Almost 630 students walked the stage at the Robinson Secondary School graduation ceremony held Wednesday, June 5 at the Eaglebank Arena.

Commencement opened with words from acting principal Tracey Phillips. She advised students to follow their passions and to not be discouraged by hardships and other people's opinions. "If you work hard, stay true to yourself, and be kind to others, you will be successful," she said. "Don't be afraid to take challenges and push yourself."

Phillips also shared a quote from Steve Jobs encouraging the students to be themselves and forge their own futures: "Your time is limited, so don't waste it living someone else's life."

Keynote speaker Michael Fones, a Robinson eighth grade civics teacher, also spoke of the importance of choosing a career path that is true to one's own interests. He described his experience of going to college for economics and later attending law school, though neither were his true passion. During his 10 years as a lawyer, he said he was "going through life with my head down."

Fones later found his true calling as a teacher. After recounting his journey to finding his dream career, he assured the students that being unsure of the future is normal. "If you're not sure of what you want to do, don't stress about it," he said. "You have time, and your life's going to lead you down paths that are unfathomable to you right now."

The Class Address, given by graduating senior Dalia Ortiz, however, focused more on reflection and gratitude than on giving advice. Ortiz structured her speech in the style of a "Chicken Soup for the Soul" book. Titling her speech "Chicken Soup for the Robinson Senior Soul," she split her address into three separate stories each written for "a different influential group," she said. "Three groups of inspiring people that have made our high school journey an enduring one."

The first story she shared was for the teachers. "Walking into first period, and there you are," Ortiz began. She stylized "you" to mean all the teachers she saw during her high school career put in extra effort for their students. "You're always there," she said. She ended this section of her speech thanking those teachers for their commitment, saying "we don't know how you do it, but you've always been here with us. And teacher, we thank you."

Her second story was written for her fellow students. She began by reminding her peers that "sometimes you never know the value of a moment until it becomes a memory." She went on to list memories she had shared with the student body and reflected on what those times meant to her. "This chapter in our story is at its final lines," she said to close this part. Modelling her final story after the book "Goodnight Moon," Ortiz recognized the families in the audience. "Goodnight room, goodnight cap and gown, goodnight to everyone from out of town," she said. "Goodnight stars, goodnight air, goodnight and goodbye Robinson families everywhere."

Small Voter Turnout Heralds Big Changes

McKay's 'Experience Counts' tagline resonates, as does the call for criminal justice reform in the Commonwealth's Attorney race.

BY ANDREA WORKER
THE CONNECTION

In an election night that will deliver major change to Fairfax County, voter turnout was just 10.2 percent of the county's more than 700,000 active registered voters.

It was not a general election, nor was it an election during a Presidential election year — events that generally bring the largest number of voters to the polling booths — but a higher turnout was expected given the unprecedented number of seats up for grabs on the Board of Supervisors, including the chairman's position. Some of these races hadn't experienced a primary in decades.

IN THE UNOFFICIAL RESULTS posted by the Virginia Department of Elections, Jeff McKay, the current Lee District representative on the Board of Supervisors, beat out his three opponents — Ryan McElveen, At-Large Fairfax County Public Schools Board member, Georgetown law professor Alicia Plerhoples, and developer Timothy Chapman, for the chairman's spot, taking 42.48 percent of the vote. Plerhoples was his closest rival with 31.34 percent and was the obvious favorite in several precincts, particularly in the Reston, Herndon and Vienna areas, with Chapman a distant fourth at 9.80 percent, despite outspending the McKay by more than $350,000. Both Plerhoples nor McElveen campaigned with far less money. The Virginia Public Access Project (vpap.org) reports $87,327 spent by

Saslaw

McElveen; $147,791 spent by Plerhoples; $503,169 by McKay; and $853,399 by Chapman.

McKay promoted his 11 years of experience on the board — and the relationships he has built over those years — during his primary campaign. Previous experience did not win the day for all of the candidates, but seemed to weigh in his favor with the Fairfax County electorate.

McKay will face Republican Joseph Galdo in the general election on Nov. 5, but supporters at his election Watch Party at Kilroy's Sports Bar and Restaurant in Springfield — including U.S. Rep. Gerry Connolly (D-11) and current Chair Sharon Bulova — were more than ready to declare McKay the chair-elect.

"Things aren't perfect," acknowledged McKay supporter Henry Dent of Springfield at the McKay Watch Party, but the retired federal contractor said McKay won his vote because he has seen "progress in the right direction on the real issues — like affordable housing and pay raises for teachers and first responders and working on the traffic problems." Like McKay, Dent doesn't think that now is the time to "take a chance on people without any experience."

