Changing the pandemic’s course through the lens of an equitable recovery.

By Mercia Hobson
The Connection

Year 1: Covid-19 comes to a close on March 10, 2021. In an interview with the Connection Newspapers on March 3, Fairfax County Supervisor John Foust (D-Dranesville District) and Supervisor Walter Alcorn (D-Hunter Mill District) discussed the County’s testing/vaccines and economics responses in Year 1 with lessons learned. The discussion that followed centered on County plans in Year 2: COVID-19 for equitable adaptive outreach and recovery institutions, assuming a reduction in cases.

On March 11, 2020, the World Health Organization declared the coronavirus outbreak a pandemic. WHO Director-General Dr. Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus said, “We are deeply concerned both by the alarming levels of spread and severity and by the alarming levels of inaction. We cannot say this loudly enough or clearly enough, or often enough. All countries can still change the course of this pandemic.”

Foust said the single most aggressive action the County took to change the course of the pandemic was an economic response, beginning with backing off from making new investments in the budget. The County put $52 million into a small business grant program (Fairfax RISE Grantees). Next, tens of millions of dollars in federal funding helped people with their rent, utilities, and food (CARES Act). Foust said, “We invested in temporary housing for homeless people and people who needed to be isolated but didn’t have that opportunity given their crowded living situations.” The Fairfax County program is called the SF6 Mass Care Health and Human Services to provide Quarantine, Protection, Isolation/Decompression.

Alcorn said that these things would not have happened if Foust had not pushed the way he did. “Foust deserves the credit for exercising leadership on the board,” he said.

Alcorn called for ongoing and future pandemic course corrections via Board Matters and present it on March 16, 2021, with proposals.

“(It includes) spending up to $15 million. I think that was the number we chose from our economic reserve fund to start stimulating our recovery effort and to focus, especially on those industries that were most impacted, which are hospitality, restaurant, entertainment, and retail,” Foust said.

Alcorn concluded the discussion by focusing on how best the County can get vaccines out to everyone. The County engaged faith-based communities with minority members who were vulnerable and had reason to be suspicious of mass vaccination programs. Alcorn said they learned by experience when rolling out testing that it wasn’t good enough to set up sites and expect people to get there.

“We got to the point of sending out mobile testing centers...micro-targeted to do the testing in communities where there were outbreaks underway... We’re moving down a similar path with vaccinations,” Alcorn said. The County also learned people trust their doctors, so they would be pushing vaccines there.

The Fairfax County COVID-19 Vulnerability Index shows five domains individually and as a composite index: Socioeconomic Status, Household Composition and Disability, Race/Ethnicity and Language, Housing and Transportation, and Health. Individual indicators were ranked into 5 classes using natural breaks and given a score of 1 - 5, with 5 being the most vulnerable (shown in dark blue).

At the height of the spring 2020 COVID-19 shutdown, many small businesses and workers struggled to survive financially.

THE LAST THING Alcorn learned from the Health Department he called “fascinating.” It’s not good enough to just have 75 percent of the overall population inoculated to get herd immunity. You really have to get 75 percent of each community inoculated. Otherwise, we’ll still have hotspots and clusters of cases that will keep the pandemic going... I know we’ll be pushing from the Board for all sorts of creative strategies to get in there.”

I nevitably someone is going to refer to the nominating contests for candidates for the Virginia statewide offices and the House of Delegates as horse races—not because of the characteristics of any of the candidates but because of the crowded field of persons who are offering themselves for public office. Space limitations on this column will not permit me to list all the candidates for they are numerous. For whatever the reason, Virginia voters have more choices than ever. That is a good thing. Democracy has broken out in the Commonwealth.

Virginia election cycles do not parallel those of other states except for New Jersey where state elections are held in years other than those in which federal elections are held. This November Virginia will be electing a governor, lieutenant governor and attorney general and all one hundred members of the House of Delegates. That is the schedule for the general election. Before we get there, however, candidates must be chosen by the political parties. Democrats pick their candidates in primary elections this year on June 8, and Republicans use conventions to pick their candidates. What is amazing is the number of people who have shown up seeking the nominations. For the names of all those who have declared themselves at the time of the writing of this column, go to https://www.vpap.org/elections/.

