Meet the Candidates for County Board Chairman

Four to contend in June 11 Democratic Primary to seek to replace retiring Sharon Bulova.

BY ANDREA WORKER
THE CONNECTION

As Chair of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors Sharon Bulova prepares to retire at the end of the year, four Democrats have come forward, looking to fill her spot as the county's top elected official. With multiple candidates, election rules call for a Primary Election to decide a winner who will go on to the November 5 ballot, when all of the Board member seats will be up for grabs.

Vying for the position are:

❖ Current Lee District Supervisor Jeff C. McKay, who has served on the Board since 2007.

❖ Ryan McElveen, At-Large Member, Fairfax County Public Schools Board since 2012.

❖ Tim Chapman, Reston-based real estate developer and businessmen

❖ Alicia Plerhoples, tenured law professor at Georgetown Law.

The Connection sent out identical questionnaires to all four, asking each to provide voters with some basic information about themselves, and then to explain why they are running, what they see as the top issues facing the county, and in what key ways they differ from their opponents.

Here are their responses:

Jeffrey C. McKay

Age: 43

Education: James Madison University (1996), Sorensen Institute for Political Leadership (1998)

Family: Wife, Crystal, children Leann and Aidan, retired racing greyhound Pascal.

Native of: Fairfax County
Moved to Your District: Lifelong Lee District resident

Prior and current professional, political and civic experiences, community involvement, etc.:

❖ Fairfax County Board of Supervisors – Lee District

❖ Chairman, Budget Committee, Board of Supervisors

❖ Chairman, Legislative Committee

❖ Co-Chair, Revitalization Committee

❖ Member, Successful Children and Youth Policy Team

❖ Member, Northern Virginia Regional Commission

❖ Member, Virginia Railway Express Board

❖ First VP, Virginia Assoc. of Counties Board of Directors

❖ Two-time former Chair, current Member, Northern Virginia Transportation Commission

❖ Coach, Woodlawn Little League, Pioneer Baseball League, Mount Vernon Sports Club

Q: Why are you running?

A: I am a lifelong Fairfax County resident, proudly born and raised along the Route One Corridor. From an early age, my grandmother instilled in me the importance of helping others, especially those less fortunate than ourselves. Those teachings, combined with my own experiences ... are the reasons why I ultimately sought public office.

I am running for Chairman this year to build on the successes we've had and to push us forward ... I'm proud of Fairfax County and the community we've built together. Now, more than ever, those values we've instilled and the work we've done are at risk. We need to fight for all residents and communities throughout our county.

Q: What are the top issues in your district and what solutions do you propose?

A:

❖ Creating a Fairfax County that works for all (One Fairfax)

❖ Investing in people by supporting the environment, affordable housing, transportation infrastructure, and education

❖ Creating jobs and economic opportunities in all areas of the county

Q: Key ways you differ from your opponents.

A: Having served on the Board of Supervisors for the past 11 years, I am the only candidate with Board experience and who has been a state, regional and countywide leader. I've balanced budgets and created countywide legislative agendas that have made us a progressive national leader in education, job growth, human services, and quality of life, while also ensuring we're protecting our environment and fighting for affordable housing.

I have the knowledge, experience, and relationships it takes to be a successful chairman, and I am excited for the opportunity before us.

The Democratic candidates for the Chair of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors, heading for the June 11 Primary election, debate at a live, televised event, hosted by the Fairfax Healthy Communities Coalition. Coalition member and event moderator Pastor Sarah Scherschligt is flanked by candidates Tim Chapman and Alicia Plerhoples on the left, and Jeff McKay, Lee District Supervisor, and Ryan McElveen, At-Large member of the FC Public Schools Board on the right.

Ryan McElveen

Age: 33

Education: Columbia University, Master of International Affairs in Human Rights (2011); Univ. of Virginia, B.A. Anthropology and East Asian Studies (2008); George C. Marshall High School (2004)

Family: Wife Xuan, daughter Sierra

Native of: Raised in the Vienna-Tysons area

Moved to Your District: Lifelong resident of Fairfax County

Prior and current professional, political and civic experiences, community involvement, etc.:

❖ At-large Member, Fairfax County School Board 2012-Present

❖ Assoc. Director, John L. Thornton China Center, the Brookings Institution, 2013 - Present

❖ International Operations and Policy, the Boeing Company

❖ Co-Chair, Revitalization Committee, FC Board of Supervisors.

