Fairfax City to Celebrate Small Business Saturday

Come play a Monopoly-type game for cash prizes.

BY BONNIE HOBBS
THE CONNECTION

Small Business Saturday is a national tradition that marks the beginning of the holiday season. And in Fairfax City, Small Business Saturday will take place on both Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 24-25, celebrating the small and independent businesses that call Fairfax City home.

"Small businesses are the economic engines of our communities," said Fairfax Mayor David Meyer. "When small businesses thrive, our City thrives. I encourage all Fairfax City residents to shop locally to increase the awareness of the impact small businesses have in our City and the nation."

This year, shoppers may add to their fun by playing Fairfax City-opoly, a Monopoly-inspired game encouraging them to shop local. When customers purchase items from participating businesses, clerks will stamp their game board.

Once they've obtained stamps from five businesses, they'll be able to vie for a chance to win a $600 cash prize and a $100 gift card to Twins Ace Hardware in Fairfax. People may also visit 10 of the participating businesses to be eligible for a $300 cash prize.

Once their board game is stamped to signify either purchases from five stores or visits to 10 stores, they may submit it to the Fairfax City Office of Economic Development at 10455 Armstrong St., No. 316, Fairfax, VA, 22030 or email it to EconomicDevelopment@fairfaxva.gov by Friday, Nov.30.

WINNERS will be announced Monday, Dec. 3 on FairfaxCityConnected.com and the Economic Development Authority's Facebook page at www.facebook.com/FairfaxCityEDA/.

Shoppers are also encouraged to visit the City's Welcome Station on Saturday, Nov. 24, from 9:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m., at Old Town Square, 10415 North St. Festivities there will be marked by the Economic Development Authority's (EDA) tent. People may pick up this year's Shop Small tote and Fairfax City-opoly game board, enjoy local treats, take pictures in the photo booth and, while supplies last, receive a $5 voucher to Fairfax City businesses.

"Small-business owners are reflective of the American spirit," said Economic Development Director Chris Bruno. "They're innovative, determined and hardworking. Small Business Saturday is an opportunity to support the small businesses that are the backbone to our economy. It also allows us to reaffirm our commitment to supporting business owners and their entrepreneurial spirit."

"We're proud Fairfax City is a Small Businesses Saturday neighborhood champion and is able to showcase the diversity, innovation and talent within our City," he continued. "We hope our Fairfax City-opoly game encourages residents to get out and visit the businesses that reinforce our local community."

Fairfax's Office of Economic Development, EDA and the Central Fairfax Chamber of Commerce partnered to organize this event. "Whether on Main Street or online, small businesses are vital to our City, and we're proud to be part of this program," said Chamber of Commerce Chairman Doug

Church. "We encourage everyone to support local businesses and connect with the City."

PARTICIPATING BUSINESSES include: Aloha Mind Math, Alpine Ski Shop, Baby Blossom, Cameron's Chocolates, Cinema Arts Theatre, DIY Scent Studio, Epiphany Pilates, Games and Comics Pair O'Dice, Ground Gaia, Joy Unlimited,

Mara Hair and Mode Studio, Mobius Records, Nail Bar, Pacers, Paint Your Own Pottery, Spokes, The Standard Barbershop, The Wine House, Twins Ace Hardware, Weber's Pet Supermarket and Yoga Works.

"When you shop small and local, you're supporting our City and its unique neighborhoods," said Mike McCarthy, Fairfax's Communications and Marketing director. "Shopping local directly contributes to the health and strength of Fairfax City."

'A Message of Hope, Imagination and Friendship'

CFTC presents 'The Little Princess.'

BY BONNIE HOBBS
THE CONNECTION

Featuring a cast and crew of 20 in a classic tale that's been both a book and a movie, the City of Fairfax Theatre Co. presents "The Little Princess." And people may either attend just the show or have a meal, as well, during two, dinner-theater performances. (See the "To Go" box for details).

The story's about Sarah Crewe, a young girl who's been living with her wealthy father in India and is sent to England for a proper education while he's away at sea.

"She has a wonderful imagination, and the other girls at the boarding school love her for brightening their lives," said Co-Producer Jessica Russo. "But the headmistress is not a kind woman. And when Sarah's father dies, she punishes Sarah by making her live in the attic and be a servant to her friends."

