Red Kimono Opens in Downtown Herndon

Restaurant offers authentic Japanese & Korean food and features top-notch head sushi chef.

The Red Kimono Japanese & Korean Cuisine opened its doors to the public on Saturday, Jan. 27 after hosting a Grand Opening Day buffet of select dishes on Friday, Jan. 26, 2018.

New to Herndon, and located in the walkable historic downtown district, Red Kimono, sets itself apart in the town as the only Japanese Korean restaurant and as having one of the best Head Sushi Chefs in the area, Dongsoo Kim.

The venue offers a casual dining experience in a beautiful setting. The extensive menu features generous servings of authentic Korean and Japanese favorites, prepared with the freshest ingredients such as Korean Bibimbap, a dish of mixed rice with meat and assorted vegetables and Galbi, grilled ribs. Katsu, a Japanese dish of juicy chicken or pork in a crisp layer of golden panko breadcrumbs is served with its traditional thick savory-sweet sauce. With a large assortment of Bento Boxes and other specialties, there is something for everyone.

The restaurant prides itself most on the creation of its sushi, meticulously prepared with an eye for vibrant artistic color balance by Head Sushi Chef Dongsoo Kim of Centreville and Sushi Chef Zhen Chen of Vienna. Patrons can choose to dine at the sushi bar and watch the chefs or at tables and look out over the town center.

Aerin Chea of Herndon, the hostess at the Grand Opening, described how her father Yeong Chea, who owns the restaurant, decided to relocate his business and open in Herndon after having other restaurants in the Boston area.

“Whenthey arrived, we saw a lot of people walking around...and we noticed there was no Japanese Korean restaurant in the area,” she said.

Asked how it was to work with the town concerning permits and inspections, Chea exclaimed, “It was really easy. Town staff was very helpful to work with and very friendly.”

Red Kimono Japanese & Korean Cuisine, at 790 Station St., is open daily for lunch and dinner, Monday – Thursday 11:30 a.m.-10:30 p.m., Friday 11:30 a.m.-10:30 p.m., Saturday Noon-10:30 p.m and Sunday Noon-10 p.m. Call 703-435-3315.
Possible Remedy in Sight for Students Parking

Will the ordinance be amended?

By Mercia Hobson
The Connection

After receiving a high volume of complaints a second time around about students parking in the Old Dranesville Hunt Club neighborhood near Herndon High School after the enactment of geographically limited Residential Parking Permit Zone shifted the problem elsewhere in the neighborhood, it appears a possible timely and viable solution may be in the works to resolve the situation once and for all.

At the Herndon Town Council Public Hearing held Tuesday, Jan. 23, Council成员 Jeffrey Davidson reminded Council that at the last public hearing he had suggested that the Council might want to reconsider some portions of the town’s residential parking ordinance to ease the process for extending a residential area. This was in response to their experience managing the situation in the Old Dranesville Hunt Club neighborhood.

Working with the Town attorney Lesa Yeatts, Davidson had proposed a change to the process at the prior week’s Work Session to amend the ordinance. The approved meeting minutes of the Herndon Town Council for the Tuesday, Jan. 16, work session state: “He (Davidson) spoke with the Town Attorney, who advised him that it might be possible to amend the ordinance so that the Town Manager could expand the parking zone after the Council passed an initial ordinance creating the zone.

He (Davidson) asked the Council to consider changes to the ordinance, which would save the town money and make the process easier for residents.

In response to Davidson, the Town Attorney stated that she did not have the language in front of her, but she agreed that it might be possible to amend the ordinance to provide the Town Manager the administrative authority to expand the parking zone, pursuant to the criteria in the code.

In response to queries from Mayor Lisa Merkel, Town Manager Bill Ashton stated that if the Council made the changes being discussed, he would be able to bring a proposed zone expansion before the Council for discussion before making the decision.

Following a brief discussion and with the concurrence of Council, Merkel asked staff to work on drafting an amendment to the ordinance for Council’s consideration.

Davidson concluded his comments at Jan. 23, 2018 public hearing by stating that the proposed changes are scheduled to be considered at the Work Session on Feb. 6 and the public hearing the following week.

Nominations Sought for Volunteer Appreciation Awards

Three Award Categories offered; nominations close March 2, 2018.

