Police Reform: More to Be Done

Five years after an officer shot and killed John Geer in Springfield, Implementation Group offers look at successful reforms, and recommends action in other areas.

By Ken Moore  The Connection

Despite police departments not being “known for embracing change,” said Phillip Niedzielski-Eichner, “we’ve seen Fairfax County and its Police Department achieve substantial and meaningful reform.”

Since the county’s Ad Hoc Police Practices Review Commission formed after a county officer shot and killed John Geer in 2013, the county has implemented 88 percent (179 of 202) of the actions recommended by the Commission.

“The report of the commission could have remained on the shelf since its release three years ago,” said Niedzielski-Eichner, chair.

Board of Supervisors Chairman Sharon Bulova encouraged seven commission members to continue to assist and advise the county and police department as commission recommendations were assessed and implemented.

The informal implementation group issued a Final Report on Fairfax County Police Reform on Oct. 10. The report was undertaken by the group on its own initiative, believing that the community might benefit from an independent discussion of progress.

POLICE REFORMS will increase police accountability, divert those with mental illnesses into treatment instead of incarceration, reduce use of force injuries and death, open public access to incident information, and maintain public confidence in the police department, according to the Implementation Group.

Implemented highlights, according to the Final Report, issued last week, include:

❖ Diversion First, alternatives to incarceration for people with mental illnesses or developmental disabilities

❖ Revisions to the police department’s Use of Force General Order, with de-escalation as the strategy of first resort when confronted with a threat rather than the use of deadly force

❖ An Independent Police Auditor who reviews investigations of death or serious injury cases

❖ A Civilian Review Panel to review investigations of civilian complaints regarding “abuse of authority” or “serious misconduct” by an officer

❖ A Media Relations Bureau led by a civilian professional who reports directly to the Police Chief

❖ A predisposition to disclose information by making revisions to information-related general orders in order to increase public visibility of the department’s daily activities and performance,

❖ Revisions to policies governing vehicle pursuit that constrains their use and strengthens supervisory oversight

❖ Recruitment of high-caliber personnel that reflects the county’s diverse population

SOME RECOMMENDATIONS have been approved, but are still in the process of being implemented, including a call for full deployment of body-worn cameras and each patrol officer being equipped with “tasers” as less-lethal alternatives to the use of a firearm.

“Still, we believe more is possible to further build and maintain community trust,” said Niedzielski-Eichner.

The Implementation Group recommends the Board of Supervisors direct the police department to formally respond to findings of an Independent Police Auditor and a Civilian Panel, and to give the public an opportunity to comment on the findings and recommendations. As the group understands, the Chief of Police has chosen not to respond because the Board of Supervisors did not specifically direct him to do so.

The Chief of Police and his command leadership should maintain a “neutral public posture pending an investigation of a police-involved use of force incident,” the report recommends.

THE INDEPENDENT POLICE Auditor’s responsibilities could expand in several areas. The implementation group advocates for: monitoring and reviewing investigations of Sheriff Deputies involved in shootings, in-custody deaths, and any use of force incident resulting in serious injury or death; auditing police use of body worn cameras, providing an annual report to the Board and the public with findings and recommendations; and participation on two internal police review committees, the Use of Force Technical Review Committee and the Vehicle Pursuit Review Committee.

“The Implementation Group urges Chief Roessler and his commanders to sustain FCPD’s reform efforts and, in particular, to unfailingly meet the ‘predisposition to release information’ standard with regard to openness and transparency, and to commit to respond to findings from the Independent Police Auditor and the Civilian Review Panel.”

The report also calls for a data-driven monitoring program that fully leverages data on police use-of-force and other data now being collected in response to the Commission’s recommendations.

Continued public involvement will be key to continuing to build trust with the community, the report says.

“Continued successes and improvements will depend on Chief Roessler, his commanders and continued meaningful collaboration with citizens engaged in implementation,” said group member Randy Sayles.