McKay's progression toward the chairmanship of the board leaves his current Lee District seat vacant. Four Democratic hopefuls contended: Planning Commissioner James Migliaccio; attorney Kelly Hebron; lawyer and nonprofit Melwood chief of staff Larysa Kautz all fell to Rodney Lusk, the Fairfax County Economic Development Authority national marketing director. Lusk won with 46.21 percent of the votes. With no Republican or Independent candidates having filed for the seat, the primary win will send Lusk directly to the board in the new year.

James Walkinshaw, the former chief of staff to Connolly, won his race for the Braddock District Supervisor to replace Supervisor John Cook, who announced that he would not be seeking re-election. Walkinshaw defeated Irma Corado 67.22 percent to 32.78 percent, but unlike Lusk, Walkinshaw will be back on the campaign trail in just a few weeks as he will face two opponents in November — Republican Jason Remer and Independent Carey

Campbell who is running for the position for the fifth time.

"I will take a few minutes to catch my breath and say 'hello' to my wife again, then it's back at it," said Walkinshaw at the Kilroy's event where he celebrated his victory along with McKay. "I can't take anything for granted. I have to get out there and keep listening and offering my message."

The impending retirement of long-time Supervisor Catherine Hudgins brought out five candidates seeking to replace her in representing the residents of the Hunter Mill District, a contest which featured some unusual elements.

Walter Alcorn, who has served on the Fairfax County Planning Commission for 16 years, took first place in that race, with 47.17 percent of the votes. Reston resident, long-time activist and child advocate attorney Laurie Dodd was the runner up with 24.94 percent. Shyamali Hauth, Maggie Parker and Parker Messick ran third, fourth and fifth, respectively.

Local Girl to Be Honored at Fundraiser

Head shaving event will raise money for Children with Cancer.

BY BONNIE HOBBS
THE CONNECTION

On March 21, 10-year-old Ava Buhr of Fairfax marked the most important milestone of her young life – she hit five years without a recurrence of cancer, meaning that she’s officially considered cured. And on Sunday, June 23, she’ll be honored as a survivor during a fundraiser for the DC Candlelighters Childhood Cancer Foundation.

This nonprofit is holding a shaving event to raise money for local families who have children fighting cancer at Inova Fairfax, Georgetown, Children’s and Walter Reed hospitals. It provides these families with financial support when they find themselves in an unimaginable crisis.

Called “Take it to the Alley,” the fundraiser will run from 1-4 p.m. at King Street Oyster Bar, 12 S. King St. in Leesburg. To show solidarity with those who lose their hair while undergoing chemotherapy treatment for cancer, various people will have their heads and beards shaved while their friends and family members whoop with glee.

The fun also includes face painting, a silent auction, food trucks and refreshments.

Attendees can play a part by cheering on those being shaved; they may also help the cause by making donations, buying T-shirts and bidding on silent-auction items.

For more information or to create a shaving team, call 202-827-6544 or email DCCandlelighters@gmail.com. To learn more about the organization, go to www.DCCandlelighters.org.

AS FOR AVA, she’ll be going into fifth grade in the fall and is a healthy and cheerful girl. But when she was just 2-1/2, she was diagnosed with acute lymphoblastic leukemia (ALL). “She had a random fever in August 2011,” said her mom, Jeannie Buhr. “It went away, but it came back, the week before Thanksgiving. Her pediatrician did blood tests and said, ‘I think she has

Ava then saw a hematologist at the Center for Cancer & Blood Disorders in Falls Church. After a bone-marrow test, the diagnosis became official. “You’re a deer in the headlights and you think, ‘That can’t be happening – she’s only 2,’” said Buhr. “I was frightened because I thought I was going to lose my child.”

But when she learned of the high success rate of the treatment for this disease, nowadays, she also figured Ava would be treated and well in a couple months. However, leukemia treatment for girls takes 2-1/2 years.

Ava received chemotherapy via a port in her chest, plus monthly spinal taps. The chemo went into her spine and up to her brain. “Thankfully, she was so young, she doesn’t remember any of it,” said Buhr. “She also had to take steroids, which made her moody and angry for a week every month. Other than that, she was in good spirits.”

However, because the chemo wiped out Ava’s immune system, she was isolated from her friends. Toward the end of her treatment, though, the nonprofit HopeCam gave her preschool classroom a laptop so she and her classmates could connect. And on March 21, 2014, she finished treatment.

Ava will still have to have blood tests once a year, for the rest of her life. But other than that, the bad stuff is all behind her and she can concentrate on her family, friends, school and anything else she fancies. An avid gamer, she loves to play Roblox and Minecraft on the computer. She also learned how to play the viola this year and is looking forward to playing in her school band next year. “When Ava was going through treatment, I wanted to raise awareness of the need for a cure,” said her mother. “Kids go through adult chemo from 30 years ago because there’s not enough funding to develop new treatments.” So Buhr put her words into action and, as a result – through organizations such as DC Candlelighters – she has raised thousands of dollars for childhood-cancer research.

