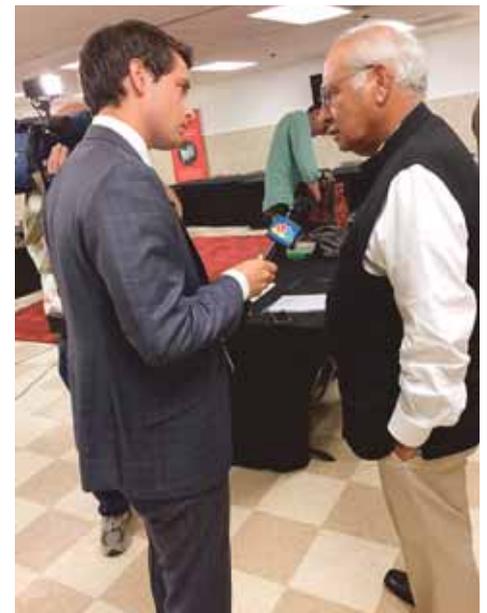

DURING THE FORUM at ADAMS, Kaine took the opportunity to extol Clinton's virtues and assail Republican Presidential candidate Donald Trump's policies and prejudices – without once saying Trump's name.

When discussing bans on Muslims entering the United States and mass deportations – two of Trump's policy promises – Kaine asked the group: “Do you want a trash-talking president or a bridge-building president?” He noted that he and his Democratic colleagues in the U.S. Senate “beat” a bill that would have greatly tightened screening procedures on refugees from Syria and Iraq, essentially banning them from entering the U.S.

“So the refugees are our enemy now? We shouldn't tolerate intolerable prejudice,” Kaine told the group. “The bottom line is that it's not easy to come into our country as a refugee, at all. But the notion of ‘no Syrian can ever come here’ is antithetical to our values – especially when the innocent civilians and families seeking refuge in our country are fleeing the very violence and terror we saw in France and Lebanon that they experience every day in Syria.”

In addition to discussing the plight of refugees, Kaine delved deep into the hot-button issues of police profiling and Black Lives Matter. He noted the success Richmond had with strategies like community policing rather than zero-tolerance policies that surfaced after 9-11.

"I'll tell you one little insight...One of the best things we did when I was Mayor of Richmond was hire a police chief who had the idea of community policing, who said "Let's put officers on bicycles...let's make them part of the community..." We don't have to recreate the wheel, we have the model."

But unlike the famous real estate mogul on the other side of the political aisle, Kaine said, he believes our nation becomes greater by unity, not more division.

"Do we pull together as a nation or try to divide the nation? Virginia has some history with divisiveness, but when we started a change in Virginia and put [divisions] behind us and started to let everybody be around the table, we started doing really, really well. And that's what's at stake here in this election."

When Joan Bell-Haynes, pastor of the Reston United Christian Parish, asked Kaine what people in the room should do to help the country get past its racial and religious divisions, Kaine said he was supporting Hillary Clinton, and called her the kind "bridge-builder" that we need.

"Senator Kaine did a great service highlighting the importance of tolerance and religious freedom."

—Syed Moktadir, president of the ADAMS center

AT TIMES, Kaine gave mini history lessons on the First Amendment and Freedom of Religion. He also showed his philosophical, thoughtful side, relating a story about one question he often asked as a Jesuit missionary in Honduras.

"As human beings, we have an instinctive appreciation of diversity in nature. I would ask people 'Do you have a favorite flower? And most people do have a favorite flower. Then I would ask 'Do you want every flower to be that flower?' Of course not," Kaine said, smiling. "That would be boring."

Although Kaine did not invite discussion of the VP buzz surrounding him, several participants noticed a sign behind where he was seated that read: "What if someone from your community became a national figure? In America anything is possible."

Mohsin Alikhan, president of the McLean Islamic Center, asked Kaine whether he would still visit when he's vice president.

Kaine shook his head, and humbly answered "Of course I'll come...regardless of title."

After the event, Kaine took media questions, but deflected any speculation about his chances as Hillary Clinton's pick. He did tell the press pack, however, that "I'm being considered because of Virginia. Virginia matters."

OPINION

Help Children Arrive at School Prepared

Many opportunities to contribute; tax-free back-to-school shopping is Aug. 5-7 across Virginia.

The first day of school each year is fraught with anticipation and anxiety. Many local students will be concerned about what they wear, who they will see, what it will be like. They've already had multiple shopping trips, online and otherwise, to be sure they have the supplies and extras they need.

We live in an area where many, if not most, families have the means and desire to do almost whatever it takes to give their children the best chances for success.

But for thousands of students, families lack the financial resources to equip them for success on the first day of school and beyond.