Yes, America, Religious Freedom Began in Fairfax County

By Chap Petersen
State Senator (D-34)

T he Vienna Metro station is the epicenter of suburban northern Virginia. Thousands of commuters come and go every morning, dropping off loved ones or catching the Orange Line into the urban core of the DMV. None of them are aware that just a few hundred yards away one of the most significant (and least known) Americans lived 250 years ago on a modest farm.

Jeremiah Moore was typical of English settlers who migrated to rural Fairfax County in the colonial era to clear fields and establish farms. Unlike most of his neighbors in Anglo-dominated Tidewater Virginia, he was a religious dissenter who found inspiration in the “Baptist” movement that spread through Great Britain in the mid-18th century.

The Baptists were not welcome in colonial Virginia. Its political and economic structure was based upon allegiance to the Church of England, which was the only permitted church. Indeed, a pastor could not open a church or preach without a license from the Church. Re- mains of the same language to his Virginia Declaration of Rights which was read to the Fairfax County militia when they mustered to join General Washington in May 1775. A member of the Virginia House of Burgesses, Mason added the same language to his Virginia Declaration of Rights, which later became part of the Virginia Constitution.

During the Revolutionary War, as the cause of liberty became national, Moore re-emerged as a spokesman for religious minorities. In 1779, he presented a petition signed by 10,000 Virginia freeholders – an impressive number in an era without mass media or big cities – to Gov. Thomas Jefferson asking Virginia to adopt Jefferson’s Virginia Statute of Religious Freedom. In 1786, after years of Moore’s lobbying, the Assembly finally did so.

Moore never backed off. In his senior years, he was still writing letters to now-President Jefferson decrying the “the most glaring violation of Rights that has ever disgraced a Free People,” namely Virginia’s requirement that eligible voters own at least 50 acres.

Moore died in 1814 at his farm. His grandson Thomas became a prominent attorney in the town of Fairfax and his great-grandson Walton Moore served in the U.S. Congress.

Indeed, the “establishment of religion” prohibited by even bolder actions to back Moore’s imprisonment in 1773. Today, the American ideal of freedom of religion is still a work in progress. Yet it also provides a beacon to billions around the globe who seek to practice their faith in peace. And it all begins in Fairfax County.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

‘Do Not Ask Questions’ Mayor

To the Editor:

It has been eight and a half years since Mayor Merkel was elected as a councilmember. It is time to deny her the council majority for the following reasons:

❖ Right from the very first meet- ing, she demonstrated an urgency for not looking into the details, and not only asking questions, but stopping others, me in particu- lar, from asking questions. (Former Mayor Steve DeBenedictis’ ears still ring with her admonitions, “stop him from asking questions!”)

❖ In the very first council meet- ing of her first term as Mayor in 2012 term she changed the format of the minutes of council meetings to make them almost meaningless. Think about that – in the very first meeting. She had a plan coming in.

❖ In 2013, after meeting some developers, she began to change the Downtown Master Plan to allow substantially higher densities of development and much taller buildings (see 4 articles on “Herndon’s fight for a Small Town Feel,” on HerndonOpinion.com). By June 2014, she had completely negated the people’s council for development.

❖ The 2014-2016 term was de- fined by even bolder actions to limit transparency. In meeting af- ter meeting, over strong objections from me, councilmembers were denied access to background docu- ments before and after the meet- ings and forced to depend on the staff’s very biased and/or limited presentations. It is worth noting that none of the documents related to purchase and sale of the Ashwell property, including the appraisals, proposals submitted by Comstock Partners and consultants’ reports or opinions have been made public. None of the councilmembers including Jennifer Baker, Grace Wolf Cunningham, and Bill McKenna ever raised even a whisper of objec- tion to this monumental giveaway. Instead, they dutifully aided and abetted Ms. Merkel’s “Do-not-ask- questions” rule and enabled her to demean those who disagreed or asked questions.

❖ I urge all voters, Republicans and Democrats, to vote for the fol- lowing candidates on Nov. 6, 2018, because they have the ca- pacity to be independent:

Roland Taylor, Sean Kennis, Pradip Dhakal, Cesar Del Agula and Signe Friedrichs.