❖ Communications, Clinton Foundation and Clinton Global Initiative

❖ Researcher, Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, U.S. Senate

❖ Asst. Director, Univ. of Virginia Center in Shanghai, China

Q: Why are you running?

A: After spending the better part of my time on the School Board as witness to chronically underfunded school system budgets, I decided to run for Chairman when I realized that there was no one else in the race who would be as strong an advocate for our schools and children as I would be.

Since January, I have been saying that we are two Fairfaxes. The development patterns that have been promoted by past Boards of Supervisors have led to the stark divides between the "haves" and "have nots" in Fairfax County. ...

We need to turn our attention to the areas and populations that will benefit from neither Amazon and a growing tech sector nor higher property values. All of our residents need to have a voice. I will purposefully work to narrow that gap and provide more seats at the table, making sure that our diverse community is better represented by our leadership.

Q: What are the top issues in your district and what solutions do you propose?

A: The three most important issues and opportunities that Fairfax needs to address are in the areas of education, innovation and opportunity. *Education: We need to fully fund our schools and implement universal pre-Kindergarten so that our students enter school ready to succeed.

*Innovation: We need to connect all residents to the internet; create transportation networks that accommodate expanded public transit and electric and autonomous vehicles; and preserve green space while investing in a green infrastructure that pushes Fairfax toward a carbon-neutral future.

*Opportunity: We need to prepare our community members for the jobs of the future by creating apprenticeships and building innovation labs in schools; develop small-business incubators in vacant office space; and build affordable housing throughout our community.

Meet the Candidates

Q: Key ways you differ from your opponents.

A: I am the only candidate in this race who has experience as an elected official representing all Fairfax residents and overseeing 53 percent of the county budget as a School Board member. I am also the only candidate who, through years of working in international business and think tank environments, has built global networks that can help our county become a model for international business development and investment. Perhaps most importantly, I am an outsider to the Board of Supervisors.

My roles as a FCPS graduate, a Fairfax parent, a School Board member, a global thinker and candidate for Chair have one thread: a dedication to the county that I love. I want to make sure everyone who calls this place home is able to give back to it as I have sought to do and achieve the American Dream.

Alicia Plerhoples

Age:

Education: Harvard College (B.A.)

Yale Law School (J.D.)

Princeton University,

Woodrow Wilson School (M.P.A)

Family: Daughters

Native of:

Moved to Your District:

Prior and current professional, political and civic experiences, community involvement, etc.:

- ❖ Tenured law professor, Georgetown Law

- ❖ Founder of a public interest law center, advising small businesses, social enterprises, startups and nonprofits

- ❖ Formerly a corporate finance attorney at Cooley LLP

- ❖ Formerly a real estate finance attorney at DLA Piper LLP

- ❖ Recipient of the American Bar Association's 2017 Outstanding Nonprofit Lawyer Award

- ❖ Elected member of the Governing Board of the McLean Community Center

- ❖ PTA president at daughters' public school

- ❖ Member, FCPS Board's Human Resources Advisory Committee

Alicia Plerhoples

Q: Why are you running?

A: I am running to improve the quality of life for every Fairfax County resident. I see other municipalities passing us by, whether on environmental action, public transit, living wages, affordable housing, or educational investment.

Q: What are the top issues in your district and what solutions do you propose:

- ❖ To foster liveable, affordable communities where people who work here can afford to live here

- ❖ To develop a vibrant economy that creates quality jobs and restores a clean, sustainable environment

- ❖ To ensure our high quality public schools meet the needs of students in every part of the county, no matter one's zip code.

Q: Key ways you differ from your opponents?

A: I am the only candidate committed to putting voters first by refusing to accept political contributions from real estate developers. That is a conflict of interest.

I am the only lawyer, experienced in bringing private sector, small business to the table.

