Trike-A-Thon for St. Jude Children’s Research Hospital

Students at Chesterbrook Academy Preschool in Centreville raised more than $800 on Friday, July 14 at their Trike-A-Thon for St. Jude Children’s Research Hospital. Since the beginning of July, students worked together to raise money to help save the lives of children battling childhood cancer and other deadly diseases. During the event, students rode tricycles around the school grounds to raise awareness and support for the cause. Leading up to the event, students are learning about bike safety. This is the second year Chesterbrook Academy has hosted a trike-a-thon to raise money for St. Jude. See www.ChesterbrookAcademy.com.

Community Invited to ‘Stock Our Shelves’ for WFCM’s Food Pantry

WFCM is organizing a community-wide food drive to help replenish and restock the shelves of Western Fairfax Christian Ministries’ (WFCM) food pantry which serves hungry individuals and families in western Fairfax County. Keeping the food pantry shelves stocked during the summer months is a challenge — particularly with children out of school and unable to access free or reduced price meals daily at their school. Additionally, with many regular donors on vacation during the summer, donations to the food pantry drop during a heavy-use time. WFCM needs the community’s help to serve those struggling with food insecurity and needs.

WFCM invites residents to shop and donate food and monetary donations at three “Stock the Shelves” locations, on Saturday, July 29, from 9 a.m. – 3 p.m. Food drives will be held at Centreville Giant Grocery Store, 14125 St Germain Drive, Centreville; Chantilly Walmart, 4368 Chantilly Shopping Center Drive, Chantilly; and Greenbriar Giant Grocery Store, 13043 Lee Jackson Memorial Hwy., Fairfax. At each grocery store location, volunteers will distribute a most-needed food list to encourage shoppers to purchase items needed to restock WFCM’s pantry shelves.

Some of the items most needed at WFCM’s Food Pantry include: canned fruit, canned meats, rice, dry or canned beans, oatmeal or cereal, cooking oil, sugar, juice boxes, dry pasta and sauce, and canned vegetables (other than green beans). Personal hygiene items are also needed and clients are unable to purchase these items with food stamps: small dish soap, laundry detergent, soap, shampoo, toothpaste, deodorant, diapers (size 4, 5, and 6) and feminine care items. Volunteers are also needed to help with the food collection effort between 9 a.m. – 3 p.m. at the various locations. Duties will include handing out flyers, collecting donations from customers, and weighing, sorting, and organizing food items. Volunteers are also needed between 3 p.m. and 6 p.m. at WFCM’s food pantry, located at 4511 Daly Drive, Chantilly, to help accept food donations as they come in from the grocery store locations that will be a part of the community-wide effort. To volunteer, contact Jennie Bush at jbush@wfcmv.org or 703-988-9656, ext. 107.

Volunteers helped collect food at past grocery store food drive.

Financial gifts to assist with pantry needs are also accepted. Write a check payable to WFCM and mail to WFCM, attn.: Stock Our Shelves, PO Box 220802, Chantilly, VA 20153.

Chef Tyonne Johns

Historic Cabell’s Mill is in Ellanor C. Lawrence Park.

Case involves post-wedding stabbing at Cabell’s Mill.

By Bonnie Hobbs

he criminal case against Kempton Bonds involved anger and hostilities at a wedding reception. Those two elements derailed his murder trial, too — but this time, the unpleasantness were among the jurors.

Bonds, of Clifton, is accused of the Aug. 6, 2016 stabbing death of Tyonne Johns at Cabell’s Mill in Ellanor C. Lawrence Park. But after hearing hours and hours of testimony during his five-day trial, July 11-14, in Fairfax County Circuit Court, his jurors hopelessly deadlocked Friday night and a mistrial was declared.

Johns, of Washington, D.C., was 35 and the wedding’s caterer at the time of the tragedy; Bonds was 19. A 2015 Robinson Secondary School graduate, he was a seasonal employee of the county Park Authority. According to the wedding party, he was such a stickler for the rules that he and they clashed throughout the evening.

Bonds took down decorations not allowed to be taped to the walls of the historic building and removed false rose petals from the grounds outside because they weren’t biodegradable. He also turned off the music at 9 p.m. when, according to the contract, it had to stop — an hour before the event ended at 10 p.m.

He and Johns never argued until it was cleanup time and her folding chairs were being separated from those provided by the Park Authority. But during the course of the wedding, Bonds felt so threatened by the wedding’s caterer — including the threats and cursing — that he decided to record everything and videotaped the eight minutes Bonds said he was going to mess him up next time he saw him at Bull Run Park?

“Who said he was going to follow [Bonds] home — your father?” asked Greenspun.

“‘No, replied Sutherland. ‘He just stood there with a smirk on his face. I was angry.” Sutherland also acknowledged that, as heard on the tape, she, too, was cursing at and threatening Bonds.

