Helping Hands for Homeschoolers

Co-ops and clubs support homeschoolers in and around Mount Vernon.

BY ELISSA ESHER
THE GAZETTE

Cathy Stone, director of one of the major homeschool “co-ops” in the region, says that the biggest misconception she sees in homeschooling parents is the idea that you have to do everything yourself to be involved in your child’s education. Her co-op, Harvester Teaching Services, hires teachers to instruct homeschooled students twice a week in their subject of expertise, striving to give parents the peace of mind that comes with their students learning from professionals while only meeting twice a week so as not to diminish the close supervision of the parent unique to homeschooling.

“When I was homeschooling my children, I realized I probably wasn’t the most adequate teacher for certain subjects at a higher level,” said Stone, mother of five. “Particularly with chemistry and biology, I knew I needed help. I really appreciated that HTS had the budget, equipment, and teachers I needed to get my children the proper class requirements I couldn’t have given them myself.”

Stone said there are many similar co-ops in the region as the concept has become fairly popular here. While some co-ops are run by a mutual agreement that every parent will teach a class, HTS and other “drop-off” co-ops like it pay their instructors and do not expect parents to teach if they don’t want to.

Stone has been involved in HTS since its founding in the early ‘90s. She assumed the position of director this summer.

“Since I became director, I’ve been looking around at other co-ops in the area asking myself what sets us apart,” said Stone. “Now that homeschooling has become more prevalent there are a lot of co-ops in the area that offer high school classes, but, to my knowledge, HTS is the only one of its kind that offers classes at an elementary level.”

HTS meets at Harvester Presbyterian Church in Springfield. Along with elementary education, the co-op provides middle school and high school classes, nursery care, and a homeschooling mother’s bible study on Tuesday mornings.

“There’s an importance to socialization,” said Stone. “In a co-op, your children can be with other children and you can be with other parents. It makes you feel not quite so much alone on this island of homeschooling.”

Anne Waters, a mother of five in the Mount Vernon area, says. The resources for homeschoolers in the region have met critical needs in her children’s education.

“Obviously, the buck stops with you when you homeschool, both with the state and nity for battle-worn homeschooling parents.”

Both STARS and HTS meet Tuesdays and Thursdays. While both co-ops celebrate the community, opportunity, and structure their programs contribute to a child’s homeschooling experience, each clarified that the critical role parents play in their child’s education at a co-op is what makes this experience different from that of a traditional school.

“Often parents worry co-ops will only replicate the school system they have chosen to step away from because they felt their student needed a more individually focused approach to education,” said Rose. “We work specifically to not be a one-size-fits-all system, but rather to coach both the parents and the students on how to solve the problems or gaps in their homeschooling experience.”

Waters said her family has primarily used HTS and another prominent co-op, Capitol Baptist, for core classes. Her children have also participated in extracurricular activities for homeschoolers in the region such as STOA (speech and debate), SPIRE (track team) and Fairfax Homeschool Sports (FHS).

She additionally recommends Northern Virginia Players for homeschooled thespians, Classical Conversations for homeschoolers looking for classical education, and Skye Chase Academy, a Catholic co-op in the Mount Vernon area.

“There are so many great opportunities in this region and so many educated people willing to teach — the options are endless,” said Waters. “If you want to homeschool here, there’s a way.”

Washington D.C. to Tokyo in Under Five Hours

BY EVA WILLIAMS-SIGUENZA

Not exactly, but this summer I felt as if I spent two weeks in Japan without even leaving the East coast.

This opportunity was High School Diplomats (HSD), which is a program hosted at Princeton University for 40 US and 40 Japanese students to exchange cultural knowledge and ideas. Using games, diplomatic discussions, activities, and even food, I gained a deeper understanding of not only another culture but also of myself and my place in the world. It's a chance to meet someone on the other side of the world that you would have never met otherwise.