By Mercia Hobson
The Connection

The Town of Herndon is seeking nominations for its 2018 Mayor’s Volunteer Appreciation Awards. This is an annual celebration of citizens and business who according to the town website, “dedicate time, talent and treasure toward the community in which they live and work.”

In 2017, 430 volunteers from 35 different service organizations and groups were named Outstanding Volunteers and honored for their service to the Town of Herndon. Three individuals received Distinguished Service Awards. This year, awards will be presented at a dinner in the recipients’ honor at the 34th Mayor’s Volunteer Appreciation Night scheduled for April 15, 2018, at the Herndon Community Center.

According to the Town of Herndon: “Outstanding Volunteers should have provided a minimum of 100 hours of donated community service or support during the past year. Their contributions need not have been in a leadership or chairman role — just noteworthy and of extra and consistent effort. This service should have been performed in and/or provided direct benefit to the Town of Herndon.

The Distinguished Volunteer is the highest level of recognition awarded in the town, presented to those individuals who have demonstrated exemplary levels of service over several years or in projects, which required significant levels of leadership, service, and effort. Candidates should have displayed extensive community-wide volunteer support in sports, social services, arts, conservation, safety, or other community activities or organizations. Individuals should have demonstrated a willingness to assume responsibilities and/or projects involving considerable leadership, time and effort.

To qualify for the Distinguished Corporate Service Award a business must promote the Town of Herndon as a great place to live and work, and have influence on making the town a better place for all citizens through innovation, policies, and practices that support and encourage volunteerism, for at least the past two years.”

For more information about the awards or to nominate an individual or business, visit herndon-va.gov/government/mayor-town-council/volunteer-appreciation. All nominations must be received by Friday, March 2, 2018, for consideration.

Return Nominations via US mail, email or fax to Herndon Department of Parks & Recreation Attn: Kimberly Alcorn, 777 Lynn St., Herndon, VA 20170 Telephone 703-435-6800, ext. 2119, Fax: 703-318-8652.
Time for Criminal Justice Reform

By John Cook
Braddock District Supervisor (R)

Fairfax County is joining the bipartisan, nationwide movement of Criminal Justice Reform. In 2015 the county introduced its version of a “first program”, which provides treatment instead of incarceration for those with mental health challenges or developmental disabilities who come into contact with the criminal justice system for low level offenses. This initiative is just one step in a national movement to make the criminal justice system better serve the American people. Criminal justice reform, broadly speaking, is supported by as diverse a range of public officials as U.S. Senators Rand Paul and Kamala Harris. It is well past time for Virginia to dive in as well.

Since ancient times society has recognized five purposes to the criminal justice system. One of these is “deterrence,” which is the effort to persuade an offender or potential offender not to commit a crime. Another purpose is retribution, which is society exacting punishment to make up for the pain or damage caused by the crime. Incapacitation means removing a criminal from the rest of society so he or she cannot commit more crimes. Rehabilitation refers to changing an offender so he or she does not commit more crimes. Restitution is the payment for damage caused by crime. All of these purposes must be present and well represented for a fair and effective criminal justice system.

Mary Kimm’s editorial (“What’s Wrong with This Picture?” — Connection, Jan. 24) about the demographic of Thomas Jefferson High School for Science and Technology (commonly known as TJ) leaves out an important statistic, and that is that 70 percent of its students are Asian, many of whom are first generation Americans. Many of the remaining 30 percent are also first generation, and have family backgrounds from Iran, Arab and African countries, Russia, and Eastern Europe, or are biracial.

Is the heavily immigrant nature of TJ what’s “wrong with this picture”? State Sen. Scott Surovell’s SB787 bill’s method of increasing enrollment of black and Hispanic students is to impose quotas on middle schools and by extension of elementary schools, to change demographic depiction in school programs is to start at the elementary, through all middle schools, to change demographic balance? How would Ms. Kimm and Sen. Surovell feel if their jobs were replaced by non-qualified employees?

Racial and economic background. This is a resentment that goal, and should be rejected as such.

Cindy Gersony
Great Falls

A few penalties of TJ’s classes by mandating quotas. The school does not represent many non-minority students who apply and also do not achieve admission.

