Councilwoman Passey Not Running For Re-election

Fairfax City Councilwoman Jennifer Passey is leaving City Council, this summer. She made her announcement during the Council's Feb. 11 meeting. First elected in September 2017 during the special election to fill Mayor David Meyer's former Council seat, she was re-elected in 2018.

"We live in a special place here, in the City, and I've found some delight in being a member of Council," said Passey. "But I will not be running for re-election." And while noting that several factors played into her decision, she didn't go into detail during the meeting.

Afterward, however, she said, "What a privilege it has been to serve the City of Fairfax as an elected member of the City Council. This current Council has worked together to move our City forward in a positive direction, and I have enjoyed working with them, our great City staff and residents. [But] this job takes a great deal of effort and time. And, as a working mom of four boys, I need to take a step back and put the focus back on my family and work life."

"I challenge those elected in May to continue my efforts to work together and find common ground," continued Passey. "I also challenge all residents to assume positive intent. This job is not easy, and I know the Councilmembers work hard to make the best decisions for our entire community."

She also thanked the voters who trusted her to serve them well, during her past two terms, and said how much she liked getting to know so many people in the City and have "real, meaningful discussions" with them.

Passey also sent an email to her constituents. In it, she wrote, "This was a difficult decision, as I have enjoyed representing you. My family and I are blessed by our community, and I look forward to serving the remainder of my second term – through June 30."

‘A Legend in Selfless Service to Northern Virginia’

Art Little honored by both the City and NOVA Parks.

BY BONNIE HOBBS
THE CONNECTION

Longtime City of Fairfax resident Art Little received two special honors during the Feb. 11 City Council meeting. One was from the City and the other was from NOVA Parks.

With his wife Julia beside him – and standing before a full house in the City Council annex – Little, 92, listened while Mayor David Meyer sang his praises.

“Art has been involved in making sure that athletic facilities and recreation facilities are available to lots and lots of people,” said Meyer. “And he has been a good friend to almost everyone in this room that knows him. Art is concluding 33 years of service on the NOVA Parks Board, so we’re going to recognize him for his efforts.”

Meyer then read the proclamation, which noted that Little is a Northern Virginia native, having been raised in Arlington. He attended Virginia Tech, graduated from George Washington University and later received his Master of Arts from Auburn University.

He served his country with distinction during World War II in the Philippines, and later in the Korean War, and retired as a lieutenant colonel in the Air Force Reserves. Afterward, he served as a civilian with the Central Intelligence Agency in several countries before retiring for the second time in 1982.

While at the CIA, Little met his future wife, Julia, and they now have four children and five grandchildren. Upon returning to Northern Virginia, they bought a home in the Old Lee Hills neighborhood of Fairfax City. Art soon served as an umpire for three years in the Fairfax Little League, followed by 10 years of service on the City’s Parks and Recreation Advisory Board [PRAB].

IN 1987, Little was appointed to represent the City of Fairfax on the Board of Directors of the Northern Virginia Regional Park Authority, now NOVA Parks, where, the proclamation stated, “he has provided invaluable service for 33 years – the longest-serving citizen on their board.

“During his over three decades of service to NOVA Parks, Art Little contributed mightily in leading NOVA Parks in the preservation of numerous tracts of land as open space and the creation of numerous parks, trails, historic structures and recreation facilities, such as Gateway Regional Park, which appeal to and are accessible to all visitors, thus contributing to the physical and mental wellbeing of all residents in our region.”

The proclamation further stated that “Art Little has exemplified the best in citizen volunteering and promoting civic betterment through his selfless dedication and generosity of time and talents and is now concluding his tenure on the NOVA Parks Board of Directors.

“Now, therefore, I, David L. Meyer, mayor of the City of Fairfax, in concert with my colleagues on the City Council, hereby express our profound gratitude and thanks to Arthur F. Little, on behalf of all the citizens of the City of Fairfax and the hundreds of thousands of visitors to the NOVA Parks facilities across the Northern Virginia region who continually benefit from Art Little’s leadership and vision.”

