Former Gov. Terry McAuliffe tells the crowd assembled at Tim Kaine's victory party that voters in Virginia rejected President Donald Trump's campaign of "fear, hatred and division."

Democrats Seize Control of Northern Virginia

Region once had its own brand of Republicanism; now that seems almost extinct.

BY MICHAEL LEE POPE
THE CONNECTION

The loss of two-term incumbent U.S. Rep. Barbara Comstock (D-10) means Republicans are down to one lone elected official in Northern Virginia, Del. Tim Hugo (R-40). The blue wave that started last year unseating Republicans like Del. Jim LeMunyon (R-67) and Del. Bob Marshall (R-13) continued this year, when state Sen. Jennifer Wexton (D-10) was able to flip a Congressional seat that had been in Republican hands since a young military lawyer named Frank Wolf beat incumbent Democrat Joe Fisher back in 1980.

For a region that once had Republican heavyweights like U.S. Rep. Tom Davis (R-11) and U.S. Sen. John Warner, the prospects for Republicans in Northern Virginia now seem pretty bleak.

"It's going to be a tough road ahead for Republicans in Northern Virginia. Essentially, it's gone," said Republican consultant Dan Scandling, who served as Wolf's chief of staff. "Redistricting is not going to help. The seats now in Northern Virginia are going to be Democratically controlled for a generation."

Although the controversy surrounding the nomination of Brett Kavanaugh to the U.S. Supreme Court helped some Republican candidates for Senate in places like North Dakota and Missouri, it provided a burden for Comstock. Kavanaugh and Comstock had been friends since they served together as young Republican staffers trying to impeach Bill Clinton in the 1990s. This year, Wexton was able to use sexual assault allegations as wedge to charge Comstock was guilty of an "unacceptable failure of leadership." In the closing days of the campaign, television ads branded the incumbent "Barbara Trumpstock."

Incumbent Sen. Tim Kaine easily beat back a challenge from Republican Corey Stewart, whose message of an invading caravan of foreigners failed to resonate outside rural Virginia.

"Corey Stewart and Barbara Comstock followed President Trump's playbook. They stoked fear about immigrants. Both lost big," said Frank Sharry, founder and executive director of immigration-reform group America's Voice. "It seems evident the people of Virginia are just not interested in Trumpism, with or without Trump."

KAINE CELEBRATED an early victory Tuesday night, taking the stage at the Falls Church Marriott Fairview Park as one of the first Democrats to deliver a victory speech. He quoted scripture, thanked longtime supporters and cracked a few jokes about how the race was called one minute after the polls closed. The former fair-housing attorney got his start in Richmond politics before becoming lieutenant governor and governor. This year he faced a candidate who promised a "vicious" campaign and delivered by suggesting — without any evidence — that Kaine had somehow been charged with sexual misconduct. Kaine said voters rejected that approach.

"You rejected the politics of peddling lies to try to get ahead," said Kaine. "You rejected the politics and the economics of it's about a few and not about all."

Wexton celebrated victory at the Washington Dulles Airport Marriott, thanking supporters and volunteers that helped her win in the most expensive congressional race in Virginia.

Democrats targeted the race and pumped millions of dollars into an effort to knock on doors and appear on television screens.

Comstock ended up raising more money, $6 million in total from Northern Virginia business stalwarts like Northrop Grumman and Capital One. But national Democrats flooded the race with money, and Wexton tapped her experience as a Loudoun prosecutor to gain funding from law firms like Wilmer Hale and Jones Day. In the end, she said, suburban voters rejected the Trump playbook of racial division and economic nationalism.

"I have been saying from the beginning of this campaign that change is coming, and change came today," said Wexton. "That kind of change doesn't just happen, it happened because of you."

WITH DEMOCRATS seizing control of the House of Representatives, the Fairfax County delegation stands to gain a new sense of prominence on Capitol Hill. U.S. Rep. Gerry Connolly (D-11) is expected to take a key role on the House Oversight and Government Reform Committee, which is expected to start investigating the president's political involvement with Russia and economic ties to foreign leaders.

"Tonight we get a mandate for oversight and accountability," said Connolly during Kaine's victory party, which was in his district. "And I just want to say to all my friends in the Trump administration: You better put on your rollerblades because you're going to be skating to Capitol Hill a lot."

U.S. Rep. Don Beyer (D-8) also stands to gain a new sense of prominence, possibly taking a position as chairman of a subcommittee on federal land or on space. Beyer says he would probably prefer chairing a subcommittee on federal land because he is the only former park ranger in Congress. Beyer also says he also wants to play a role on a new Select Committee on Climate, which Democrats have been planning for some time.

"The centerpiece of my leadership these last five years has been trying to be the strongest and clearest voice to fight climate change as I can be," said Beyer. "So being on that select committee would make a lot of sense."

