Meals Tax Statement Debated During Joint Budget Meeting

Text prepared by Board of Supervisors and FCPS board chairs.

By Tim Peterson
The Connection

The Joint Budget Meeting in Fairfax County was marked by the presentation of FY2018 budget requests by Fairfax County Public Schools (FCPS) and Fairfax County, with Board of Supervisors (BOS) members and FCPS Superintendent Karen Garza laying out budget requests totaling over $58 million. Enrollment growth, retirement rate increases and health insurance rate increases were among those costs Garza said “are going to fluctuate but we have no choice but to pay.”

“The meals tax is intended to diversify county revenue and to supplement and not supplant support for school and county services. The meals tax would create a new revenue source, paid by diners in Fairfax County who are county residents, tourists, and workers who live in neighboring jurisdictions. The School Board has committed that its share, estimated to be almost $70 million in new funding, will be used primarily to address teachers’ salaries, which have lagged behind neighboring communities. Almost $30 million would be available to address general county services or capital improvements such as in public safety, mental health services, libraries, and parks, as well as providing for property tax relief.

Note: the meals tax, if approved, would not be levied in the Town of Clifton, or in the Towns of Herndon and Vienna, where a meals tax has already been implemented.”

Joint Statement on Meals Tax

Joint statement from Chairman Sharon Bulova, Fairfax County Board of Supervisors, and Chairman Sandy Evans, Fairfax County School Board:

“The meals tax is intended to diversify county revenue and to supplement and not supplant support for school and county services.”

Supervisor Jeff McKay (D-Lee) added, “The meals tax is intended to diversify county revenue and to supplement and not supplant support for school and county services.”

Coach said he’s supportive of finding other ways to fund education and reduce the burden on real estate property tax, but that the Virginia General Assembly limits the County’s options by withholding income tax and constraining other taxing power.

“I lament, I’m frustrated because state legislature needs to give local communities the trust they say they have in us,” Storck said to Herrity, Schultz and others, Supervisor Dan Storck (D-Mount Vernon) called the move for a meals tax “premature,” and that the Supervisors don’t have good information on the implications of the meals tax, if passed, on restaurants, families and other businesses.

“I don’t think it will have a negative impact on restaurants and staff,” responded Supervisor John Foust (D-Dranesville). “The opposition, they haven’t stepped forward,” with proof the meals tax will be the blow they say it will.

Schultz continued her opinion, following the meeting, calling the statement “classic liberal tax-and-spend mentality.”

“Instead of being more jobs- and economic growth-oriented, we’re going to make it more difficult to live in Fairfax County. To Herrity, Schultz and others, Supervisor Dan Storck (D-Mount Vernon) said his response is, “Show me where we’re spending $100 million wrong. I hear bits and pieces, but they’re small pieces. The issue is we’re talking about a much larger challenge.”

Three Properties Are Recognized

Homeowners receive Residential Appearance Awards.

When it comes to homes, looks count—and three properties in the City of Fairfax were recently honored with Residential Appearance Awards. They were presented during the Sept. 13 City Council meeting by Kirk Holley, chairman of the Community Appearance Committee.

The winning properties belong to: Martin and Young Lockhard, 3827 Farrcroft Drive; Karen Marksteiner, 9937 Pinehurst Ave.; and Ricky and Christina Garris, 10900 Scott Drive. “These were the spring nominations, and they were professionally judged on four criteria,” said Holley. The criteria were:

❖ Landscape design quality – balance, seasonal interest and appropriate for home and neighborhood;
❖ Residence and building quality – craftsmanship, materials and complementary to setting;
❖ Maintenance of landscape and building;
❖ Sense of place – unique, special character.

Holley told the Council that, “Among the many attractive properties in Farrcroft, the winning entry is a little more refined and has a strong street presence.”

The judges noted that “Layered vegetation, a well-maintained home and splashes of annual color are all evident. And the home’s simple, border fence with brick pillars topped with bouquets for community enjoyment [illustrate how such touches] can make a property distinctive.”

Re the winning property on Scott Drive, Holley said the judges found this home “strikingly simple and clean, [with] tasteful and well-scaled additions. It is a well-maintained jewel in the neighborhood. We are impressed with the consistent use of color, scale and materials in the main cottage house, the addition [and] the outbuilding and deck area.”

The judges further wrote that, “In this home, these features are well-integrated with the original building and lot. The entry features are simple and inviting; each element creates harmony with the entire property. The maintained mature plantings make this home feel ‘grounded. It is a cornerstone in the neighborhood and an excellent example of an appearance winner’.”

Craig Smith, co-owner of Twins Ace Hardware, gave $75 gift cards to each winning property owner. These residents will also display mountable plaques identifying their properties as 2016 Residential Appearance Award winners.

Voting Never Mattered More

Consider voting absentee in person since more than 500,000 other voters are likely to turnout on Election Day.

