Chief Releases Name of Officer in Shooting Death

Officer used deadly force in two prior cases, both determined to be lawfully justified.

BY TIM PETERSON
THE CONNECTION

Fairfax County Chief of Police Edwin Roessler has named 16-year veteran Master Police Officer Lance Guckenberger as the officer who used deadly force, killing Mohammad Azim Doudzai at his home in Herndon, the scene of a double shooting and barricade incident on Jan. 16.

Roessler released the name of the officer March 2, after a protracted risk assessment and court action by the officer seeking a restraining order to stop the release of his name. This is the first FCPD officer-involved shooting since the Board of Supervisors adopted recommendations from the Ad Hoc Police Practices Review Commission, including releasing the name of the officer within 10 days of an officer-involved deployment of deadly force unless the chief determines that more time is needed to investigate or mitigate a credible threat to the officer and/or family.

Police say two men were shot inside Doudzai's house, in the 13300 block of Covered Wagon Lane in Herndon. Officers from the Reston District station responded around 2.40 p.m. on Jan. 16, after the shooting victims had already gone to the hospital. A third man was trapped inside the home with Doudzai, who police said was armed with both a gun and at least one knife. Adding to the danger of the scene were flames and smoke coming from the residence, police said.

In an attempt to de-escalate the situation, members of the Crisis Negotiations team and Special Weapons and Tactics (SWAT) team were called in to negotiate with Doudzai. Guckenberger is assigned to the Special Operations Division responsible for both those teams.

Doudzai eventually came to the front door, where Roessler said both less-lethal and deadly force were used to bring him down.

In a press conference from the scene of the incident, Roessler said the less-lethal force deployed included a taser and 40mm foam bullet. The deadly force was Guckenberger's service firearm.

The exact sequence of those uses isn't known, but should be determined at the conclusion of the ongoing FCPD investigation, medical examiner's findings and decision from the Commonwealth's Attorney.

A March 2 release from FCPD announcing the officer's name failed to mention the less-lethal force used. FCPD spokesperson MPO Don Gotthardt said in an email that detail was probably not considered due to focus being on the release of the name and taking care of the officer.

Guckenberger has been involved with two prior cases involving use of deadly force, Roessler said the March 2 release, one in 2005 and one in 2010; in both cases the suspect survived.

The first involved a business holdup on Jan. 14, 2005 in Falls Church and an exchange of gunfire with the suspect in Bailey's Crossroads. Guckenberger received both the Fairfax County Police Silver Medal of Valor and the Virginia Association of Chiefs of Police's Award for Valor for his actions in 2005 incident for rescuing the store manager, according to press accounts from the time.

The second involved a man with a history of mental illness who was reportedly using narcotics. He fired at officers multiple times, police said, with what turned out to be a BB gun powered by a CO2 cartridge.

"Both of those matters were determined to be lawfully justified uses of force," Roessler said, "in which the officer used great restraint while being exposed to suspects who were using weapons against the involved officer while the officer was attempting to preserve the sanctity of human life for others."

Both criminal and administrative investigations by FCPD into the Jan. 16 incident are ongoing, police said.

Body of Missing Woman in National Park Recovered

BY FALLON FORBUSH
THE CONNECTION

The body of Becky M. McCleskey, 56, of Arlington, was found in the Potomac River.

Her body was recovered from the water near the Old Angler's Inn restaurant in Potomac, Md., on Friday, Feb. 24, at approximately 5:50 p.m.

The United States Park Police determined hypothermia and drowning caused McCleskey's death and that there were no signs of foul play, according to Anna Rose, the department's spokesperson.

Her body was originally spotted by hikers on the Maryland side of the Potomac River who then called 911, Rose said.

The unfortunate discovery came 18 days after she was reported missing on Monday, Feb. 6.

The park police spent three days searching the 800-acre, mostly forested Great Falls National Park in Virginia by land and helicopter after McCleskey's car was found parked in its north parking area on the first day she went missing. Her car entered the park at 4:36 p.m. that evening.