For governor, there will be five Democrats on the June 8 primary ballot from which voters can choose their candidate. Republicans will have seven candidates from which to choose in a convention-like process adapted for the pandemic to determine their candidate for governor to be on the ballot for the General Election on November 2.

At the same time as and at part of the same process, the major political parties will pick their candidates for lieutenant governor and attorney general. For lieutenant governor there are five Republicans and eight Democrats seeking their party’s nomination. For attorney general there are three Republicans and two Democrats seeking their party’s nomination. There may be independent candidates on the ballot in November, but they must qualify through another process.

In the House of Delegates races there are more challenges to incumbents and to open seats than I can remember. For Democrats who have a slight majority in the House of Delegates and who have been realizing amazing success in getting their legislative agenda passed, there are fourteen challenges to incumbents with many of them being to Democratic progressives in Northern Virginia. On the Republican side there are contests for the House nominations in seven districts with a couple of the most conservative members being challenged for their nomination.

And They Are Off!

By Kenneth R. “Ken” Plum State Delegate (D-36)

Equity costs - and paying that price will not be fair, but it will be just.

Q: Is it fair to make the admission process for Thomas Jefferson High School for Science and Technology more equitable?

A: Was it fair for “hard working, deserving children” to be deprived of a spot at TJ because their parents were unable to pay for expensive test preparation or a $100 application fee? Was it fair that some middle schools appeared to be feeders to TJ and others never had students admitted?

Q: Is it fair to cancel federal student loan debt and reduce the racial-wealth gap?

A: Was it fair for African Americans to be excluded from traditional means of wealth accumulation that enable white borrowers to take out fewer loans at lower dollar amounts? Is it fair for African Americans to be hindered in repaying these student loans by labor market racial discrimination?

Q: Is a Marshall Plan for Moms fair?

A: Was it fair that this country built free labor into its economic model from the beginning and has never valued caregiving for the essential work that it is? Is it fair that the pandemic has disproportionately impacted women?

Q: Is it fair for the Women Best to be the guidepost of our national economic reset?

A: Was it fair that for far too long, Black women have been the least, the last, and the lowest? Equity costs - and paying that price will not be fair, but it will be just.

I f black people had a dollar for every individual, organization, and company that publicly professed a commitment to anti-racism and racial equity while holding up progress in the name of “fairness,” we could have closed the racial wealth gap ten times over. These performative professions have been decried as “feel-good gestures that cost nothing and shift no power.”

When people talk about fairness in this context, they usually are not motivated by a desire to ensure groups have equal resources, but by an immoral mandate to prevent certain groups from getting resources they don’t “deserve.” It’s particularly shocking when people of faith champion fairness in this way since grace - unmerited and unequal favor - is a foundational principle of many spiritual traditions.

Since before inception, our nation has preached a false moral narrative of fairness while enshirining discrimination in our founding documents and utilizing the forced removal and genocide of Indigenous peoples and the forced enslavement and brutalization of African peoples as building blocks. Fairness is what folks cry when they want to profess racial justice but not practice it, when they want to perform equity and not pay for it.

Planning Commission Recommends Denial of Flag Limitations

It’s not a done deal.

By Mercia Hobson
The Connection

The Fairfax County Planning Commission voted 11-0 to recommend denial to the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors to replace the current zoning ordinance establishing specific regulations for flags and flagpoles in the New and Modernized Zoning Ordinance (zMOD Updates) countywide. Mason District Commissioner Julie M. Strandlie was absent from the March 3 vote. The proposed regulations would include different standards appropriate to lots with single-family dwellings or manufactured homes and lots developed for multi-family or non-residential.

Commissioner Timothy J. Sargeant, Member-at-Large, introduced the motion regarding flags and flagpoles. He said the proposed regulations were intended to establish “reasonable limits” on the size and number of flags and flagpoles’ height. Sargeant recognized that the United States Supreme Court ruling of Reed versus Town of Gilbert, Arizona prevented regulation based on content and prohibited exempting the United States flag while regulating other types of flags.

Sargeant said, “There has been an exceptional number of public comments with concerns about this amendment, suggesting that at the least additional time is needed for consideration.” The current zoning regulation on flags and flagpoles is a maximum of three per lot. Sargeant recommended retaining the limit and not the adoption of additional limitations as recommended by Fairfax County staff.

