No More Curbside Pickup for Glass

Residents will have to take their glass bottles and jars to a purple bin.

By Mercia Hobson
The Connection

On Oct. 1, Fairfax County announced it will no longer accept glass bottles and jars in curbside recycling bins.

The county decided to make the announcement after consulting with private recycling sorting centers and Covanta Fairfax, Inc., which operates the waste-to-energy plant. With the elimination of glass jars and containers from its single-stream curbside program, the county provided options for glass containers.

Residents should reuse glass containers or bring them to purple, glass-only recycling containers located throughout the region. If this is not possible, glass should be placed in the trash, said Fairfax County in its post. Glass items not accepted included lamps, light bulbs, ceramics, porcelain, mirrors, windows and sheet glass.

Glass collected from the purple containers will be delivered to the only glass processing plant in the area, the I-95 landfill complex in Lorton.

When residents deliver used glass containers to purple, glass-only recycling containers, that glass is crushed and reused in county projects. Glass processed in Lorton is pulverized. It has been tested and reused in place of quarried gravel as bedding and fill construction projects.

For years, most glass has passed through the recycling process as residue, or waste. Some of the glass is applied as landfill cover, it will go to the landfill with other unrecyclable waste, much like what is currently happening with contaminated recyclable materials in the county. According to “Fairfax County Government Public Works, Shatter the Glass Ceiling – Recycle Glass @ I-95:”

“For years, most glass has passed through the recycling process as residue, or waste. Some of the glass is applied as landfill cover, an approved use by the Virginia Department of Environmental Quality, but most of it is simply landfilled with other unrecyclable waste.”

“If the glass is broken,” the county stated, “Carefully package into a rigid container. Label the package “GLASS” and set out with your trash for disposal... Intact glass windows, sliding doors, glass sheets and mirrors can be taken to the I-66 Transfer Station and I-95 Landfill Complex for disposal.

The county forewarned Feb. 15, 2019 that it was encountering many problems with glass in its single-stream recycling. When glass comingled with other materials in the County’s single-stream recycling program, it often broke during truck collection and transport to material recovery centers. The broken glass mixed with other more valuable recycled items such as cardboard and metals and contaminated them, lowering their scrap value and making them more challenging to sell in the marketplace.

Compounding the problem, approximately two years ago, China, the largest consumer for recycled materials, imposed stricter import standards on the quality of recycled content it accepted. Also, the additional heavy weight of broken glass when intermixed with other recyclables presented extra costs when transporting the mixed materials. The broken, abrasive glass also damaged machinery.

Ten other states have created container deposit laws or so-called “bottle bills.” Under a bottle bill system, when you purchase a beverage container, you pay an additional deposit amount (usually 5 or 10 cents per container), which is added to the cost of the product. Once the product has been consumed, you take the empty container to a redemption center where you receive your deposit back.

According to Fairfax County, glass processed in Lorton is pulverized. It has been tested and reused in place of quarried gravel as bedding and fill construction projects such as the Flatlick Branch sanitary sewer replacement project. See www.youtube.com/watch time_continue=1&v=N0toyRgH_YE.

For container glass, place it in the trash where it will go to the landfill with other unrecyclable waste, much like what is currently happening with contaminated recyclable materials in the county. According to “Fairfax County Government Public Works, Shatter the Glass Ceiling – Recycle Glass @ I-95:”

When you register to vote in Virginia, you do not register to vote by party. Virginia is an Open Primary state which means that any registered voter in Virginia can vote in either a Democratic or Republican primary. When both parties are holding a primary election, you will be asked which primary you want to vote in when you check in to vote with your photo ID. Note, you may only vote in one primary.

Voter ID Requirements:
Per Virginia law effective July 1, 2014, all residents must provide valid photo identification when they vote in-person. Please consult the VA Department of Elections for the most up to date information regarding acceptable forms of voter photo ID.