The audience gave Little a standing ovation. Then Brian Knapp – one of the City’s two representatives who serve on the NOVA Parks Board – came to the microphone.

“On behalf of the 12 members of the Board of Directors for NOVA Parks – representing six jurisdictions here in Northern Virginia – I’m honored to be here on their behalf to recognize the 33 years of service by Art Little to NOVA Parks,” he said. “We really are standing with a legend here – in his professional and married life and in his selfless service to Northern Virginia.”

During all those years on the Board, said Knapp, Little has been part of and instrumental to many significant events. “He is a witness, a participant and an advocate for incredible growth, here in Northern Virginia, with parks, trails, recreation, water and land conservation,” said Knapp. “It’s truly been incredible. There are more buildings that have his name on them, in Parks and Recreation in Northern Virginia, than any other person I’m aware of.”

KNAPP said Little is loved, not only by the Board, but also by the NOVA staff, represented that evening by Paul Gilbert and Michael Nardolilli. Gilbert served on the Board with Little and is now executive director, and Nardolilli is the Board chairman. Knapp then told Little that the three of them came to the Council meeting to give him a small token of their appreciation.

“Art has been a consummate and selfless Board member who lent his hand to our budgeting, discussions on capital expenditures and our audit,” said Knapp. “And he’s the longtime chair of our rowing committee and an avid golfer.

“When I moved to the City and became a member of PRAB, he welcomed me with open arms, was a terrific mentor and introduced me to all the people in the City I needed to know to do my job effectively. And I’m forever grateful for that.” Knapp said Little also told him when there was an opening on the NOVA Parks Board and encouraged him to apply.

Then, as Nardolilli presented Little with a crystal plaque engraved with the words, “Thank you for your leadership in building a stronger regional park system, 1987-2020,” Knapp addressed Little directly.

“Art, for your friendship, sense of humor, passion and enthusiasm for outdoor spaces – and all those other things you’ve had a hand in – and for your dedication to our City, our citizens and the citizens of Northern Virginia, we greatly thank you,” said Knapp. “You are loved, you are appreciated and you are going to be greatly missed at NOVA Parks.”

Afterward, Julia Little – who’s been married to her husband for 54 years – noted that his family has lived in the City for 200 years and they’ve been Fairfax residents since 1957. “He’s really enjoyed volunteering,” she said. “And I’m very proud of him.”

Budgeting the State's Resources

BY KENNETH R. "KEN" PLUM
STATE DELEGATE (D-36)

COMMENTARY

In contrast to the federal government's method of budgeting, the budget for the Commonwealth of Virginia is more than balanced. The state Constitution prohibits the borrowing of money for operations, and it requires a "rainy day fund" of reserve monies that can be drawn upon in an economic downturn. That is in part why the state has a perfect AAA bond rating giving it the best terms when monies are borrowed for capital projects. Both the House and the Senate have completed work on their versions of the budget that was proposed by Governor Ralph Northam earlier this year. The two budgets will be reconciled in a conference committee that will resolve differences between the two. Total spending for the biennium will be about $48 billion in general funds raised through taxes. Individual and corporate income taxes provide three quarters of the revenue with sales tax providing about seventeen percent and additional smaller taxes making up the rest. General funds coming from taxes make up about 36 percent of total revenue. Non-general funds that consist of fees such as motor vehicle and gas taxes, college tuition, federal grants and other fees make up 64 percent of the budget. Noteworthy features of the House and Senate budgets that are being reconciled and are subject to change before a final budget is adopted include a much needed increase in rates for personal care providers in Medicaid programs, an increase in developmental waiver disability slots by 1,135 in the Governor's budget to 1,635 in the Senate version of the budget. While the increase will help, the number of persons on the waiting list still number in the thousands. The Governor and the House budgeted for 630 supportive housing slots for persons with serious mental illness while the Senate provided 1,630. Budget language provides for the establishment of a state-based exchange for health insurance. The budgets of both houses provided for teacher raises as did the Governor's budget.