With more than 655,000 active voters in Fairfax County, and as many as 500,000 voters turning out on Election Day, it’s a good time to consider voting early, and preparing for a longer-than-usual process if voting on Election Day.

While the Presidential election will take top billing, every seat in the U.S. Congress is on the ballot, with one hotly contested race in Northern Virginia.

In Fairfax County, voters will decide whether to enact a four percent meals tax.

The Town of Herndon will have its first November election, moving from May in past elections, with the office of Mayor and six Town Council seats on the ballot. http://herndon-va.gov/government/mayor-and-council/town-elections

Fairfax County voters will decide on three bond questions, including $120 million in transportation bonds for Metro; $107 million in bonds for parks; and $85 million for building and renovating senior and community centers, and homeless shelters. More at http://www.fairfaxcounty.gov/bond/

Virginia Voter ID

Virginia has a significant voter identification requirement, plan to bring photo identification with you to vote, whether that is absentee or on Election Day. But you can get a voter ID card if you don’t have one of the other acceptable identifications.

Among accepted ID: valid Virginia Driver’s License or Identification Card; valid Virginia DMV issued Veteran’s ID card; valid U.S. Passport; other government-issued photo identification cards issued by the U.S. Government, the Commonwealth of Virginia, or a political subdivision of the Commonwealth; valid college or university student photo identification card from an institution of higher education located in Virginia; valid student ID card issued by a public school or private school in Virginia displaying a photo; employee identification card containing a photograph of the voter and issued by an employer of the voter in the ordinary course of the employer’s business.

Any registered voter who does not have one of the required forms of identification can apply for a free Virginia Voter Photo Identification from any general registrar’s office in the Commonwealth. Voters applying for the Virginia Voter Photo ID card must complete the Virginia Voter Photo Identification Card Application, have their picture taken, and sign the digital signature pad. Once the application is processed, the card will be mailed directly to the voter.

A voter who does not bring an acceptable photo ID to the polls will be offered a provisional ballot.

Provisional Ballot Process for Voters Who Arrive Without Identification

If you arrive at your polling place on Election Day without an acceptable form of photo identification, don’t panic or give up. You will be given the opportunity to vote a provisional ballot. After completing the provisional ballot, the individual voting will be given written instructions from the election officials on how to submit a copy of his/her identification so that his/her vote can be counted.

A voter will have until noon on the Friday following the election to deliver a copy of the identification to the local electoral board or to appear in person to apply for a Virginia Voter Photo ID Card. Voters may submit a copy of their ID via fax, email, in-person submission, or through USPS or commercial delivery service. Please note that the copy of the ID must be delivered to the electoral board by noon on Friday, or the provisional ballot cannot be counted.

Also by noon on Friday following the election, the voter may appear in-person in the office of the general registrar, in the locality in which the provisional ballot was cast, and apply for a Virginia Voter Photo ID Card. At the completion of the application process, the voter may request a Temporary Identification Document. This document may be provided to the electoral board to suffice the identification requirement.

South Fairfax Chamber of Commerce Supports Meals Tax

To the Editor:

Fairfax County voters face several important decisions on the November ballot including a controversial Meals Tax. The South Fairfax Chamber of Commerce (SFCC) Board of Directors has voted in favor of supporting the proposed county-wide 4 percent Meals Tax as a business-neutral, budget gap-filling option preferable to anticipated alternative County revenue generating options expected to be shrouded by local business owners.

The Board sees the Meals Tax as the reasonable, better alternative to anticipated broader-based hikes with less pass-through opportunity, such as on already high commercial real estate taxes, business and personal property taxes, and business licenses.

Tax Facts:
- The proposed Meals Tax is projected to generate $90-100 million dollars in annual revenue.
- 28 percent of the revenue generated is anticipated to come from non-county residents and visitors to Fairfax County.
- 70 percent of net revenues from the Meals Tax are to be dedicated to Fairfax County Public Schools, 30 percent to County services, capital improvements, and property tax relief.
- The tax does not apply to groceries. It does apply to ready-to-eat foods sold by grocery stores, including food from the deli counter or salad bar. However, food from vending machines or served from food trucks is not included in the proposed tax.
- Alcoholic and non-alcoholic beverages served with a meal are included in the Meals Tax.

Mason Student Senate Opposes Meals Tax

To the Editor:

Earlier this month, the 37th Student Senate of George Mason University voted to stand with members of the Fairfax community in opposition to the Meals Tax referendum. This resolution expresses the concern of many students that a meals tax will be regressive towards lower income individuals within our community, many of which are our fellow students, as they are higher consumers of prepared food items. While many of us have benefited from public education and recognize the importance of funding our local school system, we cannot support a tax that will disproportionately impact those in our community who depend the most on dining options that would be affected by this tax. The Student Government of George Mason University strives to promote an affordable college experience for every student at Mason and in a year where tuition and fees have increased across the board, we cannot support yet another increased cost that students will have to cope with. Therefore, pursuant to Resolution #2 passed by the Student Senate on Thursday, Sept. 8, 2016, we encourage all members of the Fairfax community to vote “NO” and actively oppose the 2016 Meals Tax Referendum in the upcoming general election.