Many types of photo ID are acceptable for voting in Virginia. You only need to show ONE acceptable photo ID to vote. Photo IDs can be used to vote up to one year after the ID has expired. Acceptable forms of valid identification: Virginia driver’s license, Virginia DMV-issued photo ID, United States passport, Employer-issued photo ID, Student photo ID issued by a school, college, or university located in Virginia, Other U.S. or Virginia government-issued photo ID, Tribal enrollment or other tribal photo ID, Virginia Voter Photo ID card.

If you get to your polling place without acceptable photo ID, you can vote a provisional ballot. You will be given instructions on what to do so your vote can count.

A Jewel With Uncomfortable Truths
Cast reactions to staged reading of ‘Herndon Town,’ part of 2019 Herndon Arts Week.

By Mercia Hobson
The Connection

Herndon High School Theatre presented a staged reading of ‘Herndon Town’ by playwright and novelist Kristen LePine on Friday, Oct. 11. Conceived and directed by Scott D. Pafumi, the high school’s Theatre Arts Director, the project was one of the many activities celebrated during 2019 Herndon Arts Week, an initiative of Arts Herndon. According to Town Proclamation, the designated week provided a focal point to celebrate the unity created by the town’s diverse cultural heritage through the arts as it demonstrated the vitality of community artists across all fields.

Originally commissioned by Herndon Middle School and performed as a one-act play in 2015, Pafumi chose to reach out to the community and perform the piece at an alternative venue, ArtSpace operated by Arts Herndon and in an alternative form, a staged reading. “We are super delighted to bring back this little jewel of a play,” said Pafumi. “As the new theatre teacher at Herndon High School, I want to make as many community connections as possible,” said Pafumi.

The script swiftly chronicled the town’s 100-year history from village status in 1858 to the present and captured the essence and struggles of what makes a community special with humor and honesty while at the same time probing some uncomfortable truths.

THE READING showcased a selection of teen thespians from Herndon and Reston, students at Herndon High who dressed in the uniformity of black rather than costumes. Being a sit-down reading with the actors in chairs configured in a semi-circle conducive to their character’s relationships, it put them feet from audience members. Even with reading’s simple attire and a short rehearsal schedule, the production affirmed performing arts are pivotal to the Keeping Children Safe on Halloween

Safety advocates offer tips ranging from costumes to trick-or-treating.

From princesses to superheroes, within the next two weeks, as Halloween approaches, many children will be choosing a costume. As children express their creativity with the help of wigs and light sabers, public safety advocates are encouraging caution both in costume selection and mapping-out a Halloween night route.

“There are several components to safety, first make certain the costumes are well-fitted so they aren’t a tripping hazard,” said Tammy Franks, senior program manager for Home and Community Safety at the National Safety Council. “Instead of masks that could obstruct their view try using non-toxic face paint.”

It’s possible to use face paint that is free of toxins, but doesn’t sacrifice a creative disguise, says Aieda Turner of costume supply store Total Fright in Arlington. “ Mehron face paint is completely safe and it’s made of aloe vera and cucumber and doesn’t have any alcohol which can irritate a child’s skin,” she said. “Almost all children’s costumes made now, even elaborate costumes, are fire resistant.”

When children are trick-or-treating without an adult, says Franks, drivers should be able to see children, especially if they are wearing a dark costume. “Children should carry a flashlight or glow stick so that they can see and be seen,” she said. “Parents should make sure that costume is flame resistant and they should add a reflective component.”

“The same basic rules of pedestrian safety also apply on Halloween. Cross the street in crosswalks, stay on the sidewalk … and walk instead of running when crossing the street so that you don’t trip.”

Adding glow-in-the-dark or reflective tape can help. “Children should carry a flashlight or glow stick so that they can see and be seen,” she said. “Parents should make sure that costume is flame resistant and they should add a reflective component.”

The costume itself shouldn’t have accessories that pose hazards, says Franks. “For example, if your costume includes a sword or knife, make it out of foam or cardboard or something flexible,” she said. When out-and-about trick-or-treating on Halloween, retired pediatrician Julia Baker, MD, advises parents to accompany children under the age of 12. “Parents know their children best and should use their own judgement when it comes to allowing a child to go trick-or-treating [without an adult],” she said. Parents should make a plan with their child about the route they’ll take so they’ll know where to find them in an emergency situation. They should also agree on the time when a child should be back at home.