The amount differs in each with an expected three to four percent over the biennium. The ratio of counselors to students in the public schools will be improved. The Governor proposed a ratio of one counselor per 250 students. The House ratio is 325 and the Senate's is 300. Likewise, the ratio of teachers for English learners will be improved. A major point of contention among the Governor's and the House and Senate budgets is that only the House has proposed to restore the cost to compete funding for Northern Virginia schools because of the high cost of living in the region. The average per pupil direct aid for public school students range from $6,206 in the Governor's budget $6,297 in the House budget. A major emphasis in the budget is an increased investment in preschool education that was championed by the First Lady. The Governor's "Get skilled, Get a job, Give back" (G3) funding to provide tuition assistance to low- to moderate-income students who meet certain criteria is receiving significant funding. The Housing Trust Fund will receive a much-needed infusion of cash proposed in all the budgets. For information comparing the three budgets, go to www.thecommonwealthinstitute.org.

We Both Deserve $15. Why Don't Our Senators Think So?

BY NICK RIVIERE AND
TONY HEDGEPEATH

Riviere

Hedgepeth

Like millions of Virginians, we work hard. As home care providers, we work every day to help older adults and people with disabilities live independently at home and in the community. By keeping people out of costly nursing homes and institutions, we save taxpayers money and deliver quality care. We do the same work but in different parts of Virginia – Fairfax County and City of Richmond – and have different backgrounds. One of us is a 21-year-old assisting young adults with developmental disabilities and one of us is a 61-year-old Army veteran helping his fellow vets who suffer from PTSD. However, we both love what we do. It's a blessing to be able to help others live with dignity. We both deserve to make at least $15 per hour and live with dignity ourselves. Unfortunately, our Virginia state Senators seem to disagree. Earlier this month, the Virginia House of Delegates passed a bill to raise the minimum wage to $15 for all workers by 2025. They recognized that working families are falling behind no matter how hard we work, and that we need to build an economy that works for everyone. The Senate, however, passed a bill which would create different minimum wages in different regions, even for workers who do the exact same jobs like us.

Their bill also forces workers to wait even longer to get a raise. If the Senate bill becomes law, people working in Fairfax won't make $15 until 2027, while those in Richmond won't make $15 until 2032. Our fellow homecare providers and others working in Hampton Roads won't make $15 until 2034. Delaying the minimum wage increase for 14 years, and paying different wages for the same work, is not only unfair; it's unacceptable. Every person who works hard and plays by the rules in Virginia deserves equal respect. We deserve living wages, paid sick days, affordable health care, a secure retirement, and the right to join together in a union. While the cost of living varies in different parts of Virginia, we all feel the same pain when we struggle to pay rent, buy groceries and pay utilities. Housing costs are skyrocketing in both Richmond and Northern Virginia. Health care costs, food costs and transportation costs are all increasing. We need a state-wide $15 minimum wage to ensure that no one gets left behind. To our Senators, we ask: why should a home care worker in Richmond or Roanoke make less than a home care worker in Fairfax when we make the same contribution to Virginia's families? We elected Democratic majorities to the House and Senate because they promised to deliver a brighter future for working Virginians. It's time that our Senators delivered on that promise.