In our affluent area, there are many poor families, families who are barely making it, families who are not able to indulge their children in a shopping spree before school begins, families who are already having trouble making up for the meals their children would be getting at school.

In Fairfax County Public Schools, more than 27 percent of more than 184,000 students are poor enough to qualify for subsidized meals. That's more than 50,000 children in Fairfax County who are going through the summer without their usual access to breakfast and lunch. For many of those children, having a fully equipped backpack on the first day of school is out of reach.

In the City of Alexandria, about 60 percent of the Alexandria Public Schools students are poor enough to qualify for subsidized meals. That's more than 8,000 of the city's 13,000-plus students.

In Arlington, more than 32 percent of the county's 23,000-plus students are poor enough to receive subsidized meals; more than 7,000 students.

Help these students get started on the right foot by contributing to one of the many local backpack drives.

Virginia sales tax holiday for school supplies and clothing is Aug. 5-7, 2016. Purchases of most school supplies, clothing and footwear are exempt from the Virginia sales tax. Each eligible individual school supply item must be priced at $20 or less, and each eligible article of clothing and footwear must be priced at $100 or less. See www.tax.virginia.gov/content/sales-tax-holiday.

Homeward Trails Working to Clear The Shelter

Homeward Trails has 12-14 dogs adopted every weekend and 2,000 pets every year.

Last year Homeward Trails Adoption Center in Fairfax Station had 23 dogs adopted during the national "Clear The Shelters initiative." The nonprofit houses 50 dogs in their facility as well as a number of dogs and cats in their foster homes.

Sunday, July 18, Homeward Trails had an open house at their Fairfax Station Adoption Center. These regular events are a chance to visit the facility, the dogs and the staff.

Sitting on the porch, the Matsumoto family waited to be united with their new pet. Francine, adoption complete, was greeted with compliments, pets, ear scratches and hugs before being taken to see her new home. The Matsumoto family drove from Bethesda, Md. to adopt from Homeward Trails. Compared with their previous experience of pet adoption, Homeward Trails was "less institutionalized" according to Matsumoto.

Homeward Trails won't euthanize animals and works to save them from 16 high-kill-rate shelters around the area, says Rebecca Goodhart, Homeward Trails's deputy director. The area shelters and Homeward Trails coordinate with each other sharing information about the animals, their personality and any medical concerns to ensure a good fit.

Cats are housed primarily in foster homes and have adoption events at pet stores around the area, according to Goodhart. Even the majority of dogs live in foster homes. They get more individual attention and the affection of living with a family, which some react to better. The Homeward Trails Adoption Center is capable of housing 50 dogs.

"We're different than a traditional shelter," Goodhart explains. "Dogs are assigned to play groups which are supervised by staff so they get to spend more time outside and playing with other dogs." Ten hours a day the dogs are outside in large play yards with access to water and shade. Currently, they visit the play yards in rotation due to the excessive heat.

"The yards help a lot," says Marcus McCloud, Homeward Trails staff, supervising a group of four dogs as they wander from shade to shade with stops at the plastic kid pool filled with water. "Rather than walk past a small cage, small kennel, here they're free. They can be themselves, not afraid of the small space. But they do need to be supervised to make sure they get along," McCloud says.

Even after the adoption process is complete and the pet goes to a new home, Homeward Trails remains a resource. Follow up emails, a phone call check-in a few days later, a free 30 minute conversation with a trainer and 30 days of free pet insurance. In addition, part of their contract states that they will take the pet they adopted out, back if anything doesn't work out with the family" explains Goodhart. Homeward Trails has 12-14 dogs adopted every weekend and 2,000 pets every year. "We're projected to beat that this year," says Goodhart.

Solo - a Good Neighbor

Margaret Jones, of Fairfax Station, shares her pictures with Solo: Solo was the only pup in the litter, which for a German shepherd is somewhat rare. "He's a gentle dog, and likes to greet the kids in the neighborhood as they get off the bus from school. He is two years old, and has recently received his AKC canine good citizen certificate. He plans to become a therapy dog," writes Jones.

Dianna and Wayne Pennington own property at the corner of Popes Head Road and the Fairfax County Parkway. With an extension of Shirley Gate Road having been on Fairfax County's transportation plan since 1991, they say they can't sell the land with the project up in the air.

"Our biggest concern is when," Wayne said. "I think we've waited long enough."

The Penningtons felt more encouraged after Tuesday night, July 19, when they joined a conference room full of stakeholders with adjacent properties at the Fairfax County Government Center to hear updates on the topic.

The goal of extending Shirley Gate would be affording an alternate route between the Fairfax County Parkway and Braddock Road, as well as giving options for new interchanges north of Popes Head Road and at the Shirley Gate Road extension to relieve traffic congestion on the Parkway, Braddock, Popes Head and Ox Road.

