670 students from 27 high schools compete for nine Grand Prizes to go to International Fair in Phoenix, Ariz.

The gym at Robinson Secondary School resembled a mini version of the United Nations. At the 64th Annual Fairfax County Regional Science and Engineering Fair held Sunday, March 17, some 670 students from 27 high schools competed for nine Grand Prize slots and the chance to go to the International Science and Engineering Fair sponsored by Intel in Phoenix, Ariz. later this year.

The categories ranged from chemistry to robotics, intelligent systems to mathematics, earth and environmental sciences, biomedical and health sciences, to STEM disciplines and engineering.

After a public viewing from 1-3 p.m., they held an awards program with members of the Fairfax County School Board and Region Superintendents where prizes were awarded to the Grand Prize winners and Corporate and Professional Organization award winners.

The students' 428 projects were judged three times Saturday by 200 category judges. About 250 students won awards from 50 corporate and professional organizations that were sponsored by government agencies, nonprofits and think tanks. Prizes ranged from $1,000 cash awards to scholarships and internships, gift cards and even a Raspberry Pi Zero Starter Kit. One project on Cystic Fibrosis Wearable Technology from Madison High students Thaissa Peixoto and Alex Gurski won a patent preparation and filing from the law firm Hunton and Williams LLP in the District.

Hayfield Secondary School students Sarah Syed, Miamar Burgos-Rosario of Alexandria and (not present) Saijai Supanklang won first place in Microbiology and are grand prize nominees. Their project was “Cyanocide: A Novel Strategy for Harmful Algal Bloom Mitigation via Initiation of Programmed Cell Death.”

Computational Biology & Bioinformatics – David Toomer, Hayfield Secondary School;
Embedded Systems — Rachel Naidich, Thomas Jefferson High School;
Embedded Systems — Rishabh Misra and Divjot Bedi, Thomas Jefferson High School;
Energy: Chemical — Kaien Yang, Thomas Jefferson High School;
Microbiology: Sarah Syed, Miamar Burgos-Rosario and Saijai Supanklang, Hayfield Secondary; Physics and Astronomy — Luke Mrini, Lake Braddock Secondary;
Physics and Astronomy — Justin Wang, Chantilly High School;
Robotics and Intelligent Machines — Jerry Wei, Oakton High School; Biomedical Engineering — Justin Hu, Madison High School.

FOR THE GRAND PRIZES, nine projects were allotted slots in the International Science and Engineering Fair sponsored by Intel Corporation in Phoenix, Ariz. Because of the size and reputation of Fairfax County, those projects can go straight to the International Fair without having to go through state competition. This includes an all-expense paid trip for students to compete for up to $4 million in prize money.

According to Dr. Jenay Sharp Leach, fair director and Pre-K-12 Science Coordinator: “In Fairfax County Public Schools, we pride ourselves on providing students with a rich, inquiry-based science experience in the classroom so all of our students have the opportunity to experience science as real scientists where they are asking questions, they are collecting data and analyzing that data and forming their own conclusions. And Science Fair is a really beautiful manifestation of this inquiry process in that the students truly have access to open inquiry and can explore what they want to explore.”

She added: “So, the students who come to the fair represent the best of the best from all of our high schools as well as our private schools in Fairfax County. And they are the elite level of scientific investigation.”

DR. SHARP LEACH said one of their traditions is to choose a quote from a famous scientist or engineer to inspire the work of the fair. This year's quote comes from Stephen Hawking who said, “Scientists have become the bearers of the torch of discovery in our quest for knowledge.”

She continued: “There are cancer cures in this room right now, there are climate change advocates who are going to stop climate change in this room right now and it's very inspirational.”

Added Tim Harazin, Elementary Science Specialist with Fairfax County Public Schools who helped coordinate the fair: “At our Regional Science Fair we are proud to have so many professional organizations and companies provide judges and awards. The benefit is, first, there is an award for the students, many times monetary, but other options, but I think the bigger issues is these organization judges are role models for the students. They show the students that a science fair is not just a one-shot deal, but it could lead to a career in science, engineering or related fields, and I think it's really great that the students get to see the people who are living those careers and get advice from those people. So, that's what I see is the really big advantage. That's why I'm not as concerned that every organization gives us money because I know they're giving us time and they're giving us role models.”

Equal parts fundraiser and fundraiser, U.S. Rep. Gerry Connolly (D-11) hosted a packed house at his 25th Annual St. Patrick's Day Bash at the Northern Virginia Community College's Ernst Cultural Center in Annandale on Friday night, March 15.

What started as an intimate gathering at Connolly's Fairfax home when he was first elected to the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors in 1995 has evolved to become the largest Democratic gathering in the Commonwealth.

"We've been coming to this event for years," said Marvin Solberg of Fairfax. "We love the energy, being around people who are interested in, and working to help, the community and for the country."

There was definitely a lot of energy in the room, as people mixed and mingled and enjoyed the corn beef and cabbage fare.

"I promise, we've gotten special dispensation to eat meat tonight," joked Connolly, referring to the Catholic tradition of abstinence from meat during the Fridays of the Lenten season. In case there were attendees of that religion who did not quite believe the Congressman's declaration and wanted to keep the faith in this regard, salmon was also on the menu, along with plenty of desserts and beverages to keep the high spirits flowing.

AMID THE CROWD of Connolly's constituents, friends and family, the greater majority of Democratic candidates running for local offices in 2019 were on hand, as well. From incumbents to opponents, the diverse mix of locals seeking seats for Fairfax County Board of Supervisors, State Senators and Delegates, Fairfax County Commonwealth Attorney, Fairfax County Public School Board and Sheriff worked the room, spreading their messages and just

The winner – at least according to the Straw Poll. Lee District Supervisor Jeff McKay "won" his election to Chairman of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors with 57.5 percent of the 500 ballots cast at Connolly's St. Pat's Day Bash. "But it's a great start," he said.

"getting to know people and letting them get to know us," said one candidate.

After the welcoming speech, Connolly gave equal air time to the four candidates running for the Board of Supervisors chairmanship – a seat long held by Sharon Bulova who will retire after her 10th year in the position and more than 30 years in service to the county.