With two other Democratic women challengers defeating incumbents in Virginia Congressional Districts, Virginia's Congressional delegation shifts from seven Republicans and four Democrats to seven Democrats and four Republicans.

WEXTON'S VICTORY opens a cascading series of special elections in Northern Virginia that are going to keep consultants and volunteers busy for the next few months. Del. Jennifer Boysko (D-86) announced her run for that seat. Her House seat in Herndon would open if she were successful, initiating a rapid-fire series of special elections to install new members of the General Assembly ahead of the January session. State Sen. Adam Ebbin (D-30) says Boysko is "the overwhelming and obvious choice."

"She's known in Fairfax and has been spending a lot of time in Loudoun County, and she's got a really strong fundraising ability," said Ebbin. "She's got a great legislative ability, and she does a lot of community events in the area. So I think she'd be pretty formidable, and I'd be surprised if she didn't win."

Alicia Plerhoples Announces Candidacy for School Board

Georgetown Law Professor Alicia Plerhoples, of McLean, announced her candidacy for the Fairfax County School Board, Dranesville District currently held by retiring School Board Member Janie Strauss. Plerhoples has been a vocal community advocate, serving as the PTA president of her local elementary school, on the McLean Community Center Governing Board, on the FCPS School Board's Human Resources Advisory Committee, and on the Board of the Franklin Area Citizens Association.

"I am proud to announce my candidacy for the Fairfax County School Board (Dranesville District) and I would like to thank Ms. Strauss for her 25 years of service to Fairfax County Public Schools," said Plerhoples. "My lifelong commitment to public education began during the many afternoons I spent reading to preschoolers at my local Head Start and helping my mother, a special education Alicia Plerhoples is Professor of Law at Georgetown Law where she writes and teaches about nonprofit law and corporate governance. She has served on the law school's faculty hiring committee and as the Chair of the law school's Diversity Committee, which is tasked with enhancing the law school's inclusion climate and enhancing cultural competency inside and outside the classroom. Plerhoples is a graduate of Yale Law School, Princeton's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs, and Harvard College. As a Harvard alum, Plerhoples serves on the Harvard Schools Committee and interviews area high school students who apply to Harvard. Plerhoples also serves on the McLean Community Center Governing Board, which provides oversight to the Community Center staff and presents its annual budget to the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors for review and approval. Plerhoples lives in McLean with her husband, a surgeon who practices in northern Virginia, and their two daughters.

McLean Community Foundation Awards $62,450

The McLean Community Foundation recently awarded $62,450 in grants to the McLean Community. More than $30,000 was granted to McLean Little League for their capital improvement plan. The money will fund the new brick recognition wall at the facility. Additionally, the McLean Community Center's Old Firehouse Teen Center was awarded $25,000 for outdoor hardscape improvements. Other organizations including Fairfax County Library Foundation, SHARE, Inc of McLean and the Winterfest Parade benefited from financial support of the foundation as well.

The goal of the foundation is always to improve the McLean Community and these projects are indicative of the work the foundation does. Since their first grant to the McLean Volunteer Fire Department in 1981, MCF has awarded more than $1.5 million in grants to local nonprofits. The McLean Community Foundation is a nonprofit formed in 1978 by the McLean Citizen's Association to meet the philanthropic needs of a growing McLean community. The focus is entirely on efforts that benefit the McLean community.

Woman Arrested in 2017 Murders of Her Mother and Sister in McLean

According to Fairfax County Police: A 35-year-old woman is facing charges in the murders of her mother and sister. On July 14, 2017, 23-year-old Helen Lorena Hargan and her mother, 63-year-old Pamela Denise Hansen Hargan were found dead in a home in the 6700 block of Dean Drive in McLean. They had both been shot.

Megan Hargan

The morning of Nov. 9, 2018, detectives from FCPD Major Crimes Bureau arrested Megan Hargan near her home in Monongalia County, W.Va. for their murders, according to FCPD Media Relations Bureau.

The bodies were discovered by officers, after a 9-1-1 call reporting someone in the home might have been killed. The scene was secured and meticulously processed over several days by Crime Scene Section. Detectives determined early in the investigation that the scene was staged to appear to be a murder-suicide.

Due to the complexity of the evidence, a reconstruction of the crime scene was completed by an independent company.

FCPD investigation and forensic findings led to Megan Hargan, and Major Crimes Bureau remained vigilant while pursuing every investigative lead. Megan Hargan was interviewed on July 14, and then again a few days later. Megan Hargan attempted fraudulent money transfers from her mom's bank account on the day of the murders, as well as the day before. Megan Hargan was indicted by a multi-jurisdictional grand jury Nov. 8 for two counts of 1st degree murder and two counts of using a firearm in committing a felony.

