Accepting Torch ‘to Hold it High’

Great Falls pays tribute to the fallen on Memorial Day.

P assing the torch of remembrance was part of Andy Wilson’s message on Memorial Day. Wilson, the president of the Great Falls Freedom Memorial, welcomed a crowd to the site, located behind the Great Falls Public Library on Georgetown Pike, for their annual Memorial Day remembrance event. Opening the ceremony with a brief history of the federal holiday which was established to observe and honor people who have died in service to the country, Wilson also explained the meaning behind the wearing of red poppies as part of the remembrance of the fallen.

“It was inspired by a famous poem,” said Wilson, about a battlefield, and the fallen upon it, that had seen not only tremendous bloodshed, but that had been physically damaged by one of the earliest uses of mustard gas during warfare.

“But in the midst of it all, these poppies survived, and even in the middle of battle, when there was quiet, birds, larks, could be heard singing.”

THE POEM - “In Flanders Fields” - was written at Ypres, Belgium, during World War I by Lieutenant Colonel John McCrae, following the death of his close friend and former student, Alexis Helmer, by a German shell at that battle. The day after Helmer’s former student, Alexis Helmer, by a German shell at that battle. The day after Helmer’s death, McCrae wrote the lines describing the red poppies that bloomed all about the battlefield, despite the destruction and the carnage, and the responsibility of the survivors to accept “the torch” of duty and remembrance, for “If ye break faith with us who die, We shall not sleep, though poppies grow in Flanders fields.”

Well attended by locals, and by elected officials including State Sen. Barbara Favola, Del. Kathleen Murphy, and Dranesville District Supervisor John Foust, the ceremony included an Invocation by Rev. David Lucey, Rector, St. Francis Episcopal Church in Great Falls, the Presentation of the Colors by local Boy Scout Troop 55 – who also led the assembly in the Pledge of Allegiance – and later performed the ceremonial Laying of the Wreath before Raising the Colors.

Andy Wilson, president of the Great Falls Freedom Memorial gave the opening and closing remarks, and guided the ceremony. Wilson also explained the origins and significance of the wearing of the red paper poppies in honor of fallen military, as he wore one himself, and volunteers provided them to the attendees.

The former Navy Seal used his experiences in a newly-liberated Albania years ago to bring home his point that democracy, as envisioned by the founding fathers, is still the ideal to be defended. “Freedom is not free,” he said. “We must remember that freedom is always one generation from being taken away,” and thus the need to remember and “pass the history along.”

ANDREW T. PIDGEON

After the Keynote Address, the names of the fallen from Great Falls were read aloud by resident Calvin Follin, as Sara Hilgartner (the widow of the Freedom Memorial’s creative force Retired U.S. Marine Corps Col. Pete “High Pockets” Hilgartner) rang a bell after each name was read.

Wilson made closing remarks and Rev. Lucey gave a parting benediction before the attendees were officially dismissed with the sounding of “Taps” by Sara Young, Marine Corps Col. Pete (High Pockets) Hilgartner.

Help the Class of 2019 Celebrate Graduation Safely

By Supervisor John C. Cook, Braddock District

The last month of Senior year in high school is an exciting time for students and their families. Our children are moving on to a new stage in life after four years of hard work and intensive studies. When one considers the caliber of our schools, graduation is an even more impressive milestone.

Amidst these great achievements, I urge parents to talk to their teens about the dangers of alcohol and to prohibit teens drinking in their own homes.

The Fairfax County Police Department will arrest parents who knowingly host teen parties.

Mental Health Awareness Month

By Kenneth R. “Ken” Plume, State Delegate (D-35)

Before we tear off the remaining couple of pages on the May calendar, I want to address the important recognition of May as Mental Health Awareness Month. While Virginia is blessed with having the first mental health hospital, or asylum as they were called in the eighteenth century, the Commonwealth has had difficulty in recent times coming to grips with the enormity of the need and the provision of funds to respond to those needs. In fact, Virginia is ranked 40th in the nation in mental health care according to the results of a national study of the issue. It took a state senator’s mentally ill son attacking his father with a knife to shock the state to greater action. That father now chairs the Joint Subcommittee on Mental Health Services in the 21st Century, or the Deeds Commission, that includes Senator Janet Howell as a member and has made critically important recommendations on which the state has made significant progress.