“DC Candlelighters brought light to our family when we were in our darkest place.”

But with so much more work to be done and so much money still needed, she continues the fight. That’s why the upcoming, DC Candlelighters shaving event is so important to her. Besides that, said Buhr, “DC Candlelighters was one of the first childhood-cancer organizations to make hospital visits to families that are in-patient with their children in the Northern Virginia area.

“What makes DC Candlelighters so special is that they are an all-volunteer organization, with no paid staff, and 100 percent of their donations received go directly toward serving local-area families,” she explained. “The majority of their board members are parents who have had children with cancer, so they understand what a family is dealing with and the financial burden this disease can be.

THE BUHR FAMILY first met DC Candlelighters when Ava was newly diagnosed. “They were the first ones to visit us in our hospital room and provide support and a wonderful bag full of goodies,” said Buhr. “We attended all of the amazing events they hold annually for families, like Mother Daughter Spa Night and Family Bingo Night. These events give families a welcome escape to enjoy time out, have fun and be normal again. “DC Candlelighters brought light to our family when we were in our darkest place,” she continued. “So I hope people will please consider making a donation to their ‘Take it to the Alley’ shaving fundraiser on June 23 so that they may continue spreading their light of warmth, love and support.”

Two Area Students Receive Hunt Heroes Scholarship

Hunt Heroes Foundation (HHF), the non-profit organization founded by Hunt Military Communities (“HMC”), announced that $20,000 of scholarship grants have been awarded to nine military family members. Winners include seven military children and two military spouses who will receive grant awards that will be directly given to their college of choice, ranging from $1,000 to $5,000 to help alleviate the cost of their undergraduate education. The winners of this year’s scholarships include two students from Fairfax County:

Rachel H. Ball of Springfield, Cheyenne Mountain High School, Military member is stationed at the Office of the Chief of Chaplin’s, Pentagon, D.C.; Attending: John Brown University

Joseph Killion, Wilbert Tucker Woodson High School, U.S. Air Force Academy, Colo., Military member is stationed at Peterson AFB, Colo., Attending: Butler University “Congratulations to the nine scholarship grant winners who represent the very best of our communities and military families,” stated John Ehle, President of HMC and HHF. “The Hunt Heroes Foundation was founded with the mission of funding projects that address health, education, housing and overall community challenges for our military service members and their families. These nine outstanding students exemplify this dedication to community service, leadership and academic excellence, and HHF is proud to support them as they start the next chapter in their academic careers.”

Scholarship recipients were selected based on their commitment to community involvement, demonstrated leadership, participation in school and community activities, and work experience. In order to be nominated, students had to submit an application by February 20th, 2019.

Candidates did not have to be a resident of HMC in order to apply for a scholarship.

Father's Day Thoughts on Foster Parenting

BY SUPERVISOR DAN STORCK
MOUNT VERNON DISTRICT

Each year for the past 15 years, I have attended 5-10 graduation ceremonies. Sure, some of these are for friends and families, but most are as a representative of our community in recognition of this important rite of passage. Graduations serve as a powerful connection between generations, symbolically passing the torch to the next and inspiring both young and old, alike. One speaker I heard this year reminded me that our paths in life are seldom a straight line and it is those zigzags in life that sometimes help us stop and think, refocus our goals and renew our determination to reach our full potential. As I celebrate my first Father's Day as a new grandfather I think of the circle of life, the varied experiences of our family and of the many life stories yet to come. I had forgotten the intensity of feelings, concern, and very frequent, joyful sharing that a first born creates in new parents' lives. It has been a wonderful reminder of my own early moments as a new parent. We all know parents are a critical part of childhood development and growth. It does not matter whether those parents are biological, foster or adoptive.

Did you know there is a constant need for more foster parents in the County? Have you ever considered becoming a foster parent?

When children enter foster care, their worlds are often turned upside-down through no fault of their own.

To lessen the trauma, it's especially important to keep siblings together, and to find foster homes that are close to their friends, schools, and activities so they can maintain as much normalcy as possible. Currently, there are more than 200 kids in foster care in Fairfax County. The Department of Family Services' Foster Care and Adoption program offers temporary foster homes for these children and services to help their families. Right now, the greatest need is for foster families willing and able to take in sibling groups, unaccompanied minors, teens and medically fragile children. There is also a need for families who speak Spanish.

