Blood and Guts 5K Race

BY STEVE HIBBARD

The sixth-annual Blood and Guts 5K Run will take place Saturday, Oct. 14, 2017, at Bull Run Regional Park in Centreville. About 1,500 people are expected to attend this wild zombie obstacle course race. Runners will trudge through 10 obstacles while a horde of zombies shoots at them with “blood”-filled water guns. The low- to moderate-risk obstacle course race is designed for individuals of all ages and abilities and takes place four times, every half-hour starting at 9:30 a.m. to 11 a.m.

“The Blood and Guts Run is the wildest 5K Zombie Obstacle Race. It’s the perfect event to get in the Halloween mood,” said founder Max Bawarski, 34, of Manassas. “It’s a combination of all of the obstacle courses and mud runs out there. When you run, you get sprayed by zombies with fake blood. We try to make it a fun event for everyone.”

What’s new this year is a 75-foot-long inflatable slide. Other highlights include a pumpkin guts pit, creepy cargo net, rugged rope wall, blood water slide, beams of fear, spider web, bizarre body bags, and foam slip-n-slide. In addition, there will be a blood and guts pit filled with spaghetti, a “blood”-filled foam machine, plus 100 or so zombies (volunteers in makeup).

Another highlight this year is Knockerball, for an additional $5. It’s a game where players get inside a large inflatable sphere or plastic bubble and smash into other players. The balls have inner handles and adjustable shoulder straps on the inside. “It’s a fun, adrenaline-rushing game that anybody can play at any age,” said Bawarski, a physical education teacher (grades K-6) at Providence Elementary in Fairfax. He was an All-American runner and track star in 2002; and he graduated from Cortland State College in New York in 2005.

“If you’re a Halloween fanatic, this is a great event to come to. We try to turn Bull Run Park into a Halloween atmosphere. We encourage people to wear costumes. We have marines run the course as well as 5-year-olds. It’s neat to see all of the ages in costumes,” he added.

Prizes will be awarded for the wildest individual costume at 10:30-11 a.m. Last year, about half of the Blood and Guts participants ran in Halloween costumes. A portion of proceeds will benefit charity partner Susan G. Komen of Virginia for breast cancer research.

In addition, two deejays will play top hits throughout the day and a Zumba Fusion Dance Party will take place near the finish line. To feed the apocalypse, four food trucks will be parked outside, offering French fare, gourmet tater-tots, gourmet hotdogs, and Hawaiian ice.

The Blood and Guts 5K wild zombie obstacle course will include a slide.

The cost to run the 5K race is $30-$35. Discounts are available at $10 off to students, teachers, military personnel, police officers, firefighters, and nurses. If a child is 13 or younger, tickets are $10 off. Tickets for a team of three runners are $10 off. If registering four or more people on a team, email support@BloodandGutsRun.com for a discount. Check the website for the promo codes.

Runners who finish the race will receive custom-made medals. Volunteers, who receive free admission, are still needed to be zombies, makeup artists, security, and miscellaneous positions.

The Blood and Guts Race event will take place at the Bull Run Regional Park Special Events Center, 7700 Bull Run Drive, Centreville. Visit the website at www.BloodandGutsRun.com or on Facebook at www.facebook.com/bloodandgutsrun. To volunteer, contact Max@BloodandGutsRun.com or call 571-969-4887.

Uphill Climb for Democrats

House District 40 shows Republicans can still compete in areas where Clinton beat Trump last year.

BY MICHAEL LEE POPE
CENTRE VIEW

Democrats are energized, and they're targeting Republican-held House districts that Hillary Clinton won last year. But House District 40 shows what an uphill climb this year will be for Democrats. It's currently held by a Republican incumbent in the House majority leadership, and Clinton's win here represents an outlier. The district has been reliably Republican before last year's presidential election, and it even remained in Republican hands during a special election for Fairfax County School Board over the summer. Nevertheless, Democrats are targeting the seat currently held by Republican caucus chairman Tim Hugo.