The park was closed for two hours the following morning because of the investigation.

At 7:38 a.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 7, the Great Falls Park Facebook account posted a status informing the public that it was closed and warned visitors to call the visitor center before attempting to enter the park. By 9:47 a.m., the park posted a new status saying, "Great Falls Park is now back open!"

"Essentially, we wanted to close the park to ensure visitor safety and to ensure that visitors didn't impact the crime scene," Aaron LaRocca, National Park Service spokesperson, said.

"Maryland has jurisdiction in the river," Pete Piringer, MCFRS spokesperson, said. "They called us Monday night [Feb. 6]."

The swift water search was suspended because of stormy weather at midnight on Feb. 7, but resumed hours later that morning. The team also searched on Wednesday, Feb. 8.

By Thursday, Feb. 9, the search was called off.

McCleskey's next of kin was notified of the body's discovery, according to Rose.

McLean Citizens Urge More Changes to FCPS Pensions

McLean, Great Falls Citizens Associations discuss county teachers' pension system.

BY FALLON FORBUSH
THE CONNECTION

Avocal McLean citizens group wants to see more changes to the pension system for Fairfax County Public School employees.

The McLean Citizens Association approved a resolution that was critical of the FCPS Educational Employees' Supplementary Retirement System of Fairfax County (ERFC) pension system during its Board of Director meeting on Tuesday, March 1.

The MCA's resolution urges the FCPS Board to immediately establish an independent pension task force to make the ERFC "financially sustainable without consuming a greater share of Fairfax County resources."

"We're going to try to rescue a pension for the benefit of those who were made promises to receive benefits and for the benefit of citizens who would like the county's money to be spent on more than just pensions," said Steve DelBianco, MCA board member, during the meeting.

As of June 30, 2016, the ERFC was underfunded by $830 million, according to the MCA.

"There's a serious problem for God's sakes," said Dale Stein, MCA's Budget and Taxation Committee chair, during the meeting. "It's going to crowd out other expenditures."

This would not be the first time the pension system was reviewed.

In May 2016, the Aon Hewitt consulting firm completed a "Retirement Plans Study" that assessed the retirement benefits for newly hired FCPS employees.

The study concluded that newly hired FCPS employees are expected to retire with lower retirement benefit values when compared to the county's other employee pension plans.

But members of the MCA were critical of this study and questioned its objectivity since the FCPS commissioned the study.

"What the Aon Hewitt report did not analyze was—because they weren't asked to—they didn't analyze the extent to which the pension plan was underfunded," Louise Epstein, MCA's Education and Youth Committee Chair, said during the meeting. "They didn't analyze the impact on county finances, including the crowding out of other expenses. They didn't analyze discrepancies between what they call the discount rate and actual returns and the comparative costs of different plans between [the county] and other employers, and they chose assumptions that tended to support the conclusions they reached."

The FCPS is not oblivious to the need for reform.

The FCPS is currently considering implementing $4.7 million in reductions to its pension system by June in time for the fiscal year 2018 budget.

RECOMMENDATIONS include lowering the interest crediting rate on all ERFC member accounts from 5 percent to 4 percent. The FCPS is considering more changes for new or nonvested ERFC members, including instituting a minimum retirement age of 55; increasing the period for calculating the final average salary from three years to five years; and changing the cost-of-living adjustment to equal 100 percent of the Consumer Price Index with a cap of 4 percent.

While the MCA supports these options, the association only sees them as interim cost-savings measures and wants to see more reductions. In MCA's resolution, it expects FCPS to implement the proposed task force's recommendations in time for its fiscal year 2019 budget.

The handful of teachers in the audience were not happy, audibly huffing as board members argued in favor of the resolution and clapping for the two members who stated their reasons for voting against the resolutions. The teachers were not allowed to testify at the meeting.

