The Uncertain Land of the DACAs What happens next?

BY SHIRLEY RUHE
THE CONNECTION

“We live in the land of the DACAs. No one else really understands what this means.” Katherine Garcia-Ortiz came into the United States illegally with her father when she was 7-and-a-half years old. “My mother left me in Bolivia when I was 4 years old to make a better life for the family in America.” She says her mother worked at a doughnut shop and a lot of other places with 3-4 jobs at the same time to make this possible.

Garcia-Ortiz remembers when she arrived in America she thought, “who is that lady; is that my mother? I had pictures of her but this wasn’t really my mother.” Garcia-Ortiz expected a house like they had in Bolivia, but her mother lived in a small apartment. The family situation is complicated with her mother and father entering the country illegally, her sister born here and thus an American citizen and her own DACA status.

Now due to the Executive Order issued by President Obama in 2012, Garcia-Ortiz has Deferred Action Childhood Arrivals (DACA) status that temporarily protects her from deportation and allows her to get a work permit. In addition, the state of Virginia has issued an opinion advising Virginia colleges and universities that DACA students who meet Virginia’s domicile requirements are eligible for in-state tuition. Also she is allowed to apply for a driver’s license. All of this ends when her current DACA status expires. Then it’s “no license, no in-state tuition, and hiding.”

This will affect over 800,000 DACA recipients nationwide with 12,000 in Virginia. Since DACA is not a path to citizenship for immigrants who entered the country illegally, it will take legislation to allow them to apply for permanent status.

On Sept. 5 U.S. Attorney General Jeff Sessions announced President Trump’s decision to rescind the DACA program. Garcia-Ortiz says when she heard this she cried for three days but she decided she had to get over it and do something.

Garcia-Ortiz sits in a room at the Arlington Community High School on Walter Reed with Lizzett Uria, from Fairfax, executive director of the Dream Project. This program was established in 2010 to assist students with immigration barriers to education. Seventy-one percent are eligible for DACA status. The Dream Project provides mentoring, financial assistance for college and moral support to immigrant students to help them be successful. Garcia-Ortiz lives in Arlington and has just graduated from high school and received a $1,500 scholarship from the Dream Project. She is enrolled in NOVA, majoring in biomedical engineering, and hopes to transfer to George Mason.

However, things are not easy for her family. “Our parents give up everything for us

Definitions

Immigrant: A person who is not a citizen or a national of the U.S. and who is lawfully granted the privilege of residing in the U.S.

Illegal immigrant: A person who crosses a country’s border, in a way that violates the immigration laws of the destination country, with the intention to remain in the country.

Refugee: A person who is outside his/her country and who is unable or unwilling to return because of persecution or a well-founded fear of persecution due to race, religion, nationality, political opinion or membership in a particular social group.

Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA): Status granted to immigrants who meet certain age and education requirements, have lived continuously in the U.S. since June 15, 2012 and haven’t committed serious crimes.

and then things in America are not easy for them. People back home in Bolivia think we are walking on petals. They say ‘why don’t you do more for your dad who has a hernia?’ Hospitals here are so expensive we can’t afford it.” Garcia-Ortiz says she is paying for school out of her pocket because her parents can’t help her. “I work so much. The scholarship from the Dream Project makes a big difference.”

“But with things the way they are now my parents are saying, ‘let’s just go back home.’ They are trying to convince me to go with them because of everything that has happened. It’s scary. Police officers are detaining people here and over here and over here. Life is better in Bolivia my parents say.” But if they return to Bolivia because of their illegal status, they won’t be able to return to America.

The culture in America is different, often most of the remaining family is still in the native country and financial struggles are common.

So why do they do it? Why do they decide to risk life in America? Sometimes it is because there is violence in their home country or conditions are bad but often the answer is reflected in a comment by Uria: “It’s about being able to be free.”

This year the Dream Project provided financial assistance to 76 students, and their goal is to increase the number each year. The program includes mentoring of high school students followed by application for a scholarship and visits to different colleges.

Uria says, “It’s important to the students that they know they have support.” As their brochure says, “Behind every student there is a personal story of struggle and commitment.” Uria says, “the students are our voice. They tell their stories and it helps people understand.”

