About 200 people attended a meeting on the future of Lake Accotink Park sponsored by Supervisors John Cook (R-Braddock District) and Jeff McKay (D-Lee District) on Tuesday, Feb. 13, 2018, at Lake Braddock Secondary School.

The Supervisors wanted to make their presentation and hear feedback from the community. The first meeting on the topic was on March 14, 2016, with a total of six meetings thus far – and many more to come. Using a slide show, Cook presented six different options for the lake. Afterwards, they took questions from the audience.

To some residents, the lake is a true gem – it’s their solace and Zen. They wanted to know what will happen to its paved trail and all of the sporting events that take place around the Marina. They asked which recreational options would still be available, and what would happen to the wildlife and all of the sporting events that take place around the Marina. They wanted to know how the dredging would affect their property values.

Cook said the Park Authority had been spending on dam repairs. That’s the do-nothing option we keep it in here. It would in- volve construction of beaver dams upstream that capture sediment so that it doesn’t reach the lake. But the problem is they fill up in five years. This is a temporary five-year holding pattern, said Cook.

OPTION E: Taking the dam away, which takes the lake away and retains a stream and creates a stream valley. It would cost $11 million to take down the dam. There’s no annual expenditure anymore, except $26,000 to take care of plant life. This would change permanently the topography. There would be no lake; it would be a stream and a forest. This would be a permanent change, said Cook.

OPTION F: Looking for a middle ground. In this option, the stream is retained separate from a smaller lake by building up a berm in the middle. There’s a smaller lake of 20 acres, as opposed to 50-60 acres on the big lake. So, the idea is it wouldn’t fill up with sediment because the main stream would not go through it. So, it would probably stay in stable condition a long time. It would be half the size of the current lake. McKay said what he’s trying to do is get a groundswell of community support for one of the options. “If we decide we don’t want the lake anymore, if that’s the decision that’s made, it will shape this park indefinitely. If the decision is we keep the lake, then John and I are going to do everything we can to pay for that,” he said.

He said the problem is that silt is coming in at a faster rate than it has in the past. “Clearly, development is contributing to it. Some of this problem has built up over time, it’s been accelerated. It’s the silt coming into the lake, that’s the driver of it. If we could point to a source of where this is coming from, we would fix that source. But you have silt being collected from a lot of different areas. It’s hard to pinpoint one source for this,” he said.

IN TAKING QUESTIONS from the audience, Cook said dredging requires moving the dirt, and that’s done with lot of trucks.

More than 50 people attended the groundbreaking ceremony on Sunday, Feb. 11, for a new $17.2 million campus expansion at Burke Community Church on Old Keene Mill Road. The event included remarks from Springfield District Supervisor Pat Herrity, church builders, planners, officials and elders.

“God has really blessed our church in ways that we’re shocked at what God has done here,” said Senior Pastor Marty Baker to the gathering. “And it is an amazing thing to be at this point where we actually get to see the fruition of dreams and prayers over the many years.”

The 35,000-square-foot, two-story addition on the left side of the church will include a sanctuary with a state-of-the-art sound system; a double-height Narthex with a café, welcome center and bookstore; an outdoor patio; offices and classrooms; baptismal fountain; support spaces including a prayer room, cry room, production rooms, choir room, and restrooms. The $17.2 million includes the cost of the construction and soft costs.

There will also be a basement with space for classrooms, storage and support spaces. The project also covers renovations of the existing facility, including: conversion of the existing Worship Center into a youth center with a basketball court; renovation of existing offices and classrooms, and the addition of a new commercial kitchen.

“INTEC Group is proud to work alongside Burke Community Church to design a new home where people can come to know Christ and to make Him known,” said Laura Albert, Senior Project Manager with INTEC Group Inc., an architectural firm in Fairfax. “The new facility design provides warm foyer experiences, family rooms, a state-of-the-art sanctuary, educational facilities and a café. These exciting amenities support a strong community that is based on a sound Biblical foundation.”

Keith Switzer, owner of INTEC Group, who’s been involved in the project for 21 years, said, “In 1997, I saw the initial idea on a piece of paper, the site plan, and I said to myself what a tremendous endeavor that Burke Community Church is about to embark upon.”

LONG-TIME MEMBER Jackie Ehrman gave an historical reflection of the church. She recalled when they used folding chairs, and a period of 12-18 months when they relied on church Elders to run things because they had no pastor. She said, “In those 30 years, the BCC membership would swell and shrink – kind of like an accordion.” For two time periods, the church had grown so much that they had to leave the building and hold services at Lake Braddock Secondary, she said.

Springfield District Supervisor Pat Herrity said the expansion took a lot of hands over many years, noting that the county started to get involved with the project in 1999. “For those who are familiar with St. Bernadette’s, that’s where I went to grade school, and we worshipped for years and years in a gym until we built our church. I still remember how exciting it was for St. Bernadette’s when we graduated out of the gym and into the church,” he said.