A special thanks goes to The Commonwealth Institute (thecommonwealthinstitute.org) for documenting recent progress and remaining opportunities in behavioral health in a recent edition of The Half Sheet. The Institute, which is a nonprofit organization focusing mostly on human service needs used the term “behavioral health” to be more comprehensive than “mental health” to include mental health services and supports such as substance abuse treatment. The Institute recognized accomplishments this past year to include a 21 percent increase in Medicaid reimbursement to encourage more licensed mental health professionals to accept Medicaid thus increasing access to services for people with low income. Additional funding for emergency opioid kits will expand the access to and availability of Naloxone which is used to reverse the effects of an opioid overdose. The General Assembly also passed and the Governor signed my bill to expand the health care providers authorized to dispense Naloxone to make it more readily available.

Increased funding was provided to increase staffing at state mental health facilities that are struggling to keep up with demand. Funding was also approved to replace the aging mental health facility Central State Hospital. In addition, monies have been made available for transportation of persons needing mental health hospitalization from having to be transported by law enforcement.

The Department of Behavioral Health and Developmental Services indicates that there is a need for 5,000 permanent housing units for those who need supportive housing in the state. This year’s funding along with an increase last year will provide 1,300 units of supportive housing. Obviously, there is a severe need to do more in this area with a price tag of about $47 million.

Challenges remain to be addressed in providing greater access to programs and services for those who live in rural areas and to those who have experienced the trauma of having been exposed to the immigration and refugee system. A task force is looking at ways to increase the number of mental health professionals to expand the delivery of care across the state.

Our awareness of mental health needs cannot end with the month of May. More needs to be done!

Health Insurance Tax: An Attack on Seniors?

To the Editor:

Regarding The Connection’s recent article on health disparities in Virginia (March 25, 2019, “Report Shows Geographic Disparities in Health in Virginia.”) I want to highlight another threat to care in our region: the Health Insurance Tax.

As a senior who depends on Medicare Advantage for affordable health care to help manage debilitating chronic migraines and back pain, I am appalled by the lack of congressional action on the Health Insurance Tax (HIT).

Medicare Advantage coverage has helped me get my life and my health back, but the HIT is nothing short of an attack on seniors. It would raise annual costs for more than 22 million Medicare Advantage beneficiaries by as much as $241 per person annually, imposing a huge burden for those living on fixed incomes. Seniors on Social Security often live on significantly less than the mean income in Appalachia.

Key legislation before Congress (H.R. 1398 and S. 172) would stop the HIT and protect seniors, but Senators Kaine and Warner and Congressman Connolly have refused to sign on as co-sponsors. It seems like Congress has forgotten we are here.

If Congress allows a tax on my healthcare premiums, I won’t be able to afford coverage. If costs go up, I’m out of the game. Senior health isn’t a game – and the HIT is a multi-billion-dollar tax on health insurance premiums that will go into effect in 2020 unless Congress acts soon.

It’s time for congressional action to stop the HIT and protect our care.

Ladies Tennis Social a ‘Smashing Success’
Local ladies support local elementary schools with rounds of tennis.

Celebrate Great Falls Foundation (CGFF) came up with the idea to hold a Ladies Tennis Social fundraiser on the same day as the Annual Charity Golf Tournament. Great Falls Friends and Neighbors (GFFN) got wind of the plan and decided to sponsor the event. The fundraiser fits GFFN’s mission of community involvement and supporting our local elementary schools (Great Falls, Forestville and Colvin Run). The proceeds of the Annual Charity Event will go towards purchasing new computers and programs for the elementary school students. The proceeds of the Annual Charity Event will go towards purchasing new computers and programs for the elementary school students. The proceeds of the Annual Charity Event will go towards purchasing new computers and programs for the elementary school students.

The first Ladies Tennis Social on May 20 was a smashing success and sold out well in advance, according to event chair, Kristin Dailey. More than 30 ladies signed up to play in the event. When it comes to supporting the local schools, it was apparent that the ladies were enthusiastic about participating in the novel event. There was plenty of laughter and time to socialize with old and new friends, as the ladies moved from court to court in a friendly and inclusive tennis format. Participants included school PTA representatives, ladies with current or past students, and ladies who enjoyed playing social tennis with new friends. The social included two hours of pro-directed play with drills and games, followed by lunch on an outdoor veranda. The Ladies Social and fundraiser were sponsored by Great Falls Friends and Neighbors, a Ladies Social, Philanthropic and Civic Club.