“Who said he was going to follow [Bonds] home — your father?” asked Greenspun.

“‘Yes,” said Sutherland. She also admitted that she and her husband threatened Bonds that they’d file a lawsuit against him and get him fired.

Sutherland is white and her husband is black and, on the tape, her husband calls Bonds a racist. Sutherland said they’d reached that conclusion because they saw Trump bumper stickers on a vehicle they thought was Bonds’ car. But they had the wrong car and both Bonds and his mother later testified that — not only isn’t he racist — but he’s mixed-race, himself, half white and a quarter each black and Cherokee Indian.

Tensions boiled over when, on the patio, someone asked how many chairs the Park Authority provided and Bonds said, “80.”

Johns reacted by walking swiftly toward Bonds and telling him to “Shut the f— up.” Both Sutherland and another guest testified that they never saw Johns touch him or pin him against the patio railing.

But during his four hours of testimony, Bonds said Johns grabbed him around the neck and was choking him. He said he only stabbed her to get her off him and save his life.

Police Officer David Stewart testified that he responded to the venue after Bonds’s non-emergency call to police, around 9:20 p.m., about disorderly conduct there. “He stated he was being harassed by two of the wedding guests,” said Stewart. “It was clear there’d been an argument … I told Bonds to just stay away from the wedding party until it was over.”

Stewart also said he’d told the teen the police would stay there, just out of sight. But when they had to respond to a traffic accident on Route 50, they left suddenly without telling him. This fact became critical later on when, after the altercation with Johns — not realizing he’d stabbed her fatally and believing himself to be the victim of an attack by her — he shouted for the police, and they weren’t there.

Medical examiner, Dr. Meghan Kessler, performed the autopsy on Johns. She said Bonds sustained two, quick, stab wounds to the left chest.

“Both contributed to her death,” said Kessler. “One went into the left lung and heart.”

Bonds’s mother, Madeline Smith, testified that Bonds’s father was a custom-knife maker and had made that folding knife. When he died, three years ago, she gave it to their son as a keepsake. But since they also had horses on their property, she said Kempton used that knife regularly to make repairs and cut open bales of hay or boxes. She also noted that, on July 16, 1994, she was married at Cabell’s Mill.

Bonds testified that, when he went there that day, he was excited because it was his last day of work before vacation and the start of college at VCU. He also said that, in the 35 other events he’d handled for the Park Authority, he’d never had any problems and no one had complained about him.

Explaining how he was threatened that night, Bonds said one person said he was going to wait until everybody was gone and follow him home. He said another one picked him up from behind. Bonds called his supervisor, Zane Stivers, and told him he was going to call the police “because I didn’t feel safe there by myself.” But no one from the Park Authority came to his aid in person, and the police who responded left.

Later, while the chairs were being loaded, Bonds was leaning against the patio railing with his arms behind him, cell phone in left hand. He said he was standing where the police had earlier told him to stand, while people were “yelling at me about how awful I was and how I’d ruined the evening.”

Noting that the bride and groom had been the most verbally abusive toward him all night, he said he was surprised when the 60-pound-heavier Johns suddenly joined in and walked quickly toward him saying, “Boy, I’m gonna knock you out.”

“I was confused — it wasn’t her wedding,” said Bonds. “And as a caterer, she knew what it was like to deal with a bad wedding party. Her hands go up around my throat, she’s pushed me and I can’t breathe, I can’t move. I could feel her thumb digging into my neck. I open the knife in my pocket and stab her to get her off me. The phone falls to the ground and I scream for the police and yell for the others to stay away from me.”

He then called 911 to say he’d been attacked and asked police to come quickly.

Bonds said he hadn’t realized he’d wounded Johns fatally until he heard it over the police radio in the squad car following his arrest. When Greenspun asked him why he’d stabbed her, he replied, “Because she was trying to kill me.”

Judge Daniel Ortiz told the jurors they could either find Bonds guilty of second-degree murder or not guilty by reason of self-defense. He also ordered by the jury, Bonds was convicted of the August 6 stabbing death of Tyonne Johns. The mistrial was declared.

Summer Book Clubs for Children

Ideal time to instill a love of reading, say experts.

By Marilyn Campbell

Encouraging children to read during summer months can be challenging for some parents, but worth the effort, say local educators, because diving into books offers students an opportunity to boost their reading skills before the start of the next school year. Book clubs with their peers allows children to read in a relaxed, informal setting.

“Book groups during summer vacation are the perfect time for friends to gather and share the love of reading,” said Julie M. Esanu, lower school librarian, St. Stephen’s & St. Agnes School in Alexandria. “The summer is a perfect opportunity for readers to explore and enjoy a variety of books across different genres and formats, including ebooks, audiobooks, and graphic novels.”

