Former Gov. Terry McAuliffe tells the crowd assembled at Tim Kaine's victory party that voters in Virginia rejected President Donald Trump's campaign of "fear, hatred and division."

Democrats Seize Control of Northern Virginia

Region once had its own brand of Republicanism; now that seems almost extinct.

BY MICHAEL LEE POPE
THE CONNECTION

The loss of two-term incumbent U.S. Rep. Barbara Comstock (D-10) means Republicans are down to one lone elected official in Northern Virginia, Del. Tim Hugo (R-40). The blue wave that started last year unseating Republicans like Del. Jim LeMunyon (R-67) and Del. Bob Marshall (R-13) continued this year, when state Sen. Jennifer Wexton (D-10) was able to flip a Congressional seat that had been in Republican hands since a young military lawyer named Frank Wolf beat incumbent Democrat Joe Fisher back in 1980.

For a region that once had Republican heavyweights like U.S. Rep. Tom Davis (R-11) and U.S. Sen. John Warner, the prospects for Republicans in Northern Virginia now seem pretty bleak.

"It's going to be a tough road ahead for Republicans in Northern Virginia. Essentially, it's gone," said Republican consultant Dan Scandling, who served as Wolf's chief of staff. "Redistricting is not going to help. The seats now in Northern Virginia are going to be Democratically controlled for a generation."

Although the controversy surrounding the nomination of Brett Kavanaugh to the U.S. Supreme Court helped some Republican candidates for Senate in places like North Dakota and Missouri, it provided a burden for Comstock. Kavanaugh and Comstock had been friends since they served together as young Republican staffers trying to impeach Bill Clinton in the 1990s. This year, Wexton was able to use sexual assault allegations as wedge to charge Comstock was guilty of an "unacceptable failure of leadership." In the closing days of the campaign, television ads branded the incumbent "Barbara Trumpstock."

Incumbent Sen. Tim Kaine easily beat back a challenge from Republican Corey Stewart, whose message of an invading caravan of foreigners failed to resonate outside rural Virginia.

"Corey Stewart and Barbara Comstock followed President Trump's playbook. They stoked fear about immigrants. Both lost big," said Frank Sharry, founder and executive director of immigration-reform group America's Voice. "It seems evident the people of Virginia are just not interested in Trumpism, with or without Trump."

KAINE CELEBRATED an early victory Tuesday night, taking the stage at the Falls Church Marriott Fairview Park as one of the first Democrats to deliver a victory speech. He quoted scripture, thanked longtime supporters and cracked a few jokes about how the race was called one minute after the polls closed. The former fair-housing attorney got his start in Richmond politics before becoming lieutenant governor and governor. This year he faced a candidate who promised a "vicious" campaign and delivered by suggesting — without any evidence — that Kaine had somehow been charged with sexual misconduct. Kaine said voters rejected that approach.

"You rejected the politics of peddling lies to try to get ahead," said Kaine. "You rejected the politics and the economics of it's about a few and not about all."

Wexton celebrated victory at the Washington Dulles Airport Marriott, thanking supporters and volunteers that helped her win in the most expensive congressional race in Virginia.

Democrats targeted the race and pumped millions of dollars into an effort to knock on doors and appear on television screens.

Comstock ended up raising more money, $6 million in total from Northern Virginia business stalwarts like Northrop Grumman and Capital One. But national Democrats flooded the race with money, and Wexton tapped her experience as a Loudoun prosecutor to gain funding from law firms like Wilmer Hale and Jones Day. In the end, she said, suburban voters rejected the Trump playbook of racial division and economic nationalism.

"I have been saying from the beginning of this campaign that change is coming, and change came today," said Wexton. "That kind of change doesn't just happen, it happened because of you."

WITH DEMOCRATS seizing control of the House of Representatives, the Fairfax County delegation stands to gain a new sense of prominence on Capitol Hill. U.S. Rep. Gerry Connolly (D-11) is expected to take a key role on the House Oversight and Government Reform Committee, which is expected to start investigating the president's political involvement with Russia and economic ties to foreign leaders.

"Tonight we get a mandate for oversight and accountability," said Connolly during Kaine's victory party, which was in his district. "And I just want to say to all my friends in the Trump administration: You better put on your rollerblades because you're going to be skating to Capitol Hill a lot."

U.S. Rep. Don Beyer (D-8) also stands to gain a new sense of prominence, possibly taking a position as chairman of a subcommittee on federal land or on space. Beyer says he would probably prefer chairing a subcommittee on federal land because he is the only former park ranger in Congress. Beyer also says he also wants to play a role on a new Select Committee on Climate, which Democrats have been planning for some time.

"The centerpiece of my leadership these last five years has been trying to be the strongest and clearest voice to fight climate change as I can be," said Beyer. "So being on that select committee would make a lot of sense."