Tim Chapman

Age:

Education: Emerson High School

Family: Wife, Julianna, 5 children

Native of: Maryland

Moved to Your District: 2005

Prior and current professional, political and civic experiences, community involvement, etc.:

- ❖ Real Estate developer

- ❖ Appointee to Virginia Housing Development Authority (VHDA) by Gov. McAuliffe

- ❖ Elected Chair of VHDA. During my tenure at the VHDA, I helped invest billions of dollars into affordable housing projects, and helped thousands of families buy their first homes.

- ❖ Board member homeless shelter in Washington, D.C.

- ❖ Veteran United States Army Presidential Guard

Q: Why are you running?

A: I am running for Chair of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors because I want to extend the opportunities for success I've had to all of our Fairfax County neighbors. I love living in Fairfax County, but our community, like the bottom side of a pancake, is not perfect. We are one of the wealthiest counties in the United States, but deep-rooted inequality remains.

These inequalities are rooted in a closed political system that for decades has served only the wealthy and well-connected...stifling competition from outsiders and has relegated the Board of Supervisors to a land use and zoning review board. We can do better.

I want to give a voice to the working class families and underserved communities in Fairfax County, and to address problems that affect everyone. Together, we can create a more equitable prosperity in Fairfax County.

Q: Key ways you differ from your opponents?

A: ❖ Background in business, development and managing large enterprises

- ❖ I'm no stranger to hard work. My mother and I were homeless for a portion of my childhood. You don't go from youth homelessness to managing a $13 billion agency overnight. I have spent my life building things, solving problems, and serving my community.

❖ I have the real world experience that it will take to help Fairfax County move forward, and I am prepared to take my service to a new level as Chair of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors.

- ❖ I have spent my career building affordable housing...with the VHDA we made it possible for thousands of moderate income Virginians to buy a home. These experiences uniquely position me to lead Fairfax County towards a brighter future.

Changing Political Landscape

Don't miss vote June 11 or before to have a say in the biggest political change in years.

On June 11, 2019 a revolution is scheduled. There will be no blood. Change, massive change, is inevitable, but its effects won't be fully in place for months.

Many of the powers that be in Fairfax County will step down at the end of the year, taking with them decades of historic understanding and institutional knowledge. EDITORIAL Voters will choose their replacements, for the most part, on June 11. It's a huge opportunity for voters in Virginia to enact the change they want to see.

First any Virginia voter can participate in the Democratic primary because voters in Virginia do not register by party.

Second almost every candidate is describing themselves as progressive. There are of course degrees of progressive. You'll have to tease out for yourself what matters to you. Is the county on the right track in the things that matter? If you think the county has done enough in affordable housing, is on the right path in terms of criminal justice reform and racial and economic equity, then voting for the few longtime incumbents might be right for you. If your vision of a progressive county is a bit beyond the status quo, then you have other choices.

Every Democratic primary voter in Fairfax County will choose candidates for two critical county wide positions, Chairman of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors and Fairfax County Commonwealth's Attorney.

Early voting has begun already, but the cut-off to register to vote is in less than a week, May 20. You have to register (at your current address) and actually vote to have a say in

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

'Honey Trap' of Campaign Contributions

To the Editor:

What is the contribution "tipping point" that changes an elected official's perspective towards favoring their donors over the needs of the community? When is that unconscious sense of gratitude for a gift turned on?

Developers have wielded considerable influence in Fairfax County politics for years. Fairfax County residents are currently dealing with long commutes, or expensive mass transit only accessible to those who live near to it. Residents are also exposed to polluted air, dangerous travel conditions for walkers and bikers, and unaffordable rent, all within the county. Why did we allow this to happen?

There were early warnings. In 2013, seven Fairfax Supervisors had to recuse themselves from a decision, because they had financial ties with the developers requesting the change. A major land-use decision was made with three votes instead of ten. Six districts (and the Chair's vote) were without representation in that decision. INOVA won the vote, but did Fairfax? With the upcoming election for so many open Board of Supervisor seats, it's time for Fairfax voters to step up and identify candidates that will work for us and not for developers.

We need to start by realizing who wants to be a supervisor in Fairfax. In many districts, developers themselves are running to be choices that could define the direction of the county for the foreseeable future. With four or five candidates vying for quite a few seats, a small number of votes could decide.