"This is a tragedy – domestic violence at its worst," said Major Ed O'Carroll, commander of the Major Crimes Bureau. "Our sincere condolences to the family and friends of Helen Hargan and Pamela Hargan. Know that justice always leads to the truth, and today the criminal justice process on this case continues."

The detectives are still in West Virginia, as the case remains active. FCPD wants to thank their law enforcement partners for their cooperation on this complex case, including the Monongalia County Sheriff's Office.

OPINION

We Need Answers

A year after McLean resident Bijan Ghaisar was shot and killed neither the Park Police nor the FBI has released a report on what happened.

BY SCOTT SUROVELL
STATE SENATOR (D-36)

On Nov. 17, 2017, coming home from work around 10 p.m., I saw police lights at the end of Alexandria Avenue where it intersects with Fort Hunt Road in the Mount Vernon area near my home. I assumed there was an accident.

The next morning, I learned that an accountant from McLean, Bijan Ghaisar, had been shot by two U.S. Park Police officers after he drove away after being rear-ended by an Uber driver on the George Washington Memorial Parkway near Slaters Lane. Very little about the Park Police's official story made sense to me the next morning.

About two weeks later, I sent a letter to the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) asking a series of questions. I received a cursory response.

About two months after the incident, the Fairfax County Police Department (FCPD) released a dash cam video of the incident starting near Dyke Overlook on the George Washington Memorial Parkway. The video showed Ghaisar driving down the Parkway slightly over the speed limit trailed by two U.S. Park Police cruisers. Anyone who drives the Parkway knows that without adequate shoulders there are few places to pull over.

Mr. Ghaisar stopped his car on the hill up to Morningside Lane and the officers drew their guns and shouted commands. Ghaisar then drove away at a normal rate of speed. As he drove away, one officer slammed the butt of his pistol on Ghaisar's trunk in frustration while shouting at him.

Ghaisar exited the Parkway after the stone bridge and turn west onto West Boulevard Drive and then left onto Alexandria Avenue. As Ghaisar approached a Fairfax County Police cruiser partially blocking Alexandria Avenue at Fort Hunt Road, Ghaisar slowed, stopped and then began to slowly move his car around the right side of the FCPD cruiser after the Park Police officers again drew their weapons.

The Park Police officers then suddenly fired nine shots into Ghaisar's vehicle striking him four times in the head. Thanks to a report issued by FCPD two weeks ago, we now know that the police found no weapon. We also know that the U.S. Park Police officers violated official chase and weapons policies.

While the U.S. Park Police took the positive step of referring the matter to the FBI for an independent investigation, neither the Park Police nor the FBI has released a report. Arlington County has not released the 911 tape. It is very troubling that as the one-year anniversary approaches, we still do not know the names of the officers who shot Ghaisar, their explanation for the shooting or whether any de-escalation measures were used.

Mr. Ghaisar leaves behind two grieving parents and a sister who still have no explanation for why their family member was killed, despite their numerous requests.

A community's faith in law enforcement requires transparency in officer-involved shootings. Recent cell phone, dash camera and body camera videos have shown the public how

Last week, one hundred Mount Vernon residents joined Bijan Ghaisar's family in a candlelight vigil at the shooting site. The Ghaisar Family is holding another vigil on the one-year anniversary of their son's death on Saturday, Nov. 17, at 6 p.m. at the Lincoln Memorial. More at www.facebook.com/wearebijan/officers are often presented with difficult situations and are required to make split-second judgment calls that can be the difference between life and death and videos provide context. However, the video that we have seen shows that the Ghaisar situation presented zero threat to the police or public safety.

Very disturbing is the complete lack of transparency by the federal government about what happened. Congressman Don Beyer has demanded answers.

If an officer had been shot, the public would have been briefed that night and charges would have been announced the next day. The Turkish Government has provided better transparency on the Khashoggi killing than our own government has right here in our community.

Last week, one hundred Mount Vernon residents and Bijan Ghaisar's family joined me in a candlelight vigil at the shooting site. The Ghaisar Family is holding another vigil on the one-year anniversary of their son's death on Saturday, Nov. 17, at 6 p.m. at the Lincoln Memorial. More at www.facebook.com/wearebijan/

Our community deserves answers and I intend to get them.

A Price of Sleep Deprivation

To the Editor:

For me, as a college student, the relevance of Marilyn Campbell's article ("A Good Night's Sleep": Connection, November 7-13, 2018) was strikingly impactful. I appreciate that you brought to light the ways sleep deprivation changes our everyday lives. It is crazy to think how something so simple can make such immense differences in our daily successes. This proves just how essential sleep is.

