Meet Candidates for County Board Chairman

Trash Troubles

The Connection

According to Charlie Forbes, Chief, Recycling, Compliance and Planning for the Fairfax County Department of Public Works and Environmental Services, the county receives about six or so complaints per year about the services provided by the fifteen waste haulers licensed to do business in the area.

“Six complaints, 15 haulers, over a million residents. That’s not a bad ratio of complaints to services,” said Forbes.

In the last few months, however, those complaint numbers have skyrocketed to over 200, with more being received by the offices of the individual district Supervisors.

The complaints that have been flooding county offices are targeting one particular company; American Disposal Services (American), that collects refuse, recycling and yard waste for about 120,000 county residents according to Mason District Supervisor Penny Gross.

American Disposal Services was recently purchased by Waste Connections, Inc., whom Forbes described as a Canadian-based company doing business throughout North America.

The typical contract between American and its customers is for two collections of refuse per week, and one each for recycling and yard waste for about 120,000 county residents according to Mason District Supervisor Penny Gross.

Lindene Patton of Great Falls is one such customer. Patton at- tended a May 6 meeting of the Great Falls Citizens Association Environment and Parks Committee where Forbes and his colleague Courtney Willis-Banks, a Compliance and Enforcement Supervisor with the Department of Public Works, accepted an invitation to update the Great Falls group on the current status of the situation, hear from citizens, and answer questions.

Considering her experience, Patton was admirably calm and understanding. Patton was one of the residents whose hand went up when Forbes asked “how many here have had their trash sitting out uncollected for more than a week?” Patton’s hand went up...
Meet the Candidates for County Board Chairman

Four to contend in June 11 Democratic Primary to seek to replace retiring Sharon Bulova.

By Andrea Worker
The Connection

A s Chair of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors Sharon Bulova prepares to retire at the end of the year, four Democrats have come forward, looking to fill her spot as the county’s top elected official. With multiple candidates, election rules call for a Primary Election to decide a winner who will go on to the Nov. 5 ballot, when all of the Board member seats will be up for grabs. Vying for the position are:

❖ Current Lee District Supervisor Jeff C. McKay, who has served on the Board since 2007.
❖ Ryan McElveen, At-Large Member, Fairfax County Public Schools Board since 2012.
❖ Tim Chapman, Reston-based real estate developer and businessman
❖ Alicia Pierhople, tenured law profesor at Georgetown Law.

The Connection sent out identical questionnaires to all four, asking each to provide voters with some basic information about themselves, and then to explain why they are running, what they see as the top issues facing the county, and in what key ways they differ from their opponents. Here are their responses:

Jeffrey C. McKay

Age: 43
Education: James Madison University (1996), Sorensen Institute for Political Leadership (1998)
Native of: Fairfax County
Moved to Your District: Lifelong Lee District resident
Prior and current professional, political and civic experiences, community involvement, etc.:
❖ Fairfax County Board of Supervisors – Lee District
❖ Chairman, Budget Committee, Board of Supervisors
❖ Chairman, Legislative Committee
❖ Co-Chair, Revitalization Committee
❖ Member, Successful Children and Youth Policy Team
❖ Member, Northern Virginia Regional Commission
❖ Member, Virginia Railway Express Board
❖ First VP, Virginia Assoc. of Counties Board of Directors
❖ Two-time former Chair, current Member, Northern Virginia Transportation Commission
❖ Coach, Woodlawn Little League, Pio-neer Baseball League, Mount Vernon Sports Club

Q: Why are you running?
A: I am a lifelong Fairfax County resident, proudly born and raised along the Route One Corridor. From an early age, my grandmother instilled in me the importance of helping others, especially those less fortunate than ourselves. Those teachings, combined with my own experiences … are the reasons why I ultimately sought public office.

I am running for Chairman this year to build on the successes we’ve had and to push us forward … I’m proud of Fairfax County and the community we’ve built together. Now, more than ever, those values we’ve instilled and the work we’ve done are at risk. We need to fight for all residents and communities throughout our county.