Uria’s own story began when she arrived from Bolivia at the age of 12 on a tourist visa with her one-year-old sister and her parents. She said her parents told her they would just visit their grandparents in America and then stop at Disney World. That seemed great to her. But they didn’t return to Bolivia. “I really didn’t know I was undocumented until I was a senior in high school and asked to get my driver’s license. My parents stalled because they didn’t know what to tell me.”

She said, “My friends were all driving. They didn’t know. They saw me as a cheerleader.”

“It was a family secret. You couldn’t tell anyone. No one else knows the struggle you go through.” Uria continues, “in Bolivia my mother was an architect and my father was in politics.” But here her mother owns a cleaning company, and her father is a cashier. “My mother is not happy about who she has become.”

“But the one I feel most guilty about is my little sister. When she was young she would ask ‘where was mom?’ Mom was always working. ‘Where was dad?’ Dad was always working, too. She would ask could she have this and the answer was no because we couldn’t afford it. A birthday party is important to a 3-year-old. Now that she is 17 she says she can understand.”

“I started working at 14 with no documentation but people believed in me.” She says, “that’s what I tell my students. Don’t give up.”

Uria knows people who have gone back to Bolivia to stay but regret it. In fact, she made a trip back recently. She was able to make this trip out of the country legally because she is now married to a U.S. citizen and has a temporary green card. “People think we got married for this reason but we were together for 8 years.” But after taking a trip back to visit, Uria says she couldn’t return to live in Bolivia. “Here you work all week but you get what you need. In Bolivia it is a struggle. But,” she stresses, “it’s not all financial; it’s about being able to be free, the American dream.”

Springfield Man Sentenced for Kidnapping, Stalking Woman

A Springfield man was sentenced to a total of 13 years in prison after pleading guilty to interstate stalking, interstate domestic violence, and being a felon in possession of ammunition, according to the Department of Justice.

According to court records, Nam Quoc Hoang, 41, began stalking his ex-girlfriend in late December 2013. Nam and co-conspirator, Khoa Dang Vu Hoang, traveled from Virginia to Maryland to stalk Nam's ex-girlfriend throughout January 2014. This stalking included breaking into her home on two occasions and taking personal items, which were never recovered.

Nam faces a maximum penalty of 30 years in prison when sentenced on Sept. 29.

A federal jury convicted Khoa in March for interstate stalking and conspiracy. He was sentenced to five years in prison on July 21.

Challenges Remain for Police Reform

Including communications and body cameras.

BY PHILLIP NIEDZIELSKI-EICHNER

October 8 will be the second anniversary of the 2015 release of the Ad Hoc Police Practices Review Commission Final Report. The catalyst for the Ad Hoc Commission's formation by the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors was the August 2013 shooting death of John Geer. The commission was charged with assessing the Police Department's performance against national best practices.

GUEST EDITORIAL

The commission made more than 200 recommendations for transforming an excellent Police Department into one that is "best in class" and for strengthening the public's trust and confidence in the department.

I served as commission member and as the chairman of Use of Force Subcommittee. I am also a member of a loosely configured Implementation Committee, a group of former commission members dedicated to helping to see that our recommendations are effectively implemented.

I commend both the Board of Supervisors (BOS) and Police Department for their progress implementing the commission's recommendations. Significant reforms are underway that when fully realized will generate increased accountability and public confidence. Major reforms already in place include:

- ❖ forming the Office of the Independent Police Auditor to determine the thoroughness, completeness, accuracy, objectivity and impartiality of investigations of death or serious injury cases.
- ❖ convening a Civilian Review Panel to review civilian complaints regarding "abuse of authority" or "serious misconduct" by a police officer;
- ❖ creating "Diversion First," which offers alternatives to incarceration for people with mental illness or developmental disabilities; and
- ❖ recrafting the Use of Force General Order to enshrine sanctity of human life as an organizing principle, with de-escalation as the strategy of first resort when confronted with a threat rather than the use of deadly force.

WHILE MUCH HAS BEEN accomplished, more is work is needed. For example, the commission advocated in strong terms for information-sharing reform to promote timeliness, completeness and transparency. In this regard, a revised Police Department Communication Policy is still in process.

The commission also called for all officers to be outfitted with body worn cameras, contingent on the enactment of laws, policies and procedures that protect individual privacy. These cameras are to complement the dashboard cameras now mounted in each Fairfax patrol vehicle.

