Winter Wonderland at Burke Lake Park

More holiday fun in the park next weekend.

Several hundred people attended the fourth-annual Winter Wonderland held at Burke Lake Park last Sunday, Dec. 2, 2018. Activities included the Holiday Express train ride, a Carolers Carousel ride, Gingerbread Man Mini-Golf, visits and photos with Santa and Mrs. Clause, s'mores around a campfire, candle-making crafts and hot drinks. The event provides community outreach and a fun holiday event for the entire family at the park, according to Chris D'Anna, Parks Assistant Manager at Burke Lake Park.

The Winter Wonderland will be held again next weekend, Dec. 8-9. Activities run from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Six-hour passes are $15 in advance and $20 on event day.

The park is also hosting a Celebration Station on Dec. 7-8, which includes a train ride through a forest decorated with holiday-themed lights and a spin on the Carolers Carousel from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $10 each, and rides take place every 20 minutes. Celebration Station tickets provide visitors with one train ride, one carousel ride and one cocoa or cider drink.

Burke Lake Park is located at 7315 Ox Road, Fairfax Station. Call 703-323-6600 or visit www.fairfaxcounty.gov/parks/burke-lake.

OPINION

Give Locally

For tens of thousands of poor children and families in our area, uncertainty and need are distant from the celebrations and plenty that so many of us associate with this holiday period.

The holidays are about giving, and giving thanks. The holidays are about children and family. The holidays are about sharing, about joy. The holidays are about being thankful and about faith and appreciation. The holidays are about alleviating suffering for others.

Northern Virginia is among the wealthiest areas in the country. Many if not most of us go through our daily and seasonal routines without encountering evidence of the needy families among us.

EDITORIAL

In Fairfax County Public Schools, more than 54,000 students (29 percent) are poor enough to receive subsidized meals.

Many are children living in families who may be on the brink of homelessness, families who must choose between medical bills, car repair, heat and food. Some of these are children who may not be sure that they will have a meal between the meals they get in school.

School holidays can bring uncertainty and hunger, a far cry from the celebrations, gifts and plenty that we associate with Christmas and the holiday season.

Hundreds of homeless students attend the public schools, and their needs are greater.

Many nonprofits in the region need your help to provide holiday meals around Christmas, to provide children with gifts.

There are literally hundreds, probably thousands, of ways to give locally this season, for humans in need, for animals in need, for an environment in need. Here are a few ideas. Please let us know what we have missed.

WE'RE HAPPY TO WELCOME THE DOCTOR WHOSE RESEARCH HELPED STANDARDIZE SAFER EYE INJECTION TECHNIQUES

You'll be happy to know he's now seeing patients in your community

The Retina Group of Washington (RGW), the country's largest provider of retinal and macular care, has added yet another extraordinary physician to better serve the eye-related needs of people throughout Northern Virginia.

RGW is pleased to announce that Dr. Joshua D. Levinson has joined the practice and is seeing patients in the Fairfax and Alexandria offices. It was his research on improving the safety of intravitreal injections for Macular Degeneration, Retinal Vein Occlusions and complications from Diabetes that is credited with making more sterile techniques common practice at clinics throughout the country. Dr. Levinson cares for patients suffering from Diabetic Retinopathy and Age-Related Macular Degeneration, and performs surgical procedures for retinal detachments and macular holes among many other eye-related problems.

Cherished Holiday Tradition: 'The Nutcracker'

Singular collaboration of Fairfax Symphony Orchestra and Fairfax Ballet.

By DAVID SIEGEL
THE CONNECTION

The Fairfax Symphony Orchestra (FSO) and the Fairfax Ballet are combining their artistic forces to present the timeless family classic, Tchaikovsky's "The Nutcracker."

The production will be a musical and dance cornucopia of dancing snowflakes, sugar plum fairies and epic battles between heroic toy soldiers and mischievous mice, but also of a brave young girl who stands up to danger.

"Audiences will delight in The Fairfax Ballet's magical dance performance with original choreography as the Fairfax Symphony, under the direction Christopher Zimmerman, performs Tchaikovsky's captivating score," said Jonathan Kerr, Executive Director, Fairfax Symphony Orchestra.