While parents must provide a basic structure for the book club, Esanu says that allowing children to be involved in the planning and book selection, will cultivate a positive attitude toward books and reading.

“Summer reading is all about exploration and inspiration, so let the readers take charge,” said Esanu. “Consider the members of the book group and their various interests when selecting titles and let the members have a say in what they’re reading.”

Allow for organic discussions inspired by the readers rather than formal discussions that require too much preparation, advises Esanu. “(Formality) feels too much like homework for students and we want them to dive into books during summer,” she said. “Kids have a lot to say about the books that they read and that can lead to fabulous conversations. It is important for children to select the books that they read, especially over the summer.”

In her role as the lower and middle school librarian at Bullis School in Potomac, Katherine Brewer helps students make book selections by asking them about the last book they read and enjoyed. “This helps me find out what types of books they are into and suggest other titles they might like,” she said. “I might ask what about the book they liked. Then I will give several suggestions.”

Preparing and organizing the book club session without over planning, avoids chaos and leads to success, advises Laura Maffei, humanities teacher at BASIS Independent School McLean. “Set the stage by helping the children to understand the setting and any unfamiliar events or vocabulary they might encounter,” she said. “For example, before reading ‘Misty of Chincoteague’ learn about Virginia, specifically Assateague and Chincoteague Islands, watch a documentary on the round up, make a craft that teaches the parts of a horse and its riding equipment, look at examples of life in the 1950s to see how it differs from today.”

When the members of the book group are not all at the same reading level, as can be the case with children, reading the same book can be pose a challenge, says Maffei. “... An option would be to read the same content, but each reader gets a book at their reading level,” she said. “I’ve done this with Shakespeare, Greek Mythology, and classics like ‘Peter Pan’ that come in a variety of book types from picture to early reader to original text.”

“If the children aren’t around the same age [and] reading level or have varying interests, I would select a topic and suggest books that they could read and share,” added Brewer. “Students can have the book read to them or listen to an audio version if they prefer.”

Book club activities are an important tool in helping children develop a love of reading, says Tom Longano a third grade teacher at the Heights School, an all boys school in Potomac. “With most of our books I will invent a quick game that includes acting out the characters or key events from the story,” he said. “I have found this to be an excellent way for the boys, who often have a very concrete approach to the world yet boundless imaginations … to enter into the stories and feel them as actually real. This generates a love for the books that goes beyond just reading them, because they have in a sense lived them as well, acted them out.”

Longano says that this excitement about books can also be achieved with dramatic readings and assigning children characters from the book and having them act them out. “Anything to bring the text off the page and into their direct environment,” he said. “The activity should be fun and hands on, with the children taking the lead on the project,” said Brewer.

Summer book club activity ideas include visiting local public libraries or bookstores and browsing the shelves for ideas, says Esanu. “Visit the Alexandria or Arlington Public Library or an independent bookstore, such as Hooray for Books! in Alexandria or One More Page Books in Arlington, and browse the shelves for ideas,” she said. “Each book club member could choose a book that catches their eye and then the group could vote on which book they want to read.”

Reading a book and taking a field trip that is related to the book is another activity that Esanu recommends. “For example, Tonya Bolden’s award-winning book, ‘How to Build a Museum’ shares a behind-the-scenes look into Smithsonian’s National Museum for American History and Culture,” she said. “This is a great way to explore the museum before a visit.”

Guiding a discussion by asking questions that connect the book to current or personal events, playing games such as Charades, 20 Questions or Pictionary can help spark a lively discussion of the book, says Maffei.

“If the book has a movie version, watch the movie after reading the book,” she said. “Look for differences in plot, how the characters and setting look compared to how you thought they’d look.”
Riptide's Record-Setting Teams

Virginia Run Riptide's Busy Week Traffic at the intersection of Route 29 and Pleasant Valley Road was worse than usual on a recent Wednesday evening as Virginia Run hosted the NVSL Division 4 Relay Carnival with more than 300 swimmers from six teams. On that day, nine new team records were set with five of these new records belonging to the Virginia Run Riptide.

The 15-18 Boys 200 Medley and 200 Freestyle Relay team Anthony Arcomona, Leo Wang, Nick McGrath and Geoffrey Eisenhart demolished two team records taking 3-plus seconds off of the medley relay record posting a 1:33.39 and 2-plus seconds off of an 11-year-old free relay record swimming a 1:43.71. Sully Station II in Relay Carnival

The Sully Station II Piranhas enjoyed a busy week beginning with their final B meet of the season on Monday, July 10 followed by the Relay Carnival two days later. The 15-18 girls squad of Carly Logan, Georgia Stamper, Delaney Kennedy and Karena Hall led the way with dominating wins by over 8 seconds in the medley and more than 4 seconds in the freestyle relay. degree murder or voluntary or involuntary manslaughter and explained the differences between each offense. He also said they could find him not guilty if they believed the incident was self-defense.