While a potential aid to criminal prosecution, the body-worn camera's equally important contribution is to foster greater transparency and the accountability of all parties during the interactions of the police with the public. As the American Civil Liberties Union noted in an October 2014 report, body-worn cameras "[have] the potential to be a win-win, helping protect the public against police misconduct, and at the same time helping protect police against false accusations of abuse."

While the county leadership has committed to deploying this technology, its approach has been appropriately methodical. Key considerations are operational, privacy, data security and cost. For example, the supervisors have approved a pilot project that will deploy cameras in two of the county's nine magisterial districts and the department is currently evaluating proposals from prospective suppliers.

THIS PILOT PROJECT needs to generate answers to following questions, among others: the county needs to establish when cameras will be running and how will the public know the cameras are on? When can biometric technology – such as facial recognition – be used? How will the video footage be secured from hackers? Who will have access to the data and under what procedures?

How will the massive amount of video data be stored and for how long? As the county understands and appreciates, the cost of deploying body-worn cameras is not in the cameras themselves, but the storage of the massive amount of data that is generated. As reported by the Center for Digital Government and Government Technology magazine, "When it comes to [body-worn cameras], data storage is the 800-pound gorilla in the room. Video ... is a data hog."

This reality generates cost-driven data-retention policy considerations. How long should non-evidentiary video be maintained? Some police departments say it should be 60-90 days, others say less or more. With regard to evidentiary data used in criminal prosecutions, the Virginia Commonwealth requires that evidence be stored for 99 years.

Finally, who controls access to the data? This question is becoming an increasingly significant issue nationally. Protecting evidence chain-of-custody for purposes of criminal prosecution is a necessary but not sufficient role to warrant the cost and the data protection risks inherent in the deployment of body-worn cameras. The real return-on-investment is the potential for influencing the behavior, through greater transparency and accountability, of all parties in a law-enforcement engagement.

The drive to use this technology is inescapable. A recent CATO Institute/YouGov poll found that 92 percent of the public supports the use of body-worn cameras. Implicit in this level of support are high public expectations that this technology will make a difference in law enforcement practices. Heightened expectations alone should give our policymakers pause, particularly when we know that no technology deployment is free of all mistakes and errors. The only thing worse in today's context than not collecting the data during a controversial use-of-force incident, is for the public to learn that video data under the Police Department's control is missing.

We should therefore challenge the assumption that video-camera data must be maintained under the sole access control of the Police Department. Options that should be given explicit consideration by the Board of Supervisors, Police Department and Commonwealth's Attorney include assigning video data access control to the Independent Police Auditor or alternatively assigning this role to a board composed of the Police Chief, Independent Auditor and Commonwealth's Attorney.

On this second anniversary of the Ad Hoc Policy Review Commission Report, the county and Police Department have many accomplishments to be proud of with regard to implementing the commission's recommendations.

Quality-driven change is hard; some changes are especially difficult. Body-worn camera deployment is one that requires careful study and diligent attention to complex legal and operational details. I commend the county for taking the appropriate measured response to meeting this recommendation and, especially with regard the matter of access to video data, challenge the conventional wisdom that access control to such data must be under the sole purview of the Police Department.

Phillip A. Niedzielski-Eichner is a member of the Fairfax County Planning Commission, served on the Ad Hoc Police Practices Review Commission and a former member of the Fairfax County School Board.

Household Re-Forms, and Looks Forward

Sun Design Remodeling's in-law addition complements existing architecture.

BY JOHN BYRD

Julia grew up in the Fort Hunt section of Alexandria in a close-knit family. She started dating a neighbor's son, Jack MacInnis, while still in high school and, in time, the two friends married. In the late 1990s Julia's father, Don Clark, died leaving her mother, Lita Clark, alone in the family home. A survivor of the Japanese occupation of the Philippines, Clark (as always) remained upbeat, independent; a loving mother and friend.

Fast forward a few years and Jack and Julia MacInnis own a house not far from Clark with whom they are in daily contact.

Then, in 2010 — with two sons growing quickly — the couple purchased a four-bedroom contemporary on a 1.5 acre lot in Fairfax. It's only a half hour drive from Clark, but the timing for a larger house was just right.