To Go

Friday, Nov. 30: Doors open at 6:30 p.m.; buffet dinner and show are at 7 p.m.;
Saturday, Dec. 1: Matinee at 2 p.m., and dinner and show at 7 p.m.;
Sunday, Dec. 2: Matinee at 2 p.m.
Truro Anglican Church, 10520 Main Street, Fairfax.
Tickets for matinee and evening performances only (without dinner) are adults, $15, and students, $10, and may be purchased at the door or online via www.fairfaxcitytheatre.org. Dinner-theater tickets are $35 and must be purchased online in advance.

Russo said rehearsals are going smoothly, and she has a "great cast of girls, ages 8-17, plus a few adults. The older kids have taken the younger ones under their wing, and they all get along well. The scenes take place at the school and in Sarah's imagination, and we have an extensive set that's really magical. And the early 1900s school uniforms the girls wear are adorable.

"Our director, Jessica Dubish, has created a wonderful atmosphere of play and creativity for the kids," continued Russo. "The audience will like our talented, young actors – there's an energy from them that will make people smile. This show will get people in the mood for the holiday season and will present a message of hope, imagination and friendship."

PORTRAYING SARAH is seventh-grader Alyssa Kiffer. "At the beginning, she has everything, but isn't snobby," said Alyssa. "She's kind and generous to others. Then when she loses everything, she starts to lose hope in herself. But her friends help her gain confidence again. And she helps others worse off than herself and becomes generous again."

Alyssa said Sarah is always imagining things. "When something isn't going well for her, she pretends it's different, and she helps others pretend, too, to cheer them up," said Alyssa. "It's a fun role to

Life Lessons in Word and Song

Fairfax High presents '25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee.'

BY BONNIE HOBBS
THE CONNECTION

Two things to know about Fairfax High's upcoming play: It's a musical comedy, and the audience will be seated onstage for an up-close and intimate experience. So those wanting to attend should get their tickets quickly because seating is limited. (See the "To Go" box for details).

The story is about a group of students, ages 10-14, competing in their Midwest county's spelling bee for a chance to go to nationals. And when each character steps to the mic to spell, the audience learns about their lives, hopes, struggles and fantasies.

The show also has an improv element. Every night, four people will be picked from the audience to join the spellers onstage and actually compete until they spell a word wrong. The action takes place in a school gym, and there are no set or costume changes.

"The kids will be on bleachers, and the adults [in charge] will be sitting at a table," said Co-Director Jess Pullis. "People will come in and out of a honeycomb-shaped framework to carry out the 'bee' theme. And they have to perform onstage, the entire time, until they're eliminated for misspelling a word."

Pullis, an English teacher who studied theater in college, started the play's choreography and blocking. Then Co-Director Erich DiCenzo added to it and, said Pullis, "We've been truly working as a team."

She said attendees will enjoy themselves because the storyline is "hilarious, and it's different every night because the different audience members change the show and its energy. It also moves along quickly and is fun to watch because there's so much happening onstage. It's also short – just 90 minutes – and most of the character development is done through song.