Dishonest Attacks

To the Editor:

As a voter in the 10th District, I am saddened and disappointed that Barbara Comstock has re- sorted to mounting a smear cam- paign against Jennifer Wexton. Many voters in the 10th District are being subject to a targeted Google ad that links to a website put up by her campaign that fea- tures exaggerations and distor- tions about Wexton’s political posi- tions. Many of these same asser- tions can be found in the anti-Wexton literature she distributes. But the sleaziest tactic takes the form of phony political polls. People claiming to be pollsters are calling voters and asking if they would agree to participate in a poll. The pretend pollsters then ask a series of questions about at- titudes towards Comstock and Wexton that are extremely slanted and obviously intended to foster a positive view of Comstock and spread distortions about Wexton.

My wife and two people I know have received such calls.

After two terms in Congress, Barbara Comstock should cam- paign honestly on the strength of her record. For example, she should explain why her 98 percent pro-Trump voting record is in her constituents’ best interest. Or she should tout her fealty to the NRA and proudly point out that she is a top recipient of campaign dona- tions from the NRA. Or she should draw attention to the fact that she, along with the rest of the GOP has done nothing to make healthcare more affordable and more available.

I do not realistically expect her to do any of these things. What I do expect is more innuendo, in- sinuations, and attacks on Jenni- fer Wexton.

The Herndon Police Department competed in the 40th Annual Mid-Atlantic Police Motorcycle Rodeo held Sept. 26-29 at Potomac Mills, Woodbridge. Sgt. Bobby Galpin and Cpl. Chad Findley participated in the high-end riding challenges, steering their bikes through tight courses of orange cones, maneuvering sharply around curves and balancing through close passages.

The training/competition drew 100 motorcycle officers from Canada to Florida and put their riding skills to the test according to Lisa Herndon, public information specialist Herndon Police Department.

One of the biggest winners at the rodeo was Sgt. Bobby Galpin, of the Herndon Police Department, Herndon said. “Galpin won 1st Place in the Timed Cone Course, 2nd Place Overall Award in Expert Division and 3rd Place in Individual Slow Ride.”

Cpl. Chad Findley also competed in the rodeo. “I had a lot of fun participating in this year’s event, and it allowed me to push myself to become a better rider,” Findley wrote in an email after the event.

Proceeds from the event and its raffles benefitted Serve Our Willing Warriors, a non-profit organization created to support the United States wounded soldiers and their families.

ll thirty-eight Fairfax County Fire and Rescue Stations hosted an Open House at their locations on Saturday, Oct. 13, 2018, to recognize Fire Prevention Week Oct. 7-13 and promote this year’s campaign, LOOK. LISTEN. LEARN. Be aware. Fire can happen anywhere.

In the Town of Herndon, children and adults stopped at Fairfax County Herndon Fire Station 4 to meet the firefighters, view the fire trucks, participate in activities and learn how to stay protected in case of a fire.

Jordan and Amanda Manwaring of Herndon visited the station with their three children, Huck 1, Eliza, 3, and Calvin, 5. While the children happily donned red plastic fire helmets and climbed aboard the fire truck, Amanda told how she homeschooled her children and did an entire week of fire safety: “I taught them the skills to be safe, especially exit strategies so they can have a sense of control and calm.”

Firefighters and paramedics at Station-4 displayed and shared various safety tips. LOOK for places a fire could start, such as unattended cooking and heating equipment, and take care of them. LISTEN for the sound of a smoke alarm and if you hear it, get out. LEARN two ways to get out of every room and make sure ahead of time that windows and doors open easily. Seconds can mean the difference between getting out and a tragedy.

However, the content was not just for the children. According to the National Fire Protection Association, “Only 13 percent of the U.S. population is 65 or older, but 30 percent of the home fire fatalities were at least 65 years of age ... The risk of a nonfatal fire injury is highest for those between 20 and 49, showing that fire safety education is essential for everyone.”

The best tip to survive a house fire is to get out and call 911 immediately, said Captain II Bobby Kitchen, Station Commander Co. 404 C-Shift Fairfax County Fire and Rescue Department in an interview. “If you can’t get out of the house, separate yourself from the fire. Close the door. Open the window or a balcony door. Call for help. The biggest thing though is close the door.”