Don't miss out.

ensuring Fairfax supports all ranges of income and age in land-use plans - so those who want to grow old here can; those who want to live where they work can; those who want to move forward in life and have good opportunities, regardless of background or other social factors, can.

Just because a politician can take unlimited contributions from developers and special interests under Virginia law (unlike Maryland or DC), doesn't mean they should. Development should not be a "trickle down" economic policy in Fairfax. Let's elect leaders who will put the interests of Fairfax residents first.

Race for County's Top Spot Heats up

'Vote like your life depends on it.'

BY ANDREA WORKER
THE CONNECTION

In a rare shake-up of the county's Board of Supervisors, at least five of the ten seats – four magisterial district representatives and the Chairman – will change hands as current Chair Sharon Bulova retires at the end of this term, and supervisors Cathy Hudgins (Hunter Mill), John Cook (Braddock), and Linda Smyth (Providence) have all declined to seek re-election. Voters will choose likely successors on Primary Election Day, Tuesday, June 11, 2019.

Lee District Supervisor Jeff McKay, who has served on the board since 2007, will vacate his seat to seek elevation to the chairmanship. Both Supervisor Penny Gross (D-Mason) and Supervisor Pat Herrity (R-Springfield) face challengers in the fall. Incumbent Supervisors Kathy Smith (D-Sully), John Foust (D-Dranesville), and Daniel Storck (D-Mt. Vernon) are running unopposed.

Future editions of the Connection will spotlight the Democratic candidates who will be on the Primary ballot for other seats on the Board of Supervisors – and there are a lot of them. Five for the Providence District, five for Hunter Mill, four in Lee and two in Braddock.

Incumbent Commonwealth's Attorney Ray Murrough faces a Democratic challenger in the primary, Steve Descano.

Jeff McKay is currently a Board Member, representing the constituents of the Lee District. Even with his years of immediate experience with the workings of Fairfax County government, McKay is being given a run for his money by Ryan McElveen, the At-Large Member of the Fairfax County School Board since 2012, Reston-based businessman Tim Chapman, and Georgetown law professor and founder of a public interest law center, Alicia Plerhopes.

The debates, forums and meet-and-greets featuring the four are coming fast and furious as the Primary date approaches.

ON MONDAY, MAY 13, they participated in a televised debate at the studios of the Fairfax County Public Access Television station, hosted by Fairfax Healthy Communities Coalition and moderated by Pastor Sarah Scherschligt of Peace Lutheran Church. Scherschligt is also a board member of influential nonprofit Faith Alliance for Climate Solutions. Her Faith Alliance colleagues Scott Peterson and Meg Mall were in attendance at the live event to act as timekeepers for the debaters.

The candidates were each given a few minutes for opening and closing statements, which bookended 50 minutes of questions posed by Scherschligt on topics ranging from their proposed actions to reduce greenhouse gases in the county, to how to address the affordable housing shortage, and from how to insure implementation of the county's One Fairfax equity directive to solutions for multi-modal transportation improvements in the region.

Throughout the event, McKay, a life-long resident of the county, emphasized not only his experience, but the relationships that he has built locally, regionally and in Richmond and beyond during his terms, citing them as one key factor separating him from his opponents.

"This is not the time to take the chance on people who don't have the experience to run, to govern," said McKay, insisting that those relationships and his working knowledge of the complexities of running a diverse county of more than a million residents are vital to our continued growth and success.

In addition to representing the Lee District on the Board, McKay also chairs the Budget and Legislative Committees and has held leadership roles with a number of the region's committees and task forces on transportation, revitalization and health planning, among others. McKay readily admits the county has problems – "Big ones that we need to solve quickly and for our future" – but he remains proud of Fairfax County and the accomplishments that its residents, businesses, nonprofits and government have created. He cites the many areas in which the area sets the example for the state and the country.

McElveen emphasized his background on the county's school board – a key driver of the county's economy and an attraction for current residents and those considering relocation of residence and/or businesses – but on the fact that he is "the only one running who has represented the entire county," elected to the School Board at Large. He also touted his international ties through his "day job" with the Brookings Institute and other avenues, as ways in which he can expand the solutions pool and bring additional energy to the county's affairs.