Children should carry a cell phone so that parents can contact them if necessary, says Baker. “Parents should definitely be able to reach their children on Halloween,” she said. “As hard as it might be these days, parents should stress to their children the danger of texting and keeping their head buried in their phones while trick-or-treating.”

Staying in well-lit areas and trick-or-treating with a group of friends can help make Halloween activities safer. “The same basic rules of pedestrian safety also apply on Halloween,” said Franks. “Cross the street in crosswalks, stay on the sidewalk instead of running through yards and walk instead of running when crossing the street so that you don’t trip.”

enhancement and enrichment of human expression, especially to its youth actors.

“I chose to do this show because the world is a sea of art, and acting is my ship,” said Isaiah Hagee, 17.

For Meena Megahed, 15, and Abigail Westman both of Reston, they chose to participate in the staged reading for a variety of reasons. For Westman, she chose to participate to be part of the school’s theatre program while acting. Megahed said, “Because I am the happiest when doing theatre.”

While Amy Sacks said that she had never participated in a staged reading and decided, “to try something new,” her fellow cast member, Tina Thayer, 17, was an old hand at it. “I was in middle school when ‘Herndon Town’ was first written; I’m here tonight to honor the origin of our town and inspire hope for the future,” Thayer said.

For other actors, “Herndon Town” revealed what the village once was and how it changed to be the Herndon of today, according to actor Roland Lamoureux. “I volunteered to be part of ‘Herndon Town’ because I love theatre, and I love Herndon,” said Lamoureux.

For Leilani Johnson, 16, part of the script stunned her and presented an uncomfortable truth. “I was shocked to learn about the civil rights conflicts Herndon had in the past. I am African-American, so this story in the play hit me the hardest,” she said.

COMING SOON: Herndon High School Theatre presents the 2019-2020 Season of Royalty and invites the public to the classic Shakespearean tragedy “Hamlet” performed on Dec. 5-8 and Stephen Schwartz’s musical “Pippin” that will be presented April 30-May 3, 2020. Herndon Parks & Rec Raises Global Bar

T he International Festival & Events Association (the IFEA) recently recognized the Town of Herndon Parks & Recreation Department with its Bronze Award of third place in the global category of Best Emergency Preparedness & Risk Management Plan for an Event $250,000 to $1 Million. The Department received the award for its unparalleled planning, execution and follow up review of the 2019 Herndon Festival. According to a statement by Cindy Roeder, Executive Director of Herndon Parks and Recreation: “As an event based in the densely populated Washington, D.C. metro area, providing for patron security is a priority. The Risk Management/Emergency Operations Plan is intended to ensure the safety of the festival attendees, the town’s staff, the event’s volunteers, and the town’s assets.”

“The IFEA is pleased to recognize and highlight those cities and markets who have worked, through concerted efforts, to provide an environment conducive to successful festivals and events,” said the IFEA President Steven Wood Schmader during presentations. According to the IFEA, an international panel of industry experts judged entries based upon a compilation of detailed information in multiple areas including but not limited to Community Overview and Government and Non-Government Support of Festivals & Events.

In an interview with Roeder and Town of Herndon Police Department Lieutenants Si Ahmad and Steve Pihonak, each provided insight into why the IFEA recognized the quality of the 2019 Herndon Festival, as an example they hoped all cities globally would work to emulate. Asked why Herndon won the award when there were so many festivals across the globe in the same fiscal range, Roeder said, “Our plan was well thought out, well-executed, and reasonable.”

“We’ve been doing this for many years, so this is not something new,” qualified Ahmad. “We had meetings upon meetings, and there have been procedures in place. … We knew with the location change we’d be coming across new challenges, and we were pleased with the outcome.”

ROEDER said while the plan itself read similarly to previous years, the physical execution of the security plan and the event procedures were recreated in every way. Roeder detailed actions in writing:

and Police and Fire and Rescue EMS were among those represented in the decision-making. “There were approximately 15 people at the table. The core was the Executive Committee members, staff, volunteer coordinator, the arts representative, police representative and Parks and Recreation people. We couldn’t do without any of them.” “For us, pretty much everyone on the Herndon Police Department was involved, about 50,” said Ahmad. “We had various other agencies helping us out as well,” he said.