"We're delighted and grateful that many people from across the region have made this a cherished tradition of their holiday season," added Kerr. "It's certainly rare as one of few 'Nutcracker' productions in the area where Tchaikovsky's beautiful music is performed live by our full orchestra, together with the wonderful dancers onstage. Combining this with high-definition, digital scenery creates a magical experience that is sure to be a highlight for the entire family."

Habits that Stick

Key to making changing old habits and making new ones.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL

Standing outside the glass doors of the studio, lit harshly by fluorescent bulbs, Annabelle VanLandingham admits that she is intimidated by a group of women standing in front of her — all model-thin and wearing cropped tank tops that reveal finely toned abs.

"I always feel like I don't fit it and everybody is staring at me, but this time, I'm really going to stick with it," she said, acknowledging her failed attempts to make regular exercise part of her daily life.

Vows to change habits are easy to make, but keeping them can seem nearly impossible. Commitments to cooking healthy weeknight dinners give way to the reality of packed schedules, while a morning meditation practice is overtaken by an inability to resist checking email right after getting out of bed. Local human behaviorists say that when it comes to creating habits, understanding how they develop is a first step.

"If you want develop a meditation practice to relieve stress at work, set an alert on your phone for a time that know you'll definitely be free."

— Lauren Puglisi, LCSW

"Essentially, a habit is turning a new behavior into something that is done automatically," said Lauren Puglisi, LCSW. "For example, grabbing a cigarette after dinner or putting on your seatbelt when you get in the car are automatic. You don't have to talk yourself into doing those things, you do them without even thinking."

For those who want to make activities like exercising or meditating life-long habits, the key is to begin with realistic and attainable steps. "New habits are best formed in small, manageable increments," said Jessica McLaughlin, Ph.D. assistant professor of psychology at Montgomery College. "For instance, if you want to develop the habit of exercising, start by taking 10-minute walks instead of promising to exercise for an hour every day. It is easier to form habits if the changes are similar to what you are already doing, as opposed to something that drastically alters your current day-to-day schedule."

Develop a list specific actions to take, advises Puglisi. "For example, swapping out potato chips and a soda for hummus and whole wheat pita bread for an afternoon snack or taking a 30-minute walk three days each week can be attainable ways to get started," she said. "Otherwise, you might get overwhelmed and give up."

"Research supports that it can take approximately two months of daily repetition to develop a habit, but keep in mind that some habits aren't as easy to make automatic, and may require more time," added Joanne Bagshaw, Ph.D., professor of psychology at Montgomery College. "For instance, developing a habit of walking 15 minutes every day may take eight to 10 weeks to become an automatic behavior, but running five miles every day could take much longer."

"Plan on creating your daily walk or running habit with a friend, or coach, or group who will be a role model for self-control."

in its early stages," said Puglisi. "If you want develop a meditation practice to relieve stress at work, set an alert on your phone for a time that know you'll definitely be free," she said. "Set a realistic amount of time to spend meditating, and select a specific mediation. This will make it easy to do quickly and easily, so you'll have fewer excuses not to do it."

The company one keeps also plays a role in habit formation. "You're likely to boost your willpower if you choose to spend time with someone who has strong willpower," said Bagshaw. "Plan on creating your daily walk or running habit with a friend, or coach, or group who will be a role model for self-control."

Assess your progress regularly. "Self-monitoring adds to success," said psychologist Stacie Isenberg, Psy.D. "Writing down what you've eaten each day can help you stay honest with yourself. That said, be realistic with your time frames and don't cause yourself extra stress. If thinking about how you ate during the week on a Friday is less stressful than writing it every day, do that. But do choose a regular time to consider progress and impediments or you'll be at 2020 without your new habit."

"It helps to set up the environment to remind you to do the behavior and make it easy to follow through," said Jerome Short, Ph.D., associate professor of psychology at George Mason University. "For example, put vegetables and fruits on the first shelf you see when you open the refrigerator. You are more likely to eat what you see than what you do not see."

