Holiday Stroll Brings Magic to Church Street

BY LISA FAY
THE CONNECTION

The Church Street Holiday Stroll is like a Hallmark movie come to life: the mayor welcomes the big red jolly man who rides on a 1946 firetruck, carolers sing as you roast s'mores and sip hot cider. Animals stand at attention in their petting zoo, local goods are sold in decorated stores, instruments ring out holiday tunes, and Santa hears the hopes and dreams of hundreds of children who come to sit on his lap on the Freeman Store's porch.

The 22nd annual Church Street Holiday Stroll kicked off as Mayor Laurie DiRocco counted down with Santa to light the town's Christmas tree that sits in front of Vienna Presbyterian Church. Children eagerly await the arrival of Santa so that they could whisper in his ear what they wished for most this Christmas while enjoying a candy cane.

"This is typical Vienna," said Mike Cheselka, Master of Ceremonies for the past five years. "Everybody is here, it's like a gathering of friends and family to me, it really is cool. I think it's one of the many wonderful things the Town of Vienna does for the citizens."

Thanks to the Ayr Hill Garden Club and Historic Vienna Inc, the Freeman Store and Museum was decked from top to bottom and was brimming with new holiday items. Caroler groups such as the Vienna-Falls Chorus of Sweet Adelines lined Church Street singing Christmas tunes as shoppers enjoyed the festive stores.

Bards Alley took home first place this year as the best decorated storefront with its rendition of the Polar Express. Cycle Chi won for the most community interactive display. Caffè Amouri came in third, and Trousseau second. As the night went on, people enjoyed a petting zoo paid for by the Town and Historic Vienna Inc. Across the way Vienna Presbyterian Church opened its doors for residents to enjoy holiday songs and readings.

"Twenty-two years ago, due to restoration of the brick sidewalks, Church Street merchants were angry that they were losing business," states Historic Vienna Inc Vice President, Nancy Moats. "After it was done, Declan Corbin, 7, and Ryan Corbin, 4, of Wolf Trap Elementary, meet Santa on the Freeman Store's porch.

Brian, Debbie, and Amanda Choate of Vienna pose with the Polar Express outside of Bards Alley.

the people at Posh wanted to attract residents to this street so they had a carriage trot up and down Church Street allowing the residents to view the vendors."

More than two decades later, as the sights and sounds of the holiday's waft over the town, people are still strolling on Church Street enjoying the local shops and each other's company in preparation for the Christmas holiday.

The entire Moore family of Vienna poses with Santa.

Wolf Trap Elementary students, William Feuchter, Tommy and Bryson Beauer, and Xavier Dudley roast s'mores on Church Street.

Bringing People in from the Cold

This year 36 churches will be host sites for the hypothermia program.

BY JOE FAY
EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, FACETS

Fifteen years ago, two Fairfax men froze to death during the fall. At the time, FACETS was a nonprofit that was primarily serving meals to the county's homeless in partnership with several churches. FACETS' leaders knew that feeding people only to send them back into the extreme cold was not a great answer for the growing number of people who were homeless in the community.

That winter FACETS responded by offering temporary shelter in conjunction with its partner churches, the Lamb Center, and Salvation Army to get people in from the cold. The first year, these hypothermia shelters rotated to several different churches and only opened when the temperatures dropped below freezing. Soon the centers were serving up to 60 people on cold nights.

The program has evolved as the region's population has grown. In 2006, FACETS worked on policies and procedures with the county and formally began managing central Fairfax's Hypothermia Prevention and Response Program. This year 36 churches will be host sites for the program with more than 50 churches and other faith communities providing volunteers.

These faith community partners rotate when opening their doors to provide shelter. In anticipation, churches and temples are preparing their facilities to welcome people in need during the cold months ahead — cleaning, getting supplies, and preparing the space. Other volunteers are planning menus. Unique partnerships have formed as a result of the program as Christians, Muslims, Jews, and more join together to help the homeless and in the process learn about each other.

The effort also matured beyond just providing safe haven. Guests now receive life-changing location. Home schoolers' contributions are welcomed.

To send flash drives containing artwork and typed, electronic submissions, mark them clearly by school and hometown and mail the flash drive to: Children's Connection (including Children's Gazette, Children's Almanac and Children's Centre View), 1606 King Street, Alexandria, VA 22314.

Please send all submissions by Monday, Dec. 3, 2018. The Children's Edition will publish the last week of 2018.

You can see last year's editions by visiting www.connectionnewspapers.com/PDFs/ and scroll down to Children's Edition.

Email submissions for the Children's Edition to the following editors:

For Burke, Clifton, Fairfax, Fairfax Station, Great Falls, Herndon, Lorton, McLean, Reston, or Springfield, email to Kemal Kurspahic at kemal@connectionnewspapers.com.

ing case management. By interacting with guests at the shelters, FACETS' case managers are able to address their needs in a very personal way by gaining their trust and connecting them with housing solutions and critical services. They also receive a variety of services from the county.

