THE KENSINGTON RESTON is a new senior living community, currently under development on Sunrise Valley Drive, adjacent to Reston National Golf Course. It’s a dream come true for our Kensington founders, who sought to build a residence where they’d want their own parents to live— if needed and right in their own home town.

We are planning to officially open our doors next year. But, we have already begun to assemble a team of best-in-class professionals and partners who will deliver the full spectrum of clinical care and uncompromising service for which The Kensington is known.

For example, our excellent staff-to-resident ratios will help deepen connections in extraordinary ways between caregivers and residents. We will welcome couples, even if the needs of one partner are not the same as they other. And, we will provide three distinct levels of memory care that enable us to address even the slightest signs of decline— long before they compromise safety, morale and overall quality of life.

We recognize that our introduction to the neighborhood comes at a difficult time, in light of COVID-19’s impact on our families. Even so, our commitment to preserve the well-being of senior adults is stronger than ever. We continue to uphold our promise to love and care for your family as we do our own.

Please join us for a virtual open house so we can get acquainted. There’s lots to tell, but more importantly, lots to learn about you.
Give us a call at (571) 494-8100 to schedule your virtual visit.

We can’t wait to get to know you better and to introduce you to the profound devotion to family that comes with residency at The Kensington.

In Fairfax County, Adopt-A-Road is a Hit

With everyone concentrating on social distancing these days, the Virginia Department of Transportation’s Adopt-A-Highway is a possible option to clean the roadsides, get some sun, and practice social distancing while doing a good deed. One look out the car window in some places, and it’s obvious something like this could use some attention.

Roads in Fairfax County are adopted more than in any county in the state, VDOT says. In Fairfax County, the Adopt-A-Highway program has 324 active permits with a total of 1763.99 lane miles adopted.

There isn’t much to the adoption either and after two clean ups, VDOT puts in the blue sign which is looked at by some as good PR or advertising. According to VDOT, volunteer groups and individuals “adopt” a two-mile or longer stretch of roadway and make a two-year commitment to pick up the trash at least four times a year.

A group applies to adopt road segments for Adopt-a-Highway under a permit agreement, and the organization agrees to clean their adopted stretch of highway at least two times a year for three years. Typically, if the pickups are not within those timeframes, then VDOT will contact the groups with a gentle reminder to complete their pickups. If they are non-responsive, then the permit would not be renewed and the route would become available for another group/person to adopt.

The group picks a convenient date each quarter and everyone works together to pick up trash along the route. VDOT provides the signs, trash bags, bright orange vests and safety information. The bags can be left along the side of the road for VDOT to pick up, or the group can turn recyclables in for cash.

“Under the current circumstances, however, we are certainly working closely with our volunteers and being understanding/accommodating of volunteers who cannot complete pickups at this time,” said VDOT’s Adopt-a-Highway coordinator Kari Fuhrman.

If any groups want to do it during the pandemic, VDOT has a few guidelines:
- The Adopt-a-Highway program asks all volunteers to adhere to the federal and state mandated social distancing guidelines.
- Offices are open to provide any volunteers safety items if needed, and to contact the office to schedule a date and time to pick up the items.
- Personnel will leave the items in an accessible area outside of the office for volunteers to pick up.
- VDOT crews are still performing road maintenance work and able to pick up any bags left on the side of the road.
- The volunteers’ safety and health are the number one priority.

Adoption in Action

Many times, it’s not only the trash that’s the reason for the adoption, there can be a cause that is the object, and it can be a way to bring an effort or a name to the forefront. This is the case with Jeff Todd Way in the Mount Vernon area. Jeff Todd was an active community member that was the victim of a car accident, but his family keeps the memory alive by sponsoring a Jeff Todd Way Clean Up every year. One was scheduled for this spring but was cancelled by the family due to concerns about the coronavirus.

Drive Through Diplomas: ‘Just Like Going to McDonalds’

Area schools, students celebrate graduation differently this year.

By Mallory Culhane
The Connection

When COVID-19 interrupted the school year nationwide, and forced large gatherings to be cancelled, schools, families, and graduating seniors wondered how they’d still be able to celebrate the milestone without a traditional ceremony.

The initial impact of schools closing and the possibility of ceremonies and events getting cancelled shocked and upset many students.