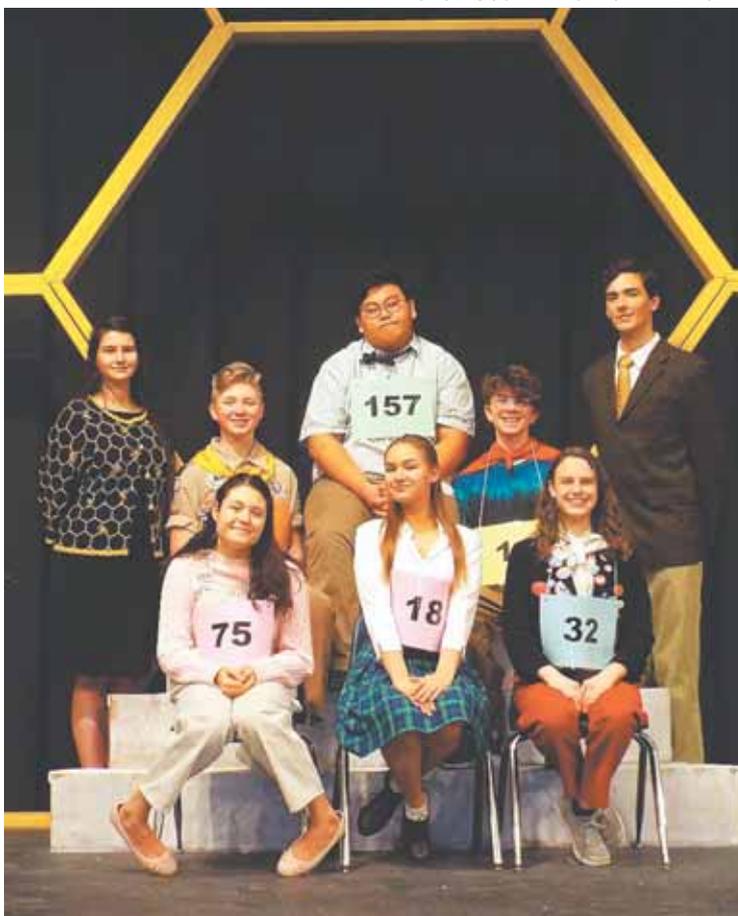

THE CAST AND CREW of 35 has been rehearsing since the beginning of the school year, and Pullis is proud of her talented actors. "This cast is phenomenal," she said. "Most are freshmen and sophomore – we were blown away by the young talent that came into this program and wanted to feature them right away. We're very excited about this production."

Freshman Sarah Zakreski portrays Logainne Schwartzandgrubenierre. "She's a 10-year-old girl and the daughter of two, gay dads," said Zakreski. "She loves politics and has strong opinions about everything. She also has a lisp, but is friendly and really wants to win the spelling bee because she always strives to make her dads proud."

Zakreski enjoys playing her because, she said, "A little of her personality is in me. And she's a fun character because she interacts with everyone. My favorite number is 'Woe is Me,' which I sing. Logainne is singing about things that are sad, but she makes the song happy and upbeat by the way she sings it. The audience will like that this show is interactive and fun. They'll also feel connected to one of the characters and will end up cheering for them."

Playing Leaf Coneybear is junior Seth Strong. "Leaf is a 12-year-old boy with severe ADD," said Strong. "His parents are former hippies, so that affects his personality and character. His outfits are homemade, and he's pretty laid back and chill. He's kind of bullied by his family because they don't think he's smart; and because he's homeschooled, he doesn't get out much and

To Go

Show times are Thursday, Friday, Saturday, Nov. 29-30 and Dec. 1, at 7 p.m.; and Sunday, Dec. 2, at 2 p.m. Tickets are $10 at the door or via www.fxplayers.org. Online purchases are advised because seating will be limited to the stage only.

doesn't have any friends. He was third in his district's spelling bee and is now in the county bee."

Strong likes playing Leaf because "He plays with his hair and doesn't pick up on everything. But he's so kid-like and has such a refreshing innocence to him that he's different from other characters. He's really simple."

Strong's especially likes the song, "I'm Not that Smart." He sings it and says it "deepens Leaf's character and makes him more lovable because, when you learn more about him, you feel bad for him." However, he added, "All the characters are so diverse and different that, instantly, people will have a favorite and will root for that person to win the bee. But it's not obvious who's going to win, so the audience will be on the edge of their seats, rooting."

Sophomore Brendan Smith portrays Vice Principal Douglas Panch. "He's constantly irritated," said Smith. "He was called in, at the last minute, as a word-pronouncer, so he has very little dedication to the actual bee. He gets madder and more annoyed, as time goes on. And he despises certain spellers because all their quirks annoy him to his breaking point."

Smith called Panch "probably the most fun character I've ever played because he has lots of good one-liners. His humor is really dry; he's more sarcastic than hilarious."

SMITH'S FAVORITE SONG is "The I Love You Song," sung by a speller named Olive and her parents. "It's really sweet and heartfelt and shows how proud they are of her," he explained. He said show attendees will be surprised by the audience participants, and "They'll enjoy learning about the spellers and will get really attached to the characters."

Playing Chip Tolentino, an 11-year-old Boy Scout who won the previous year's spelling bee, is sophomore John Jennings. "He's bright and energetic, a Little League pitcher and an all-American boy," said Jennings. "He's also very innocent, but he lacks patience. I love playing him because I was also a boisterous and energetic young guy. I connect with him because I played baseball until I was 14 and I was a Cub Scout. I'm also happy and upbeat, so I can portray it through him."