McElveen numerated climate change initiatives he has spearheaded at school facilities from installation of solar panels, to

Choosing Swimming Lessons

What can parents do if child is afraid of the water.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL

The start of summer just around the corner and for some, warm weather is synonymous with trips to a pool or beach. swimming lessons are one the minds of many parents. May is National Water Safety Month, an effort designed to prevent illness, injury and death as a result of contact with the water. Part of a parent's role in ensuring safety for their children is knowing the factors to consider when looking for swimming lessons.

"People are starting get out and enjoy the water," said Aleatha Ezra, of The World's Largest Swimming Lesson, an event on June 20 designed to raise awareness of the importance of knowing how to swim. "We want to emphasis the importance to learning to swim, finding lessons and taking them seriously."

When looking for lessons, parents should inquire about the training of those who will be in charge of teaching their children. "We require all of our swim instructors to pass a certified lifeguard course," said Tommy Hamilton, Regional Manager at Goldfish Swim School of Reston, Falls Church and Alexandria. "In addition to this course all of our instructors also go through at least 40 hours of hands on training on our proprietary curriculum."

In order for lessons to be effective, the student teacher ratio should be as low as possible, advises Hamilton. "We believe that this gives them suitable time in the water practicing their skills as well as enough rest in between each skill," he said. "The small class sizes also allow us to maintain a high standard for safety."

The swim school should assess a child's ability and have a curriculum with a clearly defined plan that allows a child to advance as they gain skills.

"For example, we have a progressive curriculum. Our beginner swim classes start with basics like teaching kids to put their face in the water," said Jamel Wright, a swimming instructor for SafeSplash Swim School in Bethesda. "It moves through [phases] like stroke development and advances through competition level as the children are assessed and their swimming skills improve."

Parents should be allowed to observe their child's lessons, said Hamilton. "We love when parents get involved in the progress of their children," he said. "We believe this to be crucial to their growth. We keep our pool deck at a warm 90 degrees so we have large glass windows in our lobby so parents can be comfortable and watch the entire lesson."

Another factor to consider is whether or not there is a lifeguard on duty who can watch those in the water at all times. Water quality should be another concern. "Smell to make sure there are no strong chemical smells, which is not a sign of proper chlorination but rather contamination," said Shannon McKeon, Environmental Health Specialist. "Ask to see water quality reports that should be posted at every public pool."

There are times when a child has an extreme fear of water, but safety experts advise continuing the lessons with an instructor who is able to assist parents in helping a child overcome that fear.

"To cope with swimming fears, we should first relax with slow, deep, nose breathing," said Jerome Short, Ph.D. Licensed Clinical Psychologist and Associate Professor of Psychology at George Mason University. "We can close our eyes briefly and go to a quiet, comfortable place. After we are relaxed, we should watch others who enjoy swimming and imagine doing it ourselves successfully. Then move forward in small steps to shallow water, slowly submerge the body, and practice floating with someone close by to support you. Take a break if there is discomfort but try again soon to make more progress."

Read story books on children who were afraid to swim but were successful, advises Carol Barnaby, LCSW I. "Scared children are already tackling emotional burdens and don't need to see, hear, or feel their parents frustration, she said. "Take your child's fear seriously and acknowledge it. Let them know that you understand that they are scared. Start swim lessons out of the water so that there can be trust established this will make them feel safe and ready to learn."

Barnaby continued, "Let your child know that you believe in them and that you have confidence they will succeed at their goal."

Praise all efforts and offer physical reassurance when they leave the water. Children who receive positive reinforcement will try harder even when they are scared. Give your child frequent reassurance that they are safe and help is there."

McLean AAUW Turns 50

BY STEVE HIBBARD
THE CONNECTION

It was a night of pure nostalgia. Almost 100 guests helped celebrate the 50th Anniversary of the McLean branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) last Saturday, May 11, 2019, at the McLean Community Center. Highlights of the evening were the return of 19 past branch presidents, two of whom came from New Mexico, one from New Jersey, and one from Miami. The total membership is roughly 120 members; one member who was honored, Suzanne Watts, will be 97 years old in June.