“For the first week of quarantine I was under the impression that we would have a prom and graduation but after those got cancelled it hit me like a bus,” said Jasmine Pardue of Falls Church, a graduating senior of McLean High School and rising freshman at Pace University.

“The thing that bummed me out the most was not being able to see my amazing school bus driver again and say goodbye,” said Emilio Salgado of Herndon, graduating senior of Oakton High School going into the U.S. Navy.

Still, area high schools figured out ways to celebrate graduating seniors. James Madison High School held a drive through ceremony where seniors drove along the front of the school to receive their cap, gown, and diploma.

Oakton High School also held a drive through event for students to pick up their graduation regalia and diplomas. A virtual senior awards ceremony and video messages from teachers to the class.

“McLean High School had a similar approach as well: holding a drive through graduation for students to say goodbye to teachers one last time, as well as a virtual ceremony.”

Kyra Sanders of Vienna celebrating her graduation with her parents earlier this month.

“I worked for 12 years to receive my diploma through my car’s window, like I was just going to McDonalds.” — Kyra Sanders of Vienna, a graduating senior of James Madison High School

“It was honestly a really exciting experience that I know I will remember much more than I would have a normal graduation ceremony,” said Elizabeth O’Brien of Vienna at James Madison High School attending Virginia Tech in the fall. “All of this has helped me, knowing how much my family and friends want to make this special for me.”

However, many students can’t help being disappointed with the outcome of virtual and drive through celebrations. Many agree it just wasn’t the same as a traditional ceremony with a cheering crowd and the throwing of grad caps.

“I was definitely frustrated because as an immigrant the thing that I have always looked forward to was walking through the stage and getting my diploma, so no ceremony definitely bummed me out,” said Salgado, who’s originally from Mexico and came to the U.S. with his mother when he was 9 years old, and is the first in his biological family to graduate high school in the U.S.

Salgado suggested that an open field ceremony – where social distancing could be practiced among both students and families – could have been a good alternative, still allowing students and families to have a usual graduation ceremony.

“[Virtual graduation] was disappointing because it didn’t feel the same – it was good that they did it – but obviously I wanted to actually do it,” said Pardue. “I wish I had an open field ceremony because I could congratulate all the other students and my friends, instead of saying ‘congrats’ on Instagram.”

“I worked for 12 years to receive my diploma through my car’s window, like I was just going to McDonalds,” said Sanders. “The worst part is there wasn’t anyone to blame; it wasn’t the schools’ fault, they were doing their best, it was just bad circumstances.”

Graduation this year for seniors has been a mix of emotions, and many agree that the end this year just doesn’t feel the same.

“I’m still bothered that I didn’t get to say goodbye to my teachers and friends,” said Sanders. “Everything feels unfinished.”

One week after George Floyd was executed in broad daylight on a busy city street over an alleged $20 dollar counterfeit bill, we crossed into South Dakota’s Badlands National Park. My 7-year old boy was unraveled. It was probably the joy of being unencumbered after a 10-hour RV ride. To me, the photo my 12-year old took captured a hopefulness and enthusiasm for life that was wholly inconsistent with the last week.

We had reserved the RV for the previous Sunday - a seemingly fail proof plan to travel self-contained during a global pandemic with me, my husband and our three kids and two nieces (all aged 7-14). For the previous 11 weeks, the kids had been confined to a narrow 2 mile existence between our home and my sister’s. This trip was meant to be an escape from our Coronavi-rus-necessitated confinement.

The excitement our family felt as they sent the photo capturing a hopefulness and enthusiasm for life that was wholly inconsistent with the last week.

O n Friday, June 5, Fairfax Police responded to a call about a man in distress in the Mount Vernon area of Fairfax County. Body-cam footage and bystander video reviewed by the Fairfax NAACP shows a man in distress, however, he does not appear to be a danger to himself or others. FCPO Officer Tyler Tim-berlake arrived on scene and immediately deployed his taser. The first officer on scene, who spent the first few minutes of the tape trying to calm the man down, is confused and says, “Does he have warrants?”

Timberlake than put his knee on the back of this man’s neck, while both cops and at least two EMTs piled on to the man as he cries out: “Dee-dee, I can’t breathe.”