Vying to head the Board are Jeff McKay, currently the Lee District Supervisor and the candidate endorsed by both Connolly and Bulova, Ryan McElveen, the At-Large FCPS Board member, Alicia Plerhoples, a law professor at Georgetown and co-founder of progressive grassroots organization Virginia Democracy Forward, and Tim Chapman, a Fairfax businessman who has served on the Virginia Housing and Development Authority, initially as an appointee by former Governor Terry McAuliffe.

Part of the evening's action was a Straw Poll for both the position of Board of Superators Chair, and for the attendees' choice for President of the United States in the 2020 election. More than 500 "ballots" were cast at the bash – "Now let's see this kind of turn out for the local June 11 primaries, the Nov. 5 elections, and definitely for next year's Presidential selection!" urged Connolly. As the ballots were being counted, Connolly and Bulova took to the stage and began reading the names of all of the candidates from Fairfax County and even Prince William.

"Come on up!" Connolly instructed, as Bulova kept reading the impressively long list of candidates. The assembled group challenged even the widest-angle lens when it was time to snap the photo.

TO CHEERS from his supporters, Jeff McKay was the clear winner among the party-goers for the Chairman's post with 57.5 percent of the votes. Plerhoples took second place with 29.4 percent. McElveen and Chapman came in third and fourth respectively, but McElveen said he wasn't concerned. As an At-Large School Board member, McElveen says he is the only candidate for the position who has run for a county-wide office. "I have support from all parts of Fairfax County."

As for the "election" for United States President, former Vice President Joe Biden was shown the love, defeating his closest opponent, Sen. Kamala Harris (D-CA), by a margin of 38.3 percent to 17 percent. Newly declared candidate Beto O'Rourke of Texas came in third in the Straw Poll.

Sadly, "no luck of the Irish tonight for O'Rourke," laughed a Bernie Sanders supporter, whose preferred candidate finished sixth in the shortened-to-eight field.

Connolly is serving his sixth term representing Virginia's 11th District, "but there is still so much to do, and with more Democrats, and more new energy, I know we can accomplish so much more."

Students Demand Action Meet Elected Officials

On Thursday, March 14, the Northern Virginia Chapter of Students Demand Action held a meeting, but this was not a typical gathering for the organization. SDA was also marking the one year anniversary of the student walkouts after the massacre at Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School in Parkland, Fla. To commemorate this occasion, the NoVA chapter of SDA was joined by several elected officials, including Virginia House Democratic Leader Eileen Filler-Corn, Del. Kathy Tran and Fairfax County School Board Members Dalia Palchik and Ryan McElveen.

“These students give me so much hope for our future,” said Filler-Corn, who has spent years both as an elected official and private citizen advocating for gun safety legislation. “I know that with their leadership, we can make Virginia and the country as a whole, a safer place.” Last year, the House Democratic Caucus established the Safe Virginia Initiative (co-chaired by Delegates Filler-Corn and Murphy), a task force established by the Virginia House Democratic Caucus which addresses gun safety and focuses on gun violence prevention. SVI held a variety of events across the Commonwealth on these issues and later issued a report with their findings and suggested policy solutions, many of which became legislation that was introduced in 2019 session. Unfortunately, none of the bills made it out of subcommittee.

Platinum Savings Account

2.10% Annual Percentage Yield for 12 months¹

Enjoy a special interest rate for 12 months with new money deposits of at least $25,000 and a minimum daily account balance of $25,000 or more.

Fixed Rate CD

2.60% Annual Percentage Yield for 11 months²

Guaranteed fixed rate with new money deposits of at least $25,000 for an 11-month term.

Both accounts are FDIC-insured up to the maximum allowable limit. Platinum Savings offer available in CT, DC, DE, FL, GA, MD, NJ, NY, SC and VA. Fixed Rate CD offer available in AL, AZ, CT, DC, DE, FL, GA, MD, NJ, NM, NV, NY, PA, SC and VA. Portfolio by Wells Fargo® customers are eligible to receive an additional interest rate bonus on these accounts.³

1. To qualify for this offer, you must have a new or existing Platinum Savings account and enroll the account in this offer between 01/21/2019 and 03/22/2019. This offer is subject to change at any time, without notice. This offer is available only to Platinum Savings customers in the following states: CT, DC, DE, FL, GA, MD, NJ, NY, SC and VA. In order to earn the Special Interest Rate of 2.08% (Special Rate), you must deposit $25,000 in new money (from sources outside of Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., or its affiliates) to the enrolled savings account and maintain a minimum daily account balance of $25,000 throughout the term of this offer. The corresponding Annual Percentage Yield (APY) for this offer is 2.10%. The Special Rate will be applied to the enrolled savings account for a period of 12 months, starting on the date the account is enrolled in the offer. However, for any day during that 12 month period that the daily account balance is less than the $25,000 minimum, the Special Rate will not apply and the interest rate will revert to the standard interest rate applicable to your Platinum Savings account. As of 12/10/2018, the standard interest rate and APY for a Platinum Savings account in CT, DC, DE, FL, GA, MD, NJ, NY, SC and VA with an account balance of $0.01 to $99,999.99 is 0.03% (0.03% APY) and with an account balance of $100,000 and above is 0.05% (0.05% APY). Each tier shown reflects the current minimum daily collected balance required to obtain the applicable APY. Interest is compounded daily and paid monthly. The amount of interest earned is based on the daily collected balances in the account. Upon the expiration of the 12 month promotional period, standard interest rates apply. Minimum to open a Platinum Savings account is $25. A monthly service fee of $12 applies in any month the account falls below a $3,500 minimum daily balance. Fees may reduce earnings. Interest rates are variable and subject to change without notice. Wells Fargo may limit the amount you deposit to a Platinum Savings account to an aggregate of $1 million. Offer not available to Private Banking, Wealth, Business Banking or Wholesale customers. 2. Annual Percentage Yield (APY) is effective for accounts opened between 01/21/2019 and 03/22/2019. The 11-month New Dollar CD special requires a minimum of $25,000 brought to Wells Fargo from sources outside of Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., or its affiliates to earn the advertised APY. Public Funds and Wholesale accounts are not eligible for this offer. APY assumes interest remains on deposit until maturity. Interest is compounded daily. Payment of interest on CDs is based on term: For terms less than 12 months (365 days), interest may be paid monthly, quarterly, semi-annually, or at maturity (the end of the term). For terms of 12 months or more, interest may be paid monthly, quarterly, semi-annually, or annually. A fee for early withdrawal will be imposed and could reduce earnings on this account. Special Rates are applicable to the initial term of the CD only. At maturity, the Special Rate CD will automatically renew for a term of 6 months, at the interest rate and APY in effect for CDs on renewal date not subject to a Special Rate, unless the Bank has notified you otherwise. Due to the new money requirement, accounts may only be opened at your local branch. Wells Fargo reserves the right to modify or discontinue the offer at any time without notice. Offer cannot be combined with any other consumer deposit offer. Minimum new money deposit requirement of at least $25,000 is for this offer only and cannot be transferred to another account to qualify for any other consumer deposit offer. If you wish to take advantage of another consumer deposit offer requiring a minimum new money deposit, you will be required to do so with another new money deposit as stated in the offer requirements and qualifications. Offer cannot be reproduced, purchased, sold, transferred, or traded. 3. The Portfolio by Wells Fargo program has a $30 monthly service fee, which can be avoided when you have one of the following qualifying balances: $25,000 or more in qualifying linked bank deposit accounts (checking, savings, CDs, FDIC-insured IRAs) or $50,000 or more in any combination of qualifying linked banking, brokerage (available through Wells Fargo Advisors, LLC) and credit balances (including 10% of mortgage balances, certain mortgages not eligible). If the Portfolio by Wells Fargo relationship is terminated, the bonus interest rate on all eligible savings accounts, and discounts or fee waivers on other products and services, will discontinue and revert to the Bank's then-current applicable rate or fee. For bonus interest rates on time accounts, this change will occur upon renewal. If the Portfolio by Wells Fargo relationship is terminated, the remaining unlinked Wells Fargo Portfolio Checking or Wells Fargo Prime Checking account will be converted to another checking product or closed.