In the intervening years, Clark (who turns 84 this month) would visit the MacInnis residence regularly, often staying over one or two nights a week.

At this stage, the three of them began actively planning ways to augment the household by building an in-law suite on some part of the existing property. Eventually, attention focused on a side elevation of the existing house which offered views of surrounding wooded acreage.

THE LOT ITSELF presented challenges. The grade sloped radically on the northeast side where the lower-level (the intended site for the new in-law addition) exited from a pair of sliding glass doors to a small deck. Because of the slope, there were potential water run-off problems; also, Fairfax County's building code required that any new construction had to allow for a full 25 feet of "set-back" from the rear of the property.

"We knew an addition of this size on this grade was going to require careful engineering," said Craig Durosko, whose firm Sun Design Remodeling found both the design and structural solutions that would make the project feasible. "Still, it's helpful when the homeowners are proactive in the decision-making process at every juncture."

Added Julia MacInnis: "We were looking for a plan that would provide privacy and independence for Mom, yet also fully incorporate her into the household. We've functioned as a family for our entire lives. Mom helped to raise the boys, and she was raised in a multi-generational culture. We saw this change as a way of creating an expanded environment that would work for everyone far into the foreseeable future."

Clark's new suite would be a 580-square-foot annex constructed outside the existing house directly parallel to the lower level. A sliding glass door that accesses the outside would be converted into an interior pocket door that opens into a downstairs recreation room.

The space plan would consist of a 17-foot-by-17-foot master bedroom surrounded by windows on three sides, a master bath with a walk-in shower and heated floors, and a sitting room/kitchenette equipped with a small refrigerator, a sink and a microwave.

The sitting area includes a bistro table for four with a view of the surrounding woodland. The entire household, nonetheless, share meals and kitchen duties together every day. By the same token, Julia and Jack MacInnis and sons (Jackson and Harry) are free to drop-in on Clark just about any time.

"It's a very comfortable, harmonious arrangement," Clark said. "Very much what we hoped for."

That said, engineering the suite's durable footprint was something of a feat.

"Because of the site's grading, we ended up designing a slab foundation with both stem walls and integral footings," said John Benedetto, the addition's lead designer. "To assure structural integrity, there were two concrete pours: one to form the stem walls on the new addition's left side; a second to form the slab with integral footings on which the addition is built."

Footings are placed 30-inches below grade; the slab itself is approximately one foot above grade. The goal: assure that the weight of the new structure is adequately supported — soil compaction being a key part of the equation.

FOR ALL THE DEFT engineering, it's the suite's interior that proves memorable. The three primary living areas were designed specifically to profile heirlooms, furnishings and other personal items that Clark brought from the Fort Hunt residence.

"There were two twin beds that had been in the family for years," Julia MacInnis said. "A chest of drawers, an old vanity. Sun Design used these pieces as focal points for shaping the bedroom and sitting room. And it's not just that everything fits well ... but also that the floor plan is well-rationalized.

"The Fairfax is like a cruise ship."

—Colonel Philip (Phil) J. Saulnier, USA, Retired and Judith (Judy) Saulnier, Residents at The Fairfax for 3.5 Years

BEFORE: A sliding glass door exiting from a lower-level rec room was identified as a potential link between the existing house and new in-law suite. The exterior egress was converted into an interior pocket door that enters Lita Clark's sitting room.

At 580 square feet, the new suite is seamlessly married to the original house. Lead designer John Benedetto's "massing" of the new construction preserves proportionality and scale. Siding, fascia, soffits, gutters and downspouts are all matched.

Staying Put

The twin beds, for instance, fit perfectly under high windows that assure privacy, yet allow a lot of natural light. Overall, the entire suite is spacious, and quite comfortable."

On that note, the new addition has been fitted with a mini-split HVAC unit that allows Clark to adjust the suite's temperature to her requirements. Meanwhile, the bathroom has a heated floor with its own thermostat.

The addition's exterior elevations are blended with the existing house. Vinyl siding, fascia and soffits, gutters, and downspouts are all matched. Low-E Argon glass vinyl windows allow for abundant natural light and views while keeping temperatures where the thermostat requires.

In all, a comfortable accommodation ... within a thriving household.

A healthy body starts with a healthy mouth!

