Local Philanthropist Selected for 2019 Chancellor’s Award

Commitment to community colleges cited.

Glenn Fatzinger, a Mount Vernon civic activist and philanthropist, was selected for the 2019 Chancellor’s Award for Leadership in Philanthropy for Virginia’s Community Colleges. The award, which he received this spring, was based on his longstanding support of Virginia’s Community Colleges. This included co-founding the Northern Virginia Community College Educational Foundation, and the establishment of an endowed nursing scholarship in honor of his wife, Harriet H. Fatzinger, who died in 2011. Two partial nursing scholarships are awarded annually to Northern Virginia Community College students in her memory. His most recent Chancellor’s Award resulted in one full scholarship to be awarded in his name to a community college student. Since 2011 he has raised more than $100,000 for the NOVA nursing scholarship program.

Asked what he is most proud of as a local civic activist, Fatzinger said his service on the board of the Mount Vernon Council of Citizens Associations; co-founded the Mount Vernon Community Band, and played for 35 years in the concert band of the Northern Virginia Community College; taught courses in business and history as an adjunct professor at the Northern Virginia Community College; co-founded the Northern Virginia Community College Foundation which has so far raised $25 million toward scholarships; served on the board of the Northern Virginia Community College (1978-85), and on the board of the Fairfax County Park Authority (1974-79) when he contributed to the effort to establish the Mount Vernon Recreation Center Indoor Ice Rink. In 2016, Fatzinger was appointed by the Board of Supervisors to the Fairfax County History Commission where he continues to serve as the secretary to the board.

Rising Waters Likely To Affect Dyke Marsh

NPS speaker warns of serious erosion.

By Gerald A. Fill
The Gazette

Significant habitat changes are likely at Dyke Marsh as a result of rising water levels, according to Geoffrey Sanders, a National Park Service biologist.

Sanders provided a detailed technical presentation on the rising water levels along Dyke Marsh and the surrounding area at the Huntley Meadows Park Meeting Room on May 15. His presentation reinforced the widely held assumption that rising sea levels are causing serious erosion of Dyke Marsh and other marshes and wetlands areas in this metro region. However, his modeling analysis did not include the impact of the Dyke Marsh / U.S. Army Corps of Engineers restoration efforts, which are in their formative stages.

Adding to the complexity of predicting the scope and character of rising sea level impacts was the announced temporary delay of restoration efforts due to current seasonal limits on construction to protect fish, birds, and other wildlife during their breeding and migration season. Therefore, Sanders was certain that the impact of rising water levels on Dyke Marsh was still significant, and continued to warn that the restoration efforts were crucial to stabilizing the marsh.

Helicopter Noise Irritates Homeowners

Davison Airfield in Fort Belvoir is not being neighborly, some residents say.

By Mike Salmon
THE GAZETTE

They're coming in low, out of the rising sun, the helicopters at Davison Airfield in Fort Belvoir, and the Mount Vernon residents that live around the Army base are not happy. The helicopters reportedly fly at all hours and the sound rattles the walls at some residences.

“They fly directly over our roof, you can hear the windows rattling,” said Christie Capps, a Lorton resident. “Sometimes it’s all night long,” she said.

The residents have been vocal about this noise invasion and in January, U.S. Rep. Don Beyer (D-8) was among several local politicians that sent out a release requesting a study of helicopter noise in the Washington, D.C. area. Their goal was to “identify strategies to minimize the negative impacts of helicopter activity without impeding the work of the agencies operating helicopters within the region.”

Beyer’s office is continuing to pursue a resolution. “Although I was unsuccessful last year, I am again pushing forward legislation in the 2016 National Defense Authorization Act that would review all helicopter flight paths in the National Capital Region, including those used by the Department of Defense, to assess whether some helicopter trips could be at higher altitudes, and if so, revise the official flight maps for the region. I’m also pushing forward legislation that would create a website for feedback and noise complaint recording, and seeking other potential opportunities for noise reduction,” he said.

Mount Vernon District Supervisor Dan Storck (D) has heard about it too and works with Beyer’s office. Fort Belvoir is a Federal base, and Fairfax County does not have much authority to enforce flight regulations. “We are regularly in contact with Congressman Beyer’s office and are currently awaiting information regarding what additional avenues there may be for residents,” said Camela Speers, communications director in Storck’s office.

