Council Deadlocks; Meyer Breaks Tie

University Drive Extension gets green light.

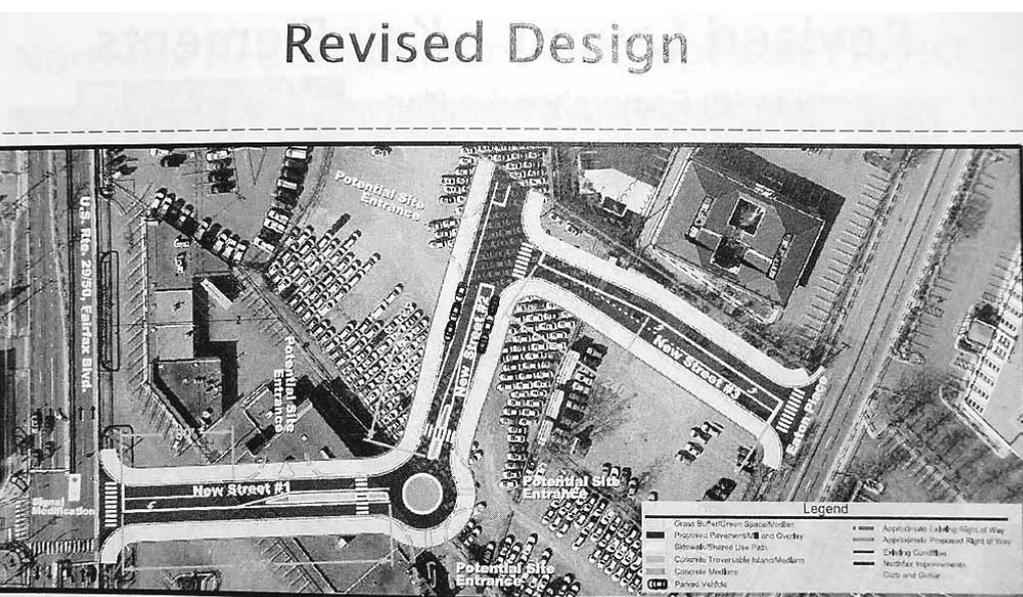

BY BONNIE HOBBS
THE CONNECTION

Love it or hate it, the extension of University Drive from Fairfax Boulevard to Eaton Place will be built. The Fairfax City Council deadlocked on the matter during its June 13 public hearing, with Mayor David Meyer voting yes to break the tie and greenlight the road.

The City's Comprehensive Plan recommends the road extension as part of an expanded roadway grid to provide more travel routes and better connectivity within the Northfax area. And Fairfax received some $10 million in federal, Smart Scale funds for this project, geared toward maintaining connectivity with University Drive to the south.

"If we don't proceed with this project, this money would be returned to the commonwealth," said Transportation Director Wendy Block Sanford. And in the end, Meyer concluded that Fairfax shouldn't pass up the chance to use federal funds for the improvement of the City.

The project includes: A roundabout for mid-block traffic calming; dog-leg bend in the road; sidewalks; access to adjacent parcells; on-street parking in the center of what's being called New Street 2; and a 10-foot-wide, shared-use, bike/pedestrian path along all the frontages. Turn lanes on each side of the road lead to Eaton and Fairfax Boulevard.

Brooke Hardin, director of Community Development and Planning, said the road's design fits into the City's Comprehensive Plan. Its alignment travels through part of the existing Fairfax Shopping Center and car dealership. However, said Hardin, although Northfax would be divided by this street, large-enough land parcels would be left to develop; and with consolidation, there could be a 4.5-acre site.

Sanford said the road's design was emailed to City staff by a citizen and was also given to them by a council member. On New Street 3, she said, there'll be a stop sign, but no traffic control on Eaton. "Cars can turn left from the new street onto Eaton," she said. "But at rush hour, it'll be difficult."

Hardin said the shopping-center owners wondered if the roundabout diameter could be widened and the whole thing shifted closer to Fairfax Boulevard; and he said "both things could be done."

"If costs are more than anticipated and more than the amount of funds we have, what would we do to obtain the rest of the money?" asked Councilwoman Ellie Schmidt. Sanford said the City would apply for NVTA, revenue-sharing or other type of funds. Typically, she said, "We're able to find other funding."

Councilman Dan Drummond asked about the process going forward regarding public input and construction-award requirements. "The 60-percent design public hearing is required, but you could have more," replied Sanford. "At 100-percent design, we'd put the project out to bid and it would come to City Council for the award [of the construction contract]."