At Peter K. Cocolis, Jr. and Associates, we believe optimum oral health is key to total body health and well-being. These days, going to the dentist is not just about taking good care of your teeth; it is about taking good care of your health. Problems in your mouth can be signs of trouble elsewhere in your body. Your oral exam reveals important early warning signs for many total-body conditions including diabetes, oral cancer and high blood pressure.

Whether your family seeks general preventive maintenance, cosmetic, or advanced restorative and implant dentistry to transform your smile's function and appearance, Drs. Cocolis and DaSilva are renowned by peers and patients alike for exceptional personalized care in a friendly, safe and state-of-the-art-environment.

Consistently named "Top Dentist" in Northern Virginia magazine and among the "Best Dentists in the Metropolitan Area" in Washingtonian magazine, Drs. Cocolis and DaSilva exceed industry standards in the time they dedicate to continuing education and service. The Uncertain Land of the DACAs recipient also sits at the table. She arrived from Bolivia when she was 6 years old to join her dad who had been here a long time. She is currently a freshman at Marymount University in nursing and plans to add on biology. Her grandfather was in America legally and had brought over the grandmother and other uncles. She says conditions in Bolivia are bad. "There are a lot of drugs. Teenagers drink at 12."

Now she has finished her first year at Marymount and is a mentor to younger students in the Dream Project. "I feel like in America we can all walk (anywhere we want)." Although she lives in Arlington her parents have bought a house in Maryland in order to get a driver's license. Maryland allows a driver's license for undocumented immigrants who live in, and pay taxes, in Maryland. In Virginia a Senate Committee killed a bill in January 2017 that would have allowed illegal immigrants to get a driver's "privilege card."

Jimenez-Flores says if nothing permanent gets passed, "we'll see how it goes." She pauses and says, "I'm somewhat worried," then wipes her eyes, "there's nothing we can do."

But Uria encourages her. "There is something we can do. I believe this has given us an opportunity to focus on enacting permanent legislation. We've been through this before DACA and we know what to do." Although DACA protects immigrants from deportation, it is not a path to legal citizenship which can only be guaranteed through the enactment of legislation.

In the meantime they live with the uncertain future and the upcoming expiration of their status. Uria says, "That small piece of paper, it's like magic."

This is the second article in a series focusing on DACA.

Senators Meet with Leaders of Industry

In joint appearance, Warner and Kaine talk business in Northern Virginia.

BY MICHAEL LEE POPE
THE CONNECTION

The governor of Virginia should pick one region of the commonwealth to compete for landing a second Amazon headquarters in Virginia instead of trying to cheerlead for three different areas simultaneously. The federal government should be allowed to negotiate drug prices through Medicare to bring down the cost of prescriptions. Republicans in Congress should try to work with Democrats on tax reform and infrastructure improvements instead of trying to go it alone if they want a deal that would help all Americans. These are some of the revelations that U.S. Sen. Mark Warner and U.S. Sen. Tim Kaine dropped on industry leaders this week at a meeting of the Northern Virginia Chamber of Commerce.

"When you heard some of the issues about tax reform, immigration or how we can possibly get Amazon here as a client in the metropolitan area or the state of Virginia," said Jim Corcoran, president and CEO of the Northern Virginia Chamber of Commerce. "I truly think everything we heard in there would resonate with the business community."

On the issue of Seattle-based Amazon, the online retailer that's transforming the country's economy, Kaine said Democratic Gov. Terry McAuliffe and business leaders should determine winners and losers. Currently, Northern Virginia is competing with Hampton Roads and Richmond to land the deal. Kaine said that means Virginia might be undercutting itself in the long run.

"We've got to put our best foot forward," said Kaine. "That means if a bunch of communities in Virginia are competing with one another ... I can see that as hurting us."

On the issue of prescription drug prices, Warner announced a change of position. Instead of supporting Big Pharma in its longstanding argument that America's high drug prices were necessary to fund research and development, Warner said the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services should be able to negotiate drug prices through Medicare. By engaging in this kind of negotiation, which already happens at the Department of Veterans Affairs, Warner says drug prices would drop dramatically in the United States.

"I've changed on this, and I'll get some dirty looks from some folks in the room on this one," said Warner. "But I think it's no longer right or fair for Americans to pay for the R&D costs for all of the drugs for the whole world."