My High School Diplomats experience began when my family and I hosted two Japanese students, Honatsu and Rina, for three days. We went shopping at Tysons Corner Mall, bought all the American snacks they could possibly fit in their luggage, and took a painting class. I immediately formed a tight bond with both of them and we learned about each other's cultures along the way. I highly recommend anyone in Northern Virginia who applies to participate in Homestay Weekend, as it gave me a taste of what the rest of my summer would be like.

Two weeks later, we reunited at Princeton for the upcoming ten-day program. In those ten days, my mindset shifted to a more globally understanding one and I began to see both cultures in a new light. I am so grateful that I was able to have an international experience without leaving the country. In this sense, High School Diplomats is truly unique. I met so many interesting people with whom I shared more similarities than differences. The High School Diplomats staff led us through several activities, such as a Bunka No Hi Culture and Earth Day festivals. I will never forget all the impromptu dance parties we had, the insightful diplomatic talks or the Japanese language classes.

High School Diplomats is one of the most rewarding things I have ever done. It's also one of the most challenging, which is why it's important to go in with an open mindset ready to absorb anything and everything. I can't thank HSD enough for helping me figure out who I am and for teaching me about true friendship even if it is 6000 miles away.

Sophomore and Junior students from all over the United States can apply starting Sept. 15 until Jan. 8 at www.highschooldiplomats.com and clicking the Application Information button at the bottom of the article. After the application deadline, selected students will be contacted for an interview as the second portion of the process. Contact the program director, Celine Zapolski, with any questions about the program at celinezapolski@highschooldiplomats.com.

Start planning today your opportunity to expand your horizons, have the experience of a lifetime, and make long-lasting friends.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Letter to Friends and Neighbors

To te Editor:

I've written to you before and I didn't think I could do it again. You see, after fighting so hard, my sister lost her battle with ovarian cancer last year. I feel her loss every day. As hard as it is to talk about, I keep remembering something she said to me after she was diagnosed. She was shocked that two educated women (she was a physician) were so unaware of the risk of ovarian cancer. As we shared her story with friends and colleagues, we discovered that we weren't the only ones unaware of this killer. She kept telling me that we had to warn everyone. While we fought to keep her alive, we worked hard to raise awareness and to make people comfortable talking about reproductive health and ovaries.

To honor a beautiful warrior who wanted to spare anyone else's family from the pain we have endured, I would like to share our story again as September is ovarian cancer awareness month.

Denise was one of the 85 percent of women who are diagnosed after the cancer has metastasized because the symptoms are so vague. There is no accurate screening or early detection test for ovarian cancer. Nothing done during our annual trips to the gynecologist is checking us for ovarian cancer. By the time Denise was diagnosed, the cancer had spread well beyond her abdomen. My sister was an athletic, very active person until she was told she had stage IV ovarian cancer. Most people don't realize that ovarian cancer is only the 11th most common cancer among women, but is the fifth leading cause of cancer death among women.

I am calling on all of you to help me honor Denise. Pay attention to your own bodies and be aware of changes. Don't do what most of us do and ignore them as we rush about our busy lives. If you feel any of the following: bloating that is persistent; eating less and feeling fuller; abdominal pain; urinary symptoms; please be proactive, see your gynecologist, ask for a transvaginal ultrasound; a pelvic/rectal exam; and a CA-125 blood test.

Help me spread the word during September by telling all the women in your lives about the risk of ovarian cancer.

Preserving Area's Equestrian Culture

To the Editor:

The Northwest suburbs of Washington DC hugging the Potomac River have always been known for being horse friendly. For many years, horses, horse properties and equestrian events were commonplace. Over the past decade, this equestrian culture has come under pressure as the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors continues to increase property taxes and approve higher density real estate development.

