Hunters Woods at Trails Edge senior living community at 2222 Colts Neck Road in Reston held its New Year’s Eve Around the World Open House from 3 to 7 p.m. on Jan. 30. The event was open to the public.

The community featured various spots decorated in a theme representative of different continents throughout the world. Cissy Nickel, Executive Director of Independent Living at Hunters Woods at Trails Edge, said there was authentic food and beverages at each spot.

A docent, or guide, from each of the various regions spotlighted spoke about the cultural New Year’s traditions and celebrations unique to that region as well as general cultural differences. There was also entertainment specific to each region.

Hunter’s Woods at Trails Edge opened in May 2019, providing four levels of care in the 300,000 square feet community. The state-of-the-art retirement community is nestled in a tranquil wooded setting near the Turquoise Nature Trail, Reston Town Center, and Reston Community Center.

Hunter Mill District Supervisor Walter Alcorn (D) holds Town Hall meeting.

By Mercia Hobson
The Connection

C onstituents in the Hunter Mill District of Fairfax County showed up, listened up and spoke up at a Town Hall meeting hosted by Fairfax County Supervisor, Walter Alcorn (D-Hunter Mill). Held Monday evening, Feb. 3 at the Reston Community Center-Lake Anne, the date marked the thirty-fourth day of the supervisor’s initial, four-year term on the Board.

Supervisor Alcorn had invited all in his district to a Town Hall meeting, meant as an alternative avenue for citizens to share their views with him before and others on the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors considered crucial decisions. “Town Hall meetings are a great way for the public to interact with me directly, not just one-on-one, but also to hear others’ concerns, have a community discussion about issues and exercise people’s rights,” he said.⁴⁰

Ed Robichaud of Reston waited for the meeting to begin. Referencing immediate past Hunter Mill Supervisor, Cathy Hudgins (D), Robichaud said, “Cathy used to do a good job summarizing board actions. Alcorn, he’s a very process-oriented guy.”⁴¹

With the room filling up quickly, Deborah Shprentz of Reston took two seats at the edge, one for herself and one for husband, Joel. Shprentz said, “If I asked a question, it would be, what are your goals for the re-evaluation of the Fairfax County Comprehensive Plan for Reston?” Joel Shprentz’s focus was the direction Supervisor Alcorn might take. “I’d ask, will you continue in the direction Supervisor Cathy Hudgins was going or different?”

According to Mike McDermott of Reston, he was not there to ask questions. “I’m here to listen...in particular about transportation and development,” he said. Like McDermott, Kathleen Maupin did not attend the Town Hall meeting to express her thoughts but to gather more information. “I’m here to listen to the overall meeting and the vision of development for the Hunter Mill District,” she said.⁴²

SUPERVISOR ALCORN opened the Town Hall meeting, saying that this event would not be his only Town Hall meeting, but instead, there would also be a Budget Town Hall meeting and one on issues. His personal, number one goal, he said, was to work for civil discourse in Reston, saying he was confident, all could move forward as a community and tackle some of these thorny issues.

According to Alcorn, the primary reason he ran as the elected official for the Hunter Mill district was to manage growth in Reston. His first board motion authorized an amendment to the five-year-old Fairfax County Comprehensive Plan for Reston and initiated a public participation process. Alcorn said he would put together a task force, run on an open process, where people could voice their concerns. “There will be lots of meetings, every other week, for about a year,” he said.

Supervisor Alcorn’s first priority concerned the need to reform Fairfax County’s land policies. He sought to use policies to preserve existing housing and generate more affordable housing. He would start with updating policies for converting old office parks and commercial centers. Focusing on Plan Review, Supervisor Alcorn said they needed to first look at what properties had been rezoned. “There are 52 of them,” he said. The second step in developing a Comprehensive Plan for Zoning was that the important thing to know about rezoning was, “most of the density around the Transit Station can not be undone,” he said. However, most have density in the design, and that’s where we can get them.” Supervisor Alcorn’s second priority related to transportation, the Bicycle and Pedestrian Programs. There were several sidewalk, trail and crosswalk projects in the pipeline, but those needed to be accelerated. Also, there was a need to look at better technology to improve pedestrian safety, particularly at crosswalks and places with a clear safety risk. “We have to stop designing all our transportation for cars. They must be safe for people and cyclists,” he said.

One of Supervisor Alcorn’s final goals dealt with climate change, solar panels and running County fleets not on gas and diesel but electric.

Highlights of Constituents’ Concerns and Alcorn’s Answers

The Penny for Affordable Housing fund

A: Fairfax County could potentially dedicate an extra penny to its affordable housing penny fund. “I’m on the record for increasing it to two cents.”

Residents not told of construction on easements adjoining their properties

A: “It’s a challenge...I will be happy to work with Transportation (on this).”

Price inflation for housing - the average housing inflation rate is higher than the overall inflation rate, with the prices for housing higher now versus 30-40 years ago.

A: Part of the problem is our economic success; demand is there because we have a lot of jobs in the county. Development of the Transit-Oriented Core will help the “dearth of affordable housing.”

