City Hears Proposals re Paul VI Redevelopment

One plan preserves part of school; other creates a replica.

By Bonnie Hobbs
The Connection

ince Paul VI High School will leave the City of Fairfax in 2020, plans are underway to redevelop its 18.5-acre site along Fairfax Boulevard. And last Tuesday, Sept. 6, developer IDI Group Cos. presented two possible design concepts to a joint work session of the Fairfax City Council and Planning Commission.

After garnering input from local residents and City staff, IDI revealed specifics of what it considers a mixed-use development. And recognizing Paul VI’s significance to the community – it was the original site of Fairfax High – both concepts pay homage to its building’s history.

Scheme A demolishes the existing building, but constructs a replica elsewhere on the site to commemorate it. This plan also proposes 242 apartments, 260 condos, 110 townhouses, 34 units of senior, affordable apartments and 20,000 square feet of commercial/community space on the first floor of the apartment building.

Scheme B preserves and reuses the original portion (about 24,000 square feet) of the existing building where it is. It contains the same amount of senior housing and commercial/community space, but has 214 apartments, 219 condos and 108 townhouses.

Scheme A has denser development, with 646 total residential units; Scheme B has 575 total units. Both plans also include usable, open spaces and show the senior housing inside the school building.

The site is within the block bounded by Fairfax Boulevard, Oak Street and Cedar and McLean avenues. Some 66 percent of it is zoned commercial, and 34 percent, residential.

BOTH PROPOSALS provide vehicular access to the site via an existing access point from Oak Street and several points along Fairfax Boulevard. No vehicular connections are proposed between the site and Cedar, Oak or Keith avenues. A service road would run the length of the Fairfax Boulevard frontage, and McLean Avenue would have a shared-use path.

“We started over one year ago to reach out to the City to solicit input from key stakeholders and the larger community about their vision for this project,” said IDI executive Enrico Cecchi. “We also had open meetings with the public and City officials and staff.

“We plan to have a third, public meeting in October before we submit our application because we want to have broad-based, public support,” he continued. “We’ve listened to the public and included their input in our plans.”

IDI’s lead design planner, Colin Greene of Streetsense, said Scheme A’s density is more toward Fairfax Boulevard and the south and east. The townhouses will have alleys leading to them, and the buildings fronting on McLean Avenue will have 30-foot setbacks.

“A new building to commemorate the history of the school would have similar window patterns and brick,” said Greene. “But we could build new [air conditioning and heating] systems and address ADA issues.”

In Scheme B, he said, the density is against Fairfax Boulevard for the apartment building, tapering off toward the single-family homes on Cedar and McLean. In both plans, said Greene, “the apartment building has structured parking in the middle, but the condos have parking underneath. There’ll also be pedestrian and bicycle connections to the existing neighborhoods, open space for public use and parallel parking on all the streets.”

In both proposals, the two multifamily buildings at the site’s core would be four stories high at the street and five stories in the setback, but taper off toward the nearby neighborhoods. The townhouses, mainly located closer to McLean and Cedar avenues, would be three stories. And the preserved or rebuilt portion of the school would be two stories.

Councilman Michael DeMarco said Scheme A is more visually appealing because of its symmetry. And he liked the senior housing, plus the mix of for-sale condos and rental apartments. However, some things bothered him.

“I like the low profile along Cedar and McLean avenues, but I think there may be too much density and not enough commercial development on site,” DeMarco told the developer. “It’s more of a residential project than mixed-use, so it needs more balance.”

Councilman David Meyer, too, was concerned about the overall density and said Scheme A has “better proportionality and cohesiveness.” He also asked whether a “significant portion” of Paul VI’s building – not just its façade – should be retained. And noting that McLean Avenue’s utility easement is on the west side, he said the developer’s undergrounding of the utilities to each of the existing homes there is a major consideration to him.

Similarly, Councilwoman Ellie Schmidt said there’s too much density. But she liked the green space and housing diversity and favored the “adapted reuse of the original school building.” She was pleased that the senior, rental apartments for independent living will be affordable, but said public transportation should be nearby because “There’s not much senior parking.”

Councilwoman Janice Miller said the senior housing “will be very welcome.” She also liked reusing Paul VI’s building and asked if there’s “a way to preserve some of the west side of the building, where the auditorium is, rather than putting condos between it and the McDonald’s?”

“I like the 30-foot setbacks for the houses along Cedar and Keith,” she added. “And the bike lanes, landscaping and wide walking paths will help mitigate the three-story buildings. But the amount of community space proposed doesn’t really meet the need for community development along Fairfax Boulevard.”