According to Joe Richards, director of public affairs at Fort Belvoir, the amount of flights out of Davison has not spiked significantly lately though some residents feel it has. “The Fort Belvoir garrison has not been advised of any specific increase in regular scheduled flights into or out of the airfield. There are training requirements that are necessary to maintain proficiently, also unscheduled special missions are required that may appear to suggest that there is an increase in scheduled activity,” he said in an email.

Richards continued: “Davison is committed to being a good neighbor to the surrounding communities, users of Davison Army Airfield exercise leadership in achieving an appropriate balance between efficiency, technological practicability, and environmental concerns, while maintaining the highest level of safety in efforts to minimize aircraft noise while operating within the Davison Army Airfield local flying area.”

HELO HISTORY

Davison Airfield is on Fort Belvoir land between Richmond Highway and Telegraph Road. It was named for World War II aviation engineer Brig. Gen. Donald Angus Davison, according to information on Wikipedia. The airfield provided support for Army One from 1957 to 1976 for presidents Dwight Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, Richard Nixon, and Gerald Ford. Its role of support for the presidential helicopter ended in 1976 when responsibility for the helicopter was transferred to the United States Marine Corps. The Civil Air Patrol National Capital Wing uses a small tower for use during exercises and flights, and bases four small airplanes there, the Wikipedia page stated.

“Presently, the Army conducts continuous airfield and transportation operations in support of the National Capital Region, and Military District of Washington,” Richards said.

SHARING CONCERNS

On “Nextdoor Newington,” an interactive website where residents discuss various issues, the helicopters at Davison has caused a stir, even pitting some residents against one another. Responses came from Lorton Station, Terra Grande, Pohick Estates, Newington and Lorton. “I moved here 25 years ago and it was so quiet I didn’t even know Davison was there for years. And in all these years, I’ve never heard air traffic as bad as it has gotten in the past year,” said one resident. “Military helicopter traffic is heavy this morning and some are flying just above the treeline,” said another.

Then there was the airfield supporters. “Sorry — lived here all my life and my husband and I thoroughly enjoy this. We sit on our deck, identify each type and wave as they go overhead,” said one. “Maybe you shouldn’t have.

Rising Waters and Dyke Marsh

cautious with his conclusions because, as he pointed out, his analysis was not completed. He did ultimately say that significant erosion is taking place and was quoted as saying adverse habitat impacts were taking place as a result of rising water levels.

Glenda Booth, president of the Friends of Dyke Marsh, served as moderator and one of the co-sponsors of the event. “Dyke Marsh is a jewel and a complex ecosystem, valued by many locally and nationally.”

However, sea level rise and a rising tidal Potomac river are sending a strong message to governmental decision-makers to prepare for more flooding and more severe storms, she said. “Global warming’s impact on the tidal Potomac is a call to action for all of us; to reduce harmful greenhouse gas pollution that is warming the planet and at the root of this challenge.”

Some Workers Hurt by Shutdown Weren’t Paid

Connolly, Beyer, Wexton hold field hearing on government shutdown’s impact on federal contractors.

BY ANDREA WORKER
THE GAZETTE

Thousands of furloughed government employees suffered during the shutdown. Many were forced to seek public and/or private assistance to meet basic needs and financial obligations. But during their ordeals, those government employees knew that when they returned to work they would eventually receive back pay.

The same is true for the businesses and employees who contract their services to the federal government. There is no provision for lost personal compensation or company revenues from projects that came to a grinding halt on Dec. 22. For many of them, the shutdown hasn’t really ended, as they continue to struggle with late payment notices, loss of revenue, negative impacts to future business, the risk to security clearance statuses, and in some more severe cases, the loss of health benefits, means of transportation, and even their homes.

U.S. Rep. Gerry Connolly (D-VA 11) took his U.S. House of Representatives Committee on Oversight and Reform Subcommittee on Government Operations for a road trip on May 6. Connolly and colleagues Rep. Eleanor Holmes Norton (D-D.C. at-large), Jamie Raskin (D-MD 8), Jennifer Wexton (D-VA 10), and Don Beyer (D-VA 8) convened the session in a meeting room at George Mason University in Fairfax to hear testimony from area federal contract business leaders, and individuals who had been personally affected by the latest – and longest – partial government shutdown.