Jennings especially likes the number "Pandemonium." In it, he explained, "Chip and the other spellers are upset about how unfair the spelling bee seems to be. Some people are getting easier words than others. And I get to jump up on a table and belt out my part of the song."

He said the audience will love the play's comedy, inclusiveness, set, costumes and storyline. The message, said Jennings, is "Don't take anything for granted because you never know what life's going to throw at you."

OPINION

Give Locally

For tens of thousands of poor children and families in our area, uncertainty and need are distant from the celebrations and plenty that so many of us associate with this holiday period.

The holidays are about giving, and giving thanks. The holidays are about children and family. The holidays are about sharing, about joy. The holidays are about being thankful and about faith and appreciation. The holidays are about alleviating suffering for others.

Northern Virginia is among the wealthiest areas in the country. Many if not most of us go through our daily and seasonal routines without encountering evidence of the needy families among us.

EDITORIAL

In Fairfax County Public Schools, more than 54,000 students (29 percent) are poor enough to receive subsidized meals.

Many are children living in families who may be on the brink of homelessness, families who must choose between medical bills, car repair, heat and food. Some of these are children who may not be sure that they will have a meal between the meals they get in school.

School holidays can bring uncertainty and hunger, a far cry from the celebrations, gifts and plenty that we associate with Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Hundreds of homeless students attend the public schools, and their needs are greater.

Many nonprofits in the county need your help to provide a holiday meal for Thanksgiving or Christmas, to provide children with gifts.

There are literally hundreds, probably thousands, of ways to give locally this season. Here are a few ideas. We will rerun this list again after Thanksgiving, so please let us know what we have missed.

Thoughtful and Delightful Piece of Americana and Fairfax History

To the Editor:

State Senator Chap Petersen's article "Yes, America, Religious Freedom Began in Fairfax County" (Connection, October 18-24, 2018) was a thoughtful and delightful piece of Americana and Fairfax history. One example among many of not only Virginia's but also Fairfax's contributions to the founding and formation of the United States.

It was however the little known Flushing Remonstrance, a 1657 petition written by the town clerk of Flushing (borough and county of Queens, N.Y.), Edward Hart, to the Director-General of New Netherland (current day New York City), Peter Stuyvesant, that some consider to be a precursor to the U.S. Constitution's provision of freedom of religion in the Bill of Rights.

Written to protect the Quakers from an anti-Quaker ordinance, the Flushing Remonstrance remarkably also extended to non-Christians making it more inclusive at the time to include the two contemporary documents often noted in the history of American religious freedom – the 1649 Maryland Toleration Act and the 1663 Rhode Island Royal Charter that restricted theirs to Christians only. More extraordinary is that the petition was written and supported (by 30 signatories) not by the persecuted, but by those who wanted to help and support them.

The Flushing Remonstrance predates the Fairfax (County) Resolves by over one hundred years crediting the town of Flushing with being the location of one of the first debates over religious conscience and tolerance in the American colonies.

Christian Yost gave the Woodson football team a two-score cushion with a pick-6 earlier in the fourth quarter.

Later, with South County trying to engineer a comeback, the senior linebacker finished the job.

Yost, the Patriot District Defensive Player of the Year, stepped in front of a South County crossing route to snag his second interception of the day and secure a 20-10 Cavalier victory on Nov. 17 in the Region 6C semifinals at Woodson High School.

The victory improved Woodson's record to 11-1. The top-seed Cavaliers will host No. 2 seed Freedom (Woodbridge) in the region final at 7 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 24.

It will be Woodson's first appearance in a region championship game since 2009.

"We're a very senior-heavy team," Yost said. "We use the feeling that no one wants this to be their last game. Since we have so many seniors, that feeling compiles and we feed off it."

Nothing about Yost's youthful face or 5-foot-8, 155-pound frame says, "star football player."

"Then, when he plays the game [and] the lights come on," Woodson defensive coordinator Mel Morgan said, "you're like, 'wow.'"

YOST is the leader of a Woodson defense that isn't loaded with Division I athletes, yet through 12 games is holding opponents to fewer than 10 points per contest.