Pensions Debated

live in their community,” said Mimi Dash, spokesperson for the Fairfax Employee Pension Coalition. “They care that their taxes are going up.”

She was one of a handful of pension beneficiaries who attended the meeting in opposition to the resolution.

“Why do I continue to put forth my time and effort when the community is saying, ‘Well, you’re not deserving of this,’” said Andre Mayer, an intellectual disabilities teacher at Luther Jackson Middle School in Falls Church.

“They’re destabilizing the teacher force by giving people less reason to come to Fairfax and giving people who have the potential of retiring the impetus to retire quickly so they won’t get screwed in this deal,” said Cheryl Binkley, who recently retired from teaching at George C. Marshall High School in Falls Church. “They are destabilizing the teaching force big time, big time.”

Most of FCPS’s fiscal year 2018 budget, 89 percent, is allocated to employee compensation, and the county is not looking to reduce or hold flat employee salaries.

FCPS started a compensation study last year and found that teacher pay is “significantly below the market average” in the region, according to Kristen Michael, assistant superintendent of financial services for the FCPS.

That’s why the fiscal year 2018 budget includes $33.2 million to increase teacher salaries. It also allocates $44 million for an increase in pay of 2.5 percent for all eligible FCPS employees.

“We started this current school year with approximately 180 vacancies,” Michael said during a town hall gathering about the budget in Great Falls. The event was hosted by the Great Falls Citizens Association, another citizen organization that has been critical of the pension system, on Tuesday, Feb. 21.

THE NUMBER of unfilled teaching positions is unprecedented for the county, according to Michael.

“This is an extremely complex issue which really does require expert input of which no one on our [Education and Youth] committee has,” said Kelly Green Kahn, MCA board member, during the meeting.

She voted against the resolution because the urge for pension reform was not paired with the association’s recommendations to reform teacher salaries.

“We have a concern about bleeding in the pensions, but in fact we are bleeding in our most important capital which is our teachers,” she said.

Tom Brock was the other MCA board member who voted against the resolution. He told the board that teacher salary deficiencies would be only be worsened if the county took their recommendations.

The MCA’s Education and Youth Committee will be hosting a public meeting on Tuesday, March 21, at the McLean Governmental Center to discuss teacher compensation.

Independent, Civilian Oversight in Place

New auditor and panel will make an excellent police force better, more transparent and accountable.

In February, the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors followed through in establishing two forms of independent oversight of law enforcement for the first time in county history.

Richard Schott will begin as independent auditor on April 17, reporting directly to the Board of Supervisors.

Nine members have been named to the county's inaugural Civilian Review Panel, chaired by Adrian Steel. More than 140 Fairfax County residents applied to be considered to serve on the panel, and those named appear to have a remarkable set of qualifications.

Independent, civilian oversight of law enforcement is a national best practice.

Schott is a 27-year veteran of the FBI where he specialized in training on officer use of force, civil rights and color of law issues. He worked on the Henry Glover and Danziger Bridge civil rights cases, prosecutions of New Orleans Police Department officers for civil rights violations after Hurricane Katrina.

The Office of the Auditor will handle cases of police use of force that result in serious injury and death and the Civilian Review Panel will handle complaints about Fairfax County Police abuse of authority or misconduct.

These methods of oversight were adopted by the board following recommendations of the Ad Hoc Police Practices Review Commission, established by Chairman Sharon Bulova in the wake of the police shooting death of John Geer and public reaction to 17 months when FCPD released no information about the case until forced to by court order.

Leadership of FCPD, especially Chief Edwin C. Roessler Jr., have embraced the almost all of the 202 recommendations of the commission, which acknowledged the overall excellence of Fairfax County Police.

Nevertheless, the county's first independent auditor will come on board with work to do.

In his mandate to monitor and review internal investigations of Police Department officer-involved shootings, in-custody deaths and use-of-force cases in which an individual is killed or seriously injured, Schott will begin with the investigation of the officer-involved shooting death of Herndon resident Mohammad Azim Doudzai in progress.