AGREEING with her colleagues about the density and over-abundance of residential units proposed, Miller said, “Located between Route 123 and Kamp Washington, it’s the heart of a traffic nightmare, Monday through Saturday.” She also asked about parking.

Greene replied that apartments and condos will have 1.6 spaces per unit, and two cars may be parked in each townhouse garage. Seniors will have surface parking behind their homes, and there’ll also be about 175 spaces that aren’t for residents. And “we’re looking for additional parking for (nearby) Pat Rodio Park,” he said.

Miller said that, during Little League games there, “There’ll be 75-90 cars and they could adversely impact the new residents. So you might want to contact Little League personnel to work out the parking issue.”

Councilman Jon Stehle thanked IDI for its community outreach, but said more commercial uses are needed. “I’m concerned about the open space,” he said. “There’s not much to do in it and we’re losing some field space.”

Stehle also said the City needs to better understand what’s inside Paul VI’s building and the options it could provide.

Planning Commission member Joseph Harmon preferred preserving the building and suggested more commercial to the right of the townhouses. Colleague Dennis Cate also favored preservation and wanted more information about guest and overflow parking.

At the end, Cecchi said, “We appreciate your feedback and we will take it to heart. And we envision the open space for community, active use; a [formerly] private site will now be public. This could really be a jewel for the City. But we’ll take your density comments seriously and work to have them.”
Two, good-sized chunks of money are coming to the City of Fairfax and its Fire Department, courtesy of the federal government. The funds are to be used for staffing and training.

FEMA and the Department of Homeland Security have awarded $523,905 in grant funds to the City of Fairfax under the Staffing for Adequate Fire and Emergency Response (SAFER) program. The money is earmarked for improving or restoring local fire departments’ staffing and deployment capabilities so they may respond to emergencies more effectively.

In addition, the City of Fairfax Fire Department will receive $91,305 for training via the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA)’s Assistance to Firefighters Grant (AFG) program that supports local fire departments. U.S. Sens. Mark R. Warner and Tim Kaine (both D-Va.) announced this development on Sept. 2.

“Virginia’s first-responders, including the firefighters who put themselves at risk every day, must be well-equipped to handle threats to public safety,” said Warner. “These federal funds will help provide them with the tools and training they need to be able to carry out their duties and protect our communities.”

The City of Fairfax Fire Department received grant funding from the regional AFG for the Northern Virginia Fire & Rescue Leadership Development Institute (LDI). It’s a regional/joint leadership development program for junior and aspiring officers, and the City’s Fire Department is the lead agency holding the funds.

“LDI is an interactive, highly challenging, educational initiative of the Northern Virginia Fire Chiefs,” explained Capt. Shawn Dunstan, the training officer for the City of Fairfax Fire Department. “The LDI is a week-long residency program designed to provide first-line supervisors or aspiring company officers and command officers the necessary leadership training to be successful as officers.”

“The course brings together company officers from around the region,” he continued. “The time they spend together will not only improve relationships and build networks, but will improve emergency responses because of the leadership training provided.”

An overflow crowd of more than 250 people commemorated the 15th anniversary of September 11 by attending an outdoor concert, Sunday afternoon, in the City of Fairfax’s Old Town Square. Performing was the U.S. Navy’s acclaimed jazz band, “The Commodores.” Residents, visitors and even several members of the City’s fire department enjoyed hearing cool jazz on a hot, summer’s day. The musicians played popular jazz songs, patriotic tunes and the anthems of each branch of the U.S. military.

History: Protests Required to Advance Justice

Local story: Protest, arrests, brutal treatment, torture of advocates for vote for women.

Democracy without our Bill of Rights could amount to mob rule. The Bill of Rights, a visionary document made up of the first 10 amendments to the U.S. Constitution, is reprinted on our website; it’s under 500 words; it takes just a few minutes to read. In the United States, the Constitution and the Bill of Rights offer many protections of freedom and equality. But actually extending that protection and freedom to all has often required individual action and sacrifice, protest, demonstration and nonviolent civil disobedience.

That doesn’t make every demonstration and every protest virtuous, but even when protest is not to our tastes, we should appreciate that we live in a country where the right to do so is protected.

Even something as basic as the right of women to vote only came about because of persistent, unpopular protests organized by a militant group, individual action, sacrifice and courage in the face of brutality and repression from existing authority.

The story of how women got the vote, that is to say how half the population of the United States escaped being disenfranchised, is a local story, and so appropriate to tell in the Connection.