TO GET THE “REAL PICTURE” of the shutdown’s effect on the government contracting world is what brought Connolly and the other subcommittee members out of their House Chambers and into the virtual streets.

“Virginia’s 11th District is home to about 55,000 federal employees … for every federal employee in my district, we estimate there are roughly about 1.5 contractors,” Connolly said in his opening statement. That means an additional 82,000-plus residents of just this one area were not performing the work of government in cybersecurity, general security, technology, analytics, communications, maintenance, and much more – and not getting paid – during the shutdown, or compensated for wages lost after government resumed on Jan. 25, 2019.

“Contractors serve important roles alongside federal employees, they respond to citizens in need by answering phones in call centers, they analyze classified intelligence information, and they help maintain agency information technology (IT) systems, secure federal buildings, and provide the federal government and American taxpayers with goods and services. They are laboratory technicians, machinists, janitors, cafeteria workers, cybersecurity experts, and engineers. Our government would not function without them,” Connolly said.

Government employees received their back pay. Federal contractors did not.

“Contractors serve important roles alongside federal employees, they respond to citizens in need by answering phones in call centers, they analyze classified intelligence information, and they help maintain agency information technology (IT) systems, secure federal buildings, and provide the federal government and American taxpayers with goods and services. They are laboratory technicians, machinists, janitors, cafeteria workers, cybersecurity experts, and engineers. Our government would not function without them,” Connolly said.

The second panel of witnesses brought even more personal experiences to the proceedings, describing their own hardships and those of workers in lower-paid positions or who work through programs for the disabled.

“This disparity is wrong,” said Connolly.

On the first panel to provide testimony were Ed Grabowski, president, Local 2016, International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers; Roger Krone, CEO, Leidos; David Berteau, president and CEO, Professional Services Council; Alba Aleman, founder and CEO, Citizant; and Michael Niggel, CEO, Advanced Concepts & Technologies.

Grabowski’s Local 2016 represents about 700 workers in aerospace, including lab technicians, crane operators, helicopter pilots, propellant mechanics and other highly-skilled and difficult-to-replace and quickly train employees. A large percentage of Local 2016’s membership, including Grabowski himself, are veterans of the armed services. The shutdown and the lack of “make-whole compensation” has had a profoundly negative impact on them. “We must remember that the financial loss experienced by these workers ripples through the communities they live in, … not to mention the deep financial impacts … that will affect retirement investment, education funding, and general savings for emergencies,” said Grabowski.

Reston-based Fortune 500 giant Leidos, with 32,000 employees in more than 30 locations may have fared better than smaller government contractors, but CEO Krone reported that they still lost an estimated $14 million in revenue.

“But more importantly,” said Krone, “we saw work on 22 programs of significant importance to our country stall or come to a screeching halt.”

Company financials and concerns for country aside, Krone said the focus of his

Police Seek Next of Kin

Detectives from the Major Crimes Bureau are investigating the death of a man that occurred on May 5 in the 2200 block of Huntington Avenue. Officers were initially called to the area around 9:15 p.m. for a man reported to be lying outside of a restaurant and not breathing. Officers and rescue personnel arrived and administered CPR. The man was taken to a hospital where he was pronounced dead. He was preliminarily identified as 26-year-old Crystian Leonel Avalos Lemus with no fixed address.

The Office of the Chief Medical Examiner has yet to determine Lemus’s cause and manner of death. It appears the man suffered a medical emergency and detectives do not suspect foul play.

Detectives are asking for help in identifying any friends or family members of Lemus to confirm his identity and to assist with final arrangements.

The Mount Vernon District Police Station reported the following incidents.

Remember Memorial Day’s Significance

By Paul Krizek
State Delegate (D-44)

This weekend will be a fun and busy one for many of us as we kick off the summer with the three-day Memorial Day weekend. But let us remember to pause and think about the meaning of the upcoming Memorial Day, and reflect on and honor the memory of our loved ones, ancestors and relatives, friends and neighbors who gave their lives for our country.

It is with the deepest gratitude that we all share for the ultimate sacrifice of our fallen heroes. Our nation wouldn’t be the great country it is today, a shining light of democracy, a beacon of hope for refugees and asylum seekers, were it not for the sacrifices of our heroic predecessors, including our allies, especially in the two World Wars.