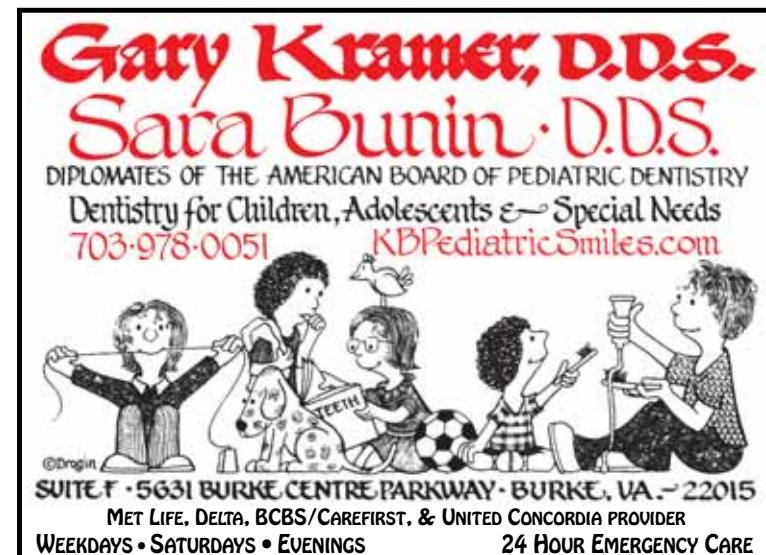

Don't forget rewards, says McLaughlin. "Change won't happen unless you are motivated to make the change," she said. "This means you have to find what is rewarding for you. You might find that what you are doing is intrinsically rewarding, such as increasing your energy levels or seeing your scale number go down. Other times, you might need to create your own reward, such as getting a manicure when you've gone a week without biting your nails."

West Potomac guard Daryl Mackey Jr., left, and Lake Braddock guard Quentin James combined to score 79 points during West Potomac's 94-84 victory on Monday.

Senior rivals combine for 79 points in early-season matchup.

BY JON ROETMAN
THE CONNECTION

West Potomac's Daryl Mackey Jr. and Lake Braddock's Quentin James stepped onto the basketball court Monday and talked about their families.

They spent the rest of the evening talking trash. The senior guards have been battling since they were freshmen on their respective varsity squads, back when West Potomac and Lake Braddock were conference rivals. Now that the teams are in different districts, they've been limited to one regular season matchup each of the last two seasons.

Monday's meeting might have been the final time Mackey and James compete against one another at the high school level.

They made the most of their opportunity.

JAMES scored 36 points and led the Bruins on a furious fourth-quarter comeback attempt, but Mackey bested his counterpart with a career-high 43 points while leading the Wolverines to a 94-84 victory on Dec. 4 at West Potomac High School's Wolverdome.

Mackey and James, each listed at 6 feet, are quite familiar with one another, having faced off six times in their high school careers. They also played on the same AAU team, Team Takeover, last season. James called the rivalry "friendly, but not so friendly," with the not-so-friendly half born from healthy competition between a pair of super scorers.

"It's not like we hate each other," James said. "We had to be teammates [in AAU]. We gained respect for each other over time."

MACKEY was a potent scoring threat from the beginning of his high school career, contributing significantly as an underclassman on teams that reached the state tournament during his freshman and sophomore seasons. As a junior, he was named Gunston District Player of the Year.

Mackey plans to play college basketball but has yet to commit to a school.

James was more of a facilitator as a freshman, playing on a Lake Braddock team led by 6-foot-8 post James Butler, who plays collegiately at Drexel, and standout guard Corey Pelham, who plays at Virginia Wesleyan. James became more of a scoring threat as he got older. Last season, he produced a career-best 42 points against Fairfax.

James, who was also a standout receiver and defensive back for the Lake Braddock football team, received his first college offer from the Davidson football program a few weeks ago. James is still weighing his college options.

On Monday, Mackey and James engaged in good-natured trash talk during stretches when they defended one another.

"We always went at each other, even in practice for AAU," Mackey said. "That was something I wanted to do, was guard him. He probably wanted to guard me."

Mackey quickly took control of Monday's matchup, scoring 23 points in the first half, including five 3-pointers, as West Potomac built a 49-42 halftime lead. By the end of the third quarter, Mackey had 34 points and the Wolverines led by 13.

"When his shot is going in," James said about his opponent, "he's one of the most un-guardable players in the area."

However, Lake Braddock, which trailed by as many as 17 points in the third quarter, wasn't finished.

THE BRUINS opened the fourth quarter with a 13-1 run, during which James scored nine points. His jumper cut the West Potomac lead to 73-72 midway through the period.