As new homeowners join the community, they are increasingly less informed of this equestrian heritage and may question the need to have horse friendly parks, trails and road crossings. By no means have horses left Great Falls and boarding opportunities are in high demand. All the more reason to protect Turner Farm as an equestrian park and be thankful for events such as the one that took place this past weekend – the Summer Horse Trials, Combined Test, and Dressage Show. Not only does it represent one of the many horse shows at Turner Farm over the course of any given year, it brings the equestrian community together and raises needed money for park maintenance. It also provides a wonderful opportunity for beginner and novice riders to participate in an organized event in a friendly and supportive environment. Now in its fifth year, riders and spectators alike look forward to the event that draws hundreds to Turner Farm from surrounding communities. This all volunteer event runs smoothly, including wonderful support from Great Falls Volunteer Fire and Rescue who are present maintaining a watchful eye on horse and rider safety. Thank you to Kristin Parisot and Wendy Masemer for your vision and leadership. The equestrian community needs more passionate leaders such as yourself to ensure that our community never forgets why Turner Farm is here, that the park is well utilized by the equestrian community and why this community invests so greatly to ensure it is maintained and preserved for future generations.

Saber of the civil war soldier that died under John and Mary Marshall's house.

Examining Local History

Glenn Curtis presents stories of Burke's past.

BY JENNIFER ALBARRACIN
THE CONNECTION

On a Sunday afternoon, Aug. 21, in a meeting room at the side of the Pohick Regional Library, the Burke Historical Society congregates to share and feed their curiosity on Burke's History. One might think the topic would not pique the interest of a large crowd, but people kept pouring in well after the meeting started, with additional chairs needed.<sup>o</sup>

The program attracting the attention: Glenn Curtis, born in Burke in 1930, interviewed by Mary Lipsey, a retired history teacher and a member of the society herself.

"I went and looked into the 1860s census information about John [Marshall] and he is listed as a farmer, owner of 100 acres of which 70 he was farming," Lipsey told society members and Curtis, himself a descendant of the Marshall family.

John and Mary Marshall were prominent figures in the mid- to late 1800s owning much of Burke and a general store located at the heart of the town that no longer exists. John was a train station manager and later appointed the first post master of Burke, serving between 1852-1854. In addition, Curtis is a founding member of the Burke Volunteer Fire Department. During the meeting, he recounted tragic accidents that occurred in the area from fires, train crashes and a collapsing bridge.<sup>o</sup>

Curtis, now 89 years old, holds many memories and of what Burke used to be through his grandfather, Robert E. Marshall. "They (John and Mary Marshall) had no children but had lots of nieces and nephews and I heard this house kept on expanding so the nieces and nephews could come and visit," says Lipsey. One of those nephews was Robert, Curtis's grandfather. Robert Marshall briefly owned the General store, passed down to him by the Marshalls. It was two stories high and had a double decker porch. "Grandad said bartering was a big thing," said Glenn about how the store functioned back then. A railway was built nearby, with the help of Colonel Silas Burke, who the town was named after. It allowed the general store to easily carry timber and other supplies until it was relocated in the early 1900s. In 1939, a fire destroyed the store, forcing it to go out of business.

One of the many captivating stories is of an unidentified Civil War wounded soldier who Curtis says, "crawled up (under the Marshall's house porch) and died there." The Marshalls decided to bury him in their familial burial plot what is today known as the Marshall Family cemetery. Left behind was his saber, now a family heirloom, brought in by Mike Young, Glenn Curtis's nephew, to the meeting for everyone to see.

has seen many stories unfold before its eyes.

"Does the Marshall House exist today?" Lipsey asks. She answers herself, "Sort of." The house was moved to the Burke Nursery and Garden Center around the 1970s but burned down on a Halloween. Despite it all, the Marshall's history and spirit still persists in the replica house that was made after, made using the original plans of the house according to Curtis and in the stories shared at meetings held by the Burke Historical Society.