"I tell my kids all the time, we don't need to have the D-I athletes," said second-year Woodson head coach Jared Van Acker, who previously coached at Battlefield, "we just need to play together as a team — one heartbeat, do it together, love your brother and fight for your brother."

On Saturday afternoon, the Cavalier defense kept South County out of the end zone, limiting the Stallions to a 22-yard field goal early in the fourth quarter.

South County's lone touchdown came via defense in the first quarter, when linebacker Brian Dumbuya intercepted a pass tipped by lineman Haris Khan and returned it three yards for a 7-0 Stallions lead.

With Woodson leading 14-10 and less than 8 minutes remaining in the fourth quarter, and South County facing third-and-long deep in its own territory, Yost intercepted a pass and returned it 19 yards to give the Cavaliers a two-score advantage.

"He doesn't look like much, but he's a ball player," Van Acker said about Yost. "He's a three-sport star: football, basketball, lacrosse."

What Yost lacks in size he makes up for in other areas.

"He's smart, he's resilient," Morgan said. "He gets blocked, he fights through it, he finds the crevices, he makes tackles, he makes picks, he's a vocal leader. The only thing that is not on the list is 6-foot, 200-something."

Woodson forced five turnovers, including four interceptions. Senior defensive back Ryan Mamere and junior defensive back Noah Roah each had an interception for the Cavaliers.

"We take a lot of pride in our defense," said senior defensive back/running back

"They want to leave their legacy as the greatest team in Woodson history and we're one game away."

— Woodson head coach Jared Van Acker

Isaiah Barnes. "We see it as an insult to let people score on us. Other people try to doubt our defense. As the game goes on, it just hypes us even more as they don't score."

While the Woodson defense played well throughout the contest, the Cavalier offense and special teams struggled early. In the first half, Woodson special teams missed two field goals and muffed a punt for a turnover. Sophomore quarterback Joe Pesansky threw a pair of interceptions, including one that was returned for a touchdown.

Late in the first half, Woodson started a drive on the South County 26-yard line, thanks to a Stallions penalty during a punt. Five plays later, senior quarterback Jack Fisher converted a sneak on fourth-and-goal from inside the 1-yard line, tying the score at 7-7 with 1:13 left in the second quarter.

On the opening possession of the second half, South County decided to go for it on fourth-and-inches from its own 39, but the Woodson defense came up with a huge stop, swarming the Stallion ball carrier in the backfield.

Woodson then marched 37 yards in eight plays, taking the lead for good when Barnes took a direct snap and scored on a 2-yard run with 6:46 remaining in the third quarter.

"We never put our heads down because that was last year's Woodson," Barnes said. "That is our motto: we never give up. It is always push on. We never put our heads down."

Trailing 14-7 late in the third quarter, South County embarked on a 14-play, 86-yard drive but failed to score a touchdown. The Stallions faced 2nd-and-5 at the 6-yard line, but the Woodson defense stopped Tyler Johnson for a 1-yard gain on second down forced an incomplete pass on third down, leading to a 22-yard field goal for South County.

"The old saying is defense wins championships," Van Acker said, "offense determines by how much."

VAN ACKER took over as Woodson head coach prior to the 2017 season, when Mike Dougherty left the Cavaliers to take over as head coach at Lake Braddock. Woodson lost several close games in 2017 and finished with a 4-6 record.

This year, the Cavaliers' lone loss was an 18-12 defeat against Lake Braddock on Oct. 12. Woodson, Lake Braddock and South County finished in a three-way tie for the Patriot District championship.

"We were, basically, [three] games away from being 7-3 last year and having a winning season," Van Acker said. "A couple things went wrong for us — we lost [multiple] games in the last two minutes of the game. ... Most of the guys are seniors that are returning. They went through that season and they believed in the process. They worked all offseason. What we are going through right now is not by chance or by luck."

Morgan, who spent nearly two decades as a Lake Braddock assistant before joining the Woodson staff, has played a key role in the Cavalier turnaround as defensive coordinator.

"He's everything," Yost said. "He's the brains behind the operation. Great DB coach, great D-line coach, everything. He's been around football for a long time and you can really tell when he talks."

Next up for Woodson is the region championship game against a Freedom team that is 11-1 and defeated Hayfield, 29-19, in the region semifinals.