Tasks that are often prioritized above sleep are important, but maybe not as important as long-term health. Our achievement-focused culture likely leads to limited choices for not only students but everyone living a busy life. Our society puts so much pressure on success that when it comes to choosing between going to bed early or finishing an essay due at midnight, physical health is dismissed.

It is fascinating, and frankly disappointing, to learn that this pattern of sleep deprivation occurs in several age groups. It would be ideal for sleep deprivation to be minimized at a young age. It is also interesting that the long term effects of sleep deprivation lead to difficulty in social interactions. It saddens me to think that simply losing some sleep can cause people to completely disconnect from society. Social interactions are crucial to maintaining good mental health, and being sleep deprived compromises that.

A Bloodless Revolution

BY KENNETH R. "KEN" PLUM
STATE DELEGATE (D-36)

Thomas Jefferson's election as President of the United States is referred to as a "bloodless revolution" because in the major shifts of power in world history it occurred without the violence that marked previous changes in who controlled government. While electing a president has caused some consternation over time, the rule of law has been followed rather than having a resort to physical engagement determine the outcome.

While I and others had hoped for a giant blue tsunami wave to occur with the outcome of the 2018 mid-terms elections, a more apt description of the outcome might be that a wave of blue change came upon the land.

Leading that change was the first outcome announced by the media with the election of Democrat State Senator Jennifer Wexton to the U.S. House of Representatives defeating incumbent Republican Barbara Comstock by a landslide and flipped a district that had been Republican for nearly forty years. Not only did Congresswoman-elect Jennifer Wexton get an overwhelming share of the popular votes, but she assembled an army of volunteers like that seldom seen in elections. She won in the best tradition of the bloodless revolution with volunteers who carried her message door to door.

Downstate in Congressional District Seven an earlier voter revolution had swept the Republican

MVB Bank Opens in McLean

MVB Bank, Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary of MVB Financial Corp., has expanded and modernized its presence in Northern Virginia. Recently the company opened a new corporate suite and banking center near the Reston Town Center. On Tuesday, Nov. 13, MVB celebrates its new McLean banking center.

MVB's new banking centers feature some of the region's first Interactive Teller Machines (ITMs). This state-of-the-art technology increases client accessibility with extended hours of operations and offers enhanced security.

"At MVB, we are excited about our new, highly visible locations at Reston Town Center West and McLean. Combined with MVB Mortgage's presence already established in Fairfax County, we are significantly expanding the MVB Financial Corp. brand in the region," said Jamie Nalls, MVB Northern Virginia Regional President. "Opening these new bank-

Lighting Up the Season

Event teams young patients with designers and artists.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL

Some of the area's most talented tastemakers are donating their time and creativity to benefit a local hospital. From feathers and yarn to seashells and tree branches, local interior designers and artists are creating holiday trees, mantel and table displays, wreaths, menorahs and artwork for the second annual Light Up the Season fundraising event for Children's National Medical Center on Dec. 16.

Designers were paired with children who are patients at Children's. Throughout the creative process, the artistic creations unfolded as the patient-designer relationships grew. "Our design was inspired by the warmth of the holiday season, the onset of winter, and the magical imagination of 7-year-old Johnny our patient ...," said Jeff Akseizer of Akseizer Design Group in Alexandria. "In our interview with him, his mind exploded with all the colors, textures, and characters he loves to see at the holiday season, his favorite being the Grinch."

Akseizer is creating a holiday tree with designer Jamie Brown, also with Akseizer Design Group. "Johnny is a true inspiration," said Brown. "He plays wheelchair basketball and sled hockey. We took much of the spirit from our interview with him and plugged it into our creative minds to come up with something that would surely wow."

The holiday decor will be created to reflect the personality and spirit of each child. "My patient artist, Savannah, inspired my wreath design for this year's event," said designer Mary Biletnikoff. "She is a sweet, 6-year-old girl who loves to draw, make snow angels and snowmen ... she celebrates Christmas and loves Christmas lights," she said. "My wreath is named 'Savannah the Snow Girl' and is a modern day take on the traditional snowman. I chose this theme because girls need to grow up knowing that they are strong, kind, smart and creative just like my patient artist."

"My patient partner loves fun, color and sparkle, so we created a vibrant wreath that reflects her personality," said Wendy Danziger of Danziger Design in Bethesda.

From traditional colors to hues that stretch the imagination, ideas for creating festive designs will abound at year's event, says Biletnikoff. "I hope that visitors will be inspired to incorporate some fun and lightheartedness in their own home," she said. "If you are decorating for the holidays, I want people to consider elements that make them smile and maybe even chuckle. Design is about incorporating what you like, not what you think you should have."

"When decorating for the holidays, let your imagination take over and don't be afraid to combine elements that may at first seem unlikely companions," said Sarah Hayes of Sarah Hayes Design, who created a console table display with her 17-year-old patient. "And, as Caoilinn and I would both agree, the more twinkle lights, the merrier."