Targeted by Scammers

To the Editor:
Recently, I was stuck at home and unable to go to work for a few weeks due to health reasons. While to some people that may seem like a welcome respite from the drudgery of commuting to a 9 to 5 job, let me tell you it was not. While Week 1 wasn't too bad, one can only watch so many episodes of Law and Order: Special Victim's Unit! What I would like to share with everyone is just how many calls we all get on our house landlines each day. When we're at work and don't answer, most callers don't leave messages so we have no idea of the volume of these calls each day. I can honestly say that 99 percent of these calls are cold calling sales people or scammers! Yes, there is the occasional call from Giant Food that "a prescription is due for pickup," but for the most part they are from strangers trying to separate you from your hard-earned cash. # More Criminal Charges Filed against Figueiredo

BY BONNIE HOBBS

A Fairfax man who worked at Wildflour bakery in Chantilly has been charged with additional crimes against a second developmentally disabled adult employee there. That means that Alberto Figueiredo, 73, has now been accused of three offenses that allegedly occurred while he was the bakery's general manager.

Wildflour routinely hires individuals with developmental disabilities, and Figueiredo has been employed there for more than a decade. But on Jan. 30, Fairfax County police arrested him on a charge of object sexual penetration against a developmentally disabled adult under his supervision. Detectives began investigating in late January, after the victim disclosed the alleged assault to her parents.

Then on Friday, Feb. 14, police announced that additional felony charges of object sexual penetration and forcible sodomy have been lodged against Figueiredo. They say a second woman told her parents about the alleged offenses against her, earlier this month.

Major Crimes Bureau detectives thoroughly investigated the new information and obtained the latest arrest warrants, Feb. 13, after consulting with the Commonwealth Attorney's Office. Figueiredo was arrested without incident, that same night, at his home in Fairfax and taken to the Adult Detention Center where he was held without bond.

Victim specialists from the Police Department's Major Crimes Bureau's Victim Services Division have been assigned to ensure that the alleged victim is receiving appropriate resources and assistance.

when "Vizsla Go" (VGO) members met to celebrate the Feb. 14 holiday. The new permanent home of the "LOVE" sign at the Workhouse Arts Center in Lorton provided a perfect backdrop for heart-themed pictures.

Valentine's Day or Vizslantine's Day, as it's referred to in the group, is a natural time to celebrate this affectionate, beautiful, and energetic red dog.

A pointing breed, originating in Hungary, the Vizsla has risen in popularity in the United States to 42nd in the national registry. Known for its versatility in dog sports, and its increasing use in bomb and drug detection, the dogs also are happy to be family dogs, as long as significant daily exercise is provided.

VGO is a small group of active Vizsla enthusiasts who meet regularly to exercise, socialize, and train their beloved animals. Several VGO members serve the community as therapy dog teams and can be found at the library reading with children, at the airport, schools, colleges, and retirement communities.... after a long run.

Reflections of the Irish Rover Dog Walker

A crisp morning, blue skies, playful paws, an empty breakfast bowl, a leash ready by the door, and wagging tails can only mean one thing: Time to go for a dog walk. Seven years later, I am still dog walking and enjoying my career switch even more with every passing day. Supported by a passionate team, who are client focused, who enjoy pets, who appreciate the outdoors, we have become the Irish Rover Family with all our furry friends. We are not just walking for the sake of walking. Instead, your pet is taking in the wonders of their natural environment. Your pet feels at home with us.

Last year, Irish Rover Dog Walkers and Pet Sitters continued to flourish and expand our team. Our approach has always been client and pet focused. Our philosophy is to understand the fundamental needs of the pet owners first before we even get to know their pet. This allows us to meet the expectation of the owner and to provide service tailored to their dog. We also have the expertise to care for other pets including cats, rabbits, guinea pigs, birds, fish, and bearded dragons.

One might ask, how difficult can it be to walk a dog? A dog walk is not just a dog walk. The walk should be pleasurable and stimulate the dog. When a dog is out in the great outdoors, they are using all of their senses to explore their environment. Our goal is to make this experience as fun and exciting as possible. Irish Rover prides itself with great walks as we have a variety of trails to choose from. Not only are we walking dogs, but we are admiring nature all around us. Whether it's an early morning walk, we are listening to a chorus of birds, or if it is a late night, we might be enjoying the sounds of the frogs or the bugs. The pets always perk up when they see a heron wading in the pond, or a family of deer grazing, or a sly fox rambling around. Last year, we had the good fortune of seeing a brown owl who was secretly trying to disguise himself as a fallen log. That is the beauty of a walk, there is always something new to see that stimulates your pet's interest. The dogs also get to interact with their friendly neighborhood furry friends along the way.