With two other Democratic women challengers defeating incumbents in Virginia Congressional Districts, Virginia's Congressional delegation shifts from seven Republicans and four Democrats to seven Democrats and four Republicans.

WEXTON'S VICTORY opens a cascading series of special elections in Northern Virginia that are going to keep consultants and volunteers busy for the next few months. Del. Jennifer Boysko (D-86) announced her run for that seat. Her House seat in Herndon would open if she were successful, initiating a rapid-fire series of special elections to install new members of the General Assembly ahead of the January session. State Sen. Adam Ebbin (D-30) says Boysko is "the overwhelming and obvious choice."

"She's known in Fairfax and has been spending a lot of time in Loudoun County, and she's got a really strong fundraising ability," said Ebbin. "She's got a great legislative ability, and she does a lot of community events in the area. So I think she'd be pretty formidable, and I'd be surprised if she didn't win."

Woman Arrested in 2017 Murders of Her Mother and Sister in McLean

According to Fairfax County Police: A 35-year-old woman is facing charges in the murders of her mother and sister. On July 14, 2017, 23-year-old Helen Lorena Hargan and her mother, 63-year-old Pamela Denise Hansen Hargan were found dead in a home in the 6700 block of Dean Drive in McLean. They had both been shot. The morning of Nov. 9, 2018, detectives from FCPD Major Crimes Bureau arrested Megan Hargan near her home in Monongalia County, W.Va. for their murders, according to FCPD Media Relations Bureau.

POLICE PHOTO

Megan Hargan

The bodies were discovered by officers, after a 9-1-1 call reporting someone in the home might have been killed. The scene was secured and meticulously processed over several days by Crime Scene Section. Detectives determined early in the investigation that the scene was staged to appear to be a murder-suicide.

Due to the complexity of the evidence, a reconstruction of the crime scene was completed by an independent company.

FCPD investigation and forensic findings led to Megan Hargan, and Major Crimes Bureau remained vigilant while pursuing every investigative lead. Megan Hargan was interviewed on July 14, and then again a few days later. Megan Hargan attempted fraudulent money transfers from her mom's bank account on the day of the murders, as well as the day before. Megan Hargan was indicted by a multi-jurisdictional grand jury Nov. 8 for two counts of 1st degree murder and two counts of using a firearm in committing a felony.

"This is a tragedy – domestic violence at its worst," said Major Ed O'Carroll, commander of the Major Crimes Bureau. "Our sincere condolences to the family and friends of Helen Hargan and Pamela Hargan. Know that justice always leads to the truth, and today the criminal justice process on this case continues."

The detectives are still in West Virginia, as the case remains active. FCPD wants to thank their law enforcement partners for their cooperation on this complex case, including the Monongalia County Sheriff's Office.

Mobile Science Lab Visits Forestville Elementary

On Wednesday, Nov. 7, the Curiosity Cube mobile science lab paid a visit to students at Forestville Elementary School in Great Falls.

Through the Curiosity Cube, MilliporeSigma encourages students to pursue future careers in science, technology, engineering and math. The mobile science lab has been traveling across the country giving students the chance to take part in interactive, hands-on science experiments.

Advanced technology — such as virtual reality, augmented reality, high-tech microscopes, 3D printers and touchscreen televisions — enhances the experiments taking place inside the mobile lab.

Through the active involvement of employees at MilliporeSigma's Rockville facility, students were able to connect with real-life scientists.

By coding nanobots, students learn how cells communicate within the body.

Students at Forestville Elementary use virtual reality goggles to dive in to a cell.

OPINION

We Need Answers

A year after McLean resident Bijan Ghaisar was shot and killed neither the Park Police nor the FBI has released a report on what happened.

BY SCOTT SUROVELL
STATE SENATOR (D-36)

On Nov. 17, 2017, coming home from work around 10 p.m., I saw police lights at the end of Alexandria Avenue where it intersects with Fort Hunt Road in the Mount Vernon area near my home. I assumed there was an accident.

The next morning, I learned that an accountant from McLean, Bijan Ghaisar, had been shot by two U.S. Park Police officers after he drove away after being rear-ended by an Uber driver on the George Washington Memorial Parkway near Slaters Lane. Very little about the Park Police's official story made sense to me the next morning.

About two weeks later, I sent a letter to the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) asking a series of questions. I received a cursory response.

About two months after the incident, the Fairfax County Police Department (FCPD) released a dash cam video of the incident starting near Dyke Overlook on the George Washington Memorial Parkway. The video showed Ghaisar driving down the Parkway slightly over the speed limit trailed by two U.S. Park Police cruisers. Anyone who drives the Parkway knows that without adequate shoulders there are few places to pull over.

Mr. Ghaisar stopped his car on the hill up to Morningside Lane and the officers drew their guns and shouted commands. Ghaisar then drove away at a normal rate of speed. As he drove away, one officer slammed the butt of his pistol on Ghaisar's trunk in frustration while shouting at him.