THERE WERE GREETINGS from Virginia AAUW Co-President Leslie Tourigny. Supervisor John Foust (Dranesville) presented a Proclamation from the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors honoring the club for its work over 50 years. There was a 1969 Trivia Quiz, a video and scrapbooks from 1969, as well as musician Rodney Kelley who played tunes from that era. Event Chair Caroline Pickens gave a “Back to 1969” presentation and highlights of the Branch’s 50 years. The catering was provided by Kimberly’s Corporate Catering and a cake came from Balducci’s; “My Florist” did the floral centerpieces.

According to co-President Myrtle Hendricks-Corrales: “We’re celebrating 50 years of our branch and the work they have done to support the mission of AAUW, which is to advance equity for women and girls. And we’re celebrating all the successes we’ve had with our scholarships and our international fellowships,” she said.

Co-President Betsy Schroeder said: “We give awards to high school girls, juniors who have demonstrated excellence in math or science in their schools. Tonight, we have with us our STEM award winner (Hana Abouelenein) who had the best project by a girl in the Engineering category in the Fairfax County Science Fair.”

Added Judy Page, STEM Chair for the AAUW McLean area branch: “This year’s winner created a project related to creating a neural network that would help differentiate cancerous from noncancerous skin cells. We find that by recognizing young women at the high school level in engineering, we’re able to encourage them to pursue further studies in science, math and engineering.”

Hendricks-Corrales added: “We also have members who have been going down to Congress for 20 years every Thursday; we’re part of the national AAUW Lobby Corps, and we lobby for legislation that helps women and families — like Title IX, Equal Pay, and all equity for women.”

According to Pickens: “One of the major things AAUW does is a used book sale, which for the past 13 years has grossed more than $40,000. The money goes to fellowships and scholarships to women who are going back to college, who never finished for one reason or another. They offer $4,500 to $5,000 scholarships for women to Trinity University, Marymount University and George Mason University.”

WHEN THE CLUB STARTED in 1969, it had 15 women; by the time they were chartered, that number grew to 35. Within three years, they had 120 members who joined. “So, it was obviously something that a lot of women were interested at that time; it was a very fertile time from 1969-1970,” said Pickens.

Elaine Lailas was one of those first AAUW women members. A lifetime AAUW member, she flew in from Miami to be at the celebration; she now lives part-time in Leesburg and was an original member of the Springfield-Annandale branch in the late 1960s and was instrumental when the McLean branch was starting.

“I came from a very large branch – Springfield-Annandale — and the McLean branch became a large branch itself. I was the state president of AAUW here in Virginia and then I joined this branch, and being very active in the branch, when I arrived here (McLean) in 1982, I was asked to run for the National Board, but I also was with the AAUW Legislative Committee, and was on the Lobby Corps,” she said.

The 50th Celebration Committee was composed of: Aroona Borpujari, Margie Broderick, Bettie Clark, Maureen Donahue, Angela Ehemann, Mary Anne Graham, Mimi Gronwald, Carol Langelier, Mary Lou Melley, Diana Parsell, Sultana Parveen, Doris Shank, Peggy Stotz, Janet Taylor and Caroline Pickens.

Candidates for County Board Chairman in Televised Debate championing school gardens and salad and other healthy items on school lunch menus.

Plerhoples and Chapman both emphasized resumes as players in the private sector, able to understand the needs of that sphere and how to bring a partnership of government, nonprofits and business to the table to innovate solutions to the region's challenges, Plerhoples leaning on her legal background, and Chapman as a real estate developer.

While the tone of the debate remained civil and the format did not allow for rebuttal comments, both Chapman and Plerhoples made it clear that they see the present leadership by the Fairfax County Board as "followers, not leaders," in Plerhoples words, and having failed on too many of the issues and taken too long to address others like affordable housing, according to Chapman.

Adding one person and $5 million to the county's FY2020 Budget isn't really tackling the problem of a lack of affordable housing in Chapman's opinion.

"We need speed and agility É the Board has been more focused on large developments" rather than on the affordable developments needed by working families, county personnel and other vulnerable citizens. Chapman says it's an issue that should have been addressed "more boldly years ago."