Fairfax County's Bold Housing Agenda

BY MICHELLE KROCKER
EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR
NORTHERN VIRGINIA
AFFORDABLE HOUSING ALLIANCE

Last month, a panel appointed by the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors representing a cross-section of community stakeholders and housing advocates finalized their recommendations for Phase II of the county's Community-wide Housing Strategic Plan. Not since 2005, when then Chairman Gerry Connolly convened the Affordable Housing Preservation Action Committee, has there been such a comprehensive analysis of the state of affordable housing in Fairfax County.

Over the last two years, advisory groups and ad-hoc committees have been engaged in a top-to-bottom review of administrative, land use and regulatory policies and programs that impact affordable housing preservation and production. The scope of the plan encompasses the entire continuum of housing needs from persons with disabilities, seniors on fixed incomes and formerly homeless households to affordable homeownership.

The Housing Strategic Plan process began in June 2017, when the Department of Housing and Community Development (HCD) conducted an online county-wide housing survey and four community outreach sessions. Phase I of the Plan, which was adopted by the board in June 2018, identified 25 strategies related to land-use and zoning policies, allocation of existing financial resources, and administrative processes that are outdated or in need of revision to expedite affordable housing approvals. A timeline for the work on these strategies shows a completion date of 2020.

In Phase II, the ad-hoc Affordable Housing Resources Panel focused on two board-defined objectives: identify an annual goal for the production of new affordable units; and recommend a source of funds for the financial resources needed to achieve that goal. When completed, the housing plan will be incorporated into one comprehensive county strategic plan that integrates multiple existing agency plans to chart a blueprint for the future of the county.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Is a Tax and Spend Mindset Driving People Out of the Area?

To the Editor:

Why is the Fairfax County government competing with private business? Fairfax County Supervisor John Foust failed to answer this question and twisted the issue into one of customer satisfaction at the Great Falls budget meeting held March 14. For example, Fairfax County owns and maintains 8 golf courses with 80 people (FTEs) supporting them eligible for full pension benefits and other rich County employee benefits. Other examples include owning multiple water theme parks and wedding venue facilities. However, the County points out that the taxes collected are not sufficient to fund all the programs to the level they desire. Fairfax County is plagued by a 40 percent shortfall in pension expense funding for Fairfax County employees. Therefore, an ongoing increase in property taxes is inevitable with another 33 FTEs in the planning and development budget stating they have an "ambitious agenda" ahead.

This tax and spend mindset is driving people out of the area. Fairfax County is also proud to report they fund more park and rec activities than the rest of the entire County. Why, when we cannot afford to fix the roads are we hiring 109 new employees the County can't afford. Mr. Foust doesn't consider: 1) the continual burden of increasing property taxes, 2) unfunded pensions, 3) and the lost opportunity for private business to participate and pay those property taxes. Mr. Foust wants to continue with the status quo and ride out the three-year State imposed moratorium so he can again push for the Meals Tax and other tax increases. Satisfaction surveys should ask: Are you willing to increase your Fairfax County property taxes to fund activities that could be transferred and delivered by a private business? I suggest we prioritize what taxpayers want after we fully fund the basics (what we need).

Ethel Pascal

strategies that have been promoted for some time by advocates. They include:

- ❖ A goal to produce a minimum of 5,000 new homes, affordable to households earning no more than 60 percent of the area median income over the next 15 years. (It should be noted that the analysis identified the need for 15,000 units over the next 15 years);

- ❖ Dedicate the equivalent of an additional penny of the real estate tax (approximately $24 million) to support public investment in these units beginning in FY2021, as well as retain the current funding of a half penny to support preservation strategies;

- ❖ Consider a countywide policy on commercial contributions to affordable housing production. Currently, this policy exists only for the Tysons redevelopment area;

- ❖ A commitment of "no net loss" of existing market affordable units (those serving households up to 60 percent of area median income);

- ❖ Promote opportunities to co-locate affordable housing with county capital facilities.

We especially applaud the recognition of the need for more robust preservation strategies.