Q: What are the top issues in your district and what solutions do you propose?
A:
❖ Creating a Fairfax County that works for all (One Fairfax)
❖ Investing in people by supporting the environment, affordable housing, transportation infrastructure, and education
❖ Creating jobs and economic opportunities in all areas of the county

Q: Key ways you differ from your opponents.
A: Having served on the Board of Supervisors for the past 11 years, I am the only candidate with Board experience and who has been a state, regional and countywide leader. I’ve balanced budgets and created countywide legislative agendas that have made us a progressive national leader in education, job growth, human services, and quality of life, while also ensuring we’re protecting our environment and fighting for affordable housing.

I have the knowledge, experience, and relationships it takes to be a successful chairman, and I am excited for the opportunity before us.

Ryan McElveen

Age: 33
Education: Columbia University, Master of International Affairs in Human Rights (2011); Univ. of Virginia, B.A. Anthropology and East Asian Studies (2008); George C. Marshall High School (2004)
Native of: Raised in the Vienna-Tysons area
Moved to Your District: Lifelong resident of Fairfax County
Prior and current professional, political and civic experiences, community involvement, etc.:
❖ At-large Member, Fairfax County School Board 2012-Present
❖ Assoc. Director, John L. Thornton China Center, the Brookings Institution, 2013 - Present
❖ International Operations and Policy, the Boeing Company
❖ Co-Chair, Revitalization Committee, FC Board of Supervisors.
❖ Communications, Clinton Foundation and Clinton Global Initiative
❖ Researcher, Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, U.S. Senate
❖ Asst. Director, Univ. of Virginia Center in Shanghai, China

Q: Why are you running?
A: After spending the better part of my time on the School Board as witness to chronically underfunded school system budgets, I decided to run for Chairman when I realized that there was no one else in the race who would be as strong an advocate for our schools and children as I would be.

Since January, I have been saying that we are two Fairfaxes. The development patterns that have been promoted by past Boards of Supervisors have led to the stark divides between the “haves” and “have-nots” in Fairfax County. … We need to turn our attention to the areas and populations that will benefit from neither Amazon and a growing tech sector nor higher property values. All of our residents need to have a voice. I will purposefully work to narrow that gap and provide more seats at the table, making sure that our diverse community is better represented by our leadership.

Q: What are the top issues in your district and what solutions do you propose?
A: The three most important issues and opportunities that Fairfax needs to address are in the areas of education, innovation and opportunity. Education: We need to fully fund our schools and implement universal pre-Kindergarten so that our students enter school ready to succeed.

Innovation: We need to connect all residents to the internet; create transportation networks that accommodate expanded public transit and electric and autonomous vehicles; and preserve green space while investing in a green infrastructure that pushes Fairfax toward a carbon-neutral future.

Opportunity: We need to prepare our community members for the jobs of the future by creating apprenticeships and building innovation labs in schools; develop small-business incubators in vacant office space; and build affordable housing

Changing Political Landscape

Don’t miss vote June 11 or before to have a say in the biggest political change in years.

On June 11, 2019 a revolution is inevitable, but its effects won’t be fully in place for months.

First any Virginia voter can participate in the Democratic primary because voters in Virginia do not register by party.

Second almost every candidate is describing themselves as progressive. There are of course degrees of progressive. You’ll have to tease out for yourself what matters to you. Is the county on the right track in the things that matter? If you think the county has done enough in affordable housing, is on the right path in terms of criminal justice reform and racial and economic equity, then voting for the few longtime incumbents might be right for you. If your vision of a progressive county is a bit beyond the status quo, then you have other choices.

Every Democratic primary voter in Fairfax County will choose candidates for two critical county-wide positions, Chairman of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors and Fairfax County Commonwealth’s Attorney.

Early voting has begun already, but the cut-off to register to vote is in less than a week, June 11. It’s a huge opportunity for voters in Virginia to enact the change they want to see.

Any Virginia voter who wants to be a supervisor in Fairfax, will be fully in place for months.