My English mother’s father is buried in Le Havre, France. He was a private in the Royal Army Medical Corps and died in battle in 1940. My other grandfather was an immigrant to America from Bohemia who organized fellow Czech and Slovak immigrants to become Legionnaires to join the French Army to fight against the Austro-Hungarian Empire, an ally of Germany, in what was then the “Great War,” which was renamed World War I after World War II. Most Americans can point to similar stories of sacrifice to our great nation.

This holiday has deep roots here in Virginia. According to the Richmond-Times Dispatch, Warrenton, Va. was the location of the first Civil War soldier’s grave ever to be decorated on June 3, 1861. In addition to decorating graves, there were earlier celebrations in the South that were solemn occasions which included families and veterans honoring the dead and tending to local cemeteries.

Memorial Day was established by General John Logan and occurred on May 30, 1868 at Arlington National Cemetery, where both Confederate and Union soldiers were buried. While this day began as one to honor the almost half a million soldiers who died during the Civil War, by the turn of the 20th century, the holiday was expanded to honor all Americans who died while in the U.S. military service. Memorial Day became a federal holiday in 1971.

Every year, a wreath is laid on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, and small American flags are placed at each of the over 260,000 graves in Arlington National Cemetery. Thank you to the many volunteers, especially the Scouts and soldiers, who have taken part in this solemn recognition.

So, enjoy a wonderful and safe long weekend. But, as we celebrate the start of the summer season, take a moment to remember those many courageous souls who paid the ultimate sacrifice in service to our country.

VOICE Demands Action, Not Rhetoric

After its candidates forum on May 19 at Bethlehem Baptist Church, VOICE (Virginians Organized for Interfaith Community Engagement) issued the following policy statement demanding action on specific solutions to move Fairfax County closer to the aspirational goal of “One Fairfax.”

I. ENSURE THAT THE CHILDREN OF FAIRFAX COUNTY HAVE AN EQUITABLE STARTING POINT IN LIFE.

Thousands of VOICE leaders have said for them this means Pre-K, access to quality after-school and summer programming, investment in the sorely neglected Gum Springs Community Center that is a vital hub, and an increase in school mental health workers.

Establish quality after-school & summer programs at Title One Schools and at the Gum Springs Community Center. Provide Pre-K for all Fairfax 4-year-olds from low-income families.

II. KEEP FAMILIES & COMMUNITIES TOGETHER.

Fairfax must raise its affordable housing fund to $60M in new monies over the next 4 years, and then to $120M in the next 10 years to ensure communities that have lived here for decades can continue to afford to do so and to allow for anticipated population growth. In order for Fairfax County to meet its own stated affordable housing goals of 15,000 new units of affordable housing, it must increase new dollars to at least $100 million a year.

Keep families together by making sure Fairfax immigrant residents have access to legal representation. Grow the current fund from $200,000 to the needed $875,000 per year. Immigrant Fairfax residents with access to legal representation are 10 times more likely to not be separated from their families.

III. ENSURE THAT THOSE WHO HAVE SERVED TIME ARE NOT PUNISHED FOR THE REST OF THEIR LIFE.

Fairfax County needs to be smart and make sure Returning Citizens can get jobs to support themselves and be engaged fully in daily life.

How to make “One Fairfax” tangible.

The following information was provided by VOICE (Virgini ans Organized for Interfaith Community Engagement).

On May 19, the four Democratic candidates for the chair of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors gathered at Bethlehem Baptist Church for a Candidates’ Forum organized by VOICE. The crowd of 650 public housing tenants, Latino immigrants, high school students, and others — from African American, Latino, white, Muslim, Jewish, and Christian families — came together to demand action on the county’s proposed “One Fairfax.” VOICE is an organization of organizations, consisting of 52 faith institutions throughout Northern Virginia.

Rev. Austin Almaguer of Vienna Baptist welcomed the crowd and pointed out that elections for chair are rare because there are no term limits. Furthermore, he said, “The margin of victory will be determined as history informs by a very small margin. VOICE: We can be the difference in this election.” The last time there was a similar election for board chair was in 2009, when Sharon Bulova won a special election by 1,206 votes. The last Democratic Primary, in 2017 for lieutenant governor, had a margin of victory of 6,237 votes in Fairfax County.

VOICE is non-partisan. Joseph Galdo, the Republican candidate for board chair, had already won the Republican Primary, so VOICE chose to hold an event with those who are running for the contested Democratic primary for board chair. VOICE leaders and allied institutions pledged to collectively sign up and turn out more than 3,000 voters on June 11, Primary Election Day.