Last year 283 guests were given shelter from the biting cold. More than 3,800 people volunteered 33,000 hours last season to care for these guests who are homeless. By the end of season, 41 of these people had left homelessness behind and were housed.

This year's Hypothermia Response and Prevention Program began the Sunday of Thanksgiving weekend and runs seven nights a week through April 1. With the projected cold and forecasts of a very snowy winter season, demand is expected to grow.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Protecting Our Diversity

To the Editor:

I want to thank you for publishing the article about the Fairfax For All coalition's recent activities ("Advocating for Immigrant Protection").

As the daughter of two immigrants, immigration policy has always been important to me — especially as the debate over deportation and ICE has escalated. My parents were fortunate enough to be able to immigrate legally, and have been citizens for about 10 years, but in examining the data I've come to see that that's most likely to do with the fact that they are white and had college degrees. Our town is so beautifully diverse, and I believe that we're losing an important part of our culture when immigrants are scared to participate in the community for fear of deportation.

If what Fairfax For All says is true, then there is an entire group of people in our town who are being excluded from important decisions, prevented from seeking medical attention, and afraid to participate in the community — all out of fear. I'm learning just how important these relationships to the community, or social ties, are. They allow individuals a sense of purpose and help them to feel assimilated into this community that we like to profess as being so diverse.

Vienna Church to Host Annual Puppy Nativity Dec. 8

Area residents are invited to bring their puppies and dogs to take part in the Third Annual Puppy Nativity on Saturday, Dec. 8 at The Church of the Good Shepherd (United Methodist) in Vienna. The community event will be held at the church at 2351 Hunter Mill Road from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

“The original nativity had many animals around the manger, so bringing our pets is a wonderful way to celebrate the season,” said The Rev. Eric Song, who started the creative new tradition in 2016 in his first year as Good Shepherd’s pastor. “Animals are a big part of our families, and we want all to be included. So bring your pets to pose at our nativity.”

Costumes and treats will be provided for pets, and photos will be taken. “These photos make great Christmas cards, too,” Song said.

Hot chocolate will be served, and the church’s youth group will be on hand to accept donations to provide Christmas gift cards to families through Britepaths (<https://britepaths.org>), a nonprofit providing help and hope to struggling residents in the Fairfax County area. Additionally, the “Peace Like a River” exhibit of mixed media paintings by artist Alice Nodine will be open in The Gallery at the church.

Shopping Locally In Vienna

Small Business Saturday inspires decorating contest among Vienna stores.

Many local shops in Vienna celebrated Small Business Saturday by offering gift cards or discounts off their items and services. Stores in Vienna that participated included: Bards Alley, Elements Massage, Savvy Rest Natural Bedroom, Bikes @ Vienna, Aesthetic Medical Center, Colleen's Creations LLC, Foster's Grille, Generation Code, Potomac River Running, Pure Barre Vienna, Skintelligence, the Freeman Store and Museum, John Edwards Hair Design, Massage Envy, and Vienna Tech Help. As stores got ready for the busy shopping weekend, storekeepers began decorating their windows for the Vienna storefront decorating contest. Bards Alley participated by bringing the Polar Express to life right outside their store with classic Christmas reads hanging off of the structure. Karin's Florist set up fashion forward floral dresses that looked like they were ready for the Saks Fifth Avenue windows in New York City. The Freeman Store and Museum continued with their tradition of decorating the exterior of the store with real pine garland and homemade red bows. At Caffè Amouri, it looked like Santa and his elves stopped off for a cup of joe before heading back to the North Pole. The holiday spirit has certainly landed in Vienna and it reminds residents to shop local; shop Vienna. Small Business Saturday was created by American Express credit card company on Nov. 27, 2010. The idea behind the now annual holiday tradition was to help shape the way consumers shopped within their communities during the holiday season. Last year - 2017 - was the highest grossing year for Small Business Saturday: customers spent an estimated $12.9 billion in their communities.

WE'RE HAPPY TO WELCOME THE DOCTOR WHOSE RESEARCH HELPED STANDARDIZE SAFER EYE INJECTION TECHNIQUES
You'll be happy to know he's now seeing patients in your community

The Retina Group of Washington (RGW), the country's largest provider of retinal and macular care, has added yet another extraordinary physician to better serve the eye-related needs of people throughout Northern Virginia.