‘Honey Trap’ of Campaign Contributions

To the Editor:

There were early warnings. In 2013, seven Fairfax Supervisors had to recuse themselves from a decision, because they had financial ties with the developers requesting the change. A major land-use decision was made with three votes instead of ten. Six districts (and the Chair’s vote) were without representation in that decision. NOVA won the vote, but did Fairfax? With the upcoming election for so many open Board of Supervisor seats, it’s time for Fairfax voters to step up and identify candidates that are right for us and not for developers.

We need to start by realizing who wants to be a supervisor in Fairfax. In many districts, developers themselves are running to be supervisors. Some of the candidates, according to VPAPORG, have more than 30 percent of their campaign funds coming from the “real estate/construction” category. A current district supervisor, who sat through this development rampage for more than 12 years, now wants to be Chair.

But not all candidates will fall into the campaign contribution “Honey Trap.” A number of candidates have taken the pledge to not accept any money from developers — and those are the ones we should invest our trust with our vote.

I want my Supervisors to never have to recuse themselves when faced with a land-use decision. I want my Supervisors to commit to ensuring Fairfax supports all ranges of income and age in land-use plans — so those who want to grow old here can; those who want to live where they work can; those who want to move forward in life and have good opportunities, regardless of background or other social factors, can.

Just because a politician can take unlimited contributions from developers and special interests under Virginia law (unlike Maryland or DC), doesn’t mean they should. Development should not be a “trickle down” economic policy in Fairfax. Let’s elect leaders who will put the interests of Fairfax residents first.

Alarm Over Trash Pileup

again in response to Forbes’ next question. “How many have waited more than a week and still have that trash sitting outside their home?”

Patton was among a handful at the meeting who have waited two, and sometimes three weeks or longer for her refuse to be collected.

Forbes was sympathetic to the plight of the Great Falls residents who recounted their trash woes, but he did make clear just what the county could – and could not do – on behalf of its citizens.

“We have no say in rates, what a company charges you for services, nor do we have any legal ability to demand refunds or rebates for services you did not receive.” The county can suggest rebates for services you did not receive. “Let us see if we can get that taken care of,” he said.

The Consent Agreement which Forbes thought would be finalized within a week or so, may now take a bit longer.

At the May 7 Board of Supervisors Meeting, John Cook (Braddock) and Kathy Smith (Sully) jointly asked that the county legal staff review not only the consent agreement, but the entire situation for board discussion during their closed session on May 21.

Cook echoed Forbes’ explanation about driver shortages - “Nation-wide there was a shortage of about 48,000 drivers reported as of 2015, and predictions are for greater shortage in the future, but a contract is a contract. If you have to pay your people more, then pay them more,” he noted, warning that we may all see an increase in fees for refuse removal before long in order to solve the situation.

Cook also praised county staff for taking the initiative to step in and “help American solve American’s problem,” but added that while the county would always be willing to assist, “it is [American’s] problem to fix.”

AT THE SAME BOARD MEETING, Supervisor Jeff McKay added that the upcoming closed session should also review the effect on neighborhood streets and infrastructure and quality of life as more residents abandoned American Disposal for other vendors, sometimes resulting in heavy trash trucks rolling through neighborhoods 5 days per week.

Supervisor Gross, who chairs the Board’s Environment Committee, announced that the situation would also be discussed at the committee’s June 18 meeting.

“We need to look at capacity as well,” said Gross, indicating that waste management in the county was a larger issue.

Supervisor Herrity agreed that the county needed to review its legal options, but expressed the hope that the further discussions and reviews, while important, would not derail the Consent Agreement in progress.

He did remind the Board that other companies were receiving similar complaints, but that while driver shortage may be the main cause, “there isn’t a shortage of communications people” and that the companies should be communicating with their customers about disruptions and resolutions.

Herrity also asked that particular attention be paid to “our townhouse communities” who generally don’t have trash bins for trash storage and thus may simply have bagged trash left awaiting collection.

While the county helps the company clean up its act, residents are urged to first contact their waste management provider if there are problems. The county has no say in rates or refunds, but if, after contacting the trash company, a resident’s trash remains uncollected, or they are concerned about health and safety issues, they may email the county at trashmail@fairfaxcounty.gov to record their complaint and request assistance.