Timberlake used his taser on the man at least two more times while he was already face-down. The Fairfax County Police and Common-wealth’s Attorney moved swiftly to charge of- ficer Timberlake with assault and battery, announc-ing the charges at press conference on Saturday night.

“The community needs increased accountabil-ity and transparency for its officers.” — Sean Perryman, Fairfax NAACP President

Fairfax NAACP President Sean Perryman: “I commend Chief Roessler and Common-wealth Attorney Dasceno for moving quickly to charge and arrest the officer that assaulted a man clearly in distress and in need of help. This latest video is a testament that Fairfax County is not immune to police violence. We already know that use of force is disproportionately used against Black members of the community. “Although we saw the country move swiftly to arrest this officer, we do not know what the official story would be without body cam and bystander video. Most officers in Fairfax are not equipped with a body camera and the Board of Supervisors has chosen to delay the roll out of body-worn cameras.

“The community needs increased accountabil-ity and transparency for its officers. And we need to reduce the interaction of Black people with armed officers because we see time and time again that we are viewed as a threat. This incident should never have happened.”

The Fairfax NAACP is working with individu-als and ally organizations to develop a host of changes to the way policing is conducted in the county. Advocating for how police respond to people in mental health distress is just one such change, and we will be unveiling the full list of our proposals in the coming days.

To me, the photo my 12-year old took captured a hopefulness and enthusiasm for life that was wholly inconsistent with the last week.

As we left Virginia, there was a common re-frain: Avoid Michigan - the armed White mili-tias that stormed the capital might be looking for trouble. Avoid Minneapolis where White po-lice officers can execute Black men with seem-ing impunity (it had taken 5 days for the officer who had squeezed the breath out of George Floyd to be arrested).

While at Cuyahoga Valley National Park, I found myself making sure I smiled harder than necessary, trying to appear less threatening to the White folks we passed. Not necessarily for my safety, but for that of my African-American husband and my son, the same age as Tamir Rice was when he was gunned down in near-by Cleveland over a toy gun. Everything about the trip was fraught - from the interstate high-way system that made our journey possible but whose creation had torn apart thriving Black communities to what should have been an inno-cent bird watching expedition (remember what happened in the Brambles). From the “Police Lives Matter” sticker on the back of a pickup at one of the campgrounds we visited to the util-ity vehicles blocking exits to downtown Chica-go as we traveled along I-90/I-94 West. At every stop for gas or other necessities, the Coronavi-rus pandemic wasn’t my primary concern, the pandemic of racism and possible assault on the Brown bodies traveling with me was. Would the crisp $50 bills the ATM dispensed be mistaken for counterfeit tender?

As we crossed into South Dakota from Min-ne-sota, my 7 year old son asked if we were close to “the ‘Bad Place,” the name he recalled for the Badlands. The nation’s first peoples, whose lands were systematically dispossessed and whose people were systematically extermi-nated, named this area mako sica (land bad) because of the harsh and unforgiving land-
Statement from the Mayors and Chairs of Northern Virginia

As the Mayors and Chairs of Northern Virginia, we raise our collective voices on behalf of the more than 2.5 million residents of our region to express our sorrow for the decades of injustices that have befallen the African American community in America. The tragic and senseless murder of George Floyd is an all too familiar scene, we grieve with the family of Mr. Floyd and the many who have died in similar acts of unlawful violence. Let us clearly state – Black Lives Matter. Mr. Floyd’s violent and wrongful death at the hands of Minneapolis police was the tipping point that prompted thousands in our region to stand up against persistent racial inequity in our country.

Northern Virginia is one of the most diverse regions in the United States. We value all people regardless of race, ethnicity, religion, sexual orientation or creed, and know that our success as a region is based on inclusiveness in government, education, and economic opportunity. We recognize that we still have far to go to address persistent racial inequity in our society at large, and in the administration of justice in particular.

As local government officials, we support the right of people of our region to express their First Amendment voices through peaceful protest. We are stronger in the United States. We value all people regardless of race.