RGW is pleased to announce that Dr. Joshua D. Levinson has joined the practice and is seeing patients in the Fairfax and Alexandria offices. It was his research on improving the safety of intravitreal injections for Macular Degeneration, Retinal Vein Occlusions and complications from Diabetes that is credited with making more sterile techniques common practice at clinics throughout the country. Dr. Levinson cares for patients suffering from Diabetic Retinopathy and Age-Related Macular Degeneration, and performs surgical procedures for retinal detachments and macular holes among many other eye-related problems.

We hope our patients will have the opportunity to meet and be treated by Dr. Levinson sometime soon. They can be certain their eyes are in excellent hands.

Westfield Defeats Madison in Regional Final

BY WILL PALENSCAR

The Westfield Bulldogs (12-0) hosted and won the Virginia 6D Regional Final in Chantilly against Madison Warhawks (10-2) on Nov. 24. The two teams played earlier in the year in a conference matchup in which Westfield prevailed 17-15. Heavy rains and freezing temperatures would have an impact on the game.

After deferring the opening kickoff to Westfield, Westfield's Saadiq Hinton bobbled the opening kickoff, which was recovered by Madison deep inside Westfield territory. Moments later Brandon Walker rushed in for the game's opening points on a 22-yard run. After a successful extra point by David Loudon, Madison led 7-0.

In the second quarter both teams fought the adverse weather conditions and were unable to put any points on the board. Westfield did have a possession in the final minute of the half, but Westfield Coach Kyle Simmons elected to take a knee and regroup in the locker room for the second half.

Just prior to Westfield kicking off to Madison, Westfield's Joe Clancy shouted out to teammates on the sideline, "8 points wins this. Madison will not score this half."

Madison received the second half kick. Moments later during Westfield's next possession, Taylor Morin was inserted in the Wildcat formation, which seemed to ignite the Bulldogs, with Eugene Asante and Morin running the ball. But it was Asante, the defensive player of the year in the Concorde District, who burst towards the end zone before being stopped inside the 5-yard line. Asante would then rush in from 4 yards out, giving Westfield their first score with 9:50 to play in the third quarter. A successful extra point by Riley Nugent deadlocked the score at 7-

Madison's Brandon Walker #28 bursts by Ryan Moses #26 and the Westfield defense for an early Madison first quarter touchdown.

John Finney II #13 runs with ball in game against Westfield.

7. Later in the third quarter, Madison was able to stop a Bulldogs drive resulting in Westfield senior Riley Nugent's 21-yard field goal to give the Bulldogs a 10-7 advantage under deteriorating conditions.

Then in the fourth quarter, Asante again came up big running in from 1 yard out, essentially closing the door on any Madison late game heroics. Asante finished the game with 114 yards and two touchdowns on 17 carries. Riley Nugent was again successful on the extra point, giving Westfield a 17-7 victory.

Westfield improved to (13-0) and their 37th consecutive win. They advance to play in the state semifinal game on Dec. 1 at 1 p.m., against Freedom-Woodbridge (12-1), who were winners over WT Woodson (11-2). Madison's (10-3) effort came up just short.

Clancy was correct about holding Madison scoreless in the second half but may have underestimated his team would score 17 second half points.

Mow, Mow, Mow Your Grass ...

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

... Not gently by the stream, and not by yours truly, either. Yet another task that seems beyond this homeowner's ability.

Which is fine by me because the older I get, it seems the less capable I become, and the less inclined I am to risk life and limb in the pursuit of that which that doesn't make me happy. Throw in a lung cancer diagnosis and the last thing my re-wired (figuratively speaking) brain will allow me to do is anything which doesn't put a smile on my face and a bounce in my step. And avoiding yard work ranks up there with most household tasks that a typical able-bodied homeowner takes pride in doing him or herself.

It's not so much that I take pride in avoiding it, it's just that I know my limitations, unlike Hal Holbrook in "Magnum Force."

Sharp objects, mechanical objects and/or electrical/spinning/rotating objects, objects with multiple doohickies (or a reasonable facsimile thereof), objects which require assembly/reading instructions are all challenging for me. Moreover, none of it fascinates me in the least.

What fascinates me more is the level of interest and passion with which so many of my brethren are engaged in the process; from start to finish.

I just don't get it. Nor have I ever gotten it, and neither do I expect to get it in the future.

Perhaps this total lack of interest comes from the experience of being a life-long renter. Never during my pre-college daze was my family ever responsible for yard work, home repairs (inside or out), or had much of a need for tools, other than the most rudimentary: hammer, screwdriver, pliers, etc.

No power tools. Nothing electrical that required a plug/proximity to an outlet. No plumbing, and of course, nothing like a chainsaw.

My parents were children of the Depression and all they had time for was school, play and some work; yes, even as children. And living in tenement/multi-level housing hardly lent itself to anything but doing what was necessary to survive.