According to Roeder: “The three town agencies met frequently in advance to review and assess the realistic implementation of site security and worked throughout the festival weekend to modify details such as fencing and gate configurations to improve both access, appearance and flow while still protecting the public.”

Roeder said that in 2019 when the festival location changed for the first time in 38 years to the private campus of Northwest Federal Credit Union in Herndon, its management wanted to know what the department would do about security and logistics. “When we went through and answered all their questions, their level of confidence in us based on that, is what convinced their leadership team to go forward,” she acknowledged.

After hearing of the award, Festival Executive Committee Member Al Hobson wrote in an email to Roeder: “Woohoo! Very significant recognition, especially in the times that we live in. Kudos to you, Cindy, and your entire Parks and Rec Staff and to the Herndon Police and Herndon Public Works Departments. Having served in Law Enforcement and the security field for 41 years, I know that safety and security is not a ‘bolt-on’ product. To be done correctly and effectively, it has to be part of the fabric. Having the PD and PW involved 12 months out of the year in the planning, initiation, implementation, and follow-up is critical to our success and the safety and well being of our sponsors and attendees. This is one of those untold stories that go unnoticed by the general public and by those who tend to criticize what we do in producing this festival. I am proud to be part of a team that strives to get it right each time and every time.”

This is a punchline to a joke I heard 50-plus years ago during my adolescence. I never knew what the actual joke was, but somehow it was thought to be funny. And so too was it funny the other day when preparing to take a shower at home, I noticed that the bar of soap waiting for me in the shower was running low and insufficient for the task at hand. Then I opened the bathroom vanity where I knew I had back up and saw there was only one bar remaining. It was the last hold-out of an eight pack I had bought many months ago. As Maurice Chevalier sang in the movie “Gigi”: “Ah. I remember it well.” And remember it well as I remember other similar bulk-type purchases. Sometimes, being mentally, if not positive about the negative and interferes in the most unusual way. When I buy things or make arrangements for the future, I’ll often wonder if I’ll still be alive to actually derive the benefit from this day’s commitment. As involves the soap; that day in the supermarket aisle, I was really looking for a two- or a three-pack, not an eight-pack, hesitating to over-buy when I may under-use. I suppose I had plenty of money and fewer financial concerns than I do now, I wouldn’t have given this soap purchase any thought at all. But I’m me, not somebody else.

And sometimes, I don’t want to be me. I’d rather be somebody else. Somebody else who throws a bit more caution to the wind. Somebody who damns the torpedoes and goes full speed ahead. Somebody who’s a bit fast and furious and less slowly, if I can invoke metaphorical Comcast turtles into the conversation. Nevertheless, at the end of the day (at the beginning, too), I may not be Sammy Davis Jr., but “I Gotta Be Me.” And “me” is someone who doesn’t throw caution anywhere, has never sworn at a torpedo and loves turtles, especially when they beat hares. My approach to this excruciating cancer ordeal is to keep my glass half full, compartmentalize, be positive about the negative and not “Live Like You Were Dying,” as sung by Tim McGraw, but to live like I was living. Which to me has meant to live normally as if I didn’t have stage IV lung cancer, with no bucket list or urgency about anything; and to assimilate having cancer into my life as just another variable, like the weather or the Red Sox bullpen. Unfortunately, and it might just be me (Oh, really), but this kind of soapy mundane minutiae does occupy (I’m not saying pre-occupy though my world). But it doesn’t necessarily occupy because I have cancer. It occupies because I’m more like my mother than I am my father and cancer, or not, it’s what I do. And being exactly who I am in spite of my diagnosis is how I’ve rolled through these last 10-plus years. It’s been a living for which I remain extraordinarily grateful and to be honest about it: amazingly lucky.