The Connection

Don't look now, but Virginia is in the closing days of a primary. You might not have heard about it because of the global pandemic and the economic crisis. But buried beneath all the headlines about police brutality and racial injustice, Republicans are about to decide which candidate they want to appear on the ballot this November against incumbent U.S. Sen. Mark Warner. Many Republicans are struggling to figure out which candidate they are going to support in an election that almost seems like an afterthought in the midst of everything else that's going on right now. Even though Warner narrowly won his last reelection to Ed Gillespie six years ago, he seems to be in a solid position now.

"This is beyond an uphill race for any Republican running, especially candidates who have never held elective office and have no name recognition," said David Ramadan, a former Republican member of the House of Delegates who now teaches at George Mason University. "Mark Warner wins this one with a landslide."

Campaign finance records show Warner has more than $8 million cash on hand. By contrast the three Republicans in the race are struggling. Daniel Gade of Mount Vernon has been the most successful, raising about half a million dollars. Thomas Speciale of Woodbridge has raised $80,000. And Alissa Baldwin of Lunenburg County has raised less than $9,000.

"Warner is going to run ahead of the Democratic ticket, maybe not by as much as he would historically but he'll oupsett the Democratic presidential candidate," said Ben Tribbett, Democratic political strategist. "For the Republicans to have a chance at winning the Senate race, they need Donald Trump to carry Virginia. And I don't think many people think that's going to happen, including the Trump campaign, which is not investing here."

Daniel Gade

Gade says Warner has done little for Virginia, focusing instead on being a "reliable rubber stamp for his party." If elected, he says, he would support legislation that would give veterans the ability to use their VA benefits anywhere rather than limiting them to VA hospitals and clinics. He says he would also support the RENIS Act, a proposal intended to cut down on regulations by requiring congressional approval of major agency regulations before they can be implemented.

He says he would introduce a bill that would require every member of Congress to place all of their holdings in a blind trust, outlawing the kind of financial transactions that some lawmakers engaged in after getting privileged briefings on the COVID-19 crisis. "Right now all they have to do is report their transactions, which is how we knew about the fire sale of stocks," he said. "It basically makes it a form of felony insider trading. The same kind of thing that got Martha Stewart in trouble should get legislators in trouble when they do it."

He says he would have voted for the CARES Act, although he adds that he believes it should not have included money for Planned Parenthood or the Kennedy Center. For the Paycheck Protection Program, he feels that the requirement that businesses spend 75 percent of the forgivable loan on payroll might be too rigid. He says business owners should be able to spend that money on utilities and rent. "It doesn't matter if you can still pay your employees if the business dies because it gets evicted," he said.

Thomas Speciale

Speciale says Warner has done little for the Army Reserves since then except for the time he was in college. He's currently in the Army Reserves, where he serves as a human intelligence technician.

"Our country is being torn apart by hyper-partisanship and lies by career politicians, and ultimately there is a very real threat of socialism emerging in the United States," said Speciale. "Democrats want to do away with the Electoral College. They want to seize people's fire-arms. And they want to tamp down on what they call hate speech, which is any speech they don't like."

Speciale says Warner works for the Democratic National Committee instead of Virginia, raising money in New York, California and Florida rather than focusing on Virginia. If elected, Speciale says, he would advocate for strengthening Second Amendment rights by eliminating so-called "gun free zones" and reducing requirements for gun owners to have concealed-carry permits in multiple states. He says he wants to "re-invent" the Department of Education, but he was unable to provide any specific details other than "hold schools accountable" and "hold teachers accountable."

"The issue of immigration, Speciale supports reforms that are outside of the current Republican mainstream — allowing DACA students to receive student aid through the CARES Act, for example, or supporting a path to citizenship for undocumented immigrants. "I don't think it is logical to think that you are going to evict 30 to 50 million illegal immigrants that our feckless leadership in the past have allowed to move here," he said. "And if you won't give me immigration reform, we'll have to build a wall."

He says he voted for the CARES Act, although he disagrees with the additional $600 weekly benefits for people collecting unemployment insurance during the greatest economic crisis since the Great Depression.

Ultimately, though, he believes COVID-19 is what he calls a "fake pandemic" because he believes the original estimates for fatalities were overstated.

"I believe it's psychological terrorism," he said. "This is nothing more than a new flu."