AT 60-PERCENT DESIGN, she said they'd know the exact gradient and location of the roundabout, plus where landscaping would go. Furthermore, said Public Works Director David Summers, "You'd know the slopes and grades and if you'd need retaining walls. And you can start obtaining right-of-way and moving utilities."

To take advantage of the Smart Scale funds, the project must be awarded by Dec. 31, 2020.

The work would be done in 2021 and take all that year to construct; the road wouldn't be operational until 2022.

Residents Weigh in on Road Extension

They say it would attract both traffic and businesses.

BY BONNIE HOBBS
THE CONNECTION

Before the Fairfax City Council voted on the University Drive extension, several residents expressed their opinions during the public hearing. Representing the Fairfax City Citizens for Smarter Growth, Bob Reinsel Sr. said, "We believe the extension of University Drive is an important step in making Northfax on Fairfax Boulevard into a central commercial area and a more attractive destination."

He noted many residents' concerns about the resulting increased traffic jeopardizing pedestrian and bike safety on University Drive south of Fairfax Boulevard. But he said the dogleg and roundabout will likely slow traffic in the extension, thereby lessening impacts on University between Fairfax Boulevard and Kenmore Drive.

"People gravitate toward compact, walkable areas with short street blocks," said Reinsel. "Businesses want to locate there. The creation of a local street network in this commercial corridor will improve access to jobs, stores and services for City residents. It will create a block structure that can attract high-quality, mixed-use development. This is essential to building the tax base needed to support high-quality schools and other public services, while reducing the burden on residential property taxes."

Diane Henn liked the road's recently revised design and said that shopping center needs an upgrading. "A new, dynamic, shopping center would certainly be a boon to the City," she said.

"But I'm still dubious about the potential traffic congestion."

Bob Kemp said the increase in University Drive traffic is still a concern, and "it shouldn't wait until 2022 to be addressed. Speed has increased, too, so I'd say, 'Hold off on this project until additional concerns in the area can be addressed.'"

However, Councilman Jeff Greenfield said the City could use General Fund money to alleviate residents' challenges on University Drive. For example, he said, "We could put in bump-outs to slow traffic and help people get out of their driveways." And Transportation Director Wendy Block Sanford said funding has been earmarked do some spot improvements there in this new, fiscal year."

University Drive resident Margaret Teer said, "Walking across my street is incredibly difficult; drivers aren't concerned about the residents' safety. And a lot of people park on the road; so [with this plan], residents who've lived there 30 years would have to park their cars elsewhere."

Neighbor Amy Anspach said a cut-through from downtown Fairfax to I-66 via University "is not what the residents want. And the time this project will take – five years – will leave Northfax vacant for a long time." But another speaker said it's already a cut-through and the road extension will make the land more attractive to developers, so he supports the project.

Colin Riley, however, called roundabouts "hideous" and said the project costs "a tremendous amount of money that'll benefit a few, commercial-property owners and not City residents." And Talya Schultz, who'd recommended the dogleg, said the developers and property owners should build the road, themselves.

Daniel Feng doubted this project would improve traffic congestion. And, added Carol Troy, "Just because you can, doesn't mean you should. If the citizens don't want it, maybe we should give the money back." The Council also received several comments online and via email; six were in favor of the road extension and 24 were opposed.

"People gravitate toward compact, walkable areas with short street blocks."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Withholding Funds Hurts WMATA

To the Editor:

The following open letter was addressed to Secretary U.S.

Department of Transportation.

Dear Secretary Chao,

As representatives of public transit customers in the Commonwealth of Virginia, we write to express our concerns regarding the Federal Transit Administration's (FTA) Feb. 10, 2017 decision to withhold federal transit grant money in response to incomplete efforts to establish a new State Safety Oversight Program (SSOP) for the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (WMATA).

On Feb. 8, 2016, the FTA gave notice that the Metropolitan Safety Commission (MSC), a new SSOP to succeed WMATA's Tri-State Oversight Commission, must be in place and certified by the FTA on or before Feb. 9, 2017. On Feb. 10, 2017, with no new SSOP certified, the FTA announced it would exercise its authority to withhold five percent of federal funds authorized in fiscal year 2017 under the Urbanized Area Apportionments Program (49 U.S.C. 5307). The initial withholding equated to $8.9 million, and is expected to total $15 million if the withholding continues to the end of the current fiscal year. This withholding will not just impact funding for WMATA, but for broader infrastructure maintenance throughout Virginia, Maryland, and Washington, D.C.