In his closing argument on Friday, Assistant Commonwealth’s Attorney Brandon Shapiro said Bonds talked to the wedding party in a disrespectful, not-intimidated manner and antagonized, taunted and baited the bride and groom on their special day. He also said the wedding guests weren’t attacking Bonds, despite what he told the police.

Regarding Bonds not being able to breathe, Shapiro said he was able to shout, “Get the F — off me.” For self-defense, said the prosecutor, Bonds had to “reasonably fear for his life or believe he’s in danger of great, bodily harm. No one’s yelling for her to get him and there’s no evidence that she had a weapon. This is not a situation where deadly force is appropriate. It was not an accident — he did this with malice, and that’s murder in the second degree.”

But Greenspun said it was everyone else who was “vile and disrespectful” to Bonds. “They called him ‘Boy,’ in a condescending, verbally assaultive manner, but he never once raises his voice at them,” said Greenspun. “[Bonds] had no reason to believe he’d be attacked by Johns.

“She launched herself at him with her arms up and going for his throat. Otherwise, her arm would have blocked the knife and she’d have been stabbed in the arm — and the medical examiner agreed. Johns is dead and that’s a tragedy, but she brought the fray on, herself, and the others” and their vile language incited her actions. What’s recorded on the phone tells the facts of what happened, contrary to what the others testified.”

But Shapiro said the others were telling Johns, “Ty no,” not egging her on. “At no time was Bonds significantly intimidated by these people,” said Shapiro. “He had a knife on him, and that made him 7 feet tall.”

The jurors deliberated six hours, but sent word at 7:45 p.m. that they couldn’t reach a consensus and, therefore, any verdict. In fact, said the judge, there was so much animosity among them that “They’re already under the control of reason, Shapiro said, and that’s murder in the second degree.”

By KENNETH L. LOURIE

For the first time in almost exactly 25 years, bathroom demolition, times two. With financial assistance from my father-in-law, along with use of our home equity line, we have committed to and contracted for, a complete renovation of our two full bathrooms (‘full’ meaning tub/shower, commode, sink, toilet, mirror, shelves, lights/fixtures, counter top, floor and shower tile, and paint). Ego, over the next eight to 12 weeks, our house will officially become a construction site.

Never having experienced this level of upheaval and chaos in any of our previous homes before, we are looking forward since we have no reference looking backward. We know one thing for sure: our five indoor cats will be miserable and scared and likely hid-ing for days on end. Considering that the work- ers will be in our house from 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., I don’t know when the cats are going to feel like eating since their routine will have been completely thrown off by so many new people in the house for so many hours per day. (I don’t want to think about the litter box implications.)

Nevertheless, time marches forward, and given that our home is historic/over 250 years old, its bathrooms, though not exactly pre-Colonial, definitely are showing their age. Their design, form, function, efficiency, and attractiveness barely blip the radar. Both bathrooms are old, and that’s the only compliment I can give them.

I imagine the next two to three months will likely be a journey of discovery. Columbus-in like that we will be discovering a new world with modern bathroom amenities and conveniences, color coordination and functionality, many of which we’ve never had the opportunity of in over 25 years.

Our kitchen remains as it has been all those years ago: largely but clearly deficient in many ways compared to modern kitchens. As a matter of fact, as the designer, project manager and I walked into the kitchen looking for the access panel to the adjacent bathroom, I said, “As you can see, our kitchen needs work, too. Any chance you all offer a ‘BOGO? Buy one, get one free?’ Of course, they both laughed and shook their head. They didn’t have to say ‘No.’ It was more a rhetorical question anyway.

Considering the time we’ve all had together, we have no doubt the contractor and his workers know what they’re doing. We’re not sure however, as homeowners that we know what we’re doing. For four months back, the process has seemed clear enough as do the drawings/design ideas we’ve now averaged upon. Still, when it goes from their paper to our property, how will it all transfer? They seem confident and complimen-tary which certainly has been reassuring but we’re novices in this transformation.

For us each step forward is yet another step into the great unknown. And since we can only take it one step at a time, we have no choice but to live and learn and hopefully not regret and decisions we’ve already made (although changes can still be made).

So far — and it’s not very far — so good. However, it’s the process of starting and ulti-mately finishing that worries me. Not that I run on a schedule (heck, I can barely walk), but my wife, Dina, sort of does; and it seems as if she and the workers might be occupying the same space at the same time.

I suppose the timing and all eventually works itself out but it’s the intention with which I’m concerned. What I do is the only guaran-tees in any of this.

I guess I just have to deal with it as I do with my haying cancer: take the bad with the good, keep a sense of humor and try to remain posi-tive. David Greenspun kept a bloody eight years, and four months. I’d like to think I can manage for another eight to 12 weeks.