Rev. Darryl King of Bethlehem Baptist Church said, “We have intentionally gathered here to describe the community struggle not only because of its rich African American history, but also because it reminds us of what is at stake if we do not take bold action together.”

VOICE leaders shared first-hand stories of the serious cracks in building “One Fairfax.”

Elias Anwar, a senior at West Potomac, who uses the Gum Springs Community Center every day, described how the deep neglect of the Center has meant that youth playing hoops in the back must play in the dark because the lights have not functioned for more than 3 years.

“Gum Springs is like a second home to me,” he said. “They show that they care about me. They provide us food, clothes, and bus rides where I have my summer job. They even paid for my prom suit. They take the time to look out for me. We don’t see that same kind of consideration for our community center. For example, the lights in the back court don’t work and they haven’t worked for three years. There is no handicapp ramp for people to enter. And don’t even bring up the field in the back, it’s a natural field that gets trimmed once a year. The way I was raised was that you take care of the things that are important to you.”

Chimissa Walker, from the historic African American neighborhood Odricks Corner in McLean, shared the story of how her grandfather helped build that community and today her mom is the last person still living there.

“A woman from the Audubon Mobile Home Park on Route 1 challenged the next chair to stand with them to ensure the three mobile home parks that consist of 1,000 plus low-income families stay intact.”

“For many people, mobile homes are looked down upon,” she said. “For us, our mobile homes represent our community and 1,500 families. Memories of our families coming together every Christmas for a Posada celebration where we re-enact the story of Mary and Joseph’s journey to Bethlehem. Memories of organizing for a playground where our kids could play. Now our homes may not be glamorous on the outside, but the warmth and love they provide to us is unmatched.”

High school teenagers, who have talked to more than 200 high school students from across Fairfax, challenged the chair candidates, if elected, to work with them, not just for them, to increase badly needed mental health services in the public schools.

Kheira Bekkada, a rising high-school junior, said, “I was very anxious, worried, scared, and every negative feeling you can think of. I was very self-conscious of two things: my name and my hijab. During my first week of school, whenever I’d introduce myself to my teachers and friends, I was worried I wouldn’t be acknowledged or welcomed because of the difficulty of my name. Personally, I was very happy to teach others my name. But, surprisingly that’s not what hurt the most. I organize with VOICE to figure out and implement ways for us to be welcomed and accepted unapologetically in our schools and communities.”

Training To Save One Of Their Own

By Lieutenant Angel Medina
Fairfax County Fire & Rescue Department
Station 24, Woodlawn, C-Shift

Recently, members from Station 24, Woodlawn and Station 9, Mount Vernon, C-Shift met at Station 24 to conduct training related to rescuing a downed firefighter in a hazardous environment.

The training started with a review of the Rapid Intervention Team (RIT) Rescue Pack. Each component of the RIT pack was explained along with when and how to use it. For those who do not know, a RIT is established at structure fires in which a crew from a unit is assigned to be ready to enter a fire to save any firefighters who may require rescue during the incident.

Crews then put full gear on and prepared for the practical component of the training. The scenario was a firefighter who called a mayday and needed to be rescued. Their objective was to assess the situation, force entry into the building, use either the hose or search rope (to help guide them back to safety), and locate the downed firefighter.

Firefighters had to force entry into the building using our forcible entry prop that is very realistic.

Each firefighter had to place one of their protective hoods (a part of firefighter gear that covers neck, ears, hair) over their face piece so they could not see — which is usually the case in fires. They then had to locate the downed firefighter, utilize the RIT pack and remove the firefighter from the hazardous environment to safety.

Members of both stations did an outstanding job performing the assigned task. Training together like this is important as both stations frequently respond and work together on structure fires. We hope we never have to use this training in an actual fire. However, we will be ready to save one of our own if it occurs.
Skincare after 55

By Marilyn Campbell

From fine lines to age spots, normal changes in the skin are inevitable as it matures. Skincare after 50 doesn’t need to involve plastic surgery or products with a high price tag. There are simple options for treating the conditions that appear as one ages.