"Also, make decorations together with and for your children so they can be a part of the fun," added Biletnikoff.

Offering hints at what awaits those who visit the displays, Ashley Greer of Atelier Ashley Flowers in Alexandria said, "I have teamed up with a sweet ... patient to create a classic, woodlands-inspired holiday tree Along with my crew of talented volunteers, we've designed dozens of handmade wreaths that will adorn the tree along with beautiful glass and felt ornaments This tree will bring our theme — Over the River and Through the Woods — to life."

"We're inspired by our É patient partner who loves horses, unicorns, magic, pink, and purple," added Rachel and Charles Gang of Helen Olivia Flowers, also in Alexandria. "She lives in the country with her family so being outdoors is a part of her life. We're incorporating nature, plants, and pastel colors into our enchanted design."

Metallic animals, feathers and other natural elements are what designer Marika Meyer of Marika Meyer Interiors and Marika Meyer Textiles in Bethesda is using to create a safari-themed tree. "We'll incorporate some my Marika Meyer Textiles to create the garland and tree skirt using a custom colorway," she said. "It will be a festive and fun way to celebrate the holidays."

Other designers participating in Light Up the Season who are in the area include Lauren and David Liess of Lauren Liess in Great Falls, Wendy Danziger of Danziger Design in Potomac, and Sascha Roth of Urban Country in Bethesda.

All of the holiday trees, mantelpieces, wreaths, menorahs and artwork on display will be available for purchase. Proceeds benefit Children's National. Light Up The Season will be on Sunday, Dec. 16, from 12-4 p.m. at Four Seasons Hotel Washington, D.C. Family activities include holiday cookie decorating, ornament making, musical performances and visits from Santa. Tickets for the event are $50 per child 16 and under, $85 per adult for the family and $250 per family of four (two adults and two children 16 and under).

For more information, including how to purchase tickets and how to be a sponsor, go to childrensnational.org/lightuptheseason or email lightuptheseasondc@gmail.com.

Vision for Downtown McLean

Open House shows public a vision for future of McLean.

BY ANDREA WORKER
THE CONNECTION

Since June of this year, citizens, county staff and officials, and consultants have been working diligently on the McLean Community Business Center (CBC) Study after the Board of Supervisors authorized a Comprehensive Plan amendment to review the approximately 230-acre area centered around the intersection of Old Dominion Drive and Chain Bridge Road. The study will focus on developing recommendations for future land uses, public facilities, development types and densities, urban design and transportation in the CBC.

The last full review of the Comprehensive Plan as it applies to the McLean area took place in 1998. “A thing or two has changed since then,” acknowledged Supervisor John Foust (D-Dranesville) as he welcomed the attendees to an open house to update his constituents on the progress to date. “We were overdue to take a look and a rethink about the present and the future.”

Streetsense, the consultants in charge of the study, according to their website have a number of large-scale projects on their resume, including significant participation in the development of the National Harbor in Maryland, and the still-in-progress Reston Heights. Tagging themselves as a “strategy and design collective,” the Streetsense team have taken the lead on the McLean CBC study and on Nov. 8, they had the McLean High School Cafeteria decked out with graphic boards and design drawings to explain the “second draft of the CBC Vision” to the several hundred who turned out to take a look and hear the presentation by Colin Greene, senior director of planning for the company.

Greene was the lead presenter at the Open House. “I’m not going back to the beginning tonight,” he said, “but starting where we left off [at the last Open House held on Sept. 27, 2018] except to remind everyone that this plan is ‘illustrative’ – a best practices vision for what could be.”

The point that Greene wanted to make clear is that the final recommendations, even if fully adopted by the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors as an amendment to the Comprehensive Plan, remains a vision for now.

“No one has put in applications for redevelopment. There’s no agenda,” he stated. The study recommendations, created by industry experts, county staff and the community, is meant to be a “framework for future development.”

That framework is fairly complex and has a number of moving parts that would require the collaborative efforts of numerous stakeholders, but at its core, the recommendations for the McLean CBC are to regroup the community into three major zones: Center, General, and Edge.

The Center Zone vision was what got the most attention from the attendees.

“For starters,” said Greene, “let’s avoid the roads that handle the most traffic, Chain Bridge and Old Dominion, when we think about a ‘town center.’”

IN THE FRAMEWORK PLAN, the Center Zone would move in from those streets, focusing around the intersection of Beverly Road and Elm Street. The vision offers a “new community space emblematic of McLean’s culture and interests.”

A plaza or a central square with civic facilities and green space would ideally be surrounded by mixed-use buildings, high density residential with retail and restaurants on the ground floor and walkable streets and embedded parking.