The Cavaliers are in search of their first region title since 2004.

"They want to leave their mark," Van Acker said. "They want to leave their legacy as the greatest team in Woodson history and we're one game away from it."

Teaching Gratitude, Giving

Child development experts share suggestions for helping children develop a sense of altruism.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL

When teaching their three young children about gratitude and benevolence, Marcus Rosano and his wife Laura began with what they consider the basics: treating others with kindness.

“After leaving a sports practice, we tell them to go back and say, ‘goodbye’ and ‘thank-you’ to their coach,” he said. “My wife and I have focused on the way we treat others. Part of kindness is understanding that there are people in our community who can’t afford presents at Christmas and who aren’t going to have a Thanksgiving turkey with all the trimmings.”

The Rosanos’ method of instruction is an effective one, according to researchers who say that parents are their children’s most influential teachers. “The best thing a parent can do to promote altruistic behavior is to model the behavior themselves,” said Jessica McLaughlin, Ph.D., assistant professor of psychology at Montgomery College. “Kids imitate their parents and they are more likely to engage in altruistic behavior if we show them how to treat others with kindness and empathy.”

Parents can choose to partake in simple, random acts of kindness, while they are with their children, added Joanne Bagshaw, Ph.D., professor of psychology at Montgomery College. “For example, paying for someone in line behind you in the grocery store, or helping an elderly person carry their grocery bags to the car, or helping a neighbor shovel snow or clear ice from their walkway.”

Use that opportunity to initiate a dialogue, continued Bagshaw. “Then afterwards, talk with your child about how it made you feel to help someone else. Through that discussion, brainstorm with your child how it might have made the person you helped feel. [This will] help develop empathy in your child.”

“I would suggest that parents discuss with kids what circumstances other kids and families may be in over the holidays and how it may differ from their own,” said child psychologist Stacie Isenberg, Psy.D., “For example, there are families who have limited food and those who rely on shelters. They could also discuss ways to acknowledge and express gratitude for specific things they have, from food to heat to their personal belongings, like saying something from their day that they are grateful for; not just at Thanksgiving dinner, but every day at dinner or before bed.”

It is important that parents tailor their dialogue and lessons on gratitude and altruism to a child’s age and level of development, advises Linda Guly, Ph.D., professor of psychology at Marymount University.

Lesson on gratitude and giving during the holidays should be age-appropriate say psychologists.

“Preschool-aged kids need to see the immediate and tangible effects of helping and giving to others,” she said. “For example, ‘See how much grandpa likes it when you help him carry the holiday decorations?’ Or ‘Because you shared your train tracks, now [your playmate] can get his train over the hill.’ “

School-aged children learn best by seeing the social benefits and being part of group activities associated with giving and helping, suggests Guly. “[This is] because peers and people outside immediate family are more interesting to them,” she said. “For example the Girl Scout troop helped the elderly people decorate the senior living rec center.”

Teenaged children, on the other hand, are idealistic and interested in social justice issues, says Guly. “They care about pop culture, too.” said said. “My teens enjoyed shopping for holiday gifts for other kids who were socioeconomically disadvantaged. They bought sports team gear for fellow teen boys. “

Identify issues that are important to a child and provide opportunities for them practice altruism around those topics, suggests Carolyn Cass Lorente, Ph.D., professor of psychology at Northern Virginia Community College. “For instance if your child is interested in animals you might help them collect old towels and blankets in the neighborhood to take to a shelter,” she said. “This helps build a sense of agency and responsibility and shows them that we each can make a difference.”

“During the holidays, parents should share their family histories and traditions and note their good fortune in living today with many daily comforts and conveniences that their grandparents did not have,” said Short, Ph.D., professor of psychology at George Mason University. “Gift giving encourages empathy and perspective-taking to consider what others might like and it brings people closer together.”

“The best thing a parent can do to promote altruistic behavior is to model the behavior themselves.”

— Jessica McLaughlin, Ph.D., assistant professor of psychology, Montgomery College

Where and When

Internationally acclaimed, Soweto Gospel Choir from South Africa will be visiting Northern Virginia's Center for the Arts, performing joyous Gospel music, inspirational songs in honor of Nelson Mandela's 100th birthday as well as sharing beautiful gospel and popular Holiday Season favorites.