“I also want to thank Burke Community Church for everything you do for all your ministries and everything you do for our community because it is so important,” he added.

Kevin Jackson, the builder from Whitener & Jackson, said they’ve been involved with the project for about three years. Curt Hammill, a church Elder, said the construction permits are underway with Fairfax County. “So pray for the county to approve those permits rapidly,” he said.

BURKE COMMUNITY CHURCH meets at 9900 Old Keene Mill Road, Burke. Sunday services are at 8 a.m.; 9:30 a.m.; and 11 a.m. The website is www.burkecommunity.com. Call 703-425-0205.
‘A Trip Down Memory Lane’

Pamela Mathieson of Burke Commons wins third place in Uber & 90 Seconds Short Film Festival.

By Steve Hibbard
The Connection

Pamela Mathieson, 33, of Burke Commons is a video producer and editor. She works in her current job in video production at the non-profit Population Reference Bureau in Washington, D.C. For her first personal video project, she entered a contest sponsored by the Uber ride-sharing company called the Uber & 90 Seconds Short Film Festival held in San Francisco, and won third place for her film, “A Trip Down Memory Lane.”

In front of a crowd of 100 people in San Francisco’s Alamo Drafthouse, the festival held a live red-carpet film premiere for the finals on Feb. 1-2. There, they screened the films of the top nine finalists, who were each flown to San Francisco. They also held a cocktail hour, did a Q&A with each of the film creators, and announced the top three winners.

“It was very exciting. It was a relief and I was a very proud girl,” she said upon hearing she won third place. “They were all really good and very different; it was surprising that there were no repetitive narratives,” she said of the films.

THE INSTRUCTIONS were to get as creative as possible with the theme, “Where To?” Filmmakers could choose to create a video told from the perspective of an Uber rider, an Uber driver-partner or from the perspective of her city. The videos had to be 90 seconds long, there could be no X-Rated or violent content, and participants could work in a team. Mathieson chose to work with Umit Gulsen, who accompanied her to San Francisco, as her cinematographer.

Since Mathieson was one of the top finalists, she received $3,000 to produce her 90-second short film. The grand prize winner received $10,000; the second-place winner received $1,500 plus a drone; and the third-place winner received $500 plus a GoPro Hero. The final winner was decided via a public vote on YouTube. For every “like” they received on their...

What Needs to Be Fixed?

To the Editor:

In your editorial (‘‘What’s Wrong with This Picture?’’, Connection, Jan. 24-25, 2018) you wrote that the demographic disparity in enrollment this year at Thomas Jefferson High School (TJ) indicates something is wrong and needs to be fixed. To fix this wrong condition you noted that State Senator Surovell has proposed a bill that would consider economics and geography in the selection process.

Here is my concern: I thought that admission to TJ is open to any and all students and the administration strives to assist anyone interested in achieving admission to the school. Admission is based strictly on merit, academic ability and academic achievement.

Therefore, it begs the question, what is wrong and needs to be fixed?

If the demographics at TJ are wrong and the reason for this needs to be fixed, and the solution is to consider economics and geography in admissions, then the admissions standards will be compromised and no longer based on academic ability and academic achievement.

As a final thought, if demographic percentages are so important and are the reason for the needed fix, why was the percentage of Asian students enrolled at TJ omitted?

Respecting Differences

To the Editor:

The Danish Government recently proposed a ban on full-face veils worn by Muslim women. It is repulsive to see that such a discussion has firmly taken root in yet another Western European country. When will these people understand that by forcing others to go against their beliefs only further creates agitation in society?

In light of these unfortunate trends, the love for my country deepens. I look around me and I see people who, despite their possibly colossal differences, respect each other and act positively towards each other. A Muslim woman wearing her spiritual cloth is not disrespectful, contrary to what the Danish Government believes, however, forcing these women to do the opposite is.

Despite having to hear this horrible news, never for one second should we give up our beliefs or force others to give up theirs.

This is the definition of what it should mean to be an American, and I hope that we can spread this message of freedom to other countries around the world by continuing to be a model ourselves.

Frustration Turned to Hope

To the Editor:

This is a story of frustration turned to hope. In November last year I sent a check certified through the USPS, it was lost. A month later I stopped payment on it and sent another check certified, unbelievably the second check was also lost. After several phone calls and hours on hold with the USPS, I was told that they were not liable for the lost letters or for the $70 that I had to pay to stop payment. The rep told me if I was unhappy to contact my congressman, so I did the next best thing.

This is where the story turns to one of hope, Tom Barton, the Clifton postmaster recognizing my frustration agreed to send the third check “overnight” at no cost to me. I dropped by my local deli to get my Tuesday lunch, and I met with his District Director, Michelle Baker, who took the information and said she would begin working on getting me compensation.