“Everyone ages differently, but you may notice your skin is drier and thinner and starting to look like paper,” said dermatologist Shelly Hall, M.D. “You may notice that you’re developing more age spots, wrinkles and creases. Your skin might be blotchier and irritated easily. You also might notice that your skin heals more slowly.”

One of the top recommendations for aging skincare is sunscreen. “For most of us, skin gets more fragile as we age. That’s why it’s essential for seniors to take extra care and protect themselves from the sun,” said Susan Yohe, gerontology nurse for the Fairfax County Health Department. “In addition to using a high-SPF sunscreen, we also recommend long, loose fitting clothing that covers the skin, and a wide-brimmed hat when outside. This will help keep you safe and preserve your skin.”

“Wear sunglasses to reduce lines around eyes,” added Hall. “Slather on sunscreen that offers broad-spectrum protection and stay out of the sun between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. It’s so important because the sun can age your skin prematurely. Indoor tanning and sun lamps expose your skin to UV rays which can also make your skin age faster.”

Watch for skin cancer that can occur because of too much exposure to the sun, warns Hall. “Everyone should see a dermatologist for a skin care exam at some point.”

Wash your face twice a day, but avoid using soap, suggest Hall. “Use warm water and a mild cleaner, but don’t scrub.”

“Vitamin A cream can reduce fine wrinkles,” said Hall. “It also helps with rough skin and hyperpigmentation or discoloration that comes with aging and overexposure to the sun. Products that contain Vitamin C can lead to healthy skin and may reverse the negative effects of aging.”

Getting adequate sleep promotes healthy skin, says Hall. “It gives our body and skin time to refresh and renew.”

“Berries are great for the skin because they help keep inflammation down. Green, leafy vegetables especially parsley and lettuces offer tremendous nutrition.”

Photography Exhibit: ‘Tonal Visions’

Featuring work by Alan Sislen. The highly graphic, black and white architectural images in this exhibit explore the range and beauty of tones that might or might not have existed, but were visible in the mind of the photographer. Whether it’s the darkest tones that convey a sense of mystery, the brightest tones that attract attention, or the mid-tones that provide the connecting tissue, it is this range of tonalities that shapes the lines, curves, volumes and objects to give the structures life, beauty and meaning. This exhibit is an exploration of tonalities. The exhibit runs through June 15, gallery hours at Multiple Exposures Gallery, Torpedo Factory Art Center #312, 105 N. Union St. Visit www.MultileExposuresGallery.com or call 703-683-2205.

The Wolverines’ Liam Airey pulls into third on a 6th inning hit by Jacob Trumbo.

WP Baseball Team Wins Gunston District Title

The West Potomac baseball team defeated TC. Williams 9-0 on Friday night, May 17, to claim the Gunston District title for a second straight year. As last year’s actual championship game was rained out though, this was the first time in 31 years that the Wolverines actually got to win the title on the field.

In the game, the Wolverines’ senior right-handed pitcher Jimmy Curley threw a complete game 3-hit shutout, while striking out 15 and walking none. He threw 14 balls in 7 innings for an 81.6 percent strike performance. Offensively, West Potomac was led by Justin Bassett (2 RBIs, 3 stolen bases, 2 runs), Jacob Trumbo (2 RBIs), and Liam Airey (1 RBI, 1 run, 1 double), who each contributed 2 hits.

The play of the game was in the bottom of the third inning as West Potomac had just taken a 2-0 lead. Jack Bachmore’s hustle on a 2-out grounder to shortstop resulted in an errant throw into the runner which led to a collision, an error, a run scored, and an injury to the Titans’ top player Nathan Keough causing him to have to leave the game. The inning extended, West Potomac tacked on 2 more runs to lead 5-0. With a record of 15-5, this West Potomac squad has guaranteed itself of being no worse than the second best team in school history as it tries to negotiate a Occoquan Region bracket that will likely have them trying to defeat old Patriot District foes Robinson, Lake Braddock, and West Springfield in succession. These are the same three teams — in the same order — that they beat in 1994 to win the program’s only Northern Region tournament title on their way to the state final that year.

Wolverine coach Jimmy Linza is now the last coach to win a title at West Potomac (2019), Hayfield (2011), and Mt. Vernon (2004). West Potomac will open Regional play on Friday, May 24 at 6:30 p.m., hosting the winner of Tuesday’s Hayfield-Robinson contest.