Among the questions for Schott will be why it took 45 days, rather than the recommended 10 days, to release the name of the officer involved in the shooting. The chief needed the additional time to fully investigate and mitigate any possible threats to the officer and his family, and respond to legal action by the officer seeking to stop the release of his name, a delay permitted by the new policy. The officer was involved in two other uses of deadly force, one in 2005 and one in 2010, with the suspect wounded but not killed in those two incidents. (The officer received valor awards for the 2005 incident for rescuing the store manager during an armed robbery with shots fired.)

Other questions that we hope the auditor can answer for the public:

According to the chief's statement at the scene on the day of the incident, two officers used less lethal force (taser and foam bullet) while one officer fired his service weapon. Was a supervisor coordinating the plan? What was the sequence of events and uses of force? Was there an attempt to subdue the suspect without deadly force?

Why is so little additional information forthcoming about the incident? Subsequent releases have contained fewer details than were release on the day of the incident. What video exists and when will it be released?

The policy states: "It is important to note the 10 day period is primarily related to the release of officer names and is only designed as a limit to not be exceeded without cause, not a recommended standard, and the board and the public expect the Police Department to release other appropriate preliminary factual information and updates to the public as soon as possible."

Another area of inquiry is analysis of data released last year that indicates 40 percent of the subjects of use of force by FCPD are African American, while only 8 percent of the county population is African American.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Privy to 'Miracle Cures'

To the Editor:

Thank you for your article about the Feb. 24 Town Hall that Rep. Barbara Comstock (R-VA) skipped. I would like to clarify something.

The Affordable Care Act (ACA) question that I asked concerned the science behind one of Ms. Comstock's claims. In one of her telephone town halls I heard her say that one of the ways we'll pay for the Republican ACA replacement will be that we'll cure diseases like cancer and diabetes so that expensive treatment becomes unnecessary.

I was astonished. How exciting!

I am trained as a registered nurse and this is what I reasoned: Because Republicans are trying to repeal the ACA this year and Ms. Comstock cited these cures as important contributors to their new plan, Republicans must have at least early indications of the dollars we'll save.

Ms. Comstock must know about multiple major scientific advances that are already successfully through clinical trials and (unless they're quick-acting cures) already being put into widespread practice across the country. These cures can't rely on common-sense advice involving diet, exercise and not smoking because Americans are notoriously resistant to behavioral change. So, in her official capacity as our Representative sitting on the US House Committee on Science, Space, and Technology, Ms. Comstock must be privy to what can only be called "miracle cures."

So the question I wanted to ask Ms. Comstock at the telephone town hall (she "ran out of time") and then tried to ask at the in-person town hall (that she skipped) was "What special insights does she have regarding the science behind her ACA funding claims?"

My husband is trained as a biologist and works in translational science (getting new best practices into the hands of healthcare professionals). I asked him to tell me what Ms. Comstock was referring to.

He didn't know either.

The American Cancer Society website says "In 2017, there will be an estimated 1,688,780 new cancer cases diagnosed and 600,920 cancer deaths in the US."

Community in Peril

To the Editor:

The malicious attack that occurred last November at Tysons Corner Mall in which a man used anti-Muslim slurs and then bit another man in the face is an appalling example of violent bigotry. Rightfully so, the perpetrator was recently charged with a hate crime.

As McLean residents, we are upset and deeply concerned that this incident occurred in one of our neighborhood social hubs — a place where we shop, eat, and socialize with our families. Our sense of safety and community is in peril with this and other incidents of hate crimes in our region, such as the recent bomb threats against Jewish schools in Fairfax and Montgomery counties.

Intolerance and violence in the places where we live, work, and learn diminishes our basic American values of dignity and respect for everyone. Virginia's leaders must commit to counter this alarming trend, which has been on the rise since the November elections. Our leaders must speak out unequivocally and repeatedly against hate crimes that target members of our community, and immediately dedicate more resources toward investigating and prosecuting all suspected hate crimes.