"Tim's track record has always been self before service," said Donte Tanner, the Democrat challenging Hugo this November. "And that's the reason why we wanted to get involved in this race, and that includes not expanding Medicaid, gerrymandering, transvaginal ultrasound. These are the bills that don't really represent the values of the district."

Hugo has raised more than twice as much money as Tanner, who is hoping to turn the negative into a positive. On the campaign trail, Tanner has been pointing to financial disclosure forms that show Hugo used campaign money for gas bills, cell phones and steak dinners. Tanner says that shows Hugo is using political money for personal use. When asked about this line of criticism, Hugo says all those expenditures are legal and appropriate.

"If you have a fundraiser, you have to pay for it out of your campaign. If you go to a political event, you have to pay for the gas somehow," said Hugo. "My opponent just moved here and runs for office, and the first thing he's advocating are these big liberal spending programs and new taxes."

THE 40TH HOUSE DISTRICT stretches from Bull Run to Sudley Springs and the western edge of Fairfax Station. With the exception of Hillary Clinton beating Donald Trump by eight points in 2016, it's a solidly red district. Even controversial Republican pastor E.W. Jackson beat Democrat Ralph Northam in the district for the lieutenant governor election back in 2013. In the recent special election for Fairfax County School Board, Republican Chris Grisafe won all the precincts Trump won last year and picked up four precincts Clinton won in this district.

The Fairfax County portion of the 40th House District stretches from Bull Run to the western edge of Fairfax Station.

Tim Hugo

Donte Tanner

"HD-40 will be one of the more challenging GOP-held Clinton seats for Democrats," said Geoff Skelley at the University of Virginia Center for Politics. "The district shifted notably left in 2016."

Median household income in the district is $133,000, which is about double the statewide average. Most people in the district are married, and almost nobody lives in poverty. About 3 percent of the population in House District 40 lives below the poverty line, according to Census data. That's about one quarter of the statewide average in Virginia. Skelley says people who vote in odd-year elections tend to be older and whiter, which means they are more conservative and much more likely to support Hugo.

"Delegate Hugo has incumbency on his side, and he's never won less than 55 percent of the vote," said Skelley. "Plus, Hugo has more than twice as much cash on hand as Tanner, which should be helpful to the incumbent."

TANNER, 37, is a native of Washington, D.C. His family was in the military, so he moved around as a child and graduated high school in Newport News. He has a bachelor of science in foreign-area studies from the Air Force Academy with a concentration in the Middle East. He also has a master of business administration from the University of Phoenix. He was in the Air Force from 2001 to 2005, specializing in acquisitions and communications. After separating from the Air Force, he became a defense contractor and eventually starting his own firm, Forward Innovation Group. He has lived in the district since March 2015, attracted by the Fairfax County public school system.

"Both of my parents are police officers, and based on our family of service what we're trying to do is give back to the community. That's why I decided to join the Air Force," said Tanner. "One of the core values we talk about in the Air Force is 'Integrity First, Service Before Self, Excellence in All We Do.' And I want to focus on the service before self side of it."

If elected, Tanner says he would introduce legislation to expand Medicaid to 400,000 people who live in poverty or with disability. He says he would also work with Del. Mark Levine (D-45) to create a family-and-medical-leave insurance program, a bill that Hugo killed as chairman of a subcommittee earlier this year. Tanner also says he would also introduce a bill that would create an independent commission to draw political districts instead of having elected officials draw them. He says he would pursue a system similar to the one in California with 14 members: five Democrats, five Republicans and four members belonging to neither party.

"Nothing gets done with we are yelling at each other from both ends of the field," said Tanner. "We need fairer elections to promote bipartisan governing."