Fanning out from this new “downtown” McLean would be the General Zone, “intended to allow for reasonable redevelopment as opportunities exist to improve properties.” Smaller block sizes, more moderate density, lower building sizes, but still including continuous sidewalks, street plantings and reducing surface parking lots that often equate to a “shapeless realm.”

“Connectivity is key,” said Greene, saying that the success of the Center Zone and its benefit to all McLean residents is making it accessible.

The Edge Zone is “intended to protect the existing neighborhood fabric and act as the transition from the CBC and the adjacent residential neighborhoods.” Further out from the “downtown” vibe, the Edge Zone consists of single-family and townhouse residential units with a much lower density.

Any redevelopment in this zone should be about replacing, rather than expanding, and maintaining the character of the McLean where most citizens reside. Improvements should still be encouraged to thoroughfares and, once again, connectivity is essential, both to the CBC and to community assets like schools, parks, the community center and the library, which all sit outside the CBC boundaries.

Long-time McLean residents Robin Walker and Joe Wetzel seemed to be in the majority in their approval of the recommendations to the Comprehensive Plan that consultants Streetsense and a taskforce of residents and county staff and officials have created with significant community input.

Meetings that tackle local redevelopment, zoning, and transportation issues have a tendency to get a bit heated. That red zone temperature was noticeably absent at the open house.

“Hopefully, that means we have been doing our job in communicating and engaging with the community,” said Streetsense’s Greene. “We have involved community members every step of the way so far,” he said, referring to the McLean residents who make up the majority of the taskforce that meets to discuss the study, the plans, and public commentary.

The task force has already met several times since the approval of the study, and there have been workshop meetings that included hands-on immersive table exercises and smaller break-out groups, as well as instruction and discussion on market conditions and the elements of real estate transformation and economic considerations.

On Sept. 27, the study partners presented their initial findings and recommendations at the first Open House. Taking the feedback received at that event, they went back to the drawing board for another task force gathering in October before the presentation of this second draft.

THE REVIEWS from the attendees seemed to lean to the positive side.

Robin Walker is a long-time McLean resident and deeply involved with her “home town.” The Community Outreach Liaison for the McLean Community Center, Walker just “wishes this vision could happen in my lifetime. It would bring so much, walkability, vibrancy and connection to our neighborhoods.”

Walker understands what Greene was trying to clarify. “I know this isn’t a set plan, but having this framework approved says to quality developers that McLean is friendly and welcoming and ready for sustainable, suitable change.”

Joe Wetzel, who has lived in McLean for 38 years, agrees and thinks the “vision” that the study group has put forth is a “great concept.” The lack of any understandable plan, without the absolute do’s and don’ts of what is possible “has made quality developers afraid of investing in McLean,” he said. “This would really help and seems to take into account all of the stakeholders, residents and businesses alike.”

Greene and the other plan representatives did field a few objections. One lifelong area resident expressed concern over adding high-density residential property into the “heart of McLean.” She questioned Greene repeatedly about “who would be moving in there and would they respect our McLean.”

Greene could only respond that this vision was still just that – a vision and a framework from which to move forward. There was nothing to say at this point what would be developed or if their recommendation of a new, vibrant town center would ever leave the drawing board.

“Whatever happens,” he assured his listeners, “remember that the goal here is community involvement, and development that will serve as a source of community purpose and pride.”

There are more taskforce meetings scheduled and open to the public. The next is set for Nov. 19 at 7 pm at the McLean Governmental Center, 1437 Balls Hill Road, and another at the same location on Jan. 14.

The history of the works and the complete presentation are available on the county’s website www.fairfaxcounty.gov, search for McLean Community Business Center Study for materials and upcoming meeting information.

New Leadership for Lewinsville Presbyterian Church

Reverend Scott Ramsey was named the new Pastor at McLean's Lewinsville Presbyterian Church at an installation service, Sunday, Nov. 4, 2018. Ramsey took his place as 38th in the succession of pastors who have served Lewinsville since its founding in 1846. Ramsey completed three years in an interim capacity before the McLean congregation asked him to accept a permanent position. Prior to Lewinsville, Ramsey's service included interim pastorates in Middletown and New City, N.Y.

Joining Ramsey this fall is John Nothaft, the new Director of Music Ministries and a native of Vienna. Nothaft received his master's degree from Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N.Y. in June, 2018. He has toured extensively, performing on the organ throughout the United States and United Kingdom.

The Reverend Annamaria Groenenboom, a Michigan native, joined the staff in September 2018 as Stated Supply Pastor for Youth Ministries. She was graduated from Pittsburgh Theological Seminary in 2017.

The three new arrivals and Allison Lineberger, Director of Christian Education since 2003, open a new chapter in the life of Lewinsville Presbyterian Church.