Julie Carey of NBC4 moderates a discussion between U.S. Sen. Mark Warner and U.S. Sen. Tim Kaine at the Falls Church Marriott Fairview Park.

THE DISCUSSION veered from tax cuts and infrastructure investments to cybersecurity threats and gun control. One issue that seemed to resonate in the room of business leaders was the backlog in security clearances. Federal officials are currently facing a backlog of more than 700,000 security clearances, which Warner said was unacceptable. When asked about the defense authorization, he said getting a security clearance takes way too long.

"It should not take this long, to have the kind of backlogs on security clearances" said Warner, eliciting a spontaneous round of applause.

"That is only an applause line in one room in the United States," added Kaine.

The backlog isn't just a headache for government officials and the contracting community. It branches out into all kinds of industries in Northern Virginia, some of which might not be immediately obvious. Business leaders in the energy industry, for example, are just as concerned about the backlog in security clearances as people who work in defense contracting.

"If you don't have the clearances, you can't receive information," said Kelly Chapman, lobbyist for Dominion. "If there's information out there that could be potentially harmful, they can't receive it if they don't have the clearance."

One area where the senators saw some room for potential compromise was the coming discussion on tax reform. Kaine said he hoped the president would not seek to move forward on the issue with reconciliation, a process that would effectively shut the Democrats out of the picture and allow Republicans to move forward with a simple majority vote. Warner said he hoped the president would take advantage of the moment to make investments in the cybersecurity industry.

"Mark Warner mentioned having an incentive for companies investment in the human capital of their workers to help them upgrade to higher skill levels and get a tax credit for doing that the same way they get a tax credit for doing research and development," said Whipple. "That's something, in the heavily human capital development businesses that we have in Northern Virginia, could really pay off for them."

CYBERSECURITY ISSUES became a recurring theme of the discussion, which included not only the prospect that tax reform might offer ways to help people advance themselves professionally. The issue of Russian influence in the 2016 election loomed over the discussion, in part because of Kaine's role on the ticket. He was the first Virginian to be on a major-party presidential ticket since 1840, when John Tyler joined ran with William Henry Harrison.

"I feel like I'll be a Hollywood Squares question sometime," said Kaine. "It was such a bizarre race."

And then there was the fake news. Kaine said his staff alerted him to fake news stories four times during the campaign. One was that he and his wife Anne Holton have an open marriage. Another was that he was caught on tape yelling at his daughter. Yet another fake news story was the Hillary Clinton and Kaine had a secret deal for years that he would be part of the ticket. He said most of them caused a laugh and then they would move on. But then one emerged that Kaine was on tape yelling at his mistress. As it turns out, it was audio of Mel Gibson leaving a mean-spirited voice mail.

"When I told the story and explained it wasn't me it was Mel Gibson," said Kaine, "somebody said, 'Why was Mel Gibson yelling at your mistress?'"

Movie Classics in Spanish Air during Hispanic Heritage Month

Fairfax County's own nonprofit cable network, Fairfax Public Access (FPA), will present a series of Spanish language versions of young people's movies, based on literary works, in recognition of Hispanic Heritage Month (Sept. 15 – Oct. 15). The specials will air on FPA Channel 36. The FPA cable network is carried by Verizon FiOS TV and Cox Communications throughout Fairfax County, and by Comcast in Reston.

The Spanish language versions of the films based on well-loved novels include "El Libro de la Selva" ("The Jungle Book," 1942), based on the novel by Rudyard Kipling; "La Pimpernel Escarlata" ("The Scarlet Pimpernel," 1934), based on the novel by Baroness Orczy; "La Pequeña Princesa" ("The Little Princess," 1939), based on the novel, "A Little Princess," by Frances Hodgson Burnett; and "Los Viajes De Gulliver" ("Gulliver's Travels," 1939) based on the works of Jonathan Swift.

Fairfax County School Board Providence District Representative Dalia Palchik (whose native language is Spanish) announced at the School Board's Sept. 28 meeting that the special movies, based on literary works, are being presented in celebration of Hispanic Heritage Month by the Fairfax cable network.

"It is our hope that these movies will pique our young people's interest, motivating them to read the original literary works upon which the movies are based," states FPA Executive Director Chuck Peña.