Raising awareness of the benefits of yoga for men during National Yoga Month.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
 THE CONNECTION

Take quick scan of most yoga classes at East Meets West Yoga Studio in Vienna, Virginia and you're likely to see the mats being occupied primarily by women. That is changing, says studio owner Dawn Curtis. A recent Harris study shows that while women make up more than 70% of yoga practitioners, the number of men has increased from 4 million to ten million over the last 7 years. Practitioners are working to raise that number even higher this September - which is National Yoga Month - by emphasizing the health benefits for men. "We've seen an increase of men in yoga classes, but also an increase in the number of male yoga teachers and men who are coming into our yoga teacher training program," said Curtis. "We've had a lot of older men of the Boomer age taking classes because they're realizing that the exercise routine that they've been doing hasn't increased their flexibility." Because yoga classes often begin with an inward focus, those who practice it might be more inclined to develop body mindfulness off-the-mat. Exercising bodily-awareness during activities such as weight lifting can help prevent injury. "Breathing and body awareness can both be gateways to better self-awareness...." said Christian Elliot, owner, TRUE Whole Human. "Everything about modern convenience is geared toward making it easier for you to meet your basic needs without moving," continued Elliot. "As we age, often what happens is we move less, thus becoming stiff." "Yoga makes you more flexible and your muscles and joints are more lubricated, you're less prone to injury," added Curtis. The practice's reputation as stress reliever is credited with the uptick in male students. "I've seen men use yoga as a stress management tool," said Curtis. "Men don't always realize how stressed they until they start talking yoga classes. Anytime you're doing yoga you're going to have stress management and relief. "Just one yoga class has proven to lower cortisol [stress] levels," added Luann Fulbright, Director, Dream Yoga Studio & Wellness Center in McLean. "I also have worked privately with many students on anxiety and panic disorders with success. This is a dominant reason folks come to yoga." Improvement in sleep is another asset to be gained from adding a yoga practice to one's life, says Curtis. "Yoga can lead to better sleep patterns because the mental stress that we have is held within the body," said Curtis. "Once that's released you can relax, fall asleep and stay asleep." An overall sense of well-being is subtle, but definite benefit of yoga, advises Curtis. "Yoga provides more balance, men typically musical their way through things which means over-activity," she said. "Yoga teaches them to slow down and not push their way through. I often hear people say, 'Yoga makes me a better person'. That's because they're less reactive because they aren't feeling stressed. You have to do it on a regular basis though to benefit from it."

Workhouse's Brewfest Returns

New features added for Saturday, Sept. 14 event.

BY DAVID SIEGEL
THE CONNECTION

One of the Workhouse's signature events returns. It is the enormously popular Brewfest, first appearing at the Workhouse in 2016.

For the 2019 Brewfest there will be more than two dozen Virginia craft breweries, artisan distilleries, and Virginia wineries along with live performances by some of the region's most popular bands, distinctive food trucks, with access to a dozen art galleries and a myriad of artist studios.

"Brewfest is a key event for us that showcases the beautiful renovation and preservation of the historic Workhouse," said Kevin Greenleaf, Chairman, Workhouse Arts Foundation Board of Director. "The day combines music, craft beer, and food on the lovely campus quad with the opportunity to stroll through the workshops of our many talented artists."

"The Workhouse is a tremendous County asset in the southern part of Fairfax, and Brewfest is a truly fun way to experience this unique artistic setting," added Greenleaf.

"We're excited to expand Brewfest, with the debut of our new 'Create + Sip!' experience. This will provide guests the opportunity to work under the direction of Workhouse artists and try their hand at creating art," said Ava Spece, President and CEO, Workhouse Arts Foundation.

Spece said that during Brewfest, there will be several one-hour "Create + Sip!" sessions with artist-instructors available throughout the afternoon. These

Where and When

For tickets and detailed information go to www.workhousebrewfest.org or call 703-584-2900. Notes: There are Designated Driver tickets available. Children are permitted to attend the event, programming is intended for an adult audience. Children or those under the age of 21 who wish to attend will need to have a Designated Driver (non-drinker) ticket, and will have grounds access, unlimited root beer and bottled water, and be able to enjoy on-site musical performances. Children are required to be accompanied by an adult or guardian. No pets are allowed per Workhouse policy. Service animals are welcome in the studios, galleries, museum and theater.