Wolverine catcher Alex Grove receives the throw from third-baseman Gavin Luscombe in time to nab TC’s Jaden Cox at the plate. This would be as close as the Titans would get to scoring on this night.

Mount Vernon Awards Teacher Fellowships

Six educators chosen to conduct research.

George Washington’s Mount Vernon has selected six educators to participate in an opportunity to enhance their 18th-century knowledge, explore different teaching techniques, and create new curricula for Mount Vernon during their residential fellowship at the Fred W. Smith National Library for the Study of George Washington. Five teachers have been selected for The Life Guard Teacher Fellowship, which enables classroom teachers and educators to work on projects in a variety of themes inspired by the life, leadership, and legacy of George Washington.

One teacher has been selected for the Reese Teacher Fellowship. This fellowship is awarded to a teacher whose project will connect high school students with text-based primary sources to increase student engagement with the history of the 18th century.

The Life Guard Teacher Fellows Program and The Reese Teacher Fellowship are facilitated by The Fred W. Smith National Library for the Study of George Washington, which opened Sept. 27, 2013. The library safeguards original Washington documents and serves as a center for scholarly research and leadership training.

The Life Guard Teacher Fellows Program is made possible by the support of The Life Guard Society, a select group of donors to the Mount Vernon Ladies’ Association who champion education-based causes and initiatives. The Reese Teacher Fellowship is made possible by the William Reese Company. The 2019-2020 fellows will conduct on-site research on an array of topics, beginning this fall and continuing through summer 2020.

The program is available to classroom teachers (grades K-12), curriculum specialists, media specialists, and to others with expertise in creating classroom materials. The next round of proposals for consideration are due Feb. 28, 2020.

Fellowship recipients include:

- Jennifer Burgin – Life Guard Teacher Fellow
  Burgin is a National Board Certified Teacher who teaches Kindergarten at Oakridge Elementary School in Arlington. She will work with Helen Haas to create a bilingual children’s picture book to introduce George Washington, Mount Vernon, and the 18th-century to both English and Spanish speaking students.
- Nick Costa – Reese Teacher Fellow
  Costa currently teaches 7th grade US History at Gouverneur Middle School in Gouverner, N.Y. He will create a digital outreach box using 21st-century technology and Mount Vernon’s collections to help engage students in teamwork and critical thinking. Students will use historical thinking and problem solving skills along with primary sources to solve a history mystery and expand their own personal knowledge of George Washington’s world.
- Helen Haas – Life Guard Teacher Fellow
  Haas teaches Kindergarten at Our Lady of Perpetual Help School in Downey, Calif., where she also led the implementation and development of the dual language immersion program. She will work with 2019-2020 Teacher Fellow Jennifer Burgin to create a bilingual children’s picture book to introduce George Washington, Mount Vernon, and the 18th-century to both English and Spanish speaking students.
- Matthew Van Horn – Life Guard Teacher Fellow
  Van Horn teaches 8th grade US History at Gouverneur Middle School in Gouvernor, N.Y. He will create a digital outreach box using 21st-century technology and Mount Vernon’s collections to help engage students in teamwork and critical thinking. Students will use historical thinking and problem solving skills along with primary sources to solve a history mystery and expand their own personal knowledge of George Washington’s world.
- Helen Haas – Life Guard Teacher Fellow
  Haas teaches Kindergarten at Our Lady of Perpetual Help School in Downey, Calif., where she also led the implementation and development of the dual language immersion program. She will work with 2019-2020 Teacher Fellow Jennifer Burgin to create a bilingual children’s picture book to introduce George Washington, Mount Vernon, and the 18th-century to both English and Spanish speaking students.

- John Clinton Walsh – Life Guard Teacher Fellow
  Walsh currently teaches 8th grade American History at Discovery Middle School in Orlando, Fla. He will create a DBQ-style lesson that will ask students to use multiple primary and secondary sources related to the Revolutionary War era to evaluate the question: To what extent did the service of black soldiers influence views and policies regarding slavery in the years following the Revolutionary War?
- Tecoya Brantley-Williams – Life Guard Teacher Fellow
  Brantley-Williams teaches Government, Macroeconomics, Economics, and Law Education at Swansea High School in Swansea, S.C. She will create an inquiry-based project in which students will discover George Washington’s authentic character and compare it to his public persona. Students will use this knowledge to inform their own autobiographical narration on social media. Throughout the project, students will develop analytical and synthesis skills and learn the importance of discretion as they tell their own story.
Noise

bought a house near a military airfield if noise bothers you," said another. "The banter went back and forth.