Stories abound from the foster families in our community:

"Finding my forever family has made such a big impact in my life! We enjoy being together, supporting each other, and making lots of new memories. I strongly encourage anyone considering fostering or adopting to do it - you can make all the difference in the life of a kid like me." — Mikalah

"As a first-time single parent, I was nervous about raising a teenager, but everything fell into place the minute I met her, and it's been an exceptional experience ever since!" — Lesley

"I have learned that adoption is not for the faint of heart. Some days I am aggravated. Some days I am exasperated. Some days I am heartbroken. Some days I ask, 'what have I gotten myself into?' But every day I know that this is among the greatest things I have ever done. In some situations you are literally saving a child's life. But in every situation you are offering a child the opportunity to see all the possibilities this world has to offer."

— Leslie So as you ponder parenting this Father's Day weekend and if you have room in your life for more, I hope you will consider the important role you could play in a young person's life as a foster parent. To learn more about becoming a foster parent and the resources available, come to a monthly information meeting or call 703-324-7639 or TTY 703-222-9452. ## Special Session on Gun Violence

BY KENNETH R. "KEN" PLUM
STATE DELEGATE (D-36)

Virginians are lovers of history, including this Virginian as regular readers of this column know. This year Virginia is celebrating 400 years since the first representative legislative body met at Jamestown. Virginia is the Mother of Presidents.

One bit of history that continues to loom large in Virginia's psyche these days with as little mention as possible from the state apologists is the prevalence of gun violence in the Commonwealth. Twelve years ago the campus of Virginia Tech was the scene of the largest mass murder of its time. While other mass murders have occurred since then, VA Tech through no direct fault of its own continues to hold the record for the most people killed on a college campus.

Virginia last week made history again. Virginia Beach was the scene of the biggest mass murder so far this year. A dubious distinction that we would least like to have. Virginia lost 1,028 people to gun violence in 2017, and as the Governor described it, that is almost three people a day; that is more deaths than those due to vehicle accidents.

For Governor Ralph Northam and for me and countless other Virginians, we long ago have had enough. As Governor Northam said in a press conference which I took part in last week: "No one should go to work, to school, or to church wondering if they will come home. But that is what our society has come to, because we fail to act on gun violence. I will be asking for votes and laws, not thoughts and prayers."

The laws he is seeking to get passed have been introduced in the General Assembly during its regular sessions without success. In a special session that will begin in the coming weeks, only bills intended to end gun violence will be considered. And the Governor requested that "members of the General Assembly engage in an open and transparent debate and that the bills brought before the legislature are put to a vote by the entire General Assembly."

Bills related to gun violence that have been introduced in the regular session including my bill to require universal background checks have been routinely referred by the Speaker of the House to the Militia, Police and Public Safety Committee where they are sent to a subcommittee of six members. The members of the subcommittee are appointed by the Speaker of the House, four of whom have perfect voting records of opposing any gun safety legislation. My background check bill and the approximate 15 other bills related to preventing gun violence were defeated on a predictable vote of 2 to 4 with limited discussion or debate. Yes, that's right. Four members who are buddies with the NRA get to make the decision of 140 elected members of the General Assembly. It is time for Virginia to make history again by leading the nation in doing the right thing to end gun violence. Voters, please pay close attention to how your elected representatives vote.

Versatility of Abstract Art

Ideas for decorating with this adaptable art form.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

From adding a burst of boldly colored angular shapes to a sterile, white wall to using spheres in muted tones to create serenity in a bedroom, abstract art has the ability to set the tone or change the mood of a space. In spite of its versatility, melding it tastefully into a home's décor can be daunting. Local designers share their strategies for aesthetically appealing placement of this adaptable art form.

Abstract art can become the center of attention in a space, notes Pamela Harvey of Pamela Harvey Interiors of Herndon, Va. "One of my favorite ways to transform the look of a room is to add an over-sized piece of abstract art to create a dramatic focal point," she said. "My go-to frame is a simple floater frame to give the art a clean finished look."

Abstract art works well in pairs allowing the use of smaller scale pieces, advises Amanda Mertins of Patina Polished Living in Alexandria.

"Don't be afraid to hang abstract art in gallery style. Be mindful to use like frames and materials," she said. "The use of complementary colors to your space is a safe way to incorporate abstract art into your décor without allowing it to grab all the attention."

One of Mertins' favorite uses of abstract art is pairing it with what she describes as its decorative opposite: traditional décor. "Beautiful wood furniture, silver, crystal lighting and porcelain accessories are perfect as a backdrop for bold prints and abstract paintings," she said. "Mirrors are wonderful to use as abstract décor, but always pay attention to what will be reflected in the mirror."

Abstract art work is a versatile accessory and works well in modern as well as traditional room settings, suggests Harvey. "When choosing a piece I look for something that has some of the room's existing colors in it with an opportunity to introduce new colors into the space."