HUGO, 54, is a native of Norfolk although he was raised in Virginia Beach. He has a bachelor's degree in government from the College of William and Mary, and he participated in the Senior Managers in Government fellowship sponsored by Kodak at Harvard University. Professionally, he is a former lobbyist who represented Oracle Group and the National Association of Manufacturers to Advantage Health Plan and the Greater Washington Board of Trade. He currently runs a technology association known as Free File Alliance. He was first elected in a December 2003 special election following the election of Jay O'Brien to the state Senate. Since that time, he has developed a reputation as someone who fights for his constituents, whether it's regulations that threatened Tae Kwon Do studios or pressing state officials to install a traffic light in Willow Springs.

"Somebody called me a pothole delegate," said Hugo. "I like that. I'll take that because that's what I focus on, the pothole that's in front of your house."

If reelected, Hugo says, he would work on encouraging apprentice programs in Virginia that would encourage students who are not college-bound to enter fields that are in high demand, electricians for example. He says he would also stand against any effort to create a bi-county parkway between Prince William and Loudoun, a controversial proposal to create an easier path to Dulles International Airport that residents in Prince William oppose because of the traffic it could create in rural western Prince William County. He says he would also work to find a compromise to concerns from regulators that charity car washes pose a danger to the environment because of the chemicals involved in washing automobiles.

"I'm going to introduce legislation to allow these charity car washes," said Hugo. "If you do it, you're going to have to use biodegradable soap so it washes down the drain."

Clifton Day Was a Go

... Come rain or shine.

The weather forecast and the gray look outside wasn't the perfect formula for the 50th anniversary of Clifton Day, but it didn't stop the spirit and enthusiasm that filled the main street through town on Sunday, Oct. 8.

Debra Dillard was in her 14th and final year of volunteering for the event that featured pony rides, food, games and a train shuttling fair goers from outer stations to the historic town. "Even with the rain, nobody's unhappy," said Dillard.

The main street through Clifton was blocked off, and lined with food and vendor booths, while musicians played at a few different venues and the VRE train stopped to pick up an let off passengers from the Rolling Road station in Springfield.

Carly Daniels and Allison Best manned the information booth with Dillard. They are eighth graders from South County Middle School that were helping the younger children with crafts and games, but also earning community points as well. All volunteers got a tie dyed shirt for their efforts, which matched the theme and reflected the Summer of Love from the first event in 1967. "That's our theme this year," said chairperson and resident Barbara Hutto, pointing to the psychedelic-themed shirts that both she and husband Kevin were wearing. "It's the only day of the year that they [VRE trains] stop in Clifton," she said.

On the ecological front, it was Margaret Fisher's turn to wear the butterfly outfit and talk up the positive ideas behind butterflies and insects, while her friend Becky Halbe had the bee outfit. "We're trying to save the birds and butterflies in Northern Virginia, insects have to eat native plants," Fisher said. They were from the Plant NOVA Natives organization.

Over at Troop 1104's Boy Scout tent, Jake Werthmann had a different pitch, selling the lemon sticks as a fundraiser for the scouts. "Lemon sticks have been here for over 40 years," he said, "it's good for your sole." Is a sales career on the horizon for Werthmann? "No, might be a backup though," he said.

From the early days of the festival, it may have evolved in 50 years but there is a picture of a popcorn machine in 1968 from the Virginia Room at the Fairfax City Library showing popcorn hasn't changed that much in the last 49 years. Except this year, it was being sold as kettle corn from the stand manned by June McMullen and Allyssa Pulzone. A bag went to Jules Mchenry from Vienna, who compared the kettle corn taste to regular popcorn. "I like it a lot better, sweet salty, a good mix," she said.

For those not riding in on the train, there was a shuttle from the parking lot of a nearby church. From the back of the shuttle van, Hanna Parsons was there with her mother Heidi Parsons, who bought a few designer candles. They were seasoned festival attendees and plan on going to the Fairfax fall event next week, so the sprinkles in the morning weren't a big deal. "We were pretty much going to come rain or shine," said Hanna Parsons.

Tips Benefit CIA Memorial Foundation

Scott and Cyndi Hoffman, owners of Ono Brewing Company, presented a check to the CIA Memorial Foundation in the amount of $3142.36. The amount represents the total amount collected in tips during Ono Brewing Company's first month of business.