For our part, we refuse to let any type of violence motivated by race, religion, or ethnicity become part of our everyday lives and vow to support our neighbors who are being targeted and marginalized.

Celebrating the Persian New Year

The Nowruz Festival will be held Sunday, March 12 at Tysons Corner Center.

BY STEVE HIBBARD
 THE CONNECTION

Following 3,000 years of customs and traditions, the colorful Nowruz Festival — the Persian New Year celebration — will be held on Sunday, March 12, 2017, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. This year's festival, with more than 75 booth vendors, is free and will be held in front of Bloomingdale's at Tysons Corner Center.

Nowruz, which normally falls in early Spring, is when Persian-Americans will join locally to celebrate the new year. There will be 75 vendors offering traditional and exotic foods as well as jewelry, artwork, crafts, and other traditional Persian products. A main stage will be set up that provides entertainment with 60 musicians, dancers, artists, costumed characters, and traditional players.

The Nowruz Festival is a family-friendly, fun celebration that celebrates life, love and good will. Of all the Persian national festivals, the New Year celebrations are at once the most important and the most colorful. This festival embodies a wealth of ancient rites and customs, and is about the only one in Persia which is not confined to the traditions of only one religious group. It symbolizes that continuity of the ancient Persian culture which has survived so many adversities and vicissitudes.

The venue provides a fun place for people to celebrate with family and friends, to taste delicious Persian food and enjoy traditional and modern Persian entertainment. Among the traditions, is a ceremonial table called the cloth of seven dishes (each one beginning with the Persian letter Sin). The symbolic dishes consist of Sabzeh or sprouts, usually wheat or lentil, representing rebirth. Another is Samanu or a sweet, creamy pudding. Another is Seer, which is garlic in Persian, which represents medicine.

In addition to attracting people from Virginia, Maryland and the District, this year, organizers hope to attract international guests from other countries that celebrate Nowruz, including Turkey, Afghanistan, and Tajikistan, among others.

The goal is to share the Nowruz Festival with both Persians and non-Persians. The event sends out positive messages, like celebrating earth, spring time, love and peace to the community. Planners want to bring different musicians and dancers from other countries that celebrate Nowruz, as well as new musicians that offer more variety to the festival. They also want to bring different historical and costumed characters from Persia (like Haji Firuz, a traditional herald of Nowruz dressed in a red costume and tambourine) that will interact with the crowd.

The Nowruz Festival will be held Sunday, March 12, 10 a.m.-6 p.m. at Tysons Corner Center in front of Bloomingdale's, at 8100 Tysons Corner Center, McLean, VA 22102. For details, contact organizer Shohreh Asemi, at 202-369-1515 or visit <http://nowruzfestival.org>.

Beating Langley, Cougars Go to State Finals

The Oakton Cougars secured a spot in the Virginia 6A basketball finals.

THE CONNECTION

The Oakton Cougars secured a spot in the Virginia 6A basketball finals after defeating the Langley Saxons 52-40 in the semifinal on March 4.

The Cougars' track to the finals was not an easy one. After losing to the Saxons 64-36 in the 6A Regional Final, Delaney Connolly was held to 4 points in the game. In the two games following that game Connolly dropped 26 points against Patriot and 22 against Ocean Lakes. Connolly, despite battling the flu has elevated her game at the most important time of the year.

The Cougars arrived at the game after defeating Patriot 73-55, and Ocean Lakes 58-40. Langley, winners of 11 consecutive games arrived after beating Battlefield 45-41, and Woodbridge 55-40.

Langley would start the semifinal game with Oakton with an early 15-11 advantage after playing the first 8 minutes.

Early in the second quarter Oakton's Maddie Royle was called for her third foul. Royle, upset after the third foul, was also charged with a technical and her fourth foul. Oakton Coach Fred Priester was forced to sit Royle who scored 19 points against Ocean Lakes. Oakton's stifling defense would hold Langley to just 3 points in the quarter and take a 19-18 lead at half.