Many thanks to CGFF’s Committee members Erin Lobato, Meredith Broome, Lisa Cuomo, Sheri Economou, Jennifer Eng and Kristin Dailey. GFFN would like to thank Missy Perkins, President of GFFN, and elementary school participants Lisa Cuomo, Sheri Economou, Jennifer Eng, as well as Christina Bumsa for gathering the steps needed to kick off this event. Hall of Mirrors

BY CHRISTINA TYLER WENKS

One of the nation’s most intrepid spies of World War II has a Central Intelligence Agency training facility named for her, yet many don’t know her name. Local author Craig Gralley delivers Virginia Hall’s perspective in his recently published book, “Hall of Mirrors.”

Hall was a special agent who, with her prosthetic leg nicknamed Cuthbert, overcame physical limitations and gender discrimination while posing as a journalist, an elderly woman, and other identities in France. She went to extremes to become invisible, such as filing her teeth down to resemble a woman from the French countryside. A Gestapo wanted poster called her “The Allies’ most dangerous spy.”

THE JOURNEY of writing Hall’s story is its own story. Gralley was senior speech writer for three CIA directors. The first-time novelist had an overt career that spanned 32 years, but he chose to tell the story of a covert operator from Baltimore.

“One of my strengths is understanding the culture of espionage,” he said. “That gave me a sixth sense when reading the documents Virginia Hall wrote, the cables describing what she was doing, and how others described what they were doing.”

Hall lost her leg due to a hunting accident and she seized a second chance at life. “Her injury reawakened her resilience,” said Gralley. Hall did not wear her heart on her sleeve. Living a false, manufactured life as a covert agent seeped into her own personality.

When Hall came back to the United States, she still didn’t speak to relatives about her work. She declined to receive the Distinguished Service Cross from President Harry Truman in public and opted for a private ceremony with Gen. William Donovan, the head of the Office of Strategic Services instead.

“The only way I can tell the story from my experience with the CIA and understanding my trade craft is talking to a psychiatrist who specialized in trauma to uncover layers of her personality,” said Gralley, who wrote from Hall’s point of view.

Insight into intelligence gathering wasn’t enough to tell Hall’s complicated story. Gralley’s research required traveling outside CIA’s McLean headquarters. In the Pyrenees in France the author found the trail Hall used to escape to Spain carrying only a backpack and dragging her prosthetic leg through snow. The trip helped the writer see the spy’s determination and resolve.

Two recent books that include Hall are also gaining media traction. Gralley assisted actress-producer Sarah Megan Thomas for her role as Hall in “Liberté: A Call to Spy,” a book-turned-movie about three women who helped bring down Nazi Germany. Paramount Pictures acquired rights to Sonia Purnell’s “A Woman of No Importance: The Untold Story of the American Spy Who Helped Win World War II,” and Hollywood press reports actress Daisy Ridley is playing Hall.

Gralley worked on “Hall of Mirrors” for several years, but the timing of other publications and movie publicity is helping him market his assessment of Hall’s story.

Dedicated to her clandestine nature and oath of secrecy, Hall would be appalled by the attention, Gralley said. Hall said many of her friends were killed for talking too much.

Gralley credits the Great Falls Writers Group for providing an outlet for people in Northern Virginia with varied writing interests to launch as writers and understand the writer’s life. The organization empowered him “to breathe life into the agency that hadn’t been breathed in before. It was gratifying to be immersed in that.”

Many stories within the agency and OSS have not been told. “I am attracted to those quiet stories about quiet heroes that deserve more attention,” said Gralley.

A WWII spy gets deserved attention; A book about a covert operative is the first for overt Craig Gralley.
Incumbent Morrogh and Challenger Descano make their cases to be Fairfax County Commonwealth’s Attorney

The Connection invited both to respond to an identical questionnaire.

Note: Morrogh did not respond despite repeated requests, so information has been summarized from his campaign's website.

By Andrea Worker

The Connection

Commonwealth’s Attorney Raymond (Ray) F. Morrogh is the chief law enforcement officer for Fairfax County, serving a population of more than a million residents in the County, the City of Fairfax, and the Towns of Herndon and Vienna. He left private practice in 1983 to join the Fairfax County criminal justice system as a prosecutor, then became an Assistant Commonwealth’s Attorney, then Chief Deputy before being elected to the top slot in 2007. He was re-elected to another four-year term in 2011, and again in 2015, when he ran unopposed.