The Chantilly brewery is completely self-serve, with a self-serve beer wall with eight beers on tap, all brewed on the premises. Since customers are serving themselves, tipping is optional at Ono and not expected. Scott and Cyndi Hoffman have chosen to pay their employees a competitive wage so they don't need to rely on tips. If customers are compelled to tip for excellent service, tips are donated each month to a different local charity.

For its first month of business, September 2017, gratuities were donated to the CIA Memorial Foundation, which supports the families of CIA officers who have died in active service of our nation. For the academic year 2016-2017, the Foundation awarded scholarships and other educational support for 48 family members of deceased CIA officers to colleges and universities around the country.

For October, Ono Brewing Company has chosen to support the Step Sisters, a non-profit organization whose mission is "Improving the quality of life for those impacted by breast cancer by funding needed support services in Northern Virginia." Donations to The Step Sisters go towards funding quality of life services, such as food delivery, transportation costs to and from treatment, childcare and house cleaning, for local breast cancer patients in Northern Virginia.

25th annual Centreville Day is Saturday, Oct. 21.

When the leaves change color and the weather gets cooler, it's time for Centreville Day. This year's celebration is the 25th annual, and it's set for Saturday, Oct. 21, from 10 a.m.-5 p.m., in Historic Centreville Park, 5714 Mount Gilead Road (off Braddock Road, across Route 29 from the IHOP).

The festivities include a parade, live music performers, martial arts, swordsmen, dancing, a pet pageant, children's activities, food and crafts. Admission is free, and free parking and shuttles will be available at The Trinity Centre, 5860 Trinity Parkway, off Route 29.

"Centreville Day is a fun event," said event organizer Cheryl Repetti, president of the Historic Centreville Society. "We aren't a huge festival, but we have heart. Centreville Day not only celebrates community, but helps create a sense of community in all who attend. It brings people together; and together, we all create a day that stands out from the others."

And, she continued, "We don't all represent a particular point of view or come from a specific group. Folks come from all over and have all sorts of reasons for being at Centreville Day. Some want to have fun outside with the kids without spending a small fortune, while others want to learn about Centreville's history, meet new clients, find a church, see live entertainment or buy that perfect gift for their loved ones."

The fun begins at 10 a.m. with opening ceremonies at the main stage near St. John's Episcopal Church, also on Mount Gilead Road. Local Girl Scouts will lead the pledge of allegiance and Supervisor Kathy Smith (D-Sully) will welcome the crowd and Katherine Baker, in a late 1700s costume, stands beside a sword display.

Location: 9004 Congressional Court, Potomac, Md.
Tickets: $35 at www.dcdesignhouse.com/copy-of-events
Open through Oct. 29: Saturday-Sunday 12-5 p.m.; Closed Mondays; Tuesday-Friday 10 a.m.-3 p.m., Sunday, Oct. 29: DC Design House, last day, 12-5 p.m.

For the 10th anniversary of the D.C. Design House, 23 designers transformed the Potomac, Md. home which includes nine bedrooms, nine full bathrooms, four half bathrooms, a cinema, two-story library, a pool and a pool house. Visitors will have the opportunity to walk through the 27,256 square-foot estate to view the latest in home design trends. Proceeds from the event benefit the Children's National Health System.

It was actress Grace Kelly and the movie "To Catch a Thief" that inspired Designer Marika Meyer's creation of the lady's retreat. "I thought of her elegance and her scarf blowing in the wind," said Meyer.

A collection of framed Hermes scarves line one of the room's walls.

Much of the room's furniture, including two vintage, velvet chairs and a neutral sofa, surround a Lucite cocktail table, creating a balance between modern and traditional styles.

"When designing the room I thought, 'who would live in that room and what would she be like?'" said Meyer.

Meyer used custom-designed, hand-painted fabric from her own collection for the room's drapes, pillows, stools and other accessories. One of her biggest obstacles was making the large room feel intimate. "I designed it to make it beautiful and functional, she said. "I created different destinations so it doesn't feel so overwhelming."