Harvey implemented this technique in the recent re-design of a client's living room. "We added a piece that had blue and white, but introduced a bold pink to create a dramatic focal point on the back wall."

Abstract art shouldn't be limited to neutral spaces, says Annie Elliott of Bossy Color, Interior Design by Annie Elliott. "If your walls are white and your furniture is gray, the effect will be pretty, but cold and museum-like, not homey," she said. "You should complement a painting's colors [and] the room should feel harmonious. If you put a red sofa under a red and blue painting, the effect may [appear similar too] a hotel lobby."

From a practical standpoint, Anne Walker of Anne Walker Design believes in mixing media to avoid creating a space that has an overly uniform aesthetic. "Oil paintings, both abstract and traditional, framed photography, sculpture, textiles, antique botanicals, framed mirrors, antique porcelain china – all of these art forms can co-exist happily in a single home," she said.

Versatility is one of the traits of abstract art that Mertins appreciates. "This style of art can be very bold and take charge of a room or be soft and fade into the background," she said. "If your room needs a focal point, then abstract art is the way to go."

"The use of black and white art will make a bold statement without adding color to a space," continued Mertins. "Monolithic art produces a solid look, splatter art is happy and upbeat while graceful line drawings impart a feeling romance and intrigue. Photographic art can be personal, bold and sometimes more affordable than painted pieces."

Works of art that one purchases spontaneously, such as during travels, is often both more meaningful and more likely to enhance a home's décor, says Walker. "When art is purchased for the entire home all at once, the result can often feel contrived," she said.

"Surround yourself with art, furnishings and objects that make you feel joyful, and consult a design professional if you need help editing or arranging your collection," continued Walker. "I've often helped clients sort through their existing art collections and place them in just the right spot," she said. "Moving a piece of art from the wrong location to the right location can not only transform a room, it can transform the work of art itself."

Combustible Items Left On Stove Ignite Fairfax Townhouse Fire

On Wednesday, June 5 at approximately 10:30 a.m., units from Fairfax County Fire and Rescue and the City of Fairfax Fire Department responded to a reported house fire in the 10200 block of Braddock Road in the Fairfax area of Fairfax County.

Units arrived on scene of a middle-unit, townhouse to find smoke showing and a large volume of fire in the rear kitchen area. Crews were able to quickly extinguish the fire. There were no civilian injuries. One firefighter from the City of Fairfax Fire Department sustained a minor injury. He was transported to an area hospital for treatment.

No one was home at the time of the fire. Five adults were in the final stages of moving-in but had not begun to occupy the townhouse.

Fire Investigators determined that the fire was accidental in nature and started in the kitchen on the first floor. The fire was caused when combustible items left on the electric range ignited after electrical service was restored to the structure by the power company.

No occupants have been formally displaced and Red Cross services are not applicable. Damages as a result of the fire were approximately $118,750.

Springfield Native Trains Naval Aviators

BY LT. PAULA KNIGHT
NAVY OFFICE OF COMMUNITY OUTREACH

A 2007 Robert E. Lee High School graduate and Springfield native is playing a key role in the lengthy and rigorous training process that transforms officers into U.S. naval aviators.

Lt. Erik Olsen is an instructor pilot with the “Wise Owls” of Training Squadron (VT) 31, based in Naval Air Station Corpus Christi, Texas. The squadron flies the T-44C Pegasus aircraft.

A Navy instructor pilot is responsible for taking command of the aircraft to ensure safety of the flight.

“I enjoy mentoring the student pilots in the air and on the ground,” Olsen said.

OLSEN credits success in the Navy to many of the lessons learned growing up in Springfield.

“My family and my hometown near Washington D.C., instilled a sense of duty to serve and be part of something bigger than myself,” Olsen said.

The T-44C Pegasus is a twin-engine, pressurized, fixed-wing monoplane used for advanced turboprop radar aircraft training using two 550 shaft horse-powered engines, with a cruising airspeed of 287 mph.

VT-31’s primary mission is to train future naval aviators to fly as well as instill leadership and officer values, Navy officials explained. Students must complete four phases of flight training in order to graduate, including aviation pre-flight indoctrination, primary flight training, and advanced flight training. After successfully completing the rigorous program, naval aviators earn their coveted “Wings of Gold.”

After graduation, pilots continue their training to learn how to fly a specific aircraft, such as the Navy’s P-8 Poseidon maritime patrol aircraft or the Marine Corps’ MV-22 Osprey tilt-rotor aircraft. They are later assigned to a ship or land-based squadron.