That new chapter includes preparing for the launch of a capital campaign to "redesign and repurpose our present facilities to meet the challenges of a growing Tysons community," said Ramsey.

Lewinsville Presbyterian Church, founded in 1846 at the corner of Chain Bridge Road and Great Falls Streets in McLean, "seeded" five other churches through the years: Vienna Presbyterian in 1871, Falls Church Presbyterian in 1873, and First Presbyterian of Arlington in 1874. Immanuel Presbyterian and Chesterbrook Presbyterian were established by Lewinsville members in the mid-20th century. The church, a member of the Presbyterian Church (USA), enjoys a reputation as a hands-on congregation with an active ministry in music, small groups, Christian education, seniors, community outreach, and faith and public policy programs.

Langley Chorus Prepares for Renaissance Feaste

They're warming up their vocal chords, rehearsing their choreography, and fine-tuning each entrance and exit. With the 16th annual Renaissance Feaste coming soon, Langley High School's choirs are busy rehearsing for this spirited, immersive event, which takes place in the school's "Langley Halle." At 7 p.m. on Dec. 7 and 8, choir students in full medieval attire – dressed as jesters, minstrels, and musicians – will serenade guests with holiday carols, entertaining them with performances straight out of Merrie Olde England. In a hall decorated floor to ceiling to evoke a medieval castle, Renaissance Feaste guests will dine on authentic medieval English fare, including meat pie (or chicken or vegetarian), potatoes, and English custard topped with apple crisp.

Dr. Mac Lambert, Choral Director at Langley, described the Renaissance Feaste as "an evening of music, performances, food, and decor, the way it would have been during the Renaissance." He explained that Langley's Madrigals, as well as its Chamber, Select Treble, Treble, and Concert choirs, will perform traditional carols from France, Germany, and Italy. He added, "Both nights of last year's Renaissance Feaste were sold out, so I recommend getting tickets early to make sure you get seats."

For tickets, available through Nov. 30, visit www.brownpapertickets.com, and search for "feaste" (with "e" at the end).

For tickets, available through Nov. 30, visit www.brownpapertickets.com, and search for "feaste"

The Potomac School Receives $12 Million Gift for New Center

Construction of a new Center for Athletics and Community is underway at The Potomac School. Work on the facility began in July, and it is slated to open in late fall 2019.

The project has garnered one of the largest gifts in the school's history: $12 million from the Spangler family. Dr. Abigail Spangler, a member of Potomac's Board of Trustees, represented her family at a recent dinner honoring the individuals whose leadership has made the new center possible. Dr. Spangler's father, C.D. Spangler, Jr., a widely respected business leader and former president of the University of North Carolina system, passed away this July. With his daughter, Mr. Spangler was instrumental in the decision to support Potomac's new center.

Head of School John Kowalik says, "The Spangler family's gift has given us tremendous momentum, inspiring others to join in supporting this project, which will benefit Potomac students for years to come. I will also note that Abby Spangler's leadership extends far beyond financial generosity. She has been actively involved with our school for many years, and she is always the first to step up when something needs to be done. We are deeply grateful for her unwavering commitment to Potomac."

He continued, "I was excited when Abby mentioned having her father join our conversation about the planned building. While I did not know Mr. Spangler personally, I certainly knew him by reputation. I quickly saw that he understood the challenges involved in turning a vision into reality. He had led the entire University of North Carolina system. He had served as president of Harvard's Board of Overseers and chaired a major campaign for Harvard Business School. And he was the patriarch of a family devoted to helping others. All of this put Mr. Spangler in a unique position to assess our plans, offer insightful observations, and ultimately make an informed decision about investing in Potomac's future. It was a privilege to get to know Mr. Spangler, and he will be remembered with deep respect and gratitude at The Potomac School."

In all, the school recognized 78 leadership donors at the dinner; their collective support for the new center totals more than $31 million. Fundraising will continue, as Potomac aims to cover the project's entire cost of $37 million through philanthropic support.

The 76,500-square-foot Center for Athletics and Community will include a gymnasium with a competition basketball court and three practice courts; an indoor jogging track; seven squash courts; a weight room, cardio room, and multipurpose activity room; and flexible gathering spaces that can be configured for a variety of events. In combination with the school's existing facilities, the center will support a robust athletics program that fields teams in 26 interscholastic sports. It will also meet the school's long-time need for an indoor gathering space large enough to accommodate the entire Potomac community.

House Majority leader out of office in a primary and replaced him with a true-blue Tea Party candidate. That candidate went on to win the general election only to find himself defeated this year by a first-time Democratic candidate Abigail Spanberger. The incumbent Republican Dave Brat has spent most of the campaign seeming to dodge any engagement with Spanberger who would challenge his right-wing economic theories that had left most people shaking their heads to understand him.