Among those destinations are a large secretary, a game table and a bar cart.

Dubbed A Study in Blue, the library by designer Kelley Proxmire draws inspiration from the library of New York socialite Brooke Astor. "I knew it was a classic and I had seen a recent picture and I knew it was a classic," said Proxmire.

"Her books were probably antique, leather-bound and I knew that I something wanted something neat and tidy like that."

The room's dark wood paneling is brightened with natural lighting and accessorized with blue and white porcelain and painted books in varying shades of blue.

The designer's goal was to create a technology-free zone that allowed for uninhibited conversation. "Families need a place to sit and talk to each other without being on the telephone and watching television," said Proxmire. "I want all my rooms to say, 'Come and sit.' I don't want them to be too standoffish."

Marrying modern and traditional design elements, Alexandria-based design duo Todd Martz and Susan Nelson created a family room that is both energizing and relaxing, and is meant to be an electronics-free zone.

"The scale of the house is formal, but we wanted to create a room that is family friendly," said Martz. "We wanted to incorporate children's art, but display it in a way that's elegant."

The walls are covered with bright yellow wallpaper that provides an energetic backdrop for blue and white porcelain accessories. To accommodate the lives of a modern family, the white sofa is covered in Crypton fabric, which is stain-resistant and easy to clean. Other furniture in the room, which includes two faux leather chairs are centered around a handmade, wooden coffee table.

Children's artwork hangs inside the bookcases among blue and white ginger jars. "It makes the book cases a little less serious," said Nelson.

The poolside oasis created by Kim Asner of Country Casual Teak allows visitors to be transported to a luxury spa. Lush greenery and teak lounge chairs surround the pool. An abundance of seating, a cabana and a pool house make the space ideal for entertaining a crowd or enjoying the space's serenity.

"The area is large so we needed substantial furniture," said Asner. "The cabana looks grand and impressive, but it's also comfortable."

Located at 9004 Congressional Court, Potomac, Md., the home is listed at $10.28 million by Long and Foster Real Estate. Open through Oct. 29, tickets are $35. Visit www.dcdesignhouse.com.

CENTREVILLE DAY 2017

25th Annual Centreville Day

present the Centreville Day Citizen of the Year award.

Parade

Organized by American Legion Post 1995, the Centreville Day Parade will be led by the Chantilly Academy's Air Force JROTC. Participants also include both new and antique fire and police vehicles, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, members of the Fairfax County Sheriff's Office and more. McGruff the Crime Dog may also appear. Anyone can join in the fun – even children with decorated bikes and scooters, and costumes are encouraged.

The parade will start assembling at the end of Wharton Lane near Wharton Park Court at 10:30 a.m. It'll kick off at Wharton Lane at 11 a.m., passing the stage shortly before noon and continuing along Mt. Gilead Road to Braddock Road. Residents living north of Wharton Lane will notice brief, rolling, road closures as the parade passes by.

Prizes of $50 will be awarded to the Most Enthusiastic and Most Patriotic groups. Advance registration is appreciated for planning purposes or to be considered in the parade judging; go to www.CentrevilleDay.org. Direct any questions to parade coordinator Steve Hunter at geoshunter@gmail.com.

Children's Activities

At Centreville Day, children don't have to wait until Halloween to wear their costumes. They can dress up and go trick-or-treating through the community marketplace on Mt. Gilead Road, while their parents browse the booths of crafters, local businesses, churches and nonprofits.

Also planned are a variety of free activities, including a climbing wall, slide and History Train rides. And the women of Alpha Delta Kappa will host face-painting, sack races, a tug-of-war and an orange maze. Children will get to make their way through a candy-store obstacle course and smash pumpkins by shooting them out of a cannon.