Like Chapman, Plerhoples recounts that "housing instability" was something she, too, experienced growing up, and she agrees that more needs to be done and with immediacy. "This is an issue that has reached crisis level."

On the subject of transportation in the area, all agreed that more needs to be done. McKay has been involved in all of the county's efforts to improve roadways, ex-

The Democratic candidates for the Chair of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors, heading for the June 11 Primary election, debate at a live, televised event, hosted by the Fairfax Healthy Communities Coalition. pand safe biking lanes, and support metro rail and bus transit and development around transit hubs to give more people the ability to "live, work, and play" without a painful commute.

Again, Plerhoples and Chapman argued that the county is behind on the issue and that regional partnerships need to be employed to tackle the situation more rapidly. "We're imprisoned in our cars É we need to look at other jurisdictions" to help solve this problem, said Chapman.

Plerhoples wants "more creative thinking on transportation." She does not think that enough attention is being paid to solving "that first mile and the last" that keep commuters from using public transportation. She also cautions that the "transit development model" where major development takes place around transit hubs has to be monitored to avoid "gentrification" of an area that could, in turn, further exacerbate the affordable housing shortage.

Along with more multi-jurisdictional planning and fighting for the state and federal funds needed, McElveen sees the need to expand the reach of the current metro rail system as part of the solution.

PASTOR SCHERSCHLIGHT questioned how each candidate would see that the One Fairfax initiative for equity is implemented, and how "good intentions turned into actions" in projects like the Route 1 corridor Embark amendment to the Comprehensive Plan.

"One Fairfax has no teeth," was Chapman's response. "The Chair needs to work with developers" to ensure the principles of One Fairfax are put into place.

Plerhoples says a "radical shift" is needed and is sceptical of the county's commitment when there is only "one person on county staff dedicated to One Fairfax. Every department should have an equity officer" or the like to bring the initiative to life.

The attorney noted her own experience running a public interest law center.

McElveen applauds the One Fairfax declaration but noted that in our schools, despite the wealth of our area, there are still many children in poverty and families that struggle. Fairfax County is also home to one-third of the state's English-as-a-Second Language students, reported McElveen, and the intentions of One Fairfax don't always translate into meeting their needs.

As one of the architects of One Fairfax, McKay defends the doctrine as the first steps, and more than what many other jurisdictions have taken. By adopting the plan and working to add accountability and measurable results, McKay sees Fairfax County as leading the way for others, while acknowledging that "our work is still unfinished." As Chairman, McKay wants to continue that work so that "all county residents share in the equal opportunity of One Fairfax."

The candidates will meet again on May 24, hosted by the Fairfax County Democratic Committee as they work to express their views to the voters and to differentiate themselves from each other.

With so much change at hand, and so much at stake, as Pastor Scherschligt urged at the conclusion of the televised debate, get informed and "vote like your life depends on it."

Life in Black and White

“The Member of the Wedding” at Tysons 1st Stage.

BY DAVID SIEGEL
THE CONNECTION

The drama begins with the bluesy notes of a solo trumpet. It grows into the touching 1st Stage production of Carson McCullers’ legendary “The Member of the Wedding.” It is a play about white and black individuals in situations not often seen on area stages.

Sensitively directed by Cara Gabriel, the 1st Stage production of “The Member of the Wedding” is far more than about a lonely 12-year old girl named Frankie (portrayed by Zoe Walpole as a hyper force of nature one moment and an utterly lost human being the next). As she says, “I wish I was somebody else besides me. If I had to be me for the rest of my life, I think I would die.”

Frankie longs to escape her isolated rural Deep South existence. She purposely bumps against society’s ingrained norms starting with her having her hair cut short. Frankie is also a girl whose mother died during childbirth and is being raised by a cold father and by the warm loving family housekeeper. On the cusp of her teenage years Frankie is seeking the “we of me,” through an unusual entanglement with her soon-to-be-wed brother and his bride-to-be.