The proposal limited flagpole height to 25 feet on single-family lots and 60 feet on all other lots. It limited single-family lots to no more than two flags.

“I felt it was a solution looking for a problem,” Commissioner John C. Ulfelder, Dranesville District, said. “I suspect, based on a lot of comments we’ve received, a lot of other people perceived it in the same way...If it ain’t broken, don’t fix it. I will heartily recommend denial for this proposal.”

Opponents of the measure came together in recent weeks to voice their concerns. The Fairfax County GOP organized a petition to the Fairfax County Planning Commission and Board of Supervisors on Change.org to tell Fairfax County, no. “The American flag should never be restricted,” said Katherine Morgan of Fairfax, according to Change.org.

The Great Falls Citizens Association (GFCA) board expressed concerns about the regulations. In a Feb. 18 letter to Fairfax Planning Commission Chairman Peter Murphy, GFCA President Bill Canis wrote that the GFCA Board believed that the measure was overly restrictive in its scope.

Supervisor Pat Herrity (R-Springfield District) said in The Herrity Report, his weekly newsletter, “I will strongly oppose it if it comes before the Board of Supervisors.”

The March 3, 2021 Planning Commission Video with Linked Agenda can be found on the County website. Changes to regulations on flags and flagpoles will be considered part of the public hearing for zMOD before the Board of Supervisors on March 9, 2021.

“I will heartily recommend denial for this proposal.”

McLean Family Home

Sunny, free-flowing home created by removing walls and adding windows.

By Marilyn Campbell
The Connection

After relocating to McLean from the West Coast and purchasing a home, the family knew that major changes were needed to accommodate their family, which includes two children. The couple enlisted the help of McLean based interior designer Tracy Morris of Tracy Morris Design.

“The home had sharp angles that disrupted the flow and wasted space that could be used for storage,” said Morris.

One of the biggest priorities was to create a light-filled, family friendly kitchen. “Our main goal was to have an island to feed small children and a space where the family could eat dinner at the table,” said Morris.

“Our main goal was to have an island to feed small children and a space where the family could eat dinner at the table.”

— Tracy Morris, Tracy Morris Design

An architectural overhaul was needed to accomplish that goal. The new design includes a butler’s pantry and mudroom which allow for additional storage.

“The kitchen was bizarre and had a weird layout,” said architect Sydney Davenport Katz of BarnesVanze Architects Inc. “There was one large island with two different heights. One of the biggest priorities was to create a light-filled, family friendly kitchen. “Our main goal was to have an island to feed small children and a space where the family could eat dinner at the table,” said Morris.

“Nothing was functional and the family knew that major changes were needed to accommodate their family, which includes two children. The couple enlisted the help of McLean based interior designer Tracy Morris of Tracy Morris Design.”

The second floor also called for a design overhaul, says Morris. “The master bathroom had a lot of chopped spaces. It was a bizarre design.”

The original master bathroom had what Morris described as excessive storage space. Some of the closets were eliminated and the drop-in tub was replaced with a free-standing tub.

The home has five full bathrooms, two powder rooms, six bedrooms, including two guest rooms. The laundry room is located on the second floor.

“That project had such good energy,” said Morris. “I’ll always have great memories of it. There are just some projects in life that fall into place and this is one of them.”
In a recent food drive, The Langley School’s community collected more than 2,000 non-perishable food items and raised more than $5,000 to donate to So Others Might Eat.

The Langley School Holds Drive Against Hunger

Donated items were loaded onto a Langley school bus.

Drive fills a school bus with more than 2,000 food items.

As part of The Langley School’s culture of giving and commitment to service learning, the school typically hosts a Day of Giving each spring in which the entire school community comes together to pack meals for those in need. Although the pandemic has prevented an in-person Day of Giving this year, the Langley community found a new way to serve neighbors struggling with food insecurity.

For the past three weeks, Langley’s students, parents, and faculty/staff have participated in the “Give S.O.M.E. Love” food drive benefiting So Others Might Eat (S.O.M.E.), a Washington, DC-based service organization that supports those experiencing homelessness and poverty. Together, the Langley community raised more than $5,000 and collected more than 2,000 non-perishable food items to donate to S.O.M.E.

Donated items were loaded onto a Langley school bus, providing students with a visual representation of the collective impact small contributions can make. In addition to learning about the value of serving others, students also gained a deeper understanding of how food insecurity impacts many in their community.