They can also enjoy hands-on history at Mount Gilead, which was built as a tavern in 1785. It's one of the oldest, surviving buildings in Centreville, dating back to the original crossroads village of Newgate, and it'll be open for guided tours. Outside on the lawn, Sully Historic Site volunteers will help children dip candles, write with a quill pen and make simple toys to take home.

Also on the lawn will be the Swordsmen of the 18th Century. Long-time Centreville residents Charlie and John Anderson will demonstrate their swash-buckling skills and share their knowledge with the crowd. Meanwhile, attendees may also find another group of living historians, Pirates for Sail, also camped on Mount Gilead's lawn. (Centreville was once home to a pirate).

Entertainment

As masters of ceremonies, Westfield High students Nathan Marshak and Anthony Repetti, will host several, local performers at the main stage. Pirates for Sail, a group of singing privateers, will get things off to a lively start at 10:40 a.m. Then, after the parade, The VaDeatles – comprised of teachers mainly from Stone Middle School – will cover songs of the Beatles and other rock bands at 11:45 p.m.

Other entertainers include: Powerworx Dancers, the Youth Choir of the Fairfax Choral Society, Halle-lujah Tae Kwon Do demonstration team, Korean harmonica and autoharp players, and the Northern Virginia Wu Shu Academy. Check for the annual, hula-hoop contest time, plus additional acts, at www.CentrevilleDay.org or the Centreville Day Facebook page. See sidebar for the full, entertainment time schedule.

Pet Pageant, Blessing

For the third year in a row, Centreville Day will go to the dogs — and the cats, birds, guinea pigs, rabbits and mice, The Centreville-Chantilly Rotary Club is sponsoring a Pet Pageant for pets of all kinds.

The pageant is set for 2 p.m. at the main stage. There's no registration fee, but a registration form is available at the Centreville Day website. Families are welcome to bring more than one pet, and certificates will be awarded in categories such as Most Unusual Pet and Most Creative Costume. A raffle is also slated with prizes donated by local pet stores and veterinarians. For more information, contact Cammy Gawlak at cgawlak@verizon.net.

In addition, the Rev. Carol Hancock will be blessing a variety of pets throughout the day at the Saint John's tent on the lawn of the historic church. Hot coffee will be available and the church and grounds will be open for tours. Discover the door in the ceiling or explore the old cemetery.

Food

An international selection of foods will be available at the food court between Mt. Gilead and the Safety Expo area. Smokes BBQ will return with pulled pork and other barbecue items, and Danibelle's Lite and Sweet food truck will offer savory shawarmas and sweet baklava. New this year is Thai food from Bangkok House Restaurant, plus seafood from Bon-fish Grill. Enjoy a large variety of quesadillas provided by Buena-Dillas!

History

"From its earliest settlement in the 1760s to the dynamic and culturally diverse community it is today, Centreville has a long and interesting history," said Repetti. "And it's celebrated each Centreville Day in the very places where that history happened."

Just down the street from St. John's is the Spindle Sears House. Purchased in 1933 from a Sears catalog and shipped here by train, this tiny house will be open for tours led by Ellanor C. Lawrence Park historian Allison Hartley.

Besides the guided tours of Mount Gilead, cookies and teas will be offered on the home's porch by the Irongate Bakers in period garb. Mount Gilead is also one of the stops for the county Park Authority's History Train, driven from the Sully Historic Site by Matt McNeal.

The train will take attendees between stations on the lawn at Mount Gilead and Braddock Road. Repetti advises visitors to get off the train at the Braddock Road stop and "stroll down the hill to explore the Old Stone Church – the Church of the Ascension – where you can tour the historic church and meet Rachel and her array of antique science instruments and curiosities."

Also there will be more baked goods, plus a ploughman's lunch for sale. There'll be free face painting and antique science instruments. And the nearby Havener House and Stuart-Mosby Museum will be open for tours, too. The Stuart-Mosby Civil War Cavalry Museum on Braddock Road features items related to the lives of cavalymen Gen. JEB Stuart and Col. John Mosby.