Disregarding the rigorous qualifications for TJ slants the presented view. Do Ms. Kimm’s and Sen. Surovell’s ideas support qualified students being turned away just so non-qualified students are admitted, all for demographic balance? How would Ms. Kimm and Sen. Surovell feel if their jobs were replaced by non-qualified employees?

For improvements in demographic representation, Ms. Kimm and Sen. Surovell should explore reasons why some minorities are not represented. They probably would find, as many teachers know, emphasis on academic excellence begins at home. Therefore, a better solution to change demographic depiction in school programs is to start at the elementary, through all levels, helping all families make education a priority. That would achieve the overall attitude of striving for excellence, which aids all students in the long run.

How to ‘Fix’ Disparities

To the Editor:
I did not compete in the Olympics, gain admission to Menlo, or play professional sports. Why? Because I didn’t qualify for any of those. I understand we cannot qualify for everything. However, Mary Kimm’s article, “What’s Wrong with This Picture?” (Connection, Jan. 24) presents the idea that non-inclusion in a program “needs to be fixed.”

Ms. Kimm indicates that the Fairfax County School System (FCPS) should “fix” its admission policies to its one magnet high school, Thomas Jefferson (TJ), due to “demographic disparities” and we should commend Sen. Scott Surovell for pushing for that change.

The problem with Ms. Kimm’s and Sen. Surovell’s idea is they mislabeled the case of mentally ill offenders. Jail fails to serve deterrence.

When someone with mental illness engages in crime, it is not due to evil intent, but his or her illness. Retribution does not seem fit for someone who is ill and committing crimes. Incapacitation is accomplished, but what we have done is make our local jails expensive substitutes for psychiatric hospitals.

The expense of jail is no small matter. A year in the Fairfax jail costs the taxpayers about $82,000. A year of residential psychiatric treatment costs about $24,000. One year of outpatient treatment costs about $8,200. When someone with a mental illness, who is often of limited wealth, is arrested, this person often spends up to four months in jail awaiting trial for minor crimes (trespassing, disorderly conduct, petty theft) where the final sentence would generally be far less. Someone with regular income would post bond at $500 cash and spend no more than two or three nights in jail. Alongside the government and taxpayers are spending millions of dollars to hold people in jail before they are ever serviced. Is this system really helping anyone?

We have learned in the juvenile justice system that incarceration actually creates criminals out of youth who may be only misdirected or who make stupid mistakes. Twenty years ago, our juvenile detention center held 1,509 youth. In 2017 that number fell to 533, which is a 60 percent decrease. In those two decades we learned a great deal about the benefits of jail alternatives for children. Instead of locking these children up, we are reforming, teaching, and mentoring youth and turning them away from crime. And this prevents future crimes from occurring. The same can be said for non-violent crimes by adults. Simply putting people in jail, where they lose their jobs and family contacts, does not necessarily create better citizens when they are released. In the case of mental illness, jail can actually make things worse. There is a better way.

Criminal Justice Reform is not about “going easy” on criminals. It’s about finding techniques that stop people from continuing to commit crimes. It’s about turning lives around. Oh, and it can save a boatload of money. Violent criminals, murderers, gang members and the like still need long jail sentences. But many other lesser offenders can be turned around into productive, working, self-sufficient citizens. It takes some work, but the payoff is a society with less crime, lower jail costs, and more productive citizens.

For improvements in demographic representation, Ms. Kimm and Sen. Surovell should explore reasons why some minorities are not represented. They probably would find, as many teachers know, emphasis on academic excellence begins at home. Therefore, a better solution to change demographic depiction in school programs is to start at the elementary, through all levels, helping all families make education a priority. That would achieve the overall attitude of striving for excellence, which aids all students in the long run.

Rewarding Highest Achievers

To the Editor:
With all due respect, state Sen. Scott Surovell is looking at the wrong end of the horse (Editorial, “What’s Wrong with This Picture?” — Connection, Jan. 24). The admissions to Thomas Jefferson High School for Science and Technology should be determined solely based on merit. Gender, ethnicity, race and economic status should be totally ignored.

TJ should provide the most rewarding programs possible to the highest achievers. Senator Surovell should focus on programs to increase the admission scores of African Americans and Latinos. Let’s not dilute the potentials of TJ’s classes by mandating quotas. The analogy would be to require that a certain percentage of varsity basketball players be white or Asian American, regardless of their abilities. That would be unwise.