FORTHCOMING recommendations from the EMBARK Housing Advisory Group provide additional strategies for preservation incentives in both redevelopment and new construction proposals which could be a template for preservation efforts countywide. The arrival of Amazon HQ2 should heighten concern among county leadership for vulnerable communities in Fairfax County that are located in close proximity to Pentagon City. Areas like Seven Corners and Baileys Crossroad, as well as the Richmond Highway corridor have all been approved in recent years for transit enhancements, mixed-use development and increased density. Amazon's announcement could be the catalyst that triggers investment in these areas that are home to thousands of low-income, minority households who live in the older, market-affordable housing located in these corridors. Recent Fairfax County Redevelopment and Housing Authority (RHA) investments in Parkwood and Murraygate that preserved over 400 units in the Lee and Mason Districts are steps in the right direction, but much more is needed.

LOOKING AHEAD: Currently, the county has over 650 affordable units in the pipeline with a development in the Dranesville District in Herndon, a senior housing project in the Lee District, and a development at the Huntington Metro Station in the Mt. Vernon District. Two sizeable parcels of county-owned land located in Lee District and Springfield District are being processed for transfer to the RHA as sites for housing development. And plans to refinance the Crescent and Wedgewood apartments will result in additional funds for housing development, or expansion of Bridging Affordability, the County's local rental subsidy program.

All this bodes well for housing affordability in Fairfax County. For too long, the county's budget has shortchanged investments in new construction and preservation. An inventory developed by Virginia Tech's Center for Housing Research shows that only 9,000 market-affordable units, affordable to a family of four earning approximately $66,000 annually, remain in the county. However, more than 68,000 households in the county earn no more than $50,000 annually. Rents are rising faster than incomes, and families are experiencing rent burdens, overcrowding or are being priced out of the county.

NEXT STEPS: In March, recommendations from the Phase II Panel will be presented to the Board of Supervisors for their consideration and approval. Afterwards, the final package of housing recommendations will be given to the County Executive to be incorporated into the board's budget guidance for FY2021. This will occur when the Board adopts the FY2020 budget on May 7. Nothing is certain until board adoption. But advocates throughout the county feel that in this very consequential election year, when so many candidates for the Board of Supervisors have identified housing affordability as a priority issue, this is the year for significant housing wins. To be successful, housing advocates must build a coalition of support that encompasses the business community and anchor institutions like healthcare facilities, education advocates, supporters of coordinated multi-modal transit and land use planning, organizations promoting compact, mixed-use development and entities working for social justice and racial equity. This plan is bold and forward-thinking, and in this election year a community-wide campaign will be critical for adoption.

Adjusting Taxes, Finalizing Budget

BY SCOTT SUROVELL
STATE SENATOR (D-36)

The 2019 General Assembly session adjourned on Feb. 24 after a few hiccups. Two weeks ago, I discussed the legislation that I passed. In this column, I will explain various budget actions we took.

First, unlike the Federal Government, our budget is balanced as required by the Constitution of Virginia. Next, the General Assembly needed to address modifications to our tax code to bring it up to speed with changes made by Congress with the Tax Cut and Jobs Act of 2018. This is usually labelled “conformity.” “Straight conformity” would cause an additional $600 million of state revenue largely due to the interplay between the new increased federal standard deduction and the $10,000 cap on state and local taxes and mortgage interest (“SALT”).

We addressed this in two phases. First, for the 2018 tax year, every taxpayer receives $110 refund if tax returns are filed before June 30.

For tax years 2020 through 2026, the state standard deduction is raised by $1,500 for individuals and $3,000 for joint filers. This is worth about $86 per year for individuals or $172 per couple. The budget also removes the $10,000 cap on SALT for state income taxes. However, due to our low 5.75 percent state income tax rate, that is only worth roughly about $575 if you pay $20,000 of combined income taxes and mortgage interest or $1100 if you pay over $30,000 per year.

These combined actions took about $450 million out of our annual revenues on an annual basis or $2.7 billion over six years and limited our ability to fund multiple priorities.

Notwithstanding, we were able to fund a few things. First, we increased secondary funds to secondary education by $50 million. This included pushing the teacher pay increase from 3 percent to 5 percent, $12 million in new school counselors statewide, and $24.9 million in new dollars for at-risk students.

Virginia’s state-supported universities received a $57.5 million increase in funds conditioned on a tuition freeze for 2019 and $168 million to build the new Virginia Tech Innovation Campus at Potomac Yards in connection with the Amazon project. We also added $5 million in support for our community colleges, $16.6 million to increase computer science degrees, and $4 million towards Virginia’s New Economy Workforce Credential Grant Program (AKA “FastForward”).

We increased Virginia’s contribution to the Housing Trust Fund by $3 million per year to a total of $14 million per year.

The money committees also included my proposal to hire staff at prisons and study the Commonwealth’s ability to provide earlier reparative therapy to sex offenders in state prisons instead of waiting until they have completed their jail sentence. Historically, providing these services in post-jail secure inpatient facility has cost nearly twice as much as prison. Starting earlier and shortening civil commitment will save taxpayers millions.

We finally started the process of investing in rural broadband with a $15 million investment along with $1 million in Enterprise Zone grants to encourage solar. Virginia’s cash reserves will stand at $1.45 billion at the end of the biennium which is a strong hedge against a downturn in the economy.

While the budget makes some progress, I also felt like it was a missed opportunity to make progress on long standing funding priorities because there are many priorities the General Assembly could have funded if we had not cut taxes. First, our secondary education funding continues to lag behind our pre-Great Recession historic commitment. Virginia’s teachers remain some of the lowest paid in the nation. Virginia’s higher education system remains a crown jewel, but our college tuitions are some of the highest in the nation. We not only need to freeze tuition but roll it back.

Virginia also has thousands of families waiting for childcare subsidies so parents (mainly mothers) can go back to work. We still have 12,000 families waiting for Medicaid services for mentally and developmentally disabled children. Virginia’s public employees remain significantly behind private sector wages which hurts retention and proficiency. The construction backlog and staffing needs at Virginia’s State Parks is over $100 million while demand for parks skyrockets.

KINDERGARTEN REGISTRATION

Children who will be 5 years old on or before Sept. 30, 2019, are eligible to attend kindergarten. Find the correct neighborhood school by entering your address at boundary.fcps.edu/boundary/. Complete a packet of registration forms found at www.fcps.edu/it/forms/enroll.pdf or in the school office. Gather supporting documents: proof of residence in the school boundary, a certified copy of the child’s birth certificate, parent/guardian photo ID, and any custody orders. Certificate of physical exam and immunization will be required before the student may start school, but is not required for registration. Parents who choose to delay enrollment in kindergarten by one year are required to notify the school in writing of their intent. Learn more at www.fcps.edu/registration/general-registration-requirements.