Supporting Clean Power Plan

To the Editor:

After reading Kelsey Crane’s letter-to-the-editor (“Facing an Urgent Threat,” Fairfax Connection, September 29-October 5, 2016) I would like to echo her support for the Clean Power Plan and to offer my thoughts as an Oakton resident and concerned citizen. I’ve lived in Oakton for 26 years, attending Emmanuel Lutheran Church in Vienna and participating in the Audubon Society of Northern Virginia. I’m not only a mother, but also a grandmother to five, and I care very deeply for this community.

As Kelsey mentioned, climate change places various aspects of our communities at risk, from our economic stability to public health and safety. I have lived in Oakton for many years and seen the communities around me thrive, and I’m disappointed by the opposition to the Clean Power Plan. The Clean Power Plan will address climate change concerns to increase intergenerational equity and secure the future of our children. Some of my grandchildren live close to me. Will air quality and storm frequency in Oakton remain the same for my grandchildren’s generation? I am concerned about the kind of world our children are growing into and the legacy we are leaving them.

By upholding the Clean Power Plan, we are not only preventing more damage to our world today and improving our current quality of life, but we’re ensuring the quality of life for our children’s futures. It is time for our lawmakers to take action with effective and comprehensive climate change policy, such as setting limits on carbon pollution, like those in the Clean Power Plan, and enacting energy efficiency measures to keep dangerous fossil fuels in the ground.

City of Fairfax Honors Skeins
Names basketball court in Ratcliffe Park in his memory.

By Bonnie Hobbs
The Connection

H arold Skeins was 78, but he was a fixture at Ratcliffe Park, happy to play basketball there as often as he could. His three-point shot was legendary, and he could hold his own with players young enough to be his grandchildren.

But his life ended suddenly, Aug. 8, while eating breakfast with a buddy at the Courthouse Plaza McDonald’s. An elderly man trying to park his car instead crashed into one of the restaurant’s walls. The impact killed Skeins and sent his friend to the hospital in critical condition.

Skeins’s family and friends mourned him, and the community gathered at the basketball court for a candlelight vigil in his honor. Basketball players from Fairfax High spelled out the words, “Harold’s House,” in plastic drinking cups on the chain-link fence bordering the court. And talk began about honoring Skeins in a more permanent way.

Last Tuesday night, Sept. 27, the Fairfax City Council did just that, approving a resolution to name that basketball court after him. “The idea came about almost immediately following Mr. Skeins’s untimely death, from many people both within the City and across the United States,” said Councilman David Meyer. “There were numerous emails.”

PROPOSING THE RESOLUTION to the Council, Parks and Recreation Director Cathy Salgado said Skeins was a City resident for more than 50 years, a regular basketball player and unofficial caretaker of the court at Ratcliffe Park. “He was often seen sweeping the court and changing the nets, always at his own expense,” she said.

“Over the decades, Mr. Skeins reached out to hundreds of youth in the City, mentoring them, coaching and playing basketball with them,” continued Salgado. “He took an interest in their lives, on and off the court. His ability to connect with young people was a gift that left a lasting impression on them. In honor of Harold’s dedication to the youth of the City, we’re asking that the Council adopt the resolution and that staff work with the family to design an appropriate memorial that would be placed on site.”

Meyer then made a motion to approve the court being named for Skeins in recognition of his “decades of friendship, mentoring and coaching young people in the City of Fairfax,” with Councilman Jeff Greenfield seconding. Meyer stressed that “it’s a rarity that we have a citizen in this community that makes these kinds of contributions consistently, decade after decade, generation after generation.”

“There’s nothing in the world that will bring Mr. Skeins back to his family,” added Councilwoman Janice Miller. “But I hope that naming the basketball court after him will, in some measure, soothe their hearts and their feelings and let them know that the community appreciates all he did. We are keeping his wife and family in our thoughts and prayers.”

SPEAKING DIRECTLY to Skeins’s family, Mayor Steve Stombres said, “We’re a community of over 200,000 people, and you can sometimes forget that one person can have such an impact on the community, just by setting an example of being a wonderful person, having a wonderful family and playing basketball. He will be missed greatly and, on behalf of our entire community, we want you to know what an impact his life had on us.”

Stombres then read the resolution out loud, officially proclaiming the basketball court at Ratcliffe Park to “now and forever be known as the Harold Skeins Sr. Basketball Court.”