Ghaisar exited the Parkway after the stone bridge and turn west onto West Boulevard Drive and then left onto Alexandria Avenue. As Ghaisar approached a Fairfax County Police cruiser partially blocking Alexandria Avenue at Fort Hunt Road, Ghaisar slowed, stopped and then began to slowly move his car around the right side of the FCPD cruiser after the Park Police officers again drew their weapons.

The Park Police officers then suddenly fired nine shots into Ghaisar's vehicle striking him four times in the head. Thanks to a report issued by FCPD two weeks ago, we now know that the police found no weapon. We also know that the U.S. Park Police officers violated official chase and weapons policies.

While the U.S. Park Police took the positive step of referring the matter to the FBI for an independent investigation, neither the Park Police nor the FBI has released a report. Arlington County has not released the 911 tape. It is very troubling that as the one-year anniversary approaches, we still do not know the names of the officers who shot Ghaisar, their explanation for the shooting or whether any de-escalation measures were used.

Mr. Ghaisar leaves behind two grieving parents and a sister who still have no explanation for why their family member was killed, despite their numerous requests.

A community's faith in law enforcement requires transparency in officer-involved shootings. Recent cell phone, dash camera and body camera videos have shown the public how

Last week, one hundred Mount Vernon residents joined Bijan Ghaisar's family in a candlelight vigil at the shooting site. The Ghaisar Family is holding another vigil on the one-year anniversary of their son's death on Saturday, Nov. 17, at 6 p.m. at the Lincoln Memorial. More at www.facebook.com/wearebijan/officers are often presented with difficult situations and are required to make split-second judgment calls that can be the difference between life and death and videos provide context. However, the video that we have seen shows that the Ghaisar situation presented zero threat to the police or public safety.

Very disturbing is the complete lack of transparency by the federal government about what happened. Congressman Don Beyer has demanded answers.

If an officer had been shot, the public would have been briefed that night and charges would have been announced the next day. The Turkish Government has provided better transparency on the Khashoggi killing than our own government has right here in our community.

Last week, one hundred Mount Vernon residents and Bijan Ghaisar's family joined me in a candlelight vigil at the shooting site. The Ghaisar Family is holding another vigil on the one-year anniversary of their son's death on Saturday, Nov. 17, at 6 p.m. at the Lincoln Memorial. More at www.facebook.com/wearebijan/

Our community deserves answers and I intend to get them.

A Price of Sleep Deprivation

To the Editor:

For me, as a college student, the relevance of Marilyn Campbell's article ("A Good Night's Sleep": Connection, November 7-13, 2018) was strikingly impactful. I appreciate that you brought to light the ways sleep deprivation changes our everyday lives. It is crazy to think how something so simple can make such immense differences in our daily successes. This proves just how essential sleep is.

Tasks that are often prioritized above sleep are important, but maybe not as important as long-term health. Our achievement-focused culture likely leads to limited choices for not only students but everyone living a busy life. Our society puts so much pressure on success that when it comes to choosing between going to bed early or finishing an essay due at midnight, physical health is dismissed.

It is fascinating, and frankly disappointing, to learn that this pattern of sleep deprivation occurs in several age groups. It would be ideal for sleep deprivation to be minimized at a young age. It is also interesting that the long term effects of sleep deprivation lead to difficulty in social interactions. It saddens me to think that simply losing some sleep can cause people to completely disconnect from society. Social interactions are crucial to maintaining good mental health, and being sleep deprived compromises that.

A Bloodless Revolution

BY KENNETH R. "KEN" PLUM
STATE DELEGATE (D-36)

Thomas Jefferson's election as President of the United States is referred to as a "bloodless revolution" because in the major shifts of power in world history it occurred without the violence that marked previous changes in who controlled government. While electing a president has caused some consternation over time, the rule of law has been followed rather than having a resort to physical engagement determine the outcome.

While I and others had hoped for a giant blue tsunami wave to occur with the outcome of the 2018 mid-terms elections, a more apt description of the outcome might be that a wave of blue change came upon the land.

Leading that change was the first outcome announced by the media with the election of Democrat State Senator Jennifer Wexton to the U.S. House of Representatives defeating incumbent Republican Barbara Comstock by a landslide and flipped a district that had been Republican for nearly forty years. Not only did Congresswoman-elect Jennifer Wexton get an overwhelming share of the popular votes, but she assembled an army of volunteers like that seldom seen in elections. She won in the best tradition of the bloodless revolution with volunteers who carried her message door to door.

Downstate in Congressional District Seven an earlier voter revolution had swept the Republican

Great Falls Rugby to Host Annual Charity Tournament

BY THERESA COETZEE

Great Falls Village is going to be a busy place this Saturday, Nov. 17, as Great Falls Rugby hosts its fifth annual tournament to benefit the spinal cord injury research and recovery programs at MedStar National Rehabilitation Network. This annual charity event is the brainchild of Gary Coetzee, president of Great Falls Rugby and a spinal cord injury survivor.