The decision to withhold these federal funds has created significant uncertainty amongst state and local governments in terms of budget planning and stability. Should the withholding of funds continue throughout the remainder of the fiscal year, the governments and their transit systems will be faced with a number of difficult decisions about the manner in which they allocate their limited resources. Under a worst-case scenario, they would be forced to make cuts to good repair efforts or reduce service to their respective communities, either of which would be harmful to our constituents. We agree safety must be a top priority, but eliminating funding for infrastructure repair would directly contradict a SSOP's stated goal.

Given the FTA must engage in this process with 29 other transit agencies nationwide by 2019, we appreciate the complexity of the issues that were considered in making the decision to withhold these funds. However, we must emphasize — as many of us have expressed previously either directly to you, your predecessor, or the FTA — that the timing of both the notice and the deadline set by FTA were arbitrary in that there seemed to be little or no consideration of the legislative calendars of the Virginia General Assembly or the General Assembly of Maryland.

The FTA timetable effectively gave Virginia and Maryland less than one full legislative session to negotiate amongst each other and the District, draft the proposal, navigate it through the respective lawmaking bodies, and sign it into law. The unreasonable requirements FTA put forth were not simply for the SSOP to have a legal foundation by the February 2017 deadline, but to have the program fully certified by FTA, which necessitates months of work after passing legislation, including, but not limited to, appointing commissioners, hiring staff, and leasing office space. We are therefore led to believe that FTA either set their requirements without providing fair consideration to the unique institutional challenges that exist within the jurisdictions, or the FTA set them with a deadline so unrealistic that failure was unavoidable.

Given the concerns we have raised in this letter regarding FTA's shortsighted approach to this matter, and in light of the demonstrated progress which has been made, we respectfully request that your office work with the FTA to explore a compromise in which part of these withheld funds can be released as a show of good faith, as the jurisdictions continue their work to construct a stable SSOP. Lending further justification for this request is the real progress that has been made with respect to organizing the MSC. At the time this is written:

❖ Virginia, Maryland, and the District (the jurisdictions) have each enacted legislation to enter into an interstate compact to form the MSC;

❖ The jurisdictions have submitted a detailed draft certification plan to FTA for review (though FTA has not yet provided formal feedback on the plan);

❖ Joint resolutions have been introduced in both the House of Representatives and the Senate to grant Congressional approval to the MSC compact;

❖ The Senate has passed its version of the joint resolution;

❖ The House Judiciary Committee, which has sole jurisdiction over the joint resolution, has ordered the House's parallel version of the resolution to be reported favorably to the full House; and

❖ We are requesting that the measure be taken up for consideration as soon as possible.

We appreciate the FTA's important safety work, especially its temporary safety oversight role with respect to WMATA. Without FTA's diligence, more harm may have come to WMATA's customers. But we must find an equitable solution to this matter.

We look forward to partnering with you, Madam Secretary, as well as the FTA to ensure safety remains the top priority in all transit systems and that reforms are made to accomplish a transit agency that provides safe, reliable service to our constituents. We appreciate your thoughtful consideration of this request.

U.S. Rep. Bob Goodlatte,

University Drive Extension Approved

in the roundabout and turning radius,” said Councilman Michael DeMarco. “If a grocery store is approved for that parcel – and no trucks are allowed on University Drive – where would truck traffic go?”

Hardin explained that, “At Fairfax Shopping Center, trucks would enter off Fairfax Boulevard into a driveway on the eastern end of the site and proceed to the north side of the property to a loading dock. They’d exit where the roundabout is, and it would be designed so that trucks would be able to use it without a curb there.”

Then, following the public hearing, the Council members discussed the project before voting on it. “We appreciate every conversation and all the comments,” Councilman Jon Stehle told the residents. “I think we’ve done a lot to address many of the concerns.”

However, Schmidt said, “I don’t believe we’re ready to move forward on this project because we still don’t know how Northfax will be developed – so we don’t know where to put the road. Compact, walkable blocks are desirable and businesses gravitate there, but we still have vacancies downtown in that type of area.”

“And we don’t know how big an impact the traffic will have on University Drive, which is basically a residential street,” she continued. “Cut-through traffic happens, and we need to address the safety concerns on the existing road. [So] I encourage my colleagues to pass on this.”

But, asked DeMarco, “If not now, when? We’ve been talking about Northfax since the ’80s and ’90s.” He then read a report done several years ago by a GMU professor who said the City should focus on Northfax for economic development.