Last year, the feeling of that extended family really came into play when we had our first human client pass away. For the first time in Irish Rover history, I came to inherit a dog. This was truly an honor that someone would think so highly of my pet care that they would leave me their dog..

While February is designed to raise awareness of the societal contributions of African Americans, in some schools, it's taught all year long.

Black History for a New Generation

Lessons on the contributions of African Americans not limited to February.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

Black History Month was created to devote one period during the year to highlight the contributions of African Americans. It represents an opportunity for all, not just African Americans to learn about and appreciate the numerous contributions of Black Americans. That conversation, however, is changing at some local schools.

"It's part of Madeira's curriculum ... not specifically for Black History Month," said Karen Joostema, Director of Communications at Madeira. "[Students] taking Modernism will be researching a Harlem Renaissance poet of their choice, analyzing their lives and work. Juniors have also read Frederick Douglass' Narrative and Toni Morrison's Song of Solomon to interrogate the promise, failures, and continuing work in the U.S. on race and civil rights."

The school's curriculum, says Joostema incorporates studies of the contributions of all cultures including those of African Americans, seamlessly throughout the year. "AP (Advanced Placement) seniors will be finishing up Ralph Ellison's Invisible Man, working to understand how Ellison viewed the struggles of race and class in the middle of the twentieth century and how he viewed himself as part of the American literary tradition, as voiced in his response to Irving Howe, "The World and the Jug," she said. "Sophomores have just finished reading a short story from the Kenyan writer Ngig) wa Thiong'o along with a play from the white South African playwright Athol Fugard.

"We study seminal figures in American History, many of whom are African American, so it's just a given that we're studying it throughout the year."

Ninth graders read Maya Angelou's I Know Why the Caged Bird Sings to explore how identity, one's sense of self, are shaped by race, class, gender, and geography.

At The Heights School, African American history is part of year round study, said Linda F. Maher. "We study seminal figures in American History, many of whom are African American, so it's just a given that it's just a part of studying history throughout the year," she said. "Studying the Civil Rights movement, for example, is integral to our study of Civics.

Still, February offers an opportunity to focus on African Americans history outside of tragic events. KiKi Davis, Director of Institutional Equity and Diversity at St. Stephen's & St. Agnes School, says that African Americans have contributed to every aspect of American culture, her school's celebrations include recognition for those influences. "[We're] celebrating the contributions of African Americans to the arts literature, music, theater," she said. "Students will learn about the contributions and the effects of Americans of African descent in other segments of society including, academia, medicine and science."

"There will be several lunch forums held for our students to discuss issues directly relating to the African American experience," said Davis. "Many teachers will incorporate historical facts and references in their curriculum."

Russian National Ballet: "Romeo & Juliet" / "Carmen." 8 p.m. At GMU Center for the Arts, 4373 Mason Pond Drive, Fairfax. With lush music and exquisite grace, the Russian National Ballet returns to the Center to perform two of the world's greatest ballets: Romeo and Juliet together with Carmen. Both ballets express the torments of love. Young love, bursting with exhilarating passion, is at the heart of Romeo and Juliet, with the perilous fate for the star-crossed lovers. While with Carmen, it is unrequited love, burning with obsession that is at the center of this beautifully tragic ballet. Under the direction of the legendary Bolshoi principal dancer Elena Radchenko, the company brings both timeless classics to life, articulating the nuances of love through expressive dance, elegant costumes, and lavish sets. Cost is $56, $48, $34. Visit the website: www.cfa.gmu.edu