Choosing Swimming Lessons

What can parents do if child is afraid of the water.

By Marilyn Campbell

The start of summer just around the corner and for some, warm weather is synonymous with trips to a pool or beach. Swimming lessons are one the minds of many parents. May is National Water Safety Month, an effort designed to prevent illness, injury and death as a result of contact with the water. Part of a parent’s role in ensuring safety for their children is knowing the factors to consider when looking for swimming lessons.

“We are starting get out and enjoy the water,” said Aleatha Ezra, of The World’s Largest Swimming Lesson, an event on June 20 designed to raise awareness of the importance of knowing how to swim. “We want to emphasize the importance of learning to swim, finding lessons and taking them seriously.”

When looking for lessons, parents should inquire about the training of those who will be in charge of teaching their children. “We require all of our swim instructors to pass a certified lifeguard course,” said Tommy Hamilton, Regional Manager at Goldfish Swim School of Reston, Falls Church and Alexandria. “In addition to this course all of our instructors also go through at least 40 hours of hands on training on our proprietary curriculum.”

In order for lessons to be effective, the student teacher ratio should be as low as possible, advises Hamilton. “We believe that this gives them suitable time in the water practicing their skills as well as enough rest in between each skill,” he said. “The small class sizes also allow us to maintain a high standard for safety.”

The swim school should assess a child’s ability and have a curriculum with a clearly defined plan that allows a child to advance as they gain skills. “For example, we have a progressive curriculum. Our beginner swim classes start with basics like teaching kids to put their face in the water,” said Jamel Wright, a swimming instructor for SafeSplash Swim School in Bethesda. “It moves through phases like stroke development and advances through competition level as the children are assessed and their swimming skills improve.”

Parents should be allowed to observe their child’s lessons, said Hamilton. “We love when parents get involved in the progress of their children,” he said. “We believe this to be crucial to their growth. We keep our pool deck at a warm 90 degrees so we have large glass windows in our lobby so parents can be comfortable and watch the entire lesson.”

Another factor to consider is whether or not there is a lifeguard on duty who can watch those in the water at all times. Water quality should be another concern. “We can close our eyes briefly and go to a quiet, comfortable place. After we are relaxed, we should watch others who enjoy swimming and imagine doing it ourselves successfully. Then move forward in small steps to shallow water, slowly submerge the body, and practice floating with someone close by to support you. Take a break if there is discomfort but try again soon to make more progress.”

Read story books on children who were afraid to swim but were successful, advises Carol Barnaby, LCSW l. “Scared children are already tackling emotional burdens and don’t need to see, hear, or feel their parents frustration, she said. “Take your child’s fear seriously and acknowledge it. Let them know that you understand that they are scared. Start swim lessons out of the water so that there can be trust established this will make them feel safe and ready to learn.”

Barnaby continued, “Let your child know that you believe in them and that you have confidence they will succeed at their goal. Praise all efforts and offer physical reassurance when they leave the water. Children who receive positive reinforcement will try harder even when they are scared. Give your child frequent reassurance that they are safe and help is there.”

Veteran United States Army Presidential Guard
Q: Why are you running?
A: I’m no stranger to hard work. My mother and I were homeless for a portion of my childhood. You don’t go from youth homelessness to managing a $13 billion agency overnight. I have spent my life building things, solving problems, and serving my community.
I have the real world experience that it will take to help Fairfax County move forward, and I am prepared to take my service to a new level as Chair of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors.
I have spent my career building affordable housing...with the VHDA we made it possible for thousands of moderate income Virginians to buy a home.

Q: Key ways you differ from your opponents?
A: I am the only candidate committed to putting voters first by refusing to accept political contributions from real estate developers. That is a conflict of interest. I am the only lawyer, experienced in bringing private sector, small business to the table.

Q: What are the top issues in your district and what solutions do you propose?
A: To foster liveable, affordable communities where people who work here can afford to live here.
To develop a vibrant economy that creates quality jobs and restores a clean, sustainable environment.
To ensure our high quality public schools meet the needs of students in every part of the county, no matter one’s zip code.