Kitchen said another vital tip is there must be working smoke detectors in the home. Kitchen asked The Connection to inform citizens they can contact their local fire station and they will assist. “We’d be glad to check their smoke detectors, and if needed, we can even give them one,” said Kitchen.

Working smoke detectors save lives. “Three out of five home fire deaths result from fires in properties without working smoke alarms ... The risk of dying in a home fire is cut in half in homes with working smoke alarms,” according to the National Fire Prevention Association.

Station-4 is located in downtown Herndon at 680 Spring Street. It is part of the local neighborhood community. “You’ll see us sitting outside and grilling,” said Kitchen. People are invited to visit any time.”

For more information, about fire safety or other topics and concerns, individuals can call the Herndon Fire Station at 703-437-1233 or contact Robert.Kitchen@fairfaxcounty.gov. In case of emergency call 911.

Amanda Manwaring homeschools her children, Calvin, 5, and Eliza, 3. During Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 7-13, Amanda, Calvin and Eliza as well as her husband, Jordan and their baby, Huck (not pictured) visited Fairfax County Fire Herndon Station 4. “I’ve taught them the skills to be safe, especially an exit strategy,” said Manwaring.

Carving Made Easy

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL

“Yuck, this is so gross,” said one 11-year-old girl with shoulder-length blonde hair. “Those are the guts,” said her classmate, a 12-year-old, white apron-clad boy, as he pulled a handful of stringy, orange pulp out of a fat pumpkin.

“It’s part of the process. You have to clean out the messy insides before you can start carving a beautiful design,” said Lisa Searby, who was offering an at-home lesson in carving Halloween pumpkins to a group of middle school students and their parents.

A drive around most neighborhoods during this, the spookiest season of the year, will likely reveal the efforts of many to carve a sophisticated pumpkin. From frightening to fanciful, the art of pumpkin carving is a skill that eludes many. So on a chilly Sunday afternoon, Searby, who lives in Bethesda, Md., trekked to the Fairfax home of Katie and Luke Gunther to offer a class in pumpkin carving. With a few tricks and the right tools, Searby says that almost anyone can create a front-porch worthy gourd.

After the parent-child duos have donned aprons and the pumpkins are placed atop tables covered with plastic and topped with newspaper, the instruction begins. A set of carving tools is something that Searby recommends to anyone who wants to create an impressive design.

“‘You don’t have to break the bank, but you need to get a set of tools that are sturdy enough to stand up the the heft of a thick-skinned pumpkin,” she said. “You can usually find them online pretty easily. Choose a set that has a tool for each step of the process, like a little serrated saw to cut a hole in the top and a scooper to clean out the flesh. It makes carving so much easier.”

Investing in a set of carving tools helps create impressive Halloween pumpkins.

Once the tops of the pumpkins are removed and the pulp, flesh and seeds area cleared, the artistry begins. “Use a dry-erase marker to sketch the design that you want to carve on the front of your pumpkin,” said Searby. “Does anyone know why we’re using a dry-erase marker instead of a Sharpie? Because if you make a mistake or don’t like your drawing, you can wipe off a dry-erase marker and start over. Sharpies are permanent.”

Three hearts are what Theresa Holt and her 12-year-old son and 11-year-old daughter choose for the front of their pumpkin. “This is such a fun thing to do, even if you don’t care about the outcome, it’s a great way to spend time together as a family,” she said.

Carving tools is something that Searby recommends to anyone who wants to create an impressive design.

A lesson in creating a front porch worthy Halloween pumpkin.

Those who choose to use one of Searby’s pre-designed templates are instructed to attach the template to the pumpkin and use the spike tool to trace the design onto the gourd, leaving tiny pinholes in its thick flesh. Next, the class uses one of the carving tools to cut out the facial features or other designs and, voila, in less than 30 minutes the group produces six pumpkins that are ready for Halloween.

“I’m going to use candles illuminate your pumpkins at night, make sure you put the candles in a glass candle holder first,” said Searby. “Now the clean-up begins. It’s a messy process after all.”