Alissa Baldwin

Baldwin, 42, is an adjunct professor at Longwood University and a civics and economics teacher at Nototway Middle School in Crewe. A native of Minassass, she was raised in Nokesville and Lunenburg. She has a bachelor of arts in political science and leadership studies from the University of Richmond and a master of science in educational leadership from Longwood University.

She was a paralegal for several years before switching careers to become a high-school history teacher.

"I have gotten to a point where I'm so frustrated with the career politicians and the liberal progressive push on so many issues I hold near and dear, like life and liberty and gun rights," said Baldwin. "So I just decided to live my teaching and enter the race as truly a political outsider, someone who cares about people and is used to bringing people together to solve tough problems."

Baldwin says she would offer a contrast to Warner on issues like abortion, taxes and guns. If elected, she says, she would champion federal legislation that would outlaw the ability of business owners to prohibit firearm owners. On the issue of abortion, she is in favor of outlawing it even in cases of rape and incest. On the issue of education, she says she wants to dismantle the federal Department of Education using a phased approach that transfers all its operations to the states.

"They've actually created a lot more problems for teachers and created more inequity in the schools because of their funding formula and their regulations, which are actually unfunded mandates," she said. "It's quite burdensome on local school divisions in rural communities and urban communities that don't have the tax base for local matching funds."

Baldwin says she would have voted for the CARES Act, although she says she would have pressed for increased testing to limit stimulus checks to people who are most in need rather than the widespread program that was approved by Congress.

"I don't believe that anyone who is here violating our rule of law should receive federal benefits," she said. "You are entitled to protection of your rights under our Constitution. But not benefits."

As spring flowers begin to wither under the heat and humidity of summer, the vibrant blooms that once graced yards and gardens begin to fade. It’s during this time that landscapers and gardeners rely on a bevy of flowering plants that are hearty enough to stand up to the relentless heat from the summer sun.

“There are many annuals that keep blooming and producing more flowers, so you have constant color and constant flowers throughout the summer,” said Janet Shalestik, Plant Specialist, Merrifield Garden Center, Fair Oaks, Virginia.

“They can all be planted either in the ground or in containers.”

One of the most popular is Lantana, which can be variegated in two-toned red and orange and Salvia, which can grow to be two to three feet tall. Both flowers attract hummingbirds and butterflies, says Shalestik. “Salvias are often purple and blue and sometimes red. What a lot of people like to do is put them containers on their patio, deck so they can see the hummingbirds and butterflies while they’re sitting outside.”

Orange and pink Begonias, Petunias in deep purple and fuchsia, towering Sunflowers and Zinnias with blooms that burst in colors like orange, pink and yellow and deep pink are also top summer picks, said Shalestik. “Zinnias can get nice and tall so people sometimes want to use them as a backdrop in their garden.”

Summer-Flowering Vinca are a low-maintenance choice. “They’re very heat tolerant, they don’t have to deadhead and they’re very deer-resistance,” said Shalestik.

“Hydration is key, especially for flowers that are planted in containers,” said Janet. “It’s important to water when it’s hot and we’re not getting much rain. We recommend watering in the morning so they’re hydrated when the intense heat starts.”
Youth Group Provides Equipment to Local Hospitals

The Connection

Quarantine in Virginia has seen many students taking the initiative to raise funds and contribute to frontline pandemic workers. A group of high school students in the DC-Maryland-Virginia region banded together into the Youth-COVID-19 Relief Organization, or YCRO, to connect hospitals and local organizations with supplies.

Not only does YCRO work with suppliers, but it also has teams that specialize in 3D printing and sewing its own masks. Publicity lead Anika Thatavarthy talks about the role of subteams in the project’s goals.

“YCRO also has...other expansive networks to fulfill donations, while also host- ing a variety of other subteams. These other teams serve to raise awareness about health-related safety in the community by releasing informational videos and tutorials and aim to impact those affected by the pandemic in other ways such as via food donations and uplifiting cards.”

Thatavarthy explains how YCRO founder Reevu Adakroy, a junior at TJHSST and McLean resident, was inspired to start the group in March after seeing news about non-professional personal protective equipment production.

“Because of his passion for robotics and 3D printing and his drive to do his part to make a substantial impact in the DMV area, he began a basic call to action within his high school’s community in the hopes that many people who shared that same dedication to giving back would join the cause.”