In the third quarter, the Oakton defense would continue to wreak havoc on the Langley offense, outscoring the Saxons 17-9 and allowing the Cougars to pull away from Langley.

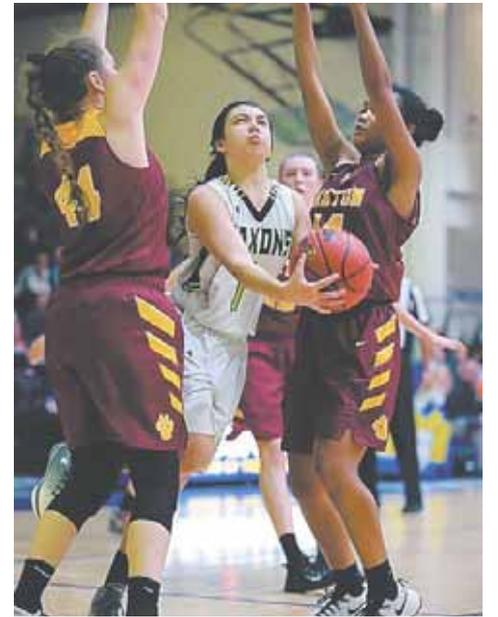

With a 36-27 lead to start the fourth Oakton would finish off Langley and end their season outscoring the Saxons 16-13 and advancing to the state final

Kitchen Design Trends in 2017

Local designer share popular design ideas.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

Those looking for kitchen design ideas have a new source of inspiration: the National Kitchen & Bath Association's (NKBA) list of trends for 2017. Local designers reveal which trends are most popular in the Washington, D.C. region.

NKBA predicts that contemporary-styled kitchens will overtake traditional to become the second most popular design after transitional. Locally, Michael Winn, president of Winn Design + Build expects to see "a strong move towards transitional and contemporary styles, with no fussy designs."

Homeowners are looking for "kitchen spaces that look comfortable, calming and clutter-free," said Shannon Kadwell of Anthony Wilder Design/Build, Inc.

Clean lines, built-in shelving and simple door styles dominate kitchen designs. Megan Padilla, senior designer for Aidan Design reports an interest in custom storage ideas. "We're inspired by our work with clients who often have collections of table décor — everything from antique trays to vintage oyster plates," she said. "By creating custom storage these cherished items can be readily accessible."

When it comes to painted cabinetry, gray is the new white and the popularity of both colors shows no signs of slowing down, according to the NKBA survey. However, blue painted and high gloss kitchen cabinets are emerging, especially in the Washington area, says Winn. "Blues and grays are very popular [and] "White continues to be popular."

For overall color schemes, two-toned kitchens are gaining popularity while blue and black are emerging as sought after colors. "We're seeing a rise in product offerings available in matte black — from appliances to plumbing fixtures to cabinet hardware," said Padilla. "We love it paired with white in a classic black and white kitchen, but also as an accent piece. Matte black also pairs beautifully with brass, which has been trending for the past couple of years."

Quartz is the most sought-after kitchen countertop material, followed by granite. "Most of our clients aren't really interested in a kitchen that [is] too trendy since they plan to have it in place for 15-20 years," said Padilla. "We've seen an uptick in interest in incorporating color by way of alternate neutrals. Navy blue is probably the top choice, but taupes and lighter blues are also on the list."

An interest among homeowners in incorporating technology in kitchen design is increasing as well. About one third of the NKBA professionals surveyed reported recent projects that included wiring and pathways for future tech integration. "I would also expect the technology side to be a focus in D.C.," said Samantha Klickna, project developer with Case Design/Remodeling, Inc. "The ease and comfort of controlling your home while at the office or on travel is very appealing and convenient for the city dweller."