Union Mill Elementary is currently registering new students for the 2019-20 school year. Find registration forms in the Union Mill Elementary office or online at www.fcps.edu/sites/default/files/media/forms/enroll_0.pdf. Call 703-322-8500 or email lrmill@fcps.edu to make an appointment to bring completed registration forms and supporting documentation to school. Kindergarten Orientation will take place on Monday, April 1, 4-5 p.m.

Explaining Death to Children

Breaking down a difficult topic and helping children grieve.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL

Rosalie Ward, recalls a hot and sticky summer evening in 1975. She was watching reruns of the television show “Bewitched” with her twin sister in the living room while her mother cooked dinner in the kitchen. Ward remembers hearing the ring of the family’s rotary telephone. The next sound she heard was a shriek and then violent sobs from her mother.

“My mom had gotten a call that her brother, my uncle, had been killed in a car crash,” remembers Ward. “I was six at the time, but most of my memories of that evening are of my mother crying uncontrollably for the hour or so until my dad came home from work. The two of them disappeared behind closed doors. I just remember being terrified and feeling alone.”

Whether prolonged or sudden, unforeseen or expected, experiencing the death of a loved one is never easy. While grief can weigh heavy on adults, it can overwhelm and confuse young children. And although death is an inevitable part of life, finding the words to discuss or explain it to young children can challenge many parents.

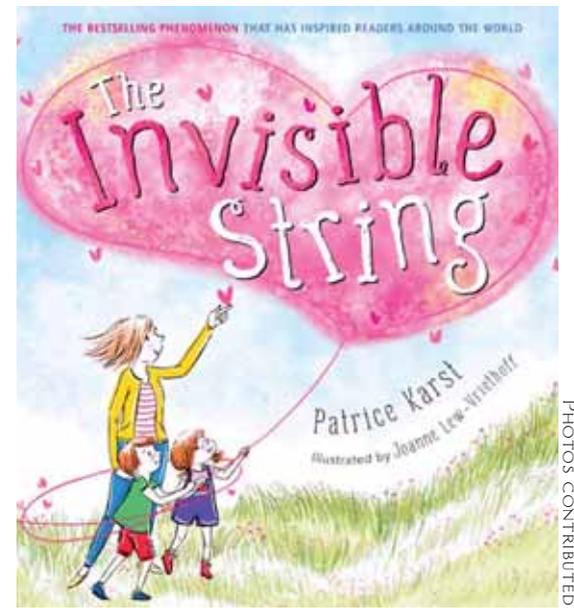

“Whether you’re talking about a family pet or a grandparent, it’s important that parents or caregivers understand that children grieve too and that death has to be discussed,” said Ward, who is a family therapist in Reston.

One of the most significant mistakes a parent or caregiver can make is not being honest with a child about death, said Carolyn Lorente, Ph.D., professor of psychology at Northern Virginia Community College. “My biggest worry is when people hide the fact that a loved one died by saying that they went on a trip, and then the child sees the adult crying or being sad,” she said. “That doesn’t give the child a chance to process it, but by including them in a developmentally appropriate way, and we are teaching that we can feel big feelings, and with the support of friends and family, we can still thrive.”

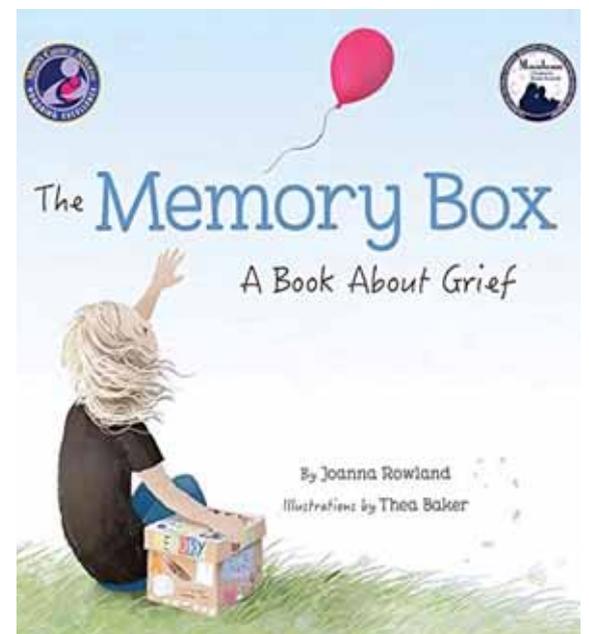

Helping a child to understand they didn’t cause the death could be an important part of the conversation, suggests Carol Barnaby, LCSW-C, a therapist in Bethesda. “Children often see the world as revolving around them,” she said. “Reassure them that their loved one dying was not their fault and that the death didn’t happen because they had a mean thought, misbehaved, or didn’t visit enough.”

“Death often brings anxiety in children and they wonder if they will die too,” added Barnaby. “Explaining that although the loved one has just died, death is not contagious and that the child will likely live a very long life.”

Clear, concise word usage is also important because young children might not have the language skills to discuss their feelings and emotions, adds Lorente. “Let the child engage in talking about fond memories of the deceased using pictures, making favorite recipes, or visiting a favorite place,” she said.

PHOTOS CONTRIBUTED
“The Invisible String” by Patrice Karst is a book that could help parents explain death to their children.

Bethesda-based therapist Carol Barnaby, LCSW-C suggests “The Memory Box” by Joanna Rowland as a tool to help children understand the concept of dying.

Use concrete and authentic terms when discussing it, continued Barnaby. “Avoid euphemisms like ‘Grandma is resting’ or ‘has gone away,’” she said.

“These sayings confuse children and may cause them anxiety over [the notion] that they could die if they fall asleep; or that other loved ones may not come back.” Use clear language like ‘Grandma has died.’”

Young children often believe death is reversible, advises Jerome Short, Ph.D., professor of psychology at George Mason University. “You could describe how a body stops working and the person who died isn’t coming back.”