Michelle contacted Tom who informed her he would write a letter to my bank stating that the USPS had lost my letters and ask them to forgo the surcharge. Michelle also followed up with a phone to me in the evening (way after working hours) to see how things were proceeding – above and beyond her duties.

While I am disappointed with the response I received from USPS, I have restored faith in our system due to the hard work of these individuals.

here's an art to designing a living room coffee table, says local interior designer Susan Tucker. In fact, when she's helping a client create a living room space, she pays particular attention to creating a stylish and functional table.

“It seems like such a small thing, but when designed the right way, a coffee table can become the focal point of a room and really make it pop,” she said. “I believe that there’s a right way and a wrong way to put together a coffee table, but it’s not hard if you keep certain things in mind.”

Vary the height and scale so that each item can shine on its own. “If everything is the same height, none of them will be noticed,”
said Tucker. “Think a pretty vase of flowers behind a small porcelain bowl.”

Work to create balance between small and large items, says Alexandria, Virginia-based designer Steven Gambit. “For example, a smattering of small knick-knacks can look cluttered on a coffee table,” he said. “Along the same lines, too many large items on a coffee table can be overpowering. Instead select a few items and group them together
by size.”

Change items as the seasons or holidays change. “As spring approaches, consider adding a small bouquet of fresh or silk spring flowers,” said Tucker. “If you celbrate Easter, consider Easter décor, like a bunny or a basket with eggs. I picked up some elegant Easter items at a local home accessories store last spring. One or two items can breathe fresh life in a table
design.”

Choose items with colors that are found in other places in a room’s design. “If you have a painting with bright colors, for example, choose one of the colors and find an item in the same color to add to your coffee table. If you have throw pillows in interesting colors, considering using one of those colors on your coffee table.”

Consider only decorating one section of the coffee table, especially if the table is large. “It’s a good idea to leave some space
free, especially if you entertain a lot,” said Gambit. “Your guests will need a place to put a drink. Don’t feel compelled to fill every inch of space.”

A serving tray can serve two purposes on a coffee table, says Gambit. “An elegant serving tray can make a dramatic statement on a coffee table, and can give a table some structure, especially if it’s holding smaller items,” he said. “If you need to clear the coffee table quickly, like if you’re entertaining, a tray makes it easy.”

Think about what the items on the coffee table will look from different places in the room, suggests Tucker. “Stand over your coffee table and get a sense of what the objects look like gazing down at it,” she said.
“Sit across the room from it. Can the items be seen fully or are the most appealing parts of an item obstructed? I generally discourage clients from putting picture frames on a coffee table because you can’t see the main attraction — the photo — from behind.”

Be practical and sentimental. “Because people tend to gather around coffee tables, don’t put a breakable family heirloom or an expensive pieces on them,” said Gam-
bit. “Coffee table books are a good idea
because they can be topics of conversation.
You can use a coffee table to display things that represent a part of your personality,
style or a hobby.”

Books add visual interest and can provide topics of conversation
when displayed on a coffee table.

Consider placing coffee table items on a tray, like this one from the Nest Egg, says Interior Designer
Susan Tucker.

Lake Accotink Options Discussed

He said this would be a dry dredge. “We would have to empty the lake and dig it out dry. It would have to be shipped to King George County, or areas that can take fill dirt. We’re talking about enough dirt to fill FedEx Field,” he said. But before they would do anything like that, he said they would have many meetings with residents to talk about the details.

McKay said he’s been through this dredging before. “We know the impacts that are out there. They are significant. If we were to choose a path of dredging, there would be many meetings to choose the best methods to do that.”

Cook said if Option A is picked, the dam stays and the lake fills in and becomes swampy. “If the dam comes down and turns into a stream, the birds will go away, and other animals will come in. You’ll have a different ecosystem that will come in,” he said.

Regarding the timing of the lake decision: “We don’t have a final answer on a time frame but I think the decision needs to be made in this calendar year. If a funding action is needed, the bond needs to be on 2019 ballot,” said Cook. “I’m thinking in terms of doing outreach throughout the spring and coming up with a decision in the next six months.”

Regarding the dredging options at Lake Accotink Park.

McKay ended the meeting by saying: “This is about us gathering information from you to help guide the process. This is a step in the process. We will continue to have more meetings. You will be involved in the process.”

Springfield resident Shane Shroeder, who spoke at the meeting, started a Facebook Group called Save Lake Accotink, which now has 1,600 signatures. He also started a Save Lake Accotink Instagram account and Save Accotink Twitter account. There’s also a www.SaveLakeAccotink.org web domain. “We made flyers tonight and will be distributing them around the county and making yard signs. The whole point is to raise awareness on this issue,” said Shroeder.

YouTube video, they got one vote.