Sunday's tournament is a youth tournament for all age groups U7 through high school. A number of D.C., Maryland and Virginia youth, middle school and high school teams are already registered. The fun begins at 9 a.m. and will go all day.

If you're interested in checking out the youth "touch rugby" program, those games will take place on the field behind the post-office. In this version of the game if a player is tagged below the waist he may take two steps but then must pass the ball. Tackling starts in fifth grade. If you'd like to see the middle and high school tackle program, visit us at Leo Santabella and grab a bite to eat from our food trucks Kiwi Pies and Buena'dillas. A portion of all sales go to the cause.

Great Falls Rugby, founded in 2011, is a 501c3 non-profit organization and has seen registrations surge after the sports appearance in the 2016 summer Olympics. "Many families are looking for safer alternative to American football, while others are realizing how well the sports complement one another. Rugby style tackling is taking hold in both college and profession football."

There will be indoor clinics during the winter and the club is looking forward to the 2019 season in January. Looking for a Spring sport? Rugby is the answer. Registration and playing opportunities exist year round and the Eagles are always looking for opportunities to promote the club throughout the Herndon, Great Falls, Reston, McLean and Sterling areas. Visit www.greatfallsrugby.com. The club is also on Facebook. For information on Rugby Virginia visit <http://rugbyvirginia.com>.

Lighting Up the Season

Event teams young patients with designers and artists.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL

Some of the area's most talented tastemakers are donating their time and creativity to benefit a local hospital. From feathers and yarn to seashells and tree branches, local interior designers and artists are creating holiday trees, mantel and table displays, wreaths, menorahs and artwork for the second annual Light Up the Season fundraising event for Children's National Medical Center on Dec. 16.

Designers were paired with children who are patients at Children's. Throughout the creative process, the artistic creations unfolded as the patient-designer relationships grew. "Our design was inspired by the warmth of the holiday season, the onset of winter, and the magical imagination of 7-year-old Johnny our patient ...," said Jeff Akseizer of Akseizer Design Group in Alexandria. "In our interview with him, his mind exploded with all the colors, textures, and characters he loves to see at the holiday season, his favorite being the Grinch."

Akseizer is creating a holiday tree with designer Jamie Brown, also with Akseizer Design Group. "Johnny is a true inspiration," said Brown. "He plays wheelchair basketball and sled hockey. We took much of the spirit from our interview with him and plugged it into our creative minds to come up with something that would surely wow."

The holiday decor will be created to reflect the personality and spirit of each child. "My patient artist, Savannah, inspired my wreath design for this year's event," said designer Mary Biletnikoff. "She is a sweet, 6-year-old girl who loves to draw, make snow angels and snowmen she celebrates Christmas and loves Christmas lights," she said. "My wreath is named 'Savannah the Snow Girl' and is a modern day take on the traditional snowman. I chose this theme because girls need to grow up knowing that they are strong, kind, smart and creative just like my patient artist."

"My patient partner loves fun, color and sparkle, so we created a vibrant wreath that reflects her personality," said Wendy Danziger of Danziger Design in Bethesda.

From traditional colors to hues that stretch the imagination, ideas for creating festive designs will abound at year's event, says Biletnikoff. "I hope that visitors will be inspired to incorporate some fun and lightheartedness in their own home," she said. "If you are decorating for the holidays, I want people to consider elements that make them smile and maybe even chuckle. Design is about incorporating what you like, not what you think you should have."

"When decorating for the holidays, let your imagination take over and don't be afraid to combine elements that may at first seem unlikely companions," said Sarah Hayes of Sarah Hayes Design, who created a console table display with her 17-year-old patient. "And, as Caoilinn and I would both agree, the more twinkle lights, the merrier."

"Also, make decorations together with and for your children so they can be a part of the fun," added Biletnikoff.

Offering hints at what awaits those who visit the displays, Ashley Greer of Atelier Ashley Flowers in Alexandria said, "I have teamed up with a sweet ... patient to create a classic, woodlands-inspired holiday tree Along with my crew of talented volunteers, we've designed dozens of handmade wreaths that will adorn the tree along with beautiful glass and felt ornaments This tree will bring our theme — Over the River and Through the Woods — to life."

"We're inspired by our É patient partner who loves horses, unicorns, magic, pink, and purple," added Rachel and Charles Gang of Helen Olivia Flowers, also in Alexandria. "She lives in the country with her family so being outdoors is a part of her life. We're incorporating nature, plants, and pastel colors into our enchanted design."

Metallic animals, feathers and other natural elements are what designer Marika Meyer of Marika Meyer Interiors and Marika Meyer Textiles in Bethesda is using to create a safari-themed tree. "We'll incorporate some my Marika Meyer Textiles to create the garland and tree skirt using a custom colorway," she said. "It will be a festive and fun way to celebrate the holidays."