Be open to having an honest conversation about it, continued Short.

“Encourage children to ask questions and tell them you will help them handle any bad feelings or problems that happen,” he said.

One Super Commuter Loves the EBike Proposal

Officials eyeing rules to allow e-bikes on area bike trails.

By MIKE SALMON
THE CONNECTION

Springfield resident Todd Mader relies on his e-bike to get to both his jobs at the two Bike Lane stores that he and his wife own in Springfield and Reston. The recent proposal to allow ebikes on area bike trails is right down his alley. "I'm in favor of that 110 percent," he said while wheeling his bike out of the Springfield store to go to Reston.

Electric bikes are out there and they may be coming to a bike trail near you. On the one hand, the electric bike provides mobility to seniors and others that are not able to ride the hilly trails so this increases the mobility for a certain part of the population. On the other hand, it would be introducing a motorized vehicle to a venue where they were forbidden in the past. Mader commutes about 3,000 miles a year on his bike and although it's not always in the electric mode so he does his share of pedaling, the electric motor is there when he needs it. "As a bike commuter, ebikes allow me to do that," he said.

NOVA Parks recently had a meeting on e-bikes and they stated in their research that:

- ❖ e-bike users exhibit nearly identical behaviors as regular bike users

- ❖ e-bike speeds were observed to be lower than standard bike speeds on shared trails

- ❖ most trail users are unaware of the presence of e-bikes when asked

At the Washington Area Bicyclist Association, Greg Billing, WABA president, has been asked about speed and ebikes more than once.

"Biking too fast is a behavior problem, not an equipment problem," Billing wrote. "You don't need an electric motor to be a 25mph jerk on a bike. We've all had the experience of being buzzed on a trail by someone riding far too fast," he added.

In addition, Capital Bikeshare recently announced that it will expand the fleet of electric Capital Bikeshare Plus bikes from 85 bikes to 500 under the pilot program which began in September 2018. The e-bikes – which are pedal-assist – provide an electric boost up to speeds of 18 mph. On some trails, the maximum recommended safe speed posted along the area bike trails is 15 mph so speed is a consideration.

"This is an exciting time in the National Capital Region as we continue to increase access to biking through innovation," said Fairfax County Bicycle Program Manager Nicole Wynands. "The enhanced e-bike fleet supports our goal of providing more opportunities for commuters and travelers in Fairfax County to try biking as a viable option even in the hilliest parts of the county including Tysons."

Commonwealth's Attorney Candidates Face Off

NAACP and partners question the contenders.

BY ANDREA WORKER
THE CONNECTION

The two Democratic contenders for Fairfax County Commonwealth's Attorney traded barbs at a forum on Saturday, March 16, held at the Chantilly Baptist Church, presented by the Fairfax Branch of the NAACP with partners the ACLU People of Power Fairfax, the Northern Virginia Black Attorneys Association and OAR - Opportunities, Alternatives and Resources.

Incumbent Ray Morrogh has served in the County Commonwealth Attorney's Office since 1983 and has held the top spot since 2007. He is being challenged by Steve Descano who spent six years as a federal prosecutor under the Obama Administration, first as a Special Assistant to the U.S. Attorney for the Eastern District of Virginia and then as a trial attorney in both the Criminal Taxation Division and the Consumer Protection Branch. Descano also served on the Fairfax County Police Civilian Review Panel.

In the two-hour session moderated by attorney Vanessa Jordan, a member of the Northern Virginia Black Attorneys Association, Descano lost no time in categorizing Morrogh's office as a "black box" devoid of significant data that can be used to develop policies and inform the public.

"The people I talk to, even personnel in our local government, say they don't know how to get hold of anyone in that office," said Descano. "That's not leadership."

Descano prides himself on "always being out and about in the community," saying that the public needs to see their leaders' values in action, in their lives, on a daily basis.

Morrogh shot back with examples of his involvement on numerous committees and task forces and with a number of civic organizations.

"My door is always open," he said, and maintains that he and his department continue to educate themselves on issues and best practices while engaging the community to learn of their concerns.

MORROGH HIGHLIGHTED what he describes as a lack of "relevant, realistic experience" by his opponent.

"In our department we handle thousands of cases with often life-and-death consequences. We don't have the years [that a taxation prosecuting attorney has] to build a single case. Our work is more immediate."

Morrogh alluded that some of Descano's "pledges" about what cases to prosecute and how to address certain issues, cannot be met, either because they are not within the scope of the position's authority, or they are Vying for the top law enforcement slot in Fairfax County as the Commonwealth's Attorney, Steve Descano, the challenger and Ray Morrogh, the incumbent, face off at a forum hosted by the NAACP.

Organizing a number of questions submitted by the audience for the candidates are Derwin Overton, executive director of OAR - Opportunities, Alternatives and Resources, and attorney Diane Alejandro with ACLU People Power of Fairfax.

"simply not allowable under the law. And I am sworn to uphold that law for all citizens."

Moderator Jordan asked a series of questions on topics ranging from implicit bias in the criminal justice system and in local policing, dealing with undocumented persons, and those who come in contact with the courts with mental health and drug abuse issues, restoration of voting rights for convicted felons, cash bail inequities, the larceny dollar threshold, the handling of juvenile offenses in schools, and more. Each candidate was given 60 seconds to answer, and cautioned to stay on topic.

"Please don't use your time to present a rebuttal to your opponent's answer. The people here want to hear your answers to the questions we are posing," said Jordan.

Speaking on diversion programs aimed at keeping people out of jail, Morrogh insisted that his prosecutors work to do just that, but "I will not put violent offenders in such programs." For those facing drug convictions, drug court is an option, but Morrogh noted that many choose not to enter the program and accept fines or jail sentences instead.

"That's understandable," responded Descano. "The program is hard. We need to offer incentives to people to help them choose the path of recovery instead of incarceration." Descano cites that lack of incentives as a reason why the numbers of offenders in such program is relatively low.

Descano also accused Morrogh of allowing offenders to languish in jails because they could not raise the cash bail imposed.

"People who have not been convicted of anything are kept from their families, their jobs, their lives, even though they have been declared eligible for pretrial release," he said. "Don't punt this ball. Don't ask for cash bail in those instances."