But as my parents so often said: everyone else they knew was experiencing similar hardships so they didn't really realize what they were missing. Tools? Repairs? Amenities? Conveniences? Hardly. Toilet paper was a Sears catalogue cut into squares and hung on a nail in the bathroom down the hall - outside of their apartment.

They didn't have money or time for any of it. What money they earned was for food, rent, utilities and clothes; the most basic of basics.

It is through these experiences that my parents passed on their instincts and priorities to the their two Baby Boomer-era sons. There was ample love, affection and importance of family but not so much time and/or energy for interior and exterior home repairs, yard work, tools and what to do with them/how to use them as well as a variety of other homeowner-type tasks.

As a family of renters, it was never our responsibility. I suppose that was a match made in Depression-era heaven because very little in our family's past prepared us for this new future.

When my father returned from his service in World War II (working in Washington, D.C., actually), he had, unlike Liam Neeson, no unique set of skills. He had to find some vocation/avocation that would provide for his family - which he did, as a salesman.

After living in Dorchester, Mass. for their entire lives (since their parents immigrated to America in the early 20th century), in 1958, my parents moved the family to Newton Centre, Mass. - for the schools. We spent the next 15 years as renters and other than taking out the trash and the rubbish, I did very little to hone my homeowner-type skills.

I wouldn't say I've been stigmatized by this experience, but I learned very little that became useful in the maintenance and upkeep of the 275-year-old home, my wife Dina and I have occupied for the past 25+ years. Other than knowing how to ask for help that is.

Oakton High Presents 'Taming of the Shrew'

BY C.J. GRECO
THE CONNECTION

Oakton High School's theater department finishes off its fall performance season this week with its production of Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew."

Having a robust group of young thespians, Oakton's Theatre Arts Director Vanessa Gelinis had to choose this year's productions carefully so as to use the student-capital as best they could. After some deliberation, "Peter and the Starcatcher" (performed earlier this month) and "Taming of the Shrew" were chosen.

A rather curious result of the show's casting constrictions: Oakton's production will be gender swapped. This turns what is possibly the play's most infamous and essential characteristic: its relationship dynamic, on its head.

"The show is known for being notoriously sexist," said student director senior Mena Dolinh. "It's about this man coming in and taming this woman who doesn't know how to act."

"And so," continued Dolinh, "the biggest thing was thinking about how we set it in a place where this makes sense, and, now that we flipped the genders, who is this character and what is this woman's role in the world now that she's a dominatrix."

Clearly, the show boasts some colorful themes. According to its cast though, this thematic foundation paves the way for hilarity.

"People don't realize how dirty Shakespeare gets until you really analyze it," said Dolinh.

"At the end of the show," said senior Joseph Perrault who plays Christiano, "I have a four-minute long monologue that's notorious as being one of the most sexist things."

IN THE ORIGINAL VERSION of the monologue, Perrault's (now female) character goes on a rant about how men provide for women, and because of that women have to be loyal and subservient to men.

"It's really sexist," said Perrault. In this, perhaps more refreshing, take on the story, the monologue honors women, and the domineering female lead Petruchia is personified by senior Alexa Schwartzman.

"I'm relatively passive," said Schwartzman, "and this character doesn't let him eat or sleep, and won't have sex with him, and just yells at him so much and goes crazy. It's a really interesting dynamic that we have to forge with each other."

"It's really funny because she's one of the nicest people ever," said Perrault of Schwartzman, "we're good friends, and now it's flipped and she's being so mean to me in the show and I have to be this small guy!"

In addition to its gender roles being swapped, the story's setting has also changed in this production.

Oakton senior Alexa Schwartzman puts a feminine spin on what is usually a domineering male role, much to the dismay of senior Joseph Perrault's character.

Seniors Emma Szczesniak and Mena Dolinh are co-directors for the show.

Now set in the 1980s instead of Victorian England, much of the script's context had to be altered.

"There's a scene where [Petruchia] makes an entrance to her own wedding completely late," said Dolinh, "And she's dressed like Madonna in her 'Like a Virgin' music video and has got this ripped up, very short, wedding dress."

"One of her servants," continued Dolinh, "comes in and is trying to describe how she is coming to this wedding, but since it was written in Shakespearean times it's like 'her britches, etc.' and none of that applies, so we had to completely change it to apply to what [Alexa] is actually going to be wearing."

While a rehearsal for "Peter and the Starcatcher" went on in the background, Dolinh, Schwartzman, and Perrault concluded their eager descriptions of the show to come, one in which true creative passion from young minds will be surely on display. In addition to these three, Emma Szczesniak will be co-directing, and Vivian Lemons and Liam Bloom will round out the cast's lead.

OAKTON'S "The Taming of the Shrew" will be showing at 7 p.m. at Oakton High School on Nov. 29 and 30 and Dec. 1. Tickets can be found at taming.oaktondrama.org.