Stargazing and S'Mores. 8:30-10 p.m. At Burke Lake Park, 7315 Ox Road, Fairfax Station, Burke. Set your sights on the stars and warm up inside and out with s'mores by a roaring campfire at Burke Lake Park. Participants age 3 to adult can take a stroll along the lakeshore while learning about the constellations, their stories and other night-sky features. An astronomical naturalist will identify stars for you and have some telescopes available for you to use. Then, put the finishing touches on your evening out with a campfire and s'mores. S'mores ingredients will be provided; hot dogs are welcome. Cost is $12 per person. Children must be accompanied by a registered adult. Call 703-323-6600 or visit www.fairfaxcounty.gov/parks/burke-lake.

OPINION

Climate Change at Our Doorstep

How Virginia is taking the high road.

BY ROHAN MANI

Crowing up in a world in which scientists predict we only have 12 years to limit climate change catastrophe is understandably unnerving for an 18-year old. And the most worrisome concern is that we are doing almost nothing about what is looming over the horizon.

For decades, our planet has experienced consistent increases in temperature, changing rainfall patterns, increasing frequency of floods, droughts, melting of glaciers and more. While cutting back greenhouse gas emissions responsible for global warming is the only way forward, limited progress has been made on this front. Coal and oil continue to dominate as major energy sources despite the availability of relatively cheap and abundant solar and wind energy. What then are realistic and sustainable solutions that we should pursue in order to leave a thriving planet for our children and grandchildren?

According to the Fourth National Assessment Report, the impacts of global climate change are already being felt in the United States and are projected to intensify in the future. But the severity of future impacts will depend largely on actions taken to reduce greenhouse gas emissions and to adapt to the changes that will occur. This report draws a direct connection between the warming atmosphere and the resulting changes that affect Americans' lives, communities, and livelihoods, now and in the future. Multiple studies have now projected that the climate of our region will turn more southern over the coming decades. The unusually warm winter of this year may not be an exception but a norm for coming years. That means, less need for jackets, gloves, hats, scarves etc.

Many communities are attempting to answer this question in different ways. And it's been fascinating to see how some are gearing up to cope with immediate problems through advocacy and the support of local governments. It's obvious that communities need to adapt to a changing climate irrespective of what happens globally to reduce greenhouse gases.

There is, however, a ray of hope. The Virginia lawmakers passed an unprecedented climate legislation last week that will significantly alter use of clean energy in our power generation. The measure, called the Clean Economy Act, lays out a plan to get Virginia to 100 percent renewable generation by 2050. The legislation will significantly alter our generation energy capacity with solar and offshore wind taking the lead. That will not only reduce our dependence on fossil fuel-based energy generation but will put Virginia among the top US states in terms of dealing with climate change.

Climate change has the potential to significantly transform every aspect of our lives, ranging from where we live to what we eat and the stories we tell. It is an existential crisis for our generation and generations to come. I believe this is the time to act now to save the planet and it begins at our doorstep. We can do our own bit by driving less, switching to cleaner energy sources, using energy efficient appliances and reducing usage of water. As activist Greta Thunberg put it aptly, "the climate crisis has already been solved. We already have the facts and solutions. All we have to do is to wake up and change."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

are in my neighborhood and countless free vacations I've won where I only have to sit through a short two hour presentation, are just some of the calls I get every day!

Boredom forced me to pick up the phone and actually speak with these people. Civic duty caused me to engage in as long a conversation as I could so they would have less time to rip off my neighbors. They target the young and the old. Their metrics must show they succeed enough to make it profitable. And our number is registered with the "Do Not Call" list! Something must be done.

Making Virginia a Climate Leader

To the Editor:

We don't have time to waste in the face of the climate crisis. A recent climate report from the National Audubon Society revealed that two-thirds of North American bird species are vulnerable to extinction from climate change, including nearly 70 species found in Virginia.

From the coasts of the Chesapeake Bay to the forests of the Blue Ridge Mountains, birds like the Field Sparrow and Cerulean Warbler may lose nearly all of their seasonal habitat range. We need practical, ambitious climate solutions to protect our state's birds.