Morrogh countered: "We may ask for detention in serious instances where we believe the offender to be a danger, but I do not ask for cash bails and have not done so in 35 years."

Descano shot back that Morrogh had supported cash bail in a Washington Post article, to which the incumbent replied, "It's a complex issue, more so than you realize. We can't simply do away with cash bonds as you seem to suggest."

On the question of advocating to raise the dollar limit for which to prosecute a crime as a felony, Descano agreed to "take the pledge" that Jordan asked about.

"I will take that pledge, not to prosecute less than a $1500 value as a felony."

While Morrogh says he has long advocated for raising the felony/larceny threshold, he declined to pledge to never prosecute below $1500 as a felony.

"That would be a dangerous precedent," he warned, saying that from his many years of experience he can attest there are "people who steal, over and over again, or scam our elderly again and again. I cannot say that because of one instance of loss below $1500 that it would not be appropriate to file charges as a felony offense."

The audience seemed to have no trouble following the arguments of the candidates on the question of Brady Material and discovery reform.

Brady Material comes from a 1963 Supreme Court ruling that says that "suppression by the prosecution of evidence favorable to a defendant who has requested it violates due process."

On this topic, again the two men differed and traded verbal jabs.

Once again, Descano made a pledge, saying that anyone on his staff who was caught failing to provide Brady Material for the defendant "would be gone."

Morrogh said "no system is perfect. We prepare Brady Material for the defense, but if there was an issue, I would investigate and weigh the circumstances before making a decision."

The two exhibited the most agreement during the "lightning round" of questions, most probably because Jordan allowed only a simple "yes" or "no" answer to less controversial questions and gave the candidates only one sentence to explain their responses. Both supported body cameras for police, decriminalization of marijuana, detox diversion for drunk in public; neither supported diversion for driving under the influence.

THE LAST SECTION of the forum posed written questions from the audience, and there were a lot of them.

The two tangled over the restoration of voting rights for felons. Descano accused Morrogh of being against the restoration, noting that the Commonwealth's Attorney had joined a lawsuit against then-Governor McAuliffe when he proposed such legislation.

"Read my remarks," countered Morrogh. He contends that he objected to the attachment of gun ownership rights to the legislation.

 "There are too many guns, and too many victims of gun violence ... and I am not hearing the word victim mentioned enough here today."

Morrogh cited examples of released felons, convicted of violent crimes or paedophilia who were able to purchase guns upon their release from prison.

"I support restoration of voting rights, 100 percent," he said. "In fact, I think those incarcerated should be allowed to vote. Treason should be the only reason a person should be barred from voting."

On the question of police involvement in juvenile issues in school, both men supported allowing school authorities to handle the situations wherever possible, though Descano charged that Murrogh has not been visible on this front, while he has. He also indicated that juveniles have been threatened with "certification as adults" in some instances.

Morrogh disagreed. "We never threaten adult certification. We act if so warranted."

Wrapping up, the two again enumerated their own strengths and fitness for the office that holds significant power over the citizens of the community. Descano continued to deprecate the incumbent's leadership, saying it was "time to move beyond the same old, same old," while Morrogh emphasized his own experience and his opponent's lack in this arena.

As NAACP President Kofi Annan urged, voters should take every opportunity to listen to them as they outline their visions and explain their approaches.

The Commonwealth's Attorney forum was moderated by Vanessa Jordan, an attorney and member of forum co-sponsor the Northern Virginia Black Attorneys Association.

"You may not know the real role of the Commonwealth's Attorney. I admit that once I did not really understand the role of this job, but I have come to understand its importance and its impact as the gatekeeper to protect our citizens and our rights."

Increasing Access to Naloxone

BY SERENA FISCHER
 CAPITAL NEWS SERVICE

Responding to the state's opioid epidemic, Virginia is expanding the number of people legally authorized to dispense and administer the overdose reversal medication naloxone.

Gov. Ralph Northam has signed into law bills allowing paramedics, school nurses and regional jail personnel to administer naloxone. The General Assembly passed the legislation during its 2019 session.

Northam signed:

- ❖ HB 2158, sponsored by Del. Kenneth Plum, D-Fairfax. It authorizes emergency medical services personnel and health care providers in hospital emergency rooms to dispense naloxone. The bill also allows organizations to charge a fee equal to the cost of obtaining the drug.

- ❖ HB 2318, filed by Del. John McGuire, R-Henrico. It allows school nurses, other school board employees and local health department employees assigned to public schools to possess and administer naloxone after they have been trained.

- ❖ HB 1878, introduced by Del. Scott Garrett, R-Lynchburg. It adds employees of regional jails to the list of individuals who may possess and administer naloxone, provided that they have completed a training program.

"It's imperative that we provide the proper tools to our public safety workers to deal with all aspects of the opioid crisis that Virginia is currently experiencing. Having naloxone in their possession could potentially save a life of one of their officers or an inmate in their care," Garrett said.

All three bills passed the House and Senate unanimously. Northam approved HB 2158 and HB 2318 on March 5 and HB 1878 on Feb. 22. The three measures take effect July 1.

Naloxone is an opioid antagonist used to reverse the effects of an opioid overdose, according to the Harm Reduction Coalition, an advocacy group for individuals and communities impacted by drug use. The medication allows an overdose victim to resume normal breathing by counteracting the depression of the respiratory and central nervous systems.

The substance is non-addictive and will work only on a person who has consumed opioids in some form. It can be injected like an EpiPen or administered via nasal spray, a form more commonly known as Narcan.

When dispensed correctly, the drug will immediately begin to take effect. Signs of an overdose include shallow breathing, unresponsiveness and a blue coloring of the lips and fingernails.

State officials estimate that last year, more than 1,200 Virginians died from overdoses of opioids, including heroin, fentanyl and prescription opioids. That number has doubled since 2011.

Drug Dealer Sentenced To Prison for Drug and Gun Crimes

A Springfield man was sentenced Friday, March 15, to 20 years in prison for distributing more than 5 kilograms of cocaine and brandishing a firearm in furtherance of his drug dealing. According to court documents, Aidriess Saydi, 36, was one of the largest drug dealers in the Northern Virginia area over the past decade. Saydi frequently traveled to other states with hundreds of thousands of dollars in cash to purchase narcotics that were later shipped to him.