Other designers participating in Light Up the Season who are in the area include Lauren and David Liess of Lauren Liess in Great Falls, Wendy Danziger of Danziger Design in Potomac, and Sascha Roth of Urban Country in Bethesda.

All of the holiday trees, mantelpieces, wreaths, menorahs and artwork on display will be available for purchase. Proceeds benefit Children's National. Light Up The Season will be on Sunday, Dec. 16, from 12-4 p.m. at Four Seasons Hotel Washington, D.C. Family activities include holiday cookie decorating, ornament making, musical performances and visits from Santa. Tickets for the event are $50 per child 16 and under, $85 per adult for the family and $250 per family of four (two adults and two children 16 and under).

For more information, including how to purchase tickets and how to be a sponsor, go to childrensnational.org/lightuptheseason or email lightuptheseasondc@gmail.com.

'Real Work of Advocacy Begins Again'

Annual SALT conference celebrates 2018 achievements, outlines 2019 priorities.

BY ANDREA WORKER
THE CONNECTION

The elections are behind us. Now it's time for the real work of advocacy to start again," said Social Action Linking Together (SALT) founder John Horejsi as he welcomed the attendees to the SALT Fall advocacy conference at Virginia International University in Fairfax on Saturday, Nov. 10.

SALT is a faith-based network of organizations and individuals who join forces on a number of social issues, "trying to bring the social and economic justice teachings of their faith to bear on public policy and legislation, especially at the local and state levels." The non-partisan group ("We focus on issues, not candidates") formed some 20 years ago with a core of eight socially-conscious people and has grown over the years to a base of about 1,300.

Keynote speaker John "Jack" Calhoun, author of several books about social justice and engagement, brought considerable humor to his presentation, "Finding Hope and Joy in the Broken Places: Keepin' on, Keepin' on," despite the often sobering stories and statistics that he has faced in his work and that he recounts.

"Jesus liked a party," he joked. "We need to find joy and fun in what we are about."

CALHOUN, a senior consultant with the U.S. Department of Justice and Development Service Group, Inc., for National Forum on Youth Violence Prevention has spent a lifetime working inside and out of government institutions to "improve the lives of those who live on society's edges, fragile families and the neighborhoods from which they come" focusing heavily on vulnerable children and adolescents.

"We need to name and claim our kids," said Calhoun, who helped write the landmark Child Welfare and Adoption Act of 1980, or "other negative influencers like gangs will do so."

Calhoun offered several tips on successful engagement, including "Policy Walking" and "Programs, Policy and the Personal" as the three essential elements for a template for "really getting something accomplished. It starts with walking, not fixing or talking."

Bringing the work needed to be done to the local level was Virginia Del. Ken Plum (D-36), introduced by Horejsi as the longest serving delegate in the Virginia Legislature and "an advocate for social justice and civic engagement since day one." Plum was joined on the dais by Karrie Delaney (D-67) who completed her first term this year.

Plum's illuminating presentation was aptly titled the "Uncommonwealth of Virginia." To understand the work that needs to be done and how best to achieve it, says Plum, it is first necessary to understand the economic gaps and disparity in opportunities that exist between the regions of the Commonwealth.

"We are a state of extremes," said the delegate, with Northern Virginia being among the nation's wealthiest in personal income and property value, while the South and the Southwest regions rank "the actual poorest, lower than the state of Mississippi in these economic indicators."

Plum acknowledged that there are many who resent the portion of their tax dollars being used to support other areas of the state, often hearing that "our money should be used to improve our schools, our services," but he makes the case that not only is it the morally right thing to do to help our neighbors in need, but it makes sense that "we all do well when everyone does so."

The changing demographics and shifts in population need to inform how we develop programs and allocate funds and "how we will improve the lives of all Virginians."

THE AUDIENCE was also treated to a snapshot of the daily doings of the "Nuns on a Bus" and their recently completed 2018 tour, which took them from Santa Monica, California, across the nation to the Trump resort Mar-a-Lago in Florida.

"A fitting place to do an ending drive-by" said Sister Quincy Howard who was one of the bus "riders," since the main objective of this year's bus trip was "firstly to learn and listen, secondly to educate and inform on the impacts of the 2017 Republican Tax Cuts and Job Acts."

The nuns organized or attended more than 50 events in 21 states from Oct. 7 until Nov. 2. They met with local lawmakers, attended Town Halls, and joined in rallies around the country, trying to show just how much, or little, different groups would benefit from the tax cuts. According to their organization, NETWORK, Advocates for Justice, Inspired by Catholic Sisters, the wealthiest and corporations would be the real recipients of any positive effect from the tax laws, while the less fortunate and the struggling middle classes would actually "take steps backwards from the days of the Reagan tax cuts" because of threats to the programs that many of them depend on, like Social Security, SNAP and CHIP programs, Medicare and Medicaid, and "even infrastructure and emergency recovery resources."