Touring the Globe for nearly two decades, Soweto Gospel Choir has won multiple Grammy Awards and an EMMY. Comprising about 20 singers, The Choir has performed with some of the biggest names in music such as Aretha Franklin, Pharrell Williams, Stevie Wonder, Celine Dion, Josh Groban, and U2 to name a few.

"It has been a blessing working with the people of such caliber because it taught us to embrace our uniqueness. It humbles us that we are ranked on the same platform as them," said Soweto Gospel Choir member Mulalo Mulovhedzi

"We love touring because we are showcasing the diversity of faiths and cultures from South Africa and also to interact with the world through music," said Mulovhedzi

Mulovhedzi indicated that in the first half of the performance, Center for the Arts patrons will hear "Songs of the Free," a rousing program celebrating the 100th birthday of Nelson Mandela.

"The first half of the show consists of songs of hope, unity and peace which were sung by our freedom fighters during protests against the apartheid regime." Through the performance the audience can learn about the South African history of Apartheid.

Soweto Gospel Choir performing "Songs of the Free" at Center for the Arts, George Mason University, 4400 University Drive, Fairfax. Performance: Sunday, Dec. 2, 2018 at 2 p.m. Tickets: $30, $43 and $50. Visit www.cfa.gmu.edu or call: 888-945-2468. Note: Pre-performance discussion with member of the Choir begins 45 minutes prior the performance time.

The second half of the show is "a celebration of life that we now have as a country." Popular Holiday Season songs such as "Silent Night" and Leonard Cohen's "Hallelujah" are expected to be performed.

"Gospel music and many of the songs we sing in our show we were taught by our grandparents; they very are close to our hearts. As you know music has a universal language and it speaks directly to the heart and the soul. We use it as a vehicle of good news through song and dance," added Mulovhedzi.

Soweto Gospel Choir was formed to celebrate the inspirational power of African Gospel music, dance, drumming and narration. Filling the patron's eyes with vibrant costumes and their hearts with dazzling vocals and uplifting songs, Soweto Gospel Choir will be 90 minutes of musical joy.

The performance by the Soweto Gospel Choir at the Center for the Arts is dedicated to sharing the joy of faith through spirited music.

Burke Resident Promotes 'Functional Riding'

Jorge Torrico, a dedicated cyclist from Burke, rides a Brompton folding bike from England. He believes in "functional riding," that is not just for leisure riding, but also to the store or other destinations that would normally require a car. Health, pollution and congestion on the roads are reasons he rides, and loves the versatility the folding bike provides. "I use it every day to commute from Burke to D.C.," he said.

play because she's friends with the other girls and connects with them. She's also a role model for me because everyone wants to be a person who always has a positive attitude toward others, no matter what."

She said it's challenging sometimes because she had to learn so many lines. "But it's also fun because, as the lead, you get to create character choices to show how your character changes over time," she explained. "You also get to illustrate the moral of the story – if you keep moving forward and have a positive outlook, your life may become better."

Calling the show both sad and funny, Alyssa said, "The audience will sometimes be on the edge of their seats, wondering what's going to happen and how things will turn out. And through our set and costumes, we're transforming the stage into different places to make people feel like they're in the early 1900s."

Greenbriar resident Brandon Moon plays Capt. Crewe, Sarah's father. "He's a widower who encourages imagination and creativity in his daughter," said Moon. "He's also adventurous, himself, and isn't afraid to throw all his money into a diamond-mine venture. But he's a good guy and the quintessential dad."

Excited to be part of this theater company, Moon said, "I like working with Alyssa and the other girls. It's my first role ever, so I get to explore a different side of myself. The play is about a girl and her father, and to be a part of that with my own daughter – [Gigi, portraying one of the schoolgirls] – is really special. My character is beloved, so it's nice to have people look at me with stars in their eyes. And it's fun to wear a uniform."

Moon said the audience will enjoy the play because "It's such a good message for girls coming of age. It's the idea that every girl is a little princess and has special things about her that need to be encouraged. Parents should definitely bring their children to this show."

HIS REAL-LIFE DAUGHTER, Gigi, a fourth-grader, plays Becky, a servant girl who becomes Sarah's friend. "Becky is terrified of the headmistress, Miss Minchin, who's really mean," said Gigi. "She tries to mind her own business, but she sometimes gets caught up in things and starts talking when she's not supposed to. She's friendly, obedient and nice and doesn't want to get in trouble."