NOTING THE MANY PUBLIC HEARINGS and Council meetings about this road, Councilwoman Janice Miller was disappointed in the lack of consensus. She listed the many, different viewpoints the residents have, both pro and con, and said she agrees with each one.

“I dislike all the traffic that clogs our roads and [believe] this community should redevelop in a reasonable manner,” she said. “Landowners and developers should have some skin in the game and contribute a fair share in the development of their properties.”

“We’re moving into a new phase of redevelopment in this community, partially driven by landowners, developers and lenders,” explained Miller. “How do we move this project forward with thin community support, a Comprehensive Plan still in development and a Fairfax Boulevard Master Plan over 10 years old?”

“I will vote no this evening because I still believe we have too many unknowns and too much confusion from the residents about what’s planned.

The current divide will sink the best of projects and plans. We should consider a Visioning Plan for Northfax similar to the plan developed for Lotte Plaza at Fairfax Circle. We should meet with landowners again to strategize about future development, [plus] complete and adopt the Comprehensive Plan with community input. And City Council needs to improve its direct communication with residents.”

Drummond said the road extension will benefit the City’s economic development and, if Fairfax doesn’t take the money, it’ll go to another jurisdiction. He also believes redeveloping Northfax will encourage people to shop here, instead of just traveling through.

Councilman Jeff Greenfield said, “If we don’t extend University Drive, traffic will increase on it as development continues to increase around the city. But what’s most important is redevelopment of that shopping center and economic redevelopment.”

However, he added, “I believe developers’ dollars will eventually come into play, so tonight I’m not going to support this project. I think we cannot ignore the concerns of the residential community. I’m not hearing convincing arguments that this project won’t increase traffic on University, especially south of Fairfax Boulevard.”

The Council then voted, with Stehle, Drummond and DeMarco in favor and Miller, Greenfield and Schmidt against. Meyer then voted yes and the extension was approved.

“The Fairfax Boulevard Master Plan was developed in 2007, but we’ve experienced a significant recession, plus sequestration, that had a significant effect on this city,” said Meyer. “[And] costs to educate our schoolchildren have risen.”

“Northfax is the single, largest, developable parcel in the City – 20 acres on each of the east and west sides of Fairfax Boulevard,” he continued. “I’ll continue to work with the Council on traffic issues on University and throughout the City. But I think that, in five years, the wisdom of tonight’s decision will become obvious.”

“If not now, when? We’ve been talking about Northfax since the ’80s and ’90s.”

— Councilman Michael DeMarco

Meditation as Medicine Practice linked to improvements in health.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL

In her dimly lit basement in Great Falls, Mary Beth Kogod sounds a meditation bell that echoes through the room. The 12 people sitting on cushions in a circle around her close their eyes and listen to the gentle sounds of her voice.

"If your mind begins to wander, gently guide it back to the sound of my voice," said Kogod, as she leads the group in a mindfulness meditation session.

The practice of meditating to aid with ills running the gamut from stress and anxiety to pain and depression is on the rise. According to the National Institutes of Health (NIH), 18 million people practiced some form of meditation in 2015, and the number of Americans who engage in the practice has doubled over the last 15 years.

"We have more smartphones and other electronics that consume us and give us constant access to stressful events we see on the news," said Kate Love, who runs the Open Mind-Open Heart meditation group in Bethesda. "There is the expectation that we need to be available and informed all the time. This expectation wasn't in place 10 years ago."

Love says that while scientific research to back up these claims is limited, it is growing. For example, a study funded by the National Center for Complementary and Integrative Health at NIH shows that mindfulness practices have a positive impact on insomnia.

"There is the expectation that we need to be available and informed all the time. This expectation wasn't in place 10 years ago."

— Kate Love

Meditation usually entails sitting relatively still and quiet, as in Kogod's meditation session, and focusing on one thing, such as a sound, an image or one's own breath.

"I teach clients concentrative meditation where they focus on one thing," she said. "I also teach mindful meditation where people try to cultivate a sense of awareness of what is happening in their body. For example, what thoughts pass through your mind as you sit quietly? What sounds do you hear? What emotions do you feel? The work comes when you notice these sensations and then let them go."

A 2011 study by the Association for Psychological Science showed that meditation can be effective in boosting memory and concentration. Settings for this mind-body practice now range from workplaces to classrooms.

Amber Wilson, a fourth grade teacher, guides her students in mindfulness meditation practices most afternoons during the school year. "A lot of my students have difficult home environments which affects their ability to concentrate in school," she said. "When I stop them between subjects and let them chill out a little bit, it really makes a difference in their performance, even after just five minutes."