Launched with grant funding from the Virginia Department of Behavioral Health and Developmental Services and in kind contributions from local government, mental and behavioral health partners from across the region, SPAN, serving as a new regional resource for information, events and activities relating to suicide awareness and prevention.

The goal of SPAN is to provide an array of resources and support to increase help-seeking, reduce stigma, and prevent suicide. Through sharing information and efforts with stakeholders across the region, creating opportunities to reach out and provide training, awareness campaigns, promoting health and wellness programs to prevent suicide, SPAN members hope to come together to make a meaningful difference.

Stigma around suicide is a major impediment and while we are making progress in building a firm foundation for suicide prevention, there’s still so much more we need to do. Coming together around the concept of suicide prevention is easy but implementing regional efforts and collaboration is challenging. We need to remind our community that suicide prevention is everyone’s business every day. Be involved. Be engaged. All of us can have a key role in saving lives. Please learn more about SPAN at http://www.suicidepreventionnva.org/.

To the Editor:
I wanted to write to say how extraordinary the upcoming election is going to be. This is the first time in twenty years that I have been forced to do more than vote. I am a conservative and not a Hillary fan, but I must admit that she is the safest and most conservative nominee. Even if it would mean a more conservative court and lower taxes for the average family, I cannot support the Republican party. Too often do they say the wrong things.

My concern is not partisan disagreement, but the fundamental values of our country. I am concerned about a Trump candidacy. Trump is laying out a traditional argument that life would be better if these brown folks would go away. Rational people know that those people are taxpayers, employers, and citizens. I see arguments that Trump is a modern day Dixiecrat, but that is insulting to Dixiecrats, they were far more inclusive. This year is the know nothing party revival. I am frustrated that the Republicans have somehow found the one Republican that could possibly be more unhinged than Hillary.

Local furniture maker combines style and comfort

By Marilyn Campbell
The Connection

John W. Smith treks through a maze of sleek chairs and stately sofas in a large, sunlit showroom tucked in an industrial warehouse center in Fairfax. He pauses at a dining chair, upholstered in beige linen and framed with espresso hardwood. “Feel how smooth that is,” he said, running his fingers along the wooden edge of the seat. “If you’re at a sitting at the table for three, there’s no sharp edge against the back of your calves.”

Dubbed the “three-hour dinner party” chair, the Etesian is part of the Willem Smith Furnitureworks collection. Pieces ranging from the brown, leather San Luis, a streamlined version of a traditional wing chair, to the Francisco Metro Swivel, a petite recliner, to the Canapé sofa, fill the showroom. “The comfort of the pieces sells them, but it doesn’t look like big, over-stuffed furniture,” said interior designer Lowell Wade of Interior Motives in Alexandria.

Like many furniture makers, Smith strives to marry style and comfort. He’s taken that commitment to a new level, however, creating and patenting his own seating mechanism to ensure comfort. Named piErgonom, it’s a device that attaches the seat back to the seat cushion, preventing slippage and offering back support. Beauty and style matter to Smith, but in his liberal view of aesthetics, beauty springs from not only the physical appeal, but also the way a piece feels and functions.

“Comfort is the final element that determines whether the chair or sofa is a success,” said Smith, a Great Falls father of four teenage daughters. “We sweat all of the details and are completely consumed by making all of our seating more comfortable.”

Smith says that he is committed to minimizing his company’s impact on the environment. His practices include using non-endangered hardwoods. All of the springs incorporated into the cushions of his seats are made from recycled steel. Most of the furniture and fabrics used are made in the United States. Buyers can choose from a range of textiles and finishes, including leathers and fabrics, which are displayed in the showroom.

Born and raised on a farm in Ontario, Canada, Smith left a career in banking to spend more time with his then-young family. He also itched to find creativity in his life. His pieces, which not only include seating, but also tables, cabinets and other wood works, are a blend of contemporary lines and classic styles.

Smith credits a talented team of what he calls “style leaders” with the aesthetics of his goods. “I have no illusions that I’m Yves St. Laurent and I wouldn’t pretend to have an affinity for style,” he said. “There is a difference between design and style. Design...”

The Northern Virginia Association of Realtors reported that home sales increased by more than 11 percent in August across Northern Virginia, with 2,104 closings compared to 1,891 closings in August, 2015. The greatest increase was in Fairfax County, with sales up more than 15 percent year over year for August.
is the engineering, construction, materials and performance, and that’s my focus.”

Before hitting the market, for example, each piece undergoes a careful inspection by Smith and his business partner John “JB” Behrens.

“We know all of our pieces intimately,” said Behrens. “The designs essentially come out of a collaborative process. We think about furniture logically and practically and we obsess over comfort.”