Moreover, I make the same jokes, with or without punchlines, do the same impressions, invoke the same popular culture references and make decisions as I always have. In addition, I allocate resources, juggle funds and plan for the future while being mindful of the present while being mindful of the present, not “Live Like You Were Dying,” as sung by Tim McGraw, but to live like I was living. More, I make the same jokes, with or without punchlines, do the same impressions, invoke the same popular culture references and make decisions as I always have. In addition, I allocate resources, juggle funds and plan for the future while being mindful of the present. And I give myself pause: Wow, I made it through that walk (Leon Russell not withstanding). And it conjured memories of the tightrope I have to walk (I own Russell not withstanding). And it gave me pause: Wow, I made it through that entire pack. Now what? Soap. No radio. And so it goes.

Fire & Rescue Stations Host 2019 Open House

Plan and practice your fire escape.

In a typical home fire, you may have as little as one to two minutes to escape safely from the time the smoke alarm sounds. Escape planning and practice can help you make the most of the time you have, giving everyone enough time to get out,” according to National Fire Protection Association (NFPA).

On Saturday, Oct. 12, in support of NFPA’s 2019 campaign, “Not Every Hero Wears a Cape. Plan and Practice Your Escape!” Fairfax County Fire & Rescue Department hosted an Open House from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. at each of its 38 stations.

For firefighters at Station 39 North Point that serves Reston, Herndon, Great Falls and beyond and Station 4 Town of Herndon, as well as other stations, the daylong event provided an opportunity to educate children and adults about the importance of fire safety, training and drills.

“This is the best part, interacting with the public, teaching the children,” said Captain Patrick Sheehan of North Point, Station 39. Various hands-on activities, as well as demonstrations, supported fire safety knowledge and NFPA’s 2019 campaign. Children aimed a real firefighter’s hose at painted wooden flames and soaked them with blasts of water. Fairfax County firefighters set kindling ablaze to demonstrate the effectiveness of fire suppression sprinklers and set fire to a small-scale, multi-compartment dollhouse-like structure to recreate fire behavior, flashback and effective door control.

THE DAMAVANDY FAMILY of Great Falls, mom Tania and children Max, 7, Layli, 5, and Arya, 3, tried out the fire hose. It took a concentrated effort by all three children to knock down the simulated fire. “It’s an annual tradition to come here. … [The event provides] good reminders for fire safety,” said Tania Damavandy.

Sheehan explained to a group of children and adults that those caught in a home fire may have at the most two minutes to escape after the smoke detectors sound. He cautioned smoke could make things dark and confusing and urged attendees to “stay low, get out and stay out.” Sheehan added everyone should know two exit paths to the outside from every room in the house and have an outside meeting place.

To simulate the real-life experience of trying to get out of a smoke-filled home but in a controlled monitored environment, nearby a large shed emitted smoke from its rafters. “Want to come in and see what it’s like?” beckoned Sheehan. Created by Bill Coburn, Technician at Station 39, the smoke house allowed participants to experience first hand the effects of low-visibility and the reality of the need to train and train frequently.

Inside claustrophobic, white smoke obliterated the walls and made actual exit hallways appear like walls. The exercise impressed Lou Peon of Reston, who brought his two young children Parker and Mason. “This is our second time here. The smoke house was really interesting. You think you have more time than you do,” he said.

At Station 4 in the Town of Herndon Zain Baig, 5, of Herndon contemplated what Captain Robert W. Kitchen had just told him and his mother about fire spreading and the need for the household to make an exit plan and practice it. “I plan to go down the steps, to the door, exit outside, and meet at the car,” said Zain.

Bryce Perry of the Town of Herndon reconsidered his ability to get himself and his family out of the home safely during a fire. Perry acknowledged the need to be more proactive. “This event is getting me thinking about how much we should be preparing. I think we will have a drill,” he said as he looked down at his two young sons, Ronan and Samuel.

According to Kitchen, there are approximately one-to-two house fires a day in Fairfax County.

FAIRFAX COUNTY RESIDENTS can get free battery-powered smoke alarms by contacting the local Fairfax County Fire and Rescue District station or by submitting the completed form found at www.fairfaxcounty.gov/fire-ems/free-smoke-alarms. After the request is received, contact will be made to schedule a visit to the house or apartment, check current alarms, and install new ones.