Sister Quincy Howard tag-teamed with Sister Mary Ellen Lacy to provide the highlights of their recently completed participation in the "Nuns on a Bus" tour across America, from Oct. 7 - Nov. 2, starting in Santa Monica, Calif., and ending up with a "fitting drive-by at Mar-a-Lago," the President's frequently visited resort in Florida.

Sister Mary Ellen Lacy, who was Sister Howard's "bus mate," detailed events on the tour, describing some of the "touching and inspiring site visits" the group made, where "we saw the direct, positive outcomes of people helping each other." Lacy said they were particularly impressed by programs that employed a holistic approach, rather than focusing on just one piece of the puzzle.

"We saw programs that were more collaborative, less competitive," so that she says they achieved a greater outcome in the goal of bringing "dignity and economic mobility" to people and families.

"We voted. We won," said Lacy, breaking for a moment with the non-partisan model when she urged the audience to "now support and educate and work with" these new lawmakers and representatives.

SALT made great strides towards the goals they set at last year's conference. Having advocated for years for the expansion of Medicaid in Virginia, the group was ecstatic when Gov. Northam signed the new state budget that will bring health care coverage to up to 400,000 Virginians starting Jan. 1, 2019. Enrollment is going on now.

Horejsi was also excited that he had been invited to attend the signing of the bill, sponsored by Del. Patrick Hope and Sen. Barbara Favola to "End School Lunch Shaming."

Also in the "celebrate" column are bills to allow video visitations without replacing in-person family visits for prison inmates, and the Kinship Guardian Program, which allows guardians like grandparents to become registered Foster Parents, giving the children in their care "some six times more benefits," said Horejsi, than they could receive otherwise.

ON THE AGENDA for the 2019 Virginia Legislative agenda:

- ❖ More improvements to TANF (Temporary Assistance for Needy Families), including a TANF scholarship pilot program to "give these young people a chance to become successfully employed."

- ❖ Supporting the Governor's mission to make Earned Income Tax Credits refundable for lower and moderate-income working families.

- ❖ Limiting and ending solitary confinement of the incarcerated. Speaker Gay Gardner with Interfaith Action for Human Rights is working to present a bill demanding transparency and accountability and real measurement by the Virginia Department of Corrections. "There are fewer inmates in solitary confinement today," she said, but with no measurement, and simply changing the name of this action to "restrictive housing," Gardner says that this is an advocacy that must continue and needs more attention.

- ❖ Continuing to oppose Block Grants for all human services programs, as grants are shown to typically shrink in funding over the years.

The issues discussed at the conference and on the SALT radar can be complex. The group welcomes questions and comments and any opportunity to educate and assist, providing factual, non-partisan information on their website at www.s-a-l-t.org or by contacting SALT coordinator and founder John Horejsi at jhorejsi@coxnet.

The Arts of Great Falls Celebrates 10th Anniversary

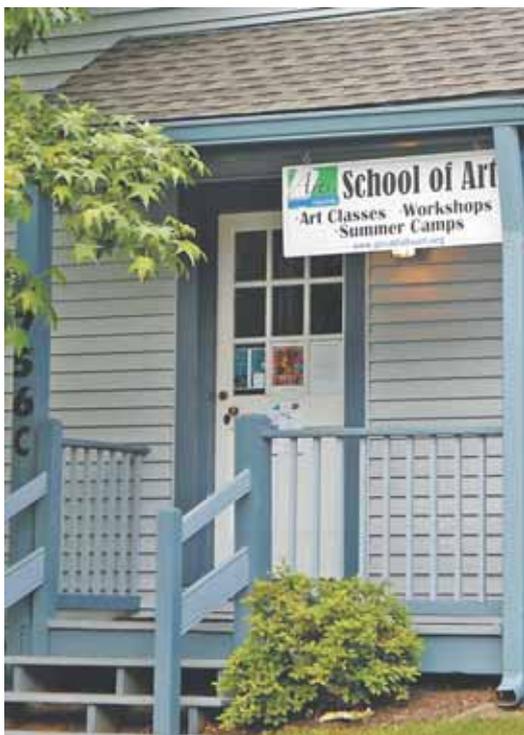

The Arts of Great Falls celebrated 10 years of bringing art to Great Falls at an event Nov. 10. More than 50 guests gathered at the home of Rick and Diane Hanna and took a walk down memory lane with a slide show created by photographer Robin Kent and a display of photographs, original brochures and newspaper articles. Guests were entertained with a live painting demonstration by teen artists Campbell Duncan and Amrita Sahu as they created portraits from a wigged mannequin. According to Chairman Richard Kelly, "We are now centrally located on the Village Green and doing our best work ever for the community! We provide studio space to 16 artists in two locations, are offering more classes to more students ever, and hold community arts events throughout the year like the monthly Art Walk in the Village, First Fridays and Paint Great Falls Plein Air Competition." The school has offered art classes to adults and children of all skill levels for 10 years in two locations. Originally in the Colvin Run area, the school and artists' studios moved to Great Falls Village Centre in 2014. For more info on the local art foundation, look online at www.greatfallsart.org or stop in at 756 Walker Road.