Joining Wexton and Spanberger as winning Democratic candidates was Elaine Luria who won in District Two in the Virginia Beach area against former Navy Seal and incumbent Scott Taylor. In a district that has a strong military presence, Luria was able to flip the district from red to blue.

At the end of the evening of vote counting, Democrats that had been outnumbered in Virginia's congressional delegation seven to four found themselves in a majority of seven to four. A state that was once considered red has Democrats not only in all of its statewide offices but now as seven of its congressional representatives. A congressional delegation that had only one woman ended with three.

In the U.S. Senate, former Governor of Virginia Tim Kaine who represents Virginia along with Sen. Mark Warner in the United States Senate easily defeated a strong Trump advocate Corey Stewart by landslide numbers. The next step for Democratic gain comes with the state elections in 2019. With the State Senate and the House of Delegates being controlled by a single vote in each, it is reasonable to expect that the blue wave will continue throughout the state.

The shift in power in the U.S. House of Representatives was a bloodless revolution with a major shift in power. Looking ahead, the Senate seats up for election in 2020 could bring the tipping point.

Sleep Deprivation

Although the snowball effect of sleep deprivation worsening physical and mental health is not intentional in our society, it is highly problematic. It makes me wonder if there's a way to change this social norm to improve our society's values and people's overall well-being. Addressing the significance of this issue, especially for students, is so important. I hope that one day, everyone will value physical health and tangible achievements equally.

Thank you for sharing this much needed information with our community.

Airing of a Grievance

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Now that I'm back to every-three-week-chemotherapy infusions, getting through the "holiday" season becomes very tricky. One week delay due to unacceptable lab results can have a cascade effect on one's ability to spread any cheer.

And given that I'm scheduled to be infused rather aggressively, a direct result of tumor growth indicated on my most recent CT scan, delaying an infusion to accommodate my non-chemotherapy schedule seems like a non starter. After all, we're trying to keep me alive here.

Therefore, it seems counter-intuitive almost to push my treatment ahead one or two weeks just so I can enjoy a Thanksgiving turkey.

In the scheme of things, enjoying a meal pales in comparison to enjoying a life. And shrinking and/or stabilizing tumors trumps mashed potatoes and gravy. Missing a festive occasion/not being able to taste/eat anything is much less important than beating back my sworn enemy: cancer.

However, considering the unpredictability of my actually-receiving-chemotherapy on the two scheduled infusion dates before Christmas: 11/16/18 and 12/7/18, and the effect of rescheduling one or the other by one or two weeks, depending on lab results, gives pre-holiday chemotherapy infusions a bad name and an even worse connotation.

The patient (in this context, me), is either damned if you do (side effects) and/or damned if you don't (tumor growth, potentially). I need way more than a Festivus miracle.

To invoke Tiny Tim, I need to tiptoe through the tulips, so to speak; to have my chemotherapy infusions allow me to eat/satiate my meals, travel when necessary without having to double-back for chemotherapy (yes, my infusion center is open on Friday, Nov. 23, as well as the day before Christmas and the day after, with their schedule repeating itself for New Year's) and navigate an already challenging five-week turn of events. To be capped off by a Jan. 2 CT scan followed up by a Jan. 11 face-to-face appointment with my oncologist to discuss the results of the January scan.

I can hardly wait. Although I have to, and of course, think about the what-if constantly.

Nearly two months of scheduling twists and turns impacting one's quality of life during the most stressful time of the year: Thanksgiving through New Year's followed by learning one's fate: stay the course or as Yogi Berra said: "Come to the fork in the road and take it." And if I do take it (Immunotherapy), it won't simply be the road less traveled, it will be the road never traveled - by me. Although many other cancer patients have blazed the trail, the prospect of yours truly blazing the next trail (line) scares me, hopefully not to death.

It might not be so bad - and extremely personal, if my best friend's wife hadn't succumbed to her lung cancer within a year or so after being prescribed one of the drugs that my oncologist and I have discussed if my next scan continues to show tumor growth.

I get so emotional at the mere mention of the drug that I can't even pronounce it through my tears. So my oncologist knows my preference and he's content to respect my wishes especially considering that according to his experiences, the drugs are fairly similar in their effect/success.

And since mind definitely matters, keeping me in a positive frame of mind is the goal. But I'm getting way ahead of myself here; it's only November. This discussion won't occur for almost nine weeks, Jan. 11, 2019.

The only problem is, the next nine weeks present challenges unlike any similar period during the year. Throw in a few lab tests, a couple of chemotherapy infusions, a diagnostic scan and a few weeks to wait for all of it to shake out and what you're left with is your life hanging in the balance and death rearing its ugly head.

"Cancer sucks" - especially during the holidays.