'Fall for the Book' Festival Returns

By DAVID SIEGEL
THE CONNECTION

Celebrate the joy of books in their many genre at Northern Virginia's flagship book festival, the "Fall for the Book." Returning for its 19th year, the Festival aims to connect readers of both print and digital books, with about 150 authors, poets, historians, graphic novelists expected at this year's event.

With a format of interactive workshops, readings, award celebrations and special hands-on activities, "Fall for the Book" wants to encourage cultural growth and knowledge through active reading. This year's book festival is expected to attract 20,000 attendees. Events are free.

"There will be abundant opportunities for book signings," said Festival Manager Suzy Rigdon-Williams. This year's event will even include food trucks. The festival will partner with the City of Fairfax's "Fall Festival" as well.

National headliner authors include Colson Whitehead, author of "The Underground Railroad," winner of a 2016 National Book Award. Lev Grossman ("Magicians" trilogy), poet Ellen Bryant Voig ("Headwaters"), writer David Shields ("Other People"), novelist Karan Mahajan ("The Association of Small Bombs"), poet Tarfia Faizullah ("Seam") and Mohsin Hamid ("Exit West") will participate as will Jennine Capo Crucet ("Make Your Home Among Strangers") about a young woman bridging two cultures.

Local Northern Virginia authors will be well represented at the book fest.

L.M. Elliott (Northern Virginia) author of Young Adult historical fiction such as "Suspect Red" will be at the festival. "Young readers are sophisticated. From reading historical fiction they can learn about the past and how the past is relevant to their own lives

Where & When

"Fall for the Book" at George Mason University, 4400 University Drive, Fairfax, and locations around Northern Virginia. Events are Oct. 11-14, 2017. Events are free; tickets not required. For details and full schedule call 703-993-3986 or visit www.fallforthebook.org. There is also a digital "Fall for the Book" app available at www.fallforthebook.org.

on issues that matter to them, such as injustice and xenophobia."

Zach Powers (Fairfax) author of a short stories collection, "Gravity Changes," will be participating. "The Festival has a national reputation. Having it in our backyard is a huge benefit. As an author, it lets me connect with readers and writers. I always find inspiration in meeting other writers and readers."

Jason Rodriguez (Arlington) who creates graphic novels about the underrepresented in America will have several sessions at the book festival. "I focus on using graphic novels to talk about social justice and historical challenge," said Rodriguez. "I want to inspire and provide youth with tools to tell their own stories. Right now I am focusing on Hispanic American issues."

"Fall for the Book" is a home-grown Northern Virginia event offering attendees of all ages and interests opportunities to meet writers; already admired or newly discovered in the company of other book lovers.

Advocating for Solar Panel Installation on Public Schools

On Thursday, Sept. 28, more than 40 Fairfax County residents attended the Fairfax County School Board meeting in support of students delivering presentations and 1,545 petition signatures, urging solar panel installations on public schools.

Submit civic/community announcements at ConnectionNewspapers.com/Calendar. Photos and artwork welcome. Deadline is Thursday at noon, at least two weeks before event.

IN-PERSON, TV DEBATES

The League of Women Voters of the Fairfax Area (LWVFA) will hold four in-person forums and three televised forums for the public and the press to learn about the candidates who are running for election to the Virginia House of Delegates. The League invited all certified candidates campaigning for office in their respective districts. At the in-person forums, question-and-answer sessions will be followed by an opportunity for informal conversations with individual candidates. The public and press are encouraged to attend. For more information about the candidates' priorities and positions, visit www.vote411.org.

In-person forums:

- ❖ Thursday, Oct. 12 at 7 p.m. at Hayfield Secondary School, Lecture Hall: 7630 Telegraph Road, Alexandria.
- ❖ Wednesday, Oct. 25 at 7:30 p.m. at Sully Government Center: 4900 Stonecroft Blvd., Chantilly.