NextStop Theatre Presents ‘East of Eden’

By David Siegel

The Connection

A new adaptation of John Steinbeck’s iconic novel, “East of Eden,” is coming to the NextStop stage. The adaptation by Frank Galati chronicles a family’s grand saga through a symbolic retelling of the Biblical Cain and Abel story, but set in California.

Asked about “East of Eden” as a play, Evan Hoffman, director of the production noted that “East of Eden” is an “American epic examining whether ‘good versus evil’ is our great choice or our unavoidable fate.”

The play explores Adam Trask, determined to build a new life and world for himself and his young wife, Cathy. Settling in California’s Salinas Valley, Cathy gives birth to twin boys. But a dark past, with apparent insurmountable sins, and the impending danger of World War I threaten their special corner of paradise.

Hoffman indicated that the production is full of emotions. Also, “aside from being exceptional performers, we are proud to have re-imagined this story with a far more diverse cast than John Steinbeck probably intended. However, I truly believe that it serves to improve and highlight the universality of the story. It demonstrates how every single human struggles with the great choices and search for love and acceptance.”

The character Adam Trask is portrayed by Zach Brewster-Geisz. “Like the novel, our adaptation is an entertaining work, not a musty ‘classic.’ In addition, because multiple actors are playing single characters, the audience can expect to really think about how people change as they age.”

Nina Marti portrays Abra; a brave, independent woman. “Perhaps one of the most compelling elements of ‘East of Eden’ is the universality of its themes. It explores how individuals navigate moral questions that we can never get away from as humans such as our parents expectations and how we define and create ourselves.”

Winners Named in Arts Herndon’s Portrait Competition

Arts Herndon announced Samantha Hand the First Place winner in their “10th Annual Expressions Portrait Competition/Exhibition” for her work “Kimberly” juried into the competition and judged by acclaimed local impressionist painter, Jill Banks. Hand is a newcomer to the Arts Herndon event, having had her oil painting portraits selected previous years.

Hand tells on her Facebook page that “Kimberly” is one of the most compelling elements of “East of Eden” that is equally complex and universal. Please join us.”

Superheroes Soar to Fitness

Superheroes and super health went hand in hand as families joined caped champions on the Herndon Town Hall Square Saturday, Oct. 13 for the second Annual Family Fitness & Fun FEST, produced by the nationally accredited and four-time National Gold Medal Award winner, Herndon Parks and Recreation Department. A morning line up of interactive games, fitness class demonstrations, and a run through an inflatable obstacle course enticed citizens to put down the electronics, get outside and get moving.

“Despite the early morning rain, 125 people visited the event and were able to get in a bout of family fitness time, responded Tom Milenkevich Coordinator: Family Fitness & Fun FEST, Fitness Services Supervisor, Herndon Parks and Recreation Department. While hands-on learning activities and demonstrations, such as the cycling workout to the beat of music by New Trail Cycling, Reston, encouraged a fun means to a healthier way of life, the fresh food by vendors like Great Harvest Bread Company in Herndon fueled participation.

“We live off the trail and fitness for us and the kids is very important,” said Nawal Scannell of Herndon as she watched her two children dance at the event. “We take walks each night and run.”

Family Fitness & Fun FEST reminded citizens that designating time for quick, fun family workouts is an efficient way to both strengthen family bonds and boost activity levels simultaneously, said Milenkevich. “Any and all types of movement and activity is good for our body and mind, so we encourage everyone to make a family commitment to living an active lifestyle,” he said.

Parks and Recreation asked families to sign a “Fit Family Pledge” to maintain their superpowers by committing to make two healthy changes in their daily lives related to activity and nutrition goals. Parks and Recreation invited families to fill out a self-addressed envelope so they could follow up with the families and see how they progressed with their pledges.

“Movin’ On Up”
By KENNETH B. LOURIE
Not “to the east side” and not “to a deluxe apartment in the sky,” but if fictional New York City cleaning business icon George Jefferson had been diagnosed with lung cancer as I was, I would bet he’d be happy making progress: the feeling of moving forward. And that’s exactly what I feel now. With the “news” earlier this month, while a previously insignificant tumor burst (not literally) onto the scene, I am happy now to be onward and hopefully speedwards. I know these three weeks during the next quarter ahead of an early January 2019 scan. The future is now and I’m going to have choices as I navigate the road ahead.