Incomplete Picture

To the Editor:
Mary Kimm’s editorial (“What’s Wrong with This Picture?” — Connection, Jan. 24) about the demographics of the Thomas Jefferson High School for Science and Technology (commonly known as TJ) leaves out an important statistic, and that is that 70 percent of its students are Asian, many of whom are first generation Americans. Scott Surovell’s SB787 bill’s method of increasing enrollment of black and Hispanic students is to impose quotas on middle schools and by extension of elementary schools, to change demographic depiction in school programs.

Identifying that some minorities and low income students are not represented at TJ student population does not logically reflect a prejudice. It means they did not qualify, period.

Ignoring the total admission picture does not represent many non-minority students who apply and also do not achieve admission.

Disregarding the rigorous qualifications for TJ slants the presented view. Do Ms. Kimm’s and Sen. Surovell’s ideas support qualified students being turned away just so non-qualified students are admitted, all for demographic balance? How would Ms. Kimm and Sen. Surovell feel if their jobs were replaced by non-qualified employees?

Maude in Herndon Honored
Celebrated as an award winner in the category Salon Culture by Salon Today.

By Mercia Hobson
The Connection

Through an awards competition that named the best and the brightest salon owners in the country for their managerial and leadership skills, Celeste Williams, Tina Jay and Vanessa Rose, owners of Maude in Herndon, were honored to have their salon receive the Salon Today 200 2018 Honoree Award. Maude is a popular downtown business located at 775 Station St. in the Historic Downtown District. The salon received recognition by the industry’s leading business media, Salon Today in the category of Salon Culture.

The January/February 2018 edition of “Salon Today 200” profiled the activities of 200 award-winning salons out of 20,000 top-producing salons and spas in the country.

The named honorees are salons judges believe exceed excellence and will, through modeling of their managerial practices fuel the business trajectory of other salons. Judges named 200 winners in eleven categories, including Technology, Retention & Referral, Philanthropy, Employee Education, and Salon Culture.

In the 21st Annual Salon Today 200, Stacey Soble defined what Salon Culture means. She stated, “Salon Culture is that invisible, yet tangible, energy that binds and propels a team and attracts clients. A strong culture is hard to define and even more difficult to build. But when mastered, these salons are unstoppable.”

Salon owners Rose, Jay, and Williams recounted in their essay application how Maudie’s initial team of three has grown to a group of 25 and how that growth is what drives the salon’s entire culture. “We have learned how to be leaders and to train leaders...‘Life is not about becoming who you are; it is about creating who you want to be.’ This quote is printed in our employee handbook, it hangs on the wall in our salon and it holds a place in our hearts...We support, mentor, and coach one another.”

As another example of salon culture that drives their staff, Rose, Jay and Williams described a project they created called “The Unicorn Challenge.” It is a spin-off idea of their own based on an idea the owners acquired during a salon owners focus group. The owners used humor to both focus positive reinforcement on what is going well and gentle attention on something that needs correction. The January/February Salon 200 quotes the owners’ application: “We have cute rubber unicorns and piglets. If a team member does something incredible, another team member can give her a unicorn. Piglets are given anonymously and are a great way to address negative behaviors. Distribution of both is tracked by the front-desk manager, who records why the team member is getting a unicorn or a piglet.”

Shawn Leonard, of Alexandria, is a Master Crafter at Maude. Standing in the lobby of Maude, he offered his thoughts on the unique culture at the salon. Leonard attested how members of the “Maude Squad” are only as good as others around them. “Iron sharpens iron, comes to mind,” said Leonard.

“It’s a positive peer pressure that influences ethos of the salon. Peer pressure influences us to strive to be the best in our craft...I believe we are the last juggernaut salon, meaning it’s more like a snowball; it grows and gets bigger and bigger. Reputation breeds reputation.”
Gifts for Valentine’s Day

Local tastemakers offer thoughtful giving suggestions.

By Marilyn Campbell

One of the most heavily gifted holidays is Valentine’s Day. In fact, much of the fun is the anticipation. In preparation for Cupid’s Day, a few local style aficionados offer up ideas to sweeten the celebration.