Meditation can also help with addiction treatment, says Warren Schelter, Ph.D., a psychologist with a practice in Alexandria. "It can instill a sense of calm and overall wellbeing," he said. "Anxiety and depression often go hand-in hand with addiction, which is why a calming meditation practice might be effective for some people."

Schelter underscores the fact that meditation should not replace traditional medicine. "I would recommend that anyone experiencing symptoms of mental or physical illness see a medical doctor first," she said. "Mediation should work in conjunction with traditional medicine, not in place of it."

Give Blood, Save Lives

The American Red Cross is facing a critical blood shortage and is issuing an emergency call for eligible blood and platelet donors of all blood types to give now and help save lives. Blood donations have fallen short of expectations for the past two months, resulting in about 61,000 fewer donations than needed and causing a significant drawdown of the Red Cross blood supply. The shortfall is the equivalent of the Red Cross not collecting any blood donations for more than four days. "It's crucial that people donate now to meet the needs of patients every day and to be prepared for emergencies that require significant volumes of donated blood," said Nick Gehrig, communications director, Red Cross Blood Services. "Every day, blood and platelet donors can help save lives, and right now these heroes are needed to give as soon as possible." To schedule an appointment to donate, use the free Blood Donor App, visit redcrossblood.org or call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767).

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

But a fix nonetheless, of our 17-year-old back-up car, a 2000 model year Honda Accord. On balance, since inheriting it from mother in 2008, it has been an exceptionally reliable and reasonably-priced second car and one which I'm happy to own. I drive it approximately 7,000 miles per year and not over long stretches. In effect, it is our local car. And considering there is no monthly car payment and the insurance/maintenance costs are low, as a non-car guy who only wants to get from point "A" to point "B", I can live with it "Big time," to quote our current President.

Now I'm at a bit of a crossroads, however. (And not that this is a "cancer" column per se, but it is a column affected by yours truly being a cancer "diagnosee.") I am dropping the car off at my local mechanic, Tony, later today because there are some warning signs and idiot lights suggesting I do so. First, the infamous "check engine" light is illuminated. Its yellow which Tony said is not as bad/urgent as if it were red. Nevertheless, to turn it off/fix the underlying problem (since it doesn't appear to be the gas cap) will likely cost hundreds. The preliminary assessment is that the fault is emission related.

The second area of concern is temperature, specifically how poorly my car's air conditioner is cooling and how loud the fan controlling it is when engaged even when one/low is selected. Adding insult to summertime discomfort, the passenger-side window doesn't slide down, either when using its own power-window switch or the master control on the driver's side. To summarize, I have one window (the driver's side) that can go down and extremely limited air conditioning. I wouldn't say it's hot in the car, but I'm sure any normal person would. Having had previous conversations with Tony about these repairs, I know the dollars needed to right these wrongs might not make any sense given the age and mileage on the car and the diagnosis of its owner. Yet here I am trying think long term, not cancer term. What to do?

I don't want to be miserable driving the Honda anymore (and it is me who's driving it). But I only need the air conditioning for another six to eight weeks or so - and not every day, and rarely at night. I do need to open the windows though for eight to 10 months, not so much during the winter and rarely on cold nights, but opportunities do present themselves. Spending the hundreds/possibly thousands of dollars for all repairs now however might make me miserable, too. The question persists then for any of us who own/want to maintain older cars: when are you throwing good money after bad? Ergo: when is enough, enough? (I sound like Carrie Bradshaw from "Sex and the City.")

Would I be better off spending the repair money on a newer car and enjoy whatever warranty protection I could muster and thus minimize future repair bills or not? The only problem with buying that 'newer car: it's likely (heck, there's no 'likely' about it) there will be a monthly car payment which at present I do not have, and in so having one will definitely make me miserable.

Factor in my health status and I can't stop asking myself: do I solve a problem that affects the quality of my life today at the expense of tomorrow (pun intended) or do I plan/repair for tomorrow and suffer the consequences of having done so today?

As a stage IV, non-small cell lung cancer patient originally characterized by my oncologist as "terminal" and given a "13-month to two-year" prognosis to boot back in late Feb., 2009, I've always tried to live my life and make decisions as if I had a future beyond what I was told.

And for the past eight years and four months, I have pretty consistently maintained that approach. Still, the longer I live, the more my underlying medical diagnosis impacts my thinking/judgment. Unfortunately, worlds sometimes collide and reality is up for grabs. And occasionally decisions are made in a "bizarro" kind of way where topsy is turvy and vice versa. Welcome to my whirled.