This year, Morrogh is facing a challenger in Steve Descano – one who is determined to unseat him and vocal in his criticism of an incumbent and an office that he says “lacks transparency and accountability” and that has become distanced from the people that they serve.

The two men have squared off on several occasions to make their cases before the “jury” of Fairfax County voters.

  - Board of Directors member, NARAL Pro-Choice Virginia, 2016 - 2018
  - Member, Fairfax County NAACP Criminal Justice Committee, 2016 - 2018

Why are you running?

“I am running for Commonwealth’s Attorney to create a modern criminal justice system so that no one, no matter how powerful, is above the law. I’ll work to ensure that systemic discrimination based on race, wealth, status, and zip code is in the past. I’ll take a holistic approach to justice that builds up our communities. Reforming our system means that we will break the cycle of decreased opportunity, increased poverty, and increased crime that is the story of far too many of our neighbors.”

Top 3 issues in your district and what solutions do you propose?

“Transparency and accountability – Currently there is no publicly available data or measures for holding the elected Commonwealth’s Attorney accountable during times of crisis. I will invite one of a number of outside organizations that will, for no cost to the taxpayer, generate demographic, socioeconomic and geographic data to compare outcomes of cases. This will help identify sources of systemic discrimination. To improve accountability, I will hold regular in-person and electronic town halls to inform constituents about the state of policies and progress towards goals set by the data collected.”

Cash Bail – Currently in Fairfax County, 45.9 percent who are eligible for pretrial release have cash bail as a stipulation. These are people deemed not dangerous to themselves or others, but must sit in jail because they cannot pay – a system that unfairly penalizes poor people simply for being poor and increases recidivism.

Treatment, not incarceration – People who are addicted to drugs are ill and need our help! We need to help them overcome their addiction and come out of the other side without the type of criminal record that limits their opportunities in the future. To do this, I will overhaul our diversion programs which currently only address the first part of the equation. I have written a 20-page plan for reform called “Progressive Justice” that goes further into depth about specific policies and procedures I will implement while in office. (The Plan is available on the candidate’s website at www.stevedescano.com)”

Key ways you differ from your opponent?

“There are many differences, but I will offer two here.

First, I am committed to ending a two-tiered system of justice that disproportionally affects people based on race, wealth, and zip code. My opponent signed on in 2016 to the Republican lawsuit to stop then-Governor Terry McAuliffe from restoring voting rights of nearly 200,000 people who had finished their sentences. He has since altered his rationale, but at the time he noted that he did not want ‘those people’ on his juries.

Second, I have been a leader on criminal justice system reform as a member of the Fairfax County NAACP’s Criminal Justice and Legal Redress Committees, and as a member of the county Police Civilian Review Panel. On the other hand, my opponent, in 2014, as the Executive Director of the conservative National District Attorneys Association testified against the Obama Administration’s plan to reduce mandatory minimum sentences and curtail the War on Drugs.”

During the pre-luncheon reception, the 145 guests in attendance had an opportunity to bid on an array of silent auction items donated by local businesses.

When you’re a cancer patient/survivor, and this kind of whacking off cut to Buffalo but instead to the local hospital affiliated with your HMO has happened once, it’s only a matter of time it’s impossible not to believe it’s inevitable when you’ve been staged a TV before it will happen again. I’m not being negative, I’m just saying.

At least we wait at home for my oncologist to email us the scan results, or whether we sit and wait in the on-site exam room. I wouldn’t say our respective lives pass before us, but I will certainly admit to the total unpleasantness of it.

That being said, we’re the lucky ones. There are nearly 160,000 lung cancer patients who succumb to this terrible disease every year who aren’t nearly so lucky.

So when I hear the words “stable” from my oncologist, I am humbled as much as I am relieved, that I have lived to fight another eight weeks until my next follow-up is scheduled and my next fortnight is fought.

And that’s how I live my life: in increments. Increments which I’m grateful to have. It may not be ideal, but it’s a living, and it sure beats a dying. -Kenny Lucas is an Advertising Representative for The Potomac Almanac & The Connection Newspapers.