“We focus a lot on scale and proportion and how that relates to a furniture buying decision,” he continued. “When we have a chair, for example, John and I look at it together, think about what works, what doesn’t, what things bother us, how can we figure out a solution to turn problems into positives.”

A combination of versatility and comfort drew Potomac, Md.-based interior designer Anne Walker of Anne Walker Design to Willem Smith furniture during a recent home redesign. “All of their pieces are incredibly beautiful. They combine this very clever combination of Old World and classic style with innovation,” said Walker. “The greatest strength is the comfort of their pieces. They take painstaking details. You can tell the first time you sit on one of their products that they are extremely comfortable.”

Smith’s wife, Mary, helps with marketing and other tasks. “The clear differentiator for the furniture is the attention to comfort and functionality,” she said. “There is a lot of furniture out there that may look good, but isn’t functional. A lot of the public doesn’t realize it. That’s the fun of the marketing piece: educating others about this great solution for people. Like before there was Starbucks people didn’t realize they were drinking bad coffee all them time.”

This attention to detail attracts clients ranging from furniture-seeking homeowners to interior designers on a mission to create a showplace.

“Their furniture has a bespoke quality and an incomparable level of comfort,” said Joseph Van Goethem of Joseph Van Goethem Interior Design in McLean. “I believe Willem Smith is the epitome of authenticity and timelessness.” Even better, he added, “when I first took a client to Willem Smith, there was no smothering my client, no sales pitch. When your furniture is that good, there’s no need to sell it.”

They may not hover, but they are there to help. One woman shopper first visited the Willem Smith showroom earlier this year after renovating her kitchen. She chose a dining table, dining chairs and bar stools to complete the space. “JB and John ... helped me pick style, scale, color and design that enhanced my space and really pulled it together beautifully. I invested significantly into the renovation and I really wanted the space to come together, flow, and serve as a welcoming, bright and calm social space.”

Locally, Peet’s Coffee & Tea selected Willem Smith’s Rio Java chair for the lounge area of its coffee shops.

Interior designer Anne Walker used Willem Smith Quintana Swivel Chairs in Dreamer Apricot Leather to add a pop of color to a neutral palette.

Opening ceremonies for the 12-day event ending Sept. 21 were held at 9 a.m. at Thomas Jefferson Community Center followed by a variety of track and rowing events in the morning. Later in the day eight men and women seniors, including national medalists and new swimmers, participated in the diving event in their age categories. Meals Tax: Vote ‘No’

I am writing this letter to encourage the people of Springfield and Fairfax County to vote NO on the meals tax referendum on the Nov. 8 ballot. There are numerous reasons to vote NO, but first among them is that a meals tax is the most regressive form of taxation our government can impose. It taxes food without discrimination to your ability to enjoy a simple meal out with your family.

Second, Chairman Sharon Bulova of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors reasoned in her September “Bulova Byline” that a meals tax “a source of revenue most towns and cities within or adjacent to us already have.” What she did not mention is that lower meal prices in Fairfax County is an attraction for people to spend their earnings in the County, thereby increasing the overall revenue base. Just because others are doing it does not make it right or proper. Finally, our citizens need to understand what politicians won’t tell them: no business, including restaurants, pay taxes; they simply collect taxes from the consumers to pass to the government. Let’s tackle this problem from the other direction by cutting wasteful services we no longer need or desire so more of us can enjoy more frequent nights out on the town.

Meals Tax: Vote ‘Yes’

To the Editor:

I am writing to encourage a “Yes” vote on the Fairfax County Meals Tax. A few reasons are:

Retain the quality of our schools
Support other services like parks, libraries, fire and police
Relieve the burden on our property taxes
Increase property values

We relocated to Fairfax County almost a decade ago. We used only two criteria to narrow down our home search in the region. The first was convenience to our jobs, and the second was the quality of the schools. People buy houses in Fairfax County because of our great schools. There’s considerable research from various universities and NGOs documenting the fact that school quality has a significant impact on property values. All of the neighboring counties in our region have a meals tax. Fairfax teachers are paid less, and our school class sizes are larger than these other counties. If we fail to pass the tax, our schools are likely to lose music, art, and sports programs, along with many AP classes.

My children’s best teachers are leaving the county, and more are likely to do so, if we can’t shore up our schools. There is extensive documentation of all of this information, none of which politicians will tell them: no business, including restaurants, pay taxes; they simply collect taxes from the consumers to pass to the government. Let’s tackle this problem from the other direction by cutting wasteful services we no longer need or desire so more of us can enjoy more frequent nights out on the town.