An additional interchange option including three levels and bidirectional roadways was designed to better accommodate the concerns of residents on both sides of the Fairfax County Parkway.

The roadway project would also provide an opportunity to facilitate access to Patriot Park that would avoid First Street, minimize impact on the neighborhood and wetland area.

Some members of the audience questioned whether the park should be involved in the project, whether the "tail is wagging the dog."

Herrity responded to what he said has been misinformation about the project as a whole.

"This was a transportation project first," he said. "It's not all about the park. They delayed the park — it's an access to the park project second."

There were others that joined the Penningtons in their concern over the project's timeline. The only response they received was that it should be moving forward in the next ten years.

Transportation Planning Division Chief of Planning Section Leonard Wolfenstein said the Virginia Department of Transportation, which is the lead on the project, should be filing its design contractor Request for Proposals soon.

Fairfax County Department of Transportation Director Tom Biesiadny some of the traffic volume changes projected for the Shirley Gate corridor in Fairfax over the next several decades.

Once a designer is chosen, he said, there will be more public involvement opportunities as further "critical decisions" are made on the project.

Another community member suggested there be a collaborative, interactive website with information about the project for stakeholders to engage with transparent updates.

Fairfax County Department of Transportation Director Tom Biesiadny directed community members to www.fairfaxcounty.gov/fcdot/shirleygate_extension.htm.

He also said that more comprehensive master plan for the project would be available by mid-August, and that it would become more specific as time goes on.

"If I could start building tomorrow," Herrity said, talking with community members after the meeting, "I would."

Something Big Coming to the Workhouse

'BrewFest' and musical entertainment set for Aug. 13.

Ava Spece, CEO/President, Workhouse Arts Center

Stepping out to find new and unique "ways to enhance the Workhouse Art Center's role as a key driver of economic and cultural momentum" in Northern Virginia is a major goal, said Ava Spece, Workhouse CEO/President in a recent interview.

Working with partners such as the Fairfax County Office of Public Private Partnerships and local businesses, the Workhouse will have its first "BrewFest" to showcase area craft brewers and exciting local musicians. An aim of "BrewFest" is to support Fairfax County's strategic goal to foster economic success by "creating places people want to be," according to Spece.

So what is "BrewFest"? There will be over 30 breweries and cideries sharing their best beverages at the Workhouse. A dozen bands will perform on three separate stages throughout the day. Many of the region's popular food vendors will be there.

"BrewFest" will be a great example of how public and private entities in Fairfax County can work together to deliver outstanding programs and opportunities for our communities," said Spece.

According to Spece, attendees can also "participate in one of the area's newest and most exciting beer competitions: Workhouse 'BrewFest' Craft Beer of the Year." Festival attendees will vote on their favorite beer; the winner announced at the festival.

The musical entertainment is a lineup of area favorites playing throughout the day. Entertainment will end with a "Mount Vernon Nights" concert at 7 p.m., featuring the top-tier Claire Lynch Bluegrass Band. The Fairfax County Parks Authority is a producing partner.

The festival will also include Workhouse arts showings. The works of the nearly 100 Workhouse Arts Center artists will be displayed in their on-site galleries or the venue's main galleries.

Since the Workhouse Arts Center is a bike-friendly destination from many areas via Fairfax County's trail network,

School Board Work Session Draws Transgender Regulation Protesters

The Fairfax County School Board was scheduled to discuss new regulations for addressing daily life at school for students who identify as transgender or gender-nonconforming at July 21 work session held at the school system's Gatehouse Road headquarters in Falls Church.

The week of the session, however, newly elected School Board Chair Sandy Evans announced in an FCPS release that implementation of the regulations would be put on hold while a court case elsewhere in Virginia involving a transgender student's bathroom usage is decided.

The topic was therefore removed from the July 21 work session agenda.

The regulations are an implementation strategy for the words "gender identity" being added to the school system's non-discrimination policy in May 2015.

Regardless, a group of demonstrators, clad in red mostly, showed up at the Gatehouse facility around 5 p.m. to voice their opinion against the regulations. Some stood along Gatehouse Road flashing signs that called the regulations unlawful, or threatening to non-transgender students.

Inside the building's lobby and cafeteria, other demonstrators in red appeared at first to be penned in by a row of security detail. But eventually they were let through to the meeting.

Robert Rigby, a West Potomac High School Latin teacher and leader of the employees' LGBTQ organization FCPS Pride, was present in support of the regulations.

FCPS spokesperson John Torre said the work session was open to the public, as all work sessions are.

The School Board meets again July 28 for its regular business meeting. The transgender regulations were not on the agenda as action items or new business as of going to print.