Create + Sips will provide an art experience that introduces guests to what is available year-round at the Workhouse; such as classes and camps and the work of more than 80 artists who create and exhibit at the Workhouse.

"There's no better way to let our guests know of our mission of supporting visual arts and arts education than providing Brewfest guests the chance to roll up their sleeves and tap into their inner artist," added Spece.

Brewfest production partners include Visit Fairfax and the Fairfax Office of Public Private Partnerships. The Workhouse is also partnering with Fairfax Alliance for Better Bicycling in support of those who want to bike to the Workhouse event.

"The Workhouse Brewfest showcases the best in local breweries and wineries, but also in music, art, and history in its location at one of Fairfax County tourism's hidden gems – the Workhouse Arts Center. Visitors and residents can experience the art and history that lie within these walls while enjoying a day of craft beer and wine, or artisan spirits," said Barry Biggar, President & CEO of Visit Fairfax.

Something or Nothing

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

As you can imagine – or read every week in this space, my health, especially considering that my stage IV non-small lung cancer is incurable/"terminal," is top of mind. (If truth be told, it's middle of mind, bottom of mind and every other mind in between and all around.)

That being said – repeatedly, I am prone to exaggerate the significance of seemingly unrelated peculiarities and draw them into my cancer "centricity" without any facts to support them. Though I feel fine-ish, mostly, (the previous weeks' columns "Barbasoul" and "Side Splitting But Not Very Funny" notwithstanding), there are a number of things in my life which aren't doing as fine and have given me pause for this column.

First and foremost is Chino, one of our two diabetic cats ("The Diabetic Duo" as I call him and his brother, Biscuit) is now up to 14 units of insulin per day and is a shell of his former self, literally. His appetite remains good but he's confined in the kitchen because he doesn't seem particularly interested or aware of his litter box. His co-diagnosee Biscuit, has had the complete opposite reaction to his medicine. He's down to two units a day and appears quite himself. He's free to roam around and seems quite clear about the reason for the multiple litter boxes located throughout the house.

Unfortunately, Chino is slowly getting worse and despite following doctor's orders and feeding him prescription food, nothing really seems to be stemming the tide.

The rest of the examples I'm about to give pale in comparison to Chino's situation but in the aggregate, they represent a pattern that's making me nervous.

My inherited model-year-2000 Honda Accord is most definitely showing its age and may very well be nearing the end of its useful life. I have given up trying to make the necessary repairs suggested by the multiple idiot lights illuminating my dashboard. As determined as I am to ignore them, the different sizes, shapes and colors of the various lights/symbols are drawing me ever closer to the wear and tear they represent. I fear the worst, as with Chino.

Now into a more mundane world, a world in which technology has ensnared us. What would we do without the various hand-held devices with which most of us are all too familiar? I'm getting regular messages that unless I act accordingly, I'm about to find out.

My museum-piece flip phone is dying. It won't hold a battery charge for nearly as long as it used to. Either I'm speaking into it or I'm speaking at it because I only have one bar and I need to charge it. As a result, it's become unreliable and a bit of a bother. If it had any legs, it would be on its last ones.

The battery-operated key fob for my car has recently advised me that it too is dying and, unless I make the necessary battery replacement, it will no longer start my car. Do I really need my key fob communicating with me? A metal key never bothered me with such trivialities and so long as I was inserting it into the car to which it was mated, I was usually able to reach my intended target – without any backtalk.

Finally, I've been receiving messages on my television that the remote control is unhappy and also needs a battery replacement and unless I respond, it too will fade into nothingness and I'll be staring at a blank screen. I don't mind a smart TV but I do object to one that persists in its demands.

All these elements, crucial in their own way, intersecting with my cancer life at the same time and all seemingly headed in the same direction: south.

I can ignore and compartmentalize some things, but I can't ignore and compartmentalize all things. After all, as the old joke "punchlines:" I gave you lots of warnings.