Over the course of the conspiracy, Saydi used dozens of people to receive drug shipments on his behalf. When shipments became more difficult given the quantity of drugs he was distributing, Saydi purchased his own plane to carry drugs to Virginia. In April of 2018, after fear that law enforcement was closing in on him, Saydi ordered a co-conspirator to hide close to a kilogram of cocaine, 30 pounds of marijuana, and a stolen handgun, all of which were later found by law enforcement. When the buried contraband could not be found, Saydi repeatedly beat his co-conspirator with another weapon, fearing that his co-conspirator had stolen them from him. As part of his sentence, Saydi agreed to forfeit $1 million and multiple vehicles. This case is part of Project Safe Neighborhoods (PSN), which is the centerpiece of the Department of Justice's violent crime reduction efforts. PSN is an evidence-based program proven to be effective at reducing violent crime. Through PSN, a broad spectrum of stakeholders work together to identify the most pressing violent crime problems in the community and develop comprehensive solutions to address them.

As part of this strategy, PSN focuses enforcement efforts on the most violent offenders and partners with locally based prevention and reentry programs for lasting reductions in crime. G. Zachary Terwilliger, U.S. Attorney for the Eastern District of Virginia, and Matthew J. DeSarno, Special Agent in Charge, Criminal Division, FBI Washington Field Office, made the announcement after sentencing by U.S. District Judge Liam O'Grady. Special Assistant U.S. Attorney Christopher Grieco and Assistant U.S. Attorney Whitney Dougherty Russell prosecuted the case.

Fire Investigators determined that the fire was accidental in nature and started in the kitchen area.

COURTESY OF FAIRFAX COUNTY FIRE AND RESCUE DEPARTMENT

Springfield Apartment Fire Goes To Two Alarms

On Friday, March 15, at 7:20 a.m., units from Fairfax County Fire and Rescue and the City of Alexandria Fire Department were dispatched for a reported garden apartment fire in the 7000 block of Rhoden Court in the Springfield area of Fairfax County.

Units arrived on scene of a three-story, garden apartment to find smoke showing from the rear of the building. Crews quickly located a fire in a top floor apartment that extended into the attic. A second alarm was requested. The fire was rapidly contained to the apartment of origin and the attic space above. There were no civilian or firefighter injuries.

There were thirty-five occupants in the building at the time of the fire. The fire was discovered when a resident returned home and saw smoke near his apartment door. The resident also reported hearing a smoke alarm sounding when he opened the door. He then activated a manual pull station to sound the local fire alarm that alerted the remaining occupants of the fire. All residents safely evacuated. Fire Investigators determined that the fire was accidental in nature and started in the kitchen area. The fire was caused by an electrical event in a teapot that then ignited nearby ordinary combustibles. Thirty-five occupants were displaced because of the fire. Red Cross assistance was offered and accepted. Damages as a result of the fire are approximately $181,250.

Eight Daze and Seven Sleepless Nights

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

On Monday, I take one of our "Buff Boys" (beige-colored cats), "Chino," to the vet for his bi-weekly glucose-monitoring day. This is his new routine as "Chino" was recently diagnosed with diabetes. In addition, since his diagnosis, I've been injecting him with insulin twice a day, subcutaneously ("sub-q") going on six weeks now. Though he's eating well, he's lost weight; apparently, it's related.

Without getting too sad, too soon, he looks frail and the stares and meows he gives me seem to be pleas for help which, other than providing food, water and touch, I am clueless as to what else I can do. I'm not anticipating the worst yet, but when I pick him up at the vet later in the day, I'm not expecting the best either.

On Wednesday, I go for my first CT scan in eight weeks. More significantly, it will be my first "CT" since I began immunotherapy. I don't quite know what to expect; although I know what I hope.

The fact is I've neglected to ask my oncologist what his expectations were: specifically relating to a time frame about the immunotherapy's effectiveness; and as we've moved on, we have a few other questions: Will the infusion have any effect after just eight weeks, generally? Is there a protocol/length of treatment which a patient is supposed to have before success or failure is determined? Are there any indications other than scan results which might contribute to an assessment of the drug's impact on my tumors? Is it possible that the tumors in my lungs might have a different reaction (shrink, stable, grow) than my "Adam's apple" tumor? If so, then what? Are there any side effects from my bi-weekly infusions which could cause my treatment to stop?

Beyond these types of questions, my oncologist prefers not to discuss scenarios. The short summary is: we're looking for some kind of clarity and/or guarantee ended on the date of your diagnosis.

On Friday, I have my next scheduled infusion (with pre-infusion lab work on Wednesday). Door to door, depending on how busy the Infusion Center is, and depending how long it takes the pharmacy to mix/prepare my drug, it will be approximately three hours until I'm back home. The experience is not tedious nor is it torture.

Compared to the eight-hour days I had to endure in the early, heavy-duty days of chemotherapy, this time commitment is a breeze. And when one considers the relatively minor side effects – so far, the routine is quite bearable. (I just need the immunotherapy to be effective.)

On the following Monday, we see my oncologist. Typically, we don't see him until later in the week on Friday. In the 10-day interim, my oncologist will email results of the scan – with his assessment – and attach the radiologist's report so that when we see him, we're aware and prepared.

However, in this week's particular instance he had availability on Monday, five days post-scan, and not on Friday. As such, we are seeing him so soon after the scan occurs that he might not have any results to email us before our appointment.

This means that we'll be going into the appointment cold, so to speak. Which means we'll be extremely anxious as we sit in the examining room waiting for his knock asking if it's OKAY for him to come in. And then staring at his face as he enters looking for any kind of hopeful sign that the treatment has worked.

And that's what this week-plus-one-day will be: a struggle; about me, for my wife, about our life together and about one of our cats.

Each of the four days/four events itself would be stressful and thought-provoking enough. Having them occur one right after the other, simultaneously almost, is like adding insult to injury. It's bad enough to begin with and it's potentially even worse how it might end with – really bad news.

Through it all, somehow we must remain positive. There's no future in being negative.

To invoke the late Yogi Berra, who said in 1973 while managing the last-place New York Mets: "It ain't over 'till it's over." (And of course they went on to win the National League pennant.)