Gigi likes her role because, she said, "I have this really cool British accent. I also like my costume – a boy's shirt with a plaid jumper over it. And it's fun because Becky's not supposed to talk to the other girls; but when Miss Minchin is out of the room, Becky gives huge speeches."

As for the show, Gigi said people will like all the characters' attitudes and how the girls react to Minchin. "They'll also enjoy the scenes that are really touching," she said. "And the set is so detailed – they did such a good job painting it."

Portraying Donald is Laurel Ridge Elementary sixth-grader Henry Counts. "When Sarah leaves the boarding school for a day, she meets a large family passing by on the street," he said. "And she and Donald, one of the children, become friends."

Describing Donald as awkward, Henry said he also "has no filters – he says whatever's on his mind. But he's goodhearted and wants to help Sarah. I like playing him because it's fun to be awkward onstage. And Donald gets excited a lot, so I get to be very animated."

Overall, said Henry, "It's a good story and the costumes are pretty and colorful. And the message is that it's OK to pretend sometimes."

Indeed, A Festivus Miracle

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

For those readers still following me after reading last week's column: "Airing of a Grievance," when I moaned and groaned about my anxiety and fear concerning the impact of my possibly having to delay the first of my three holiday-season infusions due to unacceptable lab results, let me real-time you: chemotherapy went ahead Friday, Nov. 16, as regularly scheduled.

Now, there will be no need to drive back from Pennsylvania to Maryland on the Friday after Thanksgiving – after arriving there the preceding afternoon, only to have to drive back to Pennsylvania Friday after my morning infusion, in order to resume our holiday weekend; and then drive back home again on Sunday during one of the busiest driving weekends of the year.

Given that there's no delay, this means I'll be sitting down for Thanksgiving dinner on Thursday afternoon. Unfortunately, the eating side effects typical of my treatment will have not subsided as yet so enjoying my favorite meal of the year will be impaired. Still, given the alternatives discussed, no delay in treatment is an altogether better outcome. I will be able to enjoy leftover turkey sandwiches on Friday though.

And so, perhaps you can imagine the relief I felt when I called the Infusion Center on Friday morning, Nov. 16, to confirm my appointment.

It has happened previously when I've made this pre-appointment confirmation call, that I've been told not to come and to reschedule. Moreover, it has also happened – once, that after making this call, receiving approval to come in, driving 45 minutes, checking in at reception and then getting hooked up to an IV, that I was told after further review by my oncologist, that I had to go home.

Disappointing, as you can imagine, but had it happened last week, the Friday before Thanksgiving, as has been well-blathered about in two columns, it would have been particularly discouraging and extremely disheartening.

It really wasn't until 10:30 a.m., after my oncology nurse set up my IV and ordered my drug (alimta) that I had the nerve to ask if I was 100 percent getting my drugs today. Enthusiastically, Nora said: "Oh. You're getting your drugs today. I've checked everything."

After hearing her response, my eyes welled up with tears and I heaved a sigh of relief, the likes of which I've never heaved before.

In addition to writing about this scheduling 'heave,' I've been worried for a few months now based on the finding of my most recent CT scan during my last post-scan appointment with my oncologist on Oct. 5. This scan confirmed an enlarged tumor under my Adam's Apple.

This every-three-week infusion schedule was implemented specifically to determine if this new growth was old growth recently impeded or new growth indicating my treatment has stopped working. If my treatment has stopped working, and I believe I have written about it previously, I might not be living the life going forward that I want to.

And so, when Nora confirmed my infusion mid morning on Friday, the pent-up emotion, the worry, the fear, the holiday hassle all faded away and I began to breathe more normally and easily as I had in six weeks or so anticipating this day. At least the first hurdle has been passed.

My next scheduled infusion is Dec. 7. Three weeks later is another infusion on Dec. 28. Followed up by a CT scan on Jan. 2, 2019. I would love to receive both infusions before that next scan to maximize the medicine I will be receiving.

Certainly there will be anxiety and fear worrying about those results, but absent the holiday season, I think I can manage it. More of a mindset than a miracle at that point.