One week in the life of newly elected Supervisor Walter Alcorn (D-Hunter Mill)

Well, my goodness. Let me look at my schedule. I met with several dozen citizen groups about land-use, climate change concerns and affordable housing. I also met with the Reston Association representatives, representatives from Reston Citizens Association, with several industry representatives seeking approval of various development applications, and members of the Reston Planning and Zoning Committee. I also met with Fairfax County Park Foundation representatives, representatives of several transportation groups, and attended related meetings with county staff and regional officials. And that’s one week.
Dazzling Pace of Change in Richmond

By Kenneth R. "Ken" Plum
State Delegate (D-36)

Dazzling is the only word I could think of to describe the amazing work that is going on in the Virginia General Assembly this legislative session. The annual meeting of the legislature is just approaching half-time of its annual session, but already significant policy changes are being debated and adopted. There is little new to the policies that are being adopted; many are in place in other states already. But in Richmond they seem revolutionary!

I have already written about the ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment in the early days of the session. The movement to ratify the ERA began in the early 1970s but was not successful in Virginia until nearly 50 years later! Since two ratification deadlines have already passed, the fate of the amendment with Virginia being the needed 38th state to ratify is uncertain. Virginia Attorney General Mark Herring is among the leaders seeking a judicial decision to validate the amendment’s ratification. Although the Nineteenth Amendment granting women the right to vote was ratified in 1920 and added to the Constitution, Virginia did not add its support to ratification until 1952!

While legislation must be passed by both houses of the legislature and signed by the governor to become law, there is a run-down on what has been approved so far by at least one house. By the time the legislature adjourns in early March this legislation is expected to be approved by both houses and sent to the governor. Numerous bills have been passed to ban discrimination against persons because of their sex; bills to protect LGBTIQ+ persons would not have made it out of committee last year. Bills to ban discrimination in housing, public accommodations, employment and credit applications have passed as has a bill to ban conversion therapy.

Likewise, bills to protect public safety from the misuse of guns that would never have made it out of committee previously have passed in both houses of the Assembly. My bill to require universal background checks has passed as well as bills granting localities the right to ban guns in public spaces, increasing the penalties for selling guns to unsecured around children, and requiring people to report lost or stolen guns within 24 hours. A “red flag” law that allows authorities to remove guns from individuals who have shown themselves to be a danger to themselves and to others has passed.

This week action is expected on bills that will open up the state to more solar and wind power and that will establish standards for the increased use of renewables in generating electricity. Plastic bags may be eliminated or taxed to reduce plastic pollution. I am sponsoring the Governor’s bill to advance the clean-up of the Chesapeake Bay that is getting some push-back from the farming community that would be affected by regulations to clean up stream run-off. Numerous bills have already passed to make it easier to register to vote and to vote on election day, including no-excuse absentee voting.

There is more to come. Tune in next week or follow the sessions on live-streaming at https://virginialegislature.gov/house/chamber/chamberstream.php for more dazzling action!

New Starts in the New Year

By John Lovaas
Reston Impact Producer/Host

New Fairfax County Hunter Mill District Supervisor Walter Alcorn is off to a running start. He’s hired a staff of five—including one returnee from the Huddins years and one of his Democratic Primary opponents, Shyamali Hauth. They appear to be a competent lot. He’ll need them. In his first weeks, Walter has been everywhere every day it seems—very unlike his predecessor who was low key and not one for attending every event where there were two or more potential constituents.

He also speaks of, and is beginning to act on, new initiatives, getting to the substance of his tenure. He has announced plans for a major initiative which will affect us all for the rest of his tenure. He can repair damage and provide great benefit to Reston for a couple of generations. This is potentially the defining work of his tenure.

He has announced plans for a major initiative to improve Reston’s pedestrian safety, a matter of concern in light of three pedestrian deaths in less than two years. Measures include more sidewalks and crosswalks, and specialized pedestrian signals and signage. We also may see pedestrian over- or underpasses sorely needed on major arteries such as Wiehle Avenue for both pedestrians and bicycle riders.

Like Ms. Huddins, Alcorn has promised to continue to assign high priority to affordable housing. He cites a need to increase the affordable unit minimums required in new projects and to examine old, unused office parks and shopping centers as sites for new creative multi-unit developments. These concepts are in the early stages of planning, but IMHO merit the effort.

A more macro, local level, a home-owners association in our district recently experienced a modest revolution in its Board of Directors election. Incumbents who'd controlled it for some time were soundly defeated. They were replaced with a younger contingent promising to clean up the organization's finances and address overdue maintenance work. As is often the case in homeowner associations, transparency was also a major issue in the election. The new leadership is off to a good start, but it's not over. The old guard is not giving up. It's fascinating to see governance in action at the HOA level and realize its similarities to other levels. This will be interesting to watch!

Virginia Polar Dip returns to raise funds for Camp Sunshine.