For those deserving some pampering, create a spa experience at home with NW Rainforest Body Cream, advises Isabel Chiotti of Sonoran Rose in Potomac. “Soaps and candles also make great gifts,” she said. “It can also be fun to think outside the box,” said Courtney Thomas of The Picket Fence in Burke. “Surprise your Valentine with a gift certificate for a spa day or a shopping spree at her favorite store. Put together a basket of a few of her favorite things.”

Among the things that Thomas suggests are Moon Melt Lotion Bars by Moon Valley Organics. Decadent and indulgent, these scented moisturizers combine herbs and beeswax to help fight dry skin, she says.

For the romantics, Susan Nelson and Todd Martz of Home on Cameron suggest a bouquet of felt flowers in assorted colors, handmade in Nepal. These eye-catching, fair trade buds offer bursts of color and benefit women artisans who are heads of households.

For the bedhead, Amanda Mertins of Patina Polished Living recommends silk charmeuse pillowcases by Branche. “These wonderful pillowcases help preserve one’s hairdo and help to keep away wrinkles,” she said.

For the stylish, a fur neck warmer is a cozy suggestion that Mertins offers. And for the traditionalists, “Flowers are always welcome and, of course, the color red being very popular as it conveys deep emotion,” she said. “Don’t be afraid to give varieties other than roses.”

For the nostalgic, Kevin Sweitzer of Thos. Moser, Handmade American Furniture, believes that an heirloom quality beacon box to hold keepsakes would be ideal. “[It’s] meant to be passed down from generation to generation,” he said. “A really nice and memorable Valentine’s gift.”

For the entertainers, Nelson and Martz suggest all natural, hand blown glass candles, while Mertins says bar accessories work as gifts for mixologists.

For those with a sweet tooth, Chiotti recommends hot cocoa by the Cocoa Company, brown sugar toffee by Gearharts Fine Chocolates or caramels by Big Picture Farm.

For almost everyone, Suzie Clayton of Dalton Brody suggests picture frames. “From wood to Lucite to silver, there’s something for everyone,” she said. “It’s more about finding the right thing for the right person.”

“The it can be fun to think outside the box.”

In 1938, Germany invaded Austria, causing many Jewish families to flee Austria to avoid persecution. Among the emigrants was 8-year-old Eva Geiringer, who with her mother, brother, and father moved first to Belgium and then to Holland, where one of her neighbors was a German Jewish girl of the same age.

The two girls became friends and playmates (though, as Eva would say many years later, the girl was “much more grown-up and mature than me”). They passed the time by skipping, playing hopscotch and marbles, and drinking lemonade that the girl’s mother prepared.

Ultimately, both girls and their families were deported to the Auschwitz concentration camp. Later they would become step sisters.

Eva survived her concentration camp experience and made her way to England, where she married Zvi Schloss and raised three daughters. She worked as a studio photographer and ran an antique shop.

Her step-sister did not survive Auschwitz, but kept a diary that did. Her name was Anne Frank.

Since 1985, Eva Schloss has devoted herself to Holocaust education and global peace. She has recounted her wartime experiences in more than one thousand speaking engagements. She has written two books and has had a play written about her life. In 1999 she signed the Anne Frank Peace Declaration along with over 100 Nobel Laureates. She has been featured in many documentaries and books.

In 1938, Germany invaded Austria, causing many Jewish families to flee Austria to avoid persecution. Among the emigrants was 8-year-old Eva Geiringer, who with her mother, brother, and father moved first to Belgium and then to Holland, where one of her neighbors was a German Jewish girl of the same age.

The two girls became friends and playmates (though, as Eva would say many years later, the girl was “much more grown-up and mature than me”). They passed the time by skipping, playing hopscotch and marbles, and drinking lemonade that the girl’s mother prepared.

Ultimately, both girls and their families were deported to the Auschwitz concentration camp. Later they would become step sisters.

Eva survived her concentration camp experience and made her way to England, where she married Zvi Schloss and raised three daughters. She worked as a studio photographer and ran an antique shop.

Her step-sister did not survive Auschwitz, but kept a diary that did. Her name was Anne Frank.

Since 1985, Eva Schloss has devoted herself to Holocaust education and global peace. She has recounted her wartime experiences in more than one thousand speaking engagements. She has written two books and has had a play written about her life. In 1999 she signed the Anne Frank Peace Declaration along with over 100 Nobel Laureates. She has been featured in many documentaries and books.
