Nysmith School Students Outstanding at Odyssey of the Mind

As Nysmith School begins to wind down in preparation for spring break (week of April 10), plenty of its students are gearing up by recording impressive results in the prestigious academic competition, “Odyssey of the Mind (OM):”

❖ The fourth grade OM team—coached by Vernice Gibson-Jones of Herndon—took first place honors in the Division II competition and advanced to the OM State Championships on April 1 in Aldie, Va. (John Champe High School). The students presented their hand-crafted Odd-A-Bot “robot” that witnessed and duplicated four human activities and then applied the movements in a unique and entertaining fashion. The team members include: Anaahita Kaashyap, Anderson Jones and Rishabh Kumaran (all of Herndon), Henry Pan (Reston), Nyla Kathuria (Fairfax), Veer Dabbi (Oak Hill) and Austin Greene (Great Falls).

❖ A team of fifth graders took second place in its division, scoring high marks in both the long-term and spontaneous problem-solving portions of the competition. Coached by Levent Koc Ozdemir of Vienna, Sandra Serna of Leesurg and Holy-Tiana Rame of Washington, D.C. , the squad includes: Aanya Kolli (of Chantilly), August Rame (Washington, D.C.), Melis Ozdemir (Arlington), Sahithi Atluri (Centreville) and Valentina Suarez (Leesburg).

❖ The seventh grade team placed third in its competition, also building a robot to replay human actions in a creative way. The team, coached by Dr. Krishna Madiraju of Ashburn and Michael Joyce of Sterling, includes: Swetha Madiraju, Srivatsa Krishnamurthy (of Ashburn), Adeline Kong (Great Falls), Sarang Arun (Fairfax), Michaela Joyce (Sterling), Neha Regi and Rohan Regi (Centreville).

The second Annual Women's Choral Festival hosted by Capital Harmonia was held at the Community of Faith United Methodist Church in Herndon, Sunday, March 26. The festival celebrated women's contributions over the last 100 years and called attention to challenges women face across the globe today.

The afternoon program featured a repertoire of songs from classical to Broadway to pop performed by two, age-different female choirs, Capital Harmonia and the Oakcrest School Chorus from McLean. Mary Ann East, Artistic Director and Co-founder of Capital Harmonia, and Anne Miller, Music Director of Oakcrest School, conducted.

The festival showcased music specially written for women's voices and composed by women. The selections, accompanied by piano and string quintet, were chosen to inspire and empower the younger women to become advocates for women's causes. Intermixed between songs were readings of original poems written to reflect the pieces. Free and open to the public, the festival attracted more than 150 guests.

The program began with the combined choirs singing "Words of Strength," by Gwyneth Walker, accompanied by Rachel Thompson of Vienna on piano. The lyrics were a dialogue between the two generations. Initially, each choir sang separately, and then the choirs' voices intensified, ultimately ending in unison. The sense of past and present was evident in the uplifting and hopeful music. Molly O'Boyle, from Reston, attended the event. During the intermission, she said she was impressed by the age diversity in the program.

East recognized individuals in the audience who lead the 22 Washington area and national organizations that Capital Harmonia partners with throughout the year, their "Partners in Song."

Jasmin El Kordi is a chorus member from Vienna. Before the festival performance, she said Capital Harmonia relies on individual contributions and the generosity of organizations to help support their

Sick & Tired

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Man o' man was I sick last weekend (that was not a question). It began as a runny nose, followed by an annoying hacking cough, compounded by sneezing and watery eyes, an occasional headache, with zero interest in food and hardly any energy to get myself out of bed where I spent practically the entire two days. I haven't been that sick/incapacitated since, I don't know when. Thankfully, there was no temperature, sore throat or nausea to further complicate my inability to move off the bed. And most thankfully, there was no urgency to visit the bathroom (I don't know if I would have had the wherewithal to even get there). Otherwise, I might have actually had to call/email the doctor and/or make an appointment at the Emergency Room. After all, I do have cancer so I really shouldn't ignore — totally — the times when I'm feeling uncharacteristically bad. This past weekend, had I gone from bad to worse, I would have called.