A key element of the Navy the nation needs is tied to the fact that America is a maritime nation, and that the nation’s prosperity is tied to the ability to operate freely on the world’s oceans. More than 70 percent of the Earth’s surface is covered by water; 80 percent of the world’s population lives close to a coast; and 90 percent of all global trade by volume travels by sea.

Olsen plays an important role in America’s focus on rebuilding military readiness, strengthening alliances and reforming business practices in support of National Defense Strategy.

“Our priorities center on people, capabilities and processes, and will be achieved by our focus on speed, value, results and partnerships,” said Secretary of the Navy Richard V. Spencer. “Readiness, lethality and modernization are the requirements driving these priorities.”

Though there are many ways for sailors to earn distinction in their command, community and career, Olsen is most proud of earning his instructor pilot qualification.

“It was recognition of my hard work, both in flight school and in the fleet,” Olsen said. “It has allowed me to train my replacement in Naval aviation.”

SERVING IN THE NAVY is a continuing tradition of military service for Olsen, who has military ties with family members who have previously served. Olsen is honored to carry on the family tradition.

“My grandfather was a Naval aviator and my father was a surface warfare officer,” Olsen said. “These men are my heroes, it is my honor to continue the tradition.”

As a member of one of the U.S. Navy’s most relied-upon assets, Olsen and other sailors know they are part of a legacy that will last beyond their lifetimes providing the Navy the nation needs.

“I feel honored to serve my country and be part of something I believe in,” Olsen said. “I am proud to continue in my family’s footsteps and hope to be a strong role model for my children.”

Springfield Resident Publishes Book of Essays

Sydney Spicer graduated from Juniata College in May.

Recent Juniata College graduate Sydney Spicer’s experiences living and learning while developing a deep appreciation of place culminated in her recently-published work, “Bloom.”

“I’ve been writing for a while and started working on pieces of the book in the fall,” says Spicer, a resident of Springfield, who earned her degree at Juniata in May. “For my capstone, I chose to do a writing project, but had no idea what I wanted to do.”

With a Program of Emphasis centered on environmental studies with a secondary focus on communication, she penned a collection of insightful essays ranging in subjects, but interwoven with her love of nature.

“I knew I wanted to write observational essays,” she says. “At the end of the semester, heading into spring, I saw that the pieces I had written all went together. I wanted to see if they could be used to form a larger work.”

Spicer discussed her progress with her adviser Neil Pelkey, professor of environmental science and studies.

“He gave me good advice and recommended that I consider publishing my work,” Spicer says. “I don’t share a ton of my writing, so by publishing it, I was able to share it in a way I hadn’t before.”

The encouragement she received from both Pelkey and Donna Weimer, Thornbury Professor of Communication, and the partnership with many other faculty members were invaluable in helping her to achieve her goal.

“The main role Juniata played was in encouraging me to do something different,” she says. “Not to include on a resume or to have something to tell people, but something for myself.”

low 2019 graduate Kaila Topping, Spicer compiled her works so that they formed three parts.

“The essays go through the process of self-growth and going through the journey of life,” says Spicer. “It’s a quick read, but it goes in depth in talking about my journey and experiences in nature.”

She opted to self-publish her work, single-handedly undertaking the layout and design.

“I did a few test runs to see how it would print,” Spicer says. “When I got the first one from Amazon, it was crazy and awesome to hold something in my hands that I had made on my own. It’s one of my cooler accomplishments.”

The lessons she both learned and taught through “Bloom” will be continued in her service as a Massachusetts Promise Fellow through AmeriCorps, as she mentors young women beginning their own journey through nature and life.

Sunny Weather and Beer in the Burbs

Fairfax City's first-ever, craft beer festival, Beer in the Burbs, was Saturday, June 1, in Old Town Square. Some 15 Virginia craft breweries served up the suds, while food trucks including Taco Bamba, The Inside Scoop, Dolce Vita, and Red, Hot & Blue offered lunch and dessert. Live music and children's activities rounded out the fun.