Q: Why are you running?
A: I am running to improve the quality of life for every Fairfax County resident. I see other municipalities passing us by, whether on environmental action, public transit, living wages, affordable housing, or educational investment.

News
Each May, Celebrate Great Falls hosts a day on the course and putting green, along with an online auction to raise money for three local elementary schools, this year at River Bend Golf and Country Club. Co-chairs Meredith Broome, Dennis Peery, and Kristin Dailey have made several changes to the event this year to draw community interest and participation.

Between the new location and new offering this year, the tournament committee is hoping to exceed last year’s extraordinary success, which netted a total of $39,000.

The committee also significantly increased its efforts this year with respect to the Silent Auction. Live since May 6, the auction raised nearly $15,000 within only half of the two weeks bidding is open. Pam Trimble, a new committee member this year and co-coordinator of the auction, said, “We have more than 250 items up for bid, 100 more than we did in 2018, and there is something for everyone.” Go to http://www.32auctions.com/CGFF2019 to register to bid today on hundreds of items, including stays at any Waldorf Astoria worldwide & the Greenbrier, a variety of summer camps, gift certificates to restaurants, golf foursomes, concert tickets, private chef dinners, salon and spa services, priceless school-donated items like “Principal for a Day” and more.

The Kids’ Putting Contest, sponsored by AOG Wealth Management, will take place at 5 p.m. on the day of the tournament. Kids of all ages will grab a putter and participate in some friendly competition among their grade levels and school.

Go to www.greatfallsgolf.org to register for the putting contest, the family buffet dinner and awards reception, and to volunteer to help on the day of the event.

The tournament’s Grand Sponsor is Garai Orthodontic Specialist. The Major Sponsors for the event include Cornerstone Building Services, Costa Family & Cosmetic Dentistry, Digital Global Connectors, & Green Hill Landscaping.
Submit civic/community announcements at ConnectionNewspapers.com/Calendar. Photos and artwork welcome. Deadline is Thursday at noon, at least two weeks before event.

The Weak Of

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Concerning the three ‘weeks’ during which this arc will publish: last week’s ‘The Week Before,’ this week’s ‘The Week Of’ and next week’s ‘The Weak After,’ this week’s ‘The Week Of’ is actually for my May-June monthly CT scan (and as it coincides occasionally, my semiautumnal brain MRI), is the easiest.

The actual occurrence of my scan is since I’m on site and “gowned up” waiting to hear my name called. And the worry of the results has not yet seeped in because the scanning process has barely begun and nothing will happen and or be expected to be communicated in the next few days anyway.

One week – when I know the results are somewhere and I’ve never received any feedback from my oncologist, within five days or so – is when I’ll begin to stress for all the reasons with which you regular readers are familiar.

What this “The Weak Of” means to me is progress. And even though that ‘progress’ could mean some following news, it could also mean that my status is quo.

And as difficult as hearing that the CT scan showed growth in the brain MRI showed something more, at least we’d gain some knowledge that we didn’t have previously, and that knowledge will be crucial as new treatment options are considered.

However, it’s not as if I feel I’m in the dark during the intervals between scans. Hardly. It’s more that I’m in a situation where knowledge is a powerful tool and the more of it my doctors, particularly my oncologist, have about me, the better.

The only problem? The frequency of these recurring diagnostic scans means nearly every week, bi-weekly, immunotherapy, infusions, not-withstanding, I’m in some kind of ‘week.’

As you all know, I can compartmentalize but, I’m afraid the compartments are starting to fill up. Ten plus years of surviving cancer will do that.

The CT scan and MRI appointments, in and of themselves are not compartment-filling though. Having had over 50 of them by now, I’m unaffected. Moreover I drive the same route to the same facility and are tended to by the same technicians, which you regular readers are familiar.

But for the time ‘weak’ being, I will enjoy the challenge. One never knows. These three ‘weeks’ I can manage. We’ll see about the next one.