“If Harold were here, he would be honored and very humbled,” said Skeins’s son-in-law, Carey Cole. “I’d like to thank you from all his family and friends, everybody he ever played basketball with and everybody he ever knew or influenced in a positive way. Thank you from all of us.”

Park Authority Offers 50+ Web Portal

The Fairfax County Park Authority has launched a website specifically for residents age 50 or older. The 50+ Engage-Connect-Play portal provides one-stop shopping for information on Fitness & Wellness, Arts & Learning, Gardening & Adventure, Giving Back, and more that’s geared toward Baby Boomers and active seniors.

The Park Authority is making it easier for older residents to find new ways to engage as family and work demands change. In Fairfax County, 23.2 percent of households include adults who are 65+, and this group represents 11.5 percent of the county’s total population.

Go to www.fairfaxcounty.gov/parks/fifty-plus/ to see which of the thousands of Park Authority classes are most popular among Baby Boomers and the 50+ crowd. Find out about concerts, fairs, festivals and other park events that appeal to older residents. Book a tee time at a golf course, register for an art or gardening program, or find activities to entertain the grandchildren. Visitors to the site can also explore ways to give back to their community through paid and volunteer opportunities in the parks.

This initiative is part of the larger, countywide effort aimed at addressing the needs of a rapidly aging population in Fairfax County. U.S. Census figures show that there is a net in-migration to Fairfax County of persons age 85+. Among Fairfax County residents age 80 or older, 47.5 percent have one or more of the following: serious difficulty with walking and/or climbing stairs, difficulty dressing and/or bathing, or a cognitive disability.

Tired of the limited mobility and pain that have thwarted her love of foreign travel and fall hiking, Lynda S. Johnson, 72, scheduled a knee replacement surgery for later this month. She chose a doctor, found a pet sitter to watch her Cairn terrier, and enlisted her sister to live with her while she recovers.

“I had been debating for months about whether to have it,” she said. “I was in so much pain, though, that I don’t really think I have anything to lose.”

For Johnson and approximately 7 million other Americans living with a hip or knee replacement, the decision to undergo such a surgery is fueled by a quest for less pain, more mobility and an overall boost to their quality of life. Nearly 90 percent of patients who have knee replacement surgery experience less pain and 85 percent of the replacement joints still work after 20 years, according to the National Institute of Arthritis and Musculoskeletal and Skin Diseases. Most patients will feel better, and feel better quickly.

Addressing overall health issues like high blood pressure, diabetes and obesity can boost the chances that a joint replacement surgery will be successful, says Dr. C. Anderson “Andy” Engh orthopedic surgeon, Anderson Orthopedic Clinic at Inova Mount Vernon.

“Work on both your overall health and conditioning,” he said. Patients should be up and out of their hospital beds as soon as possible. “Patients are walking with assistance hours after their surgery. The reason patients do better when they get up and move around is that they decrease the risk of pneumonia and blood clots,” said Dr. Mark P. Madden, an orthopedic surgeon with OrthoVirginia. “We start out with patients using a walker and having someone assist them in walking, and they generally progress to become fully weight bearing without any assistance at all.”

Also, have a support system in place prior to surgery, whether it’s a significant other, grown child or close friend. Often dubbed coach or advocate, that person might attend medical appoints with a patient prior to surgery, serve as their point of contact the day of surgery and provide morale support throughout the recovery process. “The more eyes and ears in addition to the patient’s, the better,” said Engh, explaining why it’s so helpful to have someone with the patient at appointments and throughout the recovery. “We approach things that we have to do with set expectations, and sometimes those expectations can keep us from hearing other things. Having another person there is a good reality check and note taker.”

The coach should be able to spend a significant amount of time with the patient during the early recovery period. “That person can expect to be with you 16 hours a day for two to five days after surgery,” said Engh. “I don’t want someone alone by themselves all day during work hours. The coach or advocate is like a safety marshal who keeps the patient safe and reminds them to take their time during their recovery.”

Dr. George Aguiar, an orthopedic surgeon at Reston Hospital Center, advises patients to determine how they will get help with grocery shopping, transportation, pet care and house cleaning in advance. “Having these types of things handled before you go into surgery can only help the recovery process.”

Patients should plan ahead to safety-proof. “Do everything you can do to avoid a fall within the first two to three months after your surgery,” said Engh. “Have clear pathways and be aware of rugs that can catch your feet. Have good, secure handrails on stairways to help prevent falls.”

Timing also plays a role in the success of joint replacement surgeries. “Some patients ask if they’re too old to have surgery,” said Engh. “Don’t wait until you’re home bound to have this surgery because the recovery will be quite long.”

To decide whether joint replacement surgery is the best option, says Madden, work with a physician and weigh the effect the pain is having on one’s quality of life. “There’s no right answer for every patient,” said Madden. “The real answer is to work with your doctor to find the right treatment.”