Community Charity Champions Donates $1,000 to Cornerstones

Huckaby Briscoe Conroy (HBC) Group gives back to local charities.

Huckaby Briscoe Conroy (HBC) Group at Keller Williams McLean donated $1,000 as part of their Community Charity Champions (CCC) program to give back to local charity groups. Karen Briscoe HBC Principal, HBC partner Lizzy Conroy, and Jenny McClintock, VP represented the Huckaby Briscoe Conroy Group for the check presentation. Receiving the donation for Cornerstones was Ted Lewis, VP of Business & Community Impact and Adrian Chadwell, Manager, Corporate and Institutional Relations.

The check presentation took place at the Cornerstones offices located in Reston on Wednesday, March 3, 2021. Conroy said for the team: “Thank you so much Adrian and Ted for such a warm welcome. I’m telling everyone about Cornerstones now! Looking forward to keeping in touch and participating in volunteer outreach opportunities.”

Community Charity Champions was organized by HBC Group in 2012 to support local charities and organizations. More than $100,000 has been raised over the last 9 years. Briscoe said, “Our mission at HBC Group is ‘Live Here, Work Here and Give Back Here!’ So, having Community Charity Champions donate to Cornerstones is a natural opportunity for us to give back to a great cause and to help families, individuals and children with a little hope.”

Cornerstones focuses on three key objectives: Stability, Empowerment, and Hope. For Stability they helped 186 households with eviction prevention; 770 individuals with emergency shelter and rapid re-housing; 85 households that were homeless moved into permanent housing; and 1,295 families and 2,996 children with food and basic needs. Focused on Empowerment, Cornerstones has provided 70 households with housing and home ownership support; 108 affordable housing units maintained; 265 care management; and 221 children with Laurel Learning Center/Affordable Childcare and Before-After School Programs. Vienna Theatre Company Brings Virtual ‘Dear Elizabeth’ to the Stage

Dramatic highs and lows of devoted lives lived through letters.

By David Siegel
The Connection

A thirty-year love affair expressed through written and mailed letters will be brought to dramatic life by the Vienna Theater Company. The play is “Dear Elizabeth.” The play was written by the distinguished, award-winning American playwright Sarah Ruhl. “Dear Elizabeth” will be filmed live and then aired online.

The Vienna Theater Company (VTC) has been producing since 1971. The COVID pandemic with its necessary health and safety restrictions is not deterring VTC from providing quality entertainment to the community. However, in these new normal times VTC has decided to postpone its planned 50th anniversary celebration for the time being, said VTC’s Laura Fargotstein.

Veteran Vienna Theatre Company director Jessie Roberts helms “Dear Elizabeth.” The play is about two real people, the poets Elizabeth Bishop and Robert Lowell. Both were well-known for their way with words. In the pre-social media days, they often intersected and interacted through the mail; with hundreds of letters written on paper and delivered. The drama provides audiences a close up look at their devotion to each other through their actual correspondence.

According to Fargotstein, VTC rehearsed the play via zoom. The final production to be seen by audiences will be pre-recorded live onstage at the Vienna Community Center with proper health and safety precautions. VTC Board member Turner Bridford will accomplish the critical filming work for “Dear Elizabeth.”

There are only two people in the cast, “which makes it possible to stage keeping physically not close.” There is also an alternating set of two cast members. One cast is Heather Plank as Elizabeth Bishop and Tom Flatt as Robert Lowell. The other cast is Jocelyn Steiner as Bishop and Kevin Walker as Lowell.

 Asked if the audience needs to be familiar with the poetry of Bishop and Lowell to take in “Dear Elizabeth,” Tom Flatt was clear; “No. It’s a beautifully written piece about a lifelong friendship, full of wit and passion. That is something audiences will respond to, even if they’ve never heard of the poets.”

To prepare for his role as Lowell, Flatt did read a poem “mentioned and excerpted in the play, but also many that are not touched on. It’s been a wonderful experience.”

With its virtual “Dear Elizabeth” the Vienna Theatre Company continues five decades of presenting high quality entertainment alive even with the restrictions that COVID-19 has brought to everyday life.