As a new organization, YCRO faced difficulty in developing trust to attract volunteers, work with suppliers, and donate to medical facilities. Thatavarthy mentions the ways the organization overcame these obstacles.

“However, with consistent outreach efforts and diligence from Reevu and other members, YCRO was able to be integrated as active members into worldwide networks such as MaskforDocs and OSMS (Open Source Medical Supplies). In addition, reaching out to our own school and regional community for volunteers led to increased participation and efficiency.”

Currently, with 120 members, Thatavarthy says YCRO is still open to students who want to positively impact their community.

“For students who haven’t been a part of YCRO, our organization’s team leaders are happy to catch new members up to speed in order to get connected with a facility in need of these supplies.”

YCRO aims to make a positive impact on the community so apart from recruiting team members, the organization provides instruction on their social media accounts (@projectycro) for those at home to contribute. Thatavarthy details the overarching goal for YCRO to help the community.

“We will be posting helpful tutorials for simple homemade PPE and other crucial information in relation to COVID-19 to our social media platforms. Overall, YCRO seeks to be a resource that our community can take advantage of in order to become more alert and aware of the pandemic and the needs of frontline workers.”

Four More Farmers Markets to Open This Week

Fresh fruits, vegetables, baked goods and more will soon be available at four additional Fairfax County Park Authority Farmers Markets. Markets at Oak Marr, Annandale, McLean and Kingstowne have now been scheduled to open.

Openings of the county’s 10 producer-only markets were delayed this year because of the COVID-19 pandemic. Market openings were phased as health conditions allowed and volunteers became available to serve at the markets. Four more markets will open and operate on the following schedule:

Oak Marr, 3200 Jermantown Road – June 10 – Wednesdays from 8 a.m. to noon
Annandale, 6621 Columbia Pike – June 11 – Thursdays from 8 a.m. to noon
McLean, 1659 Chain Bridge Road – June 12 – Fridays from 8 a.m. to noon
Kingstowne, 5870 Kingstowne Towne Center – June 19 – Fridays from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m.

When possible, shoppers are encouraged to preorder their items directly from the local vendors. Go to the Farmers Markets website and click on the Vendor Preorder List for a list of all market vendors and their ordering policies. You can also click on an individual market for details on the vendors at that market and preordering instructions. At the markets, customers are asked to comply with all COVID-19 safety procedures, including limiting shoppers to two persons per household, wearing facial coverings, and maintaining 6 feet of distance from others. There may be a waiting line, and there will be a one-way path through the markets. To give everyone the best shopping experience possible, consult the 2020 Market Guidelines infographic before your visit.

EVictions HalTed, For Now: A temporary statewide moratorium on all eviction proceedings in Virginia is in effect through June 28, said Gov. Ralph Northam. The temporary moratorium will halt all eviction proceedings for a period of nearly three weeks, as the Northam administration implements a comprehensive rent relief program for the thousands of Virginians facing housing insecurity in the midst of this public health crisis.

"I am grateful to the Chief Justice for granting this order, and for the activists who have been working tirelessly on this important issue," said Northam. "Access to safe and stable housing is critical and important, and this action will keep thousands of families in their homes as we work to get them the support they need."

Details of the Governor's rent relief initiative, supported by federal CARES Act funding, will be announced in the coming weeks. Tenants are encouraged to know their rights and responsibilities and pay their rent on time if they are able. Please visit StayHomeVirginia.com for more information and resources on tenant rights.

An expert is someone who knows some of the worst mistakes that can be made in his subject and how to avoid them. - Werner Heisenberg

Do you protect someone from the bad place when it is all around us: the water you drink, the equitable health access and treatment you don’t receive, the justice that is consistently denied, and for far too many, the use of force too capriciously and extremely applied. For all of our sakes, I hope this moment doesn’t end up being just the latest in a long string of state sanctioned violence against Black and Brown bodies; I pray instead for a nation that will move from being “not racist” to affirmatively becoming antiracist and developing the moral conviction and political will to exterminate the bad places.

If you have the opportunity to visit the Badlands, I highly recommend it; it is terrifyingly beautiful, harsh and life giving at the same time. Come to think of it, it’s not unlike the gauntlet Black bodies run daily in this bad place.