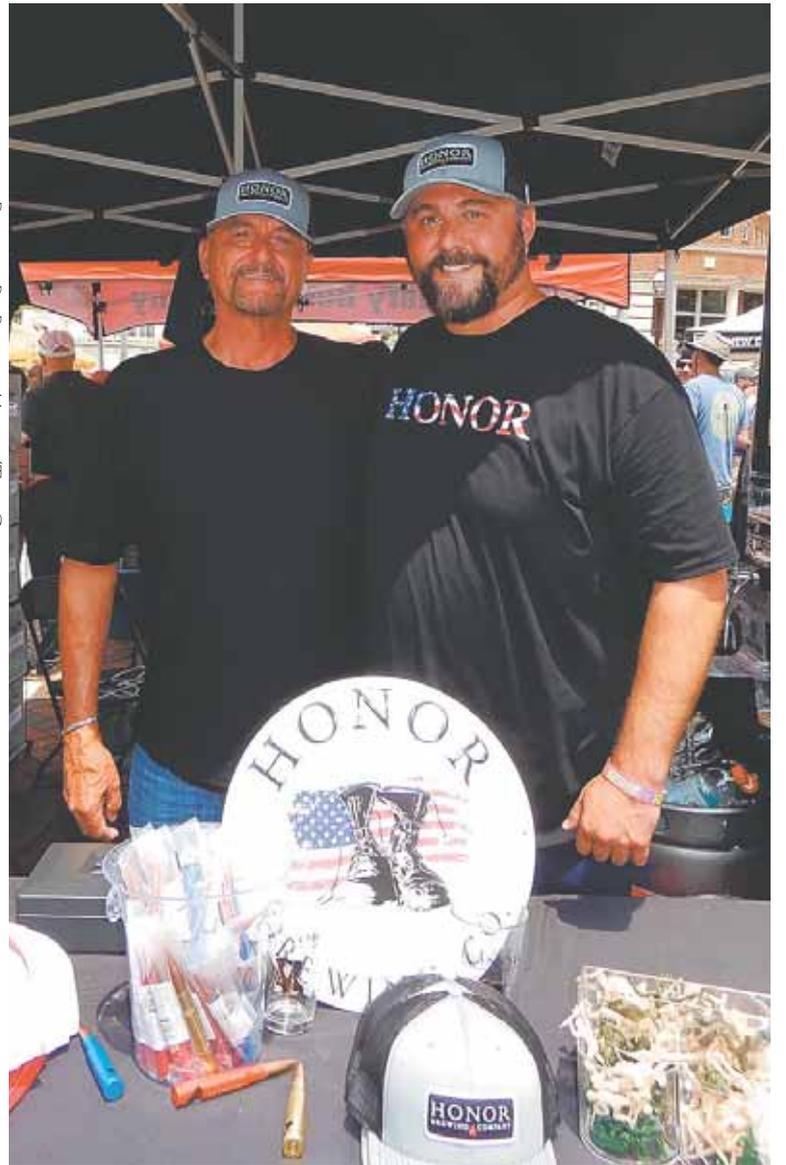

Attendees relaxing, chatting and enjoying the festival on a warm, sunny day.

THE HUNTER MILL RACE made election headlines on a number of occasions. For starters, there was the wide disparity in campaign dollars spent. Winner Alcorn shows a total of $75,926 in campaign dollars expended, while fourth place Maggie Parker spent $246,368, according to the Virginia Public Access Project.

Bulova and others raised First Amendment concerns when Parker displayed large signs at the Wiehle-Reston Metro station while her opponents were barred from campaigning there. Parker works for Comstock Companies developers, the company that built the station with Fairfax County in a public-private partnership. The question of access remains to be resolved.

The Hunter Mill contest also included the youngest candidate in any of the Board of Supervisors races in Parker Messick who is just a few years beyond his college graduation.

PROVIDENCE was another district that saw five Democrats on the Primary ballot to replace Supervisor Linda Smyth who, like Hudgins and Bulova, announced that she will retire at the end of the year. In the unofficial results, FCPS School Board member Dalia Palchik's 39.79 percent of the votes tops Planning Commissioner Phil Niedzielski-Eichner's 23.40 percent; court officer Erika Yalowitz's 13.97 percent; former Vienna Town Council member Edythe Kelleher's 12.73 percent; and consultant Linh Hoang's 10.12 percent for the seat.

Next up, Palchik will face Republican Paul Bolon in November.

Dranesville Supervisor John Foust and Mount Vernon Supervisor Dan Storck appear to be unopposed in November. In the Springfield District, Republican Pat Herrity will face Democrat Linda Sperling; in the Sully District, current Supervisor Kathy Smith will see Republican Srilekha Palle on the ballot; and Democrat Penny Gross will be challenged by Republican Gary Aiken.

PERHAPS THE BIGGEST SURPRISE to some was the defeat of longtime Commonwealth's Attorney Ray Morrogh. Challenger Steve Descano, a former federal prosecutor pressed a progressive agenda for criminal justice reform, winning with 51.04 percent of the vote.

Morrogh has served for 35 years and has held the top prosecutorial spot in Fairfax County and Fairfax City since 2007, prosecuting a number of high-profile cases.

Descano is a West Point graduate who spent 6 years as a federal prosecutor in the Obama Administration, first as a Special Assistant to the U.S. Attorney for the Eastern District of Virginia and then as a trial attorney in the Criminal Tax Division and the Consumer Protection Branch. He served on the inaugural Fairfax County civilian panel providing oversight to the Fairfax County Police.