Langley Chorus Prepares for Renaissance Feaste

They're warming up their vocal chords, rehearsing their choreography, and fine-tuning each entrance and exit. With the 16th annual Renaissance Feaste coming soon, Langley High School's choirs are busy rehearsing for this spirited, immersive event, which takes place in the school's "Langley Halle." At 7 p.m. on Dec. 7 and 8, choir students in full medieval attire – dressed as jesters, minstrels, and musicians – will serenade guests with holiday carols, entertaining them with performances straight out of Merrie Olde England. In a hall decorated floor to ceiling to evoke a medieval castle, Renaissance Feaste guests will dine on authentic medieval English fare, including meat pie (or chicken or vegetarian), potatoes, and English custard topped with apple crisp.

Dr. Mac Lambert, Choral Director at Langley, described the Renaissance Feaste as "an evening of music, performances, food, and decor, the way it would have been during the Renaissance." He explained that Langley's Madrigals, as well as its Chamber, Select Treble, Treble, and Concert choirs, will perform traditional carols from France, Germany, and Italy. He added, "Both nights of last year's Renaissance Feaste were sold out, so I recommend getting tickets early to make sure you get seats."

For tickets, available through Nov. 30, visit www.brownpapertickets.com, and search for "feaste" (with "e" at the end).

House Majority leader out of office in a primary and replaced him with a true-blue Tea Party candidate. That candidate went on to win the general election only to find himself defeated this year by a first-time Democratic candidate Abigail Spanberger. The incumbent Republican Dave Brat has spent most of the campaign seeming to dodge any engagement with Spanberger who would challenge his right-wing economic theories that had left most people shaking their heads to understand him.

Joining Wexton and Spanberger as winning Democratic candidates was Elaine Luria who won in District Two in the Virginia Beach area against former Navy Seal and incumbent Scott Taylor. In a district that has a strong military presence, Luria was able to flip the district from red to blue.

At the end of the evening of vote counting, Democrats that had been outnumbered in Virginia's congressional delegation seven to four found themselves in a majority of seven to four. A state that was once considered red has Democrats not only in all of its statewide offices but now as seven of its congressional representatives. A congressional delegation that had only one woman ended with three.

In the U.S. Senate, former Governor of Virginia Tim Kaine who represents Virginia along with Sen. Mark Warner in the United States Senate easily defeated a strong Trump advocate Corey Stewart by landslide numbers. The next step for Democratic gain comes with the state elections in 2019. With the State Senate and the House of Delegates being controlled by a single vote in each, it is reasonable to expect that the blue wave will continue throughout the state.

The shift in power in the U.S. House of Representatives was a bloodless revolution with a major shift in power. Looking ahead, the Senate seats up for election in 2020 could bring the tipping point.

Obituary

Obituary

Robert (Bob) Blackwell Jr., a former top CIA analyst who provided advice to presidents and policymakers on the Soviet Union and Europe, died Nov. 3 at age 76 from complications of Alzheimer's disease.

A native of Atlanta, the son of Robert Blackwell Sr. and Carolyn Jackson, Bob was the first on his side of the family to go to college, graduating from the University of Georgia with a B.A. and M.A. in political science. While teaching a graduate course at the University of Michigan, where he earned his Ph.D., he met and fell in love with a student, Carol Burns. He gave her a "C" in the course, and she likes to joke she retaliated by marrying him. They enjoyed 51 years of happy marriage that produced two children, Jennifer and Robert, and five grandchildren.

After serving as an assistant professor of political science at Emory University for several years, Bob was approached in 1975 by the Central Intelligence Agency to serve as an analyst. He moved his family to Great Falls, Va. and enjoyed a 30-year career at the Agency, rising to become, among other roles, the National Intelligence Officer for the Soviet Union. During his career, he briefed several presidents, members of Congress, cabinet officials, ambassadors and foreign diplomats on Russian activities, providing critical insight before, during and after the fall of the Soviet Union.

Asked to brief then-Vice President George H.W. Bush in 1982 before he flew to Russia for the funeral of Soviet Premier Leonid Brezhnev, Bob talked his way onto Air Force Two for the trip. He was later invited by Bush to attend the funerals of the next two Soviet leaders. The unofficial motto of their trips became: "They die, we fly."

Bob continued to play a vital role at the CIA in the last days of the Soviet Union and beyond. Hanging at home is a framed photo of President Bush shaking hands with Mikhail Gorbachev, with President Bush's handwritten inscription: "Thanks for your valuable help in making this handshake possible."