“It’s perfectly normal for people to speak up and to complain about something that’s bothering them in the community, in their own homes,” someone stated.

Capps is part of Nextdoor Newington too, and was called “unpatriotic,” but felt that was a little much. “We should be able to live peacefully in our home,” she said.

The comments continued: “I used to command the unit that is at Davison Army Airfield and flew the same helicopters you are complaining about. The airfield has been there long before Laurel Hill was a thought. Frankly it’s not that loud. I echo what everyone else has said. Get over it. Move. Something.”

Joan Johnson is part of Nextdoor Newington, and communicated with Fort Belvoir in 2013 about the same issue, which she says has gotten better since then. The spokesperson at Fort Belvoir at that time said “the operators tell me that, while it appears the aircraft are flying low, they are in fact at or above flight level.” Capps hit a brick wall when she tried to contact Fort Belvoir, a federal military source and the Federal Aviation Administration.

On the Fort Belvoir website, it states that “the Community Relations Branch is responsible for all aspects of the command’s community relations program to include developing understanding and support of the missions and functions of Fort Belvoir and being good neighbors by fostering relationships and understanding the needs of surrounding communities.” Capps feels that this can be resolved with the flight situation going back to the way it was a few years ago with limited hours and adjusted altitude requirements. Maybe the helicopters could limit to flying over Fort Belvoir land, she thought. These are on Beyer’s list too.

Her house location isn’t that close though. “It’s much worse for some people,” she said.

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

And now the fun begins, Not! For some reason, I can’t get the journey song, “Lovin’, Touchin’, Squeezin” out of my head, except that my lyrics are “Waitin’, Wonderin’, Hopin.” I’ll know the results of last week’s diagnostic scans soon enough, on Tuesday in fact, the day before this column publishes, when we have our next usual and customary post-scan, face-to-face appointment with my oncologist. As it is presently scheduled, what having a Tuesday appointment after the preceding Wednesday scan means is, we won’t have received the results beforehand, so he’ll be seeing us, so I am humming a Journey song in the interim.

And let me tell you, going in cold (not knowing the results beforehand) “is all it’s cracked up to be” – to invoke a quote by “Hawkeye” from M*A*S*H when talking to Radar about his widowed mother being alone.

But I won’t be alone on Tuesday, my wife, Dina, will be along for the ride. A ride she has made many times, especially during the early years of heavy-duty chemotherapy when in isolation days, start to finish could last upwards of 10 hours, door to door.

The process for these post-scan appointments is somewhat different, 45 minutes or so. It begins in an examining room with yours truly being examined/questioned by a nurse (“Are you in any pain?”) followed by her checking my vital signs: oxygen level, pulse and blood pressure (“Mr. Lourie, you’re blood pressure is high.” “You bet it is.”).

After she enters the information on the computer, she’ll excuse herself and as she exits the examining room she advises us that the doctor will be in shortly.

Typically, with 15 minutes or so, depending on his schedule, we’ll hear a knock on the door and my oncologist’s voice asking if it’s OK for him to enter. “Yes, of course,” we say.

The way the examining room is configured, the examining chair, where I’m sitting, is on his immediate left, partially blocked from his view as he opens the door. Dina is sitting in a chair directly ahead of him and in clear sight as he enters the room. This means she’ll see his face before I do and instinctively she’ll try to read his expression and body language for a hint of what’s to be said.

Occasionally, he breaks the ice immediately and says something like “scans look good, very pleased,” knowing that we as patients are hung on his every word. Other times, he says very little as he sits at his computer and begins asking the standard questions with which we are all too familiar.

This exchange will last about five to 10 minutes, depending on my interruptions. Generally, within the context of this exchange, the subject of my scan results will be mentioned. This is the moment of truth. I can’t really say it’s worth waiting for, good news or bad. It’s more about enduring.

Unfortunately, we can’t change much about this process. I have a “terminal” disease and scanning is the process by which the doctor can assess my health. Waiting for this assessment is the absolute bane of my existence.

And now with a more frequent scanning schedule, every two months, I am “bane-ing” more than ever before. I can’t say it’s a perfect set of circumstances, but it’s my journey and I’m stuck with it.