"[James is] good," West Potomac head coach David Houston III said. "I've been coaching against him for four years, since he was a freshman.... He's impressive, he's hard to stop one on one. I thought we made him work and that was the key. If he had 36, it was a difficult 36."

While James led a valiant Bruin comeback effort in the fourth quarter, West Potomac never relinquished the lead down the stretch. The Wolverines built a cushion with a 9-2 run and held on for the victory.

Mackey made a pair of free throws with 43 seconds remaining, pushing him past his career high of 40 points, which he set last season against North Stafford during a holiday tournament. He added two more free throws with 17.7 seconds left to reach 43 points.

Mackey finished with five 3-pointers and knocked down 16 of 19 free-throw attempts.

"He's a dynamic player," Houston said, "and...the [colleges] that are not looking at him right now are going to regret it."

James knocked down four 3-pointers and connected on 8 of 9 free-throw attempts, including the finishing touch on a nifty three-point play.

"[James is] a great scorer," said West Potomac 7-footer Jonas Munson, who finished with 12 points in Monday's victory. "I think he's a good leader for their guys, but it wasn't enough."

West Potomac (3-0) will host Chantilly at 7:30 on Friday. Lake Braddock (1-1) will host Hayfield at 7:30 on Friday.

Scared to ...

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

And that's what worries me. There's a part of me (too big a part, I'll admit), that rationalizes not going to the doctor as a means of preventing an untimely death.

Oh, don't get me wrong. I go to the doctor as often as needed. In fact, I've been commended as being a very "compliant" patient, meaning I show up for my appointments (apparently some patients don't). And I will continue to do so.

However, this column is not about the appointments I do make, it's about the ones I don't make.

Huh?

Let me clarify. I am referring to the voluntary-type appointments that I schedule myself – at my discretion, when some symptom or other, relating to cancer or not, manifests itself. The symptom which forces me to consider my own mortality because it's "presenting" at a time and place at which my oncologist is unaware.

The kind of symptom which, were I not a cancer patient, I wouldn't give a second thought (let alone a first thought). But since I am a cancer patient, whatever the symptom is – and I mean any and all symptoms: small, medium or large, it must be "the cancer" as "Forrest, Forrest Gump" characterized his mother's cause of death, and therefore, can't be minimized. In point of alternative fact, it must be maximized, and in that maximization comes anxiety and fear and every other stress-related emotion you can imagine.

Nevertheless, just as George advised Jerry in a long-ago "Seinfeld" episode on how to beat a lie detector test: "It's not a lie if you believe it," so too do I employ a similar strategy: if I don't go to the doctor and get evaluated then the symptoms I'm experiencing can't be confirmed as cancer. And if my symptoms can't be confirmed as cancer then I have much to less to worry about than if they were. The symptoms are simply the same kind and frequency as non-cancer patients experience and do not represent a slippery slope for yours truly.

I suppose there's a part of me (the irrational, unreasonable and illogical part) that believes if I don't make any extra-curricular-type visits to any of my doctors then my cancer can't get worse and I can continue to go on living as if I've not been diagnosed with a terminal disease: non-small cell lung cancer, stage IV.

It reminds me of my late father's philosophy concerning automobile maintenance. If he never takes the car in for service, the mechanics will never find anything wrong with it. It's a version of what you don't know can't hurt you.

Well, in the cancer world in which I live 24/7, it all can hurt you and it can do so on its own timetable; when you least expect it and when you most fear it.

As yet another attempt to explain why this column has been written. For the past three weeks I've had persistent cold symptoms.

Since the symptoms never got any worse (though my fear did), I went along, tissue in hand, until my voice got so hoarse and weak that my wife, Dina – to her credit – insisted that I visit my internal medicine doctor and email my status as well to my oncologist. All of which I've done.

So far, nothing conclusive to report.

I've been prescribed some pre-pneumonia pills, have had a CT scan of the neck (per my oncologist's direction), results for which have not YET been received, am seeing an ENT doctor next week and am puffing Flonase into each nostril twice a day. My symptoms have not totally subsided but neither have they gotten worse – unlike my anxiety.

I really don't think there's anything wrong with me medically; mentally however, is another matter.