Outside of work, Bob was an avid skier, traveler and photographer who closely followed the University of Georgia Bulldogs and his beloved Atlanta Braves. He enjoyed games, including shooting the moon at hearts and besting most anyone at Trivial Pursuit. He coached his daughter's basketball team, was active with his son's Boy Scout troop, and was passionate about the church choir in which he sang tenor.

Bob retired in 2005 and was diagnosed with early-onset Alzheimer's a year later. He faced this diagnosis with his characteristic courage and spirit, enrolling in clinical trials to do his part to find a cure for the disease that claimed his mother, aunt and grandmother. In 2009, he spoke at the Alzheimer's Gala on the challenges of living with the disease. He was featured in several articles on Alzheimer's in USA Today and wrote a blog for that newspaper.

Bob was a man of singular intelligence, integrity and warmth who will be dearly missed by his family and friends. A service of remembrance will be held at 11 a.m. on Saturday, Nov. 17 at Andrew Chapel United Methodist Church in Vienna, Va.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to Andrew Chapel Memory Café, a social group for persons with dementia and their caregivers (www.andrewchapelumc.org) and Friends Club, a social group for men with early-onset dementia (www.friendsclubbethesda.org).

Sleep Deprivation

Although the snowball effect of sleep deprivation worsening physical and mental health is not intentional in our society, it is highly problematic. It makes me wonder if there's a way to change this social norm to improve our society's values and people's overall well-being. Addressing the significance of this issue, especially for students, is so important. I hope that one day, everyone will value physical health and tangible achievements equally.

Airing of a Grievance

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Now that I'm back to every-three-week-chemotherapy infusions, getting through the "holiday" season becomes very tricky. One week delay due to unacceptable lab results can have a cascade effect on one's ability to spread any cheer.

And given that I'm scheduled to be infused rather aggressively, a direct result of tumor growth indicated on my most recent CT scan, delaying an infusion to accommodate my non-chemotherapy schedule seems like a non starter. After all, we're trying to keep me alive here.

Therefore, it seems counter-intuitive almost to push my treatment ahead one or two weeks just so I can enjoy a Thanksgiving turkey.

In the scheme of things, enjoying a meal pales in comparison to enjoying a life. And shrinking and/or stabilizing tumors trumps mashed potatoes and gravy. Missing a festive occasion/not being able to taste/eat anything is much less important than beating back my sworn enemy: cancer.

However, considering the unpredictability of my actually-receiving-chemotherapy on the two scheduled infusion dates before Christmas: 11/16/18 and 12/7/18, and the effect of rescheduling one or the other by one or two weeks, depending on lab results, gives pre-holiday chemotherapy infusions a bad name and an even worse connotation.

The patient (in this context, me), is either damned if you do (side effects) and/or damned if you don't (tumor growth, potentially). I need way more than a Festivus miracle.

To invoke Tiny Tim, I need to tiptoe through the tulips, so to speak; to have my chemotherapy infusions allow me to eat/satiate my meals, travel when necessary without having to double-back for chemotherapy (yes, my infusion center is open on Friday, Nov. 23, as well as the day before Christmas and the day after, with their schedule repeating itself for New Year's) and navigate an already challenging five-week turn of events. To be capped off by a Jan. 2 CT scan followed up by a Jan. 11 face-to-face appointment with my oncologist to discuss the results of the January scan.

I can hardly wait. Although I have to, and of course, think about the what-if constantly.

Nearly two months of scheduling twists and turns impacting one's quality of life during the most stressful time of the year: Thanksgiving through New Year's followed by learning one's fate: stay the course or as Yogi Berra said: "Come to the fork in the road and take it." And if I do take it (Immunotherapy), it won't simply be the road less traveled, it will be the road never traveled - by me. Although many other cancer patients have blazed the trail, the prospect of yours truly blazing the next trail (line) scares me, hopefully not to death.

It might not be so bad - and extremely personal, if my best friend's wife hadn't succumbed to her lung cancer within a year or so after being prescribed one of the drugs that my oncologist and I have discussed if my next scan continues to show tumor growth.

I get so emotional at the mere mention of the drug that I can't even pronounce it through my tears. So my oncologist knows my preference and he's content to respect my wishes especially considering that according to his experiences, the drugs are fairly similar in their effect/success.

And since mind definitely matters, keeping me in a positive frame of mind is the goal. But I'm getting way ahead of myself here; it's only November. This discussion won't occur for almost nine weeks, Jan. 11, 2019.

The only problem is, the next nine weeks present challenges unlike any similar period during the year. Throw in a few lab tests, a couple of chemotherapy infusions, a diagnostic scan and a few weeks to wait for all of it to shake out and what you're left with is your life hanging in the balance and death rearing its ugly head.

"Cancer sucks" - especially during the holidays.