BRADDOCK ROAD STUDY

Community Meetings. Braddock District Supervisor John Cook and the Fairfax County Department of Transportation (FCDOT) will host a series of community meetings focused on specific sections of Braddock Road this fall. The schedule includes:

- ❖ Wednesday, Oct. 18: Beltway area – Braddock Hall, 9002 Burke Lake Road, Burke
- ❖ Wednesday, Oct. 25: Burke Lake intersection – Kings Park Library, 9000 Burke Lake Road, Burke
- ❖ Thursday, Nov. 16: Ravensworth Road intersection – Ravensworth Baptist Church, 5100 Ravensworth Road, Annandale
- ❖ Monday, Dec. 11: Burke Lake intersection, second meeting – Kings Park Library, 9000 Burke Lake Road, Burke

The goal of the Braddock Road Multimodal Study is to develop commuting improvements for the corridor from Guinea Road to I-495 to Ravensworth Road. Visit www.fairfaxcounty.gov/fcdot/braddockroadmmstudy/.

SATURDAY/OCT. 7

Metro – Fund It/Fix It. 9:30 a.m.-2 p.m. at National Rural Electric Cooperative Association, 4301 Wilson Blvd. The League of Women Voters of the National Capital Area (LWVNCA) and the Coalition for Smarter Growth (CSG) will hold a free forum for the public to learn about funding and fixing our Washington D.C. area Metro system. Event is free. Lunch will be available for purchase ($10), but a request for lunch must be made at the time of registration. Register at www.eventbrite.com and search “Metro fund it.”

A Question Which Begs What Answer

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Twice recently, in print, I have been asked the same question. Once on an evaluation of a previous doctor appointment, and within the last week, on a pre-registration form for an oral surgeon.

The question: “How is your health?” “Excellent.” “Good.” “Fair.” “Poor.” The two times I saw this question, I snickered. I mean, I have cancer: Stage IV, non-small cell lung cancer in fact, the terminal kind.

And even though I've lived way beyond my original “13 month to two-year” prognosis, (eight and a half years and counting, always counting), I'm still undergoing treatment. I see my oncologist every three months. I'm not in remission. My tumors, so far as I've been told, are not necrotic (dead). I'm still scheduling CT Scans, brain MRIs and PET Scans quarterly, semi-annually and yearly, respectively. And while amazingly thrilled to be still alive, my fate turns on the results of any one of these diagnostic scans so I wonder aloud: how is my health?

In the two most recent opportunities (I've had others) to answer this question, I have erred on the side of reality (my reality) and answered “Poor.” Whether I'm up and about or down and out, cancer is sort of the definition of ‘poor,’ isn't it? Let's be honest: who wants to receive a diagnosis of cancer, regardless of type and/or stage. Moreover, it's hardly the gift that keeps on giving. Quite the opposite. It's like the houseguest who never leaves. It's always there and the more it's around, the worse it's likely to get.

As much as one tries, a cancer diagnosis is hard to forget. Whether you're still undergoing treatment as I am, or have been told you're cancer-free/in remission/N.E.D. (no evidence of disease), the prospect of a life unaltered by the experience is unrealistic, especially so when questions are asked pertaining to your health. It's not as if you become stigmatized by your cancer diagnosis and/or medical history, but you do become a lifetime member of a club you'd rather not have joined (the more serious and exact opposite of a feeling expressed by Groucho Marx when he so famously joked that he wouldn't want to belong to a club that would have him as a member). If only it were that simple – and funny.

A straight forward question about one's health which requires a thoughtful and honest answer. Yet, an answer which somehow must, in my opinion, educate the asker. I'm not a normal respondent (no comments from the peanut gallery). I'm a cancer patient/survivor. Presumably, my immune system is somewhat compromised. What's good for the goose is probably not good for the gander. My life expectancy is all fouled up. Cancer is likely in control.

As much as I want to delude myself otherwise, the writing, if not necessarily on the walls, is certainly in multiple books and journals. And not that there aren't exceptions to every rule (my survival is proof of that), generally speaking, a cancer diagnosis “spells trouble with a capital ‘T,’” if I may invoke the late actor, Robert Preston, from his career-defining role as Harold Hill in the 1962 movie, “The Music Man.” Still, life is going on, and not too badly, I may add. But on any given day ...

I suppose the solution then is an asterisk. But how does one add an asterisk to a standardized form. And given the evolving nature of our almost-entirely inhumane (non-human) electronic contact, where does one go/what does one say, to separate and be heard. I want to be treated equally, but as a cancer patient, I'm not. I'm different. If there's a box for that, I'll gladly check it. I want the best outcome, naturally. But not giving me the opportunity to properly define myself/my circumstances doesn't help either one of us. And does even less for the next respondent.