The Virginia Clean Economy Act (HB 1526 / SB 851) can help by leading our state on a path to achieve a 100 percent carbon-free economy that will help our birds, our environment, and our communities thrive.

This bill is not the only step Virginia should take to address climate change—but it's a great first step. I urge Senator Barker and the General Assembly to make cutting carbon emissions a top priority. We must act now to make Virginia a climate leader and prevent another year of inaction.

Useless Is As Useless Doesn't Have To Do

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

It began years ago when technology enabled many public bathrooms to change to hands-free. Other than the obvious hands-on responsibilities, many of the other elements no longer required any touching. Be it the paper-towel dispenser, the hand dryer, the hot and cold/on and off functions in the sinks, and of course, the urinal and toilet flushing functions. All providing a convenience never before possible. Other than an automatic entry/exit function for the bathroom door, and one as well on the inside for the stalls themselves, using many public bathrooms has become much less involved, shall we say, than ever before. And it has not stopped there. It has gone public in a very big way.

Driving, specifically through tolls, that is. Thanks to EZ-Pass, tolls or rather interacting with them by having to hand money over to a "toll collector," (or even to stop and toss money into a basket) has nearly been eliminated. Due to a device (transponder) attached to my licence plate, as me and my car approach the toll booth, I simply go about my normal driving business with nary a worry in the world. I steer into the dedicated EZ-Pass lane at a bit less than the posted speed, and ding!, as I drive through the toll booth, the toll is paid. No fuss, no muss, no window roll-down and no scrambling for change or digging for dollars. What's done is done so long as the yellow light illuminates and "paid" appears. (Although if what's done isn't done, you'll soon receive a paper bill in the mail at the address on file.)

Metro, our local public conveyer, also provides a hands-free or very nearly hands-free experience. If you have a plastic "Metro card" linked into their system, all you need do as you enter the turnstile is tap your card and go. No more standing in line at the "Fare"/"Add Fare" kiosks to load your card with money to start or end your journey. As with your EZ-Pass, once you sign up and link your Metro card to a credit/debit card, you are "In Like Flint," as some of us from a certain generation might say. Henceforth, your card is automatically updated to always provide sufficient dollars for this trip and any subsequent trips to make sense.

Now imagine if I had a "smart phone." How many more functions/people-free interactions might I enjoy with a tap, a scan or a wave? Unfortunately, I have what my wife, Dina calls a "stupid phone." That's a flip phone with no internet access. As such, I am cut off from an evolving world. A world in which I'll likely not have to interact with anybody or reach into my pocket for anything resembling money. All I'll have to reach for is my "smart phone." I've seen its functionality at the airport in lieu of a paper ticket, on Amtrak, at concert venues and of course sports venues. It seems to help speed up the entry process.

I don't really don't want to be the last flip-phone-holding man standing. But neither do I want to get into a life-accident while negotiating the learning curve. At the moment, the road ahead seems full of twists and turns with more curves than I can possibly imagine. How do I negotiate something I can't see? Moreover, how do I negotiate the road less traveled, by me? Where will I draw the experience necessary to acclimate to these ever-changing signposts? I mean, the words may be familiar, but some of the context may be off putting and counterintuitive, to me.

I'm not a complete Bozo. I have partially integrated into this new world. I have had insurance and car payments automatically debited from my bank account for years. I have some over-the-counter medicines, supplements and a variety of cat-related care and feeding products automatically delivered to my home. However, sometimes I feel like a pinball (and I'm no wizard) without the bells and whistles banging around trying to stay on top of what product is debit/paid and when. Now that's a service I could use: an automated weekly reminder of what's happening when. And the beauty of it, I wouldn't need any new devices. I use what I always use: my home computer. Turn it on, click the email, open, read and then close. Even Bozo the clown could do that.