Over time, Frankie’s family housekeeper, Bernice Sadie Brown takes on the central dramatic place in the production. Through Bernice (a vivid Deidra LaWan Starnes brightly incandescent when the moment requires and world weary the next) layer upon layer of emotional resonance takes center stage. It is through Bernice’s daily struggles with racism that the production becomes a force to emphatically examine embedded white privilege. (Please note that the “N” word is spoken.)

The journey with “The Member of the Wedding” includes the meticulous work of Rebecca Ballinger, Michael Crowley, Caroline Dubberly, Dylan J. Fleming, Jonathan Helwig, Jonathan Del Palme, and

Where and When

1st Stage presents “The Member of the Wedding” at 1524 Spring Hill Road, Tysons. Performances through June 2, 2019. Thursdays at 7:30 p.m., Fridays at 8 p.m., Saturdays at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. and Sundays at 2 p.m. Tickets: $39 (adults), $36 (seniors 65+), $15 (students and military). alternating in the role of Frankie’s six year old cousin John Henry West are William Carroccio and S. Gabriel Mackenna.

The production’s creative team has fabricated a set design so realistic one might think the oven worked and there were real crickets. The team includes Jonathan Dahm Robertson (set), Jason Arnold (lighting), Neil McFadden (sound) and Felysia Furnary (props). Costumes by Debra Kim Sivigny give both Frankie and Bernice a graphic visual depiction at any moment.

The 1st Stage production of “The Member of the Wedding” tunnels into audience hearts and souls on multiple levels until the solo trumpet is heard once again.

The Weak Of

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Concerning the three 'weaks' during which this arc will publish: last week's "The Weak Before," this week's "The Weak Of" and next week's "The Weak After," this week's "The Weak Of" when I actually lie down for my bi-monthly CT scan (and as it coincides occasionally, my semiannual brain MRI), is the easiest.

The worry of its occurrence is over, since I'm on site and "gowned up" waiting to hear my name called. And the worry of the results has not yet seeped in because the scanning process has barely begun and nothing will happen and/or be expected to be communicated in the next few days anyway.

Next week - when I know the results are somewhere and I've not received any feedback from my oncologist, within five days or so - is when I'll begin to stress for all the reasons with which you regular readers are familiar.

What this "The Weak Of" means to me is progress. And even though that 'progress' could mean disappointing news, it could also mean that my status is quo.

And as difficult as hearing that the CT scan showed growth and/or the brain MRI showed something more, at least we'd gain some knowledge that we didn't have previously, and that new knowledge will be crucial as new treatment options are considered.

However, it's not as if I feel I'm in the dark during the intervals between scans. Hardly. It's more that I'm in a situation where knowledge is a powerful tool and the more of it my doctors, particularly my oncologist, have about me, the better.

The only problem? The frequency of these recurring diagnostic scans means nearly every week, bi-weekly immunotherapy infusions notwithstanding, I'm in some kind of 'weak.'

As you all know, I can compartmentalize but, I'm afraid the compartments are starting to fill up. Ten-plus years of surviving cancer will do that.

The CT scan and MRI appointments, in and of themselves are not compartment-filling though. Having had over 50 of them by now, I'm unaffected. Moreover I drive the same route to the same facility and are tended to by the same technicians; my good luck charms, as I tell them.

They always greet me by name, smile and ask how I'm doing. I likewise reply in a positive way and thank them for the many good results I've had and encourage them to keep up the good work (I realize they have nothing to do with the actual results, good or bad, but I still like to prime the pump, so to speak).

And when the process is complete, I'll leave feeling more upbeat than when I arrived. A feeling which continues until the next week, 'the weak after.' That's when I'll feel the same kind of emotional jitters I experienced during 'the weak before.'

So, as I begin 'the weak of,' I begin it with hope and humor, my stock-in-trade. Hope for all the obvious reasons and humor because whatever happens, I'll likely make some joke about it and try to lighten the weight of it all with as light a touch as I can muster.

But for the time/'weak' being, I will enjoy the not-knowing the results and bask in the presumptive naivete. Because, if and when there is confirmation that my ship has sailed or that it's beginning to take on water, there might not be too much funny that I can say or do at that point to turn the tide.

Nevertheless, I'd like to think I'll be up to the challenge. One never knows. These three 'weaks' I can manage. We'll see about the next one.