The two men met at public forums several times during the campaign. Morrogh often described his opponent as "unqualified."

Descano said Morrogh lacked a vision of where reforms — particularly to combat systemic racism and bias — need to occur.

Former Gov. Terry McAuliffe endorsed Descano, as well as the reform minded challenger in Arlington, Parisa Dehghani-Tafti, who defeated incumbent Theo Stamos there because the two incumbents signed on to a Republican effort to block restoration of voting rights of former felons who had completed their sentences. Both Descano and Dehghani-Tafti received large donations from the same Political Action Committee, giving them a financial advantage.

With no other declared candidates to be faced in November, Descano will be the new Commonwealth's Attorney.

The number of races and candidates and the contentious nature of some of the campaigning for Board of Supervisor positions and for Commonwealth's Attorney may have stolen the election limelight there were also primaries for several members of the General Assembly. Incumbent Barbara Favola handily defeated Nicole Merline to retain her position as the nominee for Virginia State Senator for the 31st District.

Jennifer Boysko did the same with her challenger M. Sharafat Hussain for Senate District 33.

Sen. Dick Saslaw (D-35), the Senate minority leader, had a tougher time of it. In the first challenge he has faced in decades, Saslaw held off human rights lawyer Yasmine Taeb by only 362 votes. Taeb is the first Muslim woman to be elected to the Democratic National Committee. A third candidate, Karen Elena Torrent, received 697 votes.

At the victory party, Saslaw admitted that things got a "little closer than I thought it was going to be."

In the Democratic primary races for the Virginia House of Delegates, the incumbents Kaye Kory (D-38) and Alfonso Lopez (D-49) triumphed over their opponents.

What A Week!

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

The least of it was my pre-immunotherapy lab work on Wednesday and then my actual immunotherapy infusion on Friday. The most of it was my navigating websites and trying to properly complete applications/enrollment forms for the Virginia Unemployment Commission and the Maryland Health Connection.

For a man (me) who fancies himself your go-to-guy for sports and chocolate, getting immersed in policies and procedures for government agencies providing unemployment benefits and health care – with our (my wife, Dina and I) respective lives somewhat dependent on the time-sensitive completion of said documents, was akin to sending yours truly out to sing the National Anthem at the next Nationals' game. It would be a disaster of titanic proportions (fortunately without the loss of life).

As it has been my entire life, I can't sing any more than I can now compute.

As I sit and write this week's column, having barely survived the excruciating ordeal of this past week – with only an in-office visit left to go on Monday – I now have next week to look forward to. And what garden path am I leading you down?

Another week of time-sensitive/computer-centric tasks, of course. Once again I will be sitting at my computer attempting to navigate through another government web site and this time a private sector website, as I try to sign up for Medicare effective Sept. 1, as well as the associated but independent supplemental medical insurance necessary to fill in the coverage gaps that I, as a former insurance broker, know exist.

Granted, with these two tasks I do have some time. I just hope I have the wherewithal.

This past week took a toll emotionally. And I'm not sure if I really want to climb that emotional mountain yet again.

This week's tasks are not any easier. Shooting fish in a barrel they're not. They're more like having to make the barrel and then catch the fish. Not easier said than impossibly done. For a man who knows his limitations, the week ahead will likely test those limitations.

But if not me, then who? Unfortunately, it has to be me. The other party with whom I share a long-standing arrangement has a skill set unsuited to and incompatible with, computers, and the kind of searching/deciphering/hunting and pecking on web sites required for completion of this week's tasks.

Moreover, if I enlist her support or insist on her participation, my present and future will not be enhanced by the experience. She may be a resource in many other respects, but in this respect, she's not.

And I can respect that. Give me a little credit, I've learned something in our 40 years together.

That being said – and understood, I think I'll take the weekend off from such endeavors and prepare myself for next week as I consider the challenges which lie ahead.

I'd like to think I've gained some confidence in the progress I made this past week. I've nearly completed both tasks, tasks which initially seemed almost insurmountable. However, if it were not for the amazingly patient, courteous and knowledgeable assistance I received from the call centers associated with these sites, I'd still be stumbling and stammering (literally) into oblivion.

But as of this past Friday, I've nearly reached the promised land. ("I can see Russia from my house.")

I can only imagine the satisfaction I'll feel next Friday when I anticipate I will have completed two more of these tedious tasks and secured yet another part of our financial and emotional future.

Four huge hurdles overcome, but still with a few more yet to go: probably applying for a reverse mortgage and possibly researching a kitchen renovation.

Wait a second. Don't I have lung cancer? Jeez, I almost forgot.

With all this other stuff going on, the cancer compartment stayed closed. Now it's open again. Damn, now I really have problems.