Fifth and sixth graders learn camping skills and experience the great outdoors.

The ninth edition of the First Time Campers Program at Wolf Trap Park is officially in the books. Held between Sunday, Oct. 7 and Monday, Oct. 8 at Wolf Trap Park — with a special permit in the otherwise no-camping, no-fires park — some 40 campers from schools around the region and a small army of adult and youth volunteer leaders, enjoyed pitching tents, setting up camp, cooking their own meals using dutch ovens, and activities like fishing, archery, hiking, bird watching, rock wall climbing and more.

Sponsored by the Friends of Wolf Trap and Wolf Trap National Park for the Performing Arts and organized and supervised by Scout Leader Gary Pan and his experienced Troop 55 Scouts, the program was piloted in 2014 as a way to help local youngsters, some from Title 1 schools and lower income families, enjoy a fun-filled overnighter right in their own backyard.

The 30-plus hour outing is not strictly for camping “newbies” only, said Pan, Scoutmaster of Troop 55 of Great Falls. “Kids who came to the first Camp Out are here today and we love that they want to keep coming back.”

Pan is thrilled that quite a few return to the bi-annual adventure as volunteers, helping the first timers to make the most of the experience, like Herndon Middle Schooler Tommy Maxson, who started as a camper 3 years ago, and is now a patrol leader.

“I like this,” said Maxson. “Our job is to help out the Senior Leaders whenever we are needed, and to set a good example at all times, and help others learn how to do all the tasks properly and just make sure that everyone has a great time, safely.”

Pan may be the camp director, but it’s youngsters like Maxson, and Senior Youth Patrol Leaders and other young volunteers who are really in charge of the action.

Nick Hodge, of Great Falls and a Langley High School student, who’s been attending the event since the first outing, heads the male campers’ section. His fellow Langley school mate, MaryEllen Keating, does the honors as the female Senior Youth Leader.

“It’s really cool,” said Keating. “I especially love seeing the kids who are experiencing this for the first time, watching them as they find out what they can really do.”

Just as being a First Timer isn’t a requirement for participation, neither is being a Boy or Girl Scout. “Kids come here, they may or may not want to get involved with Scouting afterward, but all are welcome,” said Pan. “It’s still an opportunity to learn new things, gain confidence, make friends and just be outdoors for a bit.”

Campers like Maddie Musetti from Herndon Elementary School, and Peter Popenko from Forestville Elementary agree.

“It’s been a great experience,” was Maddie’s take on the camp out. Peter seemed most interested in the rock climbing wall. Watching his father, who was also on hand, shimmy up to the top of the wall leaves little doubt where the son gets his climbing abilities.

“It’s also an opportunity to discover that there is amazing, and accessible natural resources and activities right here, without having to travel far away,” added Alan Day, chair of the Friends of Wolf Trap, and one of the original organizers of the Camp Out. With his knowledge of the park and its wonders, Day also leads the campers on hiking adventures on trails built by the Potomac Appalachian Trail Club — another collaborator in the camping event and an organization of which Day is the district manager.

In addition to his Troop 55 and Venture Crew 364 of Great Falls, The Friends of Wolf Trap, the Potomac Appalachian Trail Club, Wolf Trap Park and the Park Service, Pan, and Day say that the assistance and participation of The Great Falls Rotary Club, Orvis of Tysons, Paxton Companies, Ranger Surplus, Panacea Consulting, BOWA, Meadowlark Gardens Master Gardener, the Audubon Society of Northern Virginia and Sara Holtz, of Scouting BSA with her Master Certification in “Leave No Trace” with many other unsung heroes, makes this adventure not only possible, “but a true learning experience all while having fun.”

Thinking about joining in on all the fun? The next outing is scheduled for April 5-6, 2019. Check out the website at www.fotw.info or send an inquiry to firsttimecampers@gmail.com.