Induction cooktops and convection ovens are trending higher, and microwave drawers are surpassing freestanding or built-in microwaves in popularity. "People have been purchasing appliances like steam ovens and induction ovens now more than ever before," said Kadwell. "People have less time, but still want to cook. They want to be able to cook quickly, so they're looking for appliances that can accomplish that."

Drive home the savings.

FY 2019 Programs

Wednesday, March 22, 2017 at 7:30 p.m.

The Governing Board and Staff of the McLean Community Center are seeking input from residents of Dranesville Small District 1A at a Public Hearing on Programs for FY 2019, which runs July 1, 2018 through June 30, 2019. MCC programs are scheduled to return to the newly renovated Ingleside facility in the Fall of 2018.

The Board and Staff are interested in hearing residents' suggestions for class offerings, community events, theater programs, exhibits, tours, youth events and teen activities when they return home to the Center.

If you would like to speak at the hearing, call the Center to have your name placed on the speakers' list. You also may submit comments in writing to: george.sachs@fairfaxcounty.gov.

The hearing will be followed by the regular monthly meeting of the Governing Board.

No More "Dating"

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Not until next year, anyway. Besides, there will be enough water gushing under that bridge, almost as much seen a few weeks back flowing onto the Oroville Spillway in Northern California. At least I hope so. Because if there's no more 'gushing,' there's likely no more, well; we don't have to talk about that. Not talking and planning for one's future is bad for a cancer patient's business; self-fulfilling prophecy and all that presumptive karma. And with all the dos and don'ts and hopes and prayers in the cancer world, my general philosophy has been not to mess with Mother Nature, too much, if you know what I mean? I don't necessarily believe in leaving well enough alone, but neither do I believe in poking the bear.

I mean, I acknowledge that I'm dying, but aren't we all really? Reminiscent to a few years back when a former ESPN Sports anchor (Dan Patrick, I believe it was, now of NBC Sports) made famous a similar characterization concerning a ballplayer's injury, when he said: "He's listed as day to day, but then again, aren't we all?" Oh yeah. A little perspective goes a long way, even a decade or so in arrears. I guess that's what's so enriching about reading. Unfortunately, reading is not fundamental for me, writing and listening is. And as with my unexpected non-small cell lung cancer diagnosis at age 54 and a half (lifelong non-smoker, no immediate family history of cancer or premature death; I know, any death is premature), I make the best of my situation and endeavor to strive to stay alive. I don't dwell on the negative. Sure, I accept and understand my reality (maybe in some dispute, but not in my head though), but having been raised with a positive attitude by both my late parents, I am able to endure until science/medicine finds a cure. It's not ideal, but it's a living — thank God!

And even more so the day after chemotherapy, as I sit and write on Saturday, March 4. Reminded as I am of the situation I find myself living in and trying to learn from to cope and always hope. Somehow trying to find a way to continue to take cancer in stride while not hiding from the harsh realities that affect many cancer patients. Just as occasionally looking in the mirror is not a pretty sight, nor is droning on and being cancer-centric. Though I am mostly cancer-centric in my weekly column, I hope its contents provide enough context that it sheds some light on how one lives with a terminal disease rather than how that same one puts off death.

I don't mean to imply that being diagnosed with cancer is akin to having a bad roommate where you can sort of close their bedroom door or try to ignore their comings and goings except as it concerns rent and utilities, but similar elements have to be enforced. 'Enforced' may be too strong a word. Maybe ingrained would be a better word? You have to own the responsibility of living with a terminal disease, but somehow try and not believe it. It sort of invokes the quote about minor surgery: "Minor surgery is someone else having it." When it's me having it, it's major. Compartmentalizing one's cancer diagnosis/prognosis is crucial to its acceptance. Obviously, it dominates your thinking and awareness, but it can't be allowed to control it. You just hope when you peel away the emotional layers you impose to maintain an even/humorous feel (in my approach, anyway), it won't resemble the damage seen on the Oroville Spillway.