However, my symptoms, as miserable as they were, especially for two days, didn't meet the this-is-it threshold as set forth by my oncologist. Though the symptoms were new and different versus the everyday norm, they certainly weren't uniquely different (lung cancer related) for a seasonal-type cold. Moreover, the pain/discomfort/cough wasn't coming from my lungs, and the symptoms had only lasted a few days, not a few weeks. I therefore determined that unlike Babe Ruth who felt "just as bad" as he sounded in his famous Babe Ruth Day farewell speech at Yankee Stadium on April 27, 1947, I wasn't dying. I was just sick with a bad cold, one that was worse than any I remember (although maybe I've forgotten. See column titled "I Can't Forget What I Don't Remember" published 3/22/17).

Nevertheless, since I'm not a doctor, just a patient, presumably I should know what my body is telling me. However, I may not be so inclined to listen (fear mostly). Though my life may occasionally be at stake, I still struggle with the facts of my case. I delude myself into thinking that if I don't give in to the pain and suffering — as rare as they usually are, then I won't suffer the consequences: dying before my time. I don't want to believe the worst so I don't. I wouldn't attribute my above-average life "unexpectedly" since diagnosis (eight years — AND ALWAYS COUNTING) as the power of positive thinking since I never read the book written by Norman Vincent Peale. But I try not focus too much on my diagnostic reality.

I mean, it's not as if I laugh in the face of death; heck, I cry more than ever, especially while watching programs on television when heartstrings are pulled. Somehow though, I try not to take my cancer personally, if that makes any sense? I try to take it the same way Curly Howard of The Three Stooges took his many slapstick pratfalls: "I'm a victim of soycumstance."

But when I get sick, whether or not I feel anything in my chest/lungs, I cross over into an entirely new realm. No more am I able to talk/humor myself into or out of things, no more am I able to deny my cancer reality and no more am I able to pretend that all is right in my world. It's during these situations when the metaphorical/proverbial you know what hits my emotional fan that I suffer the most. Unfortunately, there's not a shut-off button. I just have to ride it out, as bumpy as it typically is, and hope I come out the other end in better shape than when I went in.

So far, so good. Although I'm still coughing a bit and blowing my nose, all the other symptoms have subsided and no more do I feel worse for the wear. I don't suppose it's cancer-related, but of course, what do I know? What I do know is this: if the remaining symptoms linger, I'll worry, and on Wednesday, April 19 — and for the following week, I'll worry even more awaiting the results from the CT Scan and lower abdomen MRI I have scheduled that day (it's a special: two for one). Granted, these tests are not any newer than catching a cold, but still, I can't help wondering: since I was diagnosed as "terminal," this can't keep going on forever, can it?

Hutchison Elementary Celebrates International Night

Art and performance foster a culture that values and respects diversity.

To create change, teach the children. After a multi-year absence, Hutchison Elementary School in Herndon opened their doors Thursday evening, March 30, for the return of International Night. The event attracted Hutchison children and their families, many from different cultures and backgrounds.

"We hadn't done an International Night for a few years," said Maureen Griffin, Hutchison staff and event organizer. According to Griffin, after an assessment of the previous programs, a different educational experience was shaped. "The new format allows art and performance to be the featured elements," Griffin said.

The organizers sought to bring positive energy to the exchange. The many enriching hands-on craft and display activities invited the children and their families to participate and learn about other cultures, increasing awareness and support for others.

Having these activities be the focus, better engaged the children and achieved the program's goal to celebrate and embrace differences between nationalities.

"We wanted to bring people together to celebrate their differences," said Griffin.

Crowds of parents, grandparents and children from different nationalities arrived for International Night at Hutchison Elementary in Herndon. The free event was produced by Hutchison School staff, supported by volunteers and sponsored by Arts Herndon.

Christopher Gutierrez, kindergarten, holds his drawing of the Honduras flag, created during International Night held at Hutchison Elementary. This summer, Christopher will be visiting Honduras for the first time with his dad whose family resides there.

Eyuael Simon was instantly attracted to the Maasai Adornment craft table at Hutchison Elementary School's International Night. "This is my first time at International Night," Eyuael said.

Kelly Gu, an eighth grader at Rachel Carson Middle School, and Tiffany Lee from Green Briar West Elementary in Chantilly demonstrated their performance skills on the Guzheng, a Chinese plucked zither with a 2,500-year history.

Konark Dance School's affiliated troupe, Jayantika Dance Company, presented senior dancer Juliet Ganguly. To the delight of children and parents attending International Night, Ganguly performed an ancient Indian classical dance about the joy and color of spring.