What did she learn from the experience? “Especially at the event, it was great to be among other filmmakers like me, other creatives. I think it inspired me to do more by seeing their work and what they can accomplish, and being accepted into that crowd. That was inspiring,” she said.

After she saw the listing for the contest, she started thinking about the “Where To” theme. “Instead of going to a location, I went to a memory. You’re taking a trip down memory lane. The idea of it was originally a single person, but then a couple sharing those moments together – I think inspired me.”

She added, “So, I started to think about somebody taking a trip to a location that meant something to them – that had a memory for them. And basically taking Uber to that location, and it snowballed to many locations to show the history of their relationship,” she said. Next, she wrote the script on the VRE train in two train trips; it took her an hour and a half.

With a budget of $3,000, which covered her actors and crew, she shot the film on Dec. 2 at locations in Washington, D.C. She chose Dupont Circle, the Washing-ton Monument, Stanton Park behind the U.S. Capitol, and outside a brownstone on H Street.

“We shot in one day. It went very smoothly. I have many friends in the film business; there were a lot of people helping. It was cold in the morning but the weather held up so it was a good day,” she said.

When she did the casting call through the Pat Moran Casting Agency, she didn’t list any ethnicity so she got a slew of applicants. She chose a few African American actors plus a white driver. “I wanted a couple with similar looks so the casting agency sent me many choices. I think I picked people with different ethnicities. From the audition tapes, I picked the cast from their auditions,” she said.

She added, “I’ve been working in video and film for over a decade now. This was my first personal project. That was re-wording, and in the future, I would like to do more of that while I do my career.”

“I would like to write a full-length script for competitions like this for independent filmmakers.”

MATHIESON grew up in New York City and moved here to attend the University of Maryland where she graduated with a degree in broadcast journalism in 2006, and a graduate degree in film from American University in 2013. BARBARA LAUREN

“AutoMadic”

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

I realize that given the growth and evolution of the world most of us live in, and how business is transacted, there are two words, a phrase actually, whose very existence is threatened: “Bill me.” “C.O.D.,” “Cash on delivery” is likely itself on the precipice of extinction, a doctrine that never was one. However, since “Money makes the world go ‘round,” or at least it made the hit musical “Cabaret” go ‘round in ‘72, it seems an appropriate good name can only stretch the dollar so far. Bills have to paid or else the world doesn’t “go ‘round” so far. Moreover, if the money is missing, there’s less to sing about.

Ergo an idea/system was devised whereby people/enterprises to whom you owed money would have semi unfettered access to your money – without having to talk to you/ask permission. Once the consumer/“ower had signed an authorization granting such access, the game was on and the money withdrawn (debited) regularly, as agreed to.

Occasionally, financial inducements were offered to entice the consumer to subject his money/accounts to such plundering. But eventually, the process became all the rage. Meanwhile, consumers couldn’t transact business any other way, and despite any hesita-tions or objections (anger) to the contrary, it was either debit or die. And when this sys-tem didn’t cause a revolution or become a motto on a license plate, it did change how we bank, buy and balance.

Within the last few weeks I’ve added two more automatic monthly debits. Payments which I was given no other realistic choice/method to pay other than all at once (not happening,) or once a month, automati-cally from my bank. And not that I felt held up by the process, but I did feel as if the highway was on autoslips or something. And when this was either debit or die. And though this sys-tem didn’t force a revolution or became a motto or life’s dimension, it did change how we function. And one not in this country and likely irretrievable, or disappearing altogether with any other money I may have accumulated.

All of these worst case, possibly everyday scenarios, notwithstanding, what can I do? If I don’t play and in turn, don’t pay, then I am likely having to fend for myself. I may still have plenty places to go to, but what am I going to do when I get there? My wallet (unlike George Costanza’s) isn’t big enough to hold all the accumulated.

Meaning, consumers can’t transact any other way, and despite any hesitations or objections (anger) to the contrary, it was either debit or die. And when this system didn’t cause a revolution or become a motto on a license plate, it did change how we bank, buy and balance.

Regardless of both of these companies/“ower” having a word into my bank account in order to get my money out, the reality is, there isn’t a damn thing I can do about it. I just have to pay attention, literally and figuratively. Otherwise, I’ll be a victim of their circumstance.

THANK YOU FOR THE OPPORTUNITY TO BE PART OF YOUR COMMUNITY

In 1984 Virginia entrepreneurs and friends Horace Fralin and Elbert Waldron began Retirement Unlimited, Incorporated (RUI). A passion for providing exceptional customer service as well as an enriching and luxurious lifestyle for the senior population was their motivation.

Now in its third generation of leadership, RUI continues to be a family run Virginia business. We’re growing, and our seven distinctive communities feature unique programs like RUI University, Care Impact, and Inspiritas - Memory Care. We continue to keep the values and traditions set forth by our founders’ dreams of providing the best for our loved ones.