Obituary

Herbert Lain Holt
March 25, 1934 – February 13, 2021

It is with great joy for the long and wonderful life he lived that we announce the passing of Herbert Lain Holt (Bill) on Saturday, February 13, 2021, at sundown in Carlsbad, California. Bill lived until just six days prior to his passing. Herbert was battlit Parker's Disease and never once complained. Our hero drew his last breath peacefully at home, surrounded by loved ones. We could not have asked for more for our beloved husband, father, grandfather, uncle, coach and friend.

Herbert was born in 1934 to Otis Ebitrope Holt and Martha Louise Holt (nee McDaniel) in Gibson County, Tennessee. A proud son of Trenton, Herbert attended Trenton Elementary and Middle School, and played quarterback and was captain of the football team for Peabody High School. During his high school tenure, Herb won the distinction of being voted football captain of the “Big Ten” on all ten western Tennessee high school coaches’ ballots. In basketball, Herb served as captain of the junior varsity and varsity basketball teams. Aside from sports, Herb exhibited leadership as the senior class president. Herb also played baseball for the Humboldt Tennessee American Legion. Because of Herbert's outstanding sports performances, he was honored in 2008 to be inducted into the Gibson County Sports Hall of Fame. Known as “Trinkles,” he was honored in 2020 to be inducted into the Peabody High School Football Hall of Fame.

Herb graduated high school in 1952, and attended Murray State University in Kentucky on a football scholarship where he played quarterback for the Racers and was co-captain of the team. He was the student body vice president and president of the Methodist Student Union. At Murray, Herb met the love of his life, Celia Maurelle Kirksey of Paducah, Kentucky, and they married over the winter break of their senior year in 1955. They recently celebrated 65 years of marriage last year.

After graduating from Murray State in 1957, Herb then earned his Master's Degree in Secondary Education Administration over the summers while he worked as head football coach and head basketball coach for three years in McKenzie, Tennessee. Herb then accepted an offer to teach and coach in Alexandria, Northern Virginia. In Alexandria, Coach Holt drew out the best from students and players and touched the lives and hearts of hundreds of students and their families for 40 years. Herb taught physical education and English at Francis C. Hammond High School in Alexandria, where he was also the assistant football coach and the junior varsity baseball coach. When T.C. Williams high school opened, he served as head football coach, and the junior varsity baseball coach. After three years, Herb was appointed athletic director and later became assistant principal. Coach Holt was at T.C. Williams High School fostering goodness during the time of the story “Remember the Titans.” Coach Holt also will be remembered for his dedication to students at George Washington Middle School. Upon retirement from T.C. Williams in 1997, he was named “Coach of the Year” by the Northern Virginia Athletic Coaches Association (NVACAA).

Herb and Maurelle raised their son and daughter in Springfield and West Fielding Virginia. Herb continued to coach kids’ baseball after retirement for the Springfield Babe Ruth League. He proudly served as the Membership Chairman, Vice President and President of the Northern Virginia Athletic Directors, Administrators, and Coaches Association (NVADACA).

A natural at sports, he turned his love of sports toward golf and enjoyed golf outings and trips with his son and friends. Herb never once met a stranger and was known for his get-up-and-go, tenacity and his fun-loving spirit. Genuine in every way, Herb never missed an opportunity to help someone or bring out the best in them, whether a family in need, or a kindred spirit hitchhiking a country lane. Herb also saved more than a few lives as a lifeguard on Kentucky Lake in his youth. He loved country music and dancing, and became a square dance caller in the 1970s. He gave his family lots of swim and beach days with bonfires and stories, trips to music festivals and county fairs, football and basketball games, and dancing, and became a square dance caller in the 1970s. He gave his family lots of swim and beach days with bonfires and stories, trips to music festivals and county fairs, football and basketball games, amusement parks, long country drives and especially family and friends. He loved bluegrass, spaghetti Westerns, Burt Reynolds comedies, ice cream, and U.S. historical fiction novels in no particular order. He was cool, calm and collected and supported and loved us dearly, always encouraging our independence and best selves while also being available to catch us should we fall. Herb and Maurelle moved to Carlsbad, California to be with daughter and family and were able to enjoy lots of family celebrations together.

Preamended by his parents and sister Charlotte Brown (Memphis, TN), Herbert at-toned Trenton Elementary and Middle School, and played quarterback, and was captain of the football team for Peabody High School.