Safety Expo

The Safety Expo near the Spindle Sears House is one of Centreville Day's most popular attractions. Attendees get to meet local first responders and other public-safety personnel, learn about the services they provide and find out how to deal with emergencies in the home or community. And Sheriff's Office personnel will make child IDs.

Police and fire-and-rescue vehicles will be on display and, if possible, a police helicopter. Other participants will include the National Poison Control Center, Washington Gas, Miss Utility, Fairfax Communities of Trust and the county's Office of Emergency Management

Almost all activities are free, thanks to the support of Centreville Day's vendors and sponsors, including NOVEC, the Korean Central Presbyterian Church, Goodwill Centreville, Apple Federal Union, Sandy Spring Bank, CPA Bryan Hunt, Historic Centreville Society, Rotary Club of Centreville-Chantilly, American Disposal Services, Sign-a-Rama of Centreville, American Legion Post 1995, Centreville Chiropractic Center, the Fairfax County Park Authority and the Friends of Historic Centreville.

General Information

Centreville Day is organized by and benefits the Friends of Historic Centreville. It's a nonprofit that puts on Centreville Day in partnership with the Park Authority to encourage residents to discover the Centreville's rich history. What To "Ware?"

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Recently I received a very generous offer in the mail: a $10 gift certificate from my local hardware store acknowledging my upcoming/now passed birthday. From what I could read, there was no minimum purchase, no exclusions and no small-type print, just a reasonable expiration date: Oct. 31, approximately six weeks out from the day I received this unexpected gift. More than enough time, one would imagine.

The only problem: what am I going to get at the hardware store, other than the employees' pity about how little I know about so much? Most of the time when I'm in a hardware store (typically I'm not browsing, unlike the cookie aisle at the supermarket), I'm attempting to solve a problem I have at home for which I have very little experience and extremely poor instincts at rectifying. Not only do I rarely know what I'm talking about, I don't even know the proper questions to ask to enable/assist the employee in figuring what the heck my problem actually is – other than me, that is.

I'm very much out of my element in a hardware store. A fish out of water doesn't begin to describe my situation. Tevye, from "Fiddler on the Roof" in speaking to his daughter, Chava, about marrying outside the faith came close: "a bird may love a fish, but where would they build a home together?" Build a home? I have enough difficulty maintaining one that's already built.

When I'm asked, or when I offer it, usually I say: "I know two things: sports and chocolate." I guess I could also add being a cancer patient/survivor, but I don't want to redirect a perfectly innocent conversation into a totally different direction: me and my druthers. Although, my situation has been publicly consumed in the Connection Newspapers going on eight and half years; in person, I try to not let it be the first or even second thing that comes out of my mouth. And I never initiate, though I'm happy to respond if asked. Generally speaking, I'd rather it not be about me and my cancer. As my mother used to say "It's enough already."

But none of this comes up in a hardware store. In fact, the only thing that comes up is my Adam's Apple as I sheepishly swallow and admit how incapable I am as a homeowner/do-it-yourselfer and how much help I need to do almost anything. At least the parking is free so it's not a total loss.

As you might imagine, this situation doesn't exactly lead to an easy conversation or a satisfying outcome. Quite the contrary. I know one thing for sure however, if left to my own devices, either I will cause additional and costly damage in my crude attempt to self-repair, or I will hurt myself in the process. And waste money as well, as the end of the day will likely find me and the problem no closer to a resolution than we were at the beginning of the day.

As William Shakespeare might have written: it will be much ado about nothing as nothing much will have been done. In these recurring circumstances, all I can hope for is a safe landing, so to speak, one in which, as pilots often joke: I can walk away uninjured.

Given that I'm a tool twit and have failed miserably at homeowner 101, what then could I possibly buy at the hardware store with my gift certificate? I just got an idea: lightbulbs. I couldn't possibly screw that up, could I? I mean, they're supposed to be screwed up – into the socket, right? What could be more natural for me?

One last question though: when I place the bulb into the socket, do I screw them to the right or to the left?