By Mercia Hobson
The Connection

The water temperature in Lake Anne registered a refreshing 41 degrees the day the Virginia Polar Dip returned to Reston.

“The lake isn’t frozen this year,” said Gail Toth, event founder and coordinator. “So there’s no cutting through with a chainsaw. It’s actually a balmy day compared to some of the years we’ve had (the event),” she said.

Toth is the founder and organizer of the Virginia Polar Dip. Funds raised help support Camp Sunshine in Casco, Maine, which is “near and dear” to Toth and her family.

Twenty-three years ago, when Toth’s daughter Jennifer was a cancer patient at age three, they attended the camp located on Sebago Lake, 30 miles from Portland as a participant family. “We had an amazing time with other families going through the same things we were. We’ve returned every summer as volunteers. Now, we also fundraise so other families can experience the program. This is our 12th year,” Toth said.

According to Toth, her campaign goal for the 2020 Virginia Polar Dip was $100,000. That would send 40 local families who had a child with a life-threatening illness to Camp Sunshine. Each participant in the Polar Dip had been asked to raise/donate a minimum of $100. As of Feb. 1, the online Progress Roll showed $46,674. However, donations would be accepted until the end of February.

Announcer Andy Sigle took the microphone. He thanked everyone for their kindness and generosity. He said that since the event first began but not including this year, 1,806 individuals had participated and raised more than $760,000.

Cancer survivor Jennifer Toth is now an adult. On the afternoon of the 2020 Virginia Polar Dip, she stood on the Lake Anne Plaza dock surrounded by hundreds of spectators, volunteers and approximately 150 individuals willing to do a little “Freezin’ for a Reason.” Chicken Dippers, children who would sit on the dock and stick their feet in the water, huddled with family members.

After a plunge in the 41-degree water, the air temperature is a little much for a participant in the 2020 Virginia Polar Dip to benefit Camp Sunshine.

First time Polar Dipper, Becket Cumming, 10, of Vienna, receives his wristband from Michael Katz, Executive Director of Camp Sunshine.

South Lakes Boys, Girls Win District Championship

With sweeping performances in the 300 meters, pole vault, shot put and a brother-sister winning combo in the 500 meters, the South Lakes High School indoor track teams won the Liberty District Championship Feb. 1, 2020.

It’s the ninth straight championship for the girls team and an even dozen consecutive for the boys squad. The two-day meet took place at the Prince George’s Sports and Learning Complex in Landover, Md.

The Seahawks took the top three finishes in both the girls and boys 300 meters. Senior Hannah Waller, who also won the 55 meters (7.10) and triple jump (37-10.50), led the girls 300 domination in winning the race in a meet record 40.04. Sophomore Jillian Howard finished second in 40.67, followed by junior Juviannadean Mullings (40.80, 3rd) and senior Mary Gregory (41.08, 4th). While Waller broke the district record set by SLHS alum Lachelle Wallace in 2009, Howard and Mullings times were also better than the previous record of 40.99.

On the boys side, sophomore Joshua Gregory led the sweep of the boys 300 meters with a winning time of 35.93. Sophomore Tyler Benett was second (37.23) and senior Jackson Cooley finished third (37.46). Cooley also won the long jump (22-00.00), triple jump (42-05.50) and finished second in the 55 meters (6.55). Benett was second in the triple jump (42-01.50) and third in the long jump (20-09.25).

In the 500 meters, it was all about the Gregorys. Mary, who was fifth in the pole vault (7.10), started things off by winning the girls division in 1:17.15. Mullings ran 1:18.74 for third and senior Emily Lannen was fourth (1:20.14). To keep it a family affair, little brother Joshua ran a 1:07.90 to win the boys 500. Senior teammate David Ramirez finished fourth (1:10.3).

SLHS’ events sweep began on Day 1 with the boys pole vault. Junior Tommy Allison cleared 12-00.00 to win the event while senior Gabe Simmons finished second (10-00.00) and sophomore Matthew Ryan was third (9-06.00). The field event sweep continued on Day 2 when senior Caleb Miller successfully defended his district shot put title (49-02.50) and was followed by sophomores Jeremy Semelfort (39-04.50, 2nd) and Adam Hvitfeldt-Matthews (38-03.25, 3rd). Senior Sarah Jane Brown also repeated as Liberty District shot put champion (33-01.15). Junior Molly Shapiro finished second (27-11.50) and also fourth in the pole vault (7.06).

Senior Mira Cuthill was the sole Seahawk in the girls high jump but she was all the team needed. She won the event with a personal best jump of 5-04.00. Her previous PR: 5-00.00.

The Seahawks started the meet winning the first running event of the championships. Lannen, senior Caitlyn Morris, sophomore Annika Yu and freshman Annalise Williams won the girls 4x800 meter relay in 9:48.92. Morris (5:22.89, 2nd) and Williams (5:22.89, 4th) also scored in the 1,600 meters as did Lannen (3:07.47, 3rd) and Yu (3:11.70, 4th) in the 1,000 meters.

SLHS placed in either the girls, boys and/or both divisions in every event.
